The culture of Bharat proclaims Sathyam vada dharmam chara (speak truth, follow righteousness). Not only Indian culture, the culture of all countries proclaims the same truth. Truth is the basis of every culture. Do not give scope for any differences based on culture. The whole world is like a mansion and various countries are like different rooms in it. So, do not divide humanity based on nationality. It is because of such division that humanness is on the decline. Sai devotees should not entertain any such differences. All should stand united. Names, forms and complexions may be different but humanity is one race. God is one. All human beings belong to one family.

Cows are many, but milk is one.

Beings are many, but indweller is one.

Castes are many, but humanity is one.

Flowers are many, but worship is one.

Paths are many, but God is one.

Hence, you should give up all the differences based on caste, religion and nationality and develop the spirit of love. Young men and women should work for the progress of the country. The country will prosper only when the youth develop sound character. Human life is based on character. Today there are many who are heroes in precept and zeroes in practice. Your actions should be in harmony with your words. Develop sacred feelings. Only then can you perform sacred activities. Devotion does not mean merely performing rituals like worship. Any work done with pure and selfless love is devotion.

154

Embodiments of Love!

Right from this day, let your lives be suffused with love. Let your hands undertake deeds that are beneficial to society at large. Let your thoughts be centred on the principle of love. You should rise from the level of vyashti (individual) to samashti (society) and ultimately merge in parameshti (God). In this physical and ephemeral world, wherever you see there is only restlessness. At times your physical body may be subjected to diseases. You should not be unduly perturbed. Body comes and goes. This body is a storehouse of dirt, and prone to diseases;

it cannot cross the ocean of Samsara. Oh mind! Do not be under the delusion that body is permanent. Instead take refuge at the Divine Lotus Feet. (Telugu Poem)
Greatness Lies In Practice, Not Preaching
One should not be unduly attached to the physical body, but it has to be taken care of properly. Sometimes

Sathya Sai Speaks - Volume - 35

you are afflicted with diseases because of negligence on your part. I take the sufferings of devotees because of My love for them. It disappears in the same way as it appears. Here is a small example. A young boy was suffering a great deal because of mumps (swollen cheek). The doctor said that it would take a minimum of 20 to 25 days to get cured. He was crying bitterly unable to bear the severe pain. I called him inside and consoled him saying, When Swami is with you, why do you cry? I materialised a sweet for him and made him eat. I took his pain upon Myself. For any other person, the pain would have been unbearable. Srinivasan was very worried about conducting this conference, when Swami was undergoing so much pain. As the swelling was between the two jaws, it was not possible to eat or speak. What does it matter if the body is not given food for a few days? Hence, I did not care for it. I told the organisers to go ahead with the conference. He asked, Swami, how are you going to deliver the inaugural address? I said, I feel the pain if I think that this is My body. But this is not My body, it is yours. All your bodies are Mine. Hence, I take your suffering upon Myself. That is My duty. This is not My body, so I do not care for it. Not only now, at any point of time, I do not care for any suffering. I practise whatever I preach. That is why I say, My life is My message. It is not possible for all to understand and realise My Divinity. I do not want to say it in public. I do not indulge in advertisement. All that is Mine is yours and vice-versa. I have no desires at all. All My desires are meant to give you happiness. Greatness does not lie in preaching, it lies in practice. A true acharya (preceptor) is one who practises and then preaches. That is what I am doing. Youngsters Men and Women!
156

Understand your true nature. Follow the path of Truth. Sathyam (Truth) is the name of this body. Develop this Truth in you. Truth is God, Love is God; live in love. When you follow the path of truth and love, you will certainly attain bliss. Some people put the blame on Me ignoring their own defects. It is a great mistake. There are no defects in Me whatsoever. I am like a pure mirror. There is no scope for even a trace of impurity in Me. You see the reflection of your own feelings in Me. Purify your hearts. Only then can you understand the truth.

Embodiments of Love!

Today we have inaugurated this Conference. Many more programmes are to follow. Hence, I bring My discourse to a close in order to give sufficient time for other programmes. I am prepared to spend any length of time to give you necessary guidelines.

Shun Desires And Attain Divine Proximity
Embodiments of Love!

THE one who realises that it is the same atma that dwells in him and in all other living beings, will experience and enjoy divine proximity always. He may be a renunciant or a householder or a celibate or one who is attached to the world; one who realises the atmic principle leads his life with the firm conviction that daiva sannidhi (divine proximity) is his pennidhi (greatest wealth). What is the primary duty of man? He should make efforts to understand the teaching of the Gita, Sarvatah panipadam tat sarvathokshi siromukham, Sarvatah sruthimalloke sarvamavrutya thishthathi (with hands, feet, eyes, heads, mouth and ears pervading everything, He permeates the entire universe). You should realise the truth that the principle of atma that is present in all beings is one and the same. As man is unable to understand his true nature, he is facing all kinds of problems in life. He is deluded by the thinking that he is the body. Consequently, he is forgetting his true Self and is wasting his time and energy.

The Message Of SAI

Today man gives topmost priority to his individual progress. Then he turns his attention toward society. Lastly, he enters the path of spirituality. This is a grave mistake. It is because of this that he is unable to realise the truth and faces hardships. What is the message of SAI? S stands for Spirituality, A for Association and I for Individual. It means that you must give first priority to spirituality, next to society (association) and only lastly to individual interest. But man follows the reverse order; he holds his individual interest above social responsibilities and gives last priority to spirituality. Consequently, he is distancing himself from God. In this manner, he is wasting his time. Time is precious. In fact, Time is God.

In the first instance, man should take to the path of spirituality and then serve society, understanding the principle of unity. Only then will there be progress at the individual level. On the other hand, if you concentrate on the individual level in the first instance, you will never be able to understand the spiritual aspect. Personages like Hiranyaksha, Hiranyakasipu and Kamsa were centred on their individual interests ignoring wholly the spiritual aspect. Physically and intellectually they were mighty.

Hiranyakasipu was a great scientist. But what is the use of scientific knowledge which cannot give you everlasting bliss? Hiranyaksha and Hiranya-kasipu filled their hearts with negative feelings. They entertained worldly desires which were ephemeral and negative in nature. The modern scientists have reached the moon, but Hiranyakasipu and Hiranyaksha could reach even the Sun. In spite of their mighty powers and scientific knowledge, they met their doom because of their materialistic attitude. They could not experience divinity. Likewise, man is also putting his powers and knowledge to misuse. He is not focusing his attention on his real goal. Manava (human being) is endowed with immense power. That is why the Upanishads exhort man thus: Uthishtha, jagratha, prapya varanibodhata (arise, awake, stop not till you obtain full understanding). O simpleton, wake up from this slumber of ignorance. Turn your vision towards the effulgence of prajnana. Get rid of thamasic quality. Give up worldly desires. Understand the ephemeral nature of the world.

Hiranyakasipu and Hiranyaksha had all powers at their command, yet they could not attain divine proximity. They investigated into the mysteries of creation and could even alter the planetary positions. But they could not understand even a small fraction of the principle of divinity. But Hiranyakasipu s son, young Prahlada had realised the divine principle. Once Hiranyakasipu asked Prahlada what he had learnt from his preceptors. Prahlada replied, The teachers have taught me many things. I have learnt about the four objectives of life, dharma, artha, kama and moksha.

In fact, Oh father! I have learnt the very essence of education.

Hiranyakasipu was overjoyed to hear all these. He said, Oh son! Let me have the pleasure of listening to what you have learnt from your teachers. Prahlada said, I have realised the truth that God is all-pervasive. Wherever I look, I find Him there. Hiranyakasipu became furious on hearing this. He pushed him from his lap and roared, You said that your teachers have taught you many things. Is this what you have learnt? There are many things to be learnt regarding artha and kama (wealth and desire) which are very important for us. But you have ignored them and are talking about God.

Unflinching Faith Of Prahlada

Where is God? Prahlada very calmly replied, Father, never doubt that God is here and is not there. In fact, He is present wherever you search for Him. (Telugu Poem)

Hiranyakasipu s ego was pricked. How dare this young fellow try to teach me a lesson? , he thought to himself. If God is all-pervasive, can you show Him in this pillar? , he challenged Prahlada. Yes, I can , pat came the answer. Such was his faith and devotion. Hiranyakasipu at once hit the pillar with a mace, and lo! God emerged from it. What is the inner meaning of this incident? Man can have the vision of God only when he breaks the shackles of body attachment. Today man is immersed in ignorance in spite of his learning.

You can make God appear before you when you have unwavering faith and devotion coupled with a steady and pure heart. Here is an example. You curdle the milk and extract butter out of it, and then heat it to get ghee. If there is water content in the butter, it will emit some unpleasant smell as you heat it. The smell will gradually diminish as you continue to heat it. So long as there is water in the butter, you cannot escape from the unpleasant smell. The water has to completely evaporate. Butter represents the individual nature. The evil tendencies in you can be compared to unpleasant smell. When you make efforts to melt butter completely, the unpleasant smell will gradually subside. When man performs sadhana the disagreeable smell of evil propensities emanate from him during the process. He should continue with his sadhana and overcome those evil tendencies. As he performs sadhana more and more, all evil tendencies in him will evaporate like water. Ultimately, his sadhana will yield the desired result just like pure ghee is obtained on heating butter.

Every man is endowed with body, mind, intellect and Chittha (Will). On being questioned by Hiranyakasipu, Prahlada replied, Father, I am neither the body nor the mind nor the intellect nor the inner instrument. I am the embodiment of atma. One will remain like pure butter if one gets rid of ego, does not develop attachment to the body and does not get deluded by the vagaries of the mind. If the butter is not free from the water of worldly desires, it will start emitting foul smell. So long as there are worldly desires in the mind, one cannot escape from the foul smell. This was the fate of Hiranyaksha and Hiranyakasipu. Even today there are many who do bhajans and give lectures on spiritual matters but are unable to get rid of the foul smell of worldly desires. Until and unless they give up the worldly desires, they cannot attain the state of purity. They are accustomed to a materialistic life. They do bhajans, meditation, etc., with a view to fulfil their worldly aspirations. They can be compared to butter mixed up with water. In the spiritual path, one should not give scope for the foul smell of worldly desires. Some people call themselves devotees but are turning wicked because of their desires. Can such people be called devotees? No. No. If they are really devotees, how is it that they emit bad odour? Their body, mind, intellect and also their actions are tainted with impurity.

Devotees!

Firstly, you should enquire into the reason for the foul smell that is emanating from you. Your mind should remain steady and unwavering through the vicissitudes of life. You should have strong faith. Only then can you lead a peaceful life. Prahlada was subjected to various kinds of punishments but his faith remained as steady as a rock. His love for God never diminished a bit. He considered Love for God as his very life-breath. But the devotees today stand in stark contrast to Prahlada. Their faith is so shaky that their mind is disturbed by the slightest trouble. They start entertaining doubts and lose their faith altogether. Losing viswasa (faith) amounts to losing swasa (life-breath) itself. Come what may, one should continue his sadhana with unflinching faith. This is the sign of true devotion. Devotion does not constitute merely singing of bhajans, performing rituals and chanting the divine name. You should firmly install divinity in your heart. You should take care that worldly desires find no place in your mind. Burn to ashes all desires completely in the fire of wisdom. Even if a trace of worldliness is left in you, it will multiply manifold and lead you astray. In order to free yourself from bad deeds and bad habits, make sure that you do not have even a shred of desire in you. But due to the impact of Kali Age, even devotees are filling their hearts with desires. Desires can be compared to foul-smelling pigs. One cannot stand the stink of a pig even when it is at a distance. Such being the case, how is it that man is giving room to so many pigs in his heart?

Fill Your Heart With Virtues

Embodiments of Love!

Truly speaking, man is very fortunate; but he is haunted by the misfortune of worldly desires. He is unable to earn the deservedness to get closer to God. He goes through many books and gives lectures, but what is the use? His actions do not match his words. He tries to deceive others with his speeches. In fact, he is deceiving himself. It is enough if he practises at least a fraction of what he preaches. His heart is filled with untruth. His deeds are unrighteous. Hence, he is unable to experience peace. Distance yourself from untruth and unrighteousness. The Vedas exhort man, Sathyam vada, Dharmam chara (speak Truth, practise Righteousness). Truth is God. If you forget truth, who can protect you?

Embodiments of Love!

You may be performing a number of spiritual practices, but do not feel proud of them. Firstly, purify your heart. Do not give scope for the foul smell of worldly desires. Fill your heart with the fragrance of virtues. Do not pay heed to the words of wicked people whose only job is to poison the minds of others. You do not get much benefit by merely reading books or listening to discourses. First of all, develop sraddha (steadfastness) and bhakti (devotion) in you. Sraddhavan Labhate Jnanam (with faith, wisdom is won).

Embodiments of Love!

What is the sadhana that you are supposed to undertake?

Make your hearts pure. Thiruthonda Alwar once said,

If one lacks purity of heart, one does not even deserve to chant the Divine Name of Rama. What is the use of chanting the divine name with polluted mind? Today the world is afflicted with all types of pollution. Man's thoughts, words and deeds are also polluted. How can such a person develop Bhakti? Today people are wearing the mask of Bhakti and trying to cheat others. Do not deceive others. Help ever, hurt never. This is the essence of the eighteen Puranas.

Deceiving others amounts to deceiving yourself.

Do Not Misuse The Name of Sai

In the world, the so-called devotees have increased in number. Now I feel the time is ripe to tell you a few important things. The feelings that spring in your heart must be as pure as the waters of the Ganga where it springs. Words do not suffice, what is needed is action. There should be unity of thought, word and deed. He is a wicked person whose thoughts, words and deeds are at variance. The proper study of mankind is man. Today we find unity of thought, word and deed only in acts of untruth, unrighteousness and violence. Man who is supposed to have noble thoughts and perform meritorious deeds is doing just the opposite. There are some people who are doing business in the Name of Sai. They are cheating others, pretending to be devotees of Sai. I do not approve of such behaviour. They are not devotees at all. They are going to different parts of the country and also abroad to make money in the name of Sai. It is a big crime. I do not ask for even a single paisa from others. I never approve of such business. Whoever it may be, if somebody approaches you with such a crass motive, tell him to get out at once. Do not allow business to enter the field of spirituality. One may do what one likes for the maintenance of one's family, but nobody should do business using Sai s name. Unfortunately, such activity is on the increase. In many villages, we find people misusing Sai s name for their selfish gains. This is happening even in many other countries like America, England, Japan, Germany, Singapore, Malaysia. Do not associate yourself with such wicked people. Keep your hearts pure and sacred. Otherwise, you are equal to a living corpse. Such people should not be respected. Better you perform their obituary rites! You should pray to God with sacred feelings. When you entertain worldly desires, you will be moving away from divinity.

Embodiments of Love!

You are coming here with all devotion and sincerity. Do not get deceived by people who do business in the name of devotion. In many places, we find people indulging in such mean practices. Maintain safe distance from them.

Tyaja durjana samsargam; Bhaja sadhu samagamam; Kuru punyam ahorathram (run away from bad company; join good company and perform meritorious deeds day and night). You may even live in the company of snakes, but should not tolerate the company of such evil-minded people.

We are undertaking so many social welfare activities, but I have never asked anybody even for a paisa. You are all aware of this. I do not involve Myself in money matters. But people today consider money as God. How can such people be called devotees? I told you earlier about this. I have started a service programme to look after children who do not have parents. One lakh rupees would be deposited in their name, which will take care of their needs. I have not asked anybody for any help in this regard. But today some people are collecting money saying that they would donate the amount to Swami for this purpose. Some others are proclaiming that they have taken up the responsibility of looking after the children. Can there be a worse sin than this? All such people are betrayers of God. Better they beg in the streets, than use My name to collect money.

This morning a few old students came to Me with a request. You all know C. Srinivas from Bangalore. He completed his education in our Institute and served as Warden of our Hostel for some time. He did not want to take up any job outside because he wanted to serve Swami. He always involves himself with such activities which will please Swami. He is looking after our Hospital at Bangalore. He said, Nowhere else, education and medical care of such high standards are provided free of cost to all. You have given us free education and taken care of us with so much love and care. We want to express our gratitude to Swami by serving Him in our own humble way. He brought a plan with him. He wants to establish schools in villages where there are no schools. He wanted Swami to commence the project today itself. I told him not to hurry. Youngsters today want to do things fast. That is not the right attitude. Start early, drive slowly and reach safely. Hence, I told him to go slow. But he said, Swami, many of our old students are here. Is it not our duty to express gratitude to You for all that you have done to us? He prayed that Swami should make an announcement in this regard. I agreed. I will never say no to good deeds. Those who want to undertake such sacred tasks should take up the responsibility and discharge it diligently. Only then will the old students would have sanctified their lives. In Chennai and Hyderabad, there are many of our old students who are eager to serve Swami. But in some circumstances, they have to obey the commands of elders. If the elders pursue the wrong path, the youngsters will also do the same. What to speak of the fate of our Organisations at Chennai and Hyderabad! I told them to select a suitable piece of land and that I would construct the building. But they lack such devotion and sincerity. They only pretend to have devotion and sincerity. Such insincere behaviour is not good for them. Many devotees there are put to inconvenience. The youngsters want to do many things. But what can they do without the support of elders? The elders neither take the initiative nor do they allow the youngsters to act on their own. Swami does not require any shrines. Swami is not interested in real estate. All that Swami wants is you should serve the society with bliss and without selfishness. If the elders do not want to accept your suggestion, disregard it. That is their fate. You, the youth make a sincere effort. Help the helpless. Feed the hungry. Do not go about seeking other people s help. If any help is needed, come to Me. Swami shall provide without hesitation. Do not collect a single paisa as donation. There are those who donate a hundred rupees and make a thousand rupees worth of self-glorification out of it. Swami is not interested in such activities. When Swami is standing by your side like a mountain, why should you seek any assistance from anybody? Do not subserve anybody. They will merely preach high philosophy, which is vainglorious. It is not only in India that such a situation prevails. All over the world, it is the same. Whether you go to England, Japan or Germany, it is the same sort of business that is going on. From everywhere, it is the same kind of news of such transactions; Swami receives a lot of such information. I feel all this as nuisance. This is not the kind of information that Swami wants to hear. What Swami desires most is to hear that all are well and are enjoying happiness and bliss. Marketing with Swami s name is highly disgusting and distressful. There can be no commerce in matters of devotion.

Sathya Sai Speaks - Volume - 35

Even the salty ocean may yield drinkable water, but this kind of devotion is worthless. It is already late. Swami never solicits donations from anybody nor He has agents for propagating His Message. I do not have any association whatsoever with these deceitful persons. Swami needs no material wealth. The only need of Swami is genuine love. Give love and take back love. That is the only exchange. With that love, fulfil your life. There is no devotion greater than love. Any little service performed with love is enough.

Sathya Sai Speaks - Volume - 35

If you give a glass of water to a thirsty person with genuine love, it is more than enough. Almost 90 per cent of the socalled devotees are, in fact, deceitful. Earlier, it was quite different; devotees were few, but they were genuine. Nowadays, there are too many self-seeking cheats masquerading as devotees. First thing in the morning, they adorn their forehead with vibhuti, wrap a scarf round their neck and roam about freely in the guise of devotees. Even the stray dogs scrounging around for something to eat are better than such fake devotees!

Your Heart Only Need Be My Temple
Embodiments of Love!

Develop love in you. Swami needs no temples or rest houses. The temple of your heart is more than enough. Swami shall stay happily therein. The news that I get from those so-called temples is highly distressing to Me. The amount of anguish that I undergo because of these is beyond your imagination. Do not do bad acts in the name of God. If you are unable to do good, at least keep quiet and stay out. There is no need for you to make all kinds of wild promises. Enjoy the bliss of divinity in silence and love. As people from all over the globe are assembled here, I have had to say these harsh words. Do not have any dealings with people who are doing commercial transactions in the name of Sai. Send them packing with a namaskar. If you need anything, ask Me. I have never deceived or let down anybody nor will I ever do so. Untruth will not be uttered by Me. My wish is that no such undesirable act should be perpetrated on any of the genuine devotees. Earlier, when I visited Mumbai, I used to find people doing bhajans and nagar sankirtan all over, unmindful of place or time even including the Airport. Today, you can hardly see anyone even chanting the Name in public anywhere. Of course, there are quite a few devotees. But they are shy of engaging in namasmarana. Earlier, I have been travelling around various cities like Chennai, Mumbai, Hyderabad, etc. But these days, I have no inclination to go anywhere. All these places have become overcrowded with such wicked people. It is of foremost importance for us to get rid of them and encourage the godly. God never abandons anybody. All are His. God does not make any unfair discrimination. It is only people who have feeling of hatred; God has no hatred in Him. God is pure embodiment of divine love only. All of you try to acquire such love in your hearts. Tomorrow, in the Valedictory function, I shall tell you more about the dos and don ts that you have to adopt in your activities. I am not interested in seeing this Hall packed to its capacity. I want only quality, not quantity. One teaspoonful of cow s milk is better than barrels of donkey s milk. It is enough if we have a handful of people with noble hearts. The State Presidents and Trust Conveners should take necessary steps in the right direction or it is better that they resign. We will ourselves take up the responsibility. The All India President of Sai Organisations should deal firmly with such people. He should relieve them of their responsibilities immediately. I am deeply anguished over the current state of affairs in our Organisation. Though this feeling has been there in Me for quite some time, I have been waiting for a suitable opportunity to express it. Since so many of you from various parts of the world have gathered here today, I felt this is the most opportune time to express My feelings.

My Love Made Me Speak So
Embodiments of Love!

Help ever, hurt never. Eschew evil tendencies. Being members of Sathya Sai Organisations, you should follow the path of truth which is eternal. Some people pretend to be humble devotees so long as they are within the portals of Prasanthi Nilayam. Once they go out of its precincts, they get back to their old ways. Such evil traits should be burnt to ashes. Develop godly feelings in you. God is ever ready to fulfil your prayer. Never entertain doubts in this regard. God is always in you, with you, around you, above you and below you. God will never be away from you. So, develop faith in God.

Embodiments of Love!

I have spoken to you in this manner only out of My immense love for you. Understand what has been conveyed to you and explain to your fellow devotees. Devotion has to be cultivated in a silent and sincere manner. Do not spoil your lives by resorting to untruthful ways. sathyam bruyath (speak the truth). Truth is God. Hence, lead a truthful life and ultimately merge in truth.

Sathya Sai Speaks - Volume - 35

Tomorrow, bring to Me all your doubts and I shall clarify them. First of all, keep away from bad company. I am not asking you to work for My sake. I do not want anything for Myself from you. I do all My work Myself. I do not seek others help. If only I Will it, the whole world will help Me.

So, you help yourself, serve the society and mould your lives into ideal ones.

Here Swami sang the Bhajan, Hari Bhajan Bina
and continued His discourse.

Suffering Dissolves In My Love
Embodiments of Love!

For the last four days, many devotees are very much worried that Swami is suffering because of the pain He has taken upon Himself. Understand that Swami has no pain at all because He has taken it upon Himself out of His love. How can I have pain when I have alleviated the suffering of My devotee? However, there are certain rules and regulations to be observed in this regard. I have taken it from somebody.
Hence, I have to put up with this for as many days as the person would have suffered in the normal course. I have no difficulty whatsoever. If I were really suffering due to pain, would it be possible for Me to speak to you at this length? I have no suffering, it has dissolved in My love. All should be happy, blissful and comfortable. This is what I desire. Do not be worried over this matter. I have no suffering. In fact, I am ready to accept all your sufferings. Be happy always.

Keep Spirituality As First Goal
In spite of acquiring great wealth,
Peace eludes man;
People forget to recognise humanness;
This is the Truth revealed by Sai.
WHAT man has to aspire for today is not happiness. It is not sorrow either. In fact, happiness and sorrow are only transitory in nature. Man's duty is to realise divinity in the unity of happiness and sorrow.
Even while you feel elated at the prospect of happiness, you will encounter sorrow. Similarly even while you feel depressed on account of sorrow, happiness will beckon you.
Since ancient times, several great rishis made efforts to rise above the feelings of happiness and sorrow. They recognised the fact that it was only in times of sorrow that the divine nature in a human being manifested. More than happiness,
Sathya Sai Speaks - Volume - 35
it is sorrow that is helpful to man in several ways. Na
sukhaath labhathe sukham (happiness does not come out of happiness). It is only from sorrow, that happiness springs.
The main source of happiness in man is sorrow. Just as we welcome happiness, we must welcome sorrow also.
Acquire The Wealth Of Love
Not only in India, but in all countires of the world, children and youth have an important role to play. Money is quantitatively more than the materials it can buy. If there is real wealth, we can achieve anything material. Today man is wasting his life in the pursuit of mere material wealth.

First and foremost, the wealth that man has to acquire is the wealth of Love. With the wealth of Love, everything else can be acquired. Several issues were being discussed in this conference for the last three days by the delegates comprising youth, the middle-aged and old people. What is the outcome of these discussions? Whatever be the texts studied and sadhanas undertaken by man, everything goes waste, if man does not cultivate the feeling of love in his heart. Today, what man has to recognise and realise is the principle of Love. That is true devotion. In the world today, parents, children and even wife, everybody is running after material wealth. Scarcely anyone wishes to acquire steady, selfless and divine love. God's love cannot be acquired with wealth, education, or the various sadhanas we

Sathya Sai Speaks - Volume - 35

undertake; it is only by offering pure, unconditional and unselfish love for love's sake can one achieve divinity. People undergo so many difficulties today, not realising the fundamental nature of this pure love. They are concerned with only the worldly and physical aspect of love. None can attain divinity by any method, except through love. If divinity is attained, everything is attained; if divinity is not attained, everything else is a waste. But man makes no effort to realise this truth. Assuming that material wealth is the foremost to be acquired, they are making several kinds of effort to acquire it.

Embodiments of Love!

Strive to acquire Love; try to achieve Love. Love is your real property. Realise this truth. There is no other quality greater and valuable than Love. Even if some such quality exists, it is of no real use for the goal of life. Therefore try to recognise the love manifest in every human being. It is only then, you would have realised your own true nature.
All the Indian Vedantic texts exhort one to realise one's real nature. You are not the body. You are not the mind. You are not the intellect. You have to achieve that, from which all these have emanated. Suppose you want ghee. What is its source? Milk. From milk comes curd, from curd comes butter and from butter comes ghee. Therefore, if you go to the source itself, namely milk, you can be happy.

Contemplation On Soham Is Real Sadhana

Embodiments of Love!

You are not the body, mind, intellect, senses or antahkarana you are verily the source for all these. Therefore, you should not waste your time in the pursuit of all sorts of material possessions.

Today, the members of Sri Sathya Sai Organi-sation are undertaking several types of sadhana. But are they real sadhanas or illusory? No, no; they are not real sadhanas. They appear to be real for some time and later on they are given up. You start doing japa as a sadhana and continue it for some time. Later, you give up japa and enter into dhyaana. Even this dhyaana is only till you achieve your object of dhyaana. When once it is achieved, it loses its purpose. Thus, all the sadhanas you undertake are only temporary. It should not be our aim and endeavour to achieve temporary result by doing temporary sadhanas. We must try to achieve that which is permanent, true, eternal, pure and of lasting happiness. Sarvadaa sarvakaaleshu sarvathra Harichinthanam. We must always, at all times and under at all circumstances spend our time in constant contemplation of God. This should become the very breath of our life and as natural as we inhale and exhale. This is soham that-thwa. This constant contemplation on the soham thatthwa is the real sadhana. Wherefrom does this soham come? It comes from the enquiry koham (who am I?)

Sathya Sai Speaks - Volume - 35

The result of this enquiry is soham. It is only when you realise this eternal truth, your sadhana will fructify. Today, we are building the mansion of our life on a water bubble. We do not know at what moment it will burst. Human nature should rest upon the eternal truth, not on a momentary thing like the water bubble. Human life is becoming more and more uncertain today. Adi Sankara described the same point in one of his famous Bhagavadgita sloka thus:

Maa kuru dhana jana yavvana garvam

Harathi nimeshaat kaalassarvam

(Oh! Man! Do not take pride in wealth, family, friends and youthful vigour; time will destroy everything in a trice.)

God Is In You, With You

Nothing is permanent in this world. Therefore, why should we rely on such impermanent things? Only atma is eternal. This is also referred to as Brahman. Brahman is divinity. This Brahma thatthwa is also called Brihat. The atma thatthwa that has emanated from this Brihat is the real Aham. This is true and eternal. We must, therefore, make an effort to realise such a true and eternal aham thatthwa. These three terms appear to be different; but, in fact, the inner meaning of all these three is one and the same. This pure and unsullied Brahma thatthwa is constantly with us, whether in the waking state or in the dream

state or in the deep sleep state. That Brahman is divinity in human form. And such a divinity is in you, right now. In fact, you are verily that Brahma thatthwa and none else.

Therefore, it is futile to seek God in some distant place. God is in you, with you, above you, below you and everywhere. Why should you seek such an omnipresent divinity elsewhere?

Man, today, is wasting his precious life in the pursuit of physical, worldly and artificial desires. Man's life today is full of selfishness and self-interest. These two, together, are destroying the human nature. Some people question, How can we live in this world without self-interest? But, let Me tell you, this is not the right way of leading a purposeful life. You are deluded to think that you are helping and serving society. No, you are in fact hurting the society by your self-interest. I told you the other day in My discourse that spirituality should come first, then society and then individual. The unity of these three is SAI. Human beings must, therefore, keep spirituality as their first goal. It is only when this goal is pursued, society becomes nearer. When you reach the goal of society, then the enquiry should begin Who am I? It is only when you recognise who you are, you will be able to understand society. When you thus understand society, you will be able to realise the divinity in the form of society. You first try to understand your own nature.

Food Must Contribute To Spiritual Development
Embodiments of Love!

You are not able to understand spirituality properly. You require, no doubt, food for the body, in the first instance. But, you must ensure that you take food that contributes to your spiritual development. Those who wish to attain divinity, should never touch impurity. You should always take pure and sathwic food like vegetables, green leafy vegetables, etc. You should never consume impure items like egg, meat, etc. Also, you keep away completely from intoxicating drinks and drugs. By consuming such items, all your sense organs will be paralysed. Alcohol is not at all conducive to spiritual sadhana. In spiritual sadhana one has to attain ecstatic level by natural process, not by artificial methods like drugs and alcohol. All that is related to divinity comes by a natural process. That is what Sage Narada emphasised by declaring Thriptho bhavathi, Maththo bhavathi (become completely fulfilled, ecstatic, etc). We must immerse in natural divine intoxication, not artificial intoxication induced by drugs and alcohol. Human nature transforms itself into demonic nature by consuming meat and intoxicating drinks. Certain types of food and medicines contain ingredients causing intoxication. Keep away from such things. Even if they are medicines, we should not take. Under no circumstances should you consume intoxicating food and medicines.

Sathya Sai Speaks - Volume - 35

Embodiments of Love!

You are undertaking a lot of sadhana. Several people take milk and curd, assuming that they come under sathwic food. Strictly speaking, they are not totally sathwic. There are some intoxicating ingredients even in those food items. Therefore, we must consume them in limited quantities. All the food we take must conform to certain timings, standards and limits. When we feel hungry, we should not eat to our fill. We must stop eating while we still feel that we can eat more. If we eat bellyful, the thamoguna (sloth and slumber) sets in. We should never give scope to this thamoguna. You are all doing sadhana. But some mistakes are creeping in this sadhana, knowingly or unknowingly. You sit for dhyaana (meditation). You think achieving concentration is meditation. No, concentration is not meditation. In our daily life, we do several things with concentration. But, they do not constitute meditation. Some people think steady sitting is sadhana and it is great. This is not correct. It is possible that during meditation, our body moves and mind wavers. But, it is only from that wavering mind we should develop an unwavering and steady mind. That is the real dhyaana (meditation). We must develop a firm conviction that we are not the impermanent body, but we are the true and eternal atma thatthwa. It is only when you attain that stage in dhyaana, it becomes the real dhyaana. You should not begin your sadhana with the feeling that God is somewhere in a distant place and that you wish to install Him in the temple of your heart. First and foremost, develop a firm conviction that divinity lies in you. You must realise your own divine nature. Not only that, you must make others also realise that you are divine. Today, all our sadhanas are like the swords used in a drama on the stage. They are useful only for the purpose of acting, not in real life. We must gradually become free from our illusion. There are several types of dhyaana like, sankalpa dhyaana, sthira dhyaana, chiththa dhyaana, etc.

To Get Rooted In Atma Tattwa Is Dhyaana

Knowingly or unknowingly you are doing sadhana based on what you think to be correct. If you desire to know what is dhyaana in the real sense, ask Me. I will explain to you. In fact, you do not need any sadhana. Do as I say; you will get the result in a moment. Divinity is that which manifests right in front of you out of His grace. It cannot be obtained with the help of rigorous practices. Everybody is doing sadhana attaching himself to certain forms. In the process, he is trying to establish the glory of his own form. This is not correct. You should forget your own form and lose your consciousness in divinity. What is the use of doing dhyaana, all the while concentrating upon one's own form? When somebody enquires what you are doing, you reply that you are doing dhyaana. How do you know that you are doing dhyaana when in fact your body consciousness itself is lost in dhyaana? That means, you are not doing real dhyaana. Dhyaana is that, in which you forget your own self; you develop purity of conscience and establish the eternity of your atma thatthwa. Without achieving this, dhyaana is a waste and real cheating.

Embodiments of Love!

Cultivate pure and sacred love. You run after several elders, sadhakas and gurus and try to be their followers. This is not guruthwa. You concentrate on one feeling of divinity that is already established in your heart. Do not change your mind every now and then. Let it be firmly established as your goal. Buddha followed the same principle. Earlier, Buddha went in search of divinity everywhere outside. He wandered in several places. But, he could not succeed in his endeavours. Ananda, his cousin saw the plight and enquired why he was wandering here and there. Then, suddenly Buddha realised that he was all the while following his manasika thatthwa (mental impulses), which is impermanent and momentary. He, therefore, decided not to follow the mind. He, immediately started contemplating on divinity with full heart and attained Nirvana (liberation from bondage). It is clear from this example that one should never rely on the mind which weaves fantasies. Forget the mind, establish divinity firmly in your heart and finally merge in that divinity. That is the real nirvana.

What is the nature of human body? It is made up of the five elements. It is unreal, impermanent and perishable in nature. Keeping this body attachment, if you do dhyaana,

how can it be fruitful? How can it lead you to your goal? Hence, you must forget the deha bhranthi (the illusion of body). Merge in divinity with atma-bhimana (attachment to the atma). That is the real dhyaana. That is the true thyaga (renunciation or detachment). That is your real yoga. That is your real bhoga. That bhoga is ananda (bliss). Always follow the principle, Sathyam bhruyaath, Priyam bhruyaath, Na bhruyaath Sathyam apriyam which means always speak the truth; speak the truth pleasingly; never speak truth which is unpalatable. Only then will you be able to attain Nirvana. Several people aspire for liberation. Liberation cannot be attained by temporary sadhanas. It can be obtained by constant contemplation on divinity, forgetting the mind totally. That is real nirvana. Wherever you see, if the mind only is visible, how can you attain nirvana? It is only the one who forgets the mind can attain nirvana.

Embodiments of Love!

I presume you have never undertaken such a great sadhana so far. Do not bother; we will look into it later. First and foremost, begin your contemplation on divinity with pure love. Only then will you gain spiritual strength. Even the Pandavas started their spiritual quest by giving first priority to God, then to we and lastly to I. In spiritual literature, every letter and every word carries subtle meanings. You must try to understand those subtle meanings and act accordingly. That is real sadhana. You need not do sadhana for attaining ephemeral and impermanent things. Try to attain divinity through love. Do all your sadhana with pure love. Only then will they become fruitful. Guru Purnima

Embodiments of Love!

Tomorrow is the Guru Purnima day. Any amount of time can be spent in explaining the importance and significance of Guru Purnima. The Guru is coming as Purnima (full moon) on Guru Purnima day. If you forget guruthwa (the real nature of guru), all your sadhanas will be of no use. Today, we are forgetting guruthwa totally. This is a great mistake. Keep the essential nature of a guru in your heart and do your sadhana to merge in divinity. Hence, tomorrow, we will try to know the significance of Guru Purnima, to some extent.

Develop Broadmindedness To Experience Divinity

The moon illumines the world at night and the sun during the day. Righteousness illumines the three worlds, and a noble son illumines his entire clan. (Telugu Poem)

DURING the day the sun shines resplendently and enables people to see the world. During the night the moon gives us light. It is dharma that shows the ideal path to all beings in all the three worlds. Similarly, a noble son illumines his entire clan by his exemplary behaviour. All these are related to the ephemeral and transient world.

Atom Is The Fundamental Basis Of Creation

Kaanaada was the one who experienced and propagated the truth that God is all-pervasive. Anoraneeyan

mahato maheeyan (Brahman is subtler than the subtlest and vaster than the vastest). Kaanaada recognised the existence of God in every atom. He even described God as Anuswarupa (the very form of atom). The world cannot exist without the atom. Earlier, nothing existed in the universe. In the beginning, the sun, the moon, the stars, the earth, the sky, etc., did not exist. There was only pitch darkness all around. The combination of atoms resulted in the formation of hard matter of a very high density. As a result, a lot of heat was generated. Then all of a sudden, the hard matter exploded with a big bang into pieces and spread all over. This was the cause of creation. This was also the experience of Kaanaada. The sound that emanated when the big bang took place is Pranava. That is Om, the primordial sound. This sound of Pranava is all-pervasive. It originated from paramaanu (minutest atom). There is nothing other than atom in this creation. How can one understand and realise this? This was the enquiry of Kaanaada. Ultimately, he realised the principle of Pranava. This primordial sound has to be contemplated upon by man for attaining liberation.

The primordial sound Pranava is verily the Divinity, which is subtler than the subtlest and vaster than the vastest. It is all-pervasive and stands as the eternal witness. (Telugu Poem)

This truth was propagated by Kaanaada. It is from this Pranava that the sun, the moon, the earth, the sky, etc., originated. The atom is the fundamental basis of the entire creation. Every human being is a combination of atoms. There is no matter without atoms. But modern man is unable to understand the mystery of atoms. He considers the teachings of our ancient rishis as mere stories and ridicules them. He does not have the ability and capacity to understand the sacredness of ancient Bharatiya culture. He is not able to understand the reality that is within him. He installs the statues of ancient rishis and noble souls as a mark of respect for them but fails to understand their teachings and put them into practice. He has to install their sacred forms not outside but in the altar of his heart and follow their teachings. To which time does Kaanaada belong? Twenty thousand years ago, people were all praise for Kaanaada and his teachings. Kaanaada recognised the principles of Hydrogen and Oxygen. The scientists observed that hydrogen represented the water principle, while oxygen represented the fire principle. Today people attach great value to the observations made by scientists, but fail to understand and appreciate the great truths taught by our rishis out of their experience.

How can one understand atomic power? Atom is not visible to the physical eye but it is present everywhere. The water we drink, the food we eat, the words we utter, the sound we hear, everything is permeated by atoms. Though man treads on atoms, eats atoms, drinks atoms, he is unable to understand their mystery. He thinks that only scientists can investigate the nature of atoms. Atomic process is highly sacred. By conducting a proper enquiry into this, one can understand divinity. This was the teaching of Kaanaada. But today nobody is conducting a proper enquiry to experience the atomic process. People are leading their lives with materialistic outlook.

The Lesson Taught By Shivaji

Once Emperor Shivaji and his minister were going on an evening stroll. On the way, they came across a Buddhist monk. Immediately, Shivaji removed his crown and prostrated at the feet of the monk. The minister did not like this. He thought Emperor Shivaji demeaned his own stature by placing his head at the feet of an ordinary monk.

The Emperor atonce sensed the feeling of his minister and wanted to teach him a lesson. Shivaji was one who followed the path of righteousness and sacrifice and set an ideal to mankind.

One day he asked the minister to bring the head of a goat, a sheep and of a human being. He collected the heads of a goat and a sheep. He went to a burial ground and cut the head of a dead person. He took them to the emperor.

Shivaji commanded him to sell them in the market. The heads of the sheep and goat were sold in no time, but nobody came forward to buy the head of a human being. When this was informed to the emperor, he said, it may be given free of cost to anybody. The minister took the human head to the market and waited there for a couple of days. In spite of his best efforts, nobody was willing to accept it. When this was conveyed to the Emperor, Shivaji said, Oh minister, you felt very sad when I placed my head at the feet of a monk. Do you realise that the same would be the fate of our heads too, when we leave our mortal coils. They would have absolutely no value. Hence, we should sanctify our lives by prostrating before noble souls. Material wealth and position are momentary. Only Truth and right conduct will remain with man and redeem his life.

The Mystery Behind The Atom

The body will be respected so long as there is soham (life-breath) in it. That is the sound of Pranava. That is the energy contained in an atom. This energy has its origin in Divinity. None can create it. This truth was propagated by Kaanaada. It is very difficult to understand the power of an atom. God is in the form of an atom. The entire world is the manifestation of the atom. The space and sound are the expressions of the atom. Therefore, do not neglect the principle of atom. It has mighty power in it. Scientists have been experimenting on this principle since long. It takes twenty-two thousand crores of years for an atom to go back to its source. It is rather strange that man is unable to unravel the mystery behind an atom.

The Earth rotates on its axis and revolves around the sun. Who is responsible for this phenomenon? Nobody can explain this. As earth rotates on its axis, we have day and night. As it revolves around the sun, we are able to get the food required to sustain our body. It is the Divine Will that is responsible for all this. It is the Divine masterplan for the benefit of the world. Nobody has understood the anushakti (power of the atom) in its totality till this day. People think that the atom has no life in it. It is a wrong notion. The life force that holds the entire world together is present in the atom also. Hence it is said, God is present in microcosm as well as macrocosm. Man should make an attempt to understand the mystery of creation. He should recognise his responsibilities and conduct himself accordingly. Man has to necessarily understand the principle of the atom. If he understands this, he will understand everything else, for atom is God. The life principle present in the atom is present all over the universe. Kaanaada said that proper understanding of the principle of atom will lead to understanding of divinity. When you close your fist, you catch hold of many atoms.

When you release it, the atoms will travel in different directions.

The sound of Pranava that emerges from the atoms will be as minute as the particles themselves.

The Efficacy Of Prayer

Devotees offer their prayers to God. Some people doubt the efficacy of prayer. But, in fact, any mighty task can be accomplished through prayer. It makes impossible things possible. Here is a small example. There has been a swelling on My cheek for the past ten days. I never take any medicine. Yesterday I observed that the attention of all those assembled here was focused on My cheek, not on

Me! They were worried that the swelling had still not reduced and that Swami was undergoing a lot of pain. After I delivered the Valedictory Discourse, I retired to My room. As I was resting, a number of devotees were praying to Me that I should cure Myself at least by the auspicious day of Guru Purnima. All their prayers reached Me. When I got up in the morning, the swelling reduced and there was absolutely no pain whatsoever. In fact, I had not willed that it should be so. It was the result of the prayers of devotees. Yesterday, many did not even take food. With tears in their eyes, they were praying continuously. My thoughts went to them for a moment. But I never willed that I should be cured. I never do it. Why? As Sanjay Sahni rightly pointed out, I and you are one. You are not different from Me. This is not My body, it is yours. So, it is your responsibility to take care of this body. I never think of My body and its well-being. I never make a Sankalpa (Will) that such and such a thing should happen, so far as My body is concerned. There is no selfishness in Me from head to toe. That is why I have got every right to declare that I and you are one.

Atom Is Verily Divine

Every man is endowed with the same atomic power. He has to make every effort to understand this. Since ancient times, man got accustomed to worshipping God in the form of idols. You worship Rama and Krishna in the form of idols. But can you see their physical forms now?

195

Sathya Sai Speaks - Volume - 35

No. You worship Easwara. But are you able to see Him? The forms of Rama, Krishna, and Easwara are ever existing. But man is not able to visualise them because of his narrowmindedness.

Expansion of the heart is divine; narrowmindedness is death. One with narrow-mindedness is verily a living corpse. One should always be broad-minded. You find divinity installed in the heart of one with expansive feelings. Saints and sages of yore undertook various types of spiritual practices. Kaanaada also performed penance. Ultimately, he realised that he had originated from the atom and would merge into it. He gave up body attachment. Today man is leading a materialistic life and striving for his own selfish ends. So long as there is selfishness in man, he will not be able to understand the divine principle of atom. One may do japa, dhyaana and penance, but one's mind should always be steadily fixed on the principle of the atom. Everything is contained in this. Our body, mind, intellect, etc., are nothing but the manifestations of the atom, which is verily divine.

God certainly listens to the prayers of His devotees. Some people hesitate to pray lest their prayers should cause inconvenience to God. They are mistaken, for God can never be put to any inconvenience whatsoever. God has no suffering at all. He considers devotees happiness as His happiness. However, your happiness results from material things; whereas My happiness is related to the principle of atma. I am pleased by the smallest of small offering if it is made with Love. Your tiny offering will assume gigantic proportions to Me. On the other hand, you are not satisfied in spite of receiving mighty favours.

Significance Of Guru Purnima

What is the significance of Guru Purnima? Guru is one who illumines the path to divinity. Purnima stands for the cool full moonlight. Full moon stands for a mind with total illumination. It is spotless, blem-ishless. Even if there is a trace of blemish in the mind, it will lead to darkness. It cannot give you total bliss.

Embodiment of Love!

Let your mind be filled with the radiance of divine love. Acquiring mere textual knowledge is of no avail. What you have studied is only a fraction of the total knowledge. Yet you feel proud about it. Your worldly education is insignificant compared to divine wisdom. You cannot attain God with your education, power and wealth. He is accessible by Love and Love alone. You can experience Him only when you develop Love. Devotion means to Love God wholeheartedly.

Embodiments of Love!

What is it that you are supposed to know on this day of Guru Purnima? You must understand that God is in you, with you, around you, above you, below you. In fact, you are God. Recognise this truth in the first instance. Do not entertain excessive desires and become beggars. Do your duty sincerely. That is the true sadhana. When you are in office, do office work only; do not think of your family matters. Likewise, when you are at home, take care of the needs of your wife and children. Do not make your home an office. But today because of too much work in office, people take office-papers to their homes to complete their work. They are thus facing difficulties because they mix up their office work, household work, business and spiritual matters.

Hiranyaksha and Hiranya-kasipu were great scientists. The modern scientists have travelled only up to moon, but Hiranyakasipu travelled up to the sun. He even touched the pole star and consequently suffered. One may be a great scientist, but one will be put to suffering if one crosses one's limits. The saints made concerted efforts to experience divinity. One should develop broad minded-ness in order to experience Divinity.

Man has death but the mind has no death. Whatever he does during his lifetime are imprinted on his mind and get carried over to the next birth. None can understand the nature of the mind. Some people think that suicide is the only way of putting an end to all their troubles. They think, It is the mind that is responsible for our suffering. Let us put an end to it. It is the worst of sins. The mind cannot be killed so easily. One should never entertain such low ideas. One should be prepared to face any difficulties with fortitude and strive hard to sanctify one's life.

Sathya Sai Speaks - Volume - 35

Believe In The Omnipresence Of God

Atma is God and God is Atma. Prahlada said, Never doubt that God is here and not there. He is present wherever you search for Him.

The Atma is eternal without birth or death. It has no beginning, middle or end. It is omnipresent as the witness of every being. (Telugu Poem)

Hence, man should lead his life with the conviction, I am God. Only body has death. I have neither birth nor death. So long as he is alive, his love is dedicated to God and God alone. One day a rich man came to meet Baba at Shirdi. He had stuffed his pocket with a number of currency notes. Baba decided to test his devotion. He called Shyam, who used to be by His side always, and said, I need five rupees very urgently. Go and ask Patel. After sometime, Shyam returned saying that Patel was not at home. Baba asked him to approach another businessman. Shyam again returned with empty hands. Baba sent him to another person. The rich man was a witness to all this, but he did not volunteer to give five rupees from his pocket. He had no spirit of sacrifice. For many people, money is God; politics is God. Will the money or politics follow them after their death? What are they going to achieve? What is the purpose of life? Having attained human birth, do not waste it in trivial pursuits. Take part in activities that are beneficial to society. Do not misunderstand Me when I say this. Politics is the root cause of pollution of the world. The minds of even small children are polluted by politics. Conflicts and agitations have become the order of the day. There is no unity even between husband and wife. Prior to Independence, people did not suffer this much. In those days, the conflict was between the whites and the coloured, whereas today the non-whites are quarrelling amongst themselves in factions. This is not what is expected of people today. Shun evil qualities and develop noble feelings.

Difficulties Bring Happiness

Embodiments of Love!

Fill your lives with Love and end your lives with Love. That is true human life. The Upanishads have accorded great value to human life. Manava is one who has to be loved and respected. He has to welcome happiness as well as sorrow with equanimity. In China there is a proverb which says, Difficulties are our friends, let us welcome them. The happiness that we get out of difficulties cannot be obtained anywhere else. Na sukhata labhyate sukham (one cannot derive happiness out of happiness). Many people come to Me saying they are facing lot of difficulties. I feel like laughing at them. I want to know what difficulties and sorrow mean. But they do not come anywhere near Me. I keep telling the devotees that they should not be bogged down by difficulties. I never give any scope for sorrow. This body has entered its 77th year. Till this day, I never experienced sorrow even for a moment. Man aspires for bliss.

He is the embodiment of bliss. Bliss is his true property. Such being the case, why should he give scope for sorrow? It is because he has not understood his true nature. Worldly relationship comes and goes. But that which comes and grows is the principle of Love.

Embodiments of Love!

Right from this day, try to reduce your attachment to the world to the extent possible. Be happy and make others happy. Do not hurt anybody. Consider difficulties as passing clouds. You have developed family relationships and there are bound to be some worries. But do not be perturbed by them. When you look at the vast sky, you find many clouds. Likewise, in the sky of your heart there are clouds of attachment. They just come and go. Do not worry about them. What is the shape of worry? It is a mentally created fear. It is the result of your imagination. Every man is bound to encounter difficulties and losses. We should face them with courage.

Remember what Shivaji taught his minister. This body will be respected so long as there is life in it. Once the life ebbs away, it will not have any value. The same was stated by Duryodhana during his last moments. He said, I was respected so long as I was alive. Tomorrow crows and dogs are going to feast on me. Whatever has to happen will happen. Lead a respectable life while you are alive. Develop divine feelings in you. Only then you would have led a true human life. Today man is leading a purely mate-realistic life. This is also necessary to a certain extent. Remember that there is the transcendental principle even in this secular life.

You Are The Embodiment Of The Trinity

Embodiments of Love!

From this day of Guru Purnima, make your hearts sacred. Just as you wave away the mosquitoes that bite you, brush aside any difficulties that assail you. Do not be depressed by sorrow nor be elated by happiness. Develop equanimity and strive to attain Divinity.

Here Bhagawan sang, Vahe Guru Vahe Guru Vahe Guru ji Bolo and then continued the discourse.

There is only one Guru. There cannot be two Gurus inner Guru and external Guru. Guru is one who treads along the path of Truth. He is truth himself.

Gurur-Brahma Gurur-Vishnu Gurur Devo

Maheswara;

Guru Sakshat Param Brahma Thasmai Sri Gurave

(Guru is Brahma, Guru is Vishnu, Guru is Maheswara.

Guru is verily the supreme Brahman. So, salutations to the Guru.)

You are the embodiment of Divine Trinity Brahma,

Vishnu, Maheswara. Hence, Guru is not separate from you. You are everything. Let your concentration not waver. Let it be steadily fixed on your goal. Be he a student, a celibate, a householder or a renunciant, the goal is one and same for all. Contemplate on the principle of so-ham that your inner voice teaches. Say Aham Brahmasmi (I am Brahma). There is nothing wrong in this statement. Some people have a mistaken notion that, to say so is a sign of egoism. In fact, that is not ego at all. It is your right. To think that you are a mere human being amounts to demeaning yourself. You are the embodiments of God. Develop such faith and become God. There cannot be any bad qualities in God. So, you should lead a pure, steady and selfless life. See good, speak good and do good. You should be an ideal to everybody. No benefit accrues from worship if you do not purify your heart. You are worshipping Swami and have been visiting Swami for a number of years. But is there any transformation in you? You are coming and going without any aim. Such people need not come here at all. Wherever you are, do your sadhana. When you come here, you should imbibe divine feelings and become divine. Gradually reduce your attachment to the world. The world will not go with you when you die. You cannot even take away a fistful of dust. You can take only the virtues you have cultivated. Respect your teachers, elders and parents.

Matru Devo Bhava, Pitru Devo Bhava, Acharya Devo Bhava, Atithi Devo Bhava (revere your mother, father, preceptor and guest as God). Consider everyone as God. There is God even in a dog. Have faith that God is all-pervasive. There is no greater sadhana than this. When people develop such faith, the whole nation will be blessed with plenty, prosperity and all auspiciousness. Fill your heart with divine feelings. This is what you have to learn today. Guru Purnima, 24-7-2002, Prasanthi Nilayam.

The I (Aham) Is Brahman

All people aspire for pleasant life, positions of authority and prosperity. But few aspire for good intellect, wisdom and good character. What else is to be conveyed to this congregation of noble souls? (Telugu Poem)

Embodiments of Love!

IN this world everyone, right from a pauper to a millionaire, a pamara (simpleton) to a paramahansa (realised soul) uses the word I while referring to himself. Had the birds and beasts been endowed with the power of speech, they too would have introduced themselves saying I. The term I is of great significance in spiritual literature and is explained in the Upanishads in detail. Aham Brahmasmi (I am Brahman) is an Upanishadic dictum. From Sathya Sai Speaks - Volume - 35

this statement, it is evident that the term I came into existence before the name Brahma. The names of Divine incarnations such as Rama and Krishna correspond only to their physical forms and not to their divinity. Aham (I) is their true and eternal name. In fact, I is the first name of God. People address God by various names for their own satisfaction and happiness. However, Aham is the true name of God.

Spiritual Practices Are To Steady The Mind

Mind is responsible for man's delusions. It is possible to grow a tree without any bend. A boulder can be carved into a beautiful statue. But it is very difficult to straighten and steady the mind. All our sadhana is meant to direct the mind to the right path. People undertake various types of spiritual sadhana that confer only temporary satisfaction. It is only when one understands the principle of aham that one can experience everlasting happiness. People attribute various names and forms to God as they are unable to understand the principle of divinity.

Is it possible to build a temple to the One who is all-pervasive? How can one hold a lamp to the One who is shining with the brilliance of a billion suns? How can one attribute a form to the One whom even Brahma, the creator, cannot comprehend? How can one give an appropriate name to the One who is present in all beings? How can one offer food to the One who has the entire cosmos in His belly? (Telugu Poem)

Sathya Sai Speaks - Volume - 35

Embodiments of Love!

In this physical and ephemeral world, people worship God with various names and forms. But in reality aham is the only true and eternal name of God. The four Vedas have declared this truth in the four mahavakyas (profound statements): Prajanam Brahma (Brahman is supreme consciousness);

Aham Brahmasmi (I am Brahman); Tattwamasi

(That thou art); and Ayam atma Brahma (this self is Brahman).

The Veda has also declared: Ekoham Bahusyam (the One willed to become many). Ekam Sath viprah bahudha vadanti (the Absolute is one. But the wise call it by different names). Divinity is only one, and that is aham.

Mind plays many tricks and makes man forget the reality. It is almost impossible for anyone to comprehend the nature of mind. Flies and mosquitoes land on every object but never do they go near fire. Likewise, the mind gets attracted by material objects and goes everywhere but always shies away from God. The mind should be made pure and selfless and it should always remain focused on God. That is true sadhana. All the spiritual practices are meant to control the mind.

God Has No Specific Name

Sravanam (listening), kirtanam (singing), vishnusmaranam (contemplating on Vishnu), padaseva-nam (serving His Lotus Feet), vandanam (salutation), archanam (worship), dasyam (servitude), sneham (friendship), atma-207

nivedanam (self-surrender) are the nine forms of devotion.

In each of these nine paths of devotion what is important is that the mind has to be totally surrendered to God.

(Bhagawan showing His hand kerchief asked) What is this? You say it is a piece of cloth. It is not merely that. It is a bundle of threads. Cotton is made into threads and threads are interwoven to make a cloth. Likewise, you are not one person but three: The one you think you are (physical body), the one others think you are (the mind), the one you really are (the atma). Your true self is I. That is Brahma, God. He has no specific name and form. He is nirgunam, niranjanam, sanathanam, niketanam, nitya, suddha, buddha, mukta, nirmala swarupinam (attributeless, pure, everlasting, final abode, eternal, unsullied, enlightened, liberated and embodiment of sacredness). Whatever names and forms man attributes to God are for his own satisfaction. Therefore, you should make efforts to see God in all forms.

The principle of I is non-dual, eternal, full of effulgence and of supreme bliss. Everything is contained in this. When someone questions, when did you come, you say, I came yesterday. Does this I refer to you or your body? It is your body that came yesterday and not you. Since you identify yourself with the body, you think that you came yesterday. When you are walking on the road, suppose accidentally you have slipped and sustained a fracture. Then you say, My leg is fractured. Just ponder over this statement. When you say, My leg, it implies that you are different from your leg. It means that you are not the body. You say, it is my body, my mind, my buddhi, my leg, etc., then, who are you? When you examine yourself in this manner, you will realise that none of these are your true self. Your body corresponds to akara (form), whereas your true Self (I) corresponds to ananda (bliss). The principle of I is different from the body. Day in and day out, people make use of this term I without actually understanding its meaning. Be he a pauper or a millionaire, the principle of I is common to all. Isavasyam idam sarvam (the entire universe is permeated by God). God is present in everybody in the form of I. Where there is I, there is

God. Have firm faith in this declaration. When you say, Aham Brahmasmi (I am Brahman), I precedes Brahma. Hence, I is the first name of God.

Kerala Is The Land Of Sacrifice And Devotion

Bali was a noble king, one of selflessness and an ardent devotee. One who seeks alms is considered small. Hence, even Lord Narayana had to assume the form of a vamana (dwarf) when He went to beg for alms from Bali. The Pakshivahana (the one who has Garuda as His vehicle) has Lakshmi, the goddess of wealth on His chest. Yet He became very small and sought bhiksha (alms) from Bali. He sought just three footsteps of land. Being small in stature, his feet were even smaller. Yet He could measure the three worlds with His steps. Sage Sukracharya, the preceptor of Bali, cautioned him not to yield to Vamana's request.

Sathya Sai Speaks - Volume - 35

He revealed that He was no ordinary being but Lord Narayana Himself. But Bali did not pay heed to his counsel, saying it was not proper for one to go back on one's promise. Having given his word, he wanted to fulfil it, come what may. He even disobeyed his Guru and offered himself to God. God has infinite potentialities. Nothing is impossible for Him. Vamana occupied the three worlds with his footsteps. The three worlds are represented by Bhur, Bhuvah, Suvah. Bhur stands for material world. Bhuvah represents the realm of thought, i.e., the mind. Suvah is the principle of the atma. All the three are contained in man. Kerala is the birthplace of sacrifice and the centre of devotion and surrender. No beggar is turned away emptyhanded. Everyone does charity as per his capacity. It is this punya bhumi (land of merit) that gave birth to Bali. There are many in this world who perform bhudana, godana, annadana, vastradana, suvarnadana (giving away land, cows, food, clothes and gold in charity). But emperor Bali performed the supreme sacrifice by offering himself to God. With the passage of time, there might have been a few changes, but, nevertheless, Kerala continues to be the land famous for devotion and surrender. It is the birthplace of Prahlada, the great devotee of the Lord. Even as Bali disobeyed the command of his Guru for the sake of God, Prahlada too went against the wishes of his father and surrendered totally to the Lord. Many such noble souls have taken birth in the sacred land of Kerala.

Modern scientists deny the existence of God out of their ignorance. There is no place where God does not exist. Sarvatah panipadam tat sarvathokshi siromukham, Sarvatah sruthimalloke sarvamavrutya thishthathi (with hands, feet, eyes, head, mouth and ears pervading everything, He permeates the entire universe). The same was stated by Prahlada. Never doubt that God is here and not there. Wherever you search for Him, He is there. (Telugu Poem) He had unflinching faith. Hiranyakasipu was a great scientist. He could travel up to the sun; he could even reach the stars. When he touched the Polestar, the planet earth began to shake. He was one of such valour and courage. Till this day, no scientist has been able to accomplish what Hiranyaka-sipu could achieve. But, in spite of his valour and knowledge, Hiranyakasipu could not comprehend divinity. One can understand divinity only through love. There is no other path that can take you to God. It is only love that enables you surrender to God.

Love And Be Loved

Embodiments of Love!

I and love are one and the same. Man cannot exist without love. Love shines forth as I in everybody. Without the electric current, bulbs cannot glow. Likewise, without I, the body cannot function. It is because of I that the eyes see, the ears listen, the tongue speaks, etc. It is not the eyes that see, it is I that sees through the eyes. When you close your eyes, you do not see anything. The light present in the eyes is divinity. In fact, there is no place where divinity does not exist. All names and forms are the manifestations of divinity. Hence, it is said, Sarva jeeva namaskarah Kesavam pratigachchati (whomever you salute, it reaches God) and Sarva jeeva tiraskarah Kesavam pratigachchati (whomever you denigrate, it also reaches God).

211

Embodiments of Love!

If you want to be respected by others, you should first respect others. Likewise, love all and all will love you. Love is the principle of I. Keep this as your goal. In any house, there will be a switch in every room for the light to glow. All these switches are controlled by one main switch. Similarly, the eyes, the ears, the tongue, etc., are like various switches which are controlled by the main switch I. Only when this main switch is turned on, will there be life in each of limbs in the body. This I is verily the truth. Truth is God. God is truth. Love is God. Live in love. No other spiritual practice is needed if you understand this truth and put it into practice. God is the eternal witness of our thoughts, words and deeds. Each one worships God in the name and form of his choice. In fact, all forms are His. Hence, respect and love everybody. Expansion of love is life. Do not give scope for narrow-mindedness. Janthunam narajanma durlabham (out of all the living beings, the human birth is the rarest). Daivam manusha rupena (God takes the form of man). You may not believe in these axioms if you take only the physical form into consideration. Inner reality (I) is important, but not the physical form. When you go to the market, you find people selling sugar dolls of different moulds like cat, dog, deer, etc. Irrespective of the shape, each doll is priced 2 annas. Cat moulds attract some children and deer moulds fascinate some others. Difference lies only in names and forms but the sugar content is the same in all of them. You pay 2 annas not for the form but for the sugar content therein. Only children are attracted by names and forms. Likewise, an ordinary person is deluded by names and forms, whereas a true sadhaka or a devotee keeps in view the fundamental principle. Do not get carried away by names and forms. Know the nature of the self and develop love for it. This self is known as aham or atma or I. Names and forms are different but the fundamental principle is one and the same. Man will be transformed into divine once he understands this truth. Man is all-powerful. In fact, he is God. That is why God is always picturised and portrayed in a human form. Every man is endowed with hridaya (heart). That which is filled with daya or karuna (compassion) is hridaya. When man fills his heart with karuna, peace will reign supreme in the world. There will be no scope for jealousy, hatred or anger. One who has filled his heart with compassion will always remain in peace. People mistake hridaya for physical heart. Hridaya is nothing but the all-pervasive atmic principle, i.e., aham.

Let Heart Be The Custodian Of Virtues

Nobody keeps valuables within the reach of a thief.

But we are keeping the precious jewelry like compassion, forbearance, love, under the custody of the mind, which can be compared to a thief. When you leave precious jewelry in the hands of a thief, how can you get them back? It is impossible. The precious jewelry of virtues must be kept under the safe custody of hridaya. Never keep them with the thief, i.e., the mind. But that exactly is what man is doing. He acts according to the dictates of his mind. He takes mind as the basis for all activities. One who follows the mind is verily a thief. Instead, one should follow the intellect. Only then can one understand the principle of Atma. Thiruthonda Alwar said that one should worship God with Chitta Shuddi (purity of heart). Never follow the dictates of the mind for it is always unsteady. Every man is endowed with noble qualities and pure thoughts, which are like precious diamonds. But he keeps them under the care of mind. Consequently, he is not able to progress on the spiritual path. Take truth and love as the basis. Truth is only one. It is not constrained by time and space. One can experience peace and bliss only when one considers the changeless and eternal principles of truth and love as the basis of one's life.

Kerala Is Dear To God Also

The two ministers, (who spoke earlier) prayed to Me to visit Kerala. This time I shall certainly come to Kerala. Not only this, from this year Kerala has every chance to progress in the field of science and technology. People are under the impression that only Karnataka and Andhra Pradesh have progressed in the field of science and technology, but

Kerala is going to overtake them. Even the Prime Minister has promised that he would extend all necessary support in this regard. Kerala is bound to attain an exalted position. The culture of Bharat exhorts, Sathyam vada Dharmam chara (speak truth, practise righteousness). Kerala is the land of truth, love and righteousness. Hence, I will certainly visit Kerala this year. The people of Kerala are tender-hearted. They are full of love. In politics, people say something and do the opposite later on. Spirituality emphasises on the unity of thought, word and deed. Very soon Kerala will develop into an ideal State. Kerala stands first in many respects. Even the monsoon sets in the land of Kerala first, before spreading to the other States. Such a land is bound to be dear to God also. One can experience the presence of divinity in the land of Kerala. Siddhashrama was the place where Emperor Bali, Lord Vamana and Jamadagni were born. The name Siddhashrama implies that it was the place of fulfilment and success. That is why Viswamitra decided to perform penance there. Siddhashrama attained eternal glory because of his penance. Not merely that, many saints and sages were born there and performed penance. Not many are aware of this. Viswamitra was initially a king. Later on, he renounced everything and performed penance. He was called a Rajarishi. On seeing Vasishtha who was called a Brahmarishi, Viswamitra resolved to earn the same appellation. One could become a Brahmarishi only when one gave up hatred completely. As Vasishtha had no trace of hatred in him, he could attain the state of Brahmarishi. Viswamitra also became a

Sathya Sai Speaks - Volume - 35

Brahmarishi once he got rid of anger and hatred. He was responsible for the holy wedding of Sita and Rama. His desire for bringing together Prakriti (Nature) and Paramatma (God) was fulfilled. After the wedding, he left for the forest at once.

Embodiments of Love!

Love all. Do not hate anyone. Love even your enemies.

If there is any trace of anger or hatred in you, transform them into love. Then you will also become a great Rishi.

Divine Leelas Reflect The Glory Of

Avataras

Sweeter than sugar, tastier than curd, sweeter indeed than honey is the Name of Krishna. Constant repetition of this sweet Name gives one the taste of divine nectar itself. Therefore, one should contemplate on the Name of Krishna incessantly.

(Telugu Poem)

Embodiments of Love!

SINCE ancient times, the nectarous principle of Krishna has fascinated young and old alike.

Right from His advent Krishna made people forget themselves in ecstasy with His divine pranks, enchanting music and inexpressible bliss. Krishna and Balarama, along with other cowherd boys, would take cows for grazing to the banks of the Yamuna and immerse themselves in fun and frolic. One day, the cowherd boys were lost in bliss as they were watching the divine pranks of Krishna. Consequently, they forgot the surroundings and their cows. As they were resting after grazing, all of a sudden, they felt hot wind blowing from all directions. They realised that they were being surrounded by wild fire. The raging conflagration was so intense that they were even unable to open their eyes and see. The cows started running helter-skelter, unable to bear the scorching heat. Nobody could control them.

The intensity of heat became more and more every moment.

Then the cowherd boys prayed to Krishna to come to their rescue. Oh Krishna! You alone can extinguish this fire and save us. Seeing their plight, Krishna laughed and said, Oh cowherd boys! You have been moving with Me, playing with Me and enjoying the bliss. It is rather strange that you are fear-stricken even after experiencing My divinity.

Many times in the past, you were witnesses to My slaying the demons sent by Kamsa. Then why are you afraid when I am with you?

When you have the Kalpavriksha (wish-fulfilling tree) right in front of you, why do you desire for trivial things?

When you have the Kamadhenu (wish-fulfilling cow) with you, where is the need to buy a cow?

When you have the glittering Meru mountain with you, why do you crave for paltry silver and gold?

Likewise, when you have the omnipotent Lord

218

Sathya Sai Speaks - Volume - 35

Krishna in you, with you and around you, why do you get panic over such a trivial matter?

(Telugu Poem)

Krishna told them to close their eyes and contemplate

on Him for a while. The cowherds implicitly obeyed

His command. They closed their eyes and started chanting

His name. The next moment, Krishna commanded them to open their eyes. Lo and behold! The wild fire had totally disappeared and all their cows were grazing as if nothing had happened. Their joy knew no bounds. They wanted to return to their respective homes at once and narrate the wonderful miracle that Krishna had performed. The cowherd boys had experienced many such miracles that proved the divinity of Krishna.

The Mystery Of The Divine

Not only in India, but also in a communist country like Russia, many such mysterious powers of divinity were experienced. A person by name Wolfe Messing was born on September 10, 1899 in Poland. Right from his birth, he radiated divine effulgence. He behaved in a mysterious manner even while he was very young. He would make some movements with his hands and laugh to himself. His parents were mystified as they could not understand his strange behaviour. One year passed in this manner. In his second year, he started talking to himself. He would scratch his head as if he was engrossed in deep thought. He would run here and there, laugh to himself and converse with some

unseen beings. All this baffled his parents. They wondered why he was laughing to himself and to whom he was talking. There was an element of anxiety and fear in them. One day a tall personality wearing a white robe came and stood in front of their house. He called Messing near him and said, Your parents are planning to put you in a lunatic asylum or in a school for the mentally retarded. You do not need to go anywhere. How can those who are afflicted with worldly madness understand your madness which is of spiritual nature? If only everyone gets such a spiritual madness, the whole nation would prosper. Do not get yourself admitted to schools where only worldly education is taught. The formal or secular knowledge does not appeal to you. Learn spiritual knowledge. I have come here only to tell you this. Messing asked him, Grandfather, where do you come from? He replied, I will tell you later. I am going back to the place from where I came. Never forget my words. Do not have anything to do with worldly knowledge. Acquire only spiritual knowledge. Now you are very young. Till you attain a certain level of maturity, do not have any association with anybody. Now I am going back. Saying this, he vanished right in front of Messing's eyes. Messing wondered, Where did he come from? Where has he gone? Will I also go back to the place from where I came? He started enquiring thus. His parents did not allow him to go anywhere. He was confined to his house only. It was 9th February 1909. On that day, his desire to go in search of spiritual knowledge erupted again, for he was not satisfied with the secular knowledge that was being taught to him. He remembered the words of the old man who appeared at his doorstep sometime ago. He went inside the house and found 8 coins in an almirah. Keeping them in his pocket, he embarked on a spiritual journey in the wide world. He wandered and wandered not knowing where he was going. He toured the entire world. None questioned him about tickets or the money required to buy them. Thus he roamed about for 10 years. Then he entered India. He boarded a train that was going from Cuddapah to Anantapur. In between, the train stopped for a while at Kamalapuram where I was studying at that time. In the classroom Ramesh and Suresh were the two boys sitting on my either side on a desk. Ramesh's father was a Sirasthadar (Revenue Official) and their family was very rich. Every day we would go towards the railway station for a walk discussing some spiritual matters. In those days there were only one or two trains going via Kamalapuram. The three of us sat on a stone bench on the railway platform. As we were happily talking to each other, Wolfe Messing saw us through the window of the moving train and at once opened the door and jumped out. In the process he lost his balance and fell flat on the platform. Ramesh and Suresh were concerned that he might have fractured his leg. I told them not to worry saying, He is coming only to see Me. So, nothing has happened. He was not carrying any luggage, not even a small bag. He came straight toward Me and sat in front of Me, at a distance of about ten feet, shedding tears of joy. Ramesh and Suresh watched this scene. In those days, the boys were afraid of the White people that they might take them away and put them in the military service. Therefore, they wanted to take Me away from that place. As Messing was approaching Me, Ramesh ran to his house and requested his father to bring a jeep immediately and take Me away from the sight of a White person. Ramesh's father at once brought a jeep, lifted Me up and put Me in the jeep. When he took Me to his house, Messing also followed the jeep and came up to the house of Ramesh. He sat there for a full day waiting for Me to come out of the house. In the meanwhile, whenever he would spot Me through the window, he would smile at Me, call Me and try to convey something to Me. But nobody was willing to permit him to meet Me. At that time, Seshama Raju (Swami's elder brother) was working as a teacher. A word was sent to him through a peon informing him of the position. Messing waited for three days and left the place and went somewhere by train. Before leaving, he wrote on the door of the house with a chalk piece thus: The people who live in this house are very fortunate. They are able to keep the Divine child with them and serve Him. I am not that fortunate. Anyway, thanks.

He finally reached his country, Russia. After twenty years, he again visited India. This time he brought a Kirlian camera, which was capable of taking photographs of the aura around human beings. Those who are of sathwic nature will have a resplendent white aura around their body.
222

Those who are rajasic in nature will have a red colour aura and those who are thamasic in nature will have a black colour aura around them. He came straight to Kamalapuram and started enquiring about the whereabouts of Raju. But, by that time, I was no longer Raju, the high school student.

Raju became Sathya Sai Baba. People told him that Sathya Sai Baba would be residing either in Puttaparthi or in Bangalore.

Therefore, he left Kamalapuram for Bangalore.

When he arrived at Bangalore, he found a huge congregation.

On enquiry, he came to know that they were waiting for Sathya Sai Baba's darshan. He too waited for My darshan. When I was moving amidst the congregation, he saw Me and thought to himself, Yes, this is the same person whom I saw as a boy many years ago. He has the same aura with divine effulgence surrounding him. He approached the Principal of the College. At that time Narendra was the Principal.

He was a great scholar in Sanskrit and a very good teacher. His father Damodar was a Judge and his father-in-law Sunder Rao was a reputed doctor. Both of them were present. He asked them to take him for Swami's darshan. He told them, You are not able to see the reality. Swami is verily God. You are seeing only His physical form and getting deluded. You will know the truth when you observe His aura.

He wanted to observe Swami's aura through the camera he had brought with him. In those days, I used to give darshan to the devotees at the end of nagarasan-kirtan. As I stood in the balcony giving darshan, he clicked his camera. He could see that the entire place was permeated with light. When he showed the photograph, one could see great effulgence around My face. My entire body was engulfed in white light which symbolises purity. Nothing else was noticed.

Narendra took that photograph and requested him to give the camera also as it was not available in India. He said he was prepared to give the photograph but not the camera as he had a lot of work to do with it. He expressed his desire to have an audience with Swami. In the evening a meeting was arranged in which he was to address the students. I also attended the meeting. He was not looking at the students or the teachers; he was trying to see where I was seated and what I was doing. When he spotted Me, he started coming towards Me, saying, My dear, my dear. He kept repeating,

You are My everything. I am Your instrument. So far I have not revealed this to anyone. He stayed there for ten days. I taught him all that had to be taught. I told him that when God descended on earth, he would act like a human being. Daivam manusha rupena (God takes the form of man). He said that the same has been said even in their scriptures. He wrote a book and gave it to Gokak. Gokak was a scholar in English but had no knowledge of Russian. However, he kept the book with him.

After a few days, Messing left without informing anybody.

One day Narendra received a letter from Russia. Messing wrote in the letter, You are a teacher working for God.

How fortunate you are! He requested Narendra to keep him

informed about the happenings related to Swami. One day Narendra was expressing some doubts and I was clarifying them. Only two of us were in the room. All of a sudden, Messing arrived there. How he came there was a mystery to Narendra. He did not have a ticket with him. He came, had My darshan and disappeared. It was not possible for all to see this. It was not easy to understand either. Divinity is highly mysterious.

In The Dwapara

One day, Krishna and Balarama along with the cowherd boys were playing on the banks of river Yamuna. They were jumping from one branch to the other on trees. Some of them were tired. At that time, sages Vamana and Bharadwaja came to the banks of Yamuna. They asked the cowherd boys to show them a suitable and safe location where the waters were shallow so that they could have a bath. Krishna and Balarama jumped down from the trees. Bharadwaja at once recognised that Krishna was the Paramatma and Balarama represented Jivatma. He folded his hands in reverence and requested Krishna to show them a suitable location for having a bath. Krishna jumped into the water and showed them a safe place. He told them that he would keep sumptuous food ready for them. The cowherd boys were wondering as to how Krishna would provide food for the sages as He had not brought any food with Him. In those days there were no tiffin carriers. After the sages had completed their bath, Krishna opened a bag
225

which appeared from nowhere. As he opened the bag, the entire place was filled with sweet aroma of rice boiled in milk. He served the food in a plate and requested them to eat. The cowherd boys were as restless as monkeys. They would not keep quiet. They repeatedly asked Krishna, Where did You get the food from? Krishna silenced them saying, it was not proper to indulge in excessive talk in the presence of sages. The sages performed the Sandhya worship and started partaking of food. They asked, Krishna, who prepared this food? Krishna replied, My mother Yashoda. They said, they had not eaten anything more delicious and expressed their gratitude to Him. Brahma, who was observing these mysterious happenings, was wonderstruck at Krishna's mighty powers. He wanted to play a trick with Krishna. One day as the cowherd boys were ecstatically playing with Krishna and Balarama, Brahma made the cows and calves disappear from the scene. He even made the cowherd boys disappear. Krishna knew that it was Brahma's trick. He at once created all the cowherd boys, cows and calves by His Will. These cowherd boys returned to their respective homes with their cows and calves. They were identical in all respects to the cowherd boys whom Brahma had hidden somewhere. Even their parents could not find any difference. Life went on as usual, with the cowherd boys taking their cows and calves for grazing every day in the company of Balarama and Krishna. This continued for one full year. Brahma felt ashamed and accepted defeat. He sought Krishna's pardon

and returned all the cowherd boys, cows and calves. As he returned them, the existing ones which Krishna had created earlier, disappeared at once. In this manner, Krishna performed many stupendous feats right from His childhood. On this basis, the Bhagavata says,

The stories of the Lord are most wonderful and sacred in all the three worlds. They are like sickles that cut the creepers of worldly bondage. (Telugu Poem)

Divine Play Of The Present Avatar

At this juncture, I would like to narrate an incident which happened with this Avatar. I have not revealed this to anyone, so far. After this Prasanthi Mandir was constructed, I used to have My food in the room upstairs. Whenever I ate, the Griham Ammayi (mother of this physical body) would be by My side forcing Me to eat more. She would often express her concern that I was losing weight. I would tell her, Why should I eat more? Do I need to fight with somebody? I don't like to become fat.

One day, somebody invited Me to their house for food. Actually their intention was to poison Me. They were feeling jealous of My growing popularity and prosperity. In those days, I used to relish vadas made of Alasanda grains. Hence, they mixed poison in vadas and offered them to Me. Before going there, I had told Easwaramma and Subbamma not to be afraid if any untoward incident was to happen. When I returned from there, My entire body turned blue and My mouth started frothing. I told Easwaramma to wave her hand in a circle. She did accordingly, and to her utter amazement, there appeared vibhuti in her hand. She mixed it in water and gave Me. Instantly, I became normal. She wondered, Swami can create vibhuti with a wave of His hand. But how is it that vibhuti appeared in My hand? In fact, I had given her that power for that moment. When I was staying in the Old Mandir, I used to take children to Chitravathi everyday. In those days, there were no students, only the boys of the village would gather around Me. I would tell them to make a small mound of sand, out of which they could get whatever they wanted like pencil, pen, laddu, etc. Since they were small children, they would ask for trivial things.

After one such evening session in Chitravathi, we were returning to the Old Mandir. Kuppam Sushilamma and her sister Kumaramma, the author of the book Anyatha Saranam Nasthi, who were young at that time, started running towards the Old Mandir to offer arati when Swami reached there. Then I signalled to Subbamma to stop them and herself go there to make arrangements for the arati. Subbamma implicitly obeyed My command. Those two ladies had a feeling that, being housewives, they only had the eligibility to give arati to Swami, not Subbamma, who was a widow. When Subbamma went to the Old Mandir, she found a big serpent. It was for this reason I had sent her. She was always careful. When she saw the snake, she called out Sai Nageswara, Sai Nageswara, Sai Nageswara. In the meanwhile, all of us reached there. She did not want to kill it as she remembered the words of Swami that there was God in all beings. She wanted to catch it and leave it somewhere. As she caught the snake, it coiled around her hand. I made fun of her saying, Subbamma, are you playing with snakes? She said, Swami, I know that you sent me ahead in order to save the lives of those two ladies. In this manner, Subbamma witnessed many leelas of Swami. She was very fortunate and highly meritorious. She attended to Me right from the beginning. Not only Me, she attended to the devotees who would come for My darshan by serving them food. All her relatives turned against her but she did not care for them. She wanted only Swami and none else. She used to obey Swami's command implicitly. She had unwavering faith.

One day, I asked her whether she would like to see her deceased husband? I used to crack such jokes now and then. She replied that she had no such desire as she had nothing to do with her deceased husband. She further said that her husband passed away because he was not fortunate enough to serve Swami and that it was her good fortune that she was able to serve Me. But I insisted that if she had any desire to see him, I would grant her desire. I told her to go out and see. There was a drumstick tree. She found her husband Narayana Rao smoking a cigarette sitting under the tree. She saw the scene very clearly. She was happy to see her dead husband again, but she also scolded him saying, 229

Even after death, you have not given up your bad habits. She came back at once as she did not want to see him any longer. Narayana Rao had two wives, Subbamma and Kamalamma. Kamalamma is living in the Ashram at present. I told Kamalamma to go and see her deceased husband. She did not want to see his face again. She said, having come to the Lotus Feet of Swami, she had no such desire. However, on My insistence, she went and saw. She found her late husband sipping hot coffee at that time. Both Subbamma and Kamalamma saw their deceased husband exhibiting the same habits he had when he was alive. Even during the Krishna Avatar, Krishna showed to His devotees incidents that had happened much earlier.

Radha s Ultimate Merger

When Krishna lifted the Govardhana mountain, it was a matter of celebration. The unmarried Gopikas performed Varalakshmi Vratam. Even now ladies perform Varalakshmi Vratam. Radha was a great devotee. But those who did not believe in the divinity of Krishna subjected her to a lot of hardships. Even in those days there were atheists. Atheists, theists, theistic-atheists and atheistic-theists are present in every age. The atheists put Radha in a house and locked it from outside. (Taking this theme, I wrote a drama and got it enacted by children.) They felt Radha s family reputation was being tarnished because of her going after Krishna. And to stop her from doing so, she was locked up in the room. She started crying and praying. 230

Sathya Sai Speaks - Volume - 35

Krishna heard her prayers, opened the doors and released her. He chided those people saying, Is this the way you treat a devotee? It is allright if you have no devotion to Me. But it is a great sin to harass a devotee. Krishna took Radha with Him. Radha then prayed to Krishna to play a song on His divine flute.

Sing a song Oh Krishna! with each word dripping with honey and talk to Me to My heart s content. Take the essence of the Vedas, let it flow through your divine flute and transform it into a melodious song. Sing a song Oh Krishna (Telugu Song)

Listening to His melodious music, Radha breathed her last. From that day, Krishna never touched His flute again. Krishna performed several leelas. He was verily God in human form. None could comprehend or describe His divine nature. It was infinite and unfathomable. You do not find anything other than Divine love flowing from Him.

In Devotion Women Always Excelled Men

In Dwapara Yuga, women experienced Krishna s divinity more. In fact, it was they who revealed the story of God through their devotion. Once some Brahmins were performing Gayatri Yajna in a forest. Krishna told the cowherds to bring some food from the Yajnashala as He and His brother Balarama were very hungry. When the cowherds requested the Brahmins for food, they turned them 231

away saying, Do you think it is a chowltiry to feed you as and when you ask? No. Wait till the yajna is completed. If there is anything left out after we eat our food, then we will give you. When this was conveyed to Krishna, he advised them to approach the women who were preparing the food at the backside of Yajnashala. As per His advice, the cowherd boys went and saw the ladies preparing bobbattu (a delicious sweet item). They asked those women, Mothers, our Krishna and Balarama are hungry, can you give them some food? The women were extremely happy for having got an opportunity to serve Krishna. Immediately, they packed whatever food items they had prepared and took them to Krishna. Some women raised an objection as to how they could serve food to Krishna (who belonged to the cowherd clan) before it was offered to their husbands (Brahmins). But their objection was brushed aside and Krishna and Balarama were fed the items that were prepared. They considered Krishna as God. On knowing this, the husbands chided their wives saying it was a sacrilegious act. Later when they sat in meditation, realisation dawned on them. They recognised their own fault and told their wives that what they had done was correct. They took a bath again and requested their wives to serve the food blessed by Krishna, as prasadam. I wish to emphasise in this context that during the lifetime of any Avatar, it is only the women who recognise the divinity first. They are the people who lead their husbands to divinity. It is only because of the devotion of women that men cultivate devotion to some extent at least. But for women, men will not 232 have devotion at all. It is said that a house without a lady is literally a forest. Women are identified with bhakti (devotion) and men are identified with jnana (wisdom) since time immemorial. Women can enter even the inner precincts of a palace, whereas men are permitted to go only up to the Durbar hall (court room). It means that jnana will lead you up to God. Bhakti, on the other hand, will take you to His heart. That is why such a great value has been attached to Bhakti. In fact, it was gopikas who were responsible for the spread of bhakti tatthwa (path of devotion) in the world.

Harer Nama Harer Nama Harer Namaiva Kevalam, Kalau Nastyeva Nastyeva Nastyeva Gathiranyatha (chanting of the Divine Name is the only path to liberation in this Age of Kali).

In those days, even in this village of Puttaparthi, nobody was thinking of God except Karanam Subbamma. Griham Ammayi used to observe big officers coming for My darshan. She would be scared to see anyone in police uniform. She would request Subbamma not to allow any police personnel thinking that they would cause inconvenience to Swami. Subbamma would alleviate her fears saying, Why they should not come? They too are devotees of Swami. Everybody has to come to Swami. Do not have any such differences. Nobody can harm Swami. You don't worry about it. Hearing Subbamma's words, Easwaramma would express her anger: Since Swami is residing with you, several police are coming to your house. Please do not allow them.

Once IGP Ranganayakulu came from Madras. He wanted to take Me with him. Griham Ammayi was in a sorrowful state and was crying. She considered Madras to be a far-off place and a foreign country. Hence, she dissuaded Me from going. Her intense love for Swami was responsible for this. She was concerned that Swami might be taken away from Puttaparthi permanently. It was due to her prayer that this mandir was built.

Once Sakkamma came and said, Swami, due to lack of proper roads and transport, we are finding it difficult to come to this remote village. Neither cars nor bullock-carts can reach this interior village. Every time we have to leave our car near Penukonda to come here. Hence, please come to Bangalore and settle there. We will get a big palatial building built for you. I told her that I did not need huge mansions. All that I needed was only a small room. But she would not listen to Me. Easwaramma said, If a sapling has to grow into a gigantic tree, it has to be manured and watered well without disturbing it. If it is shifted from place to place, it cannot grow. Hence, please remain in Your birthplace Puttaparthi. It will certainly progress. Then I promised her that I would settle in Puttaparthi.

When it comes to devotion and surrender, women are superior to men. They are the repositories of all forms of vijnana, suinana and prajnana. So, never look down upon women. Do not talk derisively about others. Pray for the well-being of all. Loka samastha sukhino bhavantu (may all the people of the world be happy!). The main teaching of Bhagavadgita is that one should work for the welfare of all. Ekoham bahusyam (the one willed to become many).

The same divinity is present in all. All forms are His.

Yet Another Leela Of Krishna

Before I conclude, I would like to narrate a small leela performed by Krishna in Dwapara yuga. So long as Kamsa was alive, he used to send demons to fight with Krishna. Kamsa had two wives whose father was a mighty king. Once Kamsa was killed, his father-in-law tried to wage a war against Krishna. The gopikas were worried, How long are we to suffer these ordeals? , they asked Krishna. He told them not to panic and pacified them saying, Try to understand My powers and potentialities. Tonight, you sleep in Repalle and tomorrow morning, see for yourself where you will be. When they woke up next morning, they found themselves in Dwaraka. Where was Repalle and where was Dwaraka? A distance of 1000 miles separated them. In this manner, Krishna could change one village into another. God can do anything. He can go anywhere. He can change anything. Do not give room for doubts. One who doubts divinity will certainly be doomed. Develop unwavering faith and follow the Divine command. True dharma lies in following the Divine command. When you follow God, you will be blessed with all goodness and auspiciousness. Krishnashtami, 31-8-2002, Prasanthi Nilayam.

Significance Of Vinayaka Worship

Theism is on the decline and atheism is on the rise. Righteousness and respect for elders are gradually becoming extinct. Devotion and ancient wisdom have become extinct. Education has become agitation today.

TODAY is the sacred festival of Ganesh

Chaturthi. Ga symbolises buddhi (intellect),

Na stands for vijnana (wisdom). So, Ganapati is the master of buddhi and vijnana. The universe is sustained by Ganas (gods) and Ganapati is their master. In this world, everybody has a master, but Ganapati has none. He is a master unto himself. This is the birthday of the Master of Masters. Ganapati is also called Mooshika Vahana (one who has a mouse as his vehicle).

You may wonder how a small mooshika can carry on its back a hefty personality like Vinayaka. Here mooshika

does not mean a mere mouse. It symbolises the darkness of ignorance because it is in darkness that the mouse moves about. Hence, Mooshika Vahana is one who subdues ignorance and dispels darkness. It is only when we understand the inner significance of the Vinayaka principle that we will be able to celebrate Vinayaka Chaturthi properly. One of the main teachings of the Bhagavad Gita is contained in the sloka:

Sarvadharmam Parityaya Maamekam Saranam

Vraja,

Aham Twa Sarvapapebhyo Mokshaishyami Ma
Suchah

(Surrender unto Me and perform all your actions as an offering to Me. I will destroy all your sins and confer liberation on you.)

The Individual Must Identify Himself With Society

So long as man is immersed in body attachment, all types of hardships and misery haunt him. Body attachment is the root cause of sankalpas (thoughts). That is why Krishna exhorted man to give up body attachment. The inner meaning of this statement is that man should experience unity in diversity. Without vyashti (individual), there cannot be samashti (society). Without samashti, there cannot be srishti (creation). So, first of all we have to recognise the role of vyashti. Only then can we understand the principle of samashti, which will in turn lead to the understanding of srishti. One who understands srishti becomes one with parameshti (God). In fact, the principles of samashti, srishti and parameshti are very much present in vyashti. Hence, one has to make efforts to understand vyashti in the first instance.

Vyashti symbolises the individual (jiva) whereas samashti stands for God (deva). There is not much difference between the individual soul and the Cosmic Spirit. So long as vyashti identifies himself with the body he leads a very ordinary life. It is only when he identifies himself with samashti can he understand the principle of creation. So, firstly man should make efforts to understand the true meaning of vyashti. This is the message of Vinayaka. The letter Ga (intellect) in the name Ganapati symbolises this aspect. The letter Na stands for vijnana (wisdom). So, Ganapati is one who grants good intellect and confers wisdom. Today people perform Vinayaka worship without actually understanding its significance. Vinayaka symbolises the qualities of a true leader in all aspects. Viyate Nayake Iti Vinayaka meaning, He is a master unto Himself. In this world Vinayaka is worshipped by many. However, Vinayaka does not worship anyone as He has no master above Him. Even Easwara, the father, worships His son Vinayaka, but it does not happen the other way.

Control Of The Mind Is True Spiritual Practice

Today no one is making an attempt to know the principle of Parameshti, who is the fundamental force behind

vyashti, samashti and srishti. Parameshti is the master of all. In this world, man undertakes various activities, of which some are good and some are bad. Man's sankalpa (thought) is the root cause of this duality. Good thoughts lead to good actions and vice versa. Man is the embodiment of sankalpas and vikalpas (resolutions and negations). True spiritual practice lies in controlling these thoughts and their aberrations.

Today man is troubled by worry and anxiety. There is not a moment when he is free from worries. What are the worries that disturb man? To be born is a worry, to be on earth is a worry; world is a cause of worry and death too; entire childhood is a worry and so is old age; life is a worry, failure is a worry; all actions and difficulties cause worry; even happiness too is a mysterious worry.

Body attachment is the primary cause of all worries.

Man cannot attain happiness without difficulties and worries. Pleasure is an interval between two pains. It is impossible to experience happiness without undergoing difficulties. There is divinity in every human being. The power latent in man is not present elsewhere. However, he is unable to make use of the divine power in him. Every man is endowed with buddhi (intellect) which has immense potentiality. Vijnana (wisdom) is far superior to intellect. The principles of buddhi and vijnana have to be properly understood in the first instance.

All Offerings To Vinayaka Have Significance

On this day of Vinayaka Chaturthi, people make kudumulu and undrallu as special dishes and offer them to Vinayaka. They are special and unique in the sense that they are cooked on steam without any oil content. Til seeds, rice flour and jaggery are mixed, made into balls, cooked in steam and offered to Vinayaka. You should enquire into the purpose of making such an offering. Til seeds are good for the eyes. Steam-cooked preparations without any oil content are good for your digestive system. One who partakes of such food will be free from blood pressure and blood sugar and will always enjoy sound health and happiness. Food preparations, which are cooked on fire with oil content, are harmful to jatharagni (digestive fire). Such food gives rise to various diseases. One can lead a long, happy and healthy life, if one avoids food with oil content.

Vinayaka has a pot-belly but he has perfect health as he partakes of steam-cooked food without oil content.

Vinayaka is also called Vighneswara (remover of obstacles). No obstacle can come in the way of one who prays to Vinayaka. Worship of Vinayaka confers success in spiritual as well as worldly endeavours. God grants happiness at two levels, pravritti (outward) and Nivritti (inward).

Pravritti is related to physical body and Nivritti to intellect.

The former undergoes change with the passage of time, whereas the latter remains unchanged. Hence, one should try to reduce body attachment with proper food and habits.

Excessive intake of food results in obesity and, consequently, heart will be subjected to greater strain to pump blood. Blood travels a distance of 12,000 miles in the body with each heartbeat. With increase in obesity, the circulation of blood and, consequently, the functioning of the heart will be impaired. Hence, one should exercise control over one's food habits. In fact that is what Vinayaka does.

People worship Vinayaka by offering garika (a kind of white grass). What is the origin of this worship? Once Parvati and Parameswara were engaged in a game of dice. Nandi was asked to be the adjudicator. Nandi declared Easwara to be the winner each time. Mother Parvati thought that Nandi was biased in Easwara's favour. She became furious and pronounced a curse on Nandi that he should suffer from indigestion. At once Nandi fell at her feet and prayed, Mother, I have not cheated you, nor did I show any favouritism towards Easwara. I have been highly impartial in my judgement. It is because of the power of His will that Easwara emerged victorious each time. Easwara's sankalpa is vaira sankalpa (His will is bound to succeed). Hence, I seek your pardon and pray that I may be freed from the curse. Parvati at once took pity on him and said, Nandi! on the fourth day of the month of Bhadrapada, you worship Vinayaka with garika (white grass). You will be freed from indigestion when you partake of the grass offered to Vinayaka.

People who maintain pet dogs know this well. When they leave them in the lawns, the dogs search for white grass and eat it. What is the reason for this? The white grass is beneficial to their digestive system. Hence, we see that the offering made to Vinayaka ensures good health to one and all. Since times of yore, people believed that Vinayaka conferred His grace on those who worshipped Him on the fourth day of Bhadrapada month.

Subdue Hatred And Anger

Today man is not making proper use of his mathi (mind), gathi (effort), stithi (position) and sampatthi (wealth). As a result, he is losing the sacred energy that God has given him. Not merely this. He is subjected to misery and grief because of his evil traits like kama, krodha and lobha (desire, anger and greed). He has absolutely no control over his desires. When one desire is fulfilled, he craves for another. Anger is another evil trait which ruins man.

One with anger will not be successful in any of his endeavours. He will commit sins and be ridiculed by one and all.

(Telugu Poem)

Anger is one's enemy, peace is the protective shield, compassion is true relation, happiness is verily heaven and misery is hell.

(Telugu Poem)

Hatred is more dangerous than anger. It gives rise to many evil qualities which come in the way of experiencing divinity. Man is supposed to live for a hundred years, but his life-span is cut short by these evil qualities. When these evil traits are totally subdued, man can enjoy a long and happy life. He will not lose his life even if he were to meet with a serious accident. Man is tormented by the reflection, reaction and resound of his own evil qualities. Desire, anger and hatred are not human qualities; they are bestial tendencies. Man becomes a beast if he allows these wicked qualities to overpower him. He should constantly remind himself that he is a human being and not a beast. In this manner, he can keep a check over his bestial tendencies. Unfortunately, the youth of today are developing excessive desires and consequently their future is ruined.

Human Life Needs A Strong Foundation

Human life can be compared to a four-storeyed mansion.

Brahmacharya, Grihastha, Vanaprastha and Sanyasa (celibacy, householdership, recluse and renunciant) are the four stages of human life. Brahma-charya is the foundation; if the foundation is strong, the other three stages will be automatically taken care of. But the modern youth are ruining three-fourth of their lives because they do not have a strong foundation of Brahmacharya. When elders advise them to sit for prayers for at least five minutes, they say they have no time, but they have all the time in the world to wallow in bad qualities and bad habits. Students and youth in particular should make every effort to build a strong foundation of Brahma-charya. Merely remaining a bachelor is not

Brahmachar-ya: constant contemplation on Brahma is true Brahma-charya. Think of God and chant His Name under all circumstances. Lead a life of purity. Dedicate your life to the principle of love. This ensures the safety of the mansion of your life. You see the walls, you see the roof, you see the entire building, but you do not see the foundation. It is hidden underneath. However, the safety of the mansion which is seen from outside, rests on the unseen foundation. When you build a house, you design the walls and roof to make it look attractive. But the foundation which bears the entire building does not require any beautification. Yet, it is the most important part of the building. Today man is not bothered about the foundation of life. He is more concerned about external appearance.

The first stage in human life is Brahmacharya.

Charya means to conduct oneself. You should always think of Brahma. Your conduct should befit the stage of Brahmacharya. In olden days, the preceptor was referred to as acharya, meaning one who practises before preaching. One who merely preaches without practising is only a teacher. He may be able to teach a few lessons but he will not be able to render any help in controlling your mind and attaining spiritual progress. Only a true acharya can help you to control your mind. When we talk of acharyas, two names readily come to our mind. One is Bhishmacharya and the other is Dronacharya. Dronacharya was the Guru of the Pandavas in the sense that he taught them the art of archery. Bhishmacharya was the spiritual teacher of the

Pandavas. He was a great jnani (one of wisdom). Jnana does not mean acquisition of textual knowledge. Advaita darshanam jnanam (perception of non-duality is supreme wisdom). A true jnani is one who dedicates his body, mind, and intellect to God. He thinks only of God and nothing else. He performs his activities with the sole purpose of pleasing God. Sarva karma bhagavad preethyartham (do all actions to please God). You should not crave for personal satisfaction. You should make every effort to please God. This was the only endeavour of Bhishmacharya. He was the son of Mother Ganga. All his life he obeyed the command of his mother and ultimately when his end approached, he wanted to experience the love and grace of his mother. He was wounded by the arrows shot by Arjuna and was lying on the bed of arrows for 58 days. His entire body was pierced with arrows. Before leaving his body, he requested Arjuna to bring his mother Ganga and quench his thirst. Arjuna means one with a pure heart. He had earned many appellations like Phalguna, Partha, Kiriti, Svetavahana, Bhibhatsa, Savyasaachi, Dhanunjaya, etc. On hearing the request of Bhishma, Arjuna with all his might shot an arrow into the earth. Immediately, mother Ganga sprang forth like a fountain and quenched the thirst of her son, Bhishma. Thus, he breathed his last peacefully. Today we find many people bearing the name Arjuna, but their conduct does not match their name. In the famous pilgrim centre of Srisailem, the divine couple Bhramaramba and Mallikarjuna are the presiding deities. Bhramara means a honeybee and Amba means mother. Malli means jasmine flower. Mallikarjuna symbolises a pure and white jasmine flower. Just as a bee sucks honey from a flower, likewise, Bhramaramba enjoys the company of Mallikarjuna.

Arjuna The Pure

Among the Pandavas, Arjuna was considered to be the greatest because he was pure-hearted. He never caused any harm to the innocent. Never did he use his weapons against anyone without a valid reason. Before the commencement of war, Arjuna requested Krishna to go to the Kauravas on a peace mission. Krishna asked him, Whom should I approach? Arjuna said, Oh Krishna, you are the all-knowing One. I don't need to give you any instructions. Please make every effort to avert the war. Krishna said, What is the use of talking to the blind king Dhritarashtra? His attachment to his sons made him blind to the reality. He will listen to his sons but not to Me. However, Krishna went to Kauravas as an emissary. But as He had predicted, His peace mission failed. War became imminent. He came back and told Arjuna, All My efforts proved futile. Be prepared for the war. Arjuna expressed his concern that many innocents would be killed in the war. Krishna said, Arjuna, those who come to the battlefield will be totally prepared to face any eventuality. Nobody comes to the battlefield to merely watch the show. They are ready to give life or take life. So, there is no question of any innocents getting killed in the war. So, be prepared to fight. Arjuna wanted to convey this news to brother Dharmaraja. Both of them went to him. Right from the beginning Dharmaraja was against war. He had no choice but to accept. The same was conveyed to Nakula and Sahadeva. Though they were young, they were highly noble. They were endowed with greater virtues than even Arjuna and Dharmaraja. Their joy knew no bounds when they saw Krishna. Knowing fully well the wicked nature of the Kauravas, they were prepared for a war. They were not bothered about the outcome of Krishna's peace mission. They were all the time praying for His safe return. Such was their love for Krishna. Ultimately, Arjuna said, Krishna, is it possible to get nectar out of poison? What is the use of giving good counsel to the wicked Kauravas? It is like throwing jasmine flowers into the fire. Let us put an end to this talk of peace and get prepared for the war.

When they actually reached the battlefield, seeing the vast Kaurava army, Arjuna became despondent. He was concerned that many innocents would get killed in the battlefield. He was afraid that he would be the cause of grief to many families. He said, Krishna, I cannot bear the sight of my own kith and kin getting killed in the battlefield. When I think of this, my head is reeling. Let's go back at once without wasting any time. Krishna pretended to be angry. He said, Arjuna, it was you who instigated Me and brought Me to the battlefield. How can you behave in such a cowardly manner now? Shame on you! At this juncture, He imparted the teaching of Bhagavadgita to Arjuna. It gave

Arjuna the necessary strength to fight the battle. However, when he confronted Bhishma, he could not withstand his might. In order to instill courage in Arjuna, Krishna at once jumped from the chariot and said, Arjuna, I will kill this Bhishma and protect you. Arjuna said, Krishna, you have taken a vow that you will not fight the war. I don't want You to go back on Your word for my sake. As Krishna was approaching him, Bhishma folded his hands and prayed, The one who is coming to kill me is the only one to rescue me. Such was the devotion of Bhishma.

Embodiments of Love!

Our history is replete with sacred inner meanings. But the modern youth do not pay any attention to our history. They waste their time in reading novels and meaningless stories. These kathas (stories) will give only vyathas (sorrow). Divine story alone teaches you the ideal path. His story is history. You should read such a sacred history, understand it and put it into practice. Sacred epics like the Ramayana, the Bhagavata and the Mahabharata are the repositories of great teachings. Likewise, the story of Vinayaka also has a great message for mankind. Vinayaka is the embodiment of wisdom. That is why all gods worship him. On this day of Vinayaka Chaturthi, students place their textbooks in front of the Vinayaka idol and offer their prayers. The inner meaning is that they should pray for the divine wisdom to be bestowed on them. It is most essential that the students to worship Vinayaka on this auspicious day. He fulfills the desires of his devotees. He confers only anugraha (grace). He has no agraha (anger). Hence, not only the Bharatiyas, even the people of other countries, worship Vinayaka.

Three Fruitful Decades Of The Central Trust

At 2 o'clock in the afternoon, there is going to be a programme presented by our former students who are working for Sri Sathya Sai Central Trust. They are doing a lot of good work. There are a few elders who have been looking after the Trust affairs for the last 30 years. All these years, I have been personally supervising the day-to-day affairs of the Trust. Ever since my students have joined the Trust, they have taken up the responsibility and are doing a good job. Be it in Book Trust, or in Accommodation office or anywhere else in the Ashram, our students are rendering yeoman service. They speak gently and sweetly. They do not use harsh words. They follow the dictum: Help ever, Hurt never. These Sathya Sai Central Trust boys will present a programme in the afternoon in which they will talk about various activities of the Trust. Each one of you must necessarily listen to what they have got to say. Whatever they are going to say is purely based on their own experience. My boys always speak the truth. They will not utter a lie, even for fun. They will be conveying the message of truth in the afternoon programme. They are young in age, but they are very efficient in their work. They are taking keen interest in the activities undertaken by the Trust. They are propagating Swami's message all over the world. I am ex-250

tremely happy that these boys have come up well in life. They are highly intelligent. When asked a question, they give a suitable and prompt reply. Five boys are looking after our Central Trust accounts. Likewise, some boys are working for our Books and Publications. You do not find mismanagement of even a naya paisa. They are very honest. Every paisa is accounted for. They are endowed with noble qualities, good habits and ideal character. See it for yourself in the afternoon. They are actively involved in broadcasting all the programmes that are conducted in Prasanthi Nilayam over the Radio Sai Global Harmony Channel 24 hours a day. Though they are young boys, they speak in a highly polished language. You are going to listen to them in the afternoon. It is essential that you learn their language. After all they are your brothers. All are brothers and sisters. I want every one of you to get such an opportunity and come up well in life.

Reminiscence Of The Divine

On October 20, 1940, which happened to be a Sunday, Swami lost the collar pin and with that the veil of Maya disappeared. The worldly attachment left Him in the form of the collar pin. He left home saying that Maya could not bind Him any longer. This happened after a visit to Hampi.

(Telugu Poem)

Embodiments of Love!

IT happened when I was at Uravakonda. The Corporation Commissioner of Bellary had a dream in which he was directed to go to a particular house in Uravakonda and bring Sathya to Bellary. At the same time, his wife also had a dream in which she was directed to accompany her husband and bring Sathya with them. They thought Sathya would be a great and famous personality. Now My height is a little above five feet. I was much shorter those Sathya Sai Speaks - Volume - 35 days. I used to wear shorts and a shirt. I was 14 years old at that time. As I came out of the house, the Corporation Commissioner and his wife at once recognised Me to be the same person who had appeared in their dream. They felt extremely happy and prostrated before Me on the road itself. They were unmindful of the fact that I was a small boy. I was on My way to school with a few books in My hand.

The Commissioner and his wife approached Seshama Raju, the elder brother of this body, and asked him: Please bring Sathya to Bellary today. You may have to apply for leave but does not matter. One cannot say no to a person of the status of the Corporation Commissioner. Hence, Seshama Raju approached the Head Master of the school Kameswar Rao with a request to grant him leave. He also explained the reason for taking leave. Kameswar Rao was very fond of Me. He said, You may take Sathya to Bellary or wherever you want. You do not need to seek my permission in this regard. He even gave his car to take Me to Bellary.

Sathya As Virupaksha

The Commissioner and his wife played host to us for three days. They took us to the Virupaksha temple in the nearby Hampi Kshetra (Temple). Seshama Raju and his wife told Me to remain outside the temple and keep a watch over their belongings as they would go inside to have darshan of the deity. I readily agreed and remained outside. As soon as they entered the temple, to their utter astonishment, they found Me standing inside the sanctum sanctorum where the deity is supposed to be standing. Seshama Raju could not believe his eyes. He thought, Why did he come here when I told him specifically to remain outside and take care of our belongings? He at once came out of the temple only to find Me standing there! He again went inside and found Me there also! Still he was not convinced. He told his wife, You go outside and keep a watch over Sathya. Do not allow him to go anywhere. Meanwhile, I will go inside and see whether he is still there. She did accordingly. He again saw a smiling Sathya standing in the sanctum sanctorum. The Corporation Commissioner was also a witness to all this. He recognised My divinity. When they came out of the temple, he caught hold of Seshama Raju s hands and said, Raju, do not be under the impression that Sathya is your brother. He is not an ordinary person. You are deluded seeing His physical form. There is divine power in Him.

We came back to the Commissioner s house, had our food there and started our return journey to Uravakonda. The Commissioner wanted to give Me a gift. He said that he would get four pairs of shorts and shirts stitched for Me. I firmly told him that I would not accept even one. He did not want to force Me either. Then his wife suggested that a gold collar pin would be an appropriate gift for Me. In those days, it was a matter of prestige for children to wear a collar pin. Immediately, he bought a gold collar pin and put it on the collar of My shirt. I protested. Under any circumstances, I never accepted anything from others. But Seshama Raju insisted that I accept the gift. He said that my refusal to accept the gift would amount to showing disrespect to the Commissioner. So I obeyed him.

The Veil Of Maya Goes

After returning from Hampi, I was going to school wearing the collar pin. The pin dropped on the way and could not be traced. A major change took place in Me. Worldly attachment left Me in the guise of a collar pin. I decided to embark on My mission to alleviate the sufferings of My devotees. I threw away the books and entered the garden of the Excise Commissioner Hanumantha Rao. He was an ardent devotee. Seeing Me, he told his wife to prepare various delicacies. But I did not touch any of those preparations. Seshama Raju came there and forced Me to return home. I said I would not. Never before I had talked to him that way. It was not My nature to talk back to elders. Hence, Seshama Raju was surprised. How could Sathya get such courage, he wondered. He could see brilliant effulgence around My smiling face. Immediately, he wanted to send a telegram to Puttaparthi. In those days, it took a minimum of one week for a telegram to reach Puttaparthi from Uravakonda. Hence, he sent a school boy with a message that the parents of this body Easwaramma and Pedda Venkama Raju should go to Uravakonda at once. When they arrived, Seshama Raju brought them to Me. Easwaramma pleaded with Me, with tears in her eyes, Sathya, come, let us go back to Your brother s house.

But, I did not agree. If you want Me to come, I will go with you to Puttaparthi. I will go of My own accord and make the villagers happy.

In those days, I used to lead the school prayer at the loving insistence of the headmaster. He would say, Raju, you may be young, but your prayer melts our hearts. The day after I left the school, another boy, who used to sit close to Me in the class, was asked to lead the prayer. When he went on the dais, he broke down in tears remembering Me. All the students and teachers were in tears, and the prayer meeting was cancelled. They wanted to accompany Me to Puttaparthi. But how was it possible to accommodate so many of them in this village? Then I told Kameswar Rao to somehow convince the boys not to follow Me.

God Can Do Anything For The Devotee

In the classroom, three of us used to share a desk. Myself in the middle, flanked by Ramesh and Suresh on either side. They were not too well in their studies. Whenever teachers asked them questions, they would give the answers prompted by Me. It was the time of our E.S.L.C. public exams. Our register numbers were such that we had to sit separately, quite at a distance from each other. It was not possible for them to copy. They were much worried. I infused courage in them saying, You don't need to write anything. You just attend the examination and feign to write the examination. I will take care of the rest. The duration of the examination was two hours. I completed My answer paper in just 10 min-257

utes. I took some more papers from the invigilator and wrote the answers in Ramesh's handwriting. After completing it, I took another set of papers and wrote the answers in Suresh's handwriting. I also wrote their names on the answer sheets. When the final bell rang, all the students got up, and I silently placed all the three papers on the table of the examiner. Nobody raised any objection. The results were announced on the following day and only we three got first class. The teachers were surprised as to how Ramesh and Suresh also got first class. There was no scope for any doubt. They could not have copied from Me, since we were seated far from each other. Their answer sheets were in their own handwriting. The local people were overjoyed. They carried us on their shoulders, and took us in a grand procession. Those two boys had such intimate relationship with Me. When I left Uravakonda, Ramesh and Suresh could not bear the separation from Me. Ramesh, utterly dejected, fell into a well and died. The second boy went on repeating Raju, Raju, Raju and ultimately turned mad. He was taken to various mental hospitals, but there was no improvement. Finally his parents came to Me and prayed, Raju, he will be cured of his madness if he sees You at least once. Please come and see him. I went to the mental hospital to see him. He was continuously repeating Raju, Raju, Raju. Seeing Me, he shed tears, fell at My feet and breathed His last. They had surrendered themselves to Me. They prayed that they should never be separated from Me.

Death Could Not Separate Them

When I came to Puttaparthi, Karanam Subbamma gave one acre of land near Sathyabhama temple where a small house was built. There I used to live. The same Ramesh and Suresh were born again as two puppies, and came to Me. The sister of Mysore Maharaja named them Jack and Jill. They were always with Me.

One day the Maharani of Mysore came to have My Darshan. She was a great devotee and a highly orthodox woman. She would perform Puja with flowers everyday. She would personally pluck the flowers after sanctifying the plants by sprinkling water and milk. As there were no proper roads to Puttaparthi, she alighted from the car at Karnatakanagepalli and walked the rest of the distance to Old Mandir. There used to be a small shed where the Pedda

Venkama Raju Kalyana Mandapam stands now. The Maharani decided to rest for the night in the Mandir. The driver had his dinner and was returning to Karnatakanagepalli where the car was parked. I told Jack to accompany the driver and show him the way. Jack walked in the front and the driver followed. Jack slept under the car. Next morning, the driver started the car not knowing that Jack was sleeping under it. The wheel of the car ran over the back of Jack and its backbone broke. Jack dragged itself across the river, wailing all the while. A washerman named Subbanna used to take care of the Old Mandir day and night. He was very loyal and considered Swami as his very life. He came running to Me and said, Swami, Jack might have met with an acci-259

dent. It is coming wailing in pain. I came out at once. Jack came close to Me, wailing loudly, fell at My feet and breathed its last. It was buried behind the Old Mandir and a brindavanam was erected. As per My instructions, it was built by the side, not at the centre. I told there should be a place for another samadhi. As Jack had passed away, Jill stopped eating food and died after a few days. It was also buried by the side of Jack's samadhi. In this manner, Ramesh and Suresh did penance to be with Me. Even after their death, they took birth as dogs to be with Me.

First the collar pin was lost; then I stopped going to school and parents arrived and brought Me here. Owing to all these changes, I left Uravakonda. After I came here, many people from Bangalore and Mysore started visiting this place in their cars. Maharani of Mysore, coffee planter Sakamma and Desaraj Arasu, the maternal uncle of Mysore Maharaja were among those who used to come here. One day they prayed, it is difficult for us to come here often. Hence, please come and settle in Mysore. We shall build a big mansion for You. I told, I don't want palatial buildings. I want to be here. That night, mother Easwaramma came to Me with tears in her eyes and said, Swami, people want to take You here and there for their selfish purposes. If you leave Puttaparthi, I will give up my life. Please promise me that You will remain in Puttaparthi for ever. I gave her My word that I would never leave Puttaparthi. This is why I have constructed many buildings in the Ashram for the comfort and convenience of devotees.

The Birth Of Prasanthi Nilayam

When I made it clear that I would not leave Puttaparthi, Sakamma and the maternal uncle of Mysore Maharaja decided to build a Mandir, a little away from the village. They acquired ten acres of land here and started the construction work. An ardent devotee by name Vittal Rao volunteered to oversee the construction work. He was an officer of the Forest Department during the British regime. He is the father of Jayamma (Prof. Jayalakshmi Gopinath) who spoke earlier. He supervised the construction work. R.N. Rao from Madras, Neeladri Rao, the son-in-law of Pitapuram Maharaja, the son-in-law of Baroda Maharaja, all of them took active interest in the construction work. As all of them joined hands, the Mandir was constructed in a very short period. As it was wartime, it was very difficult to procure iron for the construction work. They overcame all such hurdles with sincerity and devotion. They prayed that I should not go there till the construction was over, lest I may be put to inconvenience. Such was their love for Me.

I always fulfil My promise made to devotees. Whatever I do is for the happiness of devotees. I don't need anything for Myself. I don't have any desires.

They worked day and night, made payments to the labourers, and saw to it that the construction was completed successfully. Jayamma was very young at that time. Every Sunday Vittal Rao used to come here in his car to pay wages to labourers. Jayamma would insist that she be allowed to accompany him. Vittal Rao was very fond of his daughter. He used to get food prepared in Bangalore itself and bring his daughter along with him. She has been serving Swami for the last 60 years. She came to Me when this body was 17 years old. Now this body is approaching its 77th Birthday. She would visit Prasanthi Nilayam very frequently and would learn Swami's Bhajans and sing His glory. In this manner, she developed sacred feelings and intense devotion for Swami. One should have prapti (deservedness) to experience divine proximity. One cannot get it for the mere asking. It cannot be denied either. One gets it out of the merits accrued over past lives. Their family has been the recipient of bounteous grace. I was moved by her repeated reference to Venkamma Garu (Swami's elder sister) in her speech.

Sisters Seva Remembered

Venkamma Garu used to cook food for Swami.

Jayamma used to be with her always to learn cooking. They had such intimate friendship. Later Parvatamma Garu (Venkamma Garu's younger sister) also came here. They used to bring food for Swami by turn, one in the morning and the other in the evening. They were concerned that it was not safe to allow others to prepare food for Swami. They extracted a promise from Me that I would eat the food prepared by them only. They served Me till their very last breath. They were in Manipal Hospital, Bangalore, at the time of their passing away.

262

Venkamma was taken from here to Bangalore in an unconscious state. She had never opened her eyes. I went to her and called, Venkamma. She instantly opened her eyes and saw Swami. She offered her Namaskar to Me by taking My hands close to her eyes. She shed tears and left her mortal coil.

The same happened in the case of Parvatamma also.

She was also unconscious when she was taken to Bangalore. I went to her and called out her name. She immediately opened her eyes, shed tears and breathed her last.

So long as they were alive, they served Swami by bringing food everyday, morning and evening. Such intimate relationship with the Lord is the result of merits of past lives. It cannot be acquired by human effort. They never cared for their ill-health and continued to serve Swami with love. Their lives were sanctified.

Even to this day, food is received from their houses.

Seshama Raju's son lives here. Easwaramma's son

Ianakiramaiah (younger brother of Swami's physical body) also stays here. You all know him. His wife prepares and brings food for Me; likewise Parvatamma's daughter also brings food for Me. In this manner, they are serving Swami everyday. I do not take food at night. Every morning, they bring food for Me. Such is the intimate relationship that Swami has with this family. Some incarnations were due to the prayers of their parents; but, in Swami's case, it is different.

I decided that, so and so should be the father and so and so should be the mother. This body has not taken birth in the ordinary mortal way.

Sathya Sai Speaks - Volume - 35

Promise To Subbamma Fulfilled

Though Karnam Subbamma was not physically related to this body, emotionally, she was closely attached to Swami. She used to think of Swami day in and day out.

She requested Me to stay in her house. She was prepared to vacate the house for My sake. Many relatives argued with her, Being a Brahmin, how are you allowing a Kshatriya to stay in your house? She said, I don't go to anybody's house. None of you need come to my house. It is enough if I have Swami with me. Such was her devotion and determination.

She had only one desire. She prayed, I should see your beautiful form when I leave my body. I said I would certainly fulfil her desire.

Once I went to Madras acceding to a devotee's prayer.

Subbamma was in Bukkapatnam at that time. She was staying with her mother. By the time I returned from Madras, Subbamma had breathed her last. When I came here, people came running to Me and said, Swami, Your Subbamma passed away last night. Immediately, I turned the car and went to Bukkapatnam straightaway. Her body was kept in the verandah, covered with a cloth. The entire household was grief-stricken. Once Swami makes a promise, He will certainly fulfil it under any circumstances. I removed the cloth covering the body. As she had passed away the previous night, ants were crawling all over her body. I called out, Subbamma. She opened her eyes. This news spread like wildfire within no time. The people of Bukkapatnam started crowding the place telling each other that Subbamma was brought back to life. Subbamma s mother was hundred years old at that time. I told her to bring a glass of water with a Tulasi leaf soaked in it. I put Tulasi leaf in Subbamma s mouth and made her drink some water. I said, Subbamma, I have kept up My promise. Now, you may close your eyes peacefully. She said, Swami, what more do I need? I am leaving blissfully. Shedding tears of joy, she held My hands and breathed her last. This is how I keep up My promise under any circumstances. In this manner, I never go back on My promise. Words are inadequate to describe Subbamma s service. During the Krishna Avatar, mother Yashoda could love and serve Krishna more than mother Devaki.

Peaceful End Of Chosen Parents

In those days, Easwaramma and Subbamma used to converse with each other through the window in the wall separating their houses. They could not visit each other s house because their husbands were not on speaking terms. But Easwaramma had a cordial relationship with Subbamma. The parents of this body were chosen by Me. Pedda Venkama Raju used to help the devotees visiting Swami. He used to run to Bukkapatnam even for a coconut or provisions required by the devotees. One day, he came to the Mandir and expressed his desire to talk to Me. I had already called a group for an interview. I took him inside. He said, Swami, I should not leave behind any debt. I had a small shop. I might have forgotten to return a paisa or two to someone. Hence, I request you to distribute food to the poor on the 12th day after my demise. He took out some money and placed it in My hands, saying, It is my hard earned money. You may use it for feeding the poor. He also mentioned that he had kept a few bags of rice and jaggery required for that purpose. After this, he went home, slept and died peacefully.

Easwaramma also had such a sacred end. She used to follow Me wherever I went. She came to Brindavan to attend the Summer Course. She felt very happy seeing so many students. She even served water to them during their lunch. She used to say It is because of Swami that we are able to witness such a grand event. One day breakfast was served to the students as usual. Easwaramma too had her breakfast. Venkamma, who used to look after her needs, was by her side at that time. Easwaramma was pounding betel nut in a mortar. I could hear the sound from upstairs. All of a sudden, she cried out, Swami, Swami, Swami. I said, I am coming, I am coming. I came down immediately and she breathed her last. She had absolutely no suffering at all, not even a mild headache. Their lives were sanctified as they were selected by Swami.

Help Ever Hurt Never

Ramesh and Suresh considered Swami as their very life breath. Though they were very young, they had intense love for Swami. Knowing that I did not have money with Me, Ramesh got two pairs of dresses stitched for Me and kept them in My desk with a note, If you do not accept them, I will give up my life. I refused them saying, Our friendship and love should not be built on the basis of giving and taking. Ours is heart to heart relationship with pure love. We should share only love. There should be no material transaction. Right from then till this day, I never accepted anything from others. I always conduct Myself in accordance with the principle of Help ever, Hurt never. This has been My motto. I never harmed anyone. I derive great joy in helping others. That is why I tell the devotees to always pray, Loka Samasthah Sukhino Bhavantu (May all the people of the world be happy!) All should be happy, healthy and blissful. With such sacred motive, I have been spreading the message of love to the entire world. My students are My biggest property. The students of the Primary School, Higher Secondary School and the Institute are always with Me. They do not leave Swami and Swami cannot be without them. My life is for the sake of humanity at large. The happiness of people is the happiness of Swami. I have no interest in celebrating My Birthdays. But the devotees would not leave Me. They want to have different celebrations, but I do not want any. I consider your birthday as My Birthday. The day you are happy is truly My Birthday. Though bodies are different, you should not give room for any differences. All are one, be alike to everyone. The relationship that Swami has with the devotees is not of a worldly nature. It is relationship based on Divine love. Annunciation Message, 20-10-2002, Prasanthi Nilayam.

Unity In Diversity - The Fundamental

Truth

Life in the world is impermanent. So are youth and wealth. Wife and children are also not permanent.

Only truth and good name are permanent.

(Sanskrit verse)

IN this world everything is bound to change, be it happiness or sorrow, peace or restlessness.

Man is unable to understand his true nature. He identifies himself with the body which is transient. He is not merely a vyashti jeevi (individual), he is a samashti jeevi (social being). He does not want to lead a lonely life. The Purusha Sukta declares: Sahasra seersha purusha sahasraksha sahasra pad (God has a thousand heads, eyes and feet). Man is unable to realise that he is samashti swarupa (cosmic form). He is under the delusion that he is a vyashti swarupa and thereby subjects himself to suffering.

Give Up Negative Qualities

The main principle of the culture of Bharat is to understand and experience unity in diversity. But, man today visualises diversity in unity. He has forgotten the principle of equality and, consequently, becomes restless. Unity in diversity is the fundamental truth that one has to recognise. Since time immemorial, the Bharatiyas have been making concerted efforts to understand this truth and experience it. Nobody has been able to understand the inner meaning of the Vedic teachings. However, a little knowledge can be gained by going through the sacred texts and listening to the teachings of scholars. In ancient times, even the demons used to study the Vedas. However, they could not comprehend the truth contained in the Vedas and hence led a life of untruth. Demons like Hiranyaksha and Hiranyakasipu were highly learned and well-versed in various disciplines of knowledge. They could reach up to the moon, the sun, and even the stars and could understand their functioning. But they could not comprehend the latent positive principle in their own self, as their mind was filled with negative thoughts. The demon Narakasura belonged to the same category. He had mighty power and knowledge, but they proved futile because of his negative qualities. One may be highly devoted, one may have mastered the Vedas, but all these will be of little consequence if one doesn't give up negative qualities.

Saint Thyagaraja was an ardent devotee of the Lord.

In one of his compositions, he extolled the Lord thus: Oh

Sathya Sai Speaks - Volume - 35

Krishna! You are beyond all description and human comprehension. Is it possible to estimate Your glory and splendour? I have been waiting for Your grace. Oh Lord! Listen to my prayer and redeem me. You are the one who brought back to life the dead son of Your Guru, Sandeepani. You are the one who humbled the serpent Kaliya, freed Vasudeva and Devaki and saved Droupadi from humiliation. You fulfilled Kuchela's desires; You made ugly-looking Kubja beautiful. You protected the Pandavas and saved the 16,000 Gopikas. You are beyond all description and human comprehension. Krishna, it is not possible for even Brahma to describe Your glory. I have been praying for

Your grace. (Telugu Song)

Chaitanya's Message To Mankind

Once Chaitanya Mahaprabhu sought his mother's permission to go and pursue his studies. Then his mother said, My dear one, there are various types of education in this world, but they are meant only for a living and not for life. Only the adhyatmika vidya (spiritual education) is true education. It is immortal and has no limitations. It is changeless in all the three periods of time. Make efforts to acquire such education. From that day onwards, Chaitanya went about propagating the efficacy of chanting the divine name in each street and in every village. He chanted the name of Lord Krishna at all times and under all circumstances. His message to mankind was simple, yet profound.

271

Sathya Sai Speaks - Volume - 35

There is no charity greater than feeding the hungry,

There are no greater gods than parents,

There is no greater Japa (chanting) or Thapa (penance) than adherence to truth,

There is no greater Dharma than compassion,

There is no greater gain than the company of the good,

There is no enemy greater than anger,

There is no disease like being a debtor,

There is no wealth greater than good reputation,

Bad reputation is death itself,

There is no ornament better than the chanting of God's Name. (Telugu poem)

Man should give up enmity and develop amiable relation with his fellow-beings. This is the most essential education that he has to acquire. It is a sign of delusion and a demonic trait to develop hatred towards others and lead a life of selfishness. Why does Purusha Suktam declare sahasra seersha Purusha? It means that God is not a separate entity. He is samashti swarupa (the cosmic form). He is present in all beings. When God is so close to him, why does man suffer from delusion and face hardships in life? God is permanently installed on the altar of human heart. He is all-pervasive. Man can certainly see Him, touch Him and also speak to Him. But, he lacks such determination and yearning for God. Hence, he suffers.

Chaitanya prayed to Lord Narayana thus: Oh Lord,

You are all-pervasive. You are the master of all beings. You control the entire universe. You are the very life principle.

I do not aspire to attain Vaikunta or Kailasa, or Swarga (heaven) nor do I crave for liberation. Bless me with love so that I can love You. When Chaitanya prayed in this manner, an ethereal voice said, Tathastu (so shall it be).

The worldly education one may be well-versed in and the immense power one may be endowed with, are bound to disappear with the passage of time. Love alone is immortal. Hence, one should consider love as one's very life.

Chaitanya prayed to Krishna to bless him with such eternal love. Kailasa, Vaikunta and Swarga are like branch offices of God. Chaitanya was not interested in attaining them. He recognised that hridaya (heart) is the correct address of God. He prayed, Oh Lord, I know that You are installed on the altar of my heart. Kindly, bless me with such experience.

The Significance Of Deepavali

Lord Krishna, accompanied by Sathyabhama, went to wage a battle with the demon Narakasura. A fierce battle ensued and the demon died at the hands of Sathyabhama. Being the all-powerful one, Krishna could have killed Narakasura without Sathyabhama's help. Then why did He take her help? Narakasura, being a wicked demon, did not deserve to even die at the hands of Krishna. As he had subjected thousands of women to untold suffering, Krishna decided that he should be killed by a woman. Narakasura had imprisoned thousands of princesses who were great devotees of the Lord. They were the very embodiments of love and contemplated on Him incessantly. After slaying Narakasura, Krishna granted them freedom. It is in this context that Saint Thyagaraja extolled the Lord saying, You have protected the sixteen thousand Gopikas.

It is always dangerous to be in the company of the wicked. Hence, it is said, Tyaja durjana samsargam; Bhaja sadhu samagamam; Kuru punyam ahorathram (give up bad company; join the company of the noble and perform meritorious deeds day and night). One should resolve to follow such sacred path and propagate the principle of love to one and all.

What is the inner significance of the slaying of Narakasura? Narah means the immortal atmic principle. When the qualities of an asura (demon) enter nara (man), he becomes Narakasura. In such a person, you find only bad qualities and evil feelings. He does not join the company of the noble. He does not make efforts to reach God. He makes friendship with only wicked people. Such a mentality is the consequence of evil deeds over a number of births. Today man is under the delusion that he is highly educated. In fact, it is not vidya (education), but only avidya (ignorance) that he has acquired. How can one be called educated if one does not have a good conduct and does not join good company? Ravana had acquired all types of knowledge as Rama. But unlike Rama, he joined bad company, entertained bad thoughts and indulged in wicked

deeds. Hence, people revere Rama and censure Ravana. One is revered or ridiculed on the basis of one's conduct. One should not lead a self-centred life. Wherever a good activity is taking place, wherever a prayer meeting is held, take part in them. But there are some people who participate in bhajans and do not join good company. What is the use of such a life? In this context, Sage Purandaradasa said, In spite of having eyes, people have become blind as they are not interested in seeing your auspicious form. In spite of having ears, people have become deaf as they are not interested in listening to Your nectareous words. Though they are in the company of God, they aspire to lead a worldly life. (Telugu Poem)

Man should understand the truth that God is present in all beings and conduct himself accordingly. That is his primary duty. He should not only contemplate on divinity but also sing His glory. There was a grand celebration in the kingdom of Narakasura when he was slain. So long as he was alive, the hearts of people were engulfed in darkness. When he was ultimately killed, there was joyous celebration all around. With his death, the darkness of ignorance and hatred was dispelled. People symbolically celebrated the occasion by lighting lamps. Just as bats find their way into a house engulfed in darkness, so wicked qualities enter the heart filled with darkness of ignorance. Only bats like to live in darkness, not human beings. You should not live like bats, in darkness of ignorance.

Sathya Sai Speaks - Volume - 35

Some people appear to be of sathwic (pious) nature externally, but they are full of wicked qualities. You should beware of them.

Sathsangatwe Nissangatwam, Nissangatwe Nirmohatwam, Nirmohatwe Nischalatattwam, Nischalatattwe Iivanmukti

(Good company leads to detachment, detachment makes one free from delusion, freedom from delusion leads to steadiness of mind and steadiness of mind confers liberation.) (Sanskrit sloka)

You should not be in bad company even for a moment. In olden days, people distanced themselves from demons and demonic behaviour. Hiranyakasipu tried his best to stop his son Prahlada from chanting the divine name of Lord Narayana. But Prahlada was always immersed in the contemplation of the Lord. Prahlada was dear to Lord Narayana, whereas his father Hiranyakasipu was dear to demons. He was an emperor. What sort of an emperor was he? He was an emperor of wicked qualities and evil deeds. Follow the ideal set by Prahlada and sanctify your time in the contemplation of the Lord. In the present day world, demonic activities are on the rise. One cannot stand such sights, nor can one bear to hear about them. Why should you give scope to such ghastly events? Install God in your heart. It is said, Easwara sarva bhutanam (God is the indweller of all beings). Develop such firm faith. Yad bhavam tad bhavathi (as you think so you become).

Sathya Sai Speaks - Volume - 35

Dear Students!

Today is the day on which Naraka, the demon was killed. What does this event signify? It signifies killing the demon in man. Nara means man and asura means demon. This demon is present in every human being. It is not necessary to acquire great astras and sastras (weapons) to kill this demon. Man is called nara because there is atma in him. That atma is the embodiment of love. It is possible to kill demons only through love. Therefore, realise the atma tathwa and develop love. This is true bhakti (devotion).

Embodiments of Divine Atma!

We are celebrating such a sacred event of killing the demon Narakasura as a festival by preparing so many delicious dishes and feasting on them. But, we are not making any effort to understand the inner meaning of this sacred event. In order to understand the sanctity of this great event, we must join satsanga (good company). You should not lead a life of selfishness. That is the life of a vyashti (individual). That is a wasteful life. It is only in samashti (community) life, can you realise divinity. You must lead a happy life by identifying yourself with samashti (society). In fact, samashti is the embodiment of divinity. The Vedas have also advocated this community life by proclaiming Sahasra seersha Purusha. What is the purpose of human life? To eat, drink and roam about? No. No. The birds, beasts and animals also do that. That is not what is expected of a human being. The human values inherent in us must be given expression to. They have to be propagated. They must become part and parcel of our daily life and reflect in our behaviour. If they are merely propagated without being reflected in our behaviour, it becomes a futile exercise. Therefore, we must realise the inner meaning of the various festivals and act accordingly.

277

The human birth is most sacred. It is said, Janthunam narajanma durlabham (out of all the living beings, human birth is the rarest). The word manava (human being) also means one who is sacred. Why are we resorting to debasing such a sacred human being? Man today advocates several good and sacred things, but, when it comes to practice, he backs out. That is the result of his past sins. When a conflict arises between precept and practice, man should stand up to the situation with courage and make an effort to tread the sacred path. You will, in your day-to-day life, encounter several people with bad qualities and bad behaviour.

Do not join their company. Offer them a namaskar (salutation) and move away. Even Saint Thyagaraja prayed, Oh Rama! For those who have faith in you, I offer my salutations. He offered salutations to both the good and evil people. A question may arise here, as to why we should offer our salutations to the evil people. We salute the good people, not to lose their company. We also salute the evil people with a request that they move away from us. We must join the company of good people, cultivate good qualities and lead a good life, thus sanctifying our life.

Faith Should Be Consistent

History is replete with the stories of several demons with evil qualities. Kamsa was one such demon, who was a contemporary of Lord Krishna. He was forewarned by an ethereal voice that the child born to his sister would kill him. Thereupon, he grew angry and pulled his sister Devaki out of the chariot and tried to kill her, then and there. But, her husband, Vasudeva prevented the situation by assuring Kamsa that he would see that no harm is done to him. He also reasoned with Kamsa. How could you believe the words that the eighth offspring of Devaki would kill you? Even if you believe those words, it is not time yet. Please wait till the eighth child is born to Devaki. Why do you attempt to kill the just married Devaki now itself? Please do not commit such a sin. On hearing Vasudeva's advice, wisdom dawned on Kamsa to a certain extent. He waited till the eighth child was born to his sister, Devaki, somehow. But, he was not having peace of mind during that period. Meanwhile, he killed several newborn babies both of Devaki as well as others in his kingdom. He did not believe the divine voice that he had danger to his life only from the eighth child to be born to Devaki. That was the degree of his faith in divinity! His was a demonic faith. It is not correct to develop faith in one aspect of God and lose in another. Your faith must always be steady and total in all respects. A small example. Some ten years ago, a gentleman came here and proclaimed that Sri Sathya Sai Baba was God. Not only that, he also proclaimed and propagated that not only Sri Sathya Sai Baba, but every living being was permeated by divinity. After some time, when some of his desires could not be fulfilled, he propagated that Baba was not God. The same individual proclaimed at one time that Baba was God and at another time that He was not God. How should we believe such a person with a double tongue? This type of double-speaking is a demonic quality. For those who say yes, I say yes. For those who say no, I say no. Yes and no are related to you, but for Sai, everything is yes, yes, yes. (Telugu poem)

For Me, all are good. There are no bad people. Those who develop negative feelings without enquiring into the good and bad of things in this objective world, will only spoil their own life. So far as I am concerned, I love everybody. All are equally dear to Me. Some people may have some doubts. But, they must be made to see reason with a proper explanation and counselling. As far as possible, you should not give room for doubts; for, so long as doubts persist, you will not have peace of mind. Cultivate love. When your heart is filled with love, everything is love only. There will be no scope for hatred at all. Where there is no hatred, there will be no anger. When there is no anger, there will be no scope for violence. Hence,
Where there is faith, there will be truth;
Where there is truth, there will be peace;
Where there is peace, there will be bliss;
Where there is bliss, there will be God.

Sathya Sai Speaks - Volume - 35

First and foremost, cultivate faith. Further, there should be harmony between your thoughts, words and deeds. Where there is no harmony between these three, your behaviour would be demonic. A true vyakti (individual) is one who is pure in thought, word and deed and who maintains perfect harmony between these three. Who is a vyakti? One who has manifested his latent sakti (power) in all aspects. You must develop such a sakti. You speak of developing energy, but you are becoming allergic to noble thoughts. What happiness do you derive out of such behaviour? All your sankalpas (resolutions) are becoming a futile exercise.

Cultivate Love

Dear Students!

First and foremost, develop love. It is easier to cultivate love than all other qualities. Chaitanya Mahaprabhu prayed to Lord Krishna, I do not want Vaikuntha or Kailasa. I want only your prema. Please give me a small place in your prema samrajya (kingdom of Love). I will be satisfied with that. There is nothing in this world which cannot be achieved with love. What is Narakasura Vadha? It is destroying evil qualities and demonic nature in man with the weapon of Love.

You must develop good thoughts, good feelings and good behaviour. It is only for this purpose the human birth is given. Man is born not for eating and roaming about. Even the birds, beasts and animals do the same. Human birth is noble, sacred and sanctified. Therefore, every human being must make an effort to free himself from the demonic qualities. Only then human beings will become the embodiments of divinity. Divinity expresses itself through such human beings. You should never give scope for any demonic deeds. Always cultivate good feelings, good thoughts and good behaviour. Do not be carried away by others opinions either good or bad. Develop your own line of thinking, based on your conscience. Develop selfconfidence.

Where there is self-confidence, there will be self-satisfaction. Where there is self-satisfaction, there will be self-sacrifice. And, through self-sacrifice comes selfrealisation. Self-confidence is the foundation for the building; it remains below the surface of the earth. Self-satisfaction represents the walls; self-sacrifice, the roof and selfrealisation, the life. Without the foundation of self-confidence, self-realisation cannot be achieved. Therefore, build up your self-confidence slowly. In this process, start early, drive slowly and reach your goal of self-realisation safely. Today, several people wish Good morning, good night, etc., when they come across somebody. This is not our culture. This is an alien culture. Instead, if you say namaskar, how happy you as well as the other person will feel? Today, even to say namaskar has become burdensome for people who consider themselves modern. What is this Good morning and Good evening? Even a rustic is able to say namaskar. If you delve into the scientific truth, there is nothing like morning and evening or sunrise and sunset. All these changes are happening due to the earth rotating around itself. At least from today, children! respect your parents. Love your parents. Enjoy the love of your parents. It is only those who experience the love of their parents will have a bright future. Those who make their mothers feel sad, will lead a life of difficulties and suffering. Therefore, never cause any pain to your parents under any circumstances. Make them happy. Only then you will feel happy and, in turn, your children will make you happy. Give happiness and take happiness. Happiness is not a oneway traffic, it is a two-way process of give and take. Speak good words. Develop samyak drishti (sacred vision). Lead a life of purity. Make your life sanctified.

Responsibility Of Women:

Character Building

Divinity shines resplendently in the entire universe and the universe is encompassed by divinity.

There is an intimate and inseparable relationship between God and the universe. Listen to this truth, Oh valorous sons of Bharat!

(Telugu poem)

FROM time immemorial, Bharat demonstrated the pristine values of friendship and harmony.

Bharat is the very birthplace of spirituality, virtues, charity and righteousness. It is the land of peace and prosperity. Since ancient times Bharatiyas made intense efforts to establish these values upon the earth.

The Glory That Is Bharat

There is no country equal to the land of Bharat in proclaiming and propagating Truth. There are many in

Sathya Sai Speaks - Volume - 35

Bharat who have made great progress in the field of spirituality.

This is the sacred land which was ruled by Lord

Rama. This is the very land where Lord Krishna taught the Bhagavadgita. This is also the land where sage Vyasa taught the Vedas and scriptures. It is the land where sage Valmiki composed the Ramayana and taught the principles of truth and righteousness to mankind. There is absolutely no equal to this country in spiritual values. Having been born in this sacred land of Bharat, and having been called Bharatiyas, the people of Bharat are now not coming forward to propagate the ideals that this country stands for. Bharatiyas should respect and revere their culture. They should follow their culture and set an ideal to others.

The wind that blows in Bharat is suffused with truth.

The very dust that rises from our feet is full of dharma. The life of Bharatiyas is one of forbearance. The river Ganga that flows in this land is permeated with love. Why has

Bharat, which is the fountainhead of Truth, Righteousness, Peace, Love and Non-violence, come down to such a deplorable state in spite of the fact that from ancient times, Bharatiyas have demonstrated great ideals?

Forbearance is the real beauty in this sacred land of Bharat. Of all the rituals, adherence to truth is the greatest penance. The nectarous feeling in this country is like the feeling of love towards one's mother.

Sathya Sai Speaks - Volume - 35

Fortitude is the greatest virtue in this land; peace is the protective shield. What a pity it is that we who have been born in this land of Bharat, are unable to uphold our own heritage of cultural values? Young boys and girls should study not to eke out a livelihood but with the sole purpose of demonstrating and propagating the ideals the country has stood for since ancient times. Modern boys and girls study for the sake of short-term benefits and not with an objective of experiencing and enjoying the tradition and culture of Bharat.

If women go out for jobs who will take care of the homes?

When husband and wife go out to offices who will do the household work?

If women go out to teach others children who will look after their own children?

Just like men if women also go to work who will cook food in the kitchen?

Earning money may solve financial problems but how will it resolve domestic problems?

It seems unalloyed happiness is not the lot of womanhood.

(Telugu poem)

Home Is Women's Primary Responsibility

Today, women, because they are educated, compete with men to take up jobs. There is nothing wrong in going for a job. However, they must take care of their home needs before taking up a job. When wife and husband go to offices, who will look after their children at home? As the mother is not at home to guide them properly, the children go astray. If both the parents go out for jobs, they may be able to satisfy their desire for money, but there is every possibility of their children getting spoiled as there will be nobody at home to discipline them. Whatever moral values you have learnt, you have to teach your children. Whatever you have studied will have value only when you care for your children's progress. Education is meant to bring out the innate potential of an individual.

Women should recognise their responsibilities and conduct themselves accordingly. There are many ideals set by women in this regard. Rajeswari Patel said, many women in the past developed virtues in them and led ideal lives.

Savitri was exemplary in her conduct. Women of those days would not only discharge their household duties diligently but also would bring up their children in the most ideal manner. They would teach their children not merely by precept but by practice. However, we do not find many such ideal mothers today. They are interested in earning money rather than moulding their children into ideal citizens. They would have helped the nation to a great extent if only they could bring up their children in an ideal way. What is the point in women taking up jobs and earning money when their children are going astray with none to restrain them? So, first of all, women should look after their home and children properly. They should devote sufficient time to perform their household duties. The educated women of today employ a cook and a servant-maid to perform the household chores. They spend much of their earnings in paying salaries to them.

Chandramathi was a woman of sterling character. She always followed her husband, Harishchandra. When they were passing through difficulties, she infused courage in him saying, Oh king, you are highly intelligent and educated. You should never give scope to weakness and waver from your chosen path. We are swimming in the ocean of truth. We should not give up our resolve till we reach the shores. In this manner, women of those days would encourage their husbands to follow the path of truth. Women of Bharat always upheld our sacred culture. Sita did not shed tears even in extremely trying circumstances. Though she was surrounded by demons, she was never afraid of them. She spent her time in the contemplation of her husband, Lord Rama, and thus set an ideal. The same can be said of Damayan-ti. She was one of virtues. With her strong determination, she helped her husband regain his kingdom. In this manner, women of those days earned a name for themselves with their sterling character and ideal motherhood. Today's women should make them role models.

Earn The Wealth Of Virtues

The happiness that one derives from virtues is far superior to the happiness that one gets from the possession of wealth. Unfortunately, the educated youth are striving for wealth, physical strength and friendship. But all these have little value without the wealth of character. For men or women, character is the foundation. If one lacks character, one becomes feeble in all other respects. People of those days strove for noble character. They were prepared to give up their very lives for a righteous cause. Women strove to uphold the honour of their husbands. The strength of an individual lies in his character, not in the wealth he earns. One should be prepared to face any hardship to lead a virtuous life. The country is in dire straits due to the absence of men and women of character. Materialistic wealth is not what we need today. We need to earn the wealth of virtues. Wealth cannot confer true happiness on you.

Women should develop the wealth of virtues and also safeguard the honour of their husbands. Both men and women should have good character. Without good character, all your learning will prove futile.

In spite of his education and intelligence, a foolish man will not know his true Self and an evilminded person will not give up his wicked qualities.

Modern education leads only to argumentation, not to true wisdom. What is the use of acquiring worldly education if it cannot lead you to immortality?

Acquire that knowledge which will make you immortal.

Sathya Sai Speaks - Volume - 35

Modern education can help you only to eke out a livelihood. It is meant for a living and not for life. In fact, it is responsible for the present decline of morality in society. In olden days, people gave topmost priority to truth and righteousness. They considered divine love as their very life. The women of Bharat sacrificed their lives for the sake of truth.

This land of Bharat has given birth to many noble women like Savitri who brought her dead husband back to life; Chandramati who extinguished wild fire with the power of truth; Sita who proved her chastity by coming out of blazing fire unscathed and Damayanti who reduced an evil-minded hunter to ashes with the power of her chastity. This land of piety and nobility attained plenty and prosperity and became the teacher of all the nations of the world because of such women of chastity.

From time immemorial, the sacred land of Bharat has occupied the exalted position of a teacher to the rest of the world. It has been extolled as karma bhumi, thyaga bhumi and yoga bhumi (the land of action, sacrifice and spirituality). You have to discharge your duty. You cannot progress in life if you do not follow the path of karma.

291

Sathya Sai Speaks - Volume - 35

Time Is Verily God

Embodiments of Love!

You are wasting a lot of time in meaningless pursuits. Time wasted is life wasted. Our ancients never wasted even a minute. They considered God as the embodiment of time and extolled Him thus: Kalaya Namah, Kala Kalaya Namah, Kaladarpa Damanaya Namah, Kalateetaya Namah, Kalaswarupaya Namah, Kalani-yamitaya Namah (salutations to the embodiment of time, to the one who has conquered time, to the one who transcends time and to the one who ordains time).

Why have you forgotten the truth that time is verily God? You eagerly await a Sunday thinking that you can relax and enjoy. In fact, you should feel sad that you are wasting time without doing any work on a Sunday. You have to utilise your time in a proper way. If you do not have any work, undertake social service. Help your fellowmen.

Be prepared to make any sacrifice for the sake of your motherland. The Bhagavadgita says, Karmanyevadhikarasthe ma phaleshu kadachana (you have a right over action but not on the result). You have to sanctify your karmas (actions). People talk of punya karma (meritorious deeds) and papa karma (sinful action). When the feelings are pure, karma becomes sanctified and the work will be transformed into worship. Life becomes meaningful only when you make proper use of time. Kaaya (body) has been given to perform karma (action). Every karma is associated with a karana (cause) and kala (time). It is the primary duty of man to understand the principles of kala, karma, karana, karthavya (duty) and act accordingly. This is the main teaching of Bharatiya culture. It is its pristine culture which has been safeguarding Bharat since ancient times. What is culture? You think it is a way of life. But it is not so. Indian culture is something that transforms your life into an ideal one. Today we do not find many who are interested in teaching about the greatness of Indian culture. Even if people are ready to teach, few are interested in listening to them. Even if they listen, they are not prepared to put it into practice. Some people want to practise but lack proper support and encouragement.

Embodiments of Love!

Perform all your actions with purity of heart. Actions performed without a pure heart are futile. Even if a little work is done with a pure heart, it becomes fruitful.

Develop Self-Confidence, Maintain Self-Respect

Embodiments of Love!

This day (19th November) is being observed as Ladies Day. What does it mean? You think that this day is meant to do some sacred acts, listen to Swami's discourse, etc. It is not merely that. You should spend time in a sacred manner. What you learn today should be an ideal for your lifetime. Develop self-confidence. Under any circumstances

uphold your self-respect. What is the use of living a life bereft of these two? You may not have money or strength and you may be put to disrepute, but always maintain your self-respect. Abraham Lincoln lived a life of self-respect under all circumstances. His mother taught him, People may mock at you and ridicule you but never be perturbed. Always keep up your self-respect. Lincoln followed her teachings implicitly. He studied under streetlights as there was no light at home. Ultimately, he became the President of America. It was only because of his self-confidence and self-respect that he could occupy such an exalted position. The teachings of mother play a vital role in shaping the future of her children. She should make every effort to drive away bad qualities from her children and infuse human values like sathya, dharma, santhi, prema and ahimsa in them. There are many who give speeches at length about the importance of these values in our daily life, but how many are translating them into action? Very few. They do not utter truth nor do they perform righteous deeds. Our ancients never deviated from the path of truth and righteousness under any circumstances. Sathyannasti paro dharma (there is no dharma greater than adherence to truth). The Vedas teach, Sathyam vada, Dharmam chara (speak truth, practise righteousness). Your thoughts, words and deeds should be in harmony. It is said, The proper study of mankind is man. Today nobody knows what man has in his mind as his thoughts, words, and deeds are in total variance. He is wasting his life with such unethical behaviour. The tongue is given to speak truth.

Sathya Sai Speaks - Volume - 35

O tongue, the knower of taste! You are very sacred.

Speak the truth in the most pleasing manner.

Chant the Divine Names of Govinda, Madhava and Damodara incessantly. This is your foremost duty. (Sanskrit verse)

The tongue which is meant to utter sacred words, is being used to criticise others. One cannot describe in words the fate of such a person. Our ancients had so much love for their motherland that they wanted to be born again and again in this sacred land of Bharat. But today people have neither deshabhimana (love for the country) nor dharmabhimana (love for righteousness). Instead they are developing dehabhimana (love for the body). Body is like a water bubble. How long can you protect it? It will burst sooner or later. Hence, develop atmabhimana (love for the atma), which alone can protect the entire world. Develop faith that the same atma exists in you and all others. When you have such strong faith, the whole nation would prosper. One with atmabhimana is a true human being. If one does not have atmabhimana, one's life is wasted.

Embodiments of Love!

This day (November 19th) is very sacred. Griham Ammayi, the mother of this body, used to speak to all with love. She could never withstand the suffering of others. She would come upstairs and plead with Me, saying, Swami, they are in a sorrowful state. Please call them and talk to them. Her heart was filled with compassion. That is why her fame has spread so much. In order to attain a good name, you have to utter sacred words and help others. Whenever mother Easwaramma came to Me with such a plea, I used to pretend to be angry and chide her, saying, Why are you coming here with recommendations? I don't want to listen to them. But she would persist and continue to plead, Swami, please take pity on them. They are in dire need of Your help. Please talk to them once. I used to be happy thinking, How compassionate and kind-hearted she is! Hri + daya = hridaya. That which is filled with compassion is hridaya (heart). But, today man does not possess such a compassionate heart. He utters harsh words and thereby put to disrepute. One should talk softly and sweetly. Never hurt others feelings with harsh talk.

Lead An Exemplary Life

Embodiments of Love!

Primarily, women should keep their tongue under check. As men are involved with multifarious activities, it may be difficult for them to control their tongue. Hence, it is the duty of women to look after the home diligently and conduct themselves in a pleasing manner. Treat the guests in a cordial manner and to the extent possible, extend your help to those who are in need of it. Today people do only lip service, they do not translate their words into action. You should empathise with those who are in difficulties and try to give them solace. You should comfort and console them with soothing words. Those who talk harsh words are verily demons. If you hurt others feelings, you will be hurt twice as much. You cannot escape from the consequences of your actions. You have to bear this truth in mind. Your life will be sanctified when you conduct yourselves in such a manner as not to hurt others. People aspire to attain liberation. What is liberation? Help ever, hurt never. That is true liberation. To get rid of moha (attachment) is true moksha (liberation). Do not try to find faults with others. If you point an accusing finger at someone, remember that three fingers are pointing at you. Sathyam kantasya bhushanam (Truth is the true ornament to the neck), Hasthasya bhushanam danam (charity is the true ornament to the hand). Your hands are useless if they do not perform acts of charity. You have to sanctify each limb of your body in sacred activities. Your eyes should look at only sacred things. Do you know what an enormous power is latent in your eyes? There are crores of light rays in them. In olden days, people used to invoke the grace of sun god to have a better vision. When you perform Suryanamaskar (worship of sun god) and invoke his grace, the light rays in your eyes will become more effulgent. On the other hand, if you look for mistakes in others, the sun god will withdraw his rays from your eyes making you blind. Hence, make proper use of the limbs given by God.

Embodiments of Love!

These teachings are simple to practise in your daily life. Just because they are simple, do not take them lightly. Though they appear to be simple, they lead you to liberation. It is your good fortune (adrishtam) that you are blessed with eyes to see. What is adrishtam? Adrishtam means that which cannot be seen. You may not be able to see the results of your meritorious deeds. But they confer on you all the happiness and comforts in due course of time. That is Adrishtam. Many things that follow you cannot be seen by the naked eye.

Embodiments of Love!

This land of Bharat is highly illustrious one. It has given you the wealth of vijnana, suajnana and prajnana. But the unfortunate ones are unable to receive them. The Upanishads extol manava (man) in several ways. Manava means one who is sacred, one who is endowed with infinite power and one who imparts wisdom. But man is unable to understand the meaning of his own name and is taking to wrong path. Your fortune or misfortune depends on your actions. Without realising this truth, you are indulging in evil deeds. You feel sorry when the consequences of your sins haunt you. What is the use? You have to be careful right from beginning not to commit sin. You have to make every effort to earn divine grace. Whatever action you may perform, do it as an offering to God. Only then will your life be sanctified. What you have to acquire is not worldly wealth and comforts. You have to earn the wealth of suajnana, vijnana and prajnana which will follow you eternally. When you acquire such true and eternal wealth, you would have acquired God's grace.

Embodiments of Love!

Many women have been eagerly awaiting November 19th to celebrate Ladies Day. It is really your good fortune to have such a noble thought. Give up all negative thoughts and develop sacred feelings. Lead an exemplary life. The Upanishads have accorded a great value to human life. You should live up to it. The Upanishads are the storehouse of knowledge. The Vedas contain mantras like Purusha Suktam, Sri Suktam, etc. One may have mastered the Vedas, but if one does not study the Upanishads, all his learning will prove futile. That is why people start the study of the Upanishads after they complete the study of Vedas. The Upanishads take you closer to God. I wish that you follow the teachings of the Upanishads and manifest your latent divine power. I bless you all and bring My discourse to a close.

Ladies Day, 19-11-2002,

Character - End Of True Education

No trace of peace anywhere;

Truth has become equally scarce;

Fearsome weapons are stocked up galore;

Others abound who cover with dread;

Self love, the cause for this wicked furor;

Such is the truth of Sai's word.

(Telugu poem)

Embodiments of Love!

EDUCATION is increasing day by day, but there is no commensurate transformation in human behaviour as a result. What is the kind of education do we need? Today, academic excellence in education has increased, but its salutary effect in human behaviour is decreasing.

A Harmonious Blend Of Secular And Spiritual

Education Is The Need Of The Hour

Dear Students!

Today, the education being pursued by you is only secular (i.e., value neutral). Mere secular education is not enough. It must be supplemented by spiritual education.

You must develop the principle of love. You must follow the path of truth. True education is that which is suffused with truth and love. Without truth, love is ineffective and devoid of value. Secular education is for making a living, whereas spiritual education is for reaching the goal of life. Therefore, it is the duty of students as well as educators to harmonise the secular education with spiritual education.

Today, the world has recognised the importance of harmonious relationship between secular and spiritual education.

The whole world has started imparting spiritual education along with conventional curricula. People have realised the truth that spirituality is not a modern discovery, but ancient wisdom. However, the importance of this principle has been confined to only propounding and teaching of spirituality. Actually, there is a decline in the practice of spirituality in daily life. Therefore, practical education is most important today. Education without practice would lead to unrest. Modern studies in institutions is referred to as education. But, spiritual education that has its effect on one's heart, is educare. Educare means bringing out the latent divinity in a human being and establishing it as an ideal to the whole world. Modern education ends with mere bookish knowledge. It is confined to what is contained in the books. Educare, however, is not related to the books. It is related to teaching about the source of all knowledge, that is latent in the heart of a human being.

Therefore, underlying such type of education is the prime necessity, today. People are pursuing higher education in the secular field. That is not enough. They have also to pursue spiritual education which teaches human values like truth, righteous conduct, love, etc., which bring about a transformation of the heart.

A harmonious blend of secular and spiritual education is ideally suited to the present-day world. One is an inner awakening and the other is an external teaching. Secular teachings are related to the physical world. They are the negative aspect; whereas teachings related to the inner awakening are positive. Take for example, love. Who can define the form of love? The best way to define love is to love others and be loved by others and thereby experience the bliss of love. Such teachings related to the inner awakening are the urgent need of the hour. Educare is that which establishes love and kinship between human beings. Today, nobody knows what is there in the mind of another individual; not to speak of the individual whose thought, word and deed are not in harmony. He thinks something, speaks something else and does something that is totally different. This is not the characteristic of true education. What you think, you speak; what you utter, you perform in action. Since there is no unity between thought, word and deed, man today is not rising to the level of a mahatma (noble soul). He is becoming a duratma (wicked person). It is said:

Villages Foster Love And Kinship

It is the so-called educated elite who are the greater criminals than the unlettered masses. It is they who are causing great damage to the country. The uneducated villagers are leading respectable lives and are setting examples to others. For instance, those who are educated and considered to be great intellectuals are leading luxurious lives in cities. On the other hand, those considered to be rustics and unlettered simpletons are living in the villages. They are leading a very simple, happy and contented life. Today, you will find that several schools, colleges and universities are established in cities. You will also find constant unrest and agitations in the campuses of these educational institutions. On the other hand, there are hardly any such agitations in the villages, where such institutions of higher education are non-existent. What could be the reason for this situation? More of this so-called modern education! You go to villages and observe. The moment you enter a village, the simple villagers enquire, Oh brother!

But, in the towns and cities, even a father and son do not enquire the welfare of each other. They go about their daily routine in a most mechanical way, with no concern for each other. The reason for this situation is modern education. It is said, The end of education is character. Since people have lost their character nowadays, respect and reverence have also declined. to this situation. Parents in villages send their children to cities for education. They expect their children to pursue higher education and earn degrees. Their intentions are, no doubt, good. But, the children take to bad ways, while in cities. While they were in villages, they used to respect elders and were obedient to their parents. Once they entered cities in pursuit of higher education, they lost all the good qualities of respect, reverence, character and humility acquired at home. Students have now forgotten the value of a life of sanctity. They do not hesitate to smoke in front of even their parents. Bad habits are on the increase. But, the situation is somewhat different in the villages. The children in the villages behave with restraint in the presence of elders and parents. The healthy parental control is still surviving in the villages. No such control, however, exists in towns and cities. Youths smoke and offer cigarettes to their friends, they go to cinemas and indulge in ever so many bad habits. There is none to restrain them and wean them away from bad habits. What is the reason for this behaviour? Modern education. They have no respect for elders, parents and society. When someone points out their mistakes, they begin to argue saying, Why should I fear? It is my will, I smoke my cigarette.

Education Sans Good Behaviour Is Useless

A small example. Once, an Indian and a foreigner were travelling together in a railway compartment. The Indian was a chain-smoker. Not only that, he was puffing the smoke on the face of the foreigner. The foreigner tolerated it for sometime and when he could not bear it anymore, he told the Indian, My dear son! I am not feeling well. I cannot bear cigarette smoking. If you want to smoke, please go to the toilet. The Indian who was brought up with modern education replied, If you cannot tolerate my smoking a cigarette, you may go to the toilet. I have bought the cigarette and I will smoke freely. I am at liberty to smoke and puff the smoke as I please. Thus, he began quarrelling with the foreigner. The foreigner was helpless. After sometime, he went to the toilet and returned. In the meanwhile, the Indian student threw out the shoes of the foreigner from the compartment. The foreigner saw this but thought that it was not wise to argue with this arrogant boy. He, therefore, went up to the upper berth and stretched himself. Now it was the turn of the Indian boy. He went to the toilet. Before he returned, the foreigner threw away the coat of the Indian boy, to teach him a lesson. The boy returned from the toilet and enquired where his coat was. The foreigner replied that it had gone in search of his shoes, which were thrown out of the compartment by the boy. Then the boy realised his mistake. As you are aware, for everything, there will be reaction, resound and reflection in this Kali age. When you speak softly and sweetly to others, you will receive the same in return. If you are rude to others, others will also be rude towards you. Every individual, irrespective of his age and country, must, therefore, speak softly and sweetly. Whether one is educated or illiterate, one must speak softly and sweetly. He must have humility.

What is education?

Hear ye the word true of Sai.

Culture, conduct, truth, faith, devotion and discipline

These are education true,

All else is trash.

(Telugu poem)

Man does not consider himself duty-bound today.

Performance of one's own duty is discipline. What is the use of education without discipline? Education without knowledge is useless and knowledge without education is foolishness. Therefore, no purpose is served by pursuing such foolish and useless education. One must cultivate good behaviour also with high education. But, what we find today is high academics and degenerated behaviour. Therefore, you must acquire high education, but lead a simple life. That is true education. Once, Mahatma Gandhi was shedding tears while holding a book. He had read that book and found it to be trash. Meanwhile, a Britisher came there and asked Gandhiji why he was shedding tears. Gandhi replied that the book he was holding did not promote character building, which he believed was the heart of education. There is a vast difference between modern education and ancient wisdom. The time in which you are pursuing your education may be modern, but your behaviour should always be in accordance with ancient wisdom. Only then will your education command respect.

You must respect your parents. If an elderly gentleman visits your house, welcome him with reverence and respect. Speak to him sweetly and softly. When that gentleman enquires the whereabouts of your father, do not brush him aside saying, Go and find out. That is not the reply you have to give. Politely tell him, Sir! My father is in the drawing room, I shall call him. When you thus speak sweetly and softly, the visitor will have a good opinion about you. He would think that you are the worthy son of a worthy father. You must protect the honour and prestige of your father. How? With your good behaviour and sweet and soft words. Otherwise, the visitors would form opinion, The father is a good and respectable person, but this son of that father is a bad fellow. He is rude and arrogant. He is not a worthy son. Therefore, what we have to learn today is to cultivate humility, in spite of our modern education and living in a modern age.

Sathya Sai Speaks - Volume - 35

Who is a student? A student is one who is acquiring education and who conducts himself with humility, obedience and discipline. He, who has no obedience and discipline is not a student, but a stupid. There must be calm and serene atmosphere in campuses where a number of students pursue their education. Today, elders hesitate to go to places where there are students; the reason is, the elders are afraid that these students might create trouble. This was not the situation in earlier days. The students of those days used to conduct themselves with humility. They had a sense of discrimination,

acquired through education. In modern education, honesty and integrity, duty, discipline and devotion are woefully lacking. What is the use of such education? In olden days, a student used to be initiated into learning with a sacred prayer to God Om Namah Sivaya! Om Namo Narayanaya! The elders in the neighbourhood were invited for the ceremony and their blessings for the child obtained. In contrast, today, a child is initiated into learning with a nursery rhyme Ba Ba blacksheep, with the result, he would ultimately become a black sheep in society.

Keep A Watch On Your Words

Dear students! You are pursuing your education in a sacred atmosphere. You must continue to develop this atmosphere later in your life. Modern science is, of course, great. But, your senses are at a low level. Along with science, the senses must also be raised to a higher level. Today, we are leading a high level life, keeping our senses at low level. This should not be what is meant by educare. Educare is bringing out the latent divinity in a human being. Whatever words you speak, you must watch whether they are the result of your education or educare. Today, nobody is keeping this watch. I often refer to the spelling of the word, WATCH. The spelling consists of five letters, namely, W A T C H. These letters stand for:

W - Watch your Words

A - Watch your Actions

T - Watch your Thoughts

C - Watch your Character

H - Watch your Heart

The real watch is when you keep a watch on your words, actions, thoughts, character, and heart; not the one you tie to your wrist. The wrist-watch may go for repair, but the word watch will never get spoiled. It will always bring purity of thought, word and deed. How great these words are! Education in the olden days contributed to making man a noble and ideal human being.

Then, about cleanliness and purity. These two are most important aspects of education. Students must take good care in respect of personal hygiene, involving regular bath, neat and clean dress, etc. Cleanliness is godliness. Therefore, be clean and pure. Lead a happy and contented life. Always help others. Help Ever, Hurt Never. Surely, you can pursue modern education. But, along with it, you must also learn ancient wisdom. There must be a harmonious blend of these two. Pursuit of scientific knowledge is, of course, necessary. But, today, we are understanding science in a perverted way. Science starts at a particular point and ends at a different point. It is not a full circle; whereas, spirituality is a full circle, ending at the point of origin. That is why it is said,

Poornamadah poornamidam

Poornat poornamudachyate

Poornasya poornamadaya

Poornameva avashishyate

(That is full, this is full. When the full is taken out of the full, what remains is again the full.)

Rise To The Level Beyond The Senses

Science starts with an enquiry. What is this? What is this? On the other hand, spirituality begins its quest with the enquiry What is that? What is that? The enquiry What is this? indicates nearness, nearness to the senses. This is science. In contrast to this, the enquiry What is that? indicates distance, i.e., distance from senses. That is spirituality. A small example. You all have come here from faroff places like Zambia, East Africa, etc, to have the darshan of Sai Baba. Since you are living at such distant places, you develop great love for Sai Baba and yearn to have His darshan. The same eagerness will not be there to see a person in a neighbouring village. It is natural to develop interest in an object that is far away. What is that that ? That means, that which is beyond the senses, namely, spirituality. Below senses is dirty. We should not aspire for that. We must rise to the level of beyond senses. Only then can we lead a sacred life. Today, students are below the senses. They are becoming slaves to the senses. This is not proper education. You must become a Master of Senses, not merely a Master of Science. You must make the senses your servants. You should not become a servant of the senses. You all know about Queen Kaikeyi in Ramayana. She was an adept in asthras and Sasthras (all kinds of weapons). She was the daughter of the king of Kekaya kingdom. She was the youngest and dearest queen of King Dasaratha. She brought along with her, a servant called Manthara to serve her in the palace. But, in course of time, she allowed Manthara to become her mentor and she became her servant. Ultimately, she yielded herself to Manthara's advice and made her life most miserable. She lost her husband, King Dasaratha, who died unable to bear the pangs of separation from his beloved son, Sri Rama. She had also to face the anger of her own son, Bharatha, who did not like the idea of Rama being sent to the forest and his becoming king in Rama's place. Everyone in the kingdom hated her for sending Rama and Sita to the forest. That is why, it is said that a servant should be kept as a servant and a master should remain a master. You are the master and your senses are the servants.

Follow The Principle Of Simple Living And High Thinking

Master the mind and be a mastermind. That is the quality of a student. Only then can you acquire true higher education and share it with others too. I can teach you at great length about education, but time is a constraint. What I teach the students centres round the principle of simple living and high thinking. I myself follow this principle. It is not education in terms of degrees that is important; culture is important. If we develop culture, we can acquire any amount of purity and sacredness in our life. The aim of all this training being given to you, is to make you selfreliant. You must attend to all your personal chores yourself. For example, you must clean your dinner plates, wash your clothes, etc., by yourself. This is the duty of a real student. If you cultivate such good habits, what more is required? This is simple living and high thinking. You must lead a noble life, based on this principle.

I am also advising Jumsai that this principle of selfhelp must be implemented in all the schools run by the Institute of human values. Students of the institute must become self-reliant. The place of their study, the place of their stay, the book racks, etc., must always be kept clean by the students themselves. No separate servants must be engaged for this purpose. I often tell the students a joke. The vegetable purchased is worth two annas; but the charges paid to the porter for carrying the vegetables are four annas. Will you ever pay a higher amount towards porter charges, than the cost of the vegetable itself? You should not waste your money in such ways. Misuse of money is evil. The money you spend in your student life is contributed by your parents. They earned it by their sweat and blood. Each rupee of such amount must be treated as a drop of their blood. Curtail your expenditure and pursue higher education.

Today, several students wish to go to foreign countries for higher education. How much money is required for this purpose! What do you do, after reaching the foreign country, spending such a huge amount? You are not concentrating on your studies. On the other hand, you spend your time in ever so many activities, wasting your valuable money. If you are short of money as a result of this wasteful expenditure, you resort to cleaning of cups and plates in a restaurant, to supplement your income. Instead of cleaning cups and plates in a foreign country, why don't you do it in your own country and in your own home? By doing so, you will be helpful to your parents. Your parents will feel happy. Dear students! Make your parents happy. Make your teachers happy. You serve them. Only then, will you be able to receive good education from the teachers.

Embodiments of Love!

Realise the truth that real education is that which teaches humility. It is only when you cultivate this quality of humility, can you become ideal students and serve your country well. You keep yourself away from places of violence, for, if you go there, you will also receive injuries to your body. If you can, try to control such violent incidents, otherwise, keep yourself away from them. Try to establish a peaceful atmosphere everywhere.

Dear Students!

You are full of noble qualities. You are strong in body and mind. Along with that, try also to develop good character. There is no use developing friends circle, wealth and strength, without developing character. You become ideal students and propagate the principles of Sathya Sai Education in the world and earn respect from the world.

The Best Way To Love God Is To Love All And Serve All

Those who could teach the essence of Vedanta to even the ancient Rishis

Those who could make the inert stones dance by their sculptural skills

Those who could make the heads of the enemies roll like rubber balls with their sharp swords

Those who could rule the entire world with their sovereign authority

Are there in the land of Bharat.

Of what use it is?

Not one of them is prepared to listen to the heart rending cries of the common people.

(Telugu poem)

Dear students!

WHAT is meant by education? What kind of education we must pursue? What should be the educational standards? What type of education

Sathya Sai Speaks - Volume - 35

contributes to the human development? What benefits do we derive from the present system of education? A real student is one who contemplates on these five issues and understands them thoroughly. Vijnana (higher knowledge) and prajnana (supreme wisdom) are not merely products of education. Man can acquire these sacred powers only by culture and refinement gained through education. What is culture? Culture is the conscious effort put in by a man to achieve a transformation in his daily life from untruth to truth; from

to conformance to scriptural authority and from evanescence to eternity. It is a spiritual journey towards divinity. Where is such divinity? It is in every human being as the embodiment of truth. What you have to protect today is not your country, but Sathya (truth) and Dharma (righteousness); they, in turn, will protect the country. Only then, the whole world will enjoy peace and prosperity. The entire universe is based upon sathya and dharma.

The creation emerges from truth and merges into truth,

Is there a place where truth does not exist?

Visualise such pure and unsullied truth.

(Telugu poem)

The life of every human being is based upon Truth.

Truth and righteous conduct alone are protecting the universe.

But, unfortunately, man is unable to recognise this fact and is leading a miserable life.

Education Is For Achieving The Goal Of Love!

Embodiments of Love!

Education is not an exercise. Nor is it meant to make a living. It is for the purpose of achieving the goal of life.

Dear Students! You are born, brought up and living in this country of Bharat. But, you are unable to recognise the underlying philosophy for which this sacred country stands.

The land of Bharat is a karma bhumi (field of activity) in which you perform the sacred duty enjoined upon you. It is a land of virtue where you accumulate punya (merit) by the diligent performance of your kartavya (duty). What is the intimate relationship between this sacred land and God?

This is hand; this is leg; this is head; this is stomach all these are parts of the body. There is humanness in the body. That humanness is a part of society. That society is a part of nature. Nature, in turn, is associated with the Paramatma (supreme being). Thus, prakriti (nature) is an anga (part) of the Paramatma (supreme being). It is only when man recognises the nature of these parts and sub-parts (anganga) and conducts himself accordingly, he will be able to understand divinity.

Embodiments of Love!

If you seriously contemplate, you will understand that divinity keeps humanity going. Without divinity, man cannot live even for a moment. Man thinks, out of his ego, that he can live by himself. But, this is not true. Merely by spending some time, life is not fulfilled. When you enquire 319 into the matter whether duty comes first or right comes first, several people insist upon right getting priority. Where did the right come from? When you perform your duty, its fruit in the shape of right accrues to you. How can a child exist without the mother? Therefore, right is not the first priority. In fact, man has no right at all. When he performs his duty, the result of that action comes as right. When you enquire into the fact, whether rain comes first or the flow of water, it becomes clear that flow of rain water follows rain. Without rain, there cannot be a flow. Here, flow can be compared to right and rain to duty.

Dear Students!

You are putting a lot of effort in your study to acquire high academic qualifications. In spite of all this effort, you are not having peace of mind. It is said, Secular education is for happiness in the mundane world and spiritual education is for happiness in the other world. In order to acquire spiritual education, one must spend some time in enquiry. Spiritual knowledge cannot be acquired with secular education. It is said, Adhyatma vidya vidyanam (among various branches of knowledge, spiritual knowledge is the best) and Saa vidya yaa vimuktaye (true education is that which liberates mankind). Therefore, students must first begin to enquire Who am I? They must also realise the fact that right carries responsibility also with it. Your parents have a right. When you protect their rights, they in turn will discharge their responsibility towards you. In Indian culture, first place has been given to the mother 320

and father by proclaiming Matrudevo bhava (revere your mother as God) and Pitrudevo bhava (revere your father as God).

Today, scientific knowledge is considered to be great. How did science acquire this greatness? Science deals with the physical aspect of the universe. It strives to explore the secrets of the universe, and not beyond. But, there is a knowledge beyond this which forms the basis for its creation, existence and dissolution. That is spirituality. Without that spiritual basis, science has no effect. Churchill, the late Prime Minister of England, once said, Man has conquered all, but, he has not conquered himself. Man today is making efforts to explore everything in the world, but, he is unable to realise his own nature. What is the use of such knowledge? Therefore, man must begin enquiry into himself as to who he is, what is his nature, what latent powers he has, etc. In the olden days when the convocations were being held, the teachers used to teach the students such noble principles as Mathrudevo bhava, Pitru devo bhava, Acharyadevo bhava, Atithi devo bhava (revere your mother, father, preceptor and guest as God). First, it is mother, who gave you birth. Then, she shows you the father. The father takes you to the Guru and finally the Guru leads you to God. Unfortunately, today, there are very few Gurus who lead you to God. That is a different matter. First and foremost, the mother who is responsible for your very birth in this world, is forgotten today. Similarly, the motherland where you are born is also neglected.

Sathya Sai Speaks - Volume - 35

Dear Students!

Today, you take degrees from this Institute of Higher Learning and set your foot in the wide world. There are about two hundred universities in India. Several thousand colleges are functioning under those universities. Every year, these universities award degrees to several thousand students and send them into the wide world. But, what these students are doing in the outside world? How do these highly educated people make their living? Students are taught education in these universities to make a living. It is not possible for all these degree holders to get jobs. Therefore, these educated people migrate to foreign countries. Having gone there, not all these people are able to make a decent living. They, therefore, undertake some menial jobs to supplement their income. The question is, why not they do the same service in their own country, Bharat. Today, the educated people are not serving their motherland. They do not serve their country, but are prepared to undertake any type of job in a foreign country. No, no. This is not proper. This is not the purpose for which you acquired education. You should serve your own country with all your energy. Your entire life must be devoted to serve the country in which you are born and brought up. Being educated, you must face the battle of life with courage and valour and ultimately emerge victorious. Today's students are not prepared to do hard work with patience and perseverance. Work is important. To pursue education and obtain degrees is not important. It is more than fifty years since India attained independence.

Sathya Sai Speaks - Volume - 35

Several thousands and laks of students have acquired higher qualification, during these fifty years and odd. But, what are they doing? They are not rendering service to society. They do not live up to the glory of this country.

First and foremost, one must realise the sacredness of this great country, i.e. Bharat. How can one who cannot protect his own home, protect another's?

Serve Your Motherland

Dear Students!

Give up the idea of going to foreign countries for higher education or jobs. Even if you are not able to get any employment in your country, remain here and serve the country. You serve the society. Bring honour and glory to your motherland, Bharat. Attain the glory that this student is a hero in action and sadhana. You all know about Abdul Kalam, President of India, and the chief guest of today's function. I may tell you that he has not gone to a foreign country in search of a job or money. He is a great scientist. All the scientific knowledge he has acquired was from the Indian Universities only. What is there in other countries, that which is already not here? It is said, Yanna Bharate, thanna Bharata, meaning that which is not here in Bharat is not there in other countries. All the power and all the glory is in India only. What can you do in a foreign land that is dry, leaving such a great country like India, which is shining in glory, honour and prestige in the world? You are making use of all your education and energies for the development of a foreign country. Why don't you instead make use of them for the development of your own country? Why don't you serve the people of your own country? You will attain glory only when you make use of your education for protecting your motherland. You must, in the first instance, work hard. You must become heroes in action. It does not behove of you to spend your time in idle talk, without involving yourself in some solid work for the benefit of the nation. Bend your body and work hard to attain glory. A seed that is sown in the soil, loses its shape to ultimately become a gigantic tree. That tree yields sweet fruits. On the same analogy, it is only when you destroy your ego and lose your identity, the real fruit of your actions comes out. Therefore, remove your dehabhimana (attachment to the body) and develop deshabhimana (attachment to the country). Today, you will not find deshabhimana anywhere. Several students, today, are not aware of the National Anthem and how to sing it. But, surprisingly, they are fully aware of the cinema songs in great number. Why don't you learn to sing the National Anthem and try to understand the glory and characteristics of Bharat embedded in that song?

323

Develop Self-Respect, Cultivate Human Values

Dear Students!

You must protect the honour of this great country.

You must develop self-respect. One who has lost self-respect, cannot attain glory. Self-respect comes only out of spiritual sadhana. Today, students wish to achieve wealth, physical strength and friends circle. What about character? Of what use is it to have the above three, without character? Whenever they come across somebody, they wish him hello and try to make friendship. This is only a hello, hello friendship; but, inside, everything is hollow. Therefore, you must give first preference to character. When you respect others, others will respect you. You complain that others are not respecting you. But, did you enquire into yourself whether you are respecting others? You serve others; others will then serve you. What you expect from others must be extended to others first. Only then there will be reaction, reflection and resound. You must respect your neighbours and enquire into their welfare. You may have wealth; you may be great; you may be leading a comfortable life. But, all these things will not be of any value if you do not have character.

Dear Students!

You must cultivate the human values of Sathya (truth), Dharma (right conduct), Santhi (peace), Prema (love) and Ahimsa (non-violence). How can you call yourself a human being, without cultivating human values? It is only because of the human values, you are considered to be a human being. You do not have the human quality of respecting others; then how can you expect others to respect you? The human values are divine qualities. Anything can be achieved with these qualities.

325

Sathya Sai Speaks - Volume - 35

Embodiments of Love!

Love is a quality permeating every living being. Truth is verily the embodiment of divinity. It is in you, with you, around you, everywhere protecting you always. You need not search for God in some distant place. Truth is the very embodiment of God. Do not ever move away from Truth, even in times of danger to your life. Hold on to Truth steadfastly at all times.

Realise The Principle Of Unity

Embodiments of Love!

One may be a big person and another a beggar. But, the Truth that is underlying in both these persons is the same. If you realise that truth, all will become one. That type of unity must be achieved. When you realise the principle of unity in all human beings, you can realise true divinity. You observe the principle of unity in diversity expressing itself in the universe. For example, there are several types of bulbs here in this Sai Kulwant Hall. But, the electric current flowing in all these bulbs is the same. Indian culture has proclaimed one ideal Sarvam khalvidam

Brahma (verily all this is Brahman). That is the Truth.

When you realise that truth, all comforts and happiness will accrue to you. You need not have to struggle for them. Learn to speak good words. Never hurt anybody with harsh words. Speak softly and sweetly to make all people happy.

Emulate The Self-Confidence Of Abraham Lincoln
Embodiments of Love!

Good words bring good actions. You cannot always oblige; you can always speak obligingly. When you thus speak obligingly, how much your status grows! The society will respect you. I have often quoted the example of Abraham Lincoln, the late President of America. In his childhood days, Lincoln did not have enough money to prosecute his studies. He was so poor that he used to sit under the streetlight in the bazaar and read. He used to borrow books from his classmates and read them during night times and return them the next morning. One day, his friends made fun of him saying how could this beggar pursue his education. Lincoln felt very sad and humiliated. He came home, crying. His mother tried to comfort him with soothing words. She enquired: My dear son! Why are you crying? What is the reason? He replied: Mother! I don't have any money even to drink a cup of tea. I realise the situation in our house. I am aware that you and father cannot afford spending money on my education. Thus, Lincoln struggled hard in his childhood days and studied well, with self-confidence and self-respect, with the moral support extended by his mother. He did not hesitate to supplement the family income by doing some painting work and boot polishing. Nevertheless, throughout his educational career, he sustained his self-respect. By doing so, he earned a good name in society. In the meanwhile, he could secure a small job. With the meagre income from that job, he used to support his father and mother. The good name he earned in the society commanded their respect and love for him. In due course, elections came. His well-wishers and supporters advised him to contest in the elections. They assured him of their support and votes. On their advice, he contested in the elections and got himself elected to the position of the President of America. How could a poor carpenter's son with no money even to pursue primary education, become the President of the United States of America? It is only because of the self-respect and selfconfidence he assiduously cultivated right from his childhood. Therefore, Dear Students! Do not ever give up selfrespect, wherever you are and whichever circumstances you are placed in. Always assure yourself, I am man, I am not animal. Man today is playing with the fire of sensual pleasures.

But, how long you can continue like this? There is absolutely no purpose in indulging in this game. All your wealth and pleasures will disappear in a trice. It is only self-respect that will continue to be your companion throughout your life. Therefore, cultivate the divine quality of self-respect. Only then can you achieve the highest honour of the country.

This evening, our students will present a drama. It is really a presentation based upon the story of the life of Abraham Lincoln. In this drama a student wished to study medicine. He wanted to become a doctor. He worked hard, studied under streetlights even and got admission into a reputed medical college. He had to pay 5 lakh rupees as 328

fees which he could not afford. As he was feeling depressed and dejected, his father consoled him saying, My dear son! Do not worry. God is there to fulfil your wish. He protects all people at all times. These words of wisdom made an indelible mark on his heart. Next day he sat in the college garden and started writing a letter to God explaining his desire and his inability to fulfil his desire. Oh God! People say you are omnipresent; my father also told me the same thing. I have full faith in the words of my father. If You are really omnipresent, why don't You manifest before me and fulfil my desire? Thus, while he was writing this letter, the bell rang and he hurriedly got up to leave for his classroom. In the process, the letter slipped from his book. He did not notice it. A rich person who came to the garden after some time noticed the letter. He picked it up and read it. He was very much moved by the determination of the boy to pursue medical education and his inability to do so due to financial constraint. He, therefore, went straight to the Principal of the Medical College, showed him the letter written by the boy addressed to God and paid the entire fees for all the five years in one lump sum. He requested the Principal not to reveal his identity to the boy till he completed his studies. The Principal called the boy and told him, My dear son! Don't worry about paying fees. Somebody has already paid your fees. You have absolute faith in God. You are sure to complete the course and come out in flying colours with God's grace. When he completed his medical education and became a doctor, his friends congratulated him, saying, You will become a great doctor 329

and earn a lot of money. Then the boy said, I am not interested in earning money. The purpose of my pursuing medical education is for serving the people. My life is dedicated to the service of society. Just as I studied this course paying no fees, similarly, I wish to serve the people without taking any fees from them. Do you find such boys nowadays? Very rarely. You cannot admit your child in any school without paying fees. Even advance reservation is made in a school, for a newly born child. You book a seat by paying Rs. 20,000 to 30,000. But, faith can work wonders. For a person who has self-confidence and absolute faith in God, anything is possible. Faith is the key. Without faith, how can one live in this world?

People have lost their eyes of faith. They have become blind in this world. (Telugu poem)

There is no use of opening your charma chakshu (physical eyes). Open your jnana chakshu (inner eye). Only then, you will achieve the desired result.

Embodiments of Love!

You studied in Swami's institution for a long time.

Did you ever spend any money for your education here?

Tell me honestly. I am always worried whether you had to spend money on any occasion during your stay in this institution.

I am revealing a small incident that had happened sometime ago. Normally, I will not reveal such things. Usually, during examination time, students study 330

the whole night, keeping the lights on. One day, the warden advised the students to limit the period of their study during night, since the charges for electricity were gradually on the increase. The students did not pay heed to the advice and continued to study for long hours in the night. Consequently, the electricity bill came to a huge amount. Meanwhile, exactly two months before the examinations, the Electricity Department disconnected power supply to the hostel due to non-payment of the bill. They cannot be blamed, for, it is their duty. There were no lights in the hostel rooms. Students were feeling a lot of inconvenience. The warden came to Me and explained their plight. I enquired from him why he did not bring it to my notice earlier. The warden replied, Swami! You are spending so much amount on the education of the students. You are taking so much responsibility. How can I add some more burden? With that intention, I did not bring it to your notice. I enquired from him the amount of the bill. He replied that it came to Rs. 70,000/-. Thereupon I advised him, Go immediately and pay the entire amount. Ask the Department people to restore the power supply immediately. Do not reveal to the students anything of what transpired between you and Me. Thus, I always look to the convenience and welfare of the students.

Sri Sathya Sai Deenajanoddarana Pathakam

Today, I have given a cheque for sixty lakh rupees to Paramahansa, to be deposited in the names of the sixty children adopted under the scheme of Sri Sathya Sai 331

Sathya Sai Speaks - Volume - 35

Deenajanoddharana Pathakam. Some time ago, I happened to read a report about a mother who committed suicide after giving poison to her three children. She resorted to such a gruesome act as there was nobody to look after them after her husband's death. I felt very sorry reading this news.

Our country, Bharat, has earned the appellation Annapurna (Goddess of food). In such a sacred land, how can we remain a mute witness to people dying of hunger and poverty?

Hence, I decided to undertake a project under which poor children who lost their father, in some cases both parents, are adopted and provided the basic necessities of food, raiment and shelter. Their education is also taken care of.

These children are selected from Bukkapatnam,

Kothacheruvu and Puttaparthi Mandals. They belong to very poor families who are finding it hard to feed themselves.

We told the children, We will give you food, shelter and also education. We will make you self-reliant. You need not worry.

Within a short period of one month, I got houses constructed for them. One lakh rupees are being deposited in the name of each child. By the time they complete their education, this money will get multiplied into three to four lakhs. They can lead a comfortable life. When this was told in the beginning, people could not believe it. How can they believe? They were carried away by untruth. When truth was conveyed to them, they were not prepared to believe it.

The children are being looked after very well.

Paramahansa is taking care of them with all love. Every day, the children are brought here in a bus for Swami's darshan. They are extremely happy. All of them are learning even the Vedic mantras. Whenever I ask them, Are you happy? they say, Yes Swami. When You are looking after us like a wish-fulfilling tree, how can we be otherwise? They are so happy because they are being looked after with love. Money cannot give such happiness. In this manner, we are performing many sacred activities. I am not interested in publicising them. Some people may not believe this, but I am not bothered. I will not give up My resolve. We should serve the poor and needy. We should strive for their uplift. After all, they are also human beings and we should treat them as our own.

Students!

Having completed your education, it is time for you to go back to your respective places; take up suitable jobs and serve your parents. Once in a while, you can come here to recharge your batteries. Otherwise, you may forget whatever you have learnt here. Your stay here becomes meaningful only when you practise what you have learnt here.

(Swami asked Mr Raghupathy Rao to get up.) He lost his father when he was very young. He came here with his mother. I gave her a job in the Anantapur Hostel. After some time, she also passed away. Then I brought this boy here and educated him. He has completed his MBA and is 333

presently working as a lecturer in our Brindavan Campus. He pursued his education with sraddha (sincerity). I have been looking after many such students. This is My duty, because all are Mine. I belong to them and they belong to Me. As they are being looked after with such love, they are shaping into ideal citizens. Here is the best example. He is a very good boy. He would never talk back to elders and would never ask anything from others. In the beginning I told him, If you need anything, do not ask others. Come to Me straight and I shall give you.

The reason why I am telling you all this, is you should also undertake such sacred work. Service to society is very important. The best way to love God is to love all and serve all. Let others think whatever they like, you should hold on to this sacred path. Serve your parents. Never hurt their feelings. This is the essence of education.

Education confers humility which in turn bestows deservedness. Deservedness confers all types of wealth through which man can attain happiness here and hereafter. (Telugu Poem)

Humility is the hallmark of education. Give up ego and serve the society with self-confidence. Students who did not have even a naya paisa with them are now earning thousands of rupees every month. They are good boys. So, they will not have any problem. I will take care of their future. I told this boy that he could go out and take up a job, if he wished so. But he did not want to go anywhere. So, I gave 334

him a job here with good salary. Whoever it is, I do not want anybody to work here without taking salaries. People outside may not be aware of this. I do not take even a naya paisa from them. I undertake good work and, hence, whatever I require will come to Me of its own accord. Lakhs of devotees are coming here. Did I ask anybody for anything? Never. There are many devotees who are coming here for more than forty years. But, I have not asked them for any favour. I shall never ask. I shall not give up My resolve and shall continue the good work with firm resolve. My Mission is bound to succeed. It will never fail.

Children should be looked after well. Young men and women should be moulded into ideal citizens. For Me, there is no greater happiness than this. Children are My property. I am happy if they come up in life and earn a good name for themselves. I do not expect anything else. Students!

Today you are receiving your degrees. The university gives you a degree in education whereas I give you a degree in Educare. The degree I confer on you is related to atmananda. That is educare. Discharge your duty sincerely and I shall take care of your requirements. Do not give room to laziness. Laziness is rust and dust. Realisation is best and rest. Be prepared to proceed along the path of self-realisation.

I am very happy that our President Abdul Kalam has come here and participated in the Convocation as the Chief

Sathya Sai Speaks - Volume - 35

Guest. He has immense love for the nation. He is a Muslim by birth. But, he does not have any differences whatsoever. He loves all and treats all equally. He learnt all his knowledge being in India itself. He is a scientist par excellence. There are many scientists in the country. But what is the use? As the poem goes, Twinkle twinkle little star, how I wonder what you are? , they are attracted by foreign lands. But Abdul Kalam is not such a person. He does not have even a trace ofahamkara (ego). His pure heart is his most beautiful alamkara (ornament). He is a paragon of virtues. That is why he could become the President of this country. I wish that he brings back the pristine glory of Bharat during his tenure.

Listen To The Master Of The Universe
And Transform Yourselves Into Ideal
Human Beings

Who makes the sun rise in the morning and set in the evening with utmost regularity every day? Why does the stars glitter only at night and hide themselves during the day? How is it that the wind, without taking rest even for a moment, blows incessantly and sustains the living beings? Who makes the rivers flow perennially making pleasant sounds of ripple and gurgle? Who is the cause of delusion in creation? How do you find differences based on money, religion, community and nationality? Who is the Master and under whose sovereignty all these marvels are taking place? Come, listen to His words and obey His command.

Sathya Sai Speaks - Volume - 35

Embodiments of Love!

EVERY man, every living being, aspires to attain peace and happiness. Everyone is trying to know the objective of life. But they are not able to succeed in their endeavour. One in a million will persist with strong determination and he will not give up till he realises the goal.

Ordinary mortals will not make any efforts in this direction as they think it is something beyond their reach. They spend their lives in the pursuit of physical and ephemeral pleasures. They are under the delusion that food, raiment and shelter are the three main objectives of human life. Their life centres round their wives and children. They fail to realise that there is a higher purpose in life than this.

Experience Of Non-Dualism Is Wisdom

People pursue various paths to experience everlasting bliss. The Taittiriya Upanishad gives the analogy of a bird in this context. The head of this bird is called sraddha (sincerity). The right and left wings are compared to ritham and sathyam, respectively. The body symbolises mahattattwam and the tail, yoga. What is ritham? Trikalabadyam ritham (ritham remains unchanged in the three periods of time past, present and future). Sraddha is very important. Sraddhavan labhate jnanam (with sincerity, wisdom is won). In the Bhagavadgita, Krishna said, One with sraddha can attain Me. He further declared, I am the very embodiment of sraddha. One without sraddha cannot accomplish even a small task. Especially, in the field of spirituality, sraddha is very essential. Strong and unwavering faith leads to sraddha. The Upanishads have expounded the principle of sraddha in varied ways. Wisdom attained through sraddha is tharakam (liberation). Lack of sraddha is marakam (bondage). The eternal principle of tharaka must be understood, practised and propagated. This is the fundamental teaching of Taittiriya Upanishad. Embodiments of Love!

The Taittiriya Upanishad emphasises the need to develop sraddha in all walks of life. In spirituality sraddha is the tharaka mantra. It is eternal and immortal. Man can attain jnana (wisdom) only when he purifies his heart by developing the five aspects, namely, sraddha, sathyam, ritham, yogam and mahattattwam. Jnana is not textual knowledge. Advaita darshanam jnanam (experience of nondualism is wisdom). There is an underlying principle of nondualism in the apparent dualism. This is the fundamental truth that Taittiriya Upanishad teaches.

When Adi Sankara was proceeding on his Jaitra Yatra (victory march), he met a great scholar by name Mandana Mishra in the northern part of India. Sankara entered into a scholarly debate with him. Ubhaya Bharati, the wife of Mandana Mishra, was also a great scholar. She was wellversed in the principles of ritham, sathyam, mahattattwam, etc. It was decided that Mandana Mishra would take to sannyasa if he were to be defeated in the debate. Sankara chose Ubhaya Bharati to be the adjudicator of the contest. As the debate was in progress, she listened to the arguments and counter arguments with utmost concentration. She was impartial in her judgement and declared Sankara to be the winner. Being one of wisdom, she did not feel dejected that her husband was defeated in the debate. Mandana Mishra took to sannyasa in accordance with the terms and conditions of the debate. Ubhaya Bharathi, being his ardhangi (better half), followed suit. Both husband and wife renounced the world and propagated the path of wisdom. Human life has no value if one does not acquire wisdom.

Wisdom Enters When Ego Exits

It is said that Annam Brahma; Raso Vishnuhu; Bhokta devo Maheswarah (food is Brahma; the essence is Vishnu; the one who partakes of it is Maheswara). These three correspond to body, mind and action, respectively.

Manasyeka Vachasyekam KarmanyekamMahatmanam

(those whose thoughts, words and deeds are in complete harmony are noble ones.)

The oneness of thought, word and deed is ritham.

They represent the Trinity of Brahma, Vishnu and Maheswara. Hence, everyone must strive for the purity of these three. Take for instance a glass chimney placed over a lamp. After sometime, a thin layer of soot gets accumulated over the glass. Consequently, light becomes dim. It is only when you clean the glass, can you see the light clearly. This is what you are supposed to do. The soot that you find over the glass can be compared to ego that envelops your mind. It is because of ego that you are not able to visualise the divya jnana jyoti (divine flame of wisdom). How does ego enter your mind? It enters your mind when you give up the path of truth. You become egoistic when you do not know your true self and develop worldly thoughts and feelings. In order to drive away ego, you should keep your worldly thoughts and feelings under control. It is impossible to acquire wisdom without getting rid of ego. To have the vision of the effulgent light of atma, you have to remove the soot of ego covering your mind. This was the teaching of Ubhaya Bharati.

She was living in a hermitage on the banks of the river Ganga, imparting spiritual teachings to women. Many women had become her disciples. Every day in the morning, they used to go the Ganges to have a bath. On the way, there lived a sannyasi whom people called Brahma Inani. Truly, he was a renunciant and one of wisdom. However, he was very much attached to a small earthen pot in which he used to preserve water. One day, he was lying down using the pot as a pillow, lest somebody might steal it. Ubhaya Bharati who was on her way to Ganges with her disciples observed this and remarked, Though he is one of wisdom, there is a small defect in him. He has renounced the world, but is attached to his earthen pot which he is using as his pillow. The Sannyasi overheard their conversation and became angry. When Ubhaya Bharati and her disciples were coming back from Ganges, he threw away the pot on the road, just to show that he was not attached to it. Seeing this, Ubhaya Bharati said, I thought there was only one defect in him: abhimana (attachment). Now I realise that he has another defect: ahamkara (ego). How can one with ahamkara and abhimana be a Inani (one of wisdom)? It was an eye-opener for the Sannyasi.

Women Are Embodiments Of Virtues

Ubhaya Bharati toured the length and breadth of the country preaching and propagating the path of wisdom. Women are by nature the embodiments of vijnana, suajnana and prajnana. They are the repositories of all virtues. But due to the impact of Kali age, women are being looked down upon. It is a grave error. They must be treated with due respect. Today women compete with men to take up jobs. However, they must take care of their home needs before doing so.

If all the womenfolk go to work, who will take care of the homes? If husband and wife both go to office, who will run the household? If women go out to teach other children, who will teach their own children? If women go out like men holding books in their hand, who will work in the kitchen? Earning money may solve some financial problems, but how will it solve domestic problems? If you seriously think about it, there is no happiness for woman holding office. (Telugu poem)

If women also go out and earn money, the financial constraints may be overcome, but there will be a lot of problems on the home front. Women are the personifications of courage and determination. They put up with all hardships with fortitude and safeguard the honour of their family. They live up to the reputation of a Grihini (housewife).

Man has to follow the path of truth to acquire wisdom.

It is said, Sathyam bruyath, priyam bruyath, Na bruyath sathyamapriyam (speak truth, speak pleasantly and do not speak unpalatable truth). These three correspond to moral, dharmaic and spiritual values, respectively. Everything is contained in truth. You don't need to visit temples in search of God. Truth is verily God. It is all-pervasive. It confers plenty and prosperity on all. Hence, follow the path of truth. Practise righteousness. Acquire wisdom. For all this sadhana, partaking of proper food is the first step. Purify the food by offering it to God. Annam Brahma. Consider food as verily the form of Brahma. Raso Vishnuhu. The essence of food that spreads to all parts of your body is Vishnu swarupa. Bhokta devo Maheswarah. The partaker of food is the very embodiment of Siva principle. When man develops such sacred feelings, he becomes Siva Himself.

Siva Stands For Renunciation

Siva symbolises complete sacrifice and renunciation.

In this world everyone has dehabhimana (body attachment)

However, Siva has absolutely no body attachment. He has only atmabhimana (love for the self).

He has abundant hair with the moon adorning His head, the cool water of the Ganga flowing between the matted locks, with His radiant eye of wisdom in the middle of the forehead and the purple neck gleaming like the sheen of a blackberry. He wears serpent bracelets and a snake belt, His entire body is smeared with Vibhuti. His forehead is adorned with a kumkum dot, His ruddy lips glow with the juice of the betel, diamond-studded gold earrings dangle from His ears and His whole swarthy body glows with divine effulgence.

(Telugu Poem)

Once Parvati approached Lord Siva and expressed her desire to have a house built for themselves. She said, Oh Lord, You go from house to house begging for alms and are not concerned to provide a dwelling for us. Without a proper shelter, how can we live together? Siva pacified her, saying, Parvati! What is the use of building a house? Rats will make it their home before we even enter it. In order to control the rats, we need to have a cat. Then we will have to buy a cow to provide milk for the cat. In this manner, our requirements will get multiplied and we will lose our peace of mind. Hence, do not entertain such desires.

344

Siva has no body attachment. He is the personification of renunciation. Total renunciation leads one to wisdom. This is the teaching of Lord Siva to mankind.

What is wisdom? Purity of thought, word and deed is true wisdom. Your body, mind and actions must be pure. On this basis it is said, The proper study of mankind is man. It means that the unity of thought, word and deed is true humanness. It is very simple and easy to practise. But no one is making any effort in this direction. Though Ganges is flowing nearby, people do not take a dip in it and clean their body. People do not make use of the conveniences available to them. This is utter laziness and a sign of thamoguna. You have to get rid of this animal quality, develop humanness in you and rise to the level of the divine.

Food decides Your Actions

Embodiments of Love!

Strive to attain purity of heart. Let this be your foremost endeavour. With purity of heart, you can achieve anything. In order to attain purity of heart, you have to partake of sacred food. One who cooks food should have sacred feelings. In olden days, orthodox Brahmins used to insist on partaking of food prepared by their wives only. The reason being, housewives wish for the well-being of the entire family and prepare food. On the other hand, if you employ cooks, God alone knows with what feelings they prepare the food! The unsacred thoughts of the cook enter the food, which, in turn, poisons your mind. Annam Brahma (food is God). Hence, it should be prepared with sacred feelings. Mere physical cleanliness will not suffice; the mind also should be pure. You should see to it that the vegetables used for preparing food are procured in a righteous manner. For example, husband brings vegetables from the market. He might have misused his position of authority and brought them without making payment or the vendors themselves might have procured the vegetables by unfair means. When such vegetables are consumed, your mind gets polluted. You do not realise that the food you eat is responsible for the actions you perform. Unsacred food makes you do unsacred deeds.

345

Embodiments of Love!

Have your food only after praying and offering it to God. Only then the food will become sanctified and illumine your intellect. Once there lived a sannyasi in a hermitage near Sivananda's ashram. He was a pious soul. One day an aged businessman donated money to prepare food for the ashramites on the eleventh day after the demise of his young wife. The businessman, being rich, somehow had enticed the girl's father with money and married his young daughter. She spent her time languishing over her fate in the businessman's house. Disgusted by leading such a life, one day she jumped into the Ganges and ended her life. The businessman was doing the obituary rites on the eleventh day.

There was a convention in the ashram that cooked food was not accepted. So, the businessman gave the required amount for preparing the food. The pure-hearted sannyasi partook of the food along with other inmates of the ashram. He could not get proper sleep that night. He saw a young girl in his dream. He thought to himself, I never had any such thought nor do I have a craving for sensual pleasures. Then, why do

I get such bad dreams? He got the same vision even in his meditation. So, he went to his Guru by name Satchidanandam and explained his predicament: Swami, why am I getting such unsacred visions? The Guru told him not to worry. He sent word for the businessman, spoke to him and found out the reason behind the untimely death of his wife. He understood that she was appearing in the dream of the sannyasi as he had partaken of the food prepared as part of her obituary rites. From that day, the sannyasi stopped eating food and lived merely on fruits and milk. Bhikshannam deharakshanartham (food is essential to sustain the body). A car needs petrol to run. In the same way, the body requires food to sustain it. So, one has to eat something or the other to sustain the body. Sometimes, you get bad dreams and bad visions during meditation. This is the result of unsacred food. You have to enquire before cooking whether the provisions were got through sacred means. Only then the food becomes fit for consumption.

Before partaking of food, you should pray,

Brahmarpanam Brahma havr

Brahmagnou Brahmanahutam

347

Sathya Sai Speaks - Volume - 35

Brahmaiva thena ganthavyam

Brahma karma samadhina.

If you pray with sacred feelings, the food gets sanctified.

At one time, King Vikramaditya convened a big conference.

He posed a question, Is buddhi (intellect) or medhas (intelligence) greater? The participants said that medhas was greater. But Vikramaditya did not subscribe to their viewpoint. He said that buddhi was greater because it was very sacred as it contained the knowledge of the Self. Buddhigrahya matindriyam (intellect transcends mind and senses).

Embodiments of Love!

Before partaking of food, chant the sacred mantra.

Then no unsacredness would enter your heart. Annam Brahma; Raso Vishnuhu: Bhokta devo Maheswarah (food is Brahma; the essence is Vishnu; the one who partakes it is Maheswara). These three correspond to body, mind and action, respectively. Purity of thought, word and deed is true wisdom. You don't need to undertake any other spiritual practice. People undertake various sadhanas. But they confer only temporary satisfaction. On the other hand, when you have purity of thought, word and deed, you experience eternal happiness.

Never Stray Away From The Path Of Truth

Embodiments of Love!

Ritham is that which is changeless in the three periods of time past, present and future. That is true wisdom.

348

Sathya Sai Speaks - Volume - 35

That which undergoes change is marakam and that which is changeless is tharakam.

Understand the principle of Tharakam with the grace of Sadguru and find the difference between eternal and ephemeral. Know the secret of Tharakam (Soham) which the Jivatma (individual soul) repeats without a break in all the three states of Jagrat (waking), Swapna (dream) and Sushupti (deep sleep). (Telugu song)

You may belong to any religion or community; you have to understand this tharaka mantra. Today people call themselves devotees, but their actions do not match their claim. Their thoughts, words and deeds are filled with untruth and unrighteousness. Their love is tainted with selfishness and self-interest. They pose as devotees, go round the world and indulge in all sorts of evil deeds. Ex-ternally, they look to be pious, but inwardly they are filled with evil propensities. They ruin their lives for the sake of money. You should beware of such people and keep them at a distance. It is a sin to even look at their faces.

Some devotees said, Swami, we want to attend Your Birthday celebration, but we are unable to get leave. So, we have decided to apply for sick leave and come. Then I told them, It is not the right thing to do. It does not matter, if you are unable to come, but do not tell untruth. Observe sathya vratam (vow of truth). Only then can you have the vision of Sarveswara (Lord of the universe). You can purify yourself through prayer. Wisdom will dawn on you through prayer and that prayer is Annam Brahma; Raso Vishnuhu: Bhokta devo Maheswarah. No other spiritual practice is required.

Nine paths of devotion have been prescribed for spiritual aspirants. They are: sravanam (listening), kirtanam (singing), Vishnusmaranam (contemplating on Vishnu), padasevanam (serving His Lotus Feet), vandanam (salutation), archanam (worship), dasyam (servitude), sneham (friendship), atmanivedanam (self-surrender). You should develop friendship with God. If God is your friend, the whole world will be under your control. But today the unfortunate ones are losing their friendship with God. It is not easy to make friendship with God. But you have to make every effort in this direction. Once you develop friendship with God, you have to take full advantage of it through sadhana. Do not waste time in idle talk.

Embodiments of Love!

Speak truth always. This is what you have to learn today. Truth is the basis of your life. Truth is verily God. Hence, never stray away from the path of truth.

I Am The Embodiment Of Eternal Bliss

Students!

Having pursued your education here and having listened to Swami's teachings, you should transform yourself

350

into ideal human beings. People from far-off lands wait for a chance to come here. Having been blessed with the sacred opportunity of constantly living in the Divine Presence, make full use of it. Never use harsh words. Never speak untruth. Sometimes, telling truth may lead to danger. In such a situation, speak neither truth nor untruth; remain silent. You should transcend the dualities of truth and untruth. As you are all in the prime of your youth, this is the best time to embark on the sacred path. Start early, drive slowly, reach safely.

I am not at all interested in celebrating My Birthdays. Devotees wanted to arrange various programmes on this occasion. But I did not permit them. As many of you have gathered here, this meeting is taking place, otherwise, I have no interest in even this meeting. To Me, every day is a festival day. I am always blissful. I am the embodiment of eternal bliss. What type of bliss? It is not something which others give. I don't wait for others to give Me bliss. My bliss originates from within.

lect, beyond all mental conditions and the three gunas of sattwa, rajas and thamas).

I am beyond all attributes. Believe it or not, I am bliss personified. If you think otherwise, the defect lies in you. Whatever I do is for your own good, for your welfare and for your happiness. Lead a blissful and unblemished life. That is what I desire from you. I have no worries or suffering at any point of time. Why should I worry when I have everything? I have no desires. Whatever I tell, whatever I do is good for you, not for Me. I have come for your sake. Hence, make full use of Me. I am always ready, provided you develop sacred thoughts. Lead a divine life. Sometimes, I do not talk to you. You think, We might have committed some mistake. That is why Swami is not talking to us. But truly speaking, it is not My nature to look for defects in others. My vision is highly sacred. I always see good in you. The bad you see is your own imagination. Because there is bad in you, you are seeing the same in others. But to Me, even bad appears as good. Hence, do not entertain any doubts regarding Swami. Samsayatma Vinasyati (one with doubts will perish). Have firm faith. Embodiments of Love!

Welcome your guests and give them due respect. Give your love to all. Feed the hungry. Only then can you have peace of mind. Harmonise your thought, word and deed. There is no greater wisdom than this. Practise ritham. This is the path of tharakam (liberation). If you waver from time 352

to time, you are the most unfortunate one. Waywardness is the nature of a monkey mind. You belong to mankind. Having been born as a human being, you should develop steadiness of mind. Mankind symbolises tharakam. Monkey mind stands for marakam (bondage).

Embodiments of Love!

On this Birthday, you have to learn something very important, i.e., do not waste your time in idle talk. Time once lost cannot be regained. Consider truth as God.

Sathyannasti paro dharmah (there is no Dharma greater than adherence to truth). Hence follow the path of truth and practise righteousness.

Divine Birthday, 23-11-2002,

Prasanthi Nilayam.

Love And Morality

The Need Of The Hour

Abandon pride and all endear,

Shed anger and shed all care,

Restraint on hankering is the way to wealth,

Shunning greed is the royal road to joy.

(Sanskrit verse)

Embodiments of Love!

IN this world every object has got five aspects, namely, Sath, Chith, Ananda, Rupa and Nama (being, awareness, bliss, form and name). Being, awareness and bliss are the three permanent attributes of every jiva (individual). Name and form are transitory. Man has forgotten his true self and is leading his life believing the name and form to be real and the ephemeral world to be eternal. God is beyond all attributes and feelings. It is rather strange that man attributes qualities and feelings to Him. It is most essential for every individual to know the infinite love, truth and compassion of God. Though man is essentially divine, he is conducting himself like a demon as he has forgotten his innate divinity. Every man is endowed with the qualities of deeksha (determination) and dakshata (dexterity). One who makes use of these virtues for noble causes alone is a true human being.

Man's True Nature Is Sathyam, Inanam, Anantam

The cosmic power lies in the navel of God. Hence, He is known as Hiranyagarbha. As He is full of divine effulgence and radiance, He is said to be the very personification of beauty and splendour (soundarya-vanthudu and tejomayudu). The life of a human being is the noblest because he is endowed with the principle of Hiranyagarbha. God is also known as Prajapati as He is the creator of the entire universe. In order to understand the principle of divinity, you have to understand the inner meaning and significance associated with each name of God. God has various names and each of them has a profound inner meaning. That is why our ancients used to name their children by one or the other name of God.

Today man is in search of God and is enquiring into the nature of divinity. When God is within, where is the need to search for Him? God is the embodiment of love. Truth is His very swarupa and swabhava (form and innate nature). Sathyannasti paro dharma (there is no dharma greater than adherence to truth). But today man is unable to understand the meaning of truth. He considers untruth to be truth in order to satisfy his desires. Firstly, man should endeavour to understand his true nature which is sathyam, inanam and anantham (truth, knowledge and infinitude). God has gifted man with the Vedas, sasthras, puranas and itihasas to open his eyes to the truth that he is essentially divine. In this world every man is endowed with truth, righteousness and love. He is the embodiment of sath, chith and ananda. These attributes are verily divine. Sath is that which is changeless and eternal. Chith is chaitanya (awareness). Atma is another term for God. Brahma is its synonym. It is present in every man in the form of chaitanya. One who understands this principle of chaitanya alone is a true human being. Sath, chith, ananda and sathyam, inanam, anantham; are different words, but they have the same meaning.

In this world, we find various schools of thought, like atheism, dualism, non-dualism, qualified non-dualism, etc. The divine name of Kesava is the most important of all. The essence of all philosophies is contained in this. It consists of three syllables, namely, Ka + esa + va, which represent the divine trinity of Brahma, Easwara and Vishnu, respectively. Hence, Kesava symbolises the principles of creation, sustenance and dissolution. Man can understand his true self if he contemplates on the divine name of Kesava and understand its significance.

Our ancient sages undertook deep investigations and enquiry in order to understand divinity. Ultimately, they declared to the world, Vedhametham Purusham mahantham adityavarnam thamasah parasthath (I have visualised the Supreme Being who shines with the effulgence of billion suns and who is beyond thamas the darkness of ignorance). They exhorted man to make efforts to have the vision of divinity. From then on, man started believing in God. But, with the passage of time, his faith started diminishing. He is subjected to grief because of his disbelief in God.

He who is known as Allah by Muslims,
As Jehovah by Christian aspirants,
As the Lotus-eyed Lord by the worshippers of Vishnu,

As Sambhu, by those who revere Siva,
In whatever way He is worshipped, He gladly responds,

Grants the grace of fame and fortune,
And showers happiness and joy.
He is the One, The Supreme Self.

Know Him as Paramatma.

(Telugu poem)

God is one; He has many names. Different religions have come into existence, but all of them lead to the same divinity.

Religions are many, but goal is one.

Clothes are many, but yarn is one.

Jewels are many, but gold is one.

358

Sathya Sai Speaks - Volume - 35

Cows are many, but milk is one.

Beings are many, but breath is one.

Castes are many, but humanity is one.

(Telugu poem)

Therefore, if everyone enquires into his true nature, he can experience truth.

Early Days Of Jesus Christ

Jesus was a noble soul. He declared that he was the son of God, but he never said that he was God. When Jesus was born, three royal wise men from the east were guided by a star to a cowshed in Bethlehem where the baby Jesus lay in a manger. He was radiating divine effulgence. The first of them said, This child will love God. The second said, He will be loved by God. The third said, He will love one and all. He is not different from God. The one who loves God is the messenger of God; the one whom God loves is the son of God; the one who understands the principle of unity becomes one with God. This is the inner meaning of the statements given in the Bible. The one you think you are, the one others think you are and the one you really are. You should understand the import of these statements. The child was brought up by mother Mary and his father was working as a carpenter. It was the time of a festival in Jerusalem and the child Jesus was taken there along with his parents. They lost the child in the crowd and could not find him anywhere. Mother Mary naturally was very much worried. Finally, they went to the temple to pray. To their astonishment, they found young Jesus coming out of the temple. All the while the child had been in the temple, listening to the holy discourse of the Rabbi of the temple. The anxious mother took hold of her child and started asking him several questions as to what he was doing all the while. The child replied, Mother, why were you afraid? All the while I was in the hands of God. I have been listening to the words of God expounded by the Rabbi in the temple. Thus, the child was God-minded from a very young age.

After some time, father Joseph passed away. Mary told her son, Now that your father passed away, you should continue your father's profession, so that we may earn our livelihood. But the boy was not inclined to continue in his father's profession. The mother was also not interested to oppose the natural inclinations of young Jesus. One day, young Jesus went to a lonely hilltop. The mother was very much worried, nay, depressed due to the absence of her son. Jesus was sitting and meditating on God all the while. After some time, he returned. As he was returning, he ran into a group of worried men on the coast of the sea of Galilee. When young Jesus enquired from them the cause of their worry, they said that they were fishermen and that for quite some time past, they were not able to catch any fish in their nets. Jesus said, Follow me; are there any waters that do not have fish? He took them along with him in their boats to the middle of the sea and asked them to cast their nets at a particular spot. To their utter astonishment and great joy, the fishermen found that their nets were full with fish. This event created a lot of faith in the minds of the fishermen. Hence, faith is indispensable for humanity.

Where there is faith, there is love;

Where there is love, there is truth;

Where there is truth, there is peace;

Where there is peace, there is bliss;

Where there is bliss, there is God.

Sacred Teachings Of Jesus

Jesus could instill such great faith in those people.

One of those fishermen was named by Jesus as Peter. He developed intense love and faith towards Jesus. From then on, the fishermen regularly used to take Jesus out on their fishing expeditions and after their return in the evening, Jesus used to expound spiritual matters to them. When Peter's father passed away, his mother was filled with sorrow, but Jesus consoled her by telling, Death is but a dress of life. Wherefore do you shed tears? Death is like changing one's dress. Therefore, stop grieving. These physical bodies come and go, so do not waste your thought on these ephemeral things. The indweller (dehi) who lives inside this body is the true divinity.

The body is made up of five elements and is bound to perish sooner or later, but the indweller has neither birth nor death. He has no attachment whatsoever.

Truly speaking, the indweller is verily God Himself who is in the form of the Atma.

361

Sathya Sai Speaks - Volume - 35

In this manner, Jesus preached and instilled confidence in the people around him. Thus, the fishermen's community was spending its time happily in the company of Jesus. At that time, one Mathew, who was a tax collector for the Romans, used to visit them on official work and, during his visits, he also used to listen to Jesus and take notes of his teachings. Finally, he became a disciple of Jesus. After a while, Jesus started facing obstacles and opposition to his preachings. Anyone donning a physical body cannot escape such vicissitudes of life. Without hardships man cannot exist. Death follows birth and with the same certainty misery follows happiness. Sukhadukhe samekruthwa labhalabhau jayajayau (one should remain equal-minded in happiness and sorrow, gain and loss, victory and defeat). Pleasure is an interval between two pains. Human life is for the purpose of investigating the supreme reality and not merely for eating, drinking and procreation. Every human being must make an effort to know his inner nature and understand his true identity. Jesus was preaching such sacred truth and, therefore, he became very popular among his contemporaries. Becoming popular in the world automatically begets jealousy and envy. Jealousy, pomposity and egoism are evil traits which will ultimately lead to ruin. None will pardon people with such traits. You should not rebuke or ridicule others. Humanness will blossom in man only when he develops equal-mindedness. Today man is subjected to untold suffering because he lacks human values. That which has the innate capability to burn is called fire. In the same manner, only the one with human values is a human being. One bereft of human values is not a human being at all. You may be highly educated and occupying an exalted position, but if you lack human values, you will be considered inhuman. Hence, drive away evil qualities in the first instance.

362

Shun Jealousy, Develop Noble Qualities

Today the Messengers of Sathya Sai (old students association of Anantapur Campus for girls) are celebrating their anniversary. They should not give scope to evil tendencies like asuya (jealousy), krodha (anger) and dvesha (hatred). Their members who are working in overseas countries are leading exemplary lives. Today you have heard the speeches made by our former students from Japan and America. Their thoughts and feelings are noble. Their speech is full of sweetness. The girl from Japan who spoke earlier is the holder of a Ph.D. degree. They are highly qualified, yet they conduct themselves with humility and obedience. Their devotion and surrender is worthy of emulation. What is the use of high academic qualifications and doctorate degrees if one does not give up wicked traits like jealousy and carrying tales against others? I really detest such behaviour. With love, enthusiasm and sacred feelings, you have established an organisation in the name of Sathya Sai for doing service to humanity. No doubt, a lot of good work is being done; but

363

take care that the noble feelings do not degenerate into illfeelings. I do not attach much importance to the work. What is important to Me is your qualities. Wherever you may be whether in the forest or in the sky, whether in the towns or in the villages, you must develop noble qualities. Jealousy is a very bad quality. For people with jealousy, life will not go smoothly. Jealousy in fact is a living death. Added to this, if you have another bad quality of carrying tales, you are bound to suffer. Why do you criticise others? Instead criticise your own bad qualities. Remove your own ill-feelings and bad thoughts. You should not attribute bad qualities to others and spread such slander. In spite of My repeated advice, there is no transformation in many people. I am disgusted with their behaviour over the last five-six years. What is the use of establishing organisations? You have Sathya Sai Seva Samithis and Bhajan Mandalis. You are undertaking social service, conducting study circles. But no purpose is served if such service is not backed by love in the heart. Love is God. Live in love. Instead people are developing hatred against one another. Such people deserve exemplary punishment, for, others are also getting spoiled on account of such wicked people. I am prepared to give you anything, even My life, provided you get rid of your evil qualities. When you take the name of Sathya Sai, how nobly should the organisation function! How much respect should you command in society! Whoever establishes an organisation in the name of Sathya Sai must adhere to the principle of truth. Functioning under the banner of Sathya Sai, if you deviate from the path of truth, what purpose does it serve? It is only when you cultivate love and tread along the path of truth and morality, will the organisation develop and prosper. Therefore, at least from today develop the qualities of truth, love and morality. This is your first and foremost duty. It is not proper to undertake demonic activities in the name of divine organisation.

364

God is worshipped by several names, such as, Sathya dharma parayanaya namah, Sathya swarupaya namah, Prema swarupaya namah, etc. There is a lot of meaning in these names. He is the embodiment of love. In fact, human beings themselves are embodiments of divine love. Love is their chief quality. Life has no meaning if you do not cultivate love. Carrying tales against somebody and backbiting are qualities to be condemned. In the past women were free from evil traits. But now even women are no exception to these diseases. What a shame! In My opinion, this is a distortion which is the result of modern education.

In spite of his education and intelligence, a foolish man will not know his true self and a meanminded person will not give up his wicked qualities.

Modern education leads only to argumentation, not to total wisdom. What is the use of acquiring worldly education if it cannot lead you to immortality? Acquire the knowledge that will make you immortal.

365

Sathya Sai Speaks - Volume - 35

No purpose is served with an education coupled with evil qualities. What is important is not education, but good qualities, character and conduct.

If you associate yourselves with people with evil propensities, you too will become evil. Tyaja durjana samsargam; Bhaja sadhu samagamam; Kuru punyam ahorathram (give up bad company; join good company and perform meritorious deeds day and night). These three principles are most important for a human being. Karna was a great warrior in the Mahabharata. In fact, he even excelled Arjuna in this field. In spite of all this, why did he earn a bad name? It was because of his association with evilminded people like Duryodhana and Dussasana. At last, he met with a miserable death in the battlefield. None of the great asthras he had mastered could come to his rescue. Therefore, all your education will be of little use if your mind is not channelled in the right direction. Hence, Students Boys and Girls! Cultivate noble qualities. There is no use acquiring wealth without virtues.

Excessive wealth gives rise to ego which in turn paves way to many wicked qualities. When wealth leaves you, ego also evaporates and as a result the evil qualities disappear.

(Telugu poem)

Greatness does not lie in acquiring wealth. Cultivation of noble qualities is of paramount importance. Talk less. For, the more you indulge in loose talk, the more you are prone to bad qualities. There is no point in joining a service organisation if you do not cultivate virtues and transform your behaviour into a good one. Some people talk sweetly, but in their heart of hearts, they are vicious. Such dichotomy will lead you nowhere. You must first develop softness and sweetness in your heart. It is said, hrid + daya = hridaya. Your hridaya (heart) must be full of daya (compassion). You deserve to be called a manava only when your heart is filled with love and compassion.

Emulate The Noble Qualities Of Jesus

Jesus Christ developed such noble qualities. He gave protection to several poor and destitute people with a loving heart. In fact, several such people sought refuge in him. In the process, he had to face the wrath of several enemies. You should help people even if you have to undergo some difficulties. Never indulge in reviling others, for the same atma is permeating every living being. If you abuse others, it amounts to abusing your own self. If you do not like them, keep yourself away from them, but never abuse them. Any amount of good work done by you will be of no use, if you do not give up bad qualities. If you cannot do good to others, at least speak good words. You cannot always oblige, but you can speak always obligingly. If you find someone suffering, try to help him. Today it is his turn, but tomorrow it could be yours. Always keep this in mind. Nobody can escape from pain and suffering. Always pray for the welfare of all. It is only in this context, the universal prayer of Loka samasta sukhino bhavantu (May all the people of the world be happy!) is addressed. Your heart should be transformed into hiranyagarbha. It is only when you cultivate good feelings, can you become a good person. You need not be a great man, but you should aspire to become a good man. You must earn the love of one and all. One of the prayers addressed to God is Hiranyagarbhaya namah. God is loved by everybody. He is always happy and blissful. He has no hatred towards anybody. Whatever He does is for your own good. Everyone must cultivate such divine love towards others. Always tread the path of truth and morality. A nation without morality is bound to degenerate and disintegrate. It is not enough if you have patriotism; along with it you should have morality too. Merely giving lectures on morality will not suffice; it must permeate every activity undertaken by you.

Acquire Goodness Along With GreatnessEmbodiments of Love!

God is not moved simply by sweet words. You must translate those sweet words into action. You may be a great hero in giving lectures on a platform, but if you are a zero in putting them into action, it will be of no use. You must become heroes in practical life. That is what gives Me happiness. Jesus Christ and Mohammad were highly noble. How could they acquire such greatness and goodness? It was only by their good deeds. Therefore, you must acquire goodness along with greatness. In fact, goodness is greater than greatness. Several great souls took birth in this land of Bharat. Saint Thyagaraja in one of his famous kirtans sang, Endaro mahanubhavulu, andariki vandanamulu (there are several great souls, I prostrate before all of them). A great saint, Thyagaraja himself exhibited such humility. He was a great composer too. In one of his kirtans, he described the greatness of God thus: You are beyond all description and human comprehension. Is it possible to estimate Your glory and splendour? I have been waiting for Your grace. Oh Lord! Listen to my prayer and redeem me. You are the one who brought back to life the dead son of Your preceptor. You are the one who suppressed the serpent Kaliya, freed Vasudeva and Devaki and saved Droupadi from humiliation. You fulfilled Kuchela's desires, You made uglylooking Kubja beautiful. You protected the Pandavas and saved the 16,000 Gopikas. You are beyond all description and human comprehension. Krishna, it is not possible for even Brahma to describe Your glory. I have been praying for Your grace. (Telugu song). When sublime feelings spring forth from the depths of one's own heart, they express themselves as great devotional poetry.

Pray For The Welfare Of OthersEmbodiments of Love!

Today, you do not find peace anywhere in the world. You see only pieces! In fact, people are breaking their heart into pieces. How then can peace be acquired? There is only one solution to this problem. Love God. Have faith in God. Surrender unto Him. Dedicate your whole life to God and carry on every activity of yours as an offering to Him. Let all your activities be helpful to others. Help ever, hurt never. You cannot say that you are leading a problem-free life. Who knows what is in store for you the next moment! If you wish to be always happy, pray for the welfare of others. This is the real sadhana. Spirituality does not mean simply doing bhajans and performing some acts of worship. Cultivate noble qualities. Always be helpful to others and earn a good name. Jesus earned such a good name by sacrificing his body on the cross. You also must be prepared for such a great sacrifice. If you give up thyaga (sacrifice) and indulge in bhoga (sensual pleasures), you will end up with roga (disease). In fact, thyaga is true yoga and bhoga is roga. Do not become a victim of roga. Develop thyaga and achieve yoga.

Sathya Sai Speaks - Volume - 35

Purify Your Hearts With Selfless Love

Dear Students!

Whoever has acquired the quality of love will never be hated by others. Even the wild animals will not harm you when you have love. The great rishis of yore spent their lives peacefully in dense forests amidst wild animals. The wild animals fought among themselves, but they did not cause any harm to these rishis. What is the reason? The rishis possessed one single weapon of love which protected them from these wild animals. In fact, these wild animals also used to love these great rishis. What man has to acquire is this great weapon of love. Love alone can protect us, not atom bomb or hydrogen bomb. Consider My own example. I have one and only one weapon, that is love. Because of this, millions of people from every nook and corner of the globe gather around Me. Did I ever send any invitation to you? No. It is only My pure and unsullied love that draws you here. In fact, My heart itself is a very powerful magnet. Because of the power of love in that magnet, all these iron filings are attracted to this place. In order to be attracted by the magnet, the iron should be free from rust and dust. Some people think, Swami calls Himself a powerful magnet, but He is unable to attract us. The fault lies in them only. Their hearts are rusted. They will be attracted by the magnet of Swami's love only when they cleanse their hearts. How can you remove the rust and dust accumulated in the heart? Only by rubbing and polishing it with love. Be they Indians or foreigners, everybody has to purify his heart with love and that love must be totally selfless. When you cultivate such selfless love, you can attract the whole world. Self is lovelessness and love is selflessness. Therefore, lead a life full of love.

1. STRIVE FOR UNITY, PURITY, AND DIVINITY

Intellect, education, prolific scholarship,

Victory in verbal battle,

Vanquishing the adversary in physical strife,

Sovereignty over kingdoms vast,

Charity profuse of cattle and gold,

Piercing vision counting the countless stars,

Numbering each of creatures unnumbered,

Achieving the mystic eightfold powers,

Or even stepping on lunar dust --

All these are easy to the man of strength.

But to restrain the urges of body and its parts,

To turn the senses inward,

Difficult far is it to attain the vision

And still the mind in supreme peace.

(Telugu Poem)

A skilled tongue entices even the goddess of wealth,

A sweet tongue wins family and friends,

Tongue it is that ties your life in knots,

A vicious tongue begets instant death.

(Sanskrit Verse)

Embodiments of Love!

Having been endowed with such a sacred power of speech, man is unable to make proper use of it. No other form of life has the mighty intellect and capacity for inner peace but the human kind. In this world every object has five aspects, namely, sath, chith, ananda, rupa, and nama (being, awareness, bliss, form, and name). Being, awareness, and bliss are the three core attributes of a man. They are true and eternal. Name and form are transitory. The delusion of permanence of name and form leads mankind to waste away its precious life. In this world, there are two types of intellectuals. The first type is the scientists who are totally materialistic in their outlook. They have in their mind only the physical and worldly goals and gains. They are fascinated by the external appearance of a gigantic tree with its numerous branches and twigs, but they are not interested in finding its "roots".

Vedantins

(philosophers) are the second type of intellectuals, who are not fascinated by the external appearance of the tree but evince great delight in finding the "roots". People who are worldly in outlook waste their time in watering the "branches", whereas, the Vedantins water the "roots" and thereby enjoy the "fruits". Once, the asuras (demons) and devas (demigods) churned the ocean of milk with the hope of acquiring divine ambrosia (amrita). They used the Manthara mountain as the churning rod. But, initially, they had to put up with the emergence of deadly poison. The demons were frustrated and disheartened to see poison emanating instead of (amrita). They wanted to give up the churning process. But the demigods relentlessly continued the churning with courage and determination. Their sustained efforts yielded rich rewards in the form of the goddess of wealth, Lakshmi Devi, Iravatha (divine white elephant), Kamadhenu (wish-fulfilling cow), Kalpatharu (wish-fulfilling tree), and ultimately the divine ambrosia itself. In the same manner, man should churn his mind and try to know his true identity; He should not be deterred or depressed by the initial impediments and obstacles that beset his path.

Sath-chith-ananda (being-awareness-bliss) are the very nature of man.

But man has forgotten his very nature and is wasting his time in the vain pursuit of fleeting pleasures. He is not able to realise the value of his innate nature, sath-chith-ananda. Once he realises its value and experiences it, he can reach any exalted state. In fact, he becomes verily God. Man can accomplish any mighty task when he realises his innate divine nature. The power latent in man is not found anywhere else. Every man is endowed with the three chief attributes of sath-chith-ananda. But having been enmeshed in the web of delusion, man considers that the "name and form" are real, ignoring his innate qualities of sath-chithananda.

First of all, what man has to recognise is his own innate divine nature. But man is not making any effort in this direction. He has become a slave to his senses, and is wasting his time on trivial matters. The primary duty of man therefore is to understand properly his innate human nature and then putting it into practice. The value and significance of human nature is beyond all estimation. Only when you practise human values will your life be redeemed. Man is but a spark of Divinity. That is why Lord Krishna said in the Bhagavadgita, Mamaivamsho Jeevaloke Jeevabhutah Sanathana (the eternal Atma in all beings is a part of My Being). In fact, the antarvani (inner voice) keeps reminding man of his divine nature day in and day out. But man is not making any effort to listen to his inner voice. He is craving for physical and ephemeral objects, forgetting his own divine nature and thereby Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003) 4 distancing himself from the ultimate goal of life. Names and forms are momentary like water bubbles. He is being deluded by names and forms and is losing the very precious gem of divinity. Man is endowed with infinite divine power. A piece of red-hot iron can be put to better use than the fire itself. The body can be compared to an iron piece and the divinity within to fire. Man should therefore understand this truth and make proper use of his body. Embodiments of Love! People are full of hopes and aspirations on the dawn of a New Year. In fact, you should consider every moment as the beginning of a New Year.

Names and forms have no value without the eternal virtues. Man suffers from various ailments, some internal and others external. A doctor can cure the external ailments. The Atmic feeling is the only remedy for all the internal ailments. You should make efforts to know the principle of Atma. The Atma is a synonym for Brahma, which is nothing but the Chaitanya permeating every human being. Man has a name and form, but Chaitanya has no form. The Chaitanya that is present in the human body is called "conscience". The all-pervasive Chaitanya is called "consciousness". When the individual understands the principle of unity in diversity, the "conscience" gets transformed into "consciousness". In spite of being endowed with such a sacred power, man gets deluded by the vagaries of the world. He is giving importance to the New Year, which is fleeting. In fact, he should give importance to the changeless "Time" and sanctify it by proper use. In this world, only truth and goodness will remain with us for ever. Their value cannot be quantified. So, we should strive to develop truth and goodness in us. We should not hanker after name and fame. For example, we should not be under the delusion that we are providing Telugu Ganga water to Chennai. Water is not something that one gives to another. It is nature's gift to all. Each one gets one's share based on one's prapti (deservedness). Man's activities yield the desired result only when the kala, karma, karana, and kartavya (time, action, cause, and duty) are in harmony with each other. Hence, one should make sincere efforts and wait for the right time. When the action fructifies, he should utilise it in accordance with the time and circumstances. Boys (former students of Swami) are doing a lot of good work. They are going to various villages and giving happiness to the people there by performing service activities and bhajans. They should undertake all these activities with the spirit of love. There is nothing greater than love. You should lead your life filled with selfless love. Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003)
Embodiments of Love!

The service activities and the bhajans that you perform alone are not enough. You should give up the feeling that you are serving others. That is very important. You are serving your own self when you serve others. You should consider all as yours. In fact, others are not others but are the very forms of God. Hence, service rendered to humanity is service rendered to God. All service activities are meant to foster this feeling in you. You should plunge into the field of service with selfless love. That alone is true service. All other service activities are worldly and momentary. Students! You are under the mistaken notion that you are rendering service to others. You should give up such a feeling. Only then does the service you perform become real service in the strict sense of the term. Service does not merely mean helping others. The best way to love God is to love all and serve all. Your acts of service should be suffused with the spirit of love. Without the positive aspect of love, all service you render becomes negative in nature. All bodies are like bulbs, and love is the main switch. Only when the main switch is pressed will the bodies radiate light and happiness to one and all. You are switching off the main switch and trying to enjoy happiness. It is impossible. Hrid + daya (compassion) = Hridaya (heart). Your heart should be filled with compassion. All your activities should be suffused with love. There is no strength superior to love. Our ancient sages and seers used to live in dense forests amidst wild animals. They did not carry any weapons with them, yet they could move about without any sense of fear. What was the source of their courage? They possessed the single weapon of love, which protected them from the wild animals. The ancient culture of Bharat is divine, most precious, wonderful, and blissful. But you are not making any effort to understand its greatness. In fact, you are belittling such a sacred culture. You are deluded by the differences based on caste and culture. In fact, there is only one caste, the caste of humanity. The love that originates in the heart is true religion. The entire humanity is one family. All are brothers and sisters. The whole world is but one mansion. It is impossible to describe in words the happiness you would experience when you develop such broad-mindedness. Hence, make every effort to visualise divinity in humanity.

God's creation is most wonderful and mysterious. There are innumerable stars in the sky. The light emitted by some of them is yet to reach the earth, in spite of the fact that light travels at a speed of thousands of miles per second. Such being the case, you can very well imagine the distance between earth and stars. When the creation itself is such an infinite and indescribable phenomenon, how mighty and powerful must the creator be!

The stories of the Lord are most wonderful and sacred in all the three worlds. They are like sickles that cut the creepers of worldly bondage. (Telugu Poem)

The stories of God cannot be described in mere words. Man imagines and describes Him based on his own estimates. Truly speaking, God is beyond all definition.

There are various types of pramanas (experiences) in this world. They are pratyaksha pramana (direct experience), anumana pramana (experience based on inference), dvaita pramana (experience based on duality), and advaita pramana (experience based on non-duality). As God is beyond all these pramanas, He is known as Aprameya (immeasurable and indefinable). God is present in the heart of every man with all His divine powers.

The beauty and grandeur of God cannot be described in words. He is extolled as "Hiranyagarbhaya Namah" (salutations to the one with the golden womb). Hiranya means gold. It is present in His heart. Just as the essence of the food partaken is supplied to all parts of the body, likewise, gold permeates His entire body. Hence, He is the most handsome One. He is the primordial basis of all beings. Everything happens according to His Will. Since He is the creator of all beings, He is called Prajapati. Since He is the most intelligent One, He is called Dakshinamurthi. In this manner, God has infinite names. Man attributes names and forms to God based on his limited understanding and worships Him: Nirgunam, Niranjanam, Sanathana Niketanam, Nitya, Suddha, Buddha, Mukta, and Nirmala Swarupinam (God is attributeless, pure, final abode, eternal, unsullied, enlightened, liberated, and embodiment of sacredness). When such a divine principle is present within his own self, why does man consider himself to be small and feeble? You should give up such a feeling of inferiority. There is no greater being than the human being. In fact, divinity is immanent in the entire humanity. But, unfortunately, you are considering such a sacred human birth as trivial. As you think, so shall it become. These petty thoughts are the result of your petty mind.

When you see smoke emerging from the hills, it is an indication that there is fire. When you see the fire directly, it is called pratyaksha pramana (direct experience). If you see only the smoke and not the fire, you presume that there is fire behind the smoke. It is only a possibility. It is anumana pramana (presumptive experience). It is possible that sometimes fog appears as smoke and, actually, there may not be fire in the hills. Therefore, anumana pramana gives rise to doubt. Love is the only pratyaksha pramana (direct experience) of divinity in a human being. When a question arises as to where God is, the immediate answer is God is love and love is God. Similarly, truth is God. There is nothing greater than truth. There is no divinity higher than truth. Truth is all-pervading. Countries may be different; but, truth is one and only one. There is nothing like American truth, Japanese truth, German truth, etc. To make such distinction is the nature of petty-minded people. We are not petty-minded and mean. We are the embodiments of infinity. Man should always remind himself that he is the embodiment of Truth, embodiment of Love, embodiment of Bliss, etc. Man has got infinite capacity for spiritual thoughts and spiritual quest. But, does he realise his true nature? Take, for instance, a handful of sea-sand in a plate. The scientists determine the sand as belonging to such and such country on the

the colour and weight of the sand. But the philosophers do not at all think that way. They say that it is God's creation and God's maya (illusion). Thus, there is a gulf of difference between the perceptions of the scientists and the sages. Science is like semi-circle. It starts at some place and ends at some other place. But, spirituality originates and ends

at the same point of origin. It is a full-circle. It is verily Divinity. That is

why it is said,

Poornamadah poornamidam poornat poornamudachyate

Poornasya poornamadaya poornameva avashishyate.

(That is full, this is full. When the full is taken out of the full, what remains is again the full).

Such a divinity, which is the embodiment of fullness, is immanent in every human being. But, unfortunately, man is not making any effort to realise the divinity within. Who is protecting his body while he is fast asleep?

How does the body function perfectly, even without his knowledge?

Nobody knows. For creation, protection and sustenance --for everything--

, God is responsible. Such a divine power is immanent in every human being. In spite of this, man is depressed in times of difficulties and is elated in times of joy. But this is not the goal of his life. His true goal is to maintain a perfect state of equanimity at all times and not to get caught

in "sorrows and joys". Pleasure is an interval between two pains.

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003)

Therefore, we need not go in search of pleasure. It is very much within us. In fact, you, yourself are the embodiment of bliss.

Embodiments of Love!

Always be happy and cheerful, for your innate nature is bliss. You need not go in search of happiness. Bliss emerges out of Atma. Whenever

you wish for it, you will get it. Happiness is union with God. Therefore,

always

be in the company of God. Once you are in the company of God, happiness will follow you like a slave.

Today, man is in search of happiness, and, in the process, is becoming

slave to happiness. This is not correct. In fact, happiness should become a slave to you, for you are verily the embodiment of Divine Atma.

Believe

it or not, I am always blissful. You can also experience such a state of bliss. You should not go in search of happiness. Instead, happiness

should

follow you wherever you go.

Hanuman was a great hero in the episode of Ramayana. He was courageous, mighty and invincible. He possessed good qualities of character and peace. He was always happy and cheerful, chanting the divine name of Rama. You should also develop such noble qualities.

First

and foremost, you should become a human being in the true sense.

You

should develop kindness toward all. Only then do you deserve to be identified as belonging to mankind.

Embodiments of Love!

You are acquiring a high level of worldly education. You are reading several great books. You are acquiring great powers. But, all these are ephemeral and evanescent. Therefore, always keep your thoughts steadily fixed on the divine power that fills your heart with bliss. The divine power is infinite. The more you contemplate on the divine, the more and more the bliss gets multiplied. When such an infinite divine power is within your own self, why should you be exposed to difficulties?

Today, our old students have assembled here. They are undertaking several types of service activities in various parts of the country and abroad. They are deriving great pleasure out of this service activity.

even

In My opinion, they should confine themselves to their own areas and render service to society, within their means. It is neither good nor necessary to associate others in their service activity, which will turn into business. As far as possible, they should undertake such activities

it

in their respective villages and give them happiness.

In rural areas, there is a vast scope for different service activities. A few decades ago, some people invited Me to shift to bigger cities like

Mysore,

saying that they would provide a big palace for Me. But, as for Me, I don't need palaces. I must stay in this small village. I have not given up My place of birth. In such place alone, mighty tasks need to be accomplished.

So, I refused to move from Puttaparthi, which was then a remote village with no modern facilities.

In those days, if one were to visit Puttaparthi, one had to alight from the train at Penukonda, which was the nearest railhead, and then travel

to this place in a bullock-cart. Such were the conveyances in those days.

But

now, one can straightaway reach Puttaparthi comfortably by air. One had to go to Anantapur by bus in those days for availing oneself of medical services. Now, we have a Super Speciality Hospital right at our doorstep.

Thus, all modern conveniences and facilities are now available in this village of Puttaparthi.
Therefore, there is no better place than a village to live in. The villages are the most valuable assets of a nation. If you serve the villagers properly, nothing could be a greater service than that. Grama seva is Rama seva.
There is no satisfaction in service undertaken in towns and cities. The urban people are indifferent and self-centred. Even if thieves break into a neighbouring house, they will not bother. On the other hand, in the villages, even for a small commotion, all the villagers will gather. Such a type of unity and camaraderie still exists in the villages. Where there
is unity, there will be divinity. Where there is divinity, there will be bliss.
Hence, work sincerely for the development of the village in which you are placed. Thus, all of you should work for the development of your respective villages.
Your activities should not be on the lines of political activities. By associating with various types of people, this turns into a political activity.
I am not happy with that. Do come together for bhajans wherever
you are. But do not allow separatism. All should be united.
Wherever you are, undertake service activities with a spirit of cooperation and unity. Do not strike discordant notes. For ages, India has been a peaceful country and all Indians were united like a big family. But what is the position now? In the olden days, whenever somebody visited a village, all the villagers used to gather round him and enquire about his welfare lovingly. Now, that spirit of love and oneness is lost, totally.
Wherever you go, you will find differences and tensions even on trivial matters. Especially, after Independence, riots and disturbances are taking place in almost every part of the country. The sanctity of human life seems to be totally lost. Human life has no value. People are killed like Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003)
10 ants and mosquitoes. These are inhuman and demonic acts. This is not
what is expected of a human being.

We must transform the divine power latent in us into skill, for undertaking service to society. When knowledge is converted into skill, you acquire balance in life. In such a state of equanimity, you will develop insight.
With such an insight and divine power when you undertake service activity, it will be most fruitful and beneficial to the society.
Every village in the country has to be developed in all respects. You have come from Hyderabad, Madras, America, etc., to participate in service activity. Where is the need for all this? This is not a fair where different people from different parts gather to sell their commodities.
Wherever
you are, develop your area with your service. People of one place may even go to another place for developing that place. But this kind of mixing up of people from different areas adulterates the very purpose. It ends up in confusion, turns into pollution. Do not give scope for confusion and pollution of your mind with unnecessary differences.
You should always undertake service activities with a pure mind.
Unity
brings purity, and purity in turn leads to divinity. Therefore, always remember the inseparable relationship between unity, purity, and divinity
and strive to achieve that. You may come together and work together
in the spirit of sacrifice. But if people from various places come together this way for Grama Seva, no good accrues to the villages. Each has his own feelings and by mixing they get polluted. Then the place becomes a business centre.
Spirituality is not a business activity. Spirituality is a divine mansion.
It is associated with unity. This unity in diversity alone will bring you happiness. I wish that you cultivate that principle of unity. It is only then that the service undertaken by you will acquire value and sanctity.
There is no use polluting the sacred service activity with all sorts of differences.
A small example. Gold is in the form of deposits in the gold mines.
When you take it out and purify it, it becomes pure 24 carat gold. It acquires great value. However, when you add other metals like copper, its value comes down. Not only that. Its brightness also comes down. If you add some more metals, it loses its value altogether. Our heart is like a temple of gold. It is Hiranyagarbha. We should never defile that Hiranyagarbha.

It should always be bright and shining.
Embodiments of Love!
Share love with everybody. Always maintain unity and purity. As you have planned earlier, you can commence your musical programme now.

grandeur and bliss to the festivity. This day is no ordinary day. It marks
the beginning of the sacred Uttarayana (summer solstice). It confers on us plenty and prosperity and helps us to develop virtues and undertake sacred activities. In addition, this day happens to be the auspicious one of Mukkoti Ekadasi also. That is, the day on which the devas (gods)
and asuras (demons) obtained the pot of divine ambrosia (amrita kalasa) after churning the ocean of milk.
Since man has filled his heart with worldly thoughts and feelings, he
is not able to put into practice his innate divine qualities. Hiranyaksha, Hiranyakasipu, Duryodhana, and Kamsa were by no means ordinary.
Though they were very strong in their body and mind, they became weak as they were immersed in worldly feelings. Man can conquer the entire world when his thoughts are noble. Hiranyaksha and Hiranyakasipu were great scientists. Hiranyakasipu could reach not only the moon but even the sun. In spite of all his power, he became weak because he was full

of worldly feelings. Every individual is endowed with mighty power and intelligence. But one should not fill his heart with worldly feelings.
Young men and women of today are the future leaders of the world. The prosperity of the nation depends on its youth. Hence, youth should develop virtues, noble thoughts and sterling character. One who has filled
his heart with noble thoughts can accomplish any great task.

Students - Boys and Girls!
You have participated in the sports and cultural activities with all enthusiasm and gave joy to one and all. Virtues are of paramount importance to youth. Today, students are able to excel in various fields.
But they are not making any effort to understand the fundamental principle by knowing which they would have known everything. In every man there are noble feelings springing forth from within. Every man
is endowed with a mind which is most powerful. Such a mighty power is not present in any other kind of being. The mind is but a bundle of thoughts.
One who has conquered the mind can achieve any mighty task. There
is no power greater than the mind. Manah eva manushyanam
karanam bandhamokshayoh (mind is responsible for both bondage and liberation of man). But today, man is unable to conquer the mind. Consequently, bliss
eludes him.
Students - Boys and Girls!
You have to achieve purity of mind in the first instance. The Sports
and Cultural Meet has come to an end. You should not consider sports as mere worldly and physical activities. They teach you many moral and spiritual principles. A true student is one who achieves excellence in the moral, social, and spiritual fields. One should not strive for physical strength
and happiness only. One should strive hard for the control of the mind.
One

who becomes a slave to his mind is bound to become weak, however powerful one may be. So, you should make the mind your slave. The power of mind is matchless. It is from the mind that the most precious virtues originate. If wealth is lost, it can be earned again. If health is lost, it can be restored with the help of an efficient doctor. But if human values are lost, human life becomes a waste. Human values are the need of the hour. They cannot be acquired solely from sacred texts nor can they be passed on by learned preceptors. They originate from within. When we develop noble thoughts and follow the path of truth in our daily life, human values will blossom in us and protect us under all circumstances.

Embodiments of Love!

More than the worldly education, you should strive to uphold human values, for, all powers are latent in them. Truth is God. Righteousness is the very foundation of life. That is why the culture of Bharat (India) declared, Sathyaannasti paro dharma (there is no dharma greater than adherence to truth). Hence, you should be prepared to sacrifice your life to uphold these twin principles of truth and righteousness. You should not crave for worldly bahu mathi (prize). Man is facing a lot of hardship, as he is unable to control the one mathi (mind) he is endowed with. What will be his plight if he has bahu mathi (many minds)? He will become worse than a monkey. What you should aspire to attain is nija mathi (true Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003)

14 mind), not bahumathi. Nija mathi is the pavitra sukti (sacred message) that originates in your heart. Mind is the source of all types of powers. Hence, you should make friendship with the mind. Once the mind becomes your friend, it redeems your life.

The culture of Bharat has prescribed nine paths of devotion:

sravanam

(listening), kirtanam (singing), Vishnusmaranam (contemplating on Vishnu), Padasevanam (serving His Lotus Feet), vandanam (salutation), archanam (worship), dasyam (servitude), sneham (friendship), and Atmanivedanam (Self-surrender). Self-surrender is possible only after developing friendship with God. Friendship leads to Self-surrender.

So

long as you do not develop friendship, all your talk of self-surrender cannot be translated into action. More than the action, God sees the feeling behind it. Hence, you should foster noble feelings.

Students!

Wherever you are, develop divine feelings and a steady mind.

Sarvam

Vishnumayam jagat (Divinity pervades the entire universe), khalvidam Brahma (verily all this is Brahman). God is not confined to a particular place. He is with you, in you, around you. Just as the eyelid protects the eye, He protects you always. How is it that you have lost faith in such divine power? Having attained human birth, you are supposed to develop human values. On the contrary, you have lost them.

Sarvam

Consequently, you have become weak in body and mind. You may secure high marks in your examinations. At the same time, you should also take care that you do not get any adverse remarks. Today students are going abroad in pursuit of education and wealth. One can acquire the true wealth of values only when one searches the recesses of one's heart.

True

wealth and prosperity are present in our heart and not outside.

Hence,

students should turn their mind inward and develop values. Only then will they have the strength and capacity to emancipate the nation.

Students!

For the past one week, I have been observing the enormous amount of hard work you have put in to make this Sports Meet a grand success. You strove hard, even forgoing your food and sleep. Here, people have to understand the difference in the sports activities of our students and the students elsewhere. The students outside have only one goal in their mind, i.e. to win a prize or a medal, whereas our students only aim is to please Swami. How can you please Swami? First of all, you have to develop virtues. You should have unwavering mind and a steady vision.

You should have firm faith that God is all-pervasive. With faith in God, any mighty task can be accomplished.

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003)

Where there is faith, there is love;

Where there is love, there is truth;

Where there is truth, there is peace;

Where there is peace, there is bliss;

Where there is bliss, there is God.
 Faith is the seed and bliss is the fruit. When a seed is sown, it gradually grows into a huge tree and yields flowers and fruits. In the same manner, when man sows the seed of a sacred thought in the field of his heart, it grows into a gigantic tree of spiritual power and confers the fruits of peace and bliss. Everyone aspires for peace. It cannot be acquired from outside. Peace originates from faith within. But modern man does not have strong faith. He just pretends to have faith. Today, there are very few true devotees; most others are merely pretending. When you have a steady mind, your faith will also be steady.

Students!
 If you want to experience eternal bliss, you should have a strong and unwavering faith. People have no idea what faith actually means.

They say, we believe in God, we love God, but in reality they do not understand the spirit behind the terms love and faith. True love has righteousness as the undercurrent. It originates from the heart and confers bliss. Love is related to the heart, not to an object or an individual. Love is like the air that wafts around in the firmament of human heart. It is around you and sustains you. This is the nature of true love. The synonym of love is dharma. Love is the main goal of our life. That is our way of life. When you fill your heart with love, you will become all-powerful. Even mighty personalities like Hiranyaksha and Hiranyakasipu will be no match to you.

All other powers pale in comparison to the power of love.
 The culture of Bharat (India) has laid great emphasis on the principle of love. It demonstrates the underlying unity in diversity. Names and forms may be different but the inherent divinity is only one. Man is the repository of all powers. He is one of courage, valour, and majesty (dheera, veera, and gambhira). Hanuman is extolled as santhudu, gunavantudu, and balavantudu (one of peace, virtue, and strength).

The divine name of Rama was the basis for all his accomplishments. He could cross the mighty ocean because of his love and faith toward Rama. Today is also the most auspicious day of Mukoti Ekadasi. It is also called as Vaikuntha Ekadasi. The great warrior of Mahabharata war, Bhishma laid down his arms after fighting a heroic battle and lay on the bed of arrows for 56 days. His body was pierced all over with arrows. As he lay on the bed of arrows, his body rested on the arrows, but his head was sagging down for want of support. Meanwhile, the Pandavas along with Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003) 16 Droupadi went there to see Bhishma. They were greatly moved on seeing the condition of Bhishma.

Bhishma said, "I have done my duty in the Kurukshetra war. The body is given to us to protect truth and righteousness. It is dedicated for the welfare of the country. Of what use is it if we do not perform our duty? I have done my duty and I do not regret for the present condition of my body. But, Oh! Arjuna! The arrows shot by you during the war struck only my body. They, however, did not affect my head. Hence, as I lay on this bed of arrows, my head is without a support and is hanging. You gave me a bed, but without a pillow. Please provide a pillow also for me, so that I can comfortably lie down on this bed of arrows."

Arjuna was deeply moved by Bhishma's words. His heart melted. He enquired from Bhishma what he should do to provide comfort to him.

Bhishma requested Arjuna to shoot two arrows into the earth into an X position and then place his head on them. Arjuna did accordingly. Thereafter, Bhishma further requested Arjuna, "Oh! Arjuna! I am the son of Ganga. I, therefore, acquired the name of 'Gangeya'. I am now in the last moment of my life's journey. Please, therefore, provide the Ganga water and help me to merge in my mother, Ganga."

Arjuna was a great warrior and all-powerful. He earned many titles: Arjuna (the pure one), Phalguna (the one born under the star Phalguna), Paarthah (scion of the Prithu clan), Kireeti (crowned one), Swetavaahanah (rider of a milk-white horse), Beebhatsu (eliminator of disgust), Vijayah (embodiment of victory), Krishnah (swarthy one), Savyasaachi (ambidextrous), Dhananjayah (winner of wealth). He shot an arrow into the earth. Immediately, water gushed forth from the earth like a spring and fell into the mouth of Bhishma.

Bhishma was very happy that Arjuna could fulfil his last desire. He expressed his gratitude thus: "Oh! Arjuna! There are several people in this world who help others in different ways. But there is none to help one to return to his mother. Today, you helped me to reach my mother. You provided great joy to me with the help of your dhanus (bow)." So saying, he blessed the Pandavas that they would win the Mahabharata war. Thus, if you wish to earn the blessings of elders, you must provide comfort and solace to them and win their hearts. In the Sports and Cultural Meet held two days ago, our students participated in several sports and games and displayed their talent to please Swami. But this happiness and satisfaction must not be limited to sports. It should pervade every aspect of your life. Your entire life must run smoothly and happily.

Nityanandam, Parama Sukhadam, Kevalam Inanamurtim, Dwandwateetam, Gagana Sadrisham, Tattwamasyadi Lakshyam, Ekam, Nityam, Vimalam, Achalam, Sarvadhee Sakshibhutam, Bhavateetam, Trigunarahitam
(Telugu Poem)
(God is the embodiment of eternal bliss, He is wisdom absolute, the One without a second, beyond the pair of opposites, expansive and pervasive like the sky, goal indicated by the Mahavakya Tattwamasi (I am That), the eternal, pure, unchanging, the witness of all functions of the intellect, beyond all mental conditions and the three gunas (qualities) of sattwa (purity), rajas (passion), and thamas (inertia, laziness)). Every human being must lead a life full of joy. We have the body. We are performing several chores with the help of this body. But, that is not of much importance. There is a great Atmic principle in this body. We must strive to realise that principle. Every human being has a mind. But today, that mind is polluted. Wherever you see, pollution and pollution. The food we eat, the water we drink, the air we breathe, and finally our behaviour itself --everything is polluted. Therefore, ensure that your mind is not polluted by bad thoughts. You must always have a positive mind, not a negative mind. You may undertake a great task, but it cannot succeed if it is undertaken with a negative mind. You must always have a positive mind to experience happiness. You should also share that happiness with others. That is the real nature of a human being. A human being is also called "manava". What is its underlying meaning? It means: he who conducts himself with peace and joy, without doing injustice to others. You must cultivate such noble feelings, free from pollution. Dear Students! You have acquired great academic qualifications. Some of you have acquired more than two postgraduate degrees. This is really a great effort. But it is not enough. You must also acquire the degree of "amruta puthra" (son of immortality), since the Upanishads exhort Srunvanthu viswe amrutasya puthrah (Oh! The sons of immortality, listen!). The degree of "amruta puthra" is the real degree one has to acquire. We should not hanker after trivial titles. Embodiments of Love! Fill your hearts with love. Undertake divine activities. This is the type of education you have to pursue. No doubt, worldly education is also necessary. But, true education is that which teaches unity among all human beings. The main principle of Indian culture is to seek unity in Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003) 18 diversity. It is not to divide unity into diversity. That is true culture. What is culture? It is not related to any particular religion. It is purely related to the heart. It is not a caste or a faith. It is fully associated with divinity. Embodiments of Love! You have provided great happiness to one and all with your display of talents in various events of sports and games. Keep up this happiness throughout your life. True love lies in realising the Ekatma Bhava. That is the real love which does not change with the passage of time. It is eternal. No doubt, you love Swami with all your heart. But that love should not be a fleeting love. You must always develop the feeling, "I belong to Swami and Swami belongs to me." Only then you will achieve oneness with Swami. That is the real sadhana (spiritual exercise). That is the true path. The creation emerges from truth and merges into truth, Is there a place where truth does not exist? Visualise such pure and unsullied truth. (Telugu Poem) It is said, "Truth is God." You may belong to any country or religion, but truth is the same for one and all. There is nothing like American truth, Pakistan truth, etc. Truth is truth. Embodiments of Love! Lead a life full of truth. Lead the life of an eternal being. Lead an ideal life,

which is an example to others to emulate. An education that teaches such a sadhana (spiritual exercise) is the true education. It is not to transform your brain into a book shelf. True happiness lies in your own heart.

Realise it.
Embodiments of Love!
Wherever you are, in whatever circumstances you are placed in, do
not ever forget God. Sarvada sarva kaleshu sarvatra Hari chintanam (Everywhere, at all times, under all circumstances contemplate on God).

Devoid of God, you will become devils verily. You must live like embodiments of Divine Atma, not devils.

The Upanishads declare, Srunvanthu viswe amrutasya puthrah (Oh! The

sons of immortality, listen!). You are "amruta puthras" (sons of immortality). Live up to that name. Only then your life will become fruitful

and sanctified.

Whatever activity you undertake, dedicate it to God. All the powers in your body are the gifts of God. In fact, divinity pervades every inch,
every

cell and every atom of your body. If you waste such a divine power, it amounts to sacrilege. Dedicate your body, mind, and intellect, in fact, everything of yours, to God. The games you play should not be limited
to one day. In fact, Life is a game; play it. Unity is divinity. Whatever you do, whatever you speak, whatever you think --in every aspect of your lif--

that unity must reflect. That is the true culture of the Bharatiyas dharmam

these two principles throughout your life. With blessings, I conclude

3. EXPERIENCE OF UNITY IS REAL

Date: 01 March 2003

(evening)

Occasion:

Mahasivarathri

Place: Prasanthi

Nilayam

Oh spiritual aspirants!

Whether one is a renunciant or a householder,
whether one is attached to the world or not,
whether one performs actions or not,
when one realises that the same Atmic principle is present in oneself as well as in others,
one will always experience and enjoy the company of God in all three states of existence.

(Sanskrit Sloka)

Devotees should recognise the unity of the Atmic principle that exists
in all beings. Satsang (good company) is very essential to understand

the oneness of Atmic principle. Satsang does not mean association with good people, devotees, or spiritual aspirants. 'Sath' is that which is changeless

in all the three periods of time. It is the Atmic principle. When sath
and chit come together, what results is ananda (bliss). Sath-chit-ananda is the very form of Atma. This is referred to as Transcendental Truth. In order to understand this truth, three mantras are to be practised. They are Bhadram Trunvantu, Bhadram Srunvantu, and Bhadram

Kurvantu. When

you practise these three principles, you don't need to search for God.

BBhadram Trunvan means, "I am not different from the Atma."

There is no entity in this world other than the Atma. Bhadram Srunvantu means "I do not listen to anything else." Bhadram Kurvantu means "I don't need to perform any sadhana (spiritual exercise)." When one recognises the oneness of the Atmic principle, where is the need to undertake any sadhana? Every sound that is heard is a resound of the Atmic principle. One who realises this will not listen to anything other than the Atma.

Divinity is the essence of all actions. Bhadram Trunvantu, Bhadram Srunvantu, and Bhadram Kurvantu means that the divine darshan,

divine

sambhashan and divine activities are embodied only in God. Hence,
to live

always in the company of God is true satsang.

God is one. He is referred to as Sath. Ekam sath viprah bahudha vadanti

(Truth is one, but the wise call it by different names). That which is changeless in all the three periods of time is Sath'. You should live in the company of the One who is changeless, with unwavering mind and steady vision. Your thoughts, words, and deeds should be steady and sacred. But due to the impact of Kali Age, modern youth find it difficult to control their thoughts, words, and deeds. They do not have steady vision. They do not keep up their word. Their activities belie their thoughts and words. Manasyekam vachasyekam karmanyekam mahatmanam Manasyanyath vachasyanyath karmanyanyath duratmanam Those whose thoughts, words, and deeds are in complete harmony are noble; Those who lack harmony of these are wicked. Your deeds should be in consonance with your thoughts and words. Harmonising thoughts, words, and deeds is true satsang. To experience the oneness of Self is true satsang. The Atma is only one. It attracts the entire world. What is prakriti (nature)? It consists of objects that delude man. All objects in nature are transitory. You do not find anything permanent. They attract man and delude him. The objects that are temporary in nature will give only momentary happiness. The Vedas speak about the principle of ritam. It symbolises the truth that is changeless. All worldly objects undergo change. When you develop ritam, you will be able to understand the changeless and eternal Divinity. You may question, "How can I have the vision of God?" Oh simpleton! You don't need to search for God! Wherever you see, He is there. He is imbued in every object. You are unable to see Him because you are deluded by external appearances. Pashyati iti pashuhu (that which goes purely by external vision is an animal). Whatever you see, whatever you experience is but the manifestation of God. In fact, you are God yourself. Hence, the Veda exhorts man to develop faith that "I am God and God is none other than myself." Names and forms are many, but God is one. Sarvam khalvidam Brahma (verily all this is Brahman). Such unity in Divinity has to be realised. There is underlying unity in apparent diversity.

Satsang means experience of unity.

Today, people think that satsang means a congregation of spiritual aspirants. People join such congregations and think that they are in satsang. But it is not satsang in the true sense of the term because people whom you think to be good may turn wicked. They are bound to change. How can such temporary association confer everlasting happiness? It is impossible. Till this day, people have not understood the true meaning of satsang and its significance. Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003)

Tell me your company I shall tell you who you are. When you associate yourself with ephemeral things, the results also are bound to be transitory. You should develop friendship with Divinity, which alone is true and eternal. Divinity is very much present in you. You cannot find it outside. The external world is subject to change. The world is nothing but a combination of matter. Everything in this world is transitory. Nothing is permanent. All that is seen in this world is illusory. The unseen Atmic principle alone is true and eternal. If you pose the question, "Where is God?" some people will say, "He is in me", pointing to their body. Body is not permanent. Hence, this is not a proper answer. (Swami holding a rose) When I say the flower is in My hand, the flower is smaller than Me. In the same manner, when you say God is in you, you are bigger than God! In fact, the whole world is in the hands of God. Hence, it is not proper to say that God is in you. You are in God. All are in God. The world itself is a manifestation of God. This is the Transcendental Truth. This is the changeless truth. The word Sivam symbolises truth. Here, truth does not correspond to your body. It corresponds to the changeless and eternal Sath. Today, people go by the physical and worldly meanings and, as a result, spoil their mind. Man's life can be compared to a tree. Asuya (jealousy) and ahamkara (ego) are like pests that destroy the tree of life. The day man rids himself of these pests, he can become a true human being. What you have to know today is the principle of eternal and changeless truth. Our Narasimhamurthi (one of the previous speakers) said Divinity is in the form of the Atmic principle. How can one visualise the Atma? The Atma has no form. How can one visualise that which is formless? Bliss is the form of the Atma. It is present in everyone. Man is the embodiment of ananda. But he is unable to experience bliss because he is deluded by the material objects. One should not crave for materialistic possessions. How long can they last? Here is a flower. Now it looks fresh, but by tomorrow it will fade away. Likewise all objects are bound to change with the passage of time.

The Atma is permanent. Ananda is permanent. Bliss can only be experienced; it cannot be expressed in words. None can explain the nature of bliss. It can be understood only by experience. As I told you earlier, your drishti (vision), sravanam (audition), and karma (action) should be constantly focused on the Atma. Then you will certainly experience nijananda, nityananda and advaitananda (true, eternal, and non-dual bliss).

People sit in meditation for some time and start shedding tears of joy. They say they have experienced bliss. It is nothing but their imagination.

Bliss is not that which comes and goes. It is permanent. In whatever Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003)

state you may be, waking, dream or deep sleep, you should be able to experience it continuously.

Embodiments of Love!

You should strive to attain Atmic bliss right from a young age. That should be your only endeavour. Your thoughts, words, and deeds should be aimed at this. This can be termed as true satsang. Worldly experiences, however long one may enjoy them, cannot confer the eternal bliss.

You

can experience the eternal bliss only in the company of God. All the worldly activities and experiences are bound to change. The Atma alone is changeless. This is referred to as ritam in Sanskrit. In order to experience this eternal principle, you should give up body attachment and understand the truth that the Atma in you is the same as the one in others. Just as the same electric current flows in different bulbs, the same Atma is present in all beings. Ekatma sarva bhutantaratma

(the one Atma is present in all beings). But, today, man does not have such broad-mindedness. In order to experience divinity, which is the very form of love, you have to become the very personification of love. Divinity and love are not separate. Since man is endowed with such sacred divine principle, it is said, Jantunam nara janma durlabham (out of all living beings, human birth is the rarest).

Today man does not enquire as to what is gamyamu (goal of life). Instead of trying to know the goal of life, he is worrying about his janmam (worldly life). Even animals and insects are concerned about their worldly existence. It is not essential to know the secret of life; one should know the purpose of life. That is very important. The goal of our life is Truth which is symbolised by the principle of Atma. Instead of enquiring into the goal of life, man is trying to know the secret of life. It is a futile exercise.

Any number of births will not be sufficient to know this. Fix your mind on the gamyamu (goal). Do not worry about the janmam (life).

The Adi Sankara said,

Punarapi Jananam Punarapi Maranam

Punarapi Janani Ithare Sayanam

Iha Samsare Bahu Dustare

Kripayapare Pahi Murare.

Oh Lord! I am caught up in this cycle of birth and death; time and again, I am experiencing the agony of staying in the mother's womb.

It is very difficult to cross this ocean of worldly life.

Please take me across this ocean and grant me liberation.

You are born again and again, seeing, doing, and experiencing what you have already seen, done, and experienced. You should realise that you are born not to be born again. You should see and experience that by which your life will find fulfilment. That is the oneness of Atmic principle.

Once you have experienced the Atma, you do not need to experience anything else.

Thousands have gathered here today. Each of you has a different form and behaviour. But the Atmic effulgence that shines in all of you is one and the same. When a bulb is glowing, one may sit and do his homework.

Another person may write accounts with wrong calculations. Yet another person may write a letter with evil motives. Whatever one may do, the light is unaffected and untainted. It remains a witness. Likewise, the

Atma

also remains an eternal witness to all that man does. External activities undergo change, but the eternal truth of Atma remains the same at all times.

God is one; goal is one. The same is conveyed in the following statements: "I am in the light; the light is in me, I am the light." Here 'I' symbolises love and devotion and light stands for wisdom. When you say,

"I am in the light," it means devotion is contained in wisdom. The statement "the light is in me" reflects the truth that wisdom is contained in devotion. Light and love --you have to understand the unity of these two.

Devotion is an essential prerequisite to know the reality. You should develop love more and more and ultimately transform it into wisdom.

You should not follow the vagaries of the mind. Come what may, your vision must be firmly implanted on the Atma. With such one-pointed devotion, sages and seers of yore performed penance and experienced bliss.

Today people chant mantras and perform japa (soft repetition of the name).

They do so for the sake of their mental satisfaction. They want to attain peace. In fact, what they get out of such practices is not peace but pieces! In a rosary there are 108 beads, but the thread that strings them together is one and same. It symbolises Divinity.

Divinity is like a magnet that attracts the entire world. In some places, this power of attraction is maximum. It is something very special.

Here is an example. So many of you have gathered here. Who sent you invitations? It is the Divine Magnet that has drawn you here. This magnet is present not only here, but everywhere. Here, there, and everywhere,

Divinity is present in the form of Atma. Here you can experience the power of divine attraction. Such power cannot be acquired for the mere asking. It can be acquired only through love. Love is something that originates from the 'source'. It cannot be obtained by 'force'. Worldly knowledge can be thrust on you, but love has to spring forth from within in a natural way. Love is God. Love alone can confer true wisdom.

Inanad
evatu kaivalyam (wisdom leads to liberation).

Worldly knowledge is associated with multiplicity. Love enables you to visualise unity in multiplicity. Hence, you should develop love and understand the fundamental truth that the same Self is present in all. Different people partake of different items to satisfy their hunger.

Food items are different, but hunger is the same. You should understand such unity.

Each one of you may undertake a different sadhana (spiritual practice).

Whatever may be the sadhana, it should be performed with Atmic feeling.

You should make efforts to understand the principle of oneness. That alone constitutes true sadhana.

The principle of love in you should be steady. However, the love in modern youth keeps vacillating. One day it is sacred and the very next day, it is unsacred. Such love cannot be termed as true devotion.

Ekam

Sath (Divinity is one). You are in the light and the light is in you. Bear this in your mind. Ultimately, you will realise that "I am I". If you want to understand the principle of Atma, you should not give scope to multiplicity. All that you see and hear in this world are merely reflections, reactions, and resounds. The reality is within you.

I see many students here. Where have they come from? They are My reflections. Otherwise, they cannot be seen. Likewise, every person and every object is your own reflection. Life is like an ocean with the waves of Samyoga (union) and Viyoga (separation). You should treat this duality with equanimity. The principle of Atma is beyond union and separation. To Me, there is neither samyoga nor viyoga. Viyoga results only when there is Atma. They are but your imagination. In order to realise the principle of Atma, you have to get rid of such imagination and develop the faith Ekam Sath. It is only one and not two. It is changeless and remains the same at all times and in all states of existence. You should join satsang to know this truth.

This body is an angamu (limb) of society. There exists a sangamu (association of attributes) in angamu, a jangamu (individual soul) in sangamu, and Lingamu (Paramatma) in jangamu. Linga is Atma, which is our very life principle. That is why the Atma is considered to be of the form of Linga. A Linga has neither a beginning nor an end. It has no head or feet. Hence, when you perform worship, you can keep it anyway you like. The Atma has a name but not a specific form. Bliss is its true form. It is very much present in us. When you crave for external happiness, you lose your innate bliss also.

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003)

26

Today is the auspicious day of Sivarathri. What is Sivam? It means auspiciousness. God is the embodiment of Sathyam, Sivam,

Sundaram

(Truth, Auspiciousness, Beauty). All that you see, hear, and experience should be offered to God.

Tridalam Trigunakaram Trinetramcha Triyayudham;

Trijanma Papa Samharam Eka Bilvam Sivarpanam.

Offer a trifoliate Bbleaf to Lord Siva, the three-eyed Lord, having trident in His hand, which destroys the sins of three births.

People undertake various sadhanas (spiritual exercises) and different modes of worship on the basis of their own imagination. Whatever may be the sadhanas, one should not give up the resolve. One should have single-pointed attention. One should listen only to the principle of oneness. One should offer one's actions to God.

Karmanyevadhikarasthe

ma phaleshu kadachana (Action is thy duty, fruit is not thy concern)

Whatever you do, let it be pleasing unto God. Sarva karma Bhagavad preethyartham (do all actions to please God). Then no sin will accrue to

you. There is no easier path than this to experience the Atmic principle.

Today, as different people follow different paths, troubles are on the rise.

Such delusion is leading to confusion. As a result of this confusion, you lose the 'fuse' that links you and God. In fact, you are God. I am God. He is God. Everything is God. In order to understand this truth, you should rise from the level of the human to the Divine. You should know the principle of Sath, which is the underlying unity in diversity. You should not give scope to differences based on akara (form).

You should experience ananda (bliss) by being in the company of God.

God is your true property. When you experience ananda, you become God yourself. Give up differences. All are in God. Keep this unity in mind.

Being students, you may pursue your studies. All your studies take place at the physical level. Along with your studies, contemplate on the principle of oneness at the mental level. Allah, Jesus, Rama, Krishna -- names are different, but God is one. Have unflinching faith in the unity of divinity. Undertake sadhana that will enable you to realise the changeless and eternal principle of Truth.

If you attribute various names and forms to God, you will not be able to realise the Truth. Names and forms are subject to change. Who was

Rama? He was the son of Dasaratha. Who was Krishna? He was the son of Yashoda. In this manner, you will remember only their physical relationships.

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003)

When you worship God without attributing any particular name and form, the question of His physical relationship does not arise. There will be no differences whatsoever. Who is the mother of God? In fact, He is the mother of all. Today we find differences because we attribute various names and forms and physical relationships to God. You should get rid of such relationships.

Isavasyam idam jagat (the entire world is permeated by God).

Easwara

sarva bhutanam (God is the Indweller of all beings). When you contemplate on these twin principles, you can visualise unity in humanity.

There will be intimate relationship between man and man. When you think of Divinity, you will not have any differences or difficulties. Difficulties come and go like passing clouds. You don't need to worry about them. Keep your vision fixed on the sun. Sometimes, clouds cover the sun. Then you don't need to be worried about it. Have patience. When the clouds move away, the sun will be visible again. In the same manner, the clouds of worldly delusions come in the way of Atmic vision. In such situations, you should not let your mind waver. Have patience. The 'clouds' will recede and the 'sun' will reappear.

Embodiments of Divine Atma!

You may get some thoughts, which are like clouds. Do not be carried away by them. Do not pay heed to all and sundry and ruin yourself.

You

should rise to the level of Divine and not degenerate to the level of demon. In order to rise to the level of divine, satsang is very essential.

"One thought, one vision, and one action." These three must be unified.

Sivarathri is celebrated to recognise the oneness of Divinity.

When you do bhajans tonight, you will have only one thought. You will experience the bliss of bhajans. It is the nondual bliss. Why is it prescribed that you should do bhajans all through the night? Bhajan

is done to control the mind and focus it on Divinity. Some people keep discussing worldly matters even while they are doing bhajan. Do not go

anywhere near such people.

Tyaja Durjana Samsargam;

Bhaja Sadhu Samagamam;

Kuru Punyam Ahorathram.

Give up bad company;

join good company; and

perform meritorious deeds day and night.

You should constantly think of the Atmic principle. Your parents may try to tell you about some worldly matters. They may lack discrimination. Why should you listen to such matters knowing fully well that they are useless? Let them say anything. Do not waver from your chosen path.

You should convince your mother saying, "Mother, you have your own

likes and dislikes and I have my own. You are my mother and I am your son, yet our thoughts and feelings are different. Being your son, I will serve you and express my gratitude to you. But I cannot deviate from

the

path of truth."

Tonight, Lingodbhavam will take place. I created this Linga in answer to his (B. N. Narasimhamurthi's) prayer. But another Linga will emerge from

in

My hand. The Lingas that come from the hand, from the stomach,

from the mouth --all are one. Wherever you see, there is the principle of

Atma.

Understand this unity. Along with your education, develop Atmic feeling.

When you develop Atmic feeling, evil qualities like hatred, jealousy, etc., will not come near you. You will not be perturbed by pain and suffering.

You will be in a state of non-dualism. That is true bliss.

Focus your mind on God. Follow His command. Then your life will be redeemed. Now you can commence bhajans.

Bhagawan concluded His Discourse with the bhajan, "Sathyam Anantham Brahma".

Inanam

4. LET UNITY BE THE UNDERCURRENT
EVERYWHERE

Date: 02 March 2003

(morning)

Occasion:

Mahasivarathri

Place: Prasanthi

Nilayam

None there is who is all knowing

Nought are there of heads empty

Some there are who are of something aware

Alone is He, the omniscient

Sambasiva.

Embodiments of Love!

The message of holy Sivarathri is to spread the ideal and sanctity of this most auspicious day to one and all. The principle of unity is slowly declining among the people of the world. There is strife and discord between even two brothers of the same small family.

In the divine family of Lord Siva, there are only four members, namely,

Lord Easwara, his consort Parvati, and the two sons, Subramanya and Vinayaka. This is an ideal family. There is no difference of opinion whatsoever either between husband and wife or the two brothers.

There

is perfect accord and harmony in their family. Mother Parvati and Lord

Parameswara wanted to set an example to the whole world in the matter of a most harmonious, perfect and loving relationship between a wife and husband and between brothers.

A family is the most important functional unit in the world. If the family is running on sound lines, the world will also run smoothly. If the unity among the family members suffers even to a small extent, the world will face the repercussions. Unity gives strength to the lives of the family members. Therefore, every family should strive for achieving unity

and harmonious relationship among its members. Every family should strive to emulate the example of Lord Siva's family. Today, even if there are only two sons in a family, there is no harmony between them. Similar is the case of husband and wife. This is not the position in respect of Lord

Siva's family. The vehicles they ride, the circumstances in which they function, the wealth they possess --in fact, in every aspect, the members of this divine family set an example to the whole world.

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003)

For example, Lord Siva's vehicle is Nandi, the bull. Mother Parvati's vehicle is the Lion. The younger son, Subramanya's vehicle is the peacock, whereas the elder son Vinayaka's is the tiny mouse. They move about the whole world on such strange vehicles, which are antagonistic in nature, they but still lead a perfect and harmonious family life. You do not find such harmony in present day-families. Suppose the younger brother's wife wears some new ornaments; the elder brother's wife becomes jealous. Similarly, in several situations in day-to-day life, you will find internal bickerings in the family instead of peace and unity. Normally, a lion and a bull are not good friends. The lion looks at the bull as a prey and the bull fears the lion. But, in the case of Lord Siva's vehicle, i.e. the Bull, and Mother Parvati's vehicle, the Lion, there is perfect harmony and absence of fear. When do we have fear or anxiety? Only when there is some fault in us. When there are no faults of any kind in anybody, there is no scope for fear at all! Today, man is exposed to fear and anxiety even in small matters, since he is suffering from faults. These faults are responsible for fear, anxiety, restlessness, hatred, and anger. Hence, if we are to live in peace and harmony, we must strive to remove the faults in us. In fact, there is no sorrow in man. He is Anandaswarupa, the embodiment of divine bliss. In spite of that, if he suffers from sorrow, it is because of his own evil traits. Sorrow has not suddenly descended on him from somewhere. The sorrow is the reaction, reflection, and resound of the evil qualities in him. If someone is ridiculing you, take it that it is not the other person but your own evil feelings being returned to you in the shape of ridicule. Lord Siva has no special ornaments on His body. All his ornaments are the serpents that He wears round his neck, the matted locks, the crescent moon, the cool water of the Ganga and the vibhuti (holy ash) that he smears all over His body. This Divine form of Lord Siva is beautifully portrayed thus:

Lo! Behold The Lord of the icy peak
Crowned with crescent moon,
Glistening matted locks,
Bedrenched by heaven descending Ganga
Flaming eye in the forehead,
Venomous potion - poison - Halahala Purpling the beauteous neck Live bracelets of wriggling Serpents and a belt of Cobra holding up the Elephant hide, his sole garment.

Pearly ash smearing the chest
Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003)
31
A blinding white Spot of vermillion on the Forehead beside the searing eye Ruddy lips smeared by Fresh chewed betel, Diamond studded earrings Of purest gold, dancing like Stars twinkling in the sky,
Vision negating form
The fair person of the Lord Radiating Effulgence Divine.
(Telugu Poem)
Lord Siva has donned this divine form in order to teach a renunciant outlook to the world, including his consort, Parvati. His another habit is to beg for alms. The opulent form essaying Total detachment, begging bowl In hand, seeking alms For a frugal meal At the heavenly abode, Kailasa. Parvati, however, did not develop any aversion or disgust toward her husband, Lord Siva, on account of His strange attire or habits. She did not run away from Him saying, "How can I lead a family life with such a person?" She faithfully followed Him, submitting herself to His wishes and happiness. Both of them lived in peace and harmony. Now about their sons. The vehicle of the younger son, Lord Subramanya, is the peacock, which is by nature an enemy of the serpents worn as ornaments by the father. The serpents begin hissing at the sight of a peacock. They hate each other. Similarly, the vehicle of the elder son, Lord Vinayaka, is the rat, which again is a natural prey of the serpent. They are bitter enemies. In spite of such divergent natures, all the members of the family of Lord Siva lived happily in perfect peace. Each member, while discharging their duty, provided happiness and joy to others. Even in the form of Lord Siva Himself, there are apparent contradictions. He has Ganga on His head and the crescent moon in His matted locks. These are signs of coolness. In contrast to these, He has literally fire in the third eye in His forehead. Thus, there is cool water on His head and fire below on His forehead. These two are conflicting forces. Yet they maintained perfect harmony and set an example to the world. Thus, there was not even slightest difference of opinion or discordant note in the universal family of Lord Siva. It is a perfectly ideal family, which the entire world should emulate.

In sharp contrast to this situation, there is bitter hatred today between one person and another. Hatred is ruling all fields in the world. Even in the same family, there is discord between husband and wife, between Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003) parents and children, and between brothers. Lord Siva and Mother Parvati by their own example are exhorting the entire world to shed hatred and enmity.

But who is listening to such teachings? Who is putting them in practice?

People chant the name of God with great devotion but fail to emulate the example shown by God. What is the use of worshipping God when you do not follow His ideals? How can you obtain divine grace if you go against the teachings of God? On account of food and habits, several ill-feelings develop in man. But you should try to control them. You should not allow them to manifest as hatred toward others. You should never allow jealousy to grow in you. Today, every human being is afflicted with the disease of jealousy and hatred. In fact, the root cause of all evil qualities in man is jealousy. Jealousy leads to anger. Jealousy and hatred can destroy a human being totally.

Man can really enjoy great happiness if he gets rid of jealousy and hatred.

In fact, man himself is an embodiment of bliss. It is his inherent nature.

Sorrow is not his nature. Man is an embodiment of love, peace, and bliss.

Why then is he afflicted with sorrow? It is because of flouting the divine commands. This is the reaction of going against the divine Will. The reaction, reflection, and resound of this calamity is the root cause for all the sorrows of a human being.

Here is a small example. You see a person approaching you and you think that he is your enemy. The moment this feeling of hatred develops in you, you start fighting with him. Instead, you try to greet him saying "Hello brother! How are you?" When you extend love to others, others also will extend you love. On the other hand, the moment you see a person, if you move away from him, he will do the same thing to you. As the action, so is the reaction. Therefore, we have to ensure that our actions are good.

In fact, there are no bad people in this world. All are good. You say that those who oppose you are all bad people. If you do not exhibit bad qualities, how can the other man behave badly? Your own bad qualities reflect in others. Hence, every person must cultivate good feelings and good behaviour. One should conduct himself in such a way that one does not go against the divine commands. Only then will one have peace and security in your life. You may participate in a number of bhajans, worship

God in several forms, and observe ever so many religious vows --yet, if you do not cultivate sacred feelings in your heart, what is the use?

Man should cultivate the noble quality of a tender heart. Love and compassion should reflect in his heart. If there are no such feelings,

he will become a demon, verily. That is why it is called hridaya. The etymology of the word is hri + daya = hridaya (storehouse of compassion). Among all the living beings, the human being is the only Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003)

one endowed with the quality of daya (compassion). That is why he is said to hav a hridaya. An ideal human being is the one having a compassionate heart.

Embodiments of Love!

You have such a sacred and compassionate heart. Why then you should drown yourself in sorrow? This is all because of the reflection, reaction, and resound of your inner feelings. You will be going through a newspaper early in the morning. Wherever you see, you will find unrest, news items of someone killing another, hatred, jealousy, anger, etc. All this news leads you to a very unhappy and polluted atmosphere.

When you get up from bed after a sound sleep in the night, you must have a peaceful mind. Only then there will be no scope for unrest in your life. Right from the early morning you must lead a life of peace and happiness. You may have sorrows and difficulties; but they are only passing clouds, which come and go. They should not really bother

you. It is only when you take them to heart and cling to them that you suffer.

If

you ignore them, they will not bother you.
 You get a postal cover addressed to you. Normally, there will be a 'from' address and a 'to' address on any postal cover. Without these addresses, the cover will go to the dead-letter office. Man should, therefore, see both the addresses, i.e. from and to. You must first enquire into yourself "where do I come from?". In pursuance of this enquiry, you must discover and assure yourself that your source is God. Since you come from God, you will have noble feelings. Your 'from' address is God and your 'to' address is human nature. If you remember these two, your life will go on smoothly. Since your origin or 'from' address is Divinity, you should always obey the divine command. Among all the living beings in the creation, only the human being has been given this privilege. In fact, this is the ideal set before him by God. Further, it is only in the Bharatadesa that such noble ideas are imparted from generation to generation. In spite of all these ideals set before us, we are unable to live in peace, since we are not following them. You may follow any one or all the nine forms of devotion like sravanam (listening), kirtanam (singing), vishnusmaranam (contemplating on Vishnu), padasevanam (serving His lotus feet), vandanam (salutation), archanam (worship), dasyam (servitude), sneham (friendship), and Atmanivedanam (Self-surrender). More than following any or all the nine forms of devotion, it is the inner feeling or motive behind the forms of bhakti (devotion) that is important. Your inner feeling must always be pure. Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003)
 Of all the nine forms of devotion, sneha (friendship) is the most important. It is only when you cultivate this feeling of friendship with God that you can reach the last stage of Atmanivedanam (self-surrender). For this purpose, you must have a pure heart, which in turn is based on love and devotion. You must have pure and selfless love toward one and all. Such love is not a one-way traffic. Today, we are prepared to receive love from all people, we but are hesitant to share our love with others. It should be a give and take policy. Love begets Love. You must also be prepared to receive love from others. Love is a gift of God. In fact, you must rise to such a level that whatever is given by God, you must be prepared to receive wholeheartedly. At times, God also gives you a bitter pill like the doctor. This is for your own good. Suppose you have an ulcer in your stomach. The surgeon opens your stomach with a knife and removes the ulcer. Since he cut you with a knife, do you charge him with hatred toward you? No, no. It is only in your interest that he has performed the operation. Similarly, at times, God also will put you to some difficulties. Even that is only in your interest; for your good only. Both happiness and sorrow are God's gifts. They are His divine grace. Nobody can comprehend His divine leelas. You must always live in unity. Whatever activity you undertake, unity should be the undercurrent. All people should live in peace and harmony. The previous morning, you sang some bhajans. How melodious and devotional they were! How joyous they were! It was only because all of you sang the bhajans in one voice. Particularly, the three boys, Prasanth, Kavi Kumar's son, and Ravi Kumar, sang the bhajans in perfect sruthi (tune), laya (modulation) and thala (rhythm). The boy who played the flute gave them a good support. They gave so much joy to the audience. Where can you get such joy and happiness? Where can you see such unity? Nowadays, wherever you go, you will hear a lot of noise and sound in the name of Sivarathri. You will not find anywhere in the world this type of divine atmosphere surcharged with devotion. Every activity undertaken in Prasanthi Nilayam is divine and in perfect peace and harmony. Everything is surcharged with love and devotion. God is love and love is God. God has to be attained only through love. Hence, all of you should become Premaswarupas (embodiments of divine love). You should live in perfect harmony wherever you are. Never give room for hatred. Even if you come across an opponent, greet him with love. He will automatically respond with love, since the whole world is filled with reaction, reflection and resound. Suppose there is unrest in your mind. It is not because of external factors. Your own deficiencies and faults are being reflected in the form of unrest.

35

If you wish to attain happiness, live in happiness. The universal family of Lord Siva, Mother Parvati, Subramanya, and Vinayaka are the perfect example for this principle. Cultivate their example. Worship them.

But a

caution: you may worship a picture as God, but not God as a picture.

Therefore, you worship the Easwara family by following their example.

The message of this holy Sivarathri is to live in unity and harmony with everyone. Particularly, the brothers in a family should never fight; they must be united, like the Pandavas. Only by their unity could the Pandavas obtain the divine grace of Lord Krishna. Anything can be achieved with unity. Take for example, the five fingers in the hand. It is only when the five fingers join together that we can accomplish any task. The were one hundred in number, but they were not united for a good cause.

Ultimately, what fate had befallen them? Similarly, Vali and Sugriva in the Ramayana. They were in fact brothers. Due to some differences, they developed hatred against one another. In the end, Vali met his end in the hands of Rama.

The ultimate goal of this Sivarathri is to develop unity among humanity, whatever be the obstacles, whatever be the difficulties and whatever be the provocations. You should never make use of harsh words while speaking to others. Always speak sweetly and softly, with a loving heart.

Dear students and devotees!

You have all assembled here with a pure heart on this auspicious day of Mahasivarathri. Wherever you are, you must always have a pure heart.

When the heart is pure and sacred, you can undertake sacred activities.

When the vessel is pure, the contents in the vessel can also be pure. Even if the vessel is made of gold, if there is poison in the vessel, the contents get poisoned. On the contrary, even if the vessel is made of earth, the gold that is kept in the vessel will remain pure. It is not the vessel, but the material that is important. We must always keep our heart as pure gold and fill it with sweet love.

You are students of the Sathya Sai Institute of Higher Learning. You are growing under the loving care of Swami. Swami does not expect anything from you. Education in the Sathya Sai Institute is totally free.

Whatever

your requirements, I am providing them free of cost. Did you come across anywhere in the world such educational institutions? Today, you will find people booking seats in educational institutions even before the child is born. They pay a lump sum amount to the school in advance for reservation of seats in the 1st standard. It is only in the Sri Sathya

Sai

Institute of Higher Learning that you will not find such advance bookings.

There is no advance for anything in Prasanthi Nilayam. Wherever you go, you must live up to the ideals of your education. Whatever you have learned here, share it with all.

Embodiments of Love!

Love is My only property. In fact, it should be the same with you as well. I do not seek anything from anybody. You live in love. Share your love with everybody. Only when you lead a life filled with love your life will become pure and sacred. In fact, every activity undertaken in Prasanthi Nilayam will be pure and peaceful.

Thousands of people have gathered here on the holy occasion of Mahasivarathri. Did you here any noise? No. Not even one child cries. No

one sneezes or coughs. Such a calm, serene, peaceful, and divine atmosphere is pervading this hall. If you are not able to get peace in such a divine atmosphere, where else you can?

Never speak harshly to anybody. Several people today pose themselves as devotees but take to evil ways. This is not a mark of devotion. In fact, such behaviour goes against the concept of devotion. A dissonance between thought, word, and deed is the characteristic of an evil-minded person. That is why it is said, "Manasyanyath, vachasyanyath, karmanyanyath durathmanam" (those whose thought, word, and deed are at variance are wicked)." You should not join the company of such people.

On the other hand you should join the company of real devotees who live up to the principle of "Manasyekam, vachasyekam, karmanyekam mahatmanam (those who maintain perfect accord between thought,

word,

and deed are great)."

The most important characteristic of a devotee is good behaviour. If he does not possess this characteristic, he is not a devotee at all, he is a great sinner. You are students of this great institution. Wherever you go,

you must be recognised by your good behaviour. There are several past students of this Institute, living in foreign countries like America, Japan, Germany, etc. They are still recognised in those countries as students of the Sathya Sai Institute of Higher Learning. They bring credit to the Institution.

You need not give anything to Sai. Lead a life of character and good behaviour. That is the only thing I want. That is the only thing that gives me joy. Not only the students, the devotees must also ensure good behaviour. They must feel that they are the members of the universal family of Lord Siva. Mother Parvati constitutes the body, whereas

Lord

Siva represents the heart. When the body and heart join together as a dwelling, human nature resides there. This is called Prakriti. The human body represents Pravritti, whereas the Atma residing in the body represents Nivritti. The unity of this Pravritti and Nivritti is human nature.

Having been born in such a sacred human nature, people are forgetting

their innate divinity.

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003)

37

Lastly, I wish to advise you that you should never give scope for ego

to dominate your actions. Wherever there is ego, there lies danger.

Therefore, shed your ego and cultivate pure and selfless love toward

one and all. There is nothing in this world that cannot be achieved with love. I conclude My discourse with the blessing that the divine vibrations of today's namasankirtanam spread to the whole world and grant

good

qualities, good practices, and good behaviour to all people.

Bhagavan concluded His Divine Discourse with the bhajan "Prema

ATTAIN PEACE AND HAPPINESS

Date: 16 March 2003 Occasion: Discourse Place: Brindavan

There is none in this world who knows everything.

Similarly, nowhere do you find a person who does not know anything.

One who knows a little is also ignorant.

It is only Sambasiva, who is all-knowing.

(Telugu Poem)

Embodiments of Love!

Everyone aspires to get rid of sorrow and enjoy happiness. In order to rise to the level of Divine from the level of human, satsanga is very essential. Life becomes meaningless if one does not join satsanga.

What

is the meaning of satsanga? Many are under the mistaken notion that satsanga means joining the company of devotees. 'Sat'

symbolises

the principle of Truth, which is changeless in all the three periods of time.

Man should constantly contemplate on such eternal principle.

What is the purpose of human birth? It is not merely to eat, drink, and make merry. Paropakarakartham idam sariram (human body is meant to serve others). Man should dedicate himself to the service of society.

God

has endowed man with all powers. Human body is bound by senses, which are responsible for both good and evil. Hence, it is the foremost duty of man to make proper use of the senses. Lord Krishna taught

the same to Arjuna in the Bhagavad Gita.

One who lacks sense control is worse than an animal. Even animals exercise some control over their senses. But man, in spite of being endowed with vijnana, suinana, and prajnana, is not making any effort to control his senses. Kama, krodha, lobha, moha, mada, and matsarya

(desire, anger, greed, infatuation, pride, and jealousy) are bestial tendencies. Today man is cultivating such animal tendencies and becoming an animal himself. Man is neither a mruga (animal) nor a mrunmaya Swarupa (made of inert matter). He is in fact chinmaya

and chidananda swarupa (embodiment of consciousness and bliss). It is a matter of shame that such a human being is cultivating animal qualities.

Man should control his senses in the first instance.

Spiritual practices prescribed to control one's senses. Sravanam (listening), kirtanam (singing), Vishnusmaranam (contemplating on Vishnu), Padasevanam (serving His Lotus Feet), vandanam (salutation), Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003) 39

archanam (worship), dasyam (servitude), sneham (friendship), and Atmanivedanam (Self-surrender). These are the royal paths to Divinity. Giving up such royal paths, man is conducting himself like an animal in a forest. Firstly, one should get rid of their animal qualities. Only then can one rise to the level of the divine. You see, hear, and experience many things in this world. They are nothing but the reflection, reaction, and resound of your inner being. All that you see in the outside world is actually a part of you. Consider this example. There is someone who hates you. Actually it is the hatred in you that has taken the form of hatred in him. In the same manner, adulation or denigration, good or evil are reflections of your own self. Whatever you see in the outside world, whatever you experience, be it pleasure or pain has in fact come from within you. What is meant by prapancha (world)? It is the combination of padartha (matter). Every object in this world is transitory. How can such ephemeral objects give us everlasting bliss? Truly speaking, man has no misery at all. You blame others for your suffering and criticise them. It is your own bad thoughts that make you suffer. This world is like an ocean consisting of the waves of samyoga and vivoga (union and separation). Everything has emerged from you. There is nothing superior to man in this world. Hence, it is said, Janthunam naraianma durlabham (out of all the living beings, human birth is the rarest). Man is the most sacred and highly reputed one among all beings in the world. But being immersed in delusion, he is unable to realise his true nature. There is neither good nor evil in this world. There are many things that we see, hear, and experience. We think that it is the eyes that see, ears that hear, and mind that experiences. In fact, it is not so. Everything is reflection, reaction, and resound.

Embodiments of Love!
You are engaged in service, singing bhajans and undertaking various spiritual practices. What benefit have you derived from these activities?
When good feelings emerge from you, you get rich rewards. After sowing a neem seed, you cannot expect a mango fruit. As the seed, so is the tree. Likewise, as the feeling, so is the result. Good and evil are based on your feelings. Hence, develop noble thoughts and spread the message of love to the entire world. Cultivate the feeling that all are brothers and sisters. Whom you consider as others are not others in the strict sense of the term. They are your own. All are children of God. God is one. Society is the direct manifestation of God. What is the difference between jeevatwa Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003) 40 (individual) and Daivatwa (God)? Individual is vyashti swarupa and God is Samashti swarupa. There can be no branch without tree. There can be no child without mother. Fish cannot survive without water. Similarly, individual cannot exist without God. Both have an intimate and inseparable relationship. On this basis, Lord Krishna declared in the Bhagavad Gita, Mamaivamsho jeevaloke jeevabhuta sanathana (the eternal Atma in all beings is a part of My Being).
Embodiments of Love!
In this world, we see and hear about the dualities of good and evil, merit and sin. What is the origin of all these? They originate from man's sankalpas and vikalpas (resolutions and negations). Good and evil are present in his mind, not in the world. When man cultivates sacred thoughts, he will find sacredness all around.
Embodiments of Love!
The entire nature is suffused with power of attraction. The world attracts one and all. This power of attraction originates from the changeless and eternal principle of Truth, which is the basis of creation. This is known as Transcendental Truth. It is present in trikalas, trilokas and trigunas (three periods of time, three worlds, and three attributes). It is only one and not

two. Ekam sath viprah bahudha vadanti (truth is one, but the wise refer to it by various names). All that we see in this world is only this principle of truth. Pashyannapicha na pashyati moodho (he is a fool who sees, yet does not recognise the reality). What man sees in front of him is not the world, but verily God. But, out of his ignorance, he fails to understand this truth and tries to search for God in the external world. All that you find before you are verily the forms of God. Though you see God right before your eyes, you think you are yet to find Him. How foolish it is! When you develop the firm faith that all are the embodiments of God, you will certainly find Him in everyone.

Sarvata panipadam tat sarvathokshi siromukham, Sarvata sruthimalloke sarvamavrutya tishthati (with hands, feet, eyes, head, mouth, and ears pervading everything, He permeates the entire universe). There is nothing in this world that is not the manifestation of God.

What is the form of God? Daivam manusha rupena (God manifests in human form). But man is getting deluded by his physical form and considers himself to be a mere mortal. All that we see is the form of God.

He is the embodiment of bliss. Nityanandam paramasukhadam kevalam jnana murtim (God is the embodiment of eternal bliss. He is wisdom Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003) 41 absolute, the One without a second). The entire world is pervaded with bliss. There is no trace of sorrow anywhere. But you may not agree with Me. You say, "Swami, you do not see sorrow, but we see it everywhere." Whether you see or I see, there is only bliss everywhere. As you think of only sorrow, forgetting the bliss, you find only sorrow. But I don't find sorrow anywhere. I see only bliss, bliss, and bliss alone. When we are the embodiments of Divinity, how can we ever be afflicted with sorrow? You are afflicted with sorrow because you don't realise the temporary nature of the world. Whatever you see and experience is only the reflection of God. Do not criticise anyone, for criticising others amounts to criticising God, whom you worship.

Easwara

sarva bhutanam (God is the indweller of all beings). Isavasyam idam jagat (the entire universe is permeated with God). Embodiments of Love!

You may be speculating about the events that are going to take place in the forthcoming New Year (Ugadi). You think that the New Year would bring you happiness or sorrow. The year may be new, but what does it matter if you do not give up your old and mean habits? You aspire for good results, but are you performing good deeds? You expect others to be good toward you, but are you good toward them? If you act against the dictates of your conscience, how can you expect to be happy? Your deeds should be in accordance with your aspirations. Good deeds will certainly yield good results. Today people are immersed in adambara (pomposity).

How can such people attain ananda (bliss)? Embodiments of Love! Do not lead a pompous life. Adambara is the root cause of asanthi (restlessness). Give up adambara and strive to attain ananda. True bliss cannot be acquired from outside; it lies in your own heart. In fact, bliss pervades the entire world. Your mental perversions are responsible for seeing evil in it. Manah eva manushyanam karanam bandhamokshayo (mind alone is responsible for both bondage and liberation of man). Hence, purify your mind. Only then can you become a true human being. You cannot call yourself a human being if your mind is polluted. Perform meritorious deeds. Speak good words. Lead a sacred life. In this manner, you can find fulfilment in life. There is nothing evil in this world. Whatever evil you find is but a reflection of your own feelings. Everything around you is your own reflection. If you point at something and say it is evil, it means that the evil in you is reflected outside. Never entertain evil thoughts. Fill your mind with nectarous thoughts. Then your life will be sweet.

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003) 42 Embodiments of Love!

You do bhajans and think that you are doing it in order to please God.
 But God does not need anything. You do bhajans for your own happiness. Share your happiness with others. God is the embodiment of bliss.
 Hence, He does not require anything from you. When He is the embodiment of eternal happiness, what else is required for Him? He is not interested in worldly and ephemeral happiness. When you do bhajans, your heart becomes purified. The worship and the bhajans that you sing are meant for your own happiness and not for the happiness of God.
 Embodiments of Divine Atma!
 It is enough if man leads the life of a true Manava (human being); because there is Madhava (God) in him. Unfortunately, man today is leading the life of a danava (demon). He is filled with demonic tendencies from top to toe. Such being the case, how can he attain happiness?
 You should purify your heart, experience bliss therein, and share your happiness with those who come to you. Sometimes evil qualities like anger, greed, and jealousy may try to overpower you. They are like passing clouds. Do not get carried away by them. Hold on to the true and eternal feelings that originate in your heart.
 People chant Lalitha sahasranama, Vishnu sahasranama (names of Vishnu), etc. No benefit accrues from chanting any number of sahasranamas if one lacks purity of heart. You should fill your heart with the essence of all these sahasranamas.
 Truly speaking, heart is the centre of all virtues. But man is not able to realise its sacredness. To be born as a human being is a great blessing.
 One cannot describe in words the sacredness and the sweetness of human life. Bear this truth in your mind and sanctify your life.
Satsangatwe nissangatwam (good company leads to detachment).
 You should join satsanga. It does not mean joining the company of those who perform noble deeds. 'Sat' is the changeless and eternal divinity. It is the embodiment of chidananda (everlasting bliss). To be in the company of Sat' is true satsanga, which will confer on you everlasting bliss.
 Embodiments of Love!
 You will certainly experience everlasting bliss when you develop love. Love is ananda (bliss) and ananda is Love. Your life will be redeemed only when you develop love and experience bliss. You can experience all types of happiness through love. It cannot be acquired from outside, nor can it be bought in the market. It originates from within. When you buy a particular object in the market, you will develop love toward it. But such love is temporary, imaginary, and artificial. It is not the love that Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003) 43 originates in your heart. Love is changeless. Love is God and God is Love.

 You may celebrate any number of festivals, but they cannot confer bliss on you unless you develop love. The bliss that you derive from love is beyond all description. It is infinite.
 What is the difference between worldly love and divine love? The love you have toward your friends and relatives is termed as anuraga (attachment). This cannot be called love at all. Divine love is related to the heart.
 Embodiments of Love!
 No doubt, there is love in you. But you are not putting it to proper use.
 You have to experience the true and eternal love, which develops heartto-heart relationship. Such divine love is all-powerful. It has no limitations whatsoever. It attracts one and all.
 Today I want to tell you something very significant. This body of Mine is filled with attraction power from top to toe. It is the divine magnetic power. From Sivarathri onward it has been increasing day by day, though it was present in Me always. Worldly magnets attract only iron filings whereas this divine magnet attracts the entire world. You are under the mistaken notion that Swami is having pain in His legs and therefore He is unable to walk comfortably. I have absolutely no pain whatsoever. If I put one foot forward it is being pulled by the other, since there is immense attraction power in My feet. As you are aware, even the earth is endowed with attraction power. It only attracts and does not cause any pain. Swami has no pain at all. This attraction power in Me is increasing day by day. Whatever I touch with My hand gets stuck to it. Such magnetic power is present in every man. God is present in the form of Hiranyagarbha in everyone. Hence, He is extolled as Hiranyagarbhaya Namah (salutations to the one with golden womb). Pure gold does not undergo any change. It attracts everyone. You should not be under the mistaken notion that only Swami has this attraction power and none else.

In fact it is present in you too. If you put it to proper use, it develops more and more.

I never had any pain at all. I am walking around as usual. But sometimes it becomes difficult to lift the foot due to the earth's attraction power. Therefore, I am walking slowly. Unable to understand this truth, you are imagining that Swami has pain in His legs. Let Me reiterate that I have no pain whatsoever. I have no suffering, no worries, and no anxieties. I am always blissful. There is nobody in this world who can come in the way of My bliss. But because of your worldly feelings, you think otherwise. If there is pain, one should think of a remedy. But when there is no pain, where is the question of remedy? No pain and no remedy.

In this world, every thing has to be under a certain limit. In the present situation, this body cannot travel much. The power is growing day by day.

I try to lift My foot, but it is very difficult. Even if I use great force, it does not get separated from the earth. It can be separated only through My Sankalpa (Will). It is very difficult to understand the principle of Divinity.

No one can understand the Divine Sankalpa. None can estimate the divine power. People try to understand divinity on the basis of their own feelings and in the process end up with wrong estimation. People throw stones at trees, which are full of fruits. Similarly, the noble and the pious are subjected to a lot of hardship in this world. Divinity cannot be understood.

The stories of the Lord are most wonderful and sacred in all the three worlds. They are like sickles that cut the creepers of worldly bondage. (Telugu poem)

Embodiments of Love!
Follow the path of truth. That is the ultimate goal of your life. Human birth is very sacred. It is not meant merely to eat, drink, and enjoy worldly pleasures. You may discharge your worldly responsibilities. You may help others. You may look after your family. But this is not your goal of life. Love God. That is your ultimate goal. There is no property greater than love. Only love can redeem your life. So, develop love, bangaru! I address you as bangaru (gold) because you are the embodiments of Hiranyagarbha. There are a number of metals in your body without which the body cannot exist. You may seek clarification from a doctor or a scientist in this regard. The magnetic power that is present in the entire world is present in your body itself.

Some people do not understand the power of divine magnet. They argue, "If there is attraction power in the 'magnet', why is it not able to attract us?" How can a magnet attract an iron piece, which is full of rust and dust? When the rust and dust are removed, the magnet will attract the iron piece at once. Likewise, you should clean you mind of impurities in order to be attracted by Divinity. You don't need to undergo any physical strain for this. No spiritual practices are required. It is enough if you cultivate love in your heart. Only through love can you attain the principle of Transcendental Truth. You might have read various books on Transcendental Truth. But nobody has really understood what it means. It is the changeless and all-pervasive Atmic principle. Such sacred love is available only with God.

45

Embodiments of Love!
You are going to witness the divine glory of Swami unfolding in the days to come. He will attract the whole world. There won't be place for people to stand even. You can see for yourself what a great change has occurred during the last one month! All are getting attracted to Swami. Love is very powerful.

This is not a disease. This does not cause any suffering or unrest in Me. It cannot be cured with medicines. Love is the only remedy for this. There are many people who are closely associated with Swami for a number of years. Even they are unable to understand the truth. What is the use of leading such a life?

First of all, you should try to understand Swami. Once you understand that this plate is made of silver, you can estimate its value. But nobody can estimate the value of Divinity. No medicines can have any effect on Divinity. Love is the only remedy. It should be associated with the eternal principle of truth. Such love will spread to one and all. You are born only for the sake of love. You cannot say that you don't need love. You have to attain Divinity through love. This is the purpose of human birth. If you do not realise this goal, what is the use of being born as a human being? Who is the Creator? Could you have taken birth of your own accord? No. It is the Will of God. He has given you the body. It should be sanctified in His service and adoration. You should set an ideal to the world. Work for the peace and happiness of all. Do unto others what you expect others to do unto you. If you do not want suffering, try to alleviate the suffering of others. Share your comforts and happiness with others. Pray for the happiness of all. Embodiments of Love! In a matter of a few days you will come to know. The divine glory will increase day by day, conferring on you joy and bliss. All the unrest will soon be eradicated from the face of earth. Today we find acts of violence everywhere. But whatever is happening, in a way, is for your own good. Everyone will develop sacred feelings. All will enjoy the divine bliss. The entire nation will enjoy peace and happiness soon. There will not be any difficulties or suffering. You are fear-stricken thinking that there is going to be suffering. In fact, there is nothing like sorrow or suffering. How can they ever afflict you? Always be happy and blissful. Conduct yourselves as the embodiments of the divine Atma and enjoy divine bliss. This is what I expect from you. Every individual should be happy. Every child should be happy. Let no one shed tears of sorrow. Difficulties may come, but they will ultimately lead to happiness. Very soon, everyone in this world will lead ideal lives. Love cannot be acquired by force, it should naturally originate from the Source. Force leads to fear. It will make love diminish. Let divine feelings spring forth from you naturally. Share your joy with others. Even to hold a small tumbler, there should be unity among the five fingers. A single finger cannot do anything. In the same manner, you can attain Divinity only through unity. God is Samashti Swarupa. Individual cannot achieve anything by himself. He has originated from God. So, he should become God. Embodiments of Divine Atma! Today I decided to address you all of a sudden. May you develop love and lead a happy life! May you attain divinity through love! There is divinity in every one of you. Make every effort to manifest and experience the same. Once you realise your innate divinity, you can see God everywhere. May you all attain peace and happiness, andwork for the welfare and progress of the country. With these words, I bring My Discourse to a close. Bhagawan concluded His Discourse with the bhajan, "Sathyam Inanam Anantham Brahma". Date: 16 March 2003, Occasion: Discourse, Place: Brindavan Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003) 47 6. RISE ABOVE BODY CONSCIOUSNESS Date: 2 April 2003 Occasion: Ugadi Discourse Place: Brindavan Fear of sin has declined; wicked deeds have become the order of the day. Devotion to the Lord has become extinct. Evil actions, which cannot be described in words, are on the rise. Oh man! Understand that only chanting the Divine Name can confer peace and happiness on you. (Telugu Poem) Embodiments of Love! The duality of birth and death is experienced in prakriti (nature), which is the presiding deity of life principle. World attracts man and deludes him. padartha (matter) is the basis for prapancha (world). World is a combination of matter. The sum and substance is, it is the matter that attracts man. Matter is not permanent; it does not symbolise truth. How can the ephemeral objects confer on you the eternal peace? Yad drishyam thannasyam (all that is seen is bound to perish). Whatever is seen by the eye will undergo change with the passage of time. Such transient objects cannot give you everlasting happiness.

'Aham yetat na (I am not this).' It is the fundamental principle of wisdom.

The principle of Parabrahma has no specific form. In Vedic parlance, 'Aham means Atma. 'Aham yetat na' means, I am not the body which is momentary and ephemeral. The letter 'I' 'Aham) symbolises the eternal Atmic principle.

We see various objects in this world and are deluded that they are permanent. It is a grave mistake. Whatever is seen by the eyes is impermanent. Even our body is seen by the eyes; hence, it is also not permanent. It is a sign of ignorance to identify oneself with the body.

For ages, man has been under the delusion that physical and ephemeral objects will give him happiness. True happiness results when man recognises the underlying eternal principle of Atma in this ephemeral world.

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003)

Lord Krishna declared in the Bhagavadgita, Mamaivamsho leevaloke

leevabhuta Sanathana (all beings are a part of My Being). Hence, every man is a spark of Divinity. Such being the case, how can man be called a mere mortal? Our ancients used to contemplate on God and worship Him with the total faith that He was all-pervasive.

According to our ancient scriptures, gods are 3 crores in number.

Who are they? Can there be so many gods? The truth is that the population of the world was 3 crores when those scriptures were written. This declaration was made considering each individual a divine being. The declaration Sahasra seersha Purusha (God has thousands of heads) was made prior to this when the population of the world was in the thousands. Today the world population is 580 crores. Every one of them is a manifestation of divinity. Every human being is a divine incarnation. Why is man wasting such a sacred and precious human birth? You should not think that God exists separately with a specific form. Ekam Sath Viprah Bahudha Vadanti

(God is one, but the wise refer to Him by various names). 'Aham, the principle of Atma that is present in all of us, is God. So, every individual is God Himself.

If you question where God is, some people say that He is present in their heart. It is not a proper answer. When you say the kerchief is in your hand, you are bigger than the kerchief. Likewise, when you say God is in you, it means you are superior to God! Hence, it is not proper to say that God is in you. The truth is, you are God. Everything is in you.

Sarvatah panipadam Tat sarvathokshi siromukham, sarvatah sruthimalloke sarvamavrutya tishthati (with hands, feet, eyes, heads, mouth and ears pervading everything, He permeates the entire universe).

In fact, the entire world is present in your heart. Hence, it is said, manusha rupena (God appears in the form of a human being).

Daivam

You would have seen many pictures of Divine personalities like Rama and Krishna. They are depicted only in the form of human beings. But man today has forgotten the innate divinity in humanity. He is in search of God thinking that He is at a higher level. That is why he is unable to realise the truth. Ekam Sath (Truth is one). The Vedas describe this as is the principle of oneness (Ekatma swarupa). It is changeless and transcends time, space, and circumstances. It is present in one and all. Man attributes various names and forms to such divinity and worships it in various ways. Divinity has no specific form. It is changeless and beyond all attributes.

Ritam. It

In fact, all forms are the forms of divinity. Such principle of unity in multiplicity is forgotten today. All the Upanishads emphasise the principle of unity. But because of worldly feelings, man views multiplicity in unity.

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003)

49

He is not making any effort to visualise unity in diversity. Man should undertake such spiritual practice that will enable him to visualise unity.

The fundamental basis for the apparent multiplicity is only one. You see a number of bulbs here. All are illumined by the same current. If you put off the main switch, none of the bulbs will glow. Likewise, the Atma is the undercurrent in all names and forms. Atma means the power of consciousness. It is the power of nityananda, Brahmananda, vogananda and advaitananda (eternal, supreme, spiritual, and non-dual bliss). Man is not making any effort to know the principle of non-dualism. He is carried away by multiplicity and thus is leading a life of ignorance. Embodiments of Love! Realise that the same Atma dwells in one and all. Do not entertain evil qualities like anger and hatred. Develop love and experience bliss. Share it with others. In fact, love is your swabhava (innate nature), bliss is your swabhava. But today people are deluded by worldly prabhava and thereby are forgetting their swabhava. This is the year of Swabhanu. Swa' means Atma. Hence, swabhava means Atmic feeling. You should develop such feeling. Swabhava also symbolises chaitanya shakti (the power of consciousness). It is present everywhere, in you, with you, around you, above you, and below you. When Atma is present all over, how can it be divided? Never fragment the principle of oneness. In fact, it is very easy to visualise oneness in diversity. Do not think that God is in you. You are in God and so too is everyone. Today, fear of sin has declined in man. That is why he is taking to evil ways without being bothered about the consequences. Due to the absence of fear of sin and love for God, humanness has declined in human beings. This is detrimental to universal peace. (Telugu Poem) Sincw man does not have fear of sin, he is unable to manifest his innate divinity. The same divinity is present in one and all. Truth is one and Truth is God. The whole world rests on Truth. Creation emerges from truth and merges into truth, Is there a place where truth does not exist? Visualise such pure and unsullied truth. (Telugu Poem) You don't need to search for the principle of Truth, It is all-pervasive. Wherever you see, there is truth. But you are not making efforts to visualise truth. If only you make a sincere attempt, you can visualise truth everywhere. Sathyam bruyath, priyam bruyath, na bruyath Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003) 50 sathyamapriyam (speak truth, speak pleasantly, and do not speak unpalatable truth). Truth should be uttered in a pleasing manner. It should not hurt the feelings of others. People say God is all-pervasive. No doubt, He is present everywhere. But He manifests Himself wherever truth is spoken in a sweet and pleasant manner. Truth that is spoken in a harsh manner cannot be called truth at all. Every man and every creature is an embodiment of love. All the birds, animals, and insects aspire to attain happiness just as man does. They also enjoy happiness. But there is a difference between the happiness they enjoy and the happiness man enjoys. Birds, animals, nd insects are neither elated by happiness nor depressed by sorrow. They accept happiness and sorrow with equanimity. But man lacks such sense of equanimity. He feels elated when his desires are fulfilled and frustrated otherwise. Desire and anger are like pests that destroy the tree of human life. Today desire and anger have become rampant in man. One who is filled with anger will find differences and starts developing hatred. In the daily newspaper, you find many news items that speak volumes about the anger, hatred, and jealousy in man. These evil tendencies are the bitter enemies of man. People are worried about the harmful effects of certain planets. In fact, desire and anger are the two planets that cause the greatest harm to mankind. Yes, desires are essential for man. But excessive desires wreak danger. Na sreya niyamam vina (without discipline, there can be no well being). Desires should be under limit. Man sometimes has love in him and at other times goes into a fit of anger. Such a tendency is the result of improper food and habits. Never translate your thought into action in haste. Take time and enquire whether what you want to do is right or wrong. Today the New Year has commenced. People celebrate the arrival of New Year with all festivity and gaiety. But their enthusiasm and happiness is only short lived. It is not the way to celebrate the arrival of New Year. Your happiness should remain forever. True happiness is not something that comes and goes like a passing cloud. At the time of birth, your heart is pure and you are full of bliss. You should retain such purity of heart for the rest of your life and enjoy everlasting happiness. When one emerges from the womb of one's mother, one does not find any garland round one's neck.

There are no jewels made of pearls,
nor are there glittering golden ornaments.
There are no chains studded with precious stones
like emerald and diamond.
But there IS a chain round your neck.
Brahma strings together the consequences of your past
deeds,
makes it into a garland, and
Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003)
51 puts it round your neck at the time of your birth.
(Telugu Poem)
There is bound to be a result for every action of yours, however small
and insignificant it may be. Suppose that you are mending your clothes with the help of a small needle and thread. The needle may be small, but if it
pricks your finger, the result is instantaneous in the form of bleeding.
In
this case, action and result take place almost simultaneously. The food you consume takes at least two hours to get digested. Here there is a gap
of two hours between the action and result. The seed that you sow takes a minimum of one week to grow into a sapling. In the same manner, some actions yield result in a few months or a few years or a few births.
Whoever you are, you have to face the consequences of your actions.
However, you don't need to be depressed and dejected, thinking that
you cannot escape from the results of your past evil deeds. You can certainly escape from them if you win the grace of God by developing love in your heart. All the results are based on your thoughts and actions. You have to undertake sacred activities in order to sanctify your body. There is no point in undertaking good deeds with evil intentions. The seed that
you sow within will germinate into a 'tree' and yield 'fruits'. Some people have evil motives within but put on a veil of goodness. Such pretentious attitudes will never yield positive results. First, you should sow the seeds
of sacred thoughts within.
You may be speculating as to what this New Year has in store for you.
You have to undertake sacred actions if you want to enjoy peace and happiness. You should join satsanga. Satsanga means to join the company of 'Sath', which is changeless in all the three periods of time. Satsanga does not merely mean doing bhajans and listening to spiritual discourses. Bhadram pashyantu, bhadram srunvantu, and bhadram kurvantu (see good, hear good, and do good). These are

the
three important mantras that emperor Manu has given to mankind.
The
teachings of Manu form the basis for dharmasasthra. Man should strictly adhere to these three mantras in his daily life. Nothing else is required to redeem oneself.
The Vedas say, Srunvantu viswe amrutasya puthraah (Oh listen!
The son of immortality). You are not mere mortals; you are the children of immortality. You should conduct yourself in such a manner that would befit your stature as the children of immortality.
Man's wicked thoughts are responsible for the agitation and unrest
you find in the world today. In order to get rid of evil thoughts, you should run away from bad company in the first instance. You should join good company. Then you will see only goodness in everyone around you. If you come across a person who hates you, do not reciprocate the evil
feeling.
Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003)
52 Tension will mount when you show anger and hatred toward each other.
Instead you greet him with love. Then he too will reciprocate the feeling of love and become your friend. Speech plays a vital role in strengthening the bond of friendship. Hence, speak softly and sweetly. You can pacify
hatred and anger that is prevailing in this world by your pleasant talk.
Love begets love.
Where there is confidence, there is love,
Where there is love, there is peace,
Where there is peace, there is truth,
Where there is truth, there is God,
Where there is God, there is bliss.
In order to enjoy peace, you should give up hatred and develop selfconfidence.
You should consider that viswasa (faith) is your true swasa (life-breath).
You are enjoying divine grace day in and day out. In what way are you showing gratitude to God for all that He has been doing for you? God does not expect anything from you. But you have to do your duty by expressing your gratitude. An ungrateful person is worse than a cruel animal. It is because of your parents that you have come up in life.

Matru

Devo bhava, pitru Devo bhava (revere your mother and father God). Your mother bore you in her womb for nine months, gave you birth, and brought you up facing several hardships. How grateful you must be toward your mother for all that she has done for you! In the same manner, your father sacrificed his own comforts and looked after you with love and care. In what way are you expressing your gratitude to your father? Your children will treat you in the same manner as you treat your parents.

Some people have wicked feelings withi.n but talk in a pleasing manner in front of others. Such people are verily demons. Demons are known to become powerful at nights. Here, night symbolises wickedness and darkness of ignorance. Daylight symbolises suinana and night stands for ajinana. When you are immersed in the darkness of ignorance, you will find only wickedness everywhere. Such a person cannot be called a human being, he is verily a demon. Iantunam nara janma

durlabham (out of all living beings, human birth is the rarest). Having attained such a sacred human birth, it is rather unfortunate that man is behaving like a demon. Even animals express their love and gratitude toward their master, but man has sense of gratitude in him. Having been born as a human being, he should conduct himself as is expected of him and sanctify his life.

Embodiments of Love!

Love all. Let there not be even a trace of hatred in you. Join hands with your fellowmen in a spirit of tolerance and love. The Vedas have taught,

Saha navavatu. Saha nau bhunaktu. Saha veeryam karavavahai. Tejaswinavadhitamastu.

Ma vidvishavahai (May we be protected and nourished together! May we perform heroic deeds! May we be filled with divine energy! May we never hate one another!). Such sacred teachings of the Vedas have been forgotten. On the other hand, man is developing evil tendencies. Such a behaviour is not befitting the stature of a man. Bliss is man's true nature. Hence, he should always have a cheerful countenance. May all of you lead a blissful life in this New Year! May you fill your life with love! May you develop unity and friendship! True bliss lies in unity. God is the embodiment of bliss.

In spite of being endowed with such sacred bliss, why should man give Consider everyone as the embodiment of divinity. Whomever you salute

Hence, embodiments of love, develop love in you. Experience love and share it with others. This is the most important message of this New Year,

You

Get up from your bed with a peaceful mind. Think of God. There are some people who get up from bed with a disturbed and agitated mind. If the parents criticise each other as soon as they get up from bed, the children will go a step further and will start beating each other up when they wake up in the morning. The children will naturally try to emulate their parents.

Hence, parents should set an example to their children. They should teach them by practice, not merely by precept.

 Under all circumstances, do not give room for anger or hatred. You may have to face some difficulties and sorrows, but never mind. Be calm
 and composed. What did I tell you in the beginning? 'Aham yetat na'.
 Realise
 that you are not the body. You are the embodiment of eternal Atma.
 When you understand this truth, you will not be affected by the physical suffering. Since you are aware, I am showing you this by example. I know that I am not the body. Hence, I do not care for any sufferings that afflict this body. The physical body of man is bound to be afflicted by disease and suffering at some point of time in his life. One should not be unduly worried about it. In fact, the body is born and brought up through various difficulties. It cannot escape difficulties. But you should not care for them.
 Difficulties and suffering are but natural to the human body. Bliss is natural to the Atma. Follow the nature of the Atma and not of the body.
 Give up body attachment.
 This body is a den of dirt and prone to diseases;
 it undergoes change from time to time.
 It cannot cross the ocean of samsara.
Oh mind! Do not be under the delusion that body is permanent.
 Instead take refuge at the Divine Lotus Feet.
 (Telugu Poem)
 Why do you worry about such an ephemeral body? Instead, think of God.
 The physical suffering comes and goes like a passing cloud. That is
 the nature of human body (pravritti). The nature of Atma (nivritti) is to treat dualities of life with equanimity. Troubles of the body come and go. In spite of the pain, I am going around as usual. There is no change in My daily routine. I do not care for this pain. You will be put to suffering only when you identify yourself with the body. I am not the body. When
 you say this is my kerchief, you are different from it. Whatever may happen to the kerchief, you will not be affected. In the same manner, you should not
 be affected by the physical suffering.
 The body is made up of five elements and

is bound to perish sooner or later,
 but the indweller has neither birth nor death.
 He has no attachment whatsoever.
 Truly speaking, the indweller is verily God Himself,
Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003)
 55 who is in the form of the Atma.
 (Telugu Poem)
 The indweller is Atma, which is your true identity. Hence, do not be worried about your body. If someone were to criticise you, do not be agitated. If he criticises you loudly, it will vanish into thin air. If he criticises within himself, it will affect himself. In fact, neither praise nor censure will come to you. You should not be affected by either. In this manner, you should transcend the dualities of life. You will become a true
 human being only when your mind is fixed on the true and eternal Atma.
 Today marks the beginning of a very sacred year. Accordingly, you should develop sacred thoughts. Not only in this year, but throughout your life, you should cultivate sacred thoughts. The body is made of five elements, so it is bound to suffer. You should not be affected by it. This is your true sadhana. All other sadhanas will prove futile if you do not give up body
 attachment. Some people keep telling the beads in a mechanical way
 and say that they are doing sadhana. The rosary will be revolving in their hand and the mind will be roaming in the market. Can this be called japa
 (chanting)? While doing meditation, your body may be steady, but the mind will be wavering. What is the use of such a sadhana? A true spiritual
 aspirant is one who has a steady mind and an unwavering vision.
 Unsteady mind is the nature of a monkey. But today man is developing monkey-mind. He should fill his heart with kindness for he belongs to mankind.
Bhagawan sang the bhajan, "Prema mudita manse kaho" and then continued the discourse.
 Embodiments of Love!
 When you sing bhajans, maintain the proper rhythm by clapping
 your hands. The clapping should be done according to the bhajan. Bhajan should be sung with proper tune and wholeheartedly. The three syllables
 in the name Bha-ra-ta stand for bhava (feeling), raga (tune) and tala (beat). It means Bharatiyas (Indians) are those who sing the glory of with bhava, raga, and tala. Today there are many singers who, while singing Thyagaraja kritis, play tala on their lap. They should join both hands and clap.

The five fingers of one hand symbolise karmendriyas (senses of action) and that of other hand stand for janendriyas (senses of perception).

When you sing the glory of God, there should be harmony between these two. If they are not harmonised, even your feelings will not be steady. It was Guru Nanak who introduced the concept of community singing in Punjab. All should sing the divine glory in unison. This was the ideal Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003)

56 propagated by our ancients. But today, people have brushed aside such ideal and are acting as per their whims and fancies. All our actions should be pleasing unto God. You may call Him Rama, Krishna, Govinda, but God is one. Develop the feeling of oneness and attain the vision of the divine Atma.

7. RAMA NAVAMI DISCOURSE

Date: 11 April 2003 Occasion: Rama Navami Place: Brindavan

Birds and beasts which do not have any type of education, have learnt to lead a life of discipline.

But alas!

Man who is endowed with all intelligence does not lead a disciplined life.

What else is to be conveyed,

oh people of this august assembly!

(Telugu Poem)

The Lord shines effulgently in the universe, so also the universe shines in the Lord.

The relationship between the Lord and the universe is intimate and inseparable.

(Telugu Poem)

The sacred epic Ramayana is verily the Veda descended from heaven to earth. The Veda is classified into four: Rig Veda, Yajur Veda, Sama Veda, and Atharvana Veda. The Rig Veda helps, sustains and protects the vajinas and yagas. In the Ramayana, Rama symbolises Rig Veda. Lakshmana signifies Yajur Veda, which contains mantras chanted during the performance of vajinas and yagas. When Rama was away in the forest, Bharata stayed in Nandigrama singing His divine Name day in and day out. Hence, he symbolises Sama Veda. Satrughna was the one who annihilated the satrus (enemies) and protected the pious. He was obedient to his brothers. He stands for Atharvana Veda. The essence of Atharvana Veda lies in destroying wickedness and fostering sacred feelings and activities. The Ramayana is verily the Veda. The Veda is not different from the Ramayana. True humanness lies in understanding this.

Rama, Lakshmana, Bharata, and Satrughna are the four sons of Dasaratha. Merely knowing this will not suffice. One should enquire and understand the inner meaning. Who is Dasaratha? He represents the human body consisting of ten senses (five senses of perception and five senses of action). Strictly speaking, Rama, Lakshmana, Bharata, and Satrughna are not the sons of Dasaratha and his three wives. We should not think that they were born like mere mortals. They are the chaitanya swarupas (embodiments of divine consciousness) who emerged from the sacrificial fire. They set an ideal to parents, brothers, and sisters in every family and to humanity at large.

Today, due to the impact of Kali age, there is no unity and love among brothers in a family. There are conflicts among them leading to disturbances. On the contrary, Rama, Lakshmana, Bharata, and Satrughna had total unity among themselves. They delighted others by their unity. Even while playing games in their childhood, each aspired for the victory of the other. Once the four brothers as young lads were playing a game. Shortly thereafter, Bharata came to mother Kausalya, sat on her lap, and started weeping. She asked him, "Bharata, why are you feeling sad? Have you lost the game?" Bharata replied, "Mother, I would have been happy if that were to be the case, but when I was about to lose the game, Rama managed to lose the game and made me the winner. I am upset at the defeat of my elder brother." What an example of fraternal love!

When Lakshmana fell unconscious in the battlefield, Rama was crestfallen.

He considered Lakshmana as His very life. He lamented saying, "If I were to search in the world, I may get a mother like Kausalya and a wife like Sita but not a brother as noble as Lakshmana. What is the use of this life without Lakshmana?" The four brothers had such unity, harmony, and love among themselves.

When Bharata returned from Kekaya kingdom, he came to know from sage Vasishtha that Rama had gone into exile and would not return for fourteen long years. He was disconsolate. He went to the sage, offered his respects and said, "Oh venerable preceptor, I do not want this kingdom, which has caused the exile of my brother Rama. Being the eldest son, only Rama has the right to rule over the Kingdom. Hence, at this very moment I shall go to the forest, fall at the feet of Rama and plead with Him to come and take over the reins of Ayodhya." In this manner, each of the four brothers was ready to make any sacrifice for the sake of the other.

In order to uphold the plighted word of His father, Rama was ready to go into exile. He donned the clothes made of tree bark and went to the residence of mother Kausalya to seek her permission. Mother being unaware of the sudden turn of events, was eagerly awaiting Rama's arrival. She was ecstatic thinking of Rama's coronation and expected Him to come to her in royal garments. She was very much worried to see Rama and Sita in bark clothes. "Rama, is this the type of garment you should wear on the day of your coronation," she asked.

Rama smilingly replied, "Mother, I have been coronated as the king of Aranya Rajya (kingdom of forest) by My father. I am going to the forest to protect sages and saints who are being put to suffering by the demons.

Hence, kindly do not raise any objection to My sacred mission. I have to obey the command of My father." So saying, He prostrated before His mother and sought her permission to go to the forest.

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003)

59

Hearing the words of Rama, mother Kausalya was overcome with sorrow.

She pleaded with Him, "Son, You are talking of obeying only the command of father. What about the command of Your mother? I am the ardhangi (better half) of Your father. Hence, it is Your bounden duty

to obey my command also. I will not come in the way of Your going to the forest, but let me also accompany You. I have borne You as a result of many rituals and severe austerities performed over a number of years. I cannot live without You even for a minute."

Rama pacified her saying, "Mother, it is not proper on your part to leave your husband in this old age. He is getting burnt in the fire of My separation. At this juncture, you should comfort and console him with soothing words. That is your foremost duty. For a wife, husband is

God.

He is the only refuge for her."

Sita, who was standing by, heard this conversation. She at once asked Him, "Rama, is not the dharma same for all women? Can there be one dharma for your mother and another for me? You have asked me to stay back and look after Your father and mother. Now, You are telling Your mother that serving the husband is the prime duty of a wife.

Does it

not hold good in my case?"

Mother Kausalya was moved by Sita's argument. She told Rama, "Son, the same dharma holds good in the case of every woman. It is destined that I have to suffer in this manner. Why should You put Sita to suffering by leaving her behind in Ayodhya? She has given up everything and has decided to go with You to the forest. Do not disappoint her. Take her along with You. It is Your duty to take care of her." One can very well understand the nobility and broad-mindedness of mother Kausalya from this episode.

The birthday of Rama is celebrated in order to remind us of the ideals for which He stood. We have to ponder over the ideals set before us by Rama, Lakshmana, Bharata, and Satrugna and also by Kausalya, Sumitra, and Kaikeyi. Sage Vasishtha declared, Ramo vighrahan dharmah (Rama is the embodiment of Dharma). He described the form of Rama saying, Pumsam Mohana Rupaya (one whose form enchants all). "Rama, the beauty and handsomeness that You are endowed with are not limited to Your physical form alone. Your infinite love and compassion give You this blissful form. Even men are attracted by the blissful form of Yours. You are the very personification of satchitananda (being-awareness-bliss)." Thus, Sage Vasishtha extolled the glory and majesty of Rama. It is your good fortune that you are able to listen to the sacred story of Rama and sing His glory.

As I told you in the beginning, God shines effulgently in the universe,
and so does the universe in God. The relationship between God and the Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003)
60 universe is intimate and inseparable. The universe is full of living beings.
Each being is the embodiment of Rama. Do not confine Rama to a particular name and form. All the beings are His forms. Rama means
the
One who delights. He is present in all. Easwara sarva bhutanam (God is the indweller of all beings). Isavasyam idam jagat (the entire world
is permeated by God). The world is the very form of God. Sahasra seersha purusha sahasraksha sahasra pad (God has thousands of heads, eyes and feet).
In those days, the population of the world was only in thousands.
Considering each of them the form of God, it was declared, Sahasra seersha purusha. With the passage of time, the population swelled
from thousands to lakhs and from lakhs to crores. Then it was said, God is mukkti devata swarupa, meaning He is in the form of three crores
of beings. Today the world population has increased to nearly 600 crores. All are the forms of God. Usually people confine Rama to a particular form with a bow and a quiver of arrows. In fact, every man is Rama
swarupa (embodiment of Rama). That is why people are named after Rama, Lakshmana, Krishna, Govinda, etc.
Not only the four brothers, even their consorts demonstrated great ideals.
Sita and Urmila were the daughters of King Janaka. Mandavi and Srutakeerti were the daughters of his younger brother. They were women
of sterling character and were endowed with supreme sense of detachment. They considered the happiness of others as their own.
When
Rama was leaving for the forest, Sita insisted that she should be allowed to accompany Him. She said, "Swami, You have come for the redemption of mankind. I too have a part to play in it. How can I remain here
when You are going to the forest renouncing everything?" She removed all her

ornaments, wore bark clothes, and followed Rama.
Lakshmana's wife, Urmila was a very good painter. Being unaware of the happenings, she was painting the picture of Rama's coronation. As she was deeply engrossed in her work, Lakshmana entered the room all of a sudden and called her in a raised voice. She was startled and at once stood up. In the process, she accidentally spilled paint on the picture
she was painting. She felt sad for having spoiled the picture. Then Lakshmana
remarked, "The coronation of Rama, which is meant to bestow peace
and prosperity to mankind, is stalled because of Kaikeyi, and the picture
of coronation that you are painting is spoiled because of me." He informed her that he was accompanying Rama and Sita to the forest to serve them
and said that he would return only after fourteen years. She was least perturbed with his decision. In fact, she was happy and entreated him
to serve Sita and Rama with utmost devotion. Pain and pleasure, sorrow and happiness follow one another. One should treat them with equanimity.
Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003)
61 Pleasure and pain, good and bad co-exist,
none can separate them.
You cannot find pleasure or pain, good or bad
to the exclusion of the other.
Pleasures result when difficulties fructify.
(Telugu Poem)
Lakshmana took leave of his wife and went to mother Sumitra to seek her blessings. 'Su-mitra' means a good friend. Her character was worthy
of her name. When Lakshmana told her of his decision to accompany Sita
and Rama to the forest, she, being a noble mother, was very happy.
She
was not at all worried that either of her two sons would not rule over
the kingdom.
When her cup of pudding was taken away by an eagle, both Kausalya
Lakshmana was born of the share of Kausalya's pudding and Satrughna of the share of Kaikeyi's. Hence, Lakshmana and Satrughna are the aspects of Rama and Bharata, respectively. Lakshmana served Rama, and Satrugna served Bharata. Sumitra thought that it was her good fortune

that her sons were serving Rama and Bharata. She had such noble feelings. Where there is God, there is His devotee. Where God and the devotee come together, victory is assured. Sumitra told Lakshmana, "Son, to be in God's company is the greatest wealth." So, she gave her immediate consent to Lakshmana to accompany Rama and Sita.

When Rama went to Kausalya to take leave of her, she lamented saying, "Son, you are leaving me in Ayodhya with all the royal comforts and going to aranya (forest) to lead a life of hardships." To this, Lakshmana, who was at Rama's side, said, "Mother, this Ayodhya without Rama and Sita is verily the forest. The forest with Rama and Sita is verily Ayodhya. Sita and Rama are my parents. I will serve them and spend my time blissfully."

There was great unity and understanding not only among the four brothers but also among their consorts. They are ideals for every family.

Is there a family where daughters-in-law live in amity? Is there a family where brothers live in harmony without indulging in property disputes?

Nowhere do we find such an ideal family. This age of Kali (the age we are now in) has become the age of kalaha (conflict). In such a scenario, the Ramayana shines as the beacon-light to every family. How should brothers and sisters conduct themselves? In the

Ramayana,

we find the demonstration of such great ideals. Merely going through the sacred text of Ramayana is not enough; you have to emulate the ideals.

The Ramayana transcends the barriers of time, space, caste, and religion.

In all nations, at all times and under all circumstances, unity is very Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003) essential to find fulfilment in life. Even birds and animals have unity amongst themselves. They do not have the selfishness of hoarding things.

Today we find wicked tendencies in man that are not found even in birds and animals.

There is not a single instance of internal dispute in the family of Dasaratha. You may question, "Was not Kaikeyi responsible for a family

dispute that led to the exile of Rama?" No, it was not a dispute at all. In fact, Kaikeyi had great affection for Rama. She loved Him more dearly than her own son, Bharata. But her mind was poisoned because of the bad company of Manthara. Hence, it is said, Tell me your company, and I shall tell you what you are. Even Manthara was one of good nature. She was only acting under the influence of an incident that happened in her previous birth. She was a deer then. One day she was playing with her husband in the forest.

The king of Kekaya had come to the forest on hunting. He saw the deer playing with each other. In an attempt to capture them, he killed the husband deer with an arrow. The female deer was grief-stricken. She went to her mother and complained about the cruel act of the king.

The mother consoled her saying, "My dear child, pain and pleasure, good and bad coexist in this world. We have to withstand the vicissitudes of life with equanimity. You may go to the king to seek justice."

Then the female deer went to the king and poured out her anguish thus,

"Oh king! We were leading our lives peacefully and blissfully. You have inflicted untold grief on me by killing my husband. You have ruined my life." The king ruefully said, "Nobody can escape the consequences of his actions. You are grieving over the death of your husband. I can also understand the agony of your mother having lost her son-in-law. As a result, one day I too will suffer from the loss of my son-in-law." The female deer took birth as Manthara and caused the death of

who was the son-in-law of King Kekaya.

This life is nothing but an ocean with the waves of union and separation.

Everybody has to pass through the adversities of life. It is the nature of pravritti (outward path). There is another aspect to life, i.e. nivritti (inward path). A child goes to its mother and says, "I am hungry." The mother who follows the outward path says, "Child, go and eat food.

You hunger will be satiated." This is the pravritti dharma. But the mother who treads the inward path does not merely say, "Go and eat food." She would advise the child as to what type of food to eat, when and how

to should eat. When you are hungry, you should not eat whatever you like without enquiring whether it is good for health. The nivritti mother advises you to eat such food which will bestow good health on you. Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003)
 63
 Even the Vedas have dealt with the principles of pravritti and nivritti. One may have desires, but they should be under limit. They should be based on truth and righteousness. Do not eat whatever you get. Do not speak whatever comes to your mind. You should speak only after proper enquiry. These are some of the lessons that the Ramayana teaches to mankind. That is why the Ramayana is compared to the Vedas. It teaches the pravritti and nivritti aspects of life in a beautiful manner. Pravritti is the swabhava (nature) of prakriti. Nivritti is the swarupa (form) of the Atma. Nivritti broadens our outlook, whereas pravritti does the opposite.
 Hence, we should base all our activities on nivritti.
 The Ramayana teaches the principles of dharma and the path of duty to every individual. Though ages and aeons have passed by, the Ramayana remains ever fresh guiding humanity on the path of truth and righteousness. Even today we think of the characters of Ramayana
 with respect and reverence. You can very well understand its greatness. There is no morality higher than what is depicted in the Ramayana.
 The Ramayana should be the subject of our parayana (worship). You should install the principle of Rama in your heart and experience bliss.
 Embodiments of Love!
 Practise the teachings of Ramayana in your daily life. Obey the command of Lord Rama. It is to understand and assimilate the principle of Ramayana that we are celebrating the festival of Rama Navami today.
 It is not enough if the celebration is confined to merely partaking of sweet pudding and other delicious items.
 Sage Valmiki declared that the Ramayana will be there so long as there are mountains and rivers on the face of the earth. You may wonder, what is the relationship between the Ramayana and the mountains and

the rivers. The mountains symbolise men and the rivers women. As long as there are men and women in this world, the glory of Ramayana will continue to illumine the world. Women are compared to rivers because they are the symbols of sacrifice. They flow incessantly quenching the thirst of one and all.
 The Ramayana sets great ideals to men. People should contemplate on such sacred story and follow its ideals. The marriage of Rama and Sita was celebrated in Mithila with all festivity and gaiety. They sang songs inviting people to see the divine marriage of Rama and Sita.
 Come let us go and see the marriage of Rama and Sita. The sight shall confer great merit.
Oh come one and all to see the sacred marriage, Rama, who is riding on an elephant, is shining effulgently. Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003)
 64
 Mother Sita is by His side,
 The brothers are at their service.
Sita and Rama will smilingly enquire of our well-being; What else can we aspire for!
 Come let us go anon
 to see the holy wedding of Rama and Sita.
 (Telugu Poem)
 People sang songs like this, rejoicing at the marriage of Rama and Sita.
 The people of Ayodhya as well as Mithila were greatly delighted. The entire city of Mithilapura rejoiced in great celebration. The divine marriage conferred immense joy on one and all. The story of Rama is mysterious, sacred, and blissful.
 Embodiments of Love!
 The story of Rama is not an ancient one. It is eternal and ever new. It is full of auspiciousness. May you fill your heart with the sacred ideals of the Ramayana! May you give up hatred and all differences! May you live in peace and harmony! When you contemplate on Rama incessantly, you derive great joy and delight.

8. CHANTING GOD'S NAME --THE ROYAL

PATH TO LIBERATION

Date: 14 April 2003 Occasion: Tamil New Year Place: Brindavan

Forbearance is the real beauty in this sacred land of Bharat.

Of all the vows, adherence to truth is the greatest vow.

The nectarine feeling in this country is the feeling of motherhood.

Self-respect is valued far more than the very life itself.

People have forgotten the basic principles of this great culture and,

in the name of freedom, are imitating Western culture today.

Alas! What can I speak of the governance of this country?

The Bharatiyas (Indians) are not aware of the greatness of their cultural heritage just as a mighty elephant is not aware of its own strength.

(Telugu Poem)

Embodiments of Love!

Today everyone is rejoicing celebrating Tamil New Year's day.

Swabhanu

is the name of this year. 'Swa' means Atma. In the spiritual parlance, we have four stages towards liberation: Salokya, Sameepya, Sarupya, and Sayujya (mental proximity to the Divine, physical proximity to the Divine, identifying oneself with the Divine, becoming one with the Divine). The letter 'Sa' is associated with the Atmic feeling. With the onset of the New Year, 'Swabhanu', one should also develop new and divine feelings. Many New Years have gone by. But to what extent man has transformed

himself? Man should tread a new and noble path and set an ideal to others. Only then would he have celebrated the arrival of New Year in the true sense. He should practise and propagate newer ideals in his daily life.

Vedanta declares, Aham etat na (I am not this). Aham means 'I', the Atmic principle and 'this' refers to body. Man should not give scope to ahamkara (ego) by identifying himself with the body. 'I' does not correspond to the body. 'I' corresponds to the eternal and immortal which is not tainted by ego, pomposity, and immorality. Only when man develops such Atma viswasa (Self-confidence) can he set an ideal to others. Man today does not understand the meaning of Self-confidence.

Atma,

First of all, man should have faith in himself.

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003)

66

Where there is confidence, there is love;

Where there is love, there is truth;

Where there is truth, there is peace;

Where there is peace, there is bliss;

Where there is bliss, there is God.

Truth is the direct manifestation of God. People attribute various names to God. Sahasra seersha purusha sahasraksha sahasra pad (God has thousands of heads, eyes and feet). Names are many, but God is one.

it any State or country, God is one. Ekam sath viprah bahudha vadanti (truth is one, but the wise refer to it by various names). What is truth? It is not merely reporting what is seen, heard or experienced. It is the transcendental truth which is not bound by time, space and circumstances. Be it any nation, any time, any circumstances, Truth is Truth.

The creation emerges from truth and merges into truth,

Is there a place where truth does not exist?

Visualise such pure and unsullied truth.

(Telugu Poem)

Truth cannot be different from nation to nation like American Truth, Russian Truth, Pakistani Truth, Indian Truth, etc. Truth is one and the same for all nations. Hence, we should recognise that Truth is God and worship Truth by strictly adhering to it.

We find unrest and agitation in the world today because people have forgotten truth. Sathyam bruyath, priyam bruyath, na bruyath sathyamapriyam (speak truth, speak pleasantly, and do not speak unpalatable truth). Only truth and righteousness can confer peace

and prosperity on the world today. Sathyam vada: dharmam chara (speak truth; practise righteousness). This is the most important principle of Indian culture.

Once you develop truth and righteousness, peace and love will automatically follow. Righteousness is the head of Indian culture and,

Truth its feet. But today people have severed the head and feet of culture. They are clinging on to the trunk of artha and kama (wealth

Indian

and

desire). What is the use of a mere trunk without the head and the feet?

People are striving to protect the country. If you protect and practise truth and righteousness, they will in turn protect the country. You need to make any special efforts to protect the country. It is enough if you protect truth and righteousness. The entire world is based on these two principles.

don't

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003)

They are changeless and eternal. When they are practised, the whole world will be taken care of. Hence, we have to always keep in mind these two principles. For man, truth and righteousness are his two eyes. In fact, they are his very life principles. He may undertake any activity, he may do any job or business, but he should make truth and righteousness the undercurrent of all his endeavours.

Man has to take to a newer path. Years have rolled by, but man has not given up his old and mean feelings. He has to purify his heart. Humanness will blossom only when there is transformation of the heart.

Merely putting on new clothes is not enough, man has to change his character and behaviour. His conduct should be based on truth and righteousness. He has to understand the principle of Transcendental Truth. It is present in everyone. In fact, man is not a mere mortal, he is God. The Vedas say, Raso Vai Sah (God pervades everything in the form of essence). God moves about in the form of rasa (essence) in every limb and every cell and protects the body. Hence, He is known as

Angirasa. If

God does not protect the body, who else can? Body is not permanent. This body is a den of dirt, and prone to diseases; it is subject to change from time to time; it cannot cross the ocean of samsara. It is nothing but a quiver of bones.

Oh mind!

Do not be under the delusion that body is permanent.

Instead take refuge at the Divine Lotus Feet. (Telugu Poem)

Body is like a water bubble. Mind is like a mad monkey. Do not follow the body; do not follow the mind. Follow the conscience. Conscience is your

God. You are forgetting God, who is present in you in the form of conscience and who is protecting your body in the form of Angirasa. God is changeless, pure, and eternal. He has absolutely no trace of selfishness in Him. He is always concerned about the welfare of the devotees. Do not superimpose your selfishness on God and get deluded.

When everything is in His hand, how can there be selfishness in Him? Whatever He does is for the welfare of all. Loka samasta sukhino bhavantu (May all the people of the world be happy)! This is what aspires for. He is known as Aprameya, since He is beyond all measure. He is present in man's hridaya (heart) in the form of bliss. He shines as prema swarupa (embodiment of love). He practises dharma, being the embodiment of dharma. He leads from the front, setting an ideal for humanity and helping everyone. He says, "Oh man! Why fear when I am here. Follow Me." Why should one fear when God has given such an assurance? If you follow Him, He will certainly bestow on you pure and unsullied bliss.

God

Saints and sages of yore performed intense penance in order to have the vision of God. Some of them died during their penance, but the others did not give up their resolve. They continued their penance with unflinching faith and determination. Ultimately, they had the divine vision. Then they declared to the world that they had seen God. Vedahametham purusham mahantham adityavarnam thamasa parasthath (I have visualised the Supreme Being, who shines with the effulgence of a billion suns and who is beyond thamas (the darkness of ignorance). They exhorted people to make efforts to see God and experience bliss.

If you contemplate on God with pure and selfless love, you can also see Him. Today, many are in the quest of God. God is everywhere, but you should have the eyes to see Him. Today people are trying to see God with their charma chakshu (physical eye). That is why they are unable to see Him. One can see God only with jnana chakshu (the eye of wisdom).

Sarvatah panipadam tat sarvathokshi siromukham, sarvatah sruthimalloke sarvamavrutya tishthathi (with hands, feet, eyes, heads, mouth and ears pervading everything, He permeates the entire universe).

Where is the need to search for God, who is everywhere? What we have to search for is not God but a true human being! But he is not to be seen anywhere. Nowadays, we find only akara manavas (human beings in form), not achara manavas (human beings in practice).

Practice is very essential. Without acharana (practice), what is the use of merely having akara (form)? Do not repose your faith in the body and consider it to be permanent. It is merely an instrument given by God. Make proper use of this instrument by discharging your duties and serving society. Help the needy and the forlorn. Take good care of the destitute and the poor with love. Dedicate your life for the cause of sathya (truth) and dharma. That is how you have to celebrate the arrival of New Year.

You should give up your old and mean thoughts, fill your heart with novel, fresh and noble feelings and lead a new life.

But where is such a new life in the present-day world? Days have changed but feelings have not. Guddalu (clothes) are changed every day but gunamu (character) has not changed. Merely donning ochre robes will not make a sannyasi (renunciant). You should develop good qualities and become a sarvasanga parithyagi (totally devoid of attachment).

Only then can you be called a true sannyasi.

Na karmana na prajaya dhanena thyagenaike amrutatthwamanasuh (immortality is not attained through action, progeny or wealth; it is attained only by sacrifice). Who has this quality of sacrifice in the presentSathya day world? One in a hundred or in a million is endowed with such a noble quality. Though God is present in everyone, He manifests Himself in a man of sacrifice. Sacrifice is of paramount importance to man. He should become a thyaga jeevi (one of sacrifice), not a bhoga jeevi (one who leads a life of pleasures). Thyaga leads to yoga, whereas bhoga gives rise to roga (disease). So, give up bhoga and take to the path of yoga.

Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003)

There are people who do Rama Chintana (contemplation of Rama) day in and day out. Every moment of their life and every cell of their body is filled with the name of Rama. Such a life is a life of fulfilment. Indeed their lives are sanctified. Man should contemplate on God, his only saviour incessantly. The world will never come to your rescue. The world has witnessed many changes in the fields of politics and philosophy. Old Siddhantas (Schools of Thought) have given way to new ones. Many political parties have come and gone. But in what way has the world benefited from all these changes? There is no progress whatsoever.

The world is where it has been. Everyone is interested in only filling their belly. No one is making any effort to understand the principle of Divinity.

You have to think of God every moment. If you win the grace of God, you can overcome any obstacle and acquire any type of wealth. Once Ramdas prayed, "Oh Lord! What did I do to deserve Your bounteous grace? I have not offered anything to You, yet You shower Your grace on me." Then the Lord replied, "My dear, the spirit of thyaga (sacrifice) that you have developed is the true yoga. I know the sense of sacrifice that is there in your mind, you may not be aware of it. Only God can understand the sacrifice you have made mentally. Others need not understand; they cannot understand any way. Only God can understand your thyaga, yoga, and prema (love)."

Saint Thyagaraja composed a song in praise of Rama, the meaning of which is as follows:

But for the power of Rama, could a mere monkey cross the mighty ocean?

Would Lakshmi Devi, the goddess of wealth, become His consort?

Would Lakshmana worship Him?

Would the intelligent Bharata offer his salutations to Him?

But for the mighty power of Rama, would all this happen?

Indeed, Rama's power is beyond all description.

(Telugu Poem)

Nobody can estimate the infinite power of Rama. It can only be experienced in the heart. Love is the only yardstick to measure the power of Divinity. Hence, we have to develop love to experience Divinity. Hanuman could jump across the vast ocean because he chanted the Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003)
70

Name of Rama always. With the power of Rama's Name, he could lift mighty mountains.

How could the monkeys build a bridge across the ocean? In the beginning, the boulders were getting drowned in the ocean and the monkeys were frustrated. Then Hanuman thought of a plan. He inscribed the letter 'Ra' on one boulder and 'ma' on another and threw them in the ocean one after the other. They stuck together to make the Name 'Rama'.

With the help of many such boulders bearing the letters 'Ra' and 'ma', a bridge was constructed. The boulders became light and floated on water only due to the power of Rama's Name

There is an intimate and inseparable relationship between the love of a devotee and the grace of God. Only love can win divine grace. You have to practise righteousness and tread the path of sacrifice to experience everlasting happiness. The name and principle of Rama will give you tremendous strength and power. The divine principle underlying the Avatars of Rama and Krishna can neither be explained in words nor understood with the help of worldly education. Only through love can one understand them. Fill your heart with love and chant the name of Rama forgetting yourself in bliss. Then Rama will certainly give you His divine darshan.

Once there lived an ardent devotee of Rama in Chengalpat near Madras. He wanted to attend the marriage of Thyagaraja's daughter in Thiruvayyar. He wanted to present a picture of Rama to the bride. In those days, there were no buses, cars, or planes. Therefore, he walked all the way from Chengalpat to Thiruvayyar, carrying the picture of Rama. On seeing the picture, Thyagaraja was ecstatic and burst into a song, "Oh Rama! You walked all the way in order to protect me. You have taken so much trouble Oh Lord." In this manner, he went on extolling Rama's love and compassion. He experienced unity with Rama's Divinity. He considered Rama his dear old friend. You don't need to observe any formalities or use respectful words when you address your old friend. Thyagaraja addressed Rama with the same intimacy in the song, "Rama inti daaka ..." (Oh Rama! Come to my house). There is another song that reflects the feeling of friendship: "Enta vedukondu Raghava E panthamelara Oh Raghava?" (How long should I plead with You, Oh Raghava! Why are You so obstinate and not responding?) Thyagaraja felt, "It is my duty to pray till Your heart melts. But the warmth of my prayer does not seem to have touched Your heart. One day or the other, Your heart will surely melt. I will wait till such time. I am in no hurry." In this manner, he consoled himself. It was only then that Rama granted him His divine vision. No one can comprehend how and when God is going to shower His grace on a sadhaka (spiritual Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003) 71 aspirant) and what type of boons He is going to grant him. He gives so many gifts and ultimately gives Himself and makes you ecstatic. Why then are you distancing yourself from such all-merciful Lord? You are aware that everyday you chant the following prayer before partaking your food: Brahmarpanam Brahma Havir Brahmagnou Brahmanahutam Brahmaiva Thena Ganthavyam Brahma Karma Samadhina.

You say that the food is an offering to Brahman. Then where is Brahman? He is within. So, immediately God replies from within: Aham Vaishvanaro Bhutva Praninam Dehamasrita Pranapana Samayukta Pachamyannam Chaturvidham

God says "My dear one, I am in you in the form of Vaishvanara. I receive and digest the four types of food that you partake of. You don't need to send any special invitation to Me nor extol Me. I am yours and you are Mine. I am with you, in you, above you, below you, around you." God has given you such a great assurance. He has promised that He will be always with you. But you are not able to understand this. Embodiments of Love! God is the ocean of love and compassion. He is sweetest and most enchanting. That is why Rama is described as Pumsam mohana rupaya (One who enchants even the males). He captivates and attracts everyone. There is divinity in every object in this world. But man is unable to understand this divine principle. In spite of all his education and listening to the discourses of saints and holy men, he is unable to comprehend the nature of the divine. There is only one way by which you can understand God. Love Him wholeheartedly. Do not hate anyone. If you come across a person who hates you, do not reciprocate the same feeling. Greet him saying, "Hello friend, how are you?" Then all the hatred in him will vanish. He too will develop love toward you. God is your true friend and is most intimately related to you. Love is the only path that can take you to God. When you develop love, God will give Himself up to you and will protect you always. Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003)

Embodiments of Love!

It is a grave mistake on your part to consider yourself a mere human being. Contemplate on the fundamental principle of wisdom, Aham

etat

na (I am not this (body)). I and you are one. When you understand and experience such intimate relationship with God, there will be no differences whatsoever.

In this New Year, develop new and noble feelings; contemplate on God with full faith that He will grant you all comforts and happiness. Lead your life with love and enjoy peace and happiness. You should strive for the happiness of not merely yourself, your friends, and relatives, but for the welfare of all. Strive to make everyone happy with the constant prayer, Loka samasta sukhino bhavantu (May all the people of the world be happy)! Then you will certainly experience true peace and bliss. Those who help others will always be helped in turn; they will never be put to harm.

Bhagavan sang the bhajan, "Rama Rama Rama Sita ..." and then continued the discourse.

Embodiments of Love!

When you chant the divine Name with love at least once, you will experience inexplicable and overwhelming bliss in your heart. The

divine

Name melts even a stone-hearted person. Even ice takes some time to melt, but God's heart melts instantaneously when you chant His with love. So, chant the Name of God. Even while you are traveling,

Name

you

can chant His Name silently without attracting others' attention.

Sarvada

sarva kaleshu sarvatra Rama chintanam (everywhere, at all times and under all circumstances, contemplate on the divine name of Rama).

There

is no greater sadhana (spiritual exercise) than this. The essence of all sadhanas is contained in this. In the Kali yuga, chanting of God's is the royal path to liberation.

Harer Nama Harer Nama Harer Namaiva Kevalam,

Kalau Nastyeva Nastyeva Nastyeva Gathiranyatha.

Chanting of the divine Name is the only path to liberation in this age of Kali.

9. PRACTISE AND PROPAGATE OUR SACRED CULTURE

Date: 15 April 2003 Occasion: Vishu celebrations Place: Brindavan

The sun appears serene and peaceful.

The fields are ripe with golden crops.

Marigold flowers are blossoming

like garlands of pearls on the banks of rivers.

The farmers are rejoicing and singing.

The chillies have ripened and are looking red.

The sweet festival of Sri Vishu has come,

filling our homes with the newly harvested grain.

(Telugu Poem)

Today is the day of great happiness for the people of Kerala. The farmers reap the harvest, bring the grains to the home, and rejoice. Food is very essential for the nation. It is the farmers who feed to the nation and bring peace and prosperity to it. It is their good fortune to be able to render such joyful service to the nation. Only when the farmers who give us

food

are happy and contented can the nation be peaceful and prosperous.

Right from dawn to dusk, they toil in the fields and render great service to the nation.

Embodiments of Love!

This land of Bharat is very sacred and meritorious. Since time immemorial, Bharat has been imparting spiritual education to all nations of the world and thus bestowing peace and happiness on all. This is the eternal glory of Bharat. The motto of the Bharatiyas (Indians) has been Loka samasta sukhino bhavantu (May all the people of the world be happy!) Sarvam khalvidam Brahma (verily all this is Brahman). As Brahma pervades the entire world, dharma should permeate all actions of

man. Karma (action) will be sanctified only when it is based on dharma and Brahma. It is said, Karmanubandheeni manushya loke (human society is bound by action). Nobody should waste time. Right from

the time he wakes up in the morning, man should utilise his time and energy for the welfare of society. This is his main duty. He should realise that his welfare lies in the welfare of society. I have seen that the people of

are always engaged in some activity or the other. They work very hard.

They are not interested in comforts and pleasures. They derive happiness in working hard and serving society. They strive for peace and security of one and all. That is their most sacred virtue.

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003)

74

Embodiments of Love!

Kerala is the seat of education. It is the land which stands as testimony to the profound truths enunciated in the Vedas, Sastras, Puranas, and Itihasas. In such a land of peace and sacredness, today people are unable to experience the unsullied happiness that their ancestors were able to enjoy in the past. However, there is no cause for worry. A time will come, when Kerala will regain its past glory. Time plays an important role.

We have to discharge the duties ordained on us by God and thus sanctify our time. Whatever actions we perform are the reflections of our inner feelings only. You should undertake such actions that will provide internal

as well as external happiness. Nobody can remain without performing action.

Man is born from action, is sustained by action, and ultimately merges in action.

Action is the cause for pleasure and pain.

Truly speaking, action is God for man.

(Telugu Poem)

Man's life is bound by kala, karma, karana, kartavya (time, action, cause, duty). Due to the effect of Kali age, man does not work hard. Both the educated and the uneducated have become lethargic. You have to sanctify your life by doing righteous actions. Action is the cause for everything. Action is life. It is very unfortunate that man has not understood the importance of action. He wants to lead an easy life.

Even

students want to pass the examinations without putting much effort.

They

want to secure jobs without working hard. After securing jobs, they want

salaries without discharging their duties. This type of conduct is not good.

It is said, kashte phali (hard work yields rich rewards). The rewards that one gets will be commensurate with the efforts one puts in. One should recognise this truth and work hard accordingly. Unfortunately, such a spirit of work is not seen these days. There are people who go to office only to give attendance. Each one has to question oneself whether one is discharging one's duty properly or not. It is most essential that man becomes duty conscious.

Embodiments of Love!

You have to bend your body and work. Discharge your duty with the sweat of your brow. Only then can you get the right reward. Today, people are suffering for want of food and drinking water. What is the reason? Man is not undertaking righteous actions. When man does

his

duty sincerely, there will be no shortage of food and drinking water.

Without working hard, one cannot lead a happy life. Na sukhat

labhyate

sukham (one cannot derive happiness out of happiness). We can get happiness only when we work hard. For every action of ours, there is Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003) bound to be reaction. For every sound that we make there will be resound. When we undertake righteous action and utter sacred words, the same will come back to us in the form of reaction, reflection and resound.

Embodiments of Love!

Our actions should be such that they bring happiness to ourselves as well as others. First of all, we have to enquire what true happiness is and what sorrow is. People think that happiness lies in eating to the fill and having a sound sleep. That is no happiness at all. Happiness lies in working hard and serving society. We can experience peace and happiness only when we help the poor and needy. After our daily prayer, we utter the word peace thrice: santhi santhi santhi. Where is peace? It is inside, not outside. Outside there are only pieces! You are the embodiment of peace, you are the embodiment of truth, you are the embodiment of love, you are the embodiment of God. How foolish it is to look for peace outside when it is present within! You have to put in proper effort to experience the peace within. You have to turn your vision inward. When two branches rub against each other repeatedly, fire is produced.

Similarly,

continuous hard work will produce janagni (fire of wisdom).

Embodiments of Love!

Today, nobody wants difficulties. Everybody aspires for happiness.

Where

is happiness? It is everywhere. We should earn the deservedness to experience it. Our Judge (who spoke earlier) mentioned in his speech that he was disappointed when Swami did not speak to him in spite of having worked hard. He did a lot of self-introspection. As a result, he got a good chance today. Without working hard, you cannot get any reward. But today, man is not prepared to work hard.

During Upanishadic times, people would offer their salutations to the karma (action) before undertaking it --thasmai namah karmane (salutations to action). We have to offer our salutations to the karma in the first instance so that it gives us good result.

In Bharat, some people follow this sacred tradition even today. A cricket player pays his respects to the ball before starting to bowl. A dancer salutes the anklets before tying them to her feet. Even an uneducated driver offers his obeisance to the steering wheel before driving the vehicle. But most of the educated people have forgotten such an ancient tradition and culture. That is why accidents are on the rise. There is a sense of fear and insecurity among people.

First of all, we have to offer our respects and express our gratitude to karma before undertaking it. Every one has to understand his duty and perform it to the best of his ability. Before the commencement of any Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003) 76 music programme, musicians pray to Vinayaka, the remover of obstacles.

One who has no nayaka (master) above him is Vinayaka. He is the master of all. Hence, we have to offer our prayers to him before the commencement of any activity. Since ancient times, Bharatiyas (Indians) adhered to such sacred traditions implicitly. People decorate their houses with buntings of green leaves on festival days. Big pandals of mango leaves and plantain leaves are erected at the time of marriages. Green leaves are given place of prominence in such decorations. What is so special about them? Can't we have a shamiana instead?

No, that is not in accordance with our ancient tradition. What is the logic behind this tradition? As you are aware, we inhale oxygen and exhale carbon dioxide, which pollutes the atmosphere. At the time of marriages, many people gather at one place. As a result, more and more carbon dioxide is released into the air and the atmosphere gets polluted. The green leaves of the pandal inhale the carbon dioxide and release oxygen and thus purify the atmosphere. In this manner, they bestow health and happiness on us.

Thus, every tradition of Bharat has a profound inner meaning. Such sacred traditions are ignored today. Wherever a marriage is performed or a big meeting is held, people prefer decorative shamianas to pandals, plastic festoons to green leaf festoons. Can you get oxygen from plastic festoons? Can they absorb carbon dioxide? The shamianas and plastic festoons may be aesthetically pleasing but they serve no purpose in keeping the atmosphere pure. We should never forget our ancient traditions.

In Kerala, even today ancient traditions are followed. On festival days, they place a lamp on rice, with beautiful decorations around. It is very auspicious for the house. Onam and Vishu are the sacred festivals that the Keralites celebrate. You must understand the tradition and significance associated with the celebration of Vishu. It is not merely meant to wish each other 'hello' and shake hands. Vishu is that day when your house has grains in plenty and the State attains prosperity. This is how the festival was celebrated in ancient times. Today Vishu celebration is confined to wishing each other. This is not the way to celebrate Vishu.

You have to aspire and work for the happiness of others. True celebration of Vishu lies in each sharing the happiness of the other. Give and take. It is not 'one way traffic'. You have to give happiness to others. Only then will you have the right to receive it from others.

Kerala has plantain trees and coconut groves in abundance. You find greenery all around. Keralites prepare various types of puddings with plantains. There is a special type of plantain called nendra pazham, which they distribute to others.

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003) 77 The Gayatri Mantra begins with the syllables Om, Bhur, Bhuvah Suvaha.

Om is the primordial sound, Pranava. Bhur represents bhuloka, the world of materials (materialisation). Bhuvah is related to the mind (vibration). Suvaha represents prajnana (radiation). When you understand these three principles, your life will be sanctified. But

today
 man is not interested in such divine principles. He craves for worldly gains. How long can he enjoy physical pleasures? They are momentary.
 They do not give true happiness. This is what Adi Sankara said in his famous Bhaja Govindam song thus:
Ma Kuru Dhana Jana Yauvana Garvam,
Harathi Nimeshath Kalah Sarvam
 Do not be proud of your wealth, progeny, and youth;
 the tide of time may destroy them in a moment.
 Hence, you should not crave for worldly happiness. You should strive for eternal peace and everlasting happiness. You should not be caught up in the endless cycle of birth and death. You should transcend birth and death and attain immortality.
Punarapi Jananam Punarapi Maranam
Punarapi Janani Jathare Sayanam
Iha Samsare Bahu Dustare
Kripayapare Pahi Murare.
Oh Lord! I am caught up in this cycle of birth and death.
 Time and again, I am experiencing the agony of staying in the mother's womb.
 It is very difficult to cross this ocean of worldly life.
 Please take me across this ocean and grant me liberation.
 Once a person was sitting under a tree on the bank of river Ganga and trying to master the nuances of Panini grammar. He was repeating Dukrun karane, Dukrun karane. Sankara was going to the river with his disciples for a sacred bath. He took pity on the person, went up to him and said, "My dear one, by learning the rules of grammar, you may become a great scholar. But it is not going to save you from death. Hence, chant the name of Govinda, who alone is your saviour." It was then that Adi Sankara sang the famous Bhaja Govindam song.
Bhaja Govindam, Bhaja Govindam
Govindam Bhaja Moodha Mathe
Samprapthe Sannihithe Kale
Nahi Nahi Rakshathi Dukrun Karane.
Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003)
 78
Oh foolish man, chant the name of Govinda;
 he rules of grammar will not come to your rescue when the end approaches.
 Some of the other verses of this song were composed by the disciples of Sankara. It is said, Yatha raja, thatha praja (as the king, so are the subjects). The same can be said of guru-sisya (teacher-student) relationship. Yatha guru thatha sisya (as the preceptor, so are the disciples). The preceptors of those days were highly noble. They set great ideals, which their disciples emulated. We don't find such masters

and
 disciples today.
 One should not crave for scholarship or name and fame. They come and go. When there is plenty of water in the pond, frogs make their way into
 it. When the water dries to a trickle, you do not find a single frog there. In the same manner, when your pocket is full, many people swarm around you. But when your pocket is empty, no one will look at your face. This is the way of the world. Do not get deluded by the loka (world). Contemplate on Lokesha (Lord of the world) incessantly. Sankara made a great contribution to the spiritual wealth of this country. We should express our gratitude to him by following his teachings. We should never forget our cultural heritage. Each State has its own traditions. They have to be followed in letter and spirit. Today, fashions have displaced traditions. Do not be carried away by fashions. Let the ancient traditions be imprinted on your heart.
 In villages, people sprinkle cow dung mixed with water in front of their homes. It is considered to be auspicious. What is the reason? Cow dung destroys disease-causing germs and thus helps maintain good health. It can cure many diseases. Today people of other countries have recognised this truth and are taking full advantage of it. But the Bharatiyas (Indians) are not making efforts in this direction.
 In earlier days, cow dung was used as a remedy for wounds. People used to bandage the wound with cow dung. In modern times, people have a wrong notion that the wound becomes septic if cow dung is bandaged over it. It may become gangrenous also, they argue. It is a baseless argument. If cow dung is applied, the wound will be healed in three days.
 Cow dung has such sacred power. Even cow urine has medicinal properties. It is mixed in water and sprinkled on people infected with the pox. But the modern trend is against such natural remedies, which are in fact, beneficial to one and all.
 The Bharatiyas have to revive such ancient traditions. Let people say what they want, we have to follow our sacred traditions.
Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003)

On the day of Vishu, people have a sacred bath and put on new clothes.

Mere external cleanliness is not enough, you have to cleanse your mind and develop inner purity. Antarbahischa tatsarvam vyapya Narayana sthita (That all-pervasive God is present within and without). We have to offer obeisance to our elders and seek their blessings. We have to develop good relationship with all. Therein lies the true celebration of Vishu.

Today, even among the Keralites, many do not know the true significance of Vishu. It is a symbol of our great cultural heritage. Today people are not aware of the greatness of Bharat. It is said, Yenna Bharate thanna

Bharata (what is not found in Bharat is not found anywhere else).

Bharatiyas are those who sing the glory of God with bhava, raga, and thala (feeling, tune, and rhythm). Music will be pleasing to the ears

only

when these three are in harmony.

Right from young age, the children should be taught the greatness of our ancient culture. They should be moulded into ideal citizens. They should be made to practise our traditional values. For anything, practise is very important. The responsibility lies with the parents and teachers to make the children adhere to our ancient tradition. Then society will certainly progress and enjoy peace and prosperity. If you practise our ancient values, society will attain kshemam (welfare), otherwise, it will be afflicted with kshamam (famine). Do not think about the welfare of

you and your family alone. Strive for the welfare of everyone. Loka

samasta

sukhino bhavantu (May all the people of the world be happy!)

Students!

Make efforts to understand the greatness of our ancient culture and traditions. Respect everyone. Do not be rude to elders and guests who visit your house. Whether your parents are at home or not, offer them a seat and give them a glass of cold water or buttermilk. Speak to them with love. However, such noble practices are not to be found among students of the present times. If somebody rings up asking for father, even if he is at home, the son keeps down the phone saying he is not there. Even over the phone, you should talk in a respectful manner.

You

can earn the respect of others only when you respect them. Respect does not mean merely saying, 'hello'. You should offer your namaskara with humility and reverence. Na-maskara means offering your respects without a trace of ahamkara and mamakara (ego and attachment).

Matru Devo bhava, pitru Devo bhava, acharya Devo bhava, atithi

Devo

bhava (revere your mother, father, preceptor, and guest as God).

Since

our ancients adhered to such sacred principles, our nation earned the respect of the entire world. We should develop humility, love, and reverence toward elders like the ancient Bharatiyas. We should practise

and propagate our sacred culture. That is the true sign of education.

10. LOVE AND RESPECT YOUR PARENTS AND SANCTIFY YOUR LIFE

Date: 06 May 2003 Occasion: Easwaramma Day Place: Brindavan

When man comes out of the mother's womb, he does not bring any money with him.

Money does not follow him either when he departs from the world.

Even a millionaire has to partake of salt and rice.

He cannot swallow gold to satiate his hunger.

One may feel proud of his wealth, but he cannot take even a single pie with him when he leaves the world.

Just as man enjoys the honey collected by the bees, the wealth one amasses may ultimately fall in the hands of either donga (thief) or dora (king).

(Telugu Poem)

When man emerges from the womb of his mother,
one does not find any garland round his neck.

There are no jewels made of pearls
nor are there glittering gold ornaments.

There are no chains studded with precious stones
like emeralds and diamonds.

There is no garland of flowers either.

But there is one garland round his neck.

Brahma strings together the consequences of his past deeds into a heavy garland and puts it round his neck at the time of his birth.

(Telugu Poem)

Embodiments of Love!
 Every individual has a mother. One who does not please his mother and become the recipient of her love is not a true son. In today's world, mothers who bring up their children with proper love and care are very rare. It is said, Deho devalaya proktho jeevo devah sanathanah (the body is a temple and the indweller in the body is God). In every temple, we find a bell. But, the bell present in the temple of a human body is not visible outside. This bell is known as anahati. It is not a bell that one can ring. However, it rings continuously on its own day in and day out as long as life remains in the human body. This is nothing but the human heart.
 When the bell stops ringing, the body becomes lifeless. Then, we call the Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003) body a savam (corpse). When the bell is ringing, the body is considered to be sivam (auspicious).
 The entire universe is the temple of God. In this temple of the universe, one can continuously hear the sound of the bell Om. That is why God is described as Sabda Brahmanamayi, Characharamayi, Iyotirmayi, Vangmayi, Nityanandamayi, Paratparamayi, Mayamayi, and Sreemayi (the embodiment of sound, movable and immovable, light, speech, eternal bliss, transcendental, delusion, and wealth). Today, instead of attuning ourselves to that sacred sound of Om, we are lending our ears to worldly talk and vain gossip. We are unable to listen to the divine voice of Akhanda Satchidananda Swarupa (God, the embodiment of existence, consciousness and bliss).
 Once upon a time in the temple of Visweswara in Kasi, the Pujari was offering Arati to the deity. Suddenly, a big gold plate fell from above. The Pujari was surprised and happily picked it up to have a closer look at it. There was an inscription on the plate, which read as follows: "It should be given to the greatest devotee. One who does not chant the Divine Name is not qualified to get it." Then the Pujari thought to himself, "everyday, I am performing Sahasra Lingarchana and Abhishekam to the Lord. I am sanctifying my time by chanting the sacred mantras from the four Vedas. Can there be a greater devotee than me?" When such ego and pride clouded his mind, the gold plate

 From that day onward, whoever visited the temple was asked to touch the plate to find out if he deserved to receive the gold plate. But it so happened that the plate would turn into an earthen one whenever somebody touched it. It continued for a few days.
 There was a devotee who always chanted the Name of God, but did not perform any other sadhana (spiritual exercises) like japa (soft repetition of the name), thapa, dhyanana (meditation), etc. He had no desires. He had achieved dama (sense control). One day he visited the temple. On being requested by the Pujari to touch the plate, he said, "Sir, I don't have any desires. Hence, I don't want to touch it."
 The Pujari requested him to touch the plate at least for his satisfaction.
 The devotee did not want to displease the Pujari and therefore he touched the plate. No sooner did he touch it than it started shining with added brilliance. People who were witness to this event surrounded him and started asking, "Oh noble soul! What is the method of worship you follow, what is the sadhana you perform?" Then he replied, "I have not performed any japa, thapa, yajna or yaga (sacrifices or rituals). I only serve the poor. They are very dear to God."
Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003)
 83
 Neither by penance nor by pilgrimage nor by study of scriptures nor by japa can one cross the ocean of life. One can achieve it only by serving the pious.
 (Sanskrit Verse)
 From then onward, many rich people started visiting Kasi to see this devotee. Wherever there are rich people, it is but natural that the poor also gather begging for alms from the rich. This devotee was moved on seeing their pathetic condition and resolved to himself, "God loves the poor very much. That is why He has drawn so many of them to His abode.
 God will be pleased only when they are looked after well. That is what I love to do. I will be happy only when I am able to alleviate the suffering of these poor people and make them happy." From then on, he continued to serve the poor and the needy with greater devotion and enthusiasm.

This was an eye-opener for the rich who had gathered there.

Even a millionaire has to partake of salt and rice. He cannot swallow gold to satiate his hunger. One may feel proud of his wealth, but he cannot take even a single pie with him when he leaves the world. Such being the case, why should one struggle to amass wealth? Instead, it is better one strives to attain divine grace. When you contemplate on God all the time continuously with single-minded devotion, He will take care of all your needs. This was what the devotee taught to all those who had assembled there.

The money we accumulate will not follow us. To whom will it go ultimately? Nobody knows. It is not possible to take even a paisa with us.

You have to undertake righteous deeds and earn merit so as to deserve divine grace. When you are born out of your mother's womb, you do not find any garland round your neck. But there is one garland surely. Brahma strings together the consequences of all your past deeds, be they good or bad, into a heavy garland and puts it round your neck. Nobody can come into the world without that garland of karma. But man forgets this truth and always craves for pleasures and comforts. How long can the worldly pleasures last?

Ma Kuru Dhana Jana Yauvana Garvam,

Harathi Nimeshath Kalah Sarvam

Do not be proud of your wealth, progeny and youth; the tide of time may destroy them in a moment.

People feel proud of their youth and wealth. But they are momentary. Realising this truth, we have to accumulate the wealth of divine grace. After imparting such sacred teaching to the people around him, the devotee started coming out of the temple. As he stepped out, the gold plate also followed him. Along with the plate, all the coins started rolling behind him. Then the beggars started going behind him asking for the money. The devotee said, "My dear ones, what is the use of asking me God is the guardian of all. He is the richest of all. Hence, pray to Him."

As

he was moving away, many coins started falling from the gold plate.

The

beggars collected those coins.

The devotee went into a state of bliss and closed his eyes. He had the vision of Lord Visweswara. He prayed, "Oh Lord Visweswara, You are the master of the whole universe. Can't You take care of these poor people?

Please shower Your grace on them."

To pray for the welfare of all with selfless love is the noblest prayer.

The

devotee had no trace of selfishness in him. He prayed for others with selfless love. Hence, God was pleased with him. You should always pray in a selfless manner. Only such a prayer will melt God's heart. There is no point in praying to God with worldly objectives. God, who is the embodiment of love resides in our hridaya (heart). Hridaya is known as anahati. It is the bell that rings continuously. God residing in our heart keeps it ringing. We should listen to the sound of that bell.

Our scriptures have prescribed nine paths of devotion

Sravanam (listening),

Kirtanam (singing),

Vishnusmaranam (contemplating on Vishnu),

Padasevanam (serving His Lotus Feet),

Vandanam (salutation),

Archanam (worship),

Dasyam (servitude),

Sneham (friendship),

Atmanivedanam (self-surrender).

Self-surrender is the true offering that you have to make to God. He is not interested in the worldly offerings you make. What you have to offer to God is the same heart that He has given you.

O God, I offer the heart which You have given me.

What else can I offer at Your Lotus Feet?

Please accept my salutations.

(Telugu Poem)

God is not interested in the wealth you have earned or accumulated.

He

has no dearth of wealth. He is Vishnu Swarupa. When goddess of wealth

Lakshmi herself resides on His chest, what is it that you can offer Him?

The Pakshi Vahana (Lord Vishnu who has Garuda as His vehicle) has goddess Lakshmi on His chest. Why should He ask for bhiksha (alms)

from others? Hence, you don't need to give anything to God. The sacred heart that He has given you should be given back to Him.

Due to the effect of the Kali Age, people are not prepared to offer their heart to God which He has given them. They are offering the wealth they have accumulated. How can you make such a low and mean offering? You should offer your heart to God. That is called Anahata Dharma. This is the true treasure that we have to safeguard always. Embodiments of Love!

Due to the effect of Kali Age, devotion and detachment have also become artificial. People are trying to please others, but not God. You have to undertake activities that are pleasing to God. If you go by your own likes and dislikes, how can God be pleased with you? What God likes the most is Anahata Prema. Your hridaya (heart) should overflow with love, sacrifice, and bliss. You may make any number of offerings, but if you do not offer your hridaya to God, He will not accept them. He may pretend to have accepted those offerings, but He will throw them away. You should offer Him that which pleases Him. That is hridaya, which is called Anahati.

It is the centre of love and bliss. In fact, it is the basis of everything. If you do not offer such a sacred heart to God, what is the use of other offerings? God is not interested in such artificial offerings. If you come across poor people, give them what they require. If they are shivering in the cold, give them a blanket. You should give them what they need, but not what would you like to give them.

In those days (Swami's school days), when we returned from the Bukkapatnam school in the evenings, mother Easwaramma would lovingly enquire as to what happened in the school that day. She had no formal education at all. One day the children told her, "Mother, today a teacher by name Kondappa made our Sathya stand upon the bench." They started criticising him.

Mother Easwaramma intervened and said, "Children, you should not talk ill of your teacher. No teacher would punish his student without a proper reason. Our Sathya might have committed some mistake." Then she asked Me, "Sathya, what is the mistake You committed?"

I told her the facts as they happened. Kondappa ordered, "Whoever has written the notes should place it on his table. Others should stand upon the bench." I had not written the notes. That was My mistake. Hence, I stood upon the bench. I also said something which was more than necessary. I said, "Sir, can all those boys who have taken down the notes answer your questions? Though I have not written the notes, I can answer any question that you may ask."

Kondappa thought that I was egotistic and ordered Me to stand upon the bench for three periods. I obeyed him and stood upon the bench. Meanwhile, the other teacher, Mahboob Khan, came to the class. He was a Mohammaden and a noble person. He was pained to see Me standing on the bench. He asked, "Kondappa, why have you made this boy stand upon the bench?"

"He has not taken down the notes, hence the punishment", said Kondappa.

Mahboob Khan defended Me saying, "So what if He has not taken down the notes? He can answer all your questions, and that is enough. Ask Him to sit down."

But Kondappa insisted that I should be punished as I had disobeyed his command. The bell rang and Kondappa had to go to another class. But he was unable to get up from the chair. Initially he thought that his dhoti had got entangled to a nail in the chair. But that was not the case. He was stuck to the chair! When he tried to get up from the chair, the chair also came along with him.

Then Mahboob Khan said, "Kondappa, He is not an ordinary boy. He is one of great divine powers. You have punished Him without a proper reason. At least now, ask Him to sit down."

Kondappa realised his mistake and told Me to sit down. Immediately, he could get up from the chair.

When all this was narrated to mother Easwaramma, she said, "Dear Sathya, you should not punish your own guru (teacher)."

I said, "I did not punish him; in fact, he punished himself."

She imparted a sacred teaching to the children, saying, "My dear ones, you are going to school to study. Whatever you learn, put it to proper use. Only then will you be called truly educated and earn the appellation Sakshara. If you do not make proper use of your education, you become a rakshasa (demon). Make efforts to earn the title of Sakshara."

Then she told Me, "Sathya! At any time and under any circumstances, do not cultivate hatred toward anybody. Love all and You will be loved by all."

In fact, there is no trace of hatred or enmity in Me at any time. I love all. That is why everyone loves Me. If we do not love others, how can we expect others to love us? Give love and receive love. It is not a one-way traffic. You should give and take.

87

In this manner, mother Easwaramma taught the children many sacred ideals. One need not have any formal education in order to impart such sacred teachings. There are many who are highly educated, but what is the use? They do not put their knowledge to proper use. Having received many sacred teachings, you should practise at least one of them. You perform worship and sing bhajans with devotion. It is enough if you practise and experience at least one word of the bhajans you sing.

For example, you extol God as 'Premaswarupa' (embodiment of love). Accordingly, you should develop love and share it with others. Only then can you understand and experience divinity.

Mother Easwaramma used to impart many noble teachings to the devotees when they gathered around her. I had given her a small room in Prasanthi Nilayam. Many ladies would go there and plead with her, "Mother, we have been here for a long time. Please tell Swami to grant us an interview." She would tell them, "My dear, Swami may look small to our eyes, but He does not listen to anyone. He will not act on recommendations. He will give you what you deserve. You should try to understand the divine principle of Swami." In this manner, she would give proper guidance to the devotees.

One day she told Me, "Sathya! Your name and fame have spread far and wide. The whole world is coming to You. Please bestow peace on the world with Your Sankalpa (Will)."

I told her, "It is not that I have to make a Sankalpa for world peace. Each one has to attain peace by himself, because man by nature is the embodiment of peace. He is the embodiment of truth. He is the embodiment of love." You have to manifest your love. You have to experience peace within. You have to follow the path of truth.

Sathyam
Vada, Dharmam Chara (speak truth and practise righteousness). You can achieve anything when you follow this principle.

Since ancient times, there have been many noble mothers who have guided their children on the right path. The future of the nation rests in the hands of mothers. That is why one calls one's own country as motherland. Bharat (India) is the birthplace of many noble mothers.

Our ancient culture has accorded first place to the mother. Father comes only next. Even on invitation cards we write Smt. and Sri. The husband may be highly educated and occupying a position of authority. He may be the president of the nation. Yet, we cannot write Sri and Srimati while sending an invitation. Srimati has to come first. Since ancient times, women are treated with great reverence and respect in Bharat. This land of Bharat is highly sacred. But unfortunately, people have lost love for their motherland.

He is a true human being who loves his mother and becomes the recipient of his mother's love. One who cannot earn his mother's love is verily a demon. Hence, respect and revere your mother. Experience and enjoy your mother's love. Dedicate your life for the happiness of the mother.

You may acquire any number of degrees; you may undertake any number of sacred activities; but all of them will prove futile if you do not please your mother. There is none superior to the mother in this world. The Veda has accorded the place of highest prominence to the mother when it declared, Matru Devo Bhava, Pitru Devo Bhava, Acharya Devo Bhava, Atithi Devo Bhava (revere your mother, father, preceptor, and guest as God). There may be a son in this world who does not love his mother, but there cannot be a mother who does not love her son. There may be differences of opinion between them, but the motherly love will never diminish.

Embodiments of Love!
It is your foremost duty to love your mother. As soon as you wake up in the morning, the first thing you should do is to touch your mother's

and offer your salutations. Such a noble practice will protect you always and bestow on you all types of wealth. Students, Boys and Girls! You are going to be fathers and mothers in future. You will be loved and respected by your children only when you love and respect your parents now. You are bound to face the reaction, resound, and reflection of your actions. When you respect your parents, there will be rich rewards for you in the future.

Today we are celebrating Easwaramma Day. I want to tell you an incident that speaks of her immense compassion and love for children. In those days, students from various States and countries attended Summer Classes. Gokak, who used to conduct the classes, was a strict disciplinarian. He was a man of great character and sacrifice. He was a great academician too. He was conducting the classes in an exemplary manner. One day, the students were having lunch in the dining hall. One of the boys got up and went outside before others could finish their meals. Gokak, who watched this through the window, called him and chided him for his act of indiscipline. "When your fellow students are having their food, you should not get up in the middle even though you have completed your meals. It amounts to insulting them." Saying so, Gokak suspended him from the classes. The boy was in tears, but Gokak was not moved.

The boy came to mother Easwaramma's room, fell at her feet and started crying. He told her about the harsh punishment meted out to him by Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003) 89 Gokak. He pleaded with her to come to his rescue. Easwaramma consoled him and sent him away. She was sitting on the steps where Gokak would pass by. After a while Gokak came there. She offered her Namaskar to him and he reciprocated the same most reverentially. Then she said, "When I did Namaskar to you, you reciprocated the same. In the same manner, if you punish others, you will be punished in return. The boy out of his innocence has done a mistake. Please forgive him and allow him to attend the classes."

Then Gokak replied, "Mother, if I forgive him, it would set a bad precedent for others. Anyway, I will forgive him only for your sake."

In

this manner, she would go out of her way to help and provide comfort and solace to others.

You are bound to face the consequences of your actions. If you talk to others in a harsh manner, it will come back to you as resound. If you hit others, it will come back to you as reflection. Hence, do not hurt others.

Do good, be good, see good, and speak good. Then, you will be blessed with rich rewards. Though mother Easwaramma had no formal education, she conducted herself in an exemplary manner. She was one of profound wisdom. The teaching that mother Easwaramma imparted remained etched in the heart of Gokak. Later on when he came as Vice Chancellor to Puttaparthi, he used to recollect her words of wisdom. He would remember her everyday. He would say, "I see Easwaramma in my dream quite often. I follow her advice implicitly."

We should not criticise others. We should not hurt others or make fun of them. We should love all. This is what mother Easwaramma taught everybody. Do your duty sincerely. Then, you will certainly progress in life. Whoever he may be, follow the sacred teachings of our elders.

People

attribute certain teachings to Rama, Krishna, and so on and so forth.

It

does not matter whether it is Rama or Krishna; enquire what, why, when,

where, and under what circumstances they had given those teachings.

You should remember the context in which those teachings were imparted and act accordingly. When you obey the command of elders and divine personalities, you will certainly attain exalted position in life.

Many students do not pay heed to the words of their mother. It is a grave mistake. Mothers speak from their heart wishing the welfare of their children. You should understand their feelings and give due respect

to their words.

Embodiments of Love! Boys and Girls

Obey the commands of your parents. You will certainly be blessed with all types of education and strength. You do not need to make any special efforts to acquire them. Discharge your duty sincerely. Never disregard

the words of your parents. Follow them with love and sanctify your life.

Wishing that you give happiness to your parents and thereby set an ideal to your children, I bless you all and bring My discourse to a close.

11. SPIRIT OF SACRIFICE IS THE

HALLMARK OF A TRUE DOCTOR

Date: 05 July 2003 Occasion: Doctors' Day Place: Brindavan

If you look to Me, I will look to you.

Forbearance is the real beauty in this sacred land of Bharat (India). Of all the rituals, adherence to truth is the greatest penance. The nectarous feeling in this country is the feeling of love toward one's mother. Character is valued far higher than the very life itself. People have forgotten the basic principles of this great culture and are imitating Western culture. Alas! The Bharatiyas (Indians) are not aware of the greatness of their cultural heritage just as a mighty elephant is not aware of its own strength. (Telugu poem)

Embodiments of Love!

Man is born in action, is sustained by action and ultimately merges in action.

Action is the cause of pleasure and pain.

Truly speaking, action is God for man. (Telugu Poem)

Man by and large considers himself to be healthy and tries to lead a happy life. But in fact there are 326 diseases that haunt man day in and day out. Excessive vaata, pittha, and sleshma (wind, bile, and phlegm) are responsible for various diseases. Vaata gives rise to 80 types of diseases, pittha to 82 types, and sleshma to 164 types. Such being the case, how can man enjoy a healthy life? Only when he develops Atmic Consciousness and distances himself from the adverse effects of vaata, pittha, and sleshma can he be healthy.

For the past one month, you could not see Swami. What is the reason for this? It is because of the indisposition of this body. I have neither taken upon Myself the illness of anybody nor has it emerged from this body.

Today, I am revealing the truth to you.

The body is made up of five elements and

is bound to perish sooner or later,

but the indweller has neither birth nor death.

He has no attachment whatsoever.

Truly speaking, the indweller is verily God Himself,

who is in the form of the Atma. (Telugu Poem)

Man is always concerned about his health. He has become a victim of various ailments as he is steeped in body consciousness rather than principle. It is very essential for man to realise that diseases underscore the need for getting rid of body consciousness.

You are all aware of the fact that Swami fractured His hip, and it was in three pieces. The ball in the hip was in two pieces. The pain was so excruciating that it cannot be described in words. It was impossible to move this way or that way. It pierced the body as if it were an electric shock. But I was unaffected by it. I underwent all this suffering only to demonstrate that one should not be attached to the body. Instead, one should develop divine consciousness. I am not this body. Body consciousness leads to untold suffering. One has to get rid of body attachment in order to enjoy peace and happiness. What is this body composed of?

This body is a den of dirt and prone to diseases;

it is subject to change from time to time;

it cannot cross the ocean of Samsara.

It is nothing but a structure of bones.

O mind, do not be under the delusion that body is permanent.

Instead, take refuge at the Divine Lotus Feet. (Telugu Poem)

Dehabhimana (body consciousness) will disappear once you develop

Daivabhimana (Divine Consciousness). The first step on the spiritual path is to keep body consciousness under check. You are subjected to misery because you are immersed in body consciousness. Body consciousness and Atmic consciousness are inversely proportional. Nobody can escape the consequences of karma (action). Karma is the cause for birth and death.

The Bhagavad Gita declares:

Karmanyevadhikarasthe Maaphaleshu Kadhachana.

Man has right over action but not over the fruits of action.

Karmanubandheeni Manushya Loke.

Human society is bound by action.

Man should develop Atmic consciousness and plunge into the field of action without aspiring for the rewards. Dharmaraja, eldest among the Pandavas, was the very embodiment of righteousness. Yet, he had to undergo the ordeals in the court of King Virata as a result of karma.

93

Were not the mighty Pandavas compelled to go into exile and lead a life full of troubles?

Did not emperor Harischandra, having lost his kingdom, become caretaker of a graveyard?

Everyone is bound to face the consequences of their action. However, man does have the capacity to escape from the consequences of karma.

He has become weak since he is unable to harness his innate potential due to body attachment. Having assumed a human body, one cannot escape from suffering. Body is momentary, like a water bubble.

I was all smiles when I was being taken to hospital. Many doctors surrounded Me at the hospital. They were anxious. I told them not to worry. "This body is not Mine. It is yours. You can do whatever you deem fit to this body. I have no pain whatsoever.", I assured them. I came back after three hours. I was full of smiles. A true spiritual aspirant is one who undergoes difficulties with a positive frame of mind. Do not care for the suffering of the body. Suffering is quite natural to human body. One has to face suffering with Atma balam (will power).

Today, being Doctors' Day, doctors have to set an ideal by infusing courage and conviction in patients. Doctors, after putting in lot of efforts, have been able to find remedies for various ailments. But there seems to be no end to diseases. There are many doctors all over the world, but the number of patients and ailments are on the rise. If there are two doctors for a family, there are four patients! Patients outnumber doctors.

Man's

lifestyle and habits are responsible for this spurt in diseases.

After the surgery, I was able to walk within a short span of three days.

The reason being I have no body attachment. I see all of you with consciousness and hence am blissful. I teach everyone, "My dear! don't fall a prey to body attachment; develop Atmic consciousness and lead a blissful life". Your Aananda (bliss) is My aahaara (food) and aarogya (health). You call a person healthy when all their limbs are functioning properly. All the organs of My body are functioning effectively.

Physical afflictions are temporary, like passing clouds.

Life is a Challenge, Meet It;

Life is Love, Enjoy It;

Life is a Game, Play It.

You have to play the game of life in the right spirit. I have been doing the same. I have absolutely no pain. Generally, the pain arising out of hip fracture is unbearable. But I am unaffected by injury to any organ of

the body, let alone the hip. Suffering arises when you identify yourself with the body. I have no pains since I have no body attachment. I take delight in your love. Your prayers are responsible for My speedy recovery. In all the corners of the world devotees have been praying intensely.

Through

prayer you can achieve the impossible.

Embodiments of Love!

Gradually give up body attachment. Develop Atmic consciousness.

Atma

alone is true and eternal. Atma is our life. Everything else is a passing cloud. Today, we are celebrating Doctors' Day. This is the day when doctors rededicate themselves to the alleviation of suffering. There are very few doctors who discharge their duties with a spirit of sacrifice, keeping the welfare of patients as their sole objective.

Dr. Sundareshan took great pains to ensure the well-being of Swami.

He

was monitoring Swami's progress every moment. I was telling repeatedly,

"Sundareshan, I am all right, do not worry." But he would not be satisfied. He would keep on enquiring about My welfare; whether I had pain in any part of the body. He is equally concerned about the welfare of other patients. When one of our college students met with a motorcycle accident, Dr. Sundareshan used to monitor his progress day in and day out. He used to make frequent visits to Puttaparthi without taking any rest just to treat that patient. If all doctors in the world were to be like Dr. Sundareshan, there would not be any disease at all. Today diseases

are on the rise because doctors have become money-minded.

One day, nine years ago, after having a head bath, I wanted to dry My hair. One of the American doctors had lovingly presented a hair-drier to Me. When I was trying to use the same, the power supply was cut off.

It

was restored when I was having a close look at the drier.

Consequently, a sudden gust of hot air ripped through My eye damaging the retina. I was not the least perturbed. One eye is sufficient to see this wide world. Sahasra Seersha Purusha, Sahasraksha Sahasra Pad. God has a thousand heads, eyes, and feet. Dr. Hemanth Murthy (ophthalmic surgeon) pleaded with Me to undergo an eye operation as well, along with the hip surgery. The damaged retina, which was removed from My eye, was as dark as charcoal. Since then I am able to see clearly with both My eyes. With such doctors around, any surgery can be performed successfully. Eye surgeons like Dr. Hemanth Murthy and orthopaedic surgeons like Dr. Sundareshan are few in number in this world. Such doctors should be given all encouragement and support. Even the government is unable to provide the necessary infrastructure. Consequently the doctors are handicapped and are unable to give their best. Doctors' Day is being observed to encourage and motivate these doctors. However skilled a doctor may be, he cannot Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003) 95 discharge his duties diligently unless he is provided with proper equipment. Swami's intention is to support and encourage such doctors by providing the necessary facilities. Health and education are the two most important aspects of life. One can put knowledge into practice only when one has good health. Embodiments of Love! In today's world, many people are suffering for want of proper medical facilities. It is your bounden duty to help the suffering humanity. Only then will the country prosper. Money comes and goes; Morality comes and grows. Today many doctors are commercializing the field of medicine. Such doctors are sinners of the worst kind. He is a true doctor who aspires for the well-being of the patient. We have to encourage such noble doctors. Embodiments of Love! One has to take good care of one's health with proper food and habits. There are many poor people in our country who lack the basic necessities of food, raiment, and shelter. Who will take care of them when they are afflicted with diseases? Our hospitals are doing yeoman service to suffering humanity. Do not think that I am lavishing praises on our own hospitals. You can see it for yourself when you visit these hospitals. If you go to our General Hospitals and Super-Speciality hospitals, you will find a number of poor people being treated for various ailments totally free of cost. Elsewhere, the Super-Speciality hospitals are established with commercial motives. They collect fees even to check the temperature of a patient. How can the poor afford such costly treatment? Doctors should render free service to patients to the extent possible. Embodiments of Love! Doctors should serve the poor with spirit of sacrifice. There is no greater service than this. God is the sole refuge of the destitute and the forlorn. As man is the embodiment of God, it is his primary duty to help the destitute and the forlorn. Medicine should not be commercialised. It is meant to promote heart to heart and love to love relationship between doctor and patient. A true doctor is one who realises this truth and conducts himself accordingly. One with commercial outlook is not a doctor at all. In fact, he is a patient himself! Spirit of sacrifice is the hallmark of a true doctor. The doctors who are working in our hospitals are endowed with that spirit of sacrifice. Dr. Savitri and others are working tirelessly day in and day out in our General Hospital. I often tell them, "take proper care of your Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003) 96 health in the first instance. Only then can you serve the patients more effectively." How can you look after the patients if your health is spoiled? Our Principal in his speech mentioned the axiom: Vaidyo Narayano Harihi (doctor is verily God). Being the very embodiment of Lord Narayana, the doctor should serve everyone. God is ever engaged in service. Paropakaraya Punyaya Papaya Parapeedanam One attains merit by serving others and commits sin by hurting them. One need not be a doctor in order to serve others. One should help one's fellow beings to the best of one's ability. We have established hospitals at various places like Puttaparthi, Bangalore, Alike, Muddenahalli, etc. I feel very happy to see the doctors working there with great dedication. We have opened a hospital in Alike quite recently, which is catering to the needs of many poor patients. I am thrilled whenever I see their happy faces. Their happiness gives me immense strength. Only through service, can one become the recipient of divine Grace. Life is meaningless if one does not participate in service activities. The best way to love God is to serve God. You should aspire for the welfare of all and follow the path of Love and Service. Only then will your life find fulfilment. There is a General Hospital at Puttaparthi. There is one more at Whitefield. Amazing cures are taking place in these hospitals. It is the happiness of the patients that gives Me happiness and health. If you aspire for the health and happiness of Swami, look after the patients well. The patients' welfare must be your topmost priority. Serve them with dedication. Service to patients is service to God. There is no service higher than this. Celebration of doctors' day will be meaningful only if service activities are undertaken with dedication and not merely by donning grand attire. As you are aware, Dr. Savitri and Dr. Santha are doing yeoman service in our General Hospital here. Several other doctors also come from city regularly and render voluntary service. 12. CAST OFF BODY ATTACHMENT TO DEVELOP ATMIC CONSCIOUSNESS Date: 13 July 2003 Occasion: Guru Purnima Place: Prasanthi Nilayam

Embodiments of Love!

The entire universe has been created out of the Will of God. God creates the universe and sustains it. The universe ultimately merges in God, the source of its origin. The universe, which has originated from Divine Will, is known as Viswam. The correct meaning of Viswam is that which is selfexpansive and full of bliss. God has created the universe with a purpose, but man is acting contrary to it. Viswam is not merely a manifestation of physical matter. It is a direct manifestation of God. It is the very embodiment of the Cosmic Personality, with all His limbs. The Viswa symbolises the expansive nature of God, which can be understood only through viveka (discrimination). God is beyond time and cause. The physical world functions by so-called reason, but the Divine Will is not bound by reason. God is the primal cause behind the universe. The universe is the reflection of God. Viswam and Vishnu are not different from each other. The letter 'V' in the name Vishnu stands for Viveka and Vistara (expansiveness). Hence, Viswam is the very form of Vishnu. The entire creation constitutes various limbs of God. Every object in the creation has five aspects, namely, sath, chit, ananda, rupa, and nama (existence, consciousness, bliss, form, and name). The first three are eternal principles, whereas name and form are ephemeral. Sath, chit, and ananda are the basis for name and form. All human activities are based on name and form. It is God who decides who has to do what. Some people are rajasic (passionate, active) in nature and some others are thamasic (slothful, dull). Evil qualities like hatred and jealousy are predominant in such people. People attribute various names and forms to God on the basis of their own feelings. They forget the three main principles of sath, chit, and ananda and assume name and form to be the sole reality. name and form are not permanent. But people are overwhelmed by name and form and ignore the eternal principles of sath, chit, and ananda. Consequently, they are deluded and tend to forget the mighty power of God behind the name and form. He is called Padmanabha (One who has a lotus emerging from His navel). Here, the lotus represents the Divine Sankalpa (Will). He is also called Hiranyagarbha, since He has a golden womb. He is known as Vaastha, since He is present in the form of 'I' in all beings. The principle of 'I' is all-pervasive. Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003) 98

God has no specific name. All names are attributed by man to God. Each name, like Padmanabha, Hiranyagarbha, and Hiranmaya, has a profound inner meaning. Spirituality is meant to explain the principle of Divinity and the inner meaning of the names attributed to Him. One who follows the spiritual path should make efforts to understand and experience the principle of Divinity and propagate the same. But, man today has not really understood what spirituality means. He is under the mistaken notion that spirituality means merely offering worship and prayers to God and performing rituals. People should be taught the inner significance of spirituality and various names and forms attributed to Divinity. In 1968, the First World Conference of Sathya Sai Seva Organisations was held in Bombay (now Mumbai). It was the time when the foundation stone of Dharmakshetra was laid. Indulal Shah was mainly responsible for the construction of Dharmakshetra. He has been working tirelessly for the propagation of Swami's message. His wife Sarla Shah has been a source of strength to him. She played an active role in the development of bal vikas and mahila vibhag. In this manner, both husband and wife have contributed to a great extent for the furtherance of Sai movement in the entire world. Even at this advanced age, they are exerting a lot in the service of Sai Organisation. It is not possible for all to understand the nature of Divinity. This world looks like a picture painted on a wall that has no support. One has to make efforts to understand the principles of adhara (basis) and adheya (object). Do not waste your time in merely performing rituals. True spirituality lies in realising the truth that man is but a spark of Divinity. This is what is declared in the Bhagavad Gita: Mamaivamsho Jivaloke Jivabhuta Sanathana (all beings are a part of My eternal Being). Vaasudeva-sarvamidam (the whole world is permeated by God, Vaasudeva). You have to experience this truth and propagate to the world. Many Sai centres are established all over the world. Each centre has a history of its own. Dharmakshetra is no exception to this. Only Swami knows the innumerable difficulties that Indulal Shah faced during the construction of Dharmakshetra. In those days, there were no approach roads to the place where Dharmakshetra stands now. He had to walk through thorny bushes to select a suitable site for the construction of Dharmakshetra. He showed Me the place for approval. It is situated on the Mahakali Caves road. He worked hard for its construction. Many people helped him in the fulfilment of this task. It is not possible to undertake a work of this magnitude without the help of others. When you undertake a good work there are bound to be certain obstacles in the beginning. But you should not lose heart. When the ocean of milk was churned by devas (gods) and danavas (demons), it was a Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003) 99 deadly poison that emerged first. But that did not deter them. They continued their efforts with unflinching determination, and ultimately obtained the divine ambrosia. Our heart can be compared to the ocean of milk and the sadhana (spiritual practices) to the process of churning. Initially, there are bound to be obstacles when you undertake sadhana. We should not be deflected by these obstacles but should continue our efforts with full faith. Only then can we attain an exalted and blissful state. Many individuals in the past had to put up with a lot of difficulties while constructing pilgrimage centres. Bhadrachalam is one such pilgrimage centre. Adi Sankara, unmindful of the physical strain, walked all the way from the deep south to the north to establish pilgrimage centres at Badrinath, Amarnath, and Kedarnath. No matter who one is, one has necessarily to enlist the cooperation of others to accomplish stupendous tasks. Where there is unity, there is bliss. In this age of Kali, people have that spirit of unity no longer. There is neither unity nor purity. Hence, enmity has found a place in the human heart giving rise to troubles and turmoil. In fact, unity is the need of the hour. The true strength of humanity lies in unity. As the thought, so is the action. As the action, so is the result. Today, man is unable to reach the goal of his life because he does not entertain sacred thoughts. In the first instance, he should develop sacred thoughts. There are many who have deluded themselves that they love God. But they are full of body consciousness and crave for money and material things. Such love cannot be true love at all. It is artificial love. Many people write to Me, "Swami we love You. Please keep us near and dear to You." In this context, let Me emphatically tell you that Sai cannot be attained so easily. You may say that you love Me. But how can I believe you? Is there a spirit of sacrifice in your love? There is no consistency in your words and deeds. You make a promise one day and go back on it the very next day. How can one believe the love of such impostors? True and eternal love originates from the heart. Real love is a heart to heart relationship. It is associated with the Atmic principle, which is present in everyone. Atma is the source of consciousness. Atma and Brahma are one and the same. The love that originates from the heart confers on you the eternal, immortal and non-dual bliss. But where is such love nowadays? You are heroes in speech but zeros in practice. Today, the world is being duped by such people. Those who have true love in their heart will not indulge in tall talk. They demonstrate their love in action. Today people speak a lot without translating their speech into action. Such people are verily thieves. How can you attain the goal of life if you believe in such unscrupulous people and rely on them? Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003)

Your heart should melt and flow toward God. Only then can you attain His grace. People may talk as they please; do not be carried away by them. Unmindful of hardships and difficulties, hold on to the principle of divinity and reach the goal of life. Today, people lack the will and determination to reach the goal of life. How can those who do not understand the goal of life, attain it? True love cannot be fragmented. One cannot have love for God as well as for ephemeral objects and relationships. The love which is fragmented is artificial only. You have only one heart. You cannot break it into pieces and distribute to various people. It is not like a laddoo or sugar cane, which can be broken into pieces and distributed. It is the eternal truth. It is nectarous and full of bliss. Ignoring the immortal bliss within, people tread the worldly path thinking that bliss lies therein. It is only a figment of their imagination. He is a true devotee who makes efforts to attain God with full faith and determination without caring for trials and tribulations. Having resolved what ought to be resolved, hold on to it till you have succeeded. Having desired what ought to be desired, hold on to it till your desire is fulfilled. Having asked what ought to be asked, do not leave the hold till you get it. Having thought what ought to be thought, hold on to it till you have succeeded. With heart mellowed, the Lord must yield to your wishes. With no thought of yourself, ask Him with all your heart. Persevere, be tenacious, and never give up, for it is the quality of a devotee never to retreat, abandoning the resolve. (Telugu Poem) Devotees of modern times are trying to hoodwink even God with sweet talk and artificial love. Such people can never attain God. You should have unwavering faith. Even in times of dangers and difficulties, your faith should remain steady. God can be experienced only in times of difficulties. Kashte phali (hard work yields rich rewards). It is also said, Na sukhata labhyate sukham (one cannot derive happiness out of happiness). Consider difficulties as God's gifts and accept them in the right spirit. Sarla Amma and Indulal Shah had to face innumerable difficulties those days. They overcame all those with courage and fortitude. They reside in Bombay (now Mumbai) which is not an ordinary place. It is like a 'bomb'. Whatever you do, be it good or bad, you have to face difficulties. Being in such a place, they did good work. In fact, Indulal Shah was troubled by many. But he continued his work with unwavering devotion and achieved success. You need to have God's grace to accomplish anything. You cannot but seek the help and cooperation of others to fulfil a mighty task. Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003)

101
Those who are engaged in God's work must be prepared to face any obstacle. Indulal Shah's life bears ample testimony to this. He has been serving Sai for the last forty years with strong faith and determination. He went round the world propagating the message of Sai. Whenever people approached him with doubts, he would give most appropriate

answers
and clear their doubts. One should be prepared to take up any challenge, be it worldly or spiritual. They have spent a great amount of their physical energy working tirelessly for the Organisation.
I want to share a small incident with you. Last month, Sri Shah had come to Brindavan to see Me. He saw Me resting on the bed and felt very sad.
He did not tell it outwardly, but he was praying within that Swami should get well soon. He did not have proper food and sleep during the last one month because he was constantly worried about Swami's well-being. Consequently, his body became weak. Otherwise, he always maintains good health. He has a number of plans for the future of the Organisation.
He is praying that Swami should give the necessary strength to implement those plans. Both Sarla Amma and Indulal Shah were very anxious about Swami's health and were all the time thinking of Swami.
They do not go by what others say. They depend on their own conviction.
Nobody needs to be worried or anxious about Swami's well-being. No danger can ever befall Swami. Swami comes out of all difficulties and troubles unscathed. He will achieve all success. There may be some changes at the physical level. They are only temporary and not permanent. Hence, Swami wants all of you to be courageous. Now I have recovered and am standing before you.
What medicine did I use? The intense prayers of the devotees are My medicine. During the last one month, be it in Madras (now Chennai), Hyderabad, Bangalore, or Mumbai, devotees have intensified their prayers and spiritual activities. Each and every house conducted bhajans and Namasmarana. Some devotees undertook penance and performed Yajnas.
In this manner, a number of spiritual activities were undertaken praying for the well-being of Swami. It is as a result of such fervent prayers that I am able to stand before you and address you. Neither did I want this suffering nor did I desire its cure. You wanted this body to be cured of the pain, and you achieved it through your prayers. This body is not Mine. It is yours. Hence, it is your responsibility to look after this body. I am not the deha (body); I am the Dehi (Indweller).

The body is made up of five elements and is bound to perish sooner or later,
but the Indweller has neither birth nor death.
The Indweller has no attachment whatsoever and is the eternal witness.
Truly speaking, the Indweller, who is in the form of the Atma, Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003)
102 is verily God Himself.
(Telugu Poem)
The Atma has neither birth nor death. It has no pain or suffering. You may not believe it, but the doctors have seen the extent of injury to My
hip. For anybody else, it would have taken at least two to three years to walk normally. The ball in the hip joint broke into pieces. There were no muscles for support. My bones are as strong as diamonds. It was not possible to join them together. Hence, they put a rod and performed the surgery. After undergoing such a complicated surgery, it takes a number of years to walk normally. Without caring for all this, I started walking.
Doctors made every effort to protect this body. They did their duty. But I did not think of this body at all. I demonstrate the ideal that one should not have body attachment. Not only now, for the last two years, I have been repeatedly exhorting you to give up body attachment. Gradually reduce your dehabhimana (body consciousness) and develop Atmabhimana (Atmic consciousness). You are not the body; you are the embodiments of the Atma. The physical body comes and goes. The body only has suffering, not the Atma.
When I fractured My hip, it was not possible to even move My leg. The slightest movement caused excruciating pain like that of an electric shock.
I told the doctors, "This is not My body. This is yours. You may do whatever you deem fit." One who has given up body consciousness will have no suffering at all.
Satyajit was with Swami all the time. He has a strong determination and has taken a vow to be with Swami always. When I was being taken to the hospital in a van, he sat right near My head. When I was taken into the operation theatre, he followed. Usually, when surgery is done, nobody
is allowed into the operation theatre. But Satyajit did not want to leave Swami. He wanted to see what the doctors would do to Swami's body.

Hence, he wore the surgeon's dress and entered the operation theatre. I told Satyajit, "You will not be able to bear the sight of blood. Hence, you remain outside." But he lovingly insisted that he might be allowed to stay inside. He was with Me at the time of operation. He saw the doctor making a hole in the bone with a hammer. After the operation was over, he asked, "Swami, how could you bear such pain and suffering?" I told, "The love of devotees like you is My strength." The power of love is the ultimate. You can overcome any pain or danger with the power of love. You should have strong and unwavering faith without even a trace of doubt. Your thoughts, words, and deeds must be in harmony with each other. Many devotees who have such strong and steady faith became recipients of Swami's grace. During the last month, bhajans were held in every village. Their only prayer was that Swami should recover quickly and grant them darshan. Swami's well-being was uppermost in Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003) 103 everybody's mind. I received lakhs of telegrams from devotees wishing for My speedy recovery. Many devotees were very anxious and were praying within. Their anxiety turned into penance. The power of their penance bestowed good health on Swami. It is because of their love and devotion that Swami is hale and healthy now. I have never used My divine power to cure Myself. If I were to use it, I would have been cured of the suffering in a trice. I don't have the selfish feeling that I should get cured. There is not even a trace of selfishness in Me. Everyone should be happy. This is My only desire. Everybody should experience happiness. This is the essence of the culture of Bhar (India). This is the Age of Kali. In this age, people will have several doubts, particularly the younger generation who are highly educated --post-graduates and double graduates. It is but natural that under the influence of the Kali Age and with their modern educational background, the younger generation will not be able to develop firm faith in Divinity. During midnight, at the odd hour of 1 o'clock or 2 o'clock when I get up from the bed and look around, I find these two boys Satyajit and sitting one near My head and the other at My feet, safely guarding this body. One of the boys, Dilip is working in the Super Speciality Hospital here. He had a fracture recently in his leg and it was still in a plaster cast. In spite of that, he came over to Bangalore, the morning he heard of Swami's indisposition, to serve Swami. Both these boys were attending to the needs of Swami with great devotion. I can emphatically say that none can equal them in their love and devotion to Swami. People may pay lip service, uttering the word 'love', 'love' mechanically; but no one can do such a great service as these two boys have done. Even at an odd hour, if I just utter the word 'Satya' in a feeble voice, the boy would immediately get up and attend to My needs. He was so alert and attentive. They used to attend to all My needs, including feeding Me. In fact, they completely forgot their own personal needs while serving Swami. All this is due to the great merit accumulated by their parents. It is only because of their parents' devotion to God and the merit accumulated by them that these boys are able to cultivate such noble feelings of devotion and service. Therefore, the parents should first become devotees of God. I used to tell these boys often that I was feeling better and that they could go and take food. But they would not leave Me. Whenever they received any phone call from devotees making anxious enquiries about Swami's condition, they simply used to reply that Swami was fine. Never did they give any details. They used to answer the queries of devotees with great love and tact. How did they acquire such great love and tact? Not because of higher education or age. It is only because of their intense devotion and faith in Swami. That is the real quality. Basing on such a noble quality, they did great service to Swami. There are several people ready to undertake Swami's service, provided they got an opportunity. But, none could get such an opportunity. They got this unique opportunity and they made the best use of it. What greater sadhana (spiritual discipline) could there be than serving Swami? What greater fulfilment could there be than Swami acknowledging their love? You will not find people doing such great service for a full month continuously, day and night, at such a young age. Several people may talk of love and service, but you will not find such loving and devoted boys. I have seen great faith, devotion and steadfastness in these boys. That is why they are able to win the heart of Swami. With faith and devotion, one can achieve great tasks, even lifting a mountain.

 Take the example of Hanuman. When Lakshmana fainted in the battlefield, Rama was in great distress. Then Hanuman was sent to bring the Sanjeevani herb to revive Lakshmana. Hanuman did not know where exactly the herb was. Therefore, he lifted the whole mountain on which the herb existed and placed it before Rama. Similarly, a devotee of God must be prepared to undertake any service, however mighty the task may be. Generally, people will have a tendency to run away from difficulties and rush forward to enjoy happiness. That should not be. One must be prepared for anything. The human body is susceptible to several diseases and difficulties. You should not get depressed by them. You must develop firm faith in Divinity. That viswasa (faith) must be your swasa (breath).
 Today, I am able to stand before you and give a discourse, only because of the great service rendered by these two boys.
 I must tell you one more thing. Millions of people all over the world during the period of Swami's indisposition have ceaselessly prayed for Swami's speedy recovery. Several people have undertaken several vratas (religious vows). Countless telegrams and telephonic enquiries have been received about Swami's health. Particularly, Geetha Reddy, chairperson of the Andhra Pradesh Congress (Mahila Vibhag) stayed for one full month in Brindavan praying for Swami's welfare and hoping to have His darshan somehow. Because nobody was allowed at that time into Swami's residence, she could not get an opportunity to have His darshan.

Nevertheless she stayed back with a firm determination, even though she had pressing engagements in Hyderabad. She was almost shuttling between Bangalore and Hyderabad daily by aeroplane during that period.
 She did not even care for the huge expenditure involved and the difficulties at home. What she wanted and craved for was Swami's speedy recovery. She considered Swami as her very life. That is real love and devotion, which can please Swami. Devotion and surrender to God can cure any amount of suffering.
Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003)
 105 Another small incident I wish to reveal to you. There was a patient in the U.S.A. She was extremely afraid of the disease diagnosed by the doctors.
 The diagnosis revealed that she had cancerous growth in the heart region.
 She and her husband came to Bangalore praying for Swami's grace. I assured them that I would cancel the cancer and that they should not have any fear in the matter. She took treatment for one week and the cancer disappeared! A little malignant portion was left and I instructed the doctors to remove it by surgery. The doctors performed the surgery as instructed by Me. On the very next day she started walking! She is now quite normal and healthy.
 There are several such cases. The chanting of the Divine Name can cure even the most incurable disease. That is exactly what she has done. The lady is in the habit of chanting the Divine Name "Sairam", "Sairam" continuously. There are several such people who chant the Divine Name. I have cured several people of the most dreaded and incurable diseases.
 There are also a number of people whom I have helped in ever-so-many ways. All of them have now prayed for My recovery. It is only their prayers that helped My speedy recovery.
 Not only this, I lost vision in my left eye some 9 years ago. All these years I was seeing with one eye only. Now the doctors in our hospital, and also Narasimha Murthy (Warden of Sri Sathya Sai College Hostel, Brindavan), prayed that I should undergo an operation for the left eye, along with the operation for the hip bone. I told them that since I was able to manage with one eye, so there was no necessity for operation to the second eye. But they prayed and prevailed upon Me to undergo the eye operation.

When I wanted to come down to the Sai Kulwant Hall in Prasanthi Nilayam at 7.00 a.m., to give darshan to the devotees, Satyajit prayed that I must slightly postpone My darshan to 7.30 a.m., keeping in view the physical strain I would have to undergo in early morning darshan.

Thus, he is anxious about My welfare every moment. Not only he; there are several such devotees with noble thoughts. That is why, Saint Thyagaraja sang his immortal Kirtan, "Endaro Mahanubhaavulu (Many are the great souls)". In fact, it is only because of such noble souls that the country of Bharat (India) has been able to exist peacefully.

Bharatadesa is not just a mass of earth. Bharat is verily the heart of the entire world. If Bharat is safe and secure, the entire world will be safe. Unfortunately, the people of Bharat do not realise this truth. Wherever you see, selfishness is rampant. Therefore, cast away your selfish motive and engage yourself in activities that help others. Pray for the welfare of elders. Pray for the welfare of all. That is the real meaning of the prayer, Lokah samastah sukhino bhavantu. Pray for the welfare of the entire world, wholeheartedly. You will definitely prosper. I think I have taken a lot of time and caused inconvenience to you.

Taking the example of these two, Sarla Amma and Indulal Shah, I wish you should inculcate a spirit of service in everybody. I also wish that the bal vikas and Mahila Vibhag should progress well. I wish both of them a long, healthy and happy life.

Bhagawan concluded His discourse with the bhajan, "Hari Bhajan Bina Sukha Santhi Nahin".

13. GOD'S BIRTHPLACE IS A PURE HEART
Date: 19 Aug

2003 Occasion: Krishna Janmashtamia
Place: Prasanthi Nilayam

All the names and forms are but the manifestations of the Supreme Being who is Existence, Knowledge, Bliss Absolute, and non-dual. He is the embodiment of Sathyam, Sivam, Sundaram (Truth, Auspiciousness, Beauty).
(Sanskrit Verse)
Embodiments of Love!

Krishnajanmashtami is celebrated to commemorate the birthday of Lord Krishna. Man's Hridaya (heart) is the birthplace of Krishna. To worry over why Krishna and Rama were born on such inauspicious Thithis (8th and 9th phases of the waning and waxing moon) is foolish. It is only when the Hridaya becomes cool, pure and peaceful like the Himachala (the Himalayan mountains), that is the true birthday of Krishna. God makes such a heart His dwelling place which is pure, sacred and peaceful. From the worldly point of view, Krishna was born on Ashtami in the midnight. People consider Ashtami to be inauspicious. How can the birthday of a Divine incarnation be inauspicious? In fact, all days are auspicious and are meant to confer welfare and prosperity. God incarnates to bestow auspiciousness on all. Hence, His birthday should be treated as highly sacred.

Krishna was born in a prison. All the guards of the prison, who were supposed to be on high alert as per Kamsa's instructions, were overpowered by sleep. Only Devaki and Vasudeva were awake at the time of Krishna's advent. Fearing danger to the newborn child in the hands of wicked Kamsa, Vasudeva decided to take the child away to a safe destination. He gently wrapped the child in a cloth, placed it in a basket, lifted it up on his head and came out of the prison. The doors of the prison opened of their own accord. As there was a heavy downpour, Vasudeva prayed that the child be protected. By the Divine Will of Krishna, a huge serpent appeared there and started following Vasudeva with its hood raised over the Divine child, thereby protecting it from the downpour. By the time Vasudeva reached Yashoda's house on the opposite bank of river Yamuna, it was very late in the night. Just then she had given birth to a female child. Everyone including her husband was fast asleep. Vasudeva quietly placed the divine child Krishna by the

of Yashoda and picked up the female child born to her and quickly returned to the prison.

The stories of the Lord are most wonderful and sacred in all the three worlds. They are like sickles that cut the creepers of worldly bondage. They are most ennobling and elevating. They confer bliss on the sages and seers doing penance in forests.

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003)

(Telugu Poem)

None can comprehend the ways of God. Even Vasudeva was not fully aware of what he was doing. He took the child Krishna to Yashoda's

house

and brought the female child with him. He did all this as if he was in a trance. Radha, a small girl then, was a witness to the entire episode.

It

got imprinted on her heart. People think Radha was younger to and talk in derogatory terms about the relationship she had with Him.

Krishna

In

fact, she was much older than Krishna, 26 months to be precise. Her feeling towards Krishna was very sacred and became stronger day by day.

Vasudeva became his normal self after he went back to the prison. As he entered the prison, the doors closed behind him and locked automatically.

No sooner did he place the female child by the side of Devaki than the bell rang. The guard of the prison at once got up and informed Kamsa about the birth of the child. Kamsa promptly arrived at the prison with all his paraphernalia. As was his wont, he lifted the child with his left hand and threw it into the sky. He held a sword in his right hand and was ready to behead the child as it fell down. But the child vanished as it went up and in its place, a goddess appeared and warned Kamsa that his nemesis Krishna was born and that He would kill him. She was very powerful and none could do any harm to her. After warning Kamsa about his impending peril, she too vanished. Devaki was perplexed beyond words about the happenings. She understood that the entire episode was Krishna's Will.

Kamsa became restless and agitated as he came to know that Krishna was being brought up elsewhere. Day and night, he was thinking of ways

and means to capture Krishna and kill Him.

Krishna was growing up under the loving care of Yashoda and the story is known to everyone here. Krishna demonstrated His Divine powers in innumerable ways. Kamsa was at a loss how to capture Krishna. He issued an order that all the newborn babies of Repalle be killed.

Initially,

he wanted only the male babies to be killed. Later on, he changed his mind and wanted even the female babies to be killed. He resorted to

such heinous acts only out of fear. As days progressed, the stories of child Krishna's divine pranks spread far and wide. God's deeds are wonderful and mysterious. All the while, the messengers of Kamsa were in intensive search for Krishna. Ultimately, they spotted Him in Repalle and informed Kamsa.

It is said, Vinashakale Vipareeta Buddhi (discrimination fails to work when one is destined to be destroyed). Kamsa started sending many powerful demons to Repalle to kill Krishna. But Krishna, with His mighty power, destroyed all of them. Kamsa's end approached fast. He devised a nefarious scheme to lure Krishna and Balarama to Mathura and kill them.

Kamsa sent his messengers to Repalle to bring Krishna and Balarama to Mathura to attend some Yajna which he was performing. He deputed Akrura, who adored Krishna and Balarama to persuade and bring and Balarama to Mathura.

Krishna

As the brothers entered the city, the citizens of Mathura were mesmerised

by the charming forms of Krishna and Balarama. They were already suffering from deep frustration and anguish over the atrocities committed by Kamsa and they prayed to Krishna to come to their rescue. As Krishna and Balarama were proceeding towards Kamsa's palace, they came across a lady who used to supply garlands to Kamsa everyday. Krishna took two

garlands from her. He and Balarama garlanded each other. Then they encountered the royal washerman, took Kamsa's silk garments and dressed themselves in regal style. Later they met a hunchback lady Kubja, who was carrying scents and perfumes for Kamsa. She had an ugly appearance with a crooked body. She knew that Krishna was God.

Seeing

the two brothers, she was overjoyed and she sprinkled the perfumes on them. She said, "Krishna, today my life has found fulfilment. I must have performed great penance in the past, to have deserved this opportunity to serve You." She then prayed to Krishna to straighten her body. Krishna planted His foot on her feet, caught hold of her chin and lifted it up. Lo and behold! Her hunchback was gone. She assumed the form of a beautiful lady. In this manner, Krishna demonstrated His divine powers by performing many stupendous feats and in the process relieved many from their curses. On coming to know that Krishna and Balarama were wearing his royal garments, Kamsa was furious. In the meanwhile, Kubja approached Kamsa and said, "Oh master, none can comprehend the divine play of Krishna and His mysterious powers. Don't make any attempt to understand his powers. It is better that you ignore the matter." Kamsa wondered, "How could she speak to me with such impertinence! Surely Krishna has instigated her." At that moment Kamsa's attention was diverted by someone and Kubja, seizing the opportunity, quietly left the scene. Krishna and Balarama entered Kamsa's court like two lion cubs. They defeated the court wrestlers. Thereafter, Krishna, in a trice, leapt on the platform where Kamsa was seated, pinned him down and rained severe blows on him. Balarama, who was equally strong, joined him. Together they crushed Kamsa to pulp. Seeing the gruesome killing of Kamsa, the assembly was fear-stricken. They were amazed how such a young boy as Krishna could vanquish the mighty Kamsa. There was a platoon of soldiers specially deployed by Kamsa to kill Balarama and Krishna. They too could not withstand the onslaught of Krishna. Ultimately, they fell at His feet and prayed for mercy. Krishna and Balarama left for Repalle unnoticed by others. The inhabitants of Repalle were anxiously awaiting their return. They were highly depressed as they could not see any sign of their arrival in the vicinity. Mother Yashoda was very nervous thinking of the well-being of her sons. The Gopikas too were drowned in sorrow and started abusing Kamsa, presuming that he must have harmed Krishna and Balarama. All the men and women of Repalle were praying to Krishna all the time chanting His Name. All of a sudden, Krishna and Balarama appeared in their midst to their astonishment and joy. Krishna spoke to them soothing words and pacified them. Kamsa had two wives. After his death, they went to stay with Jarasandha, their father. Jarasandha was very furious with Krishna and wanted to avenge the killing of his son-in-law. Many of his relatives had also developed hatred towards Krishna. This news reached Yashoda and Nanda as also Devaki and Vasudeva. They were concerned about Krishna's safety. However, Devaki was one of courage and also a great devotee. That is why she could withstand all the suffering caused by her brother Kamsa with equanimity. She was sure that none could harm Krishna. She had total faith in Krishna's Divinity. As the enemies could not dare to challenge Krishna, they tried to harass the residents of Repalle. Krishna at Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003) 110 once came to their rescue and drove the enemies away. Days rolled by and it was time for Krishna's marriage. Rukmini, princess of Vidarbha loved Krishna and wanted to marry Him. But her brother Rukmi wanted to give her in marriage to his friend Sisupala and was making arrangements for the same. Krishna was well aware of all this. He had a masterplan of His own. Devaki and Vasudeva, after they were freed from prison, were staying in the house of Nanda and Yashoda. Meanwhile, Rukmini had sent a message to Krishna through a brahmin in which she wrote, "Krishna, I can no longer bear the pangs of separation from You. My father has decided to perform my marriage with Sisupala, against my wish. The marriage is scheduled to take place tomorrow. If You do not come before that and take me away from here, I will put an end to my life." As per Rukmini's wish, Krishna devised a strategy to bring her to their house. In those days, it was customary for the bride to offer special worship to the village goddess prior to her marriage. As per the tradition,

Rukmini was proceeding to the temple to offer special prayers.

Rukmi, the evil-minded brother of Rukmini had made elaborate security arrangements fearing an attack from Krishna. He had joined hands with Sisupala and Dantavakra, who were bitter enemies of Krishna.

Rukmini was walking slowly towards the temple. She was deeply dejected thinking that Krishna had not come to her rescue. She was unaware that Krishna had indeed come to rescue her and was waiting at the entrance of the temple without being noticed by others. As she reached the entrance,

Krishna deftly put her in His chariot and drove away. A fierce battle ensued between Krishna and Rukmi and his associates. Krishna defeated them all. He took Rukmini along with Him and married her. Krishna had incarnated to punish the wicked and protect the pious. Sisupala hated

Krishna from the core of his heart because He had taken away

Rukmini

whom he was supposed to marry.

Krishna had to encounter many odds and hardships all through His life.

That is why people consider Ashtami, His birthday as a day that brings difficulties. Right from the time He was born, Krishna faced difficulties at the hands of Kamsa. During his infancy, people of other villages also had to undergo sufferings inflicted by Kamsa. He had to face the challenges posed by wicked people like Sisupala and Dantavakra. Even His marriage with Rukmini resulted in battle. However, He vanquished all His adversaries and emerged victorious.

Krishna spared Sisupala's life for a long time in spite of his hostility. When Dharmaraja performed Rajasuya Yajna, he gave Agratambulam (first offering) to Krishna. Watching this, Sisupala flew into a fit of rage and hurled abuses at Krishna. He described Him as a mere cowherd boy and said that He did not deserve the honour.

"When elders like Bhishma are seated in this assembly, how could you choose a cowherd boy for this great honour", he questioned

Dharmaraja.

He was ready to fight with Krishna. He said to Him,

Do you think that you deserve this honour because you stole the saris of the Gopikas when they were having a bath? Or do you think that you deserve this because you spent all your time in the company of cowherdresses? Stop this self-aggrandisement and shut up!

(Telugu Poem)

It was then that Krishna killed Sisupala. Many are under the mistaken notion that Krishna used His divine weapon, the Sudarshana Chakra (disc) to behead him. In fact, Krishna just threw the plate, in which He received the first offering at Sisupala. In this age of Kali, people talk of Vishnu Chakra and Sudarshana Chakra as the weapons of Krishna. But whatever Krishna used served as Chakra with His Divine Will.

In this manner, Krishna had to wage a number of wars during His lifetime.

That is why elders say that the birthday of Krishna, Ashtami, is associated with difficulties. When Krishna was born, the day was Ashtami and the star was Rohini. It is a common belief that whoever is born with such a combination of day and star, will face hardships throughout his life. There is another belief that such a person will be the emancipator of the nation.

Krishna destroyed the wicked and protected the righteous. He established

Dharma. Hence, do not consider the time of Krishna's advent to be inauspicious. It is a noble and a sacred day.

Later, as time passed by, it was Arjuna who brought the shocking news that Krishna shed His mortal coil. Mother Kunti had become very old. She had lost the power of vision and her limbs had become very weak. She was a great devotee and considered Krishna as her very life. She was eagerly waiting for Arjuna to come and tell her about Krishna's wellbeing.

Arjuna came to her calling, "Mother, Mother" in an agitated voice.

She at once asked him, "Son, where is Krishna? How is He?" Arjuna was crestfallen. He said, "Mother, what can I say? Krishna, who is our friend, relative, guide, guardian and God, is no more." Hearing this tragic news,

Kunti at once left her mortal body. She was such a great devotee.

After

Krishna's departure, the entire Yadava clan perished as a result of severe in-fighting that followed. It was the consequence of a curse pronounced earlier on Yadavas by a sage.

The Pandavas decided to renounce the world and retire into the forests. It was a strange situation. On the one hand the coronation of Parikshit had to take place; on the other the last rites of Kunti had to be performed.

Making her head rest on his lap, Dharmaraja issued instructions to Bhima to make arrangements for the coronation. He told Arjuna to make the necessary preparation for Kunti's funeral. At the same time, he instructed Nakula and Sahadeva to make arrangements for them to go to the forest.

All the three events took place on the same day. Only those with unwavering faith in God can perform such tasks simultaneously with equanimity. Everything happens according to His Will.

Right from the beginning till the end, the tasks performed by Krishna were wonderful, sacred, mysterious and beyond human comprehension.

Therefore, it is not proper to consider the birthday of Krishna to be inauspicious. It is a highly sacred day and is to be celebrated with unbounded joy.

Here is another point that needs mention. When this body was born, there was a lot of chaos and confusion among people of this village and also in the neighbouring villages. The epidemics of Cholera and Plague were rampant everywhere. People were afraid to visit each other's house or even drink a glass of water outside. Such was the situation in those days.

GrihamAmmayi(Mother Easwaramma) would not visit others' houses.

Kondama Raju, grandfather of this body, was also one of strict discipline and principles. He would never accept anything from others. In those days, I was staying with Kondama Raju. He did not permit other children, including Parvatamma and Venkamma (Swami's sisters) to come near Me, lest I should be infected with the epidemic. But I used to slip out of the house without his knowledge. On coming to know of this, he would gently

chide Me saying, "Sathya, why don't you listen to Me? You should not go here and there." He instructed the villagers to bring Me home at once if they spotted Me outside. This way, he would try to restrain My movements. But can anyone restrain Me? I used to move around in the village without being noticed. There were occasions when people of ten different houses would invite Me for food. I would visit all those ten houses, dine with them and satisfy them. Sometimes, Karanam Subbamma would call Me from the window and pass on food packets. She was a great devotee.

Kondama Raju did not relish My visits to others' houses. He was anxious about My safety and well-being. In those days, Reddy and Karanam were the two heads of the village. Subbamma was the name of Karanam's wife and Reddy's wife was Subbulamma. She was feeling jealous that I was making frequent visits to Karanam Subbamma's house. Hence, she decided to poison Me. One day she came to Me and invited Me to her house, saying, "Babu, today you must come to our house for snacks. I will make delicious vadas for You. Come alone, do not tell others about this."

When I visited her house, she served Me poisoned vadas. I knew her evil intentions, yet I ate the vadas without hesitation. My body at once turned blue. People who saw Me, ran to Karanam Subbamma and Easwaramma and informed them about this. In those days, there was bitter rivalry between Reddy Subbulamma and Karanam Subbamma. Not only here, in most of the villages, such animosity existed between Reddys and Karanams. People came down heavily on Reddy Subbulamma for her evil act.

Kondama Raju lived in a tribal locality. When he came to know of the incident, he became furious. He summoned the tribals and goaded them to teach a lesson to Reddy Subbulamma. I told Kondama Raju, "Grandfather, being elders of the village, you should not resort to such harmful acts." If you do not stop the tribals from attacking her, I will go and stay with her forever. Both Kondama Raju and Karanam acted on My advice and stopped those tribals from going to Reddy Subbulamma's house. In this manner, I removed hatred from the minds of people and strove for unity in the village. There was never any fear in all my actions. I would eat whatever others offered Me without any hesitation. Once the thatched hut I was staying in, was set on fire by some miscreants. You may be knowing that there was a hut in the place where the Kalyana Mandapam stands now. As the hut was being consigned to flames, there was a heavy downpour of rain, only on the hut and nowhere else. People realised My Divinity. Right from that day, people of Putta-parthi, Kammavaripalli, Jankampalli, etc., started coming to Me with veneration. They were conducting Bhajans in the surrounding villages. I want to tell you something that happened in the recent past. When I was at Bangalore, there was a wide propaganda that I had a fall and had Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003) 113 sustained a fracture. People of all villages including Puttaparthi conducted regular Bhajans praying for My well-being. In many villages Sathyanarayana Vratam was performed. In this manner, they became recipients of Swami's love. During this period, there was none who did not think of Swami. The glory of Swami has spread far and wide. Whenever I travel from Bangalore by road, at every village enroute people stop My car and offer Arati. On the previous occasion, the road at Chikballapur was blocked by eager devotees, doing Bhajans, waving Arati. They hailed My arrival full-throated, "Sathya Sai Babajiki Jai". People at Kappalabanda and Mamillakunta also expressed their love and devotion for Swami in a similar manner. The doctor had said that a rest of one year was required for the hip to heal completely. I told that it would not take one year. "The loving prayers of devotees would cure Me in no time", I assured them. I told the doctors that I did not need any medicine or further treatment. The prayer of the devotees is the panacea for this body. Their prayers have given

Subbamma

Me immense bliss. In spite of the fracture, I was smiling always. When I was taken to the hospital, everyone was in tears, but I was smiling all the time. The doctors who operated on Me were astonished to see Me smiling. Usually the pain that results from a hip fracture is like that of an electric shock. But I was least affected by it. Even now I have no pain whatsoever. Devotees are My property and I am the property of devotees. I have no fear or anxiety. Even in such a situation, I can happily go round the country. Hereafter, I will travel around far and wide more frequently. You don't need to worry about Swami's well-being. I am always happy and blissful. May you all be happy and prosperous always! Bhagavan concluded His Discourse with the Bhajan, "Bhaja Govindam, Govindam Bhaja Moodha Mathe" Date: 19 Aug 2003, Occasion: Krishna Janmashtamia, Place: Prasanthi Nilayam Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003) 114 14. GIVE UP DEHABHIMANA, DEVELOP ATMABHIMAN Date: 05 Oct 2003 Occasion: Vijayadashami Place: Prasanthi Nilayam The Vaishnavites say that Lord Vishnu is the greatest while Saivites declare that Lord Siva is the greatest of all. People may speak on the basis of their feelings, but in truth there is only GOD and the rest are names. (Telugu Poem) You will not be respected if your thoughts and words are at variance. You may speak sweet words, but if your mind is filled with evil thoughts, how can you earn the respect of others? One can be called a human being, only when one's thoughts, words and deeds are in total harmony. Embodiments of Love! The Navaratri festival is celebrated all over India, but nobody seems to make any effort to comprehend the inner significance of this festival. The Hridaya (heart) is the abode of the Atma. No being can exist without the principle of Atma. God, who resides in all as the principle of Atma, has no specific name and form. But, People attribute various names and forms to Him. The Gaanapatyas (worshippers of Ganapati) consider Lord Ganapati

as great; the Saivites consider there is none superior to Lord Siva.
 The devotees of Sai consider Him to be the greatest. Some devotees say all are one.
 In fact, all names and forms belong to the same God. He responds to the prayers of devotees in whatever form they worship Him. Hence, each one considers the form he worships to be superior to the other forms. It is a sign of ignorance to consider one form superior to the other. What is important is that your prayers should not be confined to mere words. They should be translated into action. It is easy to speak but not so easy to practice. True prayer is that which is translated into action.
 During the Navaratri celebrations, the Divine Mother is extolled in various names and forms. All names and forms are based on your feelings. God has no differences whatsoever. No one can comprehend the nature of Divinity. Actually, the principle of love that exists in all beings is the principle of Divinity. Love has no specific form. Divinity transcends name and form. Love is God. Live in love. Truth is God. Truth is all-pervasive.
 The creation emerges from truth and merges into truth,
 Is there a place where truth does not exist?
 Visualise such pure and unsullied truth.
 (Telugu Poem)
 There are no different truths for different countries such as American truth, Russian truth, Indian truth, Japanese truth, etc. Truth is one and the same for all. It is uniformly present in everyone. True celebration of
Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003)
 115
Navaratri festival lies in contemplating on Sathyaswarupa (the embodiment of truth). Respect one and all, for, the divine Atma is present in all. To respect all is true worship. If you want to be respected, you should respect others in the first instance. Give respect and take respect.
 Understand the principle of oneness, that is Divinity. The Vedas declare, Ekam Sath Viprah Bahudha Vadanti (truth is one, but the wise refer to it by various names). You may call Him by any name and form, but God is one. This principle of unity should be firmly installed in your heart. God is present in everyone in the form of love. Wherever you go, He is with you. He is the eternal witness. Share your love with others and receive their love in turn. Love is your greatest virtue. Love confers the ultimate joy and bliss. God resides in the heart filled with love. Hence, it is essential that you fill your heart with love. Where there is love, there is God. You don't need to search for Him. He is always in you, with you, around you, above you and below you. Adhere to the principle of love. Never hate anyone. Hatred is your worst enemy. Once you develop love in you, hatred will naturally vanish. If you were to come across your bitter rival, greet him with love. He too will reciprocate the same feeling.

 How can you expect love from others when you do not have any love for them? It is love and love alone that I practice and propagate. Try to understand the power of love. It is your greatest wealth. None can estimate its value. What does God expect from you? It is only your love.
 Love is the tax that you have to pay to God for all that He has given you.
 During the Navaratri worship, you have to express your love to the Divine Mother in nine different ways. Sravanam (listening), Kirtanam (singing), Vishnusmaranam (contemplating on Vishnu), Padasevanam (serving His Lotus Feet), Vandanam (salutation), Archanam (worship), Dasyam (servitude), Sneham (friendship), Atmanivedanam (self-surrender).
 God wants your love and nothing else. Your love should not branch out in different directions. It should flow directly towards God. If you love others, you will be loved in turn. If you utter harsh words, they will come back to you as resound. Fill your heart with love and compassion.
Hridaya is that which is filled with Daya (compassion). Compassion is the hallmark of a true devotee. One who lacks compassion cannot be called a human being. When you practice truth and righteousness, you will be successful in all your endeavors. That is why the Vedas teach, Sathyam Vada, Dharmam Chara (speak truth, practice righteousness). Your heart should melt with compassion when you see the poor and needy. Embodiments of Love!
 Having spent this Navaratri in the worship of Divine Mother, your heart should be filled with love and compassion. The heart bereft of love and compassion is verily a cemetery. Right from dawn to dusk, love should be the undercurrent of all your activities. The moment you get up from bed, resolve that you would tread the path of love. Only then can you have the vision of God, who is the very embodiment of love. True spiritual practice lies in connecting love to love. Love can transform even a hard stone into butter. Swami always teaches the principle of love. It is enough if You call 'Baba' with love from the depth of your heart. He will come to your rescue. Consider love as your life breath. If there is no love in your prayer, it will prove futile. Love should be 'heartful' and not artificial. Be friendly with all and have a smiling countenance always. What is the use

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003)
 116 of talking sweetly if your heart is filled with bitterness? Only love can fill your heart with nectarous feelings.
 Embodiments of Love!
 Your entire life is based on love. Without love, you cannot exist even for a moment. Hence, develop love considering it as the very form of God. Today marks the culmination of Navaratri festival. Worship of Divine Mother is meant to destroy evil qualities and foster virtues in you.
 The
 more you distance yourself from evil, the nearer you will be to the principle of love. You don't need to make any efforts to acquire love.
 The
 moment you eschew evil, love will automatically enter your heart. Students!
 There is love inherent in all of you. But, you are diverting it on worldly matters. True love is related to the Atmic principle. Worldly love is bound to change with the passage of time, whereas spiritual love is permanent.
 Even your breathing process speaks of the presence of love in you. When you inhale, you make the sound 'So' and When you exhale 'Ham'; together 'Soham' means, 'I am That'. The principle of 'I' is uniformly present in all. This can be experienced by following the nine paths of devotion. Never give scope for differences. Understand the unity, "I and You are one". Your love gets fragmented when you fail to visualize unity in diversity. There is only one heart, which is changeless.
 Your words may vary, but your heart remains steady. The Gopikas used to pray,

O God, I offer you the heart which You have given me.
 What else can I offer at Your Lotus Feet?
 I pray to You I to accept it.
 (Telugu Poem)
 Heart is not your property; it belongs to God. There is nothing in this world that you can call as your own. You may consider the worldly wealth and materials as your property. But, they are not permanent.
 Lord Krishna declared, Anityam Asukham Lokam Imam Prapya Bhajasva Maam (as the world is temporary and full of misery, contemplate on Me constantly). Divine love alone is true and changeless. The mariner's compass always points towards northern direction; likewise your love should always be directed towards God. You cannot claim to belong to the mankind unless there is kindness in you. Your life should be suffused with love and kindness. You should dedicate your life to love. You may wonder as to how to pray to God. In fact, you don't need to pray to God. You should let your love flow incessantly towards God. Then you will understand the unity, "I and You are one." There is no second entity. Embodiments of Divine Atma!
 You see the body but you don't understand the feelings associated with it.
 The body is made up of five elements and five senses. But you are not the body.
Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003)
 117
 The body is made up of five elements and is bound to perish sooner or later but the Indweller has neither birth nor death. The Indweller has no attachment whatsoever and is the eternal witness. In fact, the Indweller who is in the form of Atma is verily God Himself.
 (Telugu Poem)
 You say it is my head, my heart, etc., then who are you? When you engage in self enquiry in this manner, you will realize that YOU are different from the body. God pervades each anga (limb) of your body in the form of essence. Hence, He is extolled as Angirasaya Namah (salutations to the one who is in the form of essence in all my limbs). It is a mistake to confine God to a particular form. So long as you limit God to a form, you cannot attain Him. You should realize that God is attributeless, formless and He is the very essence of life. Physical form is bound to change. A child becomes a boy, boy becomes a man who in turn becomes a grandfather. In this manner, your physical form undergoes constant change. But you will remain the same. You are the embodiment of God.

Once you understand this truth, you will not be affected by physical changes.

Many of you are anxious thinking that Swami is not keeping good health over the last few days. In fact, My health is very good. Real health is not related to the body. As you equate Swami with this physical frame, it appears as though Swami is not well. Yad Bhavam Tad Bhavati (as is the feeling, so is the result). Do not identify Me with this physical body. I am not Dehaswarupa (body), I am Dehi (the indweller). There is no difference between you and Me. I have all powers in Me. But you are deluded seeing My physical form. Whatever I am doing is only to satisfy the doctors and other devotees. As a matter of fact, there is no trace of ill-health in Me. I am always healthy. Not only today, till 96 years I will be like this. I can do whatever I want. But those who go by the physical form think that Swami is ageing. Youth and old age are related to the body and not to Me. I am always the same. I can do anything. However, this body is yours. This has come for your sake. You can change it the way you like. If you think that Swami is strong and healthy, yes so He is. There is no weakness in Me. My angas (limbs) may appear to be weak. But I am not Angaswarupa. I am Atmaswarupa. Wherever you may go, worship God as Atmaswarupa. Do not identify Him with an Akara (form). Give up body consciousness and develop Atmic awareness. Only when you lead a spiritual life, will you be able to visualize the Atmaswarupa. If you identify

Me with the body, I cannot walk even two steps. Do not think about the Akara. Have faith that I am the Atmaswarupa. Then I will always remain healthy.

Realize the Atma as your very life. Everyone of you is endowed with divine energy. But you are misusing it. Your youth is in your hands. Your very life is in your hands. You are not the body; you are the life principle.

Body is meant to serve as an instrument in your quest for truth. The same Atma is present in all. Here you see a silver tumbler with water. The tumbler is the basis for water, silver is the basis for tumbler and Divinity is the basis for silver. Divinity is not made up of material. Hence, give up the materialistic standpoint. Realize that your Swami is not constrained by Akara. He is full of Ananda (bliss). When you develop such faith, you too will experience Ananda. Many devotees were worried, "Why has our Swami not given a single discourse during the last one week though many others have spoken?" Of course, whatever I speak is love in verbal form.

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003)

But remember whenever I come amidst you, the love, the bliss and the strength that manifest in Me cannot be described in words. In fact, I don't require food or drink. Bliss is My food. Develop such faith. Sage Viswamitra. was taking Rama and Lakshmana along with him for the protection of the Yajna he had undertaken. When they reached the banks of Sarayu, he told them, "My dear ones, you are coming with me for the protection of Yajna. In order to do so, you have to remain without food and water and wage a fierce battle with the demons, for extended periods without respite. Hence, I will teach you two Mantras, which will make you free from hunger and sleep." This is the power of Maya. When King Dasaratha, fearing danger from the demons, was reluctant to send his sons with Viswamitra, the sage counseled him, saying, "Oh king, do not get deluded by seeing the physical forms of your sons. They are not ordinary mortals. They are verily divine." But when they reached the banks of Sarayu, the sage was overcome with Maya and taught them the Mantras as if they were ordinary humans. He told them, "Do not identify yourself with the physical body. You are the embodiments of the Atma.

You are Chaitanyaswarupas. You are endowed with divine power. Always bear this in mind. You will be free from hunger and sleep."

After the protection of the Yajna, Rama went to Mithila with the sage.

They walked a long distance for sixteen days. Yet, Rama was always cheerful and full of bliss. In fact, bliss was His form. Hence develop bliss more and more. Do not confine God to a physical form. I am not this body. Body is made up of food materials. This body is a den of dirt, and prone to diseases; it is subject to change from time to time; it cannot cross the ocean of Samsara. It is nothing but a structure Of bones. Oh mind! Do not be under the delusion that body is permanent. Instead take refuge at the Divine Lotus Feet. (Telugu Poem)

It is a grave mistake to identify yourself with the body. Give up body attachment and develop Atmic consciousness. Only then will you understand and experience your true form, i.e., Atma. Otherwise, even the smallest physical ailments like stomachache, headache etc., will make you feel anxious. Physical ailments are like passing clouds. So long as you are deluded by body consciousness, you will be affected by them. Once you give up body attachment, you are no more bound by the body and its limitations. When you sit in meditation, you forget your body. Meditation means giving up Dehabhimana (body attachment) and developing Atmic awareness. Everyone While referring to one's self uses the term "I", the principle of Atma. Hence, you are not related to the body. It is only an instrument. "I" is your true identity. You may add any number of "I's", yet it will always remain "I". Such principle of unity is present in all. It is the same for you and Me. It has no difference whatsoever. If you do not give up Dehabhimana, all your education will prove futile. Understand that you are not the body. You are I. Never forget this truth. The physical form is bound to change. Embodiments of Love! True Navaratri celebration lies in giving up Dehabhimana and developing Atmabhimana. You can see for yourself what an exalted position you will attain once you give up body attachment. You may be weak physically Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003) 119 and mentally. But when you develop Atmabhimana, all your weaknesses will vanish in a trice. Establish yourself in the firm faith, "I am God". (Bhagawan concluded His discourse with the Bhajan, "Hari Bhajan Bina Sukha Santhi Nahi...")

15. DEVELOP SPIRIT OF BROTHERHOOD

Date: 17 Oct 2003 Occasion: - Place: Prasanthi Nilayam

This land of Bharat has given birth to many noble women like Savitri who brought her dead husband back to life; Chandramati who extinguished wild fire with the power of truth; Sita who proved her chastity by coming out of the blazing fire unscathed and Damayanti who reduced an evil-minded hunter to ashes with the power of her chastity. This land of piety and nobility attained plenty and prosperity and became the teacher of all nations of the world because of such women of chastity (Telugu Poem)

Human life is meant to demonstrate an ideal to the world. Man is endowed with infinite powers. But, he leads a life of ignorance, being unaware of his innate powers. Though everyone is endowed with divine powers, only a few are able to manifest them. In others, these powers remain hidden. Everyone should make efforts to realise their inherent divinity. Man appears and behaves as if he is an ordinary human in spite of being one with infinite divine powers. Ianakiramaiah (Swami's younger brother) is one such divine power. He was younger to this body by 2 years. However, he was an expert in the field of politics. He would mince no words in expressing his opinion. At times, I used to caution him, "Ramaiah, you do not know the abilities of others. Do not use harsh words. Talk with restraint." He might have used harsh words when the situation demanded, but he was always tender-hearted. When Lakshmana fainted in the battlefield, Rama lamented thus, "If I were to search in the world, I may get another wife like Sita, a mother like Kausalya, but not a brother like Lakshmana." In this manner, Rama was deeply touched by the fraternal love of Lakshmana and extolled his qualities. There are many such families in the world where the parents, brothers and sisters have demonstrated great ideals. You don't need to doubt whether such ideal brothers exist even today. They do exist. There may be temporary differences of opinion, but they always have love for each other.

Every man must necessarily make efforts to realise the principle of Atma, which is present in all. The sweetness of Atmic experience is unparalleled.

In the spiritual field, what one has to attain is the experience of Atmic bliss. He, who realises the inherent divinity in humanity is a true human being. The Atma has no specific form. It is full of love and bliss. This has to be realised and experienced by every individual. One may know the nature of an individual, but it is not possible to understand and estimate

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003)

121

the nature of the Atma. In order to understand the principle of Atma, you have to emulate the ideals demonstrated by Rama and His brothers.

One day as the brothers were playing a game, Bharata came running, sat on the lap of Mother Kausalya and complained, "Mother, whenever I am about to lose the game, Rama manages to lose and makes me the winner." Lakshmana, Bharata and Satrugghna would tell their mothers that it was their great good fortune that they had Rama as their elder brother.

They would praise Rama saying, He was full of love and nowhere they could find a brother like Him. They always wanted to be in the company of Rama and serve Him. There was such unity and love among them.

They enjoyed intimate and inseparable relationship. Even today, there are many such brothers in the world. But, the situation of the world is such that people are not encouraged to practise brotherhood of man. Our institutions should demonstrate the ideal of brotherhood and show the way to the rest of the world. You call each other brothers and sisters. Mere verbal expression will not suffice; it should be reflected in your conduct. While in exile, Rama would not bear separation from even for a moment. He would anxiously ask Sita about Lakshman's whereabouts whenever he was not found by His side. In this manner, Rama taught the ideal of brotherhood by His example.

Lakshmana

Today, students are acquiring education with the sole purpose of occupying high positions in society. They are not prepared to share their love with their fellowmen and demonstrate the ideal of brotherhood. The need of the hour is to practise the ideal of brotherhood. Brothers should lead their lives in an ideal manner. Bodies may be different, but their life principle must be one and the same. There is no dearth of such ideal brothers in this land of Bharat. But, there are some who are not able to translate their sacred feelings into action and set an ideal to others. It is only when we share our love with fellowmen, can we experience Divinity.

What is the hallmark of a true student? Manasyekam Vachasyekam Karmanyekam Mahatmanam (those whose thoughts, words and deeds are in perfect harmony are noble ones.) It is said: The proper study of mankind is man. But, today we do not find true qualities of mankind.

People may show respect towards each other outwardly, but they do not experience true love, unity and happiness inwardly. They say they that belong to mankind, but in reality they have monkey mind.

What is true humanness? You should treat your fellowmen as your own brothers. You deserve to be called a human being only when you cultivate the spirit of unity. Where there is no unity, there you find enmity and hatred. Consequently, the principle of love is lost altogether. Man's foremost duty is to share his love with others. Only then can he

realise

the dictum: Brotherhood of man and fatherhood of God. But, unfortunately, such idealism is not found today. You may not believe in the fatherhood of God, but you must have faith in the brotherhood of man; practise it and experience bliss therefrom. Our country, Bharat will regain its pristine glory only when we achieve such unity. There should be

122

unity and love not only among brothers but also between the husband and wife.

Today, you have heard that a doctor from Singapore (Dr. Pillai) wants to establish an institution in memory of his late wife. Pillai has been a devotee of Swami for the last 20 years. His wife was also a highly virtuous lady. She always had a smiling countenance and would always

speak softly and sweetly. There are many such noble women in this country. It is because of such women that the country is full of auspiciousness, plenty and prosperity. There are many such devotees who express their love in an unostentatious manner.

The country of Bharat is highly sacred. But people are flocking to foreign countries with the false hope that they would find happiness there.

The happiness that you do not find here cannot be found anywhere in the world. It is said, Yanna Bharate Thanna Bharata (that which is not found in Bharat is not present anywhere else). That is why, Bharat has been able to live in peace and amity with the rest of the world for the past thousands of years. The Bharatiyas share their love with others and maintain brotherly relationship. In fact, they have lived up to the ideal of Brotherhood of man and Fatherhood of God. In spite of many foreign invasions, the love and unity of Bharatiyas has not diminished a bit.

At times, you may find infighting, but this is only a passing cloud. There is, however, the sweet fragrance of love in everybody's heart.

There is no point in talking sweetly if there is no sweetness in your heart.

Sweetness in speech and bitterness in heart is not the quality of a human being. There should be sweetness in your thought, word and deed.

This is the true sign of a human being. You should fill your life with love.

There is nothing superior to love in this world. Man is considered to be most sacred because he has the unique quality of love in him. But you are not able to realise the value of human birth. God incarnates in human form in order to spread the message of love. Once you have love in your heart, you can conquer the whole world. There is love in you, but you are not able to express it in the proper way.

Students!

You read a number of books. You also study history. But, do you go through the history of Rama? Have you understood the strong bond of love that existed between Rama, Lakshmana, Bharata and Satrugna?

First and foremost, you should develop the spirit of brotherhood.

Even when you come across your bitter rival, address him as brother and talk to him with love. When you address him as brother, his heart will melt and hatred will disappear at once. You can conquer the whole world with the weapon of love. There is nothing that you cannot achieve with the power of love. Love is the supreme power. True human value lies in sharing and experiencing the supreme love. But, today man wastes this noble quality of love in worldly pursuits. This has become his taste.

He does not realise that love is Divine. The Gopikas had realised this truth.

That is why they prayed to Lord Krishna thus:
Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003)
 123
Oh Krishna, play your sweet flute and sow the seeds of love in the desert of our loveless hearts.
 Let the rain of love fall on earth and make the rivers of love flow.
 (Telugu Song)
 The power of love is unmatched. When you fill your heart with love, all people will become your brothers and sisters. You will not have enemies at all!
 Embodiments of Love!
 Truly speaking, you are the very embodiments of love. Let the stream of love flow from one heart to another. Consider love as your life. This is your foremost duty. You may search anywhere in the world, you cannot find anything greater than love. Here is an example. So many of you have gathered here today! What is the reason? It is Swami's love that has attracted all of you. Love is the divine magnetic power present in man. In all the sacred epics like the Ramayana, the Mahabharata and the Bhagavata, you find love as the undercurrent. Once you cultivate love, you do not need to acquire any other property. You can attain God only through love. He cannot be attained by any other means. Love is the magnetic power that can transform even your bitter enemy into a dearest friend.

Students!

Develop love. This is more important than your worldly education.

Love is life. Not merely that. Love is light. It illumines your path and helps you reach the goal. Your journey of life will be safe and secure when you carry the light of love with you. You will never find darkness. Fill your heart with love. Love is God. Live in love. This is what you have to learn today.

Today, people merely utter the words "love is God", but they do not actually live in love. This should not be the case. Your life should be suffused with love.

Embodiments of Love!

You have heard the talks given by C. Sreenivas, the present and the former Vice-Chancellors. They spoke with love in their hearts and emphasised on the need to cultivate love. They are, in fact, ringing the bells of love in your heart, but you don't seem to pay attention to them.

Once you hear the bells of love, you cannot waste even a moment. You will dedicate your whole life to the cause of love and ultimately merge in love.

Students!

You may acquire various types of knowledge and travel across the globe.

But, in spite of all your worldly achievements, you may not be able to understand the principle of love. Once you have the taste of love, you will see the world in its real form. Therefore, become truly embodiments of love. Let love flow incessantly from your heart. Immerse yourself in the flow of love. Out of love, emerge truth and righteousness. Sathyam Vada,

Dharmam Chara (speak truth, practise righteousness). Truth and righteousness are the two pillars on which the mansion of human life rests. It is love that gives rise to these two principles. There is no knowledge greater than the knowledge of love. You may read a number of Pustakas (books), but love cannot be acquired from such books. What is the use of reading Pustakas when your Mastaka (head) is filled with 'dirt'?

It is because of such 'dirt', you become an animal losing the sense of discrimination.

Adore love. Live in love. There is no greater education than this. Traverse the path of love. Partake of the food of love. It is not enough if you merely partake of love, you should also assimilate and digest it. Only then the essence of love will spread to every cell of your body giving you immense strength and wisdom.

Students!

Today's education is leading to agitation. True education lies in assimilating and digesting the principle of love. You are the embodiments of love. You are filled with love. You may not know this, but I can see love in you from top to toe. In future, the principles of Ramayana will be manifested in a glorious manner. The Ramayana will fill your lives with love and make you forget yourselves. Let your love be directed towards Rama. Rama + Ayana is Ramayana.

Students!

I hope I am not causing any inconvenience to you by speaking at length.

In fact, it should not be a trouble at all for you. You cannot find the love that Swami showers on you, anywhere else. Day after day, I will fill your hearts with more and more love. I have no other work. My only job is to fill your hearts with love.

16. THE CULTURE OF BHARAT

Date: 20 Oct 2003 Occasion: - Place: Prasanthi Nilayam

Verily like a massive tusker

Knows not its own might

The sons of Bharat are quite unaware of the greatness of their culture,

Tolerance and compassion its beauteous form,

Truth above all other rituals strict,

Mother's love and reverence, the very elixir eternal,

Character, true, greater than mere living of comfort,

Unmindful of one's own heritage,

The Bharatiya runs after fashions occidental,

Sad is the sight, sadder the plight.

(Telugu Poem)

Embodiments of Love!

It is enough if there are one or two organisations like this; Bharat can be restored to its pristine glory. The service activities have brought about a great transformation in the hearts of youth. If such sacred activities are undertaken in every village and in every street, the ancient culture of Bharat can certainly be revived. Today, there are very few people who practise and propagate the sacred values of our culture. The Bharatiyas

have completely forgotten their rich cultural heritage and are imitating

the Western Culture, losing their sanctity. Though the culture of ancient, it is ageless and as relevant in the contemporary scene and, hence, it should be practised and propagated in every village.

Bharat is

A few elders of the Organisation have approached Me for guidance in carrying out the service activities. Tomorrow I will speak to the organisers from Hyderabad and the youth, and give them the necessary guidelines.

You are well aware how the values have degenerated in the city of Hyderabad which was once known as Simhapuri. People have lost faith in our ancient values and are ruining their lives by aping the Western Culture.

Embodiments of Love!

Words of appreciation or any type of compliments are inadequate to describe in full the great ideal demonstrated by you. I shall provide buses in which you can travel to various villages and perform service activities.

Today, the world is witnessing a strange scenario. People preach spirituality on the one hand and act quite otherwise on the other. This has become common especially in the big cities. People in cities, however well educated they are, have completely forgotten our ancient traditions and are behaving in a perverse manner in the name of modernism. The Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003) 126 enthusiasm, dynamism and the ancient traditional values that are found in you, the youth in particular, are not found anywhere else. It is only those who know the greatness of our ancient culture will be able to understand and appreciate the sacred feelings of your hearts. It is most essential that you propagate our ancient culture in every village and in every hamlet. Though the people of villages are interested in disseminating our ancient culture, they are unable to do so for want of resources. Hence, I will give all necessary support and encouragement for the furtherance of this sacred cause. Such ideal students who participate in this sacred activity of Grama Seva will be given admission in our educational institutions. Do not think that you are outsiders. All this is yours. I am yours and these institutions belong to you. You have every right to be here. I am always ready to provide any help that you may require.

Tomorrow, I will address all of you separately and give you guidelines for your future activities. Never give room for disappointment. March ahead with all hope and enthusiasm. Tomorrow, with full of happiness in your heart, wait for Swami to address you. I may come any moment. Never give up chanting the Name of God. The Divine Name is like a boat that can take you across the ocean of life. I will give the necessary strength to your units. Be prepared to undertake rural service activities with great enthusiasm. Today, right at this moment, you must take a firm resolve to develop and expand your activities.

Embodiments of Love!

Today, while watching your excellent programme depicting the rural development activities, I lost Myself in joy. Tomorrow, I will spend more time with you and bestow immense happiness on all of you.

Bhagawan sang the Bhajan, "Prema Mudita Manase Kaho " and continued the Discourse.

Embodiments of Love!

Never get yourselves entangled in politics. Keep yourselves away from all political activities. Continue your sacred social work and sanctify your time by chanting the Divine Name. Follow your chosen path with determination and achieve success. Today selfishness is rampant in the field of politics. You should lead a life of selfless service contemplating on God all the time and thus redeem yourselves. Tomorrow morning, I will come and address you at length.

17. THE ATMA TATTWA IS ONE IN ALL

Date: 21 Oct 2003 Occasion: - Place: Prasanthi Nilayam

Oh foolish man! Why do you go in search of God here and there when He is very much within you? Turn your vision inward and you will find Him there.

(Telugu Poem)

Embodiments of Love!

You are under the mistaken notion that God is separate from you. In order to have the vision of God, you follow various paths such as Japa, Dhyana, Bhajans, etc. So long as you think God is present elsewhere, you cannot find Him. He is present in you. Make efforts to realise the indwelling divinity.

On 20th October 1940, while going to school after returning from Hampi, Baba's collar pin was lost and could not be found. The collar pin symbolised worldly desires. That pin was presented to Me by Narayana

Raju, the then Municipal Chairman of Bellary.

The Municipal Chairman took us to the Virupaksha temple in Hampi. After reaching the temple, Seshama Raju (elder brother of Swami) told Me to keep a watch over their belongings as they went inside to have Darshan of the deity. I readily agreed and remained outside. They went inside the temple. To their utter astonishment, they found Me standing inside the sanctum sanctorum in the place of Lord Virupaksha. Seshama Raju could not believe his eyes. Seshama Raju said to himself: "Why has He come here when I told Him specifically to remain outside and take care of our belongings?" He thought it was improper on My part to have entered the sanctum sanctorum. He at once came out of the temple only to find Me there! He again went inside and found Me there also! Still he was having doubts. He told his wife, "You go outside and keep a watch over

Sathya. Do not allow Him to go anywhere. Meanwhile, I will go inside and see whether He is still there." She did accordingly. He again saw a smiling Sathya standing in the sanctum sanctorum. He wondered whether it was a dream, a mere hallucination or reality. In those days, wearing a collar pin was considered to be a fashion. Narayana Raju presented Me a collar pin with a prayer that I should remember him always. After we returned from Hampi to

Uravakonda, the collar pin dropped on the way as I was proceeding to the school holding books in one hand. It could not be found. But I was least affected by its loss. Yet, I pretended as though I was anxiously searching for it. Some boys who were coming behind Me enquired, "Raju, what are You Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003) 128 searching for?" I told them that I lost the collar pin. They too started searching all over the place. I laughed and remarked, "You are going to school to study. Why are you bothered about the collar pin? Don't worry about it." They said, "It looked so good when You were wearing it." One of those boys ran to Seshama Raju's house. At that time, Seshama Raju and Narayana Raju were discussing as to what could be inferred of

My mysterious behaviour. When the boy reported the matter to them, they at once rushed to Me. Narayana Raju very lovingly put his hand around My shoulder and asked, "My dear, what are you searching for?" I said, "I am searching for something." He understood that there was some inner significance in My reply. He said, "Raju, how can You search for something that You do not know?" I told him that I had lost the collar pin which he had presented to Me. He said, "I will give you ten such collar pins. Don't worry about it. Come, let's go home." That day was the day of change. The link with worldly ties had gone in the form of the pin; the pilgrimage to Hampi also served its purpose. Baba left home saying that Maya could not bind Him any longer. (Telugu Song) Man has two types of desires: One is worldly and the other spiritual. It is said, worldly education is for life here while spiritual knowledge is for the life hereafter. However, man gives importance to worldly education only. He is always in search of worldly happiness. However, I am not interested in such happiness. I told Narayana Raju that the bondage of worldly attachment was lost in the form of collar pin. On coming to know of this incident, the Excise Commissioner Hanumantha Rao came in his car and said to Me, "Raju, what are You looking for? Please come with me. I will give You whatever You want." He had intense love for Me. I told him that I was not searching for anything. People around Me asked, "Are You searching for God?" I replied, "One need not search for God, for He is everywhere. Nor am I searching for a trivial thing like a collar pin." Then I was taken to the house of one H.S. Ramana, who was a lecturer in English. They questioned Me, "What do You want? Is it the pin or God?" I told them, "I don't need a pin. I can get any number of pins, for everything is in My hand. Then, do you think that I am searching for God? He is everywhere. I don't need to search for Him." Narayana Raju asked, "Where is God? Can we see Him?" Earlier I had given him a ring. It disappeared from his finger and appeared on My finger. He was stunned. He asked, "How did it happen?" I said, "I can do anything. Everything is in My hand." (Swami with a wave of His hand, materialised the same ring which He had given to Narayana Raju. He held it aloft and showed it to the congregation.) Watching all this, Seshama Raju was also astonished.

He gave up the feeling that He was My elder brother. Shedding tears of joy and repentance, he asked, "My dear, You are all-knowing; everything is in Your hand. Then, what are You searching for?" I also did not address him as brother. I told him that I was no longer bound by worldly relationship. I held the hand of Narayana Raju and asked, "What is this?"

He said, "It is my hand." I took out the pen from his pocket and asked, "What is this?" "It is my pen", he said. "You say, it is my hand, my pen, my body, my mind, my senses, etc. The word 'my' indicates that you are different from all this. Then who are you?" I asked him. Then everyone started thinking, "Yes, what Raju says is correct. We say, this is mine and that is mine, but we do not know who we are." Everybody was silent. They accepted that they did not know their true identity. I told them that I had come down in human form only to make people realise their true identity.

It is the eye that sees and the mind that thinks. (Showing the ring and handkerchief, Bhagawan said) Your eyes can see the ring and the handkerchief. On what basis can you call this a ring? Similarly, what makes you say that it is a handkerchief? You say, mind is the basis for all this. What is mind? Whom does it belong to? You do not know. What you think you know, in reality, you do not know, that is your true Self. Make efforts to realise it.

From that day onwards, many seekers of Truth started visiting Me. They used to say, "Raju, what You are saying is correct. But how are we to realise our true identity?" People quote from scriptures and talk high philosophy but do not know their real meaning. "You say, this is my ring, my body, my handkerchief, so on and so forth. Then who are you?" I questioned them. They had no answer. Then I started explaining thus: "There are two important aspects that you have to consider, one is Drishyam (seen) and the other is Drashta (seer). Yad Drishyam Thannasyam (all that is seen is bound to perish). So, whatever you see is only an illusion. You are the Drashta, that is your true identity."

The English lecturer, H.S. Ramana was a noble person. His house was on the way to My school. He used to sit in the front verandah of his house.

As soon as he saw Me, he used to call 'Raju!', take Me into his house and offer Me coffee and snacks. But, I was not interested in these worldly things. Earlier, I used to address him as 'Sir'. But, from that day onwards, the worldly relationship of teacher-student had ceased between us. I used to tell him that all that was seen by the eye is merely Drishyam which was perishable and that one had to go beyond and search for the Drashta. From that day onwards wherever I went and whomever I met, I used to teach these higher principles.

Then, one day Ramana called Seshama Raju and told him, "Seshama Raju! Do not trouble yourself much in trying to understand the behaviour of Sathyam. This boy is delving deeper and deeper into the mysteries of life. It is not possible for anybody to fathom His true nature. Let us wait for some time and see", saying thus, he took Me into his house and offered snacks, coffee, meals, etc, with great love. Poor man! He did not realise that I was never interested in those worldly matters. I did not touch any of these food stuffs. In My view, they were all worldly things which underwent constant change. They were never permanent. I explained to him, "You brought this Upma for Me. How real is this stuff?

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003)

Only till one consumes it. What happens to it after eating? Nobody can see its shape thereafter. It just disappears. You are all considering these unreal worldly things as real." Thus, I started teaching them higher Vedantic concepts. H.S. Ramana was astonished at My knowledge of these higher principles. Till then, he was addressing Me as "Raju! Raju!"

But, from then on he started addressing Me as 'Guruji!' Holding My feet, he pleaded with Me "Guruji! Please come to my house." Those who were witnessing the scene were amazed that this elderly gentleman who was a teacher was holding the feet of this young boy, his student.

Then Ramana declared in front of all those people, "Not only me; a day will come when the entire world will fall at His feet." The people gathered there on that occasion were all powerful, holding high positions in society. There was a neighbour by name Ramanarayana Sastri, who was an astrologer. He was called in and appraised of all those higher truths of life which I was explaining to them. Sri Sastri was amazed at My knowledge of Vedantic concepts at such a young age and shed tears of joy. One or two drops of tears fell at My feet. From then onwards, everybody in Uravakonda started addressing Me as Sathya Sai Baba. I told them that I had come only for the purpose of revealing this truth. Unable to comprehend the full truth about My revelations, some of them questioned Me, "How can You declare Yourself to be Sai Baba?" I just took some flowers in My hand and threw them on the floor. Lo and behold! The flowers arranged themselves as Sathya Sai Baba in Telugu letters. On witnessing this miracle, they were wonderstruck and dumbfounded! Then, everybody started chanting in chorus "Sathya Sai Baba Ki Jai", "Sathya Sai Baba Ki Jai!" I emphatically told them that this was a name which they themselves had ascribed to Me and, in fact, I had no name at all! I declared thus on the occasion thus:
 Know that I am Sai in reality,
 Cast off your worldly relationships,
 Give up your efforts to restrain Me,
 The worldly attachments can no longer bind Me,
 None, however great he may be, can hold Me.
 (Telugu Poem)
 I got up and started walking away. In the meanwhile, all those assembled there including Ramana and Sastri tried to follow Me. I advised them not to be after Me, but, to strive for self-introspection and mental transformation. Since I am not the body, none can hold Me. Therefore, I advised them to follow My ideals. Only then can they realise My true nature. In this vast expanse of the universe, right from the minutest atom to the mightiest, everything is permeated by the Atmic reality. It appears as the minutest of the minute and mightiest of the mighty. In fact, the principle of oneness that pervades microcosm and macrocosm is the fundamental reality which you have to enquire into. That is why Ramana Maharishi Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003) 131 used to say, "Enquire, who you really are?" You are not a single entity. You are, in fact, three-in-one, The one you think you are, (body) The one others think you are (mind) and The one you really are (Atma). The Atma is known as conscience and the body which consists of the senses is called conscious. The Chaitanya (consciousness) which is present in all, transcends the senses. There is yet another principle that is beyond consciousness. It is called Super Consciousness. In the earlier days, not many people knew who Sai Baba was. He was considered a Muslim saint. When I first returned to Puttaparthi declaring Myself as Sai Baba, people thought that I had taken a Muslim name. But, no one can bind Me to a particular religion like Hinduism or Islam. The Vaishnavites say that Lord Vishnu is the greatest while the Saivites declare that Lord Siva is the greatest of all. Gaanapatyas (the worshippers of Ganapati) declare that Ganapati is the greatest. The educated say Goddess Sarada is the greatest. Shaaktas (worshippers of Shakti) proclaim that Goddess Shakti is the greatest. My devotees say I am the greatest. Some others say all are one. People may speak on the basis of their feelings but in truth, there is only one GOD and the rest are names. (Telugu Poem) Different people may ascribe different names to the Atmic Reality and try to define it in different ways. But, the underlying Atma Tattwa is one and the same. This truth has to be explained to the people in an understandable language. You can see that there are some houses beyond. In the front portion of the house, you will find a verandah; then a living room and then a kitchen. Thereafter, you will find a bathroom and a toilet. Thus, there are different names for different utilities. How did they acquire these names? It is only because they are so divided by walls, for different purposes. But, the truth is they are all parts of the same house. Similarly, different people have different names and they establish different relationships with people like mother, father, brother, etc. From where did you acquire these relationships? Everything is your own making. Remove these barriers. What remains is a vast expanse of oneness. One person refers to Divinity as Atma, another refers to it as Brahman and the third one calls it as Vishnu. These are only names ascribed by human beings to the nameless, formless, attributeless Divinity. The Brahma Tattwa is one that has no names ascribed to it. Where did the Brahman come from? The Atmic consciousness that permeates every living being is referred to as Brahman. When it is individualised, it is called conscience. It is also referred to as Jiva.

When the Atma Tattwa is encased in a body, it becomes an individual. The Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003) 132 individual, the Atma and consciousness - all the three are one and the same. People think they are different because they are given different names. Remove the names. There is only one Atma Tattwa in every individual. It has no form. It assumes different forms by joining different individuals. Supposing you name this object (showing a handkerchief) as Atma. It is a handkerchief in common parlance. But, when you look at it from a spiritual angle, it is an object. I call it as thread. Again, after some time I refer to it as cotton; whether we call it as handkerchief or thread or cotton, it refers to only one object. Only different names are given to the object. Take for instance the names of Rama and Krishna. Rama was not born with that particular name. He was christened Rama only after His birth. No. Similarly, the name Krishna. Since He was an embodiment of bliss, He was referred to as Krishna. Akarshati Iti Krishna (because He attracts, He is Krishna). But, His real nature is Ananda. He is Ananda Swarupa (embodiment of bliss). The same principle of Ananda has taken different names. This one single principle of Ananda is: Brahmanandam, Parama Sukhadam, KevalamJnanamurtim, Dwandwateetam, Gagana Sadrisham, Tattwamasyadi Lakshyam, Ekam, Nityam, Vimalam, Achalam, Sarvadhee Sakshibhutam, Bhavateetam, Trigunarahitam (God is the embodiment of supreme bliss, He is wisdom absolute, the One without a second, beyond the pair of opposites, expansive and pervasive like the sky, the goal indicated by the Mahavakya Tattwamasi, the eternal, pure, unchanging, the witness of all functions of the intellect, beyond all mental conditions and the three Gunas of Sattwa, Rajas and Thamas). Divinity has no attributes. How can one give a name to it? Since it is not possible to assign any particular name to this principle, they named it as Atma. This Atma Tattwa is permeating every individual. It has no specific form. Explaining thus, I told those people that it is only for making them realise this principle that I have come. Then, Seshama Raju put a big question. He was a Telugu Pandit. Whatever question he put, had certain value. He questioned, "Who are You?" I answered, "Since you are calling Me as Sathya, I am Sathya. Since you are referring to Me as your brother, I am your brother. Since you call Me as a student, I am a student. By whatever name and form you refer to Me, I assume that name and form. In fact, no one is able to realise the truth. No one has any relationship whatsoever with Me. Call Me by any name, I will answer. If you call Me "Sai", I will answer. If you call Me "Baba", I will respond. By whatever name you call Me, it is the same for Me. All these names are only names ascribed to Me. I have, in fact, come to make you realise this truth."

In the classroom, three of us used to share a desk - Myself in the middle, flanked by Ramesh and Suresh on either side. They were very young. One was eight years old, the other nine years and I was 8 years old. Ramesh and Suresh were not good in studies. Whenever the teachers asked them questions, they would give the answers prompted by Me. It was the time of our E.S.L.C. public examination. The roll numbers of our seats in the examination hall were so arranged that we had to sit separately, quite at a distance from each other. It was not possible for them to get any help from Me. They were much worried. I infused courage in them saying, "You need not write anything. You just attend the examination. I will take care of the rest."

I completed My answer paper in a few minutes. I took some more answer sheets from the invigilator and wrote the answers in Ramesh's handwriting. After completing it, I took another set of answer sheets and wrote the answers in Suresh's handwriting. I also wrote their names on the answer sheets. When the final bell rang, all the students got up, and I silently placed all the three answer sheets on the table of the examiner.

When the results were announced, only we three got first class. The teachers were surprised as to how Ramesh and Suresh also got first class.

The mathematics teacher Thirumal Rao called the three of us. He asked

Ramesh and Suresh whether they had written the answers on their own.

Prior to this, I had cautioned Ramesh and Suresh not to reveal the truth under any circumstances. I told them, "If they ask you any question, tell them that you remembered the answers then and now have forgotten. If you follow My command, I am yours and you are Mine." They obeyed My command and told Thirumal Rao that they had written the answers on their own. There was no scope for any doubt. They could not have copied from Me, since we were seated far from each other. Their answer sheets were in their own handwriting. The local people were overjoyed. They took out a grand procession carrying us on their shoulders.

There was a businessman by name Kote Subbanna. Somehow he came to know that I could compose excellent poetry. One day he came to Me and pleaded, "Raju, there is a new medicine by name Bala Bhaskara in my stores. Please write a song on the efficacy of the medicine which would serve as an advertisement. I will give You whatever You want. I am prepared to pay You any amount of money." I told him, "I am not here to sell My poetry. You give Me the details of the medicine. I will certainly compose a song for you." Then I composed the following song:

There it is! There it is! Oh, children! come, come!

There is the medicine Bala Bhaskara;

Be it an upset stomach or a swollen leg;
Be it a joint pain or flatulence;

Be it any ailment, known or unknown;
Take this Bala Bhaskara for an instant cure!

If you wish to know where it is available:

There is the shop of Kote Subbanna;

It is in that shop that you can pick it up.

Come here boys! come here!
It is an excellent tonic

Prepared by the famous physician Gopalacharya himself,
Come here boys! come here!

(Telugu Song)

This song was taught to ten children who went about carrying placards and singing the song composed by Me in the streets. Everybody came to know of the medicine and all the stock was sold out in no time. Kote Subbanna became very popular. His joy knew no bounds. He brought a new pair of dress stitched for Me as an expression of his gratitude, but I refused to accept them.

Meanwhile, our headmaster Lakshmipathy Sastri was transferred. All the students felt sorry about it. Seshama Raju was also transferred from Uravakonda to Kamalapuram. Hence, I had to leave Uravakonda.

Ramesh

and Suresh were very much attached to Me. Such intense love cannot be found even among parents and siblings. When I left Uravakonda, the other children in the school became inconsolable. Ramesh and

Suresh did not shed tears but they could not bear the separation from Me. I was very young at that time and had to obey the command of Seshama Raju.

Hence, I boarded the bus and left Uravakonda. Ramesh, utterly dejected, fell into a well and died. The second boy went on repeating "Raju, Raju, Raju, Raju" and ultimately turned mad. He was taken to various mental hospitals but there was no improvement. Finally, his father came to and prayed, "Suresh will be cured of his madness if he sees You at least once. Please come and see him." I went to the mental hospital to see him. He was continuously repeating "Raju, Raju, Raju" Seeing Me, he shed tears and breathed his last.

Later, Ramesh and Suresh were born as two dogs and were brought to Me by an officer from Bangalore. They used to be with Me always when I was in Old Mandir. They were named Jack and Jill. One day, the Maharani of Mysore came to have My Darshan. She was a great devotee and a very orthodox woman. She would always maintain distance from others. She would not touch anything that was touched by others. She was so orthodox that she would insist upon giving a bath to the cow before milking it. As there was no proper road to Puttaparthi, she alighted from the car at Karnatanagepalli and walked the rest of the distance to the Old Mandir. How did she come? She did not want to put her foot on the road used by others. Hence, she had brought four wooden planks with her. She put her steps on each of those planks and reached the Mandir. The Maharani decided to rest for the night in the Mandir. The driver had his dinner and was returning to Karnatanagepalli where the car was parked. During night, there was heavy rain. The driver slept in the car and Jack slept under the car near the wheel. Next morning, the driver started the car, not knowing that Jack was sleeping under it. The wheel of the car ran over the back of Jack and its backbone broke. Jack dragged itself across the river, wailing all the while. A washerman named Subbanna used to take care of the Old Mandir day and night. He came running to Me and said, "Swami, Jack might have met with an accident. It is coming wailing in pain." I came out at once. Jack came close to Me, wailing loudly, fell at My feet and breathed its last. It was buried behind the Old Mandir and a Brindavanam was erected there. As Jack had passed away, Jill stopped Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003) 135 eating food and died after a few days. It was also buried by the side of Jack. In this manner, Ramesh and Suresh did penance to be with Me always. Even after their death, they took birth as dogs to be with Me. During My childhood, I used to compose several songs with deep meaning and gave joy to the villagers by having them sung. One day, a communist party leader by name Narayana Reddy from Bukkapatnam, approached Me with a request to compose some songs which could inspire our freedom fighters. A doll was placed in a cradle on the stage. I then composed a song in the form of a lullaby to the doll. Do not cry, my child, do not cry. If you cry, you will not be called a valiant son of Bharat. Go to sleep, my child, go to sleep. Did you get scared because the terrible Hitler has invaded the invincible Russia? Go to sleep, my child, go to sleep. Do not cry, my child, do not cry.

For the Red Army is marching under Stalin. They will put an end to Hitler. Why do you cry my child? Is it because the country is suffering under foreign rule? Do not cry, my child, do not cry. All the countrymen shall unite and fight to win freedom; Go to sleep, my child, go to sleep." (Telugu Song) The villagers listened to the song with appreciation and amazement. Many of them wondered as to how this young boy Sathyanarayana Raju had come to know about Hitler and Stalin. These names were unknown to the people in this region. This song was printed in a pamphlet and distributed in the villages. People from other political parties started coming to Me, requesting Me to write songs for them. Seshama Raju scolded Me, saying that I should not involve Myself in political affairs. I told him, "I have nothing to do with political parties. I don't belong to any party. All parties are Mine. I belong to all." The song became very popular in the village. They brought a few pants, shirts and towels for Me. But I refused to accept them. I distributed them to other children right in their presence. I told them, "I composed the song only to encourage you, not for any monetary benefits." From that day I stopped writing such songs. Nowadays, I don't even compose Bhajans. I am not writing any articles even for Sanathana Sarathi. Kasturi used to plead with Me to write articles. He would say, "Swami, unless Your Name appears in Sanathana Sarathi, it has no value at all." All the children in the school were very fond of Me. I too loved them dearly. Whenever there were any special preparations at home like Vadas and Pakodas, I used to take them to school and distribute to other Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003) 136 children. I was friendly with all. I had no enmity towards anyone. Seeing My noble deeds, Ramesh and Suresh developed great attachment towards Me and ultimately offered their lives to Me. Because of their love and devotion, I helped them in their examinations. After that I never involved Myself in matters related to examinations. Once a government official asked Me, "Swami, how could You write exams on their behalf?" I replied,

"Why not, Ramesh and Suresh are also My names." In this manner, I can go on narrating various incidents in My life story. There is no end to it. In fact, words are inadequate to describe My story. I always have special love for students. Similarly, students have intense love for Me. They seek My guidance whenever they have any problem. Even yesterday, a research scholar prayed for My guidance in the preparation of His thesis. He is writing a thesis on Mahabharata. He asked Me a few questions about characters like Bhishma, Bhima and Dharmaraja. I told him that he should find the answers by himself. Right now, you can find the research scholar sitting behind in the verandah. I told him to enquire within to find the right answers. Students are full of love for Swami. They consider Swami as their mother, father and everything. They address Me as Sai Matha. They sing, "We are the children of Sai Matha." When they consider Me as their mother, how can I not respond to their prayers? Hence, I too shower motherly love on them. Yad Bhavam Tad Bhavati (as is the feeling, so is the result). It is only a reflection of the love they have for Me. The love that exists between Swami and students is that of a mother and her children. Let anybody say anything, Swami is Your mother. I am the mother to those who consider Me as their mother, father to those who believe I am their father. I respond to you in accordance with your feelings. Even your own mother cannot give you as much love as Swami showers on you. Students! Work hard and study well. The two boys who are sitting down by My side are feeling anxious that Swami has been standing for a long time. They have been praying that I should sit. (In the end, Bhagawan permitted two former students of the Institute, who are presently working in different institutions of the Ashram to address the youth.) One may master all forms of knowledge,
One may vanquish one's adversaries in debate,
One may fight with valour and courage in the battlefield,
One may be an emperor reigning over vast kingdoms,
One may offer cows and gold as an act of charity,
One may count the countless stars in the sky,
One may tell the names of different living creatures on the earth,
One may be an expert in eight-limbed (Ashtanga) Yoga,
One may reach even the moon,
But it is near impossible to control the body, mind and senses,
Turn the vision inward
And achieve the supreme state of equanimity of the mind.

Embodiments of Love!
Today, a number of discussions and deliberations are being held in the field of education. First and foremost, we must try to recognize the true meaning of education. One may read all the available books and elucidate the meaning contained in these books. But, that does not entitle one to be called an educated person. There are several highly educated people today in the world. But, what transformation and discriminatory power have they achieved on account of their education? What benefit has accrued to the world on account of these so called educated people? None tries to understand and evaluate this aspect. It is only when an educated person looks inward that he will be able to realize the true meaning and philosophy underlying education. In contrast to this situation, people are applying their intelligence in worldly matters. There are, however, some who enquire into the nature of Atma Tattwa. Realising the importance of an enquiry into the nature of Atma Tattwa, we have introduced this concept in the M.B.A. course in Sri Sathya Sai Institute of Higher Learning. The letters M.B.A. stand for understanding the nature of the mind (M), the physical body (B), and the Atma (A). It is easier to understand the nature of the mind and body. But, to understand the nature of the Atma is not that easy. No one can understand what Atma is. It has no form. It is pure consciousness. Even the educated people are unable to understand that the Atma Tattwa is consciousness.

Most of them are able to go up to the stage of conscious. Some others are able to reach the next stage of conscience. The sum and substance of all this is that man today is unable to understand the Atma Tattwa. The pure consciousness. It is only when one is able to understand the conscious, he can understand what conscience is. Again, it is only when, one is able to understand conscience, he can really understand the principle of consciousness. Thus all the three categories of conscious, conscience and consciousness are interlinked.

Dear Students!

You may feel that spirituality is too abstract and not easily understandable. The Atma Tattwa cannot be understood and realized by merely developing material knowledge. In fact, Atma Tattwa is beyond the scope of material knowledge. It is transcendental. It is fundamental knowledge. It is at the base of all physical, material and secular knowledge.

Dear Students!

You may be under the mistaken impression that spirituality is that which cannot be understood. But, this is not correct. Spirituality is consciousness which has an inner meaning. What is awareness? Our normal understanding of this term is awareness about a particular object or aspect. Take for instance (showing a handkerchief), this object. When a question is put as to what it is, the answer comes that it is a handkerchief. This knowledge about the object is considered to be awareness. Again, when I question you (showing a flower) what it is, you reply that it is a flower. This is also considered to be an awareness. All these are the outer forms of different material objects. This is a cloth (showing the handkerchief). What is the basis for this cloth? The thread.

Again, what is the basis for this thread? The cotton. Thus this cloth cannot be made without the thread and cotton. The cotton is the fundamental object that forms the basis for the thread and the cloth.

Unfortunately,

today we are only recognizing the cloth, but not the fundamental object of cotton, the basis for the cloth. Therefore, what is of paramount importance today is to recognize the Atma Tattwa that is at the root of all knowledge. If one is able to realize this Atma Tattwa, he can easily realize every other aspect.

What is Atma Tattwa? For example, we have the physical body. This body has several limbs which function continuously. But, what is it that makes the limbs in the body function? We hold a particular object, say, a flower with one hand. What is it that gives power to the hand to hold the flower? We smell the flower. From where did we get this power of smelling? We do not make any effort to understand and recognize the inner source of all these powers; i.e., the Atma Tattwa. We say this is my hand, my leg, my finger, my head, etc. But, who are you? This "you" has to be understood first, so that you can say my hand, my leg, my finger, my head, etc. Whose head is this? Whose leg is this? Unless you understand this aspect how can you say "I" and "Mine"? Vedantha is that knowledge which is concerned about "who are you?" and "who am I?" But, none makes any effort to enquire into himself "who am I?" The fundamental question for the basis for everything in this universe is: "Who am I?"

If one has understood this "I", he would have understood everything else.

Spirituality is not something ununderstandable or a futile exercise.

There

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003)
139 is a fundamental principle in this universe which is the prime mover. We must make efforts to understand that fundamental principle.

Embodiments of Love!

What is Love? What is its nature? From where does this originate? Can a human being live without love? Impossible. That is why, it is said, "Love is God; Live in Love". One has to understand this principle of Love, which is the basis for everything in this universe. Without Love, there cannot be life in this world. There is an underlying power that permeates the entire universe. That is Truth. What is Truth? Truth is said to be "Trikalabadyam Sathyam" - It is present in all the periods of time: past, present and future. However, we cannot come to a conclusion only on account of that dictum. "Sathyam" (Truth) is that which transcends time. There is no tangible form for the concept of Truth. But, there is meaning. We say, "Truth is God, Love is God". We go on repeating the word "God". We make use of this word "God" in different circumstances. Even an atheist says "Oh! My God!", whenever he commits a mistake. People use this word "God" even without knowing its meaning. However, none can define the term properly. Similarly, none can define the term "Truth". The most appropriate method would be by one's own experience. How can one correctly describe that experience? For example, one can go on repeating $1 + 1 = 2$, $2 + 2 = 4$ and $2 - 1 = 1$ etc., ad infinitum. He can only repeat plus and minus, no one can define the basis for the calculations. We are able to give names of different objects in this world. But, we are not making any effort to understand the true nature of these objects. The whole world is full of material objects. This is a material world. However, there is something beyond this material world. That is, "Buddhi grahyamatheendriyam" (that which is unintelligible and beyond the grasp of the intellect). That is transcendental. We can count the objects in this world and say that there are so many crores of objects. What is there beyond that number? Thus, when you go on enquiring, you will end up nowhere. The fact is there is a fundamental principle that is present in every human being. When you say "Love is God", that "Love" is everywhere, omnipresent. This fundamental principle of Love is present in every human being, nay, in every living being. When you say "Truth is in me" and "I am Truth" what does it mean? What is that "I" and "Me"? If you analyse carefully, this "I" in you is also the "I" in others. This is the only Truth. This Truth can be understood only by spiritual enquiry.

And that too by a steady and sincere enquiry into one's own nature. Few undertake such an enquiry today. We are making use of several terms in a casual manner, without understanding their real meaning. Embodiments of Love! You need not have to waste your time, however, in trying to understand some abstract concepts which you are unable to comprehend. You just develop firm faith in the existence of God. You firmly believe that there is God and you are God. We cannot understand anything without developing faith. Hence, first and foremost, develop firm faith in the concept of "I". Only then can you understand the second concept "you". A Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003) 140 small example. When "I" and "you" join together, it becomes "we". However, "we" + "He" becomes only "He", who exists forever. The "I" and "you" change constantly. When you are a child you say "I am a boy". When you are a youth, you say "I am a man". Similarly, when you are old, you say, "I am an old man". Thus, you are undergoing constant changes in different stages of life. Hence, there is no use in sticking on to this changing principle. Attach yourself to the changeless principle, i.e., "He". That "He" is God. That "He" is present in you, him and in every person. "He is everywhere - within you, above you, below you and around you". Therefore this "He" principle represents the omnipresent Divinity. People should develop firm faith in such a Divine Principle. Supposing you say "I love Him" and none else. How can this be true? It means that you do not love yourself. When you say "this is my body", can you believe this body? You cannot, since it undergoes constant changes and is perishable. However, the non-dual principle of Atma Tattwa immanent in the body is eternal and transcendental. It has no other name, except "Atma". Then, the question arises as to who has given that name. In fact, this name did not come from somebody. The Atma is omnipresent. "He" is everywhere. How can one give a name to such an all-pervading Atma Tattwa? It is only a futile exercise. Do not waste your time in this futile exercise. Develop firm faith in this omnipresent Atma Tattwa and propagate it. That faith is awareness. Without that awareness you cannot exist. This is a rose flower (showing a rose flower). You have recognized it as such. But, who gave that name to this flower? You do not know. You simply repeat a name that is given to a flower in the English language. Thus, we go on repeating the words without understanding the underlying Truth. Hence, first and foremost, one has to turn his vision inwards and meditate upon the Atma Tattwa present in him. This Atma Tattwa can be realized only by constant sadhana. It is only after realizing this Atma Tattwa can one enter into any discussion. Also understand the nature of the physical body. The physical body consists of various limbs. In all these limbs, you will find the principle of "I", immanent. That is why, you say that this is my body, my hand, my finger, etc. When you go on enquiring into the nature of the body, you will realize that the same principle of "I" is present in all the limbs. It is very difficult to understand the spiritual concepts. But, you should not give up your sadhana on that score. On the other hand it has to be pursued vigorously. It is futile to run after the worldly objects. If you are able to understand the Atma Tattwa, it amounts to understanding everything else. If you go on enquiring "who am I", you will ultimately realize the Truth that the "I" principle is nothing but the Atma

Tattwa.

Develop firm faith in that Atma Tattwa.

Several people give different names to the principle of Atma Tattwa. But, it has no name and form at all. It is beyond all names and forms. It is transcendental. The power of consciousness immanent in man is not to be found anywhere else. One has to understand and realize this consciousness. This is possible only by constant sadhana and enquiry.

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003)

Embodiments of Love!

You students cannot understand spiritual concepts so easily.

However, if you develop firm faith, you will be able to understand these things easily.

But today people have become blind having lost the eyes of faith.

What is

Prema (Love)? You do not know. What is darkness? Is there anybody today who has seen darkness? Just close your eyes. What do you see? You reply that you are seeing darkness. It means that you are able to see and recognize darkness. Otherwise, how can you say that it is darkness?

Therefore, it is established that there is a basis for everything in this world. In order to realize the Truth, one has to develop faith. You carry on your life's journey with firm faith as your guide. You are going somewhere, unless you know where you are going, how can you reach your destination? Hence, make a firm resolve that you are going to the Mandir. Only then can you reach the Mandir. Similarly, first and foremost, make Atma Tattwa as your goal in life's journey.

Embodiments of Love!

You are not able to understand what real Prema (love) is. You love the physical body and its beauty. You love wealth. You love the external form.

You love one's outward behaviour. Wherefrom do all these things come?

What is the basis for all these aspects? How long will these external forms remain? All of them undergo changes continuously. What is the use of clinging to these changing external forms? You must direct your love to the changeless principle of Atma Tattwa. The Atma Tattwa does not undergo any change, whatsoever. Nothing can be added to it nor deleted from it. Therefore, you must develop firm faith in such a changeless principle. You often say that you love so and so very much. But, what do you know of him? Do you love his physical form? Did you develop liking for his behaviour? Do you love his sweet disposition? What is it that has drawn you to him? In fact, all these factors are only transitory. There is, however, one quality in you that is responsible for all this. That is love.

That love of God. Love is His form.

Hence, you cultivate love for love's sake. There cannot be life without love. A small example to illustrate the point. A mother has a son. He is 20 years old. After sometime, the son died. Then, the mother was wailing over the body of the son "Oh! Son! I was able to live as long as you were alive. How can I live now?" Such type of grief is the result of attachment of the mother developed towards the physical form of the son. It is not true love. What is important is love; but not love for the physical form. It is only those who are able to love for love's sake, can attain real love. Those who love the physical body do so as long as the body is present. Thereafter the love ebbs away. Therefore, love for love's sake. Such love is life. That life is God. That is Atma Tattwa, verily. Atma Tattwa is the only reality.

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003)
142
Embodiments of Love!

You have to seek love through love only. The Gopikas prayed thus: Oh Krishna, play your sweet flute and sow the seeds of love in the desert of loveless hearts. Let the rain of love fall on earth and make the rivers of love flow. (Telugu Song)

The rivers of love must flow continuously. It is enough, if you can understand the one principle of love. This love is everything. Treat this love as the be-all and end-all of your life. Do not direct your love towards material objects. If you continue to love for love's sake, then such a love will be eternal. It is not the body that is to be loved, but the principle of love. All the names and forms are evanescent and impermanent. We should not love such things. Love directed towards such things is physical, whereas love for love's sake is eternal. Consider Truth as Truth. You should not associate Truth with material objects. Similarly, love should not be associated with material objects. Love is simply love. As such, love is God. You must attain Divinity with such love.

Dear students!

You encounter several appointments (expectations) and disappointments in life. When you have an appointment, you will have a disappointment also when it is not fulfilled. Therefore, do not have appointments (desires) at all. Then, there is no scope for disappointment. Do not give importance to the form. In fact, your Atma Tattwa represents your true form. Do not confine Divinity to a particular name and form. The names like Rama, Krishna, Govinda are only names attributed by man to God. They are not innate. Not much of importance can be attached to them. However, one has to take a particular name in the initial stages of his spiritual quest. For instance, it is necessary to acquire different types of education. It is also necessary to realize the essence of all the education. That is, of course, the Truth. But how long? Until you experience that essence. Once you experience the essence of knowledge, even that vanishes. Hence, do not depend upon the name and form. Truth is Truth. That is the only Truth. It has no form. Love is God. Love has no form. Cultivate such Divine Love. God exists. There can be no doubt about it. If God does not exist, there is no scope for nature to exist. From an experience of Prakruthi (Nature) emerges apprehension of Paramathma (the supreme self). From Paramathma, the realization of Paratattwa (Supreme Reality) springs. That Paratattwa is Atma Tattwa. Therefore, always love that Paratattwa. Do not confine your love to the particular, which is always susceptible to change. Time permitting, I will delineate on this Prema Tattwa (Principle of Love) in greater detail. When students are able to understand the nature of this divine love, there can be no scope for disappointment. They are always engrossed in appointment and disappointment. Love has only a name, but no form. You can direct that love towards any form.

143
Embodiments of Love!

God can be attained only through one route. That is Love. That is Truth.

Do not confine the principle "I" to a particular form. A small example. Janakiramaiah (younger brother of Swami's physical body) died recently.

There are several people who loved him. They have been making obituary references everyday in the newspapers, saying "Janakiramaiah! You have left your mortal coil, leaving us alone. You please take birth again, so that we can love you again". Is it necessary for Janakiramaiah to take birth once again in order that these people may love him? Is that what these people wish for? Should we confine our entire life to birth and death only?

In fact, both birth and death are unreal. Where there is birth, there is death surely. The twin stages of life, i.e., birth and death are only for the body, not for the Atma. We have to direct our love towards the Eternal

Atma Tattwa, not the body which is subject to birth and death. I often address you as "Bangaru!" What is the underlying meaning in addressing you in that manner? Gold as a metal does not perish. Its shape changes when it is melted and made into different types of ornaments. You, as gold may take different forms, but your Atma Tattwa does not undergo any change. You have to strive to attain the changeless principle of Atma Tattwa, but not the changing forms. I address you as "Bangaru", reminding you of your real nature, i.e., the changeless Atma Tattwa.

Gold is always gold. It is Truth. It is eternal. You have to always crave for attaining such an eternal reality. Keeping this aspect in view only, Adi Shankara in his famous "Bhaja Govindam" sang thus:

Punarapi Jananam Punarapi Maranam
Punarapi Janani Jathare Sayanam
Iha Samsare Bahu Dustare
Kripayapare Pahi Murare.
(Oh Lord! I am caught up in this cycle of birth and death; time and again, I am experiencing the agony of staying in the mother's womb. It is very difficult to cross this ocean of worldly life. Please take me across this ocean and grant me liberation.)

We have to crave for that principle which has no birth and death.

Why should we wish to be born again?
 Embodiments of Love!

There is Divine Love in you which has neither birth nor death. You direct your love towards that Divine Love. That love is always with you. If you cultivate such love, you will always remain as embodiments of love.

Have firm faith in this Divine Love. Do not believe the worldly love, lest you should be deceived. The worldly love is like passing clouds. Such clouds come and go. They are not permanent. Love the eternal love. That is the Atma Tattwa. Love that Atma Tattwa. People who wish to enter the spiritual field and to know the path that leads to Divinity, please come to Me. I will explain. Do not be deceived by worldly love that causes only disappointment. Cultivate such type of love that will not cause disappointment. Pursue any type of education; but, understand the inner meaning of education. Then put it into practice, experience and enjoy that essence of that education. Do not be disappointed by directing your love towards all and sundry. Several students are being disappointed in that manner. In the end, they are unable to love anybody. That is not the right way. Love the principle of Love itself, which is Divine and Eternal. The more you love that Divine Love, the more it grows.

Embodiments of Love!
 I always address you as "Embodiments of Love!" Cultivate such type of love only. When you cultivate such love, it will, in turn, protect you. That is what is meant by the saying, "with you, in you and around you".

This land of Bharat is the motherland for great people, who acquired name and fame in different continents. This land of Bharat is the battlefield where the warriors of the foreign country were driven out and freedom from foreign rule acquired. This land of Bharat has acquired great name and fame for erudite scholarship. This land of Bharat is a divine land which has produced great intellectuals in the fields of music, art, literature and various sciences. Having been born in such a great land of Bharat, Oh students! The responsibility to protect the wealth of righteousness of this country is yours.
 (Telugu Poem)
 Embodiments of Love!

Bharat has earned great reputation in all fields of human endeavour, be it physical, spiritual, moral and ethical. It is a matter of great pride to declare "I am a Bharatiya". Having been born in this sacred land of Bharat and having enjoyed its wealth, water and food, it is unfortunate that some people feel ashamed to identify themselves as Bharatiyas. Many people born in this sacred land have earned good reputation. But unfortunately, Bharatiyas instead of marching ahead with courage and determination are falling back. Truly speaking, to earn the epithet of Bharatiya is in itself a great honour. Having earned such appellation, the citizens of this country should become role models for the rest of the world. The culture of Bharat is renowned worldwide for its sacredness. It has demonstrated great ideals in moral, ethical and spiritual fields. Having taken birth in such a sacred land, how noble a Bharatiya should be! You should uphold the prestige and honour of this country. Embodiments of Love!

The sacred culture of Bharat should be practised and propagated in every nook and corner of the country. It should be passed on to generation after generation. But alas! many Bharatiyas are migrating to foreign lands forgetting their own motherland. To forget ones motherland amounts to ingratitude. Every son of Bharat should live true to his name and bring glory to the motherland. But instead some are bringing bad name to the country. Bharat is a sacred land, its glory keeps increasing day by day. You need not make any special effort to bring good name to the country; it is enough if you lead your life in an ideal manner like a true Bharatiya. Embodiments of Love!

Bharat is the crest jewel among all nations. It rests on the strong foundation of love. It has demonstrated ideals in all fields of life. One who forgets such a sacred land will certainly be put to disrepute. Wherever you go, you should feel proud to proclaim that you are a Bharatiya. People with such patriotism and nationalism are very rare these days. Instead of bringing glory to the motherland, people are going abroad to meet their selfish ends. Having gone there, they forget the motherland and spend their time and energy for the progress of that country. You can very well imagine the fate of a person who forgets his mother. Mother and the motherland are to be revered by one and all. Bharat is the land of the Vedas. The glory of Bharatiya culture cannot be described in words. You should make effort to uphold this sacred culture and earn a good name for yourself. You should strain every sinew and discharge your duties to perfection. But Bharatiyas who are supposed to demonstrate idealism to others are failing in this regard. Since ancient times, Bharat has demonstrated idealism to all nations. The name and fame that Bharat has acquired is unmatched. Bharat is the centre of righteousness. It lays great emphasis on the practise of truth and righteousness. Sathyam Vada, Dharmam Chara (speak truth, practise righteousness). But today people have lost regard for truth and righteousness. Dharayati iti Dharma (that which supports is Dharma). The code of conduct as prescribed by the culture of Bharat is most ideal and should be practised by one and all. Embodiments of Love!

Ancient Bharatiyas never craved for name and fame. They attained glory on account of their nobility. The culture of Bharat has laid great emphasis on the spirit of sacrifice. Our ancients placed national interest above selfinterest. They had no trace of selfishness in them. That is why their glory has not diminished a bit with the passage of time. They took refuge in righteousness. They considered truth as their life-breath. But today are we making any efforts to uphold the pristine glory of Bharat? Days are rolling by but Bharatiyas are not striving for the uplift of the nation, instead they are forgetting their own culture. He is a true Bharatiya who is prepared to sacrifice even his life for the sake of Dharma. This land of Bharat is the motherland for great people, who acquired name and fame in different continents. Bharat Matha (mother India) was adorned with the garland of righteous people. But such garland has faded today. But the culture of Bharat will never fade with the passage of time. It is eternal and immortal. Ancient Bharatiyas adhered to Sathya and Dharma even in small matters. Sathya and Dharma were their guiding principles. That is why their lives continue to inspire people even after many aeons and generations. But today Bharatiyas are after money.

How

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003)
147

long will the money last. Money comes and goes, morality comes and grows. You can be called a Bharatiya only when you develop morality.

Students - Boys and Girls!

Remember always that your education is not merely to amass wealth or to eke out a livelihood. Money cannot confer true happiness on you.

Do not deviate from Dharma for the sake of Dhana (money). Dharma is our life, truth is our breath. Good reputation is our wealth. You should not crave for worldly name and fame. Once you practise Dharma, you will naturally attain good reputation. Dharma is related to the heart.

Practise

of Dharma is termed as Ritam which will make you immortal. But today we do not find anybody adhering to Ritam. Bharat has given birth to many great scholars, poets and men of sacrifice who demonstrated great ideals. But today people have forgotten them. We should always remember people who have sacrificed their life for a noble cause and try to emulate them. It is the spirit of sacrifice that has protected and sustained this country for many ages and generations. Sacrifice is the Dharma of Bharatiyas. You should offer your lives for the protection of Dharma and not for amassing wealth.

Embodiments of Love!

Love is the eternal principle that is present in all. There is no human being without love. But he is using his love for selfish purposes. You should eschew selfishness and self-interest and develop spirit of sacrifice with courage and conviction. How can you become courageous? It is possible only when you practise Dharma. Bharat has given birth to many noble persons who sacrificed their lives for the cause of Dharma. Endaro Mahanubhavulu, Andariki Vandanamulu (there are many great souls; I prostrate before all of them). They never craved for name and fame.

They

led a life of Thyaga (sacrifice). Thyaga is true Yoga. You should practise this Yoga and become deserving of Divine grace. Your studies are not meant for the acquisition of money but for understanding the nature of mind. Today wherever you see, money is given prime importance.

Even

the field of music has become money-centred. Music can captivate the heart. It is divine. M.S. Subbulakshmi has earned great reputation with her melodious singing. She never craved for money. She dedicated her music to uphold the glory of Bharat. Everyone should strive for the honour of the country. No doubt man has acquired expertise in the fields of music, literature and fine arts, but he is using his skill to earn money.

He has become business-minded. Any activity done with a business mind cannot please the heart. You should conduct self-enquiry and develop spirit of sacrifice. Only then can there be a transformation of heart. Where there is self-confidence, there is self-satisfaction. Where there is self-satisfaction, there is self-sacrifice. And, through self-sacrifice comes self-realisation.

So long as you do not give up selfishness, you cannot achieve anything worthwhile in life. Fish is better than selfish. You should cast aside selfishness and cultivate selflessness.

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003)
148

Embodiments of Love!

You are acquiring various types of education. In spite of his education and intelligence, a foolish man will not know his true Self and a mean-minded person will not give up his evil qualities. Modern education leads only to argumentation, not to total wisdom. What is the use of acquiring worldly education if it cannot lead you to immortality? Acquire the knowledge that will make you immortal.

(Telugu Poem)

You should acquire the knowledge of the Self. Consider it as your very life. Knowledge is your true energy. But man is ruining his energy because of his selfishness and self-interest. You should sacrifice your selfinterest.

Only then can you be truly called the children of Bharat.

Students - Boys and Girls!

Give up selfishness. Develop the spirit of sacrifice. Be prepared to sacrifice your life for the sake of Sathya and Dharma. Today people are afraid to follow the path of truth. Why should one be afraid to speak truth? In fact, one should be afraid to utter falsehood. One who adheres to truth is always fearless. When you do not follow the path of truth, the fire of fear will burn you to ashes.

Embodiments of Love!

Consider love as your life and truth as your breath. There is an intimate and inseparable relationship between love and truth. Today man uses the word love without actually knowing its meaning. As he does not know the value and meaning of love, he is utilising it for trivial and mundane purposes. He is under the mistaken notion that worldly and physical attachment is love and considers such love as his life. True love will reign supreme only when he gets rid of selfishness and develops spirit of sacrifice. Love is God, God is love. But you are craving for worldly love which is bereft of life. You should aspire for divine love which is your very life.

Today there are many who are highly educated. But what is the help they are rendering to society? Practically nothing. They are acquiring degrees for the sake of earning money. They do not serve society with the spirit of love and sacrifice. Love is the very form of Brahman. True spiritual discipline lies in connecting your love with divine love. Your life will be sanctified when you have steady and selfless love.

Embodiments of Love!

Modern students are taking to wrong path in the name of love. They do not understand what true love is. Love is the gift of God to every man. It should be utilised for the service of society. Unity is very essential for the progress of community. Man should share his love with others. Only then will he have the right to be a part of society.

149

Embodiments of Love!

Love is a small word, but it is pregnant with profound meaning. But people use it in the worldly sense, "I love you, I love you " You should be prepared to sacrifice for others all that is dear to you. That is true love.

Love is God, live in love. Only then will you be able to understand the true nature of love. Do not misinterpret love in the worldly sense. Do not equate love to physical relationship. You should be prepared to give up your love for love. But today nobody is prepared to sacrifice their life for love. People are ready to take others' life to meet their selfish ends.

Students!

You might have acquired high educational qualifications. But all these will prove futile if you do not earn Divine love. Only God's love is true and eternal. Worldly love is transient. It attracts you for a moment like a twinkling star. Acquire divine love which is the fundamental principle of your life. Be prepared to offer your life for the sake of Divine love.

Students!

All of you should live like brothers and sisters. All are the children of God.

When you realise this truth, you will experience true love. You are born to different parents but the life principle in each of you is one and the same.

Consider love as your life. Only then the education you acquire will be meaningful. If you forget love, your life becomes meaningless. Live for the sake of love. Share your love with your fellowmen and become recipients of Divine love. What you have to share with others is not worldly love. True love is related to the heart. People talk of Divine love but get intoxicated by drinking the deep wine of worldly love. Love everybody without a trace of selfishness. That is Divine love. Only when you develop such love can you attain the ultimate merger with the Divine.

Pray to God for His love. Lead your lives spreading the message of love.

Love is the goal of your life. Once you become the recipient of God's love, you will be loved by the whole world. Such is the power of God's love. It is totally selfless and sacred. Hence, always pray for His love.

Embodiments of Love!

I am prepared to do anything, even sacrifice My life for your welfare. I expect from you only one thing - Love God, Live in God. Only then can you be called a true student. If you crave for worldly love, you will become a stupid. Heart-to-heart, love to love - This is the type of relationship you should develop. Do not crave for money. It comes and goes. Share your love with everyone wholeheartedly. Bereft of love, heart becomes dry. Fill it with love and keep it always pure and fresh. Love is not related to materials. It is related to the heart.

Students!

What is Vidya (education)? It is not study of matter. True education is the experience of effulgent love. Any number of electric bulbs cannot match the effulgence of love. Hence, develop love Bangaru! Only then will your education be fruitful. Knowledge is God's gift. It should not be offered to others; it should be offered only to God.

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003)

150

Embodiments of Love!

Love is your life. Love is your goal. The Bhagavadgita also lays great emphasis on the principle of love. Having studied here for a long time, you should fill your life with love. You have immense love for Me. It cannot be described in words. Love others as you love Swami. Give your love. Take My love in turn. There is no trace of body attachment

in

Me. Doctors said they would perform hip surgery on Me. I told "You can do whatever you want. I am not the body. This body is yours." Your love

becomes worldly in nature when you have body consciousness. You should develop such love which transcends body consciousness. Only

then

can you understand the eternal truth. When you truly experience

Divine

love, you will not lead a worldly life. You will make your love flow incessantly towards God.

Bereft of truth, righteousness, love and peace, the value of all your education is zero,

Bereft of truth, righteousness, love and peace, the result of all your good deeds is zero,

Bereft of truth, righteousness, love and peace, the utility of all holding positions of authority is zero,

Bereft of truth, righteousness, love and peace, the sanctity of all your acts of charity is zero,

These four qualities are the four pillars that support the mansion of Sanathana Dharma.

(Telugu Poem)

Embodiments of Love!

The mansion of human life rests on the four pillars of truth, righteousness, love and peace. The safety and security of life depend

on these four values. Since ancient times, the culture of Bharat has been able to sustain itself as it is built on the bedrock of these values. Our ancestors led their lives strictly adhering to these eternal values.

Bereft of these values, the mansion of life will collapse in a moment. Humanity continues to exist till this day only due to the fact that he/she is practising these four values at least to a certain extent.

The individual child's life is greatly influenced by the qualities of the parents. The loving care of Iijabai made Shivaji a great warrior.

Rama's

divinity blossomed because of the noble qualities of His mother

Kausalya.

The twins Lava and Kusha could become powerful and famous due to their noble and virtuous mother Sita. The same can be said of our ancient sages and seers. They could sanctify their lives because of the noble influence of their parents. Today, people neglect their parents as they fail to recognise the impact and influence they bear on their lives. They forget the fact that they could attain exalted position in life only because of their parents. Gandhi became a Mahatma because of his pious mother

Putlibai.

She used to observe a strict vow wherein she would wait for the cooing of the cuckoo before partaking of her food. However, on one day, she had to wait for a long time for the call of the cuckoo without taking food. The young Gandhi could not bear to see his mother fasting for such a long time. Hence, he went out of the house and imitated the cooing of the cuckoo. Then he came inside and told, "Mother, now that the cuckoo

has made its call, please take your food." She at once recognised that her son was telling a lie. Unable to contain her grief, she slapped Gandhi on his cheeks and said, "What sin have I committed that such a liar should be

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003)

152 born to me!" She was shedding tears as she spoke. Gandhi repented and prayed for her forgiveness. He took a pledge that he would never utter a lie thenceforth. In this manner, our ancients developed virtues and attained exalted position only because of their mothers. Today, the country is facing hardship as people have no regard for truth and are indulging in falsehood in their thoughts, words and deeds. The welfare of a nation depends on the teaching that the mother imparts to her children.

When parents tread the path of truth, the children would naturally emulate them.

In olden days, it was a common practice among the women of Bharat to perform the sacred ritual of Sathyanarayana Vratam, on every full moon day. Likewise, mother Easwaramma used to perform Sathyanarayana Vratam every full moon day in the company of Karanam Subbamma, who was her neighbour. Karanam Subbamma would often tell Easwaramma, "You are performing Sathyanarayana Vratam. With His blessings, you will bear a son. I want you to name him Sathyanarayana." On a particular full moon day, Easwaramma did not have food till very late in the afternoon as she was participating in the Sathyanarayana Vratam being performed in Subbamma's house. The family members including her husband Pedda Venkama Raju were very much upset to see her remain without food for such a long time. Pedda Venkama Raju argued that there was no need to observe such severe austerities. But Easwaramma was determined. She told them not to wait for her saying, "I am not at all hungry. Sathyanarayana Vratam is more important for me than food." After the ritual was completed, Subbamma brought Prasadam (blessed food) for Easwaramma. Only after partaking of the Prasadam did Easwaramma have her food that day. Women in those days used to perform such rituals with all sincerity and devotion. It was only after partaking of Prasadam could Easwaramma conceive. Yad Bhavam Tad Bhavati (as is the feeling, so is the result). Some people have faith in scriptural injunctions and adhere to them with earnestness, whereas some others ignore them. Easwaramma was the one who followed the injunctions strictly. Only after performing the Vratam and partaking of the Prasadam, would she commence her household chores. She was unlettered. But she had unflinching faith in God. During the seventh month of her pregnancy, one day Subbamma told her, "Easwaramma, the child in your womb is safe only due to the grace of Lord Sathyanarayana." She extracted a promise from her that the child would be named Sathyanarayana. The mother of Pedda

Venkama Raju was also a great devotee of the Lord. She too was of the opinion that the child should be named after Lord Sathyanarayana. Prior to the birth of the child, a very significant incident took place. Puttaparthi, was then a tiny hamlet. In the centre there was a well from which people would draw water. One day Easwaramma was fetching water from the well. All of a sudden she saw a white luminous light, emerging like lightning from the sky, entering her womb. There was a sudden gust of wind. Subbamma who came out of her house at that time Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003) 153 saw the light entering the womb of Easwaramma. Till this day, I have not revealed this to anyone. I am disclosing this today so that you may understand the significance associated with the advent of the Avatar. A day prior to this, as Pedda Venkama Raju was passing in front of Subbamma's house, she called him inside and told him, "Venkama Raju, tomorrow when the child is born, name him as Sathyanarayana." But he brushed her advice aside saying, it was her foolish imagination. At 3 o'clock in the morning, at an auspicious moment, the child was born. It is natural for any child to cry when it is born. But this child did not cry at all. The midwife and the people in the household were anxious that the child might be stillborn. Easwaramma too was very much worried. Without anybody noticing her, she pinched the child to make it cry. On the contrary, to her utter surprise, the baby started smiling. Everyone was mystified to see the newborn babe smiling. Just then Subbamma entered the house and said, "Easwaramma, I heard that you have given birth to a male child at an auspicious moment. Can I have a glimpse of the child?" Easwaramma wrapped the child in a cloth and placed him in front of Subbamma. Subbamma was an orthodox Brahmin lady. In those days, orthodox Brahmins would maintain distance from others. If they happened to touch them inadvertently, they would at once have a bath. That was the reason, why Easwaramma kept the baby at a distance from Subbamma. Watching this, the mother-in-law said, "Easwaramma, she has come here with a lot of love and concern to see the child. Why don't you let Subbamma hold the child in her arms? Why do you keep him at a distance?" Easwaramma said, "Oh mother! Subbamma is a very pious and orthodox brahmin lady. She may not like to touch the newborn baby. Hence, we should maintain distance from her." In fact, Subbamma herself had no such discriminatory feelings. Mother Easwaramma looked after her child with love and care. Days rolled by and the child grew into a boy. He was mithabhashi and mithaahari (one who spoke less and ate less). Easwaramma was mystified by the strange behaviour of her son. Usually children are fond of eating. Especially some people would prefer non-vegetarian items like fish or meat. But her son was totally averse to non-vegetarian food. He would not even visit the houses where non-vegetarian food was cooked. Seeing his noble qualities, Easwaramma realised that the child was not an ordinary one, but one of divine nature. Her eldest daughter Venkamma also recognised the divine nature of the child. Together, they brought up the child with love and care. They would sing devotional songs as lullabies. The child was brought up in such a noble environment. As there was no proper school in Puttaparthi, Seshama Raju, the elder brother of this body, took Me to Uravakonda and admitted Me in a school. The then Municipal Chairman of Bellary, Rama Raju was a friend of Seshama Raju. He took us to the Virupaksha temple in Hampi during holidays. I was reluctant to enter the temple. Hence, Seshama Raju instructed Me to keep a watch over their belongings as they went inside to have Darshan of the deity. I readily agreed and remained outside. The Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003) 154 priest was giving arati to the deity. To their utter astonishment, they found Me standing inside the sanctum sanctorum in place of Lord Virupaksha. Seshama Raju could not believe his eyes. In fact, he was very angry thinking that I was transgressing My limits. He thought it was improper on My part to have entered the sanctum sanctorum. He at once came out of the temple only to find Me there! He again went inside and found Me there also! Still he was having doubts. He told his wife, "You go outside and keep a watch over Sathya. Do not allow Him to go anywhere. Meanwhile, I will go inside and see whether He is still there." She did accordingly. He again saw a smiling Sathya standing in the sanctum sanctorum. He wondered whether it was a dream, hallucination or reality. At that time, his friend Rama Raju noticed a brilliant aura around My face. He revealed this only to his wife and not to anybody else including Seshama Raju. In fact, Seshama Raju was full of doubts. The vacation was over and we were returning to Uravakonda. Rama Raju brought a pair of knickers and a shirt for Me as parting gift. But I refused to accept them. In those days, wearing a collar pin was considered a fashion. Hence, Rama Raju presented a gold collar pin to Me with the prayer that I should remember him always. Wearing a collar pin was very common among the children hailing from rich families. The collar pin dropped on the way while I was proceeding to the school in Uravakonda. It could not be traced. I at once discarded the books and returned home. I declared: Know that I am Sai in reality, Cast off your worldly relationships, Give up your efforts to restrain Me, The worldly attachments can no longer bind Me, None, however great he may be, can deter Me. (Telugu Poem) Seshama Raju was not at home when I sang this poem. Later on when his wife told him about it, he laughed and brushed it aside saying, I would have got it composed by somebody. Being a poet himself, he thought it was impossible for a young boy like Me to compose such excellent poetry. Excise Inspector Hanumantha Rao had great love for Me. Even his children were highly devoted to Me. When Hanumantha Rao came to know about the happenings, he at once came in his car and took Me to his house. He went on questioning, "My dear, did Your brother or sister-inlaw scold You or did they beat You? Why have You decided to leave the house?" I sang a song: The link with the world had gone in the form of the pin; the pilgrimage to Hampi also served its purpose. Baba left home saying that Maya could not bind Him any longer. (Telugu Song) Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003) 155

I said, "The worldly attachment is like a small pin which I gave up. Hence, I have left the house. I will no longer stay there." I did not even enter the house of Hanumantha Rao. There was a big rock in front of the house. I sat there and did not speak to anybody. Everyone was stupefied beyond words to see the change that had taken place in Me. In the evening, Seshama Raju who was on his way back home from school, tried to take Me with him. But I was firm in My decision not to go home. Then Hanumantha Rao persuaded him saying, "Do not compel Sathya to go with you. Let him remain here for some time. I will bring him to you myself afterwards." I remained there for some time. Many people came to Me and put all sorts of questions like "Are You a ghost or a demon? Who are You?" I told them, I am neither a ghost nor a demon. "Know that I am Sai Baba in reality." They asked Me, "How are we to believe that you are Sai Baba?" Can you prove Your claim?" In fact, in those days nobody in Anantapur District had even heard the name of Sai Baba. I took some flowers in My hand and threw them on the floor. As people were watching wonderstruck, the flowers arranged themselves as the letters Sai Baba in Telugu. Somebody brought a camera and took a photograph of Me sitting on the rock. There was a small stone in front of Me which appeared like Shirdi Sai Baba in the photograph. Many copies were made of the photograph and distributed to all. The same rock on which I sat that day remains there even today. At the same place, the Andhra State President of Sri Sathya Sai Organisations, Anjanaiah has built a beautiful Mandir with a spacious hall. Gradually My fame spread far and wide. People from various villages and cities started to flock around Me. People possessed by evil spirits were brought to Me in bullock-carts. They believed that I could drive away the evil spirits. People who were mentally retarded were also brought to Me. True to their faith, the evil spirits were driven away and the patients were cured of their mental ailments. Then they started believing in My Divinity.

As people were coming in large numbers, it was not possible for Seshama Raju to keep Me with him. Hence, he wrote a letter to Pedda Venkama Raju to come and take Me away to Puttaparthi. In those days, Puttaparthi was such a remote village that it would take several days for letters to reach. However, Pedda Venkama Raju received the letter in Bukkapatnam where he had gone to make purchases in the market. The letter said, "Father, it is not possible for us to keep Sathya with us any longer. Please come and take him home at once." Pedda Venkama Raju came to Uravakonda from Bukkapatnam straightaway. He did not have sufficient money in his pocket. He took the bus fare from Seshama Raju and brought Me to Bukkapatnam by bus. From there, we had to walk all the way to Puttaparthi, as there was no transport facility. In fact, the name of Puttaparthi was hardly known beyond the closest localities. When we reached Puttaparthi, Kondama Raju (grandfather of this body) Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003) 156 was at home. He was very austere and God-minded. He told Venkama Raju, "Venkappa, let Him do whatever He wants, do not raise any objection. He is immersed in divine consciousness. Let him stay with me for some time." He kept Me with him and looked after Me with great love and care. The four brothers - Pedda Venkama Raju, Chinna Venkama Raju, Venkatarama Raju and Venkata Subba Raju decided to live separately. Kondama Raju divided the property equally among them. Pedda Venkama Raju then asked, "Father, whom are you going to stay with?" "Kondama Raju replied, "I will not stay with anyone. I do not want any property for myself. Give me Sathya. That is enough. He will look after me." In those days, nobody used to call Me by the full name Sathyanarayana. Everyone used to address Me as 'Sathya'. From then onwards, I stayed with Kondama Raju and served him. Everyday morning and evening, Venkamma used to come to Me. Sometimes she would ask, "Sathya, do you get dreams? Does anyone appear before You and talk to You?" However, I would not say anything to her. She had immense faith in Baba. One day, she prayed, "Sathya, please give me a photograph of

Sai

Baba." I at once materialised a photograph of Sai Baba and gave her.

She

kept the photograph with her till her last breath.

One day Kondama Raju called Venkamma and told her, "Our people are living in ignorance, they are unable to recognise the Divine nature of Sathya. He is verily God Himself. He is never hungry, never thirsty. He has transcended hunger and sleep."

Namagiriamma was the actual name of Easwaramma, given by her parents. As Kondama Raju recognised My Divinity, he told his son,

Pedda

Venkama Raju, to change her name to Easwaramma as he was very well aware that she was the mother of Easwara Himself.

In the middle of the night, Kondama Raju would quietly place his hand near My nostrils, just to see whether I was breathing or not.

Sometimes,

he would not notice any breathing process taking place. He would only hear the sound Soham coming from Me. People started pouring into Kondama Raju's house to see Me. If anyone questioned them, they would reply, "The grandson of Kondama Raju is one of divine powers. He appears in our dreams and solves our problems."

Once, Seshama Raju came to Puttaparthi during holidays. He did not like so many people visiting the house of Kondama Raju. At that time, he was thoroughly sceptical. He argued with Kondama Raju and told him not to allow anybody to come to his house. In those days, the educated were highly respected in the villages. Seshama Raju had just completed teachers' training. Hence, people in the village considered him to be highly educated. He told Kondama Raju, "Grandfather, do not allow anybody to come near this boy. He does not have any divine power.

He is suffering from hysteria." In this manner, he spoke derisively about

Me.

157

There used to be an exorcist in Kadiri who was considered to be an expert in driving away from people the evil spirits that had taken possession of them. I was put in a cart for transporting Me to Kadiri and accompanied Me. At no time would she be parted from Me. This so-called exorcist of Kadiri was a thorough drunkard. He asserted that I was possessed by some powerful spirit and boasted that he would rid Me of the evil and belaboured Me with canes, sticks, whips and the like. He even went to the extent of pouring some highly corrosive liquids into My eyes expecting to drive away the spirit in this manner. I submitted Myself to all this torture without demur. In the evening when I got free, I approached

Venkamma

Venkamma and asked her to put a little fluid of cow dung dissolved in water. With this treatment overnight, My eyes became clear again. So, for every maltreatment of this kind, I used to go to Venkamma and got the situation remedied. Finally, he had My head shaved and scratched deeply with a sharp knife. The scalp became bloody with severe wounds.

Seating

Me, water was poured from a height of 10 feet above; it was a terribly painful operation. After this treatment failed, he started rubbing lemon juice into the wounds. Venkamma could not bear the sight of this torture.

Quietly, she called the cartman and in the darkness of night, she took Me back home to Puttaparthi.

Steadily the fame of Sai's greatness was spreading far and wide.

There

was such a rush of people that there was hardly any space for people to stay in the house. Then Pedda Venkama Raju told the people to come to the house only on Thursdays every week. But people protested saying that they could not bear their sufferings till Thursday. Then called Venkappa and told him that as it was not practical to accommodate the surging crowds in his house, she would take Me to her house and meet all My needs and also of the visitors. As Subbamma was a and Swami belonged to the Raju caste, the Brahmins of Puttaparthi took objection to Subbamma's proposal and decided to boycott

Subbamma

Brahmin

Subbamma.

She however said that as she was childless and had no inclination to go about visiting anybody, she was not worried by the proposed boycott.

"I shall never forsake Sathya", she said. In the village, there were a few Harijan residences.

These Harijans were highly devoted to Swami. I used to visit their houses.

Even Subbamma accompanied Me to those places. She would not bear to be separated from Me even for a moment. She was looking after Me as her own son. All the Brahmins of the village were completely

inimical to Subbamma and even her own mother and brother turned against her. In the path of Divinity incarnate such impediments do arise and she was quite aware of the situation. She declared that she was unconcerned about the enmity of anybody. She was quite firm in her resolve to hold on to Me. Soon, even her house started overflowing with the throng of visitors. So, once Venkappa approached Subbamma and said, "Why should you undergo this kind of ordeals on account of my son? Let us put

Him in a separate house." Then Subbamma gave some land between

the

Sathyabhama and Venugopala Swami temples. A small room was constructed there. They used to lock Me up in the room, but, in spite

of

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003)

158

the locked closed room, I used to get out and sit on the top of the hill.

These kinds of wonders were of daily occurrence.

Meanwhile, those who were opposed to Subbamma on caste grounds decided to get rid of Swami by poison. I was very fond of vadas delicacy) in those days. So, these people made some vadas and mixed some virulent poison in some of them. Subbamma was warning Me

(Indian

all the time against visiting those houses. But, I used to go to all places

despite her objection. On this occasion, I visited this house and picked up the specific vadas that had been poisoned and ate them. The sequel to this

attempt is already known.

Another attempt of this kind was when some of them set fire to My improvised house. The house had a thatched roof. Some miscreants set fire to the house. As the fire was raging, people were worried as to what would have happened to Me inside. Suddenly, there was a cloudburst which poured down just above the house and put out the fire. There was however, not a drop of rain anywhere else. Venkamma, Subbamma

and

Easwaramma came there weeping. The roof was fully burnt and only

the walls were standing. They peeped over the wall and found Me sleeping

peacefully. I was totally unharmed. Then Subbamma had the lock broken open and took Me away to her house. After several such trials and tests, people developed greater faith in Sai Baba.

In Penukonda, another person started claiming miraculous powers, saying that he was a devotee of Sai Baba. Several others started imitating My dress and manners, started going about trying to collect a following at different places. Merely assuming My name and manners, one cannot have a following indefinitely. People realised the truth very soon.

After this, My sojourn to Bangalore began. Easwaramma and entreated that I should not forsake Puttaparthi. I promised them that I would never abandon Puttaparthi. Various royalties including the Maharani of Mysore used to visit Puttaparthi. Those days

Venkamma

Chitravathi was flowing most of the time. They used to cross the river by putting planks and driving the cars over such improvised causeways. As, such following by the high and low of the land increased, all opportunities for creating obstacles by the local opponents vanished.

All great men have been moulded by their mothers. It is the high moral character and behaviour of the mothers that would result in the greatness of their progeny. It is the virtues of Kausalya that resulted in the greatness of Rama. Similarly, Sita brought up Lava and Kusa to be great.

In this manner, virtuous mothers were responsible for ideal children. After

I had promised Easwaramma, I never abandoned Puttaparthi. The whole world may flock here but I shall not leave Puttaparthi. Generally, the Avatars adhere to their place of birth. If you uproot a plant from here

and plant it elsewhere, how long will it survive? A tree should grow where the seed sprouted. In this manner only, Sathya Sai Baba has retained his roots in Puttaparthi and has made Puttaparthi a place of pilgrimage.

When

159

the High School at Bukkapatnam was established, they requested Me for a prayer song and I composed a suitable verse emphasising the unity

in diversity of the people of Bharat.

The power of motherhood is indescribable. It is the righteous observances and strict adherence to moral values of the mothers that manifest in their children. They (mothers) may be unlettered. Their greatness does not depend on literacy or book learning. It is the unlettered

Easwaramma's

virtues that have brought about this greatness of the name and fame of Puttaparthi. It is a matter of regret that Easwaramma is forgotten, while her son is extolled. Without Easwaramma, how could there be such a phenomenal Power? Never neglect your parents.

What is the origin of the name of this village Puttaparthi? There is a strange story associated with it. Near the temple of Venugopala

Swami,

there used to be an anthill in which there was a snake. Everyday the cowherds would take their cows for grazing to the outskirts of the village.

One of the cows would go to the anthill and the snake would drink milk from its udder. Everyday the cow would return home with its udder empty. The cowherds found out the reason behind this and planned to kill the snake. One day as the snake was drinking milk from the cow, they hit it with a boulder. The snake got enraged and pronounced a curse on them, saying, the cowherds and their cows would no longer be able to live in the village. That is why, the cowherds left Puttaparthi village and built their houses near Gokulam. Even today you can see it for yourselves. The boulder with which the cowherds tried to kill the snake is now being worshipped as Venugopala Swami idol.

Today I narrated at length all this in order to make you aware of the significance of the names Sai Baba and Puttaparthi. Puttaparthi has

a great history behind it. Many eminent people visited this place. Many people of affluence lived here and brought great name and fame to

this village. In those days, the Mysore Maharaja and his mother used to come here quite frequently. Many such eminent personalities recognised the greatness of Puttaparthi and revered it.

The Lord of Puttaparthi will protect you always,

He is the embodiment of compassion,

He will hold your hand and take you across the ocean of life,

He will never forsake you under any circumstances.

(Telugu Poem)

Embodiments of Love!

You are really fortunate, having done great merit, for you are able to enjoy the Divine proximity of Sai. It is your great good fortune that you are able to sing with Swami and play with Him. You are with Sai and Sai is with you. That is why I often say, "I and you are one." The power and glory of God is beyond the ken of human understanding. Develop unwavering faith in him.

Students!

Having come to Puttaparthi and studied here, you should make every effort to uphold the prestige of Puttaparthi. I want to bring to your notice one important thing. Usually students like to spend their vacations at their respective homes. But here the students do not like to go home even after the vacation starts. Only very few of them go home. Most of them

like to stay back even after completing their post graduation. What is the reason for this? Here is the greatest Divine magnet. God attracts one and all. His power is beyond all estimation. In the years to come, you will experience the power of this magnet more and more.

(Bhagavan sang the Bhajan, "Hari Bhajan Bina" and continued the Discourse.)

(Pointing to Dr. Anjanaiah, Swami said) He has constructed a

Mandir in Uravakonda. The Mandir enshrines the rock on which I sat when I gave the first teaching to mankind. He completed his M.Sc. Ph.D. and was doing a job. Later on, he resigned and dedicated himself to the service

of

Swami. At present, he is the State President of Sri Sathya Sai Seva Organisations, Andhra Pradesh. (Pointing to an elderly devotee) He is the father-in-law of Dr. Anjanaiah. He also stays in Uravakonda. He has kept aside 100 acres of land for Swami. He is growing various types of fruits there and sending them to Puttaparthi. At present he has completed 100 years of his life. I want to tell you another important thing. Here, in Prasanthi Nilayam, all the devotees who dedicate their lives to for full 100 years. Kasturi came here and lived a full life.

Swami live

Similar was the case with Pujari Kistappa. All of you might have heard of Kamavadhani. He was a great Vedic scholar. He came and stayed here for 30 years. Never did he leave Puttaparthi. One day after performing Rama

Kalyanam, here in the Mandir, he told Me, "Swami, I am going to My room. I will have a sacred bath and come back." I told him, "You don't need to come back. After bath, have your food and sleep peacefully."

He

went home and had a bath. As instructed by Swami, he had his food and rested. He died peacefully in his sleep. The name of Sai was always in his mind. He never had any illness. There was another devotee by name Soorayya. He was a bachelor. He had no desires. Prior to coming here, he was working for Venkatagiri Raja. One day he expressed his desire to the Raja that he wanted to go to Puttaparthi. The Raja was very happy and made all the arrangements for his coming here. He stayed here for more than 30 years and served Swami. He too lived for 100 years and died peacefully in his sleep.

(Swami called Sri Gopal Rao to the dais)

Many of you might have heard of Gopal Rao. He is also completing 100 years. Even at an advanced age, he used to go to canteen regularly and serve water to the devotees. When he was the Chairman of Andhra Bank, there was a major strike. Many big people were arrested. Indira Gandhi

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003)

161 sent him a telegram. That day I happened to go to his house for lunch.

I told him, "Gopal Rao, do not yield to political pressure. What you have chosen is the path of truth. Do not budge from it." He obeyed My command. Nobody could touch him. At present he is living in

Prasanthi

Nilayam happily doing Namasmarana. Dr. Padmanabhan's father, Seshagiri Rao came here at the age of 63 after his retirement. He also lived for 100 years and had a peaceful death. All these devotees led a happy and healthy life. At no point of time did they seek the service of others. I told Gopal Rao that he would die peacefully without depending on others for service. I told him to be courageous. In this manner, many devotees led a long and peaceful life in Divine proximity. Physical body is bound to perish one day or the other. But one should leave the body peacefully without being wholly dependent on others. (At the end, permitted Sri Gopal Rao to speak a few words.)

Swami

Embodiments of Love!

Where is God? When does He incarnate? Where does He incarnate?

These

are the questions that are troubling the minds of people today. God is omnipresent. All are the embodiments of God. Today, people attribute various names and forms to God like Rama, Krishna and Jesus, and celebrate their birthdays. Truly speaking, can there be a birthday for

God?

No. To think that God took birth on a particular day in a year is a sign of ignorance. God is in the form of breath in every man. 'Soham', this symbolises the process of inhalation and exhalation. 'So' means 'That' (God), 'Ham' stands for 'I' (individual). Though there are two words, namely God and individual, there is no difference between them.

They are one and the same. God in fact has no birth. He does not need to achieve any goals. However, in order to instill faith in the minds of people, He incarnates. If there is birth, there has to be death too. But, God is beyond birth and death. He has neither a beginning nor an end. To think there is a birthday for God is only your imagination. Devotees limit God to a physical frame, worship Him and celebrate His birthdays. That is all a figment of their imagination and does not correspond to the truth.

Every day, in this world, many are born and many die. What is meant

by birth and death? To assume a body is birth and to cast off the same is death. It is out of illusion that man experiences the dualities of birth and death, whereas God transcends both. Sarvatah Panipadam Tat Sarvathokshi Siromukham, Sarvatah Sruthimalloke Sarvamavruthya Tishthathi (with hands, feet, eyes, head, mouth and ears pervading everything, He permeates the entire universe). It is out of ignorance that man is caught in the cycle of birth and death. Birth and death are caused by the Will of God. God is the very personification of love. He is present in all beings in the form of the life-breath. Since ancient times, people have made concerted efforts to understand the mystery of birth and death. One need not go that far to understand this mystery. The body which we have assumed makes us experience it every moment. The process of inhalation symbolises birth and exhalation death. Man is unable to understand the inner significance of this breathing process. What is it that man is supposed to do, to escape from the cycle of birth and death? He should develop love more and more. But, today man does not love his fellow human beings even. That does not mean that he lacks love. There is love in him but he is unable to experience it. He should attach value to the principle of love and not merely to individuals. When we inhale ('So'), the life principle enters our body and when we exhale ('Ham'), it goes out. Every moment, this process of inhalation and exhalation reminds us of our inherent divinity (I am God). So long as there is life-breath, the body is considered to be Sivam (auspicious). Once the life-breath ebbs away, it becomes Savam (corpse). Both birth and death are related to the body and not to the life principle. Many changes take place between birth and death in a mysterious way. It is God who is responsible for all these. But some people deny the existence of God and waste their time in vain argumentation. God DOES exist. He neither comes nor goes. He is present everywhere at all times. Man experiences birth and death because of his body attachment. He will be released from the cycle of birth and death only when he gives up body attachment and surrenders himself completely to the Will of God. Oh God, I offer the sacred heart to You which You have given me.

What else can I offer at Your Lotus Feet? I pray that You accept my humble offering. (Telugu Poem)
Birth and death arise out of illusion. Every day in this world, many beings are born and many die. Birth and death happen according to the time and circumstances. Between birth and death, man gets deluded by the physical body and develops various relationships at the physical level. He identifies himself with the body and gets carried away by the feeling of I and mine. This is a grave mistake. So long as the body lasts, you are related to so and so. Once the body perishes, what happens to your relationship? True relationship lies at the Atmic level and not at the physical level. Prior to birth who is related to whom? What happens after death? In fact, both birth and death are the results of bhrama (delusion) because of which you are unable to realise Brahma (Divinity). As we are enmeshed in this worldliness, we are unable to comprehend the transcendental principle. True spiritual practice lies in understanding one's true identity. One should enquire, "Who am I"? All the spiritual practices are meant to make you realise who you really are. Everyone uses the term 'I' while introducing himself. It means that the principle of 'I' (Self) present in you Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003) 164 is the same as the one in others. But man is unable to understand this oneness. He is carried away by the differences based on physical body. Consequently, he is giving room to conflicts and unrest. Embodiments of Love! Birth and death are related to the body and not to the individual soul. Mind is responsible for both. Everything is man's own making. Life is a dream. How can anything that appears in a dream be true? It is all a mere illusion. So long as you are immersed in this bhrama (delusion), you cannot have the vision of Brahma. It is only when you break the shackles of illusion, can you experience the reality. You can understand your true identity by observing your breathing process. But man is not interested in such an easy and simple path. He is taking to rough and difficult paths and is ultimately getting frustrated. So long as there is a thorn in the flesh, it hurts. Body attachment is like a thorn which is the cause of all suffering. Once you give up body attachment, you will know your true Self. You suffer because you identify yourself with the body. It is but an illusion. That is why Sankaracharya said:

Punarapi Jananam Punarapi Maranam
Punarapi Janani Jathare Sayanam
Iha Samsare Bahu Dustare
Kripayapare Pahi Murare.

(From birth to birth
 From death to death
 From womb to womb
 Tarrying a while
 Such is the sojourn
 Of this transient life,
Oh destroyer of the demon Mura,
 Be my boatman
 On this turbulent ocean
 By your bounteous grace.)

One need not undertake intense spiritual practices to cross the ocean of Samsara. All that one has to do is to contemplate on God incessantly. Though God is within, man is unable to realise Him. In the dream state, man may experience death and feel sad about it. When he wakes up, he will heave a sigh of relief realising that what he saw was only a dream. Then who was the one who died in the dream? It was just a creation of the mind. Similarly, even in the waking state, whatever man experiences is a creation of the mind. My father, my mother, my wife, my children, etc., all such feelings arise out of illusion. They do not correspond to the reality. It is because of illusion that man develops physical relationship and ultimately subjects himself to suffering. When man develops pure and unsullied love, he will not experience pain or suffering. Love for the physical body is false and fleeting. Love for the Self is true and eternal. In order to understand the truth of your identity, you should enquire within.

Once Sankaracharya was proceeding to the river Ganga along with his disciples. On the way, he found a person sitting under a tree and repeating Dukrun Karane, Dukrun Karane. He was in fact trying to master the rules of Panini's grammar. Sankara took pity on him and advised him to contemplate on the Lord instead of wasting his time in the acquisition of worldly knowledge.

Bhaja Govindam, Bhaja Govindam
Govindam Bhaja Moodha Mathe
Samprapthe Sannihithe Kale
Nahi Nahi Rakshati Dukrun Karane.

(Oh foolish man, chant the name of Lord Govinda; the rules of grammar will not come to your rescue when the end approaches.)

Bhrama and Brahma are based on your mind. They are not present outside. Brahma is within you. But as you are immersed in bhrama (delusion), you consider Brahma (Divinity) to be a distant entity. Once you realise that you are Brahma, you will be free from bhrama once for all. You suffer because you identify yourself with the body. Once you get rid of body attachment, you will experience everlasting happiness. Embodiments of Love! Pleasure and pain are your own making. They are not given by God. You are the cause of your suffering, none else. Understand this truth. From the spiritual point of view, pleasure, pain and the worldly relationships are illusory. They are not real. Right from dawn to dusk, man is leading a life of delusion. Having been born as a human being, man should experience the truth. The physical body grows for a certain period and later on becomes weak and decrepit. Birth and growth are related to the body which is unreal. But man considers body to be real and thereby suffers.

When you see with your eyes wide open, you are able to see many people. But, when you close your eyes, you cannot see anybody. From where do so many people come when you open your eyes? Where do they go when you close your eyes? You do not know. In fact, you do not know the place of your origin and also your destination. That is why you suffer.

Once you realise that you are not the body and nothing in this world belongs to you, you will not suffer. Everything in this world is of your own making. Nothing is real. Embodiments of Love! It is only God, the embodiment of love, who is with you and in you always. Bereft of love, man cannot exist. Love is your life. Love is the light that dispels the darkness of ignorance. One who does not cultivate love will be born again and again. Punarapi Jananam Punarapi Maranam.

Whoever is born will die one day and whoever dies will be born again.

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003)

166

Birth and death are the Prabhava (effect) of the objective world. As he is deluded by the Prabhava, man is subjecting himself to Pramada (danger).

Embodiments of Love!

Worldly love is transient; it cannot be called love at all. True love is immortal. You should cultivate such love. Physical body grows and decays. How can you consider it to be real? In fact, nothing in this world is real. Body attachment is the cause of delusion. Hence, gradually reduce your body attachment. This is the most important sadhana you have to undertake. Japa (chanting), Thapa (penance), Dhyana (meditation), Yoga

(communion with God), etc., do not constitute true sadhana.

Whatever

you consider to be real is in fact unreal. Whatever is unreal has to be given up. This truth has to be understood in the first instance. It is very easy to give up body attachment. I wonder why people are not able to do so!

You can see a number of bulbs glowing in this hall. But the electric current passing through them is the same. Bodies are like bulbs and the principle of Atma is like the current passing through all the bulbs. Understand this oneness and share your love with one and all. Do not consider anyone to be your enemy. You consider the one who loves

you to be your friend and the one who hates you to be your foe. In fact, there is neither friend nor a foe. It is only your imagination.

Today, people perform various sadhanas to experience divinity. Will God come closer to you because of these sadhanas or does He go away from you if you do not perform them? No. It is only the bhrama that goes away from you when you perform the sadhanas. As a result, you become closer to Brahma. You should make every effort to get rid of bhrama. Give up the feeling that you are the body and you are the doer. Only then can you be free from delusion and fear. Reduce your body attachment. That is

the sadhana you are supposed to undertake. Spiritual practice does not lie in the performance of Japa, Thapa, Dhyana, etc. They are done only for your mental satisfaction and not for having the vision of God. Give up all these practices. Develop firm faith that you are God. Remind yourself constantly, "I am God, I am God, I am God". Then you will become God. Body is merely the vesture you have put on. It is not your true Self. As the body attachment increases, the suffering also increases.

Tyaja Durjana Samsargam; Bhaja Sadhu Samagamam; Kuru Punyam

Ahorathram (Give up bad company; join good company and perform meritorious deeds day and night). In this world, you see many names and forms. Does it mean that they are all different from each other? No.

All

are one. It is only divinity that expresses itself as mother, father, brother, sister, etc. Names and forms may be different, but the underlying truth is one. When you keep this principle of truth in view, love will flow from you incessantly. Immerse yourself in the river of love. Do not give up love under any circumstances. Even if someone were to hate you, treat him as your own brother. If you were to meet him on the road, do not show anger; greet him with love. Your love will certainly bring about transformation in him. True happiness lies in the spirit of sacrifice.

167

Thyaga

(sacrifice) is the true Yoga. Man, today, does not cultivate Thyaga. On the other hand, he seeks Bhoga (pleasure) and thereby subjects himself to Roga (disease). When you develop the spirit of sacrifice, you will be free from suffering. True spiritual practice is that which helps you to overcome delusion. What is the use, if you get drowned in delusion more and more with the advancement of age?

I am not the body, nothing is mine." This is what you should know.

Question yourself, "Who am I"? You will get the reply, "I am I". When you understand and experience this truth, nobody can cause any suffering to you. You cannot escape from suffering so long as you are immersed in the dualistic feeling that you are a mere mortal and God is separate from

you.

The feeling that "I am separate from you" is your own imagination.

When

'I' and 'you' are joined together, it becomes 'we'. However, 'we' + 'He' (God) becomes only 'He' who is changeless. 'I' and 'you' change constantly.

Embodiments of Love!

Many people do sadhanas like Japa and Dhyana, but they are not of much use. However, they lead to some change in due course of time. They may confer temporary results but they cannot grant eternal bliss. You should not worry for temporary results. The feeling of 'I' and 'mine' is the root cause of worry. You will be haunted by worry so long as you don't realise

Hari (God). You are worried because you identify yourself with the body.

Once you identify yourself with the Self (God), you will be free from all worries. Hence, you should make every effort to realise your true Self. Under any circumstances, do not shed tears of sorrow. One will be free

from sorrow when one gives up body attachment. In order to be free from worry and fear and to attain everlasting peace, you should realise that "I am I". When you have firm belief in this statement, nothing can shake you. Do not develop undue attachment to the body and material possessions. You will be redeemed only when you lead your life with a spirit of sacrifice. What you should achieve is Thyaga and not Bhoga. To consider something as yours ('mine') is Bhoga. To realise that nothing is yours ('not mine') is Yoga. This Yoga bestows on you the true strength.

Jesus performed various types of sadhanas and ultimately realised this truth. Once Mary and Joseph took their child Jesus to a fair in Jerusalem.

In the crowd, the parents lost trace of Jesus and searched for him everywhere. All the while, Jesus was sitting in a corner of the temple

and listening to the sermon of the priest. The parents were searching for him outside the temple. Mother Mary ultimately found him in the temple. She rushed towards him and affectionately embraced him saying, "My son, what happened to you? Where had you gone? We have been in search

of you." Jesus told her, "Mother, I have not stepped out of the temple. I have been listening to the sermon of the priest. Why should you have any fear? Those who believe in the world will have fears. But, why should anyone believing in God, fear at all? I am in the company of my Father,

why do you fear?"

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume 36 (2003)

168

Forgetting your innate divinity, you are in search of God in the external world. You are God yourself. Is it not foolishness to search for yourself in the outside world? Look within, only then can you find God. It is very easy to understand this oneness. However, you should have firm faith to begin with. You should believe that God is not separate from you. On a deep enquiry, you will realise that God is in you and also outside.

Embodiments of Love!

Turn your vision inward and search for your true Self. Self-enquiry leads to true Sakshatkara (vision of God). Once you have Sakshatkara, you will be free from all worries. It is a mistake to say that you have not experienced God. He is present in you. A person kept a ten rupee note

in a book and forgot about it. He was carrying it all along. One day he was in need of ten rupees. He asked his friend to lend him ten rupees. His friend readily agreed. But before giving the money, his friend wanted to see the book he was carrying. As he opened the book, the ten rupee note fell from it. He was happy that he had the required amount with him and that there was no need to borrow it from his friend. Likewise, today man is in search of God, as he has forgotten his innate divinity. Man can realise God only by self-enquiry.

Embodiments of Love! Students!

You are making various efforts to experience Divinity. Do not search for God outside. He is in you. Everything is in you. All that you see outside is illusory. Do not be carried away by the illusory world. Only then can you attain peace and ultimately realise the truth "I am I". To know this simple truth, you need not go through various sacred texts. Keep the texts aside.

Enjoy the taste of divinity within. Develop inner vision and visualise your true Self.

Embodiments of Love!

TODAY, everybody is enthusiastic about New

Year s day. Significantly, this New Year Day has started on a Thursday. It is one s foolishness to single out a particular day in a year and celebrate that day with great joy. For a true devotee, every day is a festival day.

Therefore, it is essential that we have to consider every minute, every day as new and celebrate it with joy. In fact, every day is a New Year Day.

2 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 3

This Body Is For Serving Others

Everything in this objective world is impermanent and unreal. Hence, we have to contemplate on the eternal truth and reality. We should not waste our time brooding over the past or anticipating the future. It is great foolishness to worry about the future or the past, forgetting the present. The present is only real. Past is past, you cannot get it back however much you may pray for it. The future is hidden in the womb of time. It is not possible to visualise it. Therefore, only the present is important. Unable to realise this truth, people are worried about the past and future.

The foremost activity man should engage in is service to fellow human beings. Instead, people are wasting their precious time worrying about either the past or the future. Therefore, embodiments of love! You should always engage yourselves in service to fellow human beings. There is no greater sadhana than such service. Considering the nine paths of devotion, namely, sravanam (listening), kirtanam (singing), Vishnusmaranam (contemplating on Vishnu), padasevanam (serving His Lotus Feet), vandanam (salutation), archanam (worship), dasyam (servitude), sneham (friendship), atmanivedanam (self-surrender) as the only important means for salvation, people are engrossed in these activities. They totally forget the importance of service. Only the fruits of service will be eternal. We must constantly engage ourselves in service to others. God has given us this body for that purpose only. This body is not meant to be engaged in mere eating and drinking and thus wasting our valuable time. We must realise the truth that God has given us this body for serving others and thus help others. There is nothing greater than service to humanity.

Service To Man Is Service To God

All great men have sanctified their lives only by serving humanity. Therefore, you start serving humanity at least from now onwards. Service is more important than bhajan and all other sadhanas.

Embodiments of Love!

Service Alone Brings Eternal Joy

What, according to you is service? You consider helping people in difficulties is service. No. It is not as simple as that. Your body should be constantly engaged in serving others. The human body consists of several limbs. All these limbs are meant to be engaged in serving your fellowmen and not for other activities. Unfortunately, we are forgetting this basic fact. Every limb in the human body has been granted by God for karmopasana (worshipping God through service). Karmopasana is the only means by which the human life can be sanctified. We are building several temples. We are undertaking various sadhanas. But, all these sadhanas can give us only temporary satisfaction, not eternal joy. Our ancient Rishis have been able to achieve eternal joy 4 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 5 through a conscious effort. Therefore, you must develop firm faith in the truth that nothing can provide eternal joy, except service to humanity. Undertake service to the suffering humanity. Service is not merely confined to health services. Service encompasses every possible help to fellow human beings.

The ancient culture of Bharat is still preserved in the villages and not in towns and cities. In fact, our culture is defiled in all possible ways in the cities. Therefore, go to the villages, find out their necessities and undertake such types of services that will alleviate their sufferings. Today, several people shift to the towns and cities in pursuit of comfort and luxuries. In the process, they end up in sorrows and difficulties. This is their own making. Na sukhath labhyathe sukham (happiness cannot be obtained out of happiness). It is only through suffering, that happiness is achieved. You should undertake service. In fact, the hands are given to you to serve humanity. The hands that serve are holier than the lips that pray. Therefore, undertake sel? ess service and attain glory. When you undertake good work, you enjoy peace in your life. Today, the boys who sang bhajans are former students of the Institute. They have undertaken several service activities to please Swami. God is not interested in worship and other sadhanas. He is interested only in service. Hence, undertake service and more and more service. The best way to love God is to Love all and Serve all. God is interested only in love and service. If you can recognise the importance of these two and conduct yourself accordingly, there can be no greater sadhana. You need not spend a lot of money in service. Sanctify your life by undertaking loving service. Today, the old students of Sri Sathya Sai Institute of Higher Learning brought a cheque for Rs. 48 lakhs for presenting to Swami as a token of their love and service. This amount has been saved by them from their salaries, by undergoing lot of difficulties. But, to whom should the amount belong really? This amount is meant to be utilised for service in the villages. It is for serving the poorest of the poor. Therefore, I told them, My dear ones! You deposit the money in the bank and undertake service activities with the interest accrued on the amount. Money is of no help in developing good qualities. Sacrifice alone can develop noble qualities. It is only in sacrifice, there is real yoga. That is why it is said Thyagenaike amrutatthwamanasu (it is only by sacrifice that man can attain immortality). Today, however, people want bhoga (enjoy material comforts). By such bhoga, only roga (disease) will be contracted. They cannot attain yoga. Hence, you try to attain yoga by thyaga. Only then can you attain eternal joy.

Embodiments of Love!

Human Beings Are Embodiment Of Divinity

There is no use contemplating on God without making sacrifice. By contemplating on God, you may 6 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 7 perhaps derive some mental satisfaction. But, that is of no use. Therefore, you develop firm faith in the truth that every living being is permeated by God and act accordingly. God lives in every living being and experiences bliss. The Upanishads declare, Easwarah sarva bhutanam (God is the indweller of all beings) and Isavasyam idam sarvam (the entire universe is permeated by God). You should not be under the impression that God is confined to some temple or a structure somewhere. It is said Deho devalaya proktho jivo devah sanathanah (the body is a temple and the indweller is God). The real temple for God is the body itself. God is installed in the temple of our heart. That is why it is given the name of hridaya. hrid + daya = hridaya. It is only when you cultivate compassion in your heart, it can be called hridaya. Therefore, cultivate the quality of compassion. Whatever service you undertake with a compassionate heart, it becomes sanctified. Consider every human being as a living divinity. God is present everywhere. Forgetting such an omnipresent divinity, we are hankering after petty and trivial bodily pleasures. The fact, however, is that we can never attain real happiness with the body. This body has several limitations. With such a body, you can never attain limitless ananda (bliss).

The body is made up of five elements and is bound to perish sooner or later; but the Indweller has neither birth nor death. The Indweller has no attachment whatsoever and is the eternal witness. Truly speaking, the Indweller who is in the form of the atma is verily God Himself.

(Telugu poem)

You must be able to recognise such a divine atma. Today, we are worshipping idols and pictures, thinking that God is somewhere in the outside world. But, God is very much present in the human being. That is why our ancient rishis have proclaimed, Daivam manusha rupena (God incarnates in the form of a human being). Of what use is it to worship unseen God, while at the same time causing suffering to the living beings around us? Every human being you come across is an embodiment of divinity. No purpose will be served by worshipping the idols and pictures, forgetting the living gods in front of us. Therefore, give less importance to such indirect methods of worshipping God. Consider the human being standing in front of you as an embodiment of divinity. Even if you come across your worst enemy, say, hello to him lovingly. Address him as brother. Then, he will also respond by saying, hello brother. On the other hand, if you hate him and start scolding him, he will reciprocate the same thing to you. Respect every individual and you will be respected. Man, today expects others to respect him; but he will not respect others. If you do not respect others, how can you expect others to respect you? Manava (human being) means an individual deserving respect. Since you are born as a human being, give respect and take respect. This is the quality you 8 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 9 have to cultivate today. When you respect others, others will also respect you. When you offer your pranams to somebody, to whom does it go actually? You are not merely offering pranams to the physical body consisting of the five elements. It reaches in fact the indweller in that human body who is none other than God. Now, what is the nature of this body?

This body is a den of dirt, and prone to diseases; it is subject to change from time to time; it cannot cross the ocean of Samsara. It is nothing but a structure of bones. Oh mind! Do not be under the delusion that body is permanent. Instead take refuge at the Divine Lotus Feet.

What can you achieve by relying on such a body?

It is only sin that you accumulate. You should sustain the body for the purpose of serving others. You have taken upon this human body only for the purpose of serving your fellow human beings. Develop firm conviction in that truth. What happiness do you derive with the body? In fact, nothing. Whatever pleasures you enjoy with the help of this human body will have to be left along with the body in a trice one day or the other. Should you have to undergo so many trials and tribulations for the sake of these momentary pleasures? You have to respect the Jiva in the human body. That is the real Daiva seva (service to God). You have to dedicate your body to such service. If you do that, every minute of your life is fresh and new. Every day is a festival day. On the other hand, if you undertake service once in a year, that is not real service. Your deha (body) is mrinmaya (made up of five elements). The divinity residing as indweller therein is Chinmaya (consciousness). Therefore, rely on such a divinity and earn salvation.

An Ideal Son Of A Noble Mother

You all know about Abraham Lincoln. He used to go to school in the company of wealthy boys, in his childhood. Those boys were wearing costly clothes and ornaments. Lincoln, however, had to go to school with worn out clothes that were mended by his mother. One day, his friends made fun of his poor dress. He could not control himself. He went straight to his mother crying and told her, Mother! I will not attend school hereafter. My classmates are making fun of me. They are looking down upon me as a poor boy unable to wear decent dress. Then, the mother took him into her arms lovingly and consoled him saying, My dear son! You need not feel sorry for such a trivial issue. All this is going to help you in your future life. You keep our family condition in view. Do not give credence to what others say. Lead a life of self-confidence and self-respect. Respect every individual and be respected by every individual. From that day onwards, Lincoln put his mother's advice into practice and started respecting everybody. He used to be courteous with even a cobbler saying Sir! How sacred is your life! You are doing great service by stitching 10 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 11 sandals for us so that our feet are protected from thorns. Gradually, Abraham Lincoln could command respect from all people by his good behaviour. He earned a very good name for himself. After sometime, elections were held in America. He was persuaded by his friends and well-wishers to contest the elections. He expressed his inability saying, I am a poor man. Who will vote for me? I do not want these positions and power. Today, Indians are spending crores of rupees to contest elections, but refuse to part with even a rupee as alms to a beggar.

The good words taught by Lincoln's mother made a lasting impression on his mind. He started respecting every individual. He used to speak courteously with everybody. As a result he earned a very good name for himself. At last, he bowed to the wishes of his friends and well-wishers and contested the elections. He scored a spectacular victory and was elected the President of the United States of America. Then, he went to his mother and said Mother! I am able to rise to this exalted position and command the respect of the people of America, because of your noble teachings those days.

It is the mother that is responsible for the children earning reputation and fame. If children wish to earn good name, they should obey the command of their mother. That is why, the Veda has conferred the supreme position on the mother and father and declared Matru devo bhava, Pithru devo bhava (Mother is God, Father is God). The mother is like the body and the father, the atma. Hence, we have to respect our father and mother. Then, we can earn any amount of respect. Abraham Lincoln could earn great name and fame and become the president of America, only on account of his respect for his mother. What do the children earn today? Nothing. They simply waste the money earned by their parents. They bring bad name to their parents. This is not what the children are expected to do. They should properly utilise the money given by their parents. In fact, every drop of your blood is the contribution of your parents. You owe your existence in this world to the love of your parents. Hence, whenever there is a need for blood donation, you should come forward to donate your blood. Thereby fulfil your obligation to your parents and society. Do not ever work for your selfish interests. In fact, selfishness and self-interest are the main causes degrading the human being. You might have heard about Winston Churchill, the former Prime Minister of England. He once declared man has conquered all, but not conquered himself.

Good Qualities Only Can Confer Peace

Children should cultivate good habits and good qualities and reach good position in life. Thus, they should bring good name to their parents. You can earn good name not by money, but by sterling character. No matter how wealthy a person is, his reputation will be 12 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 13 tarnished if his character is not good. A wealthy person may be living in a great mansion and enjoying the luxuries of life; but, he will not have peace of mind and happiness. People crave to earn more and more money. But, of what use is the money they earn? They waste all their money in worthless things. One has to utilise the money earned by him for undertaking good and beneficial activities for the society. He should conduct himself with good behaviour and good habits. Only then will he have real peace in life.

Embodiments of Love!

Today, everyone is literally crying for peace. But, what is this peace? It is in you itself. You are most sacred souls. Love is within you. Peace is within you. Unfortunately, today you are losing the peace and happiness that is within you and craving to earn something in the outside world. You want to earn great wealth and build big mansions. Devoid of good qualities, all the wealth that you earn becomes mere waste. Therefore, cultivate good qualities. There can be no greater wealth in the world than good qualities. The more you exercise good qualities, the more you accumulate. They will never exhaust.

Embodiments of Divine Atma!

Prepare yourself for sacrifices. You will find eternal bliss only in sacrifice. One who does not make sacrifice will not find peace anywhere. People of every country in this world pray for peace chanting Santhi, Santhi, Santhi. But do they get peace? No. They are engulfed in disappointment and despair. Therefore one should develop faith in the truth that the eternal Lord is always with us. How can you obtain peace by ignoring the Divinity immanent in you and worshipping some unseen God?

Embodiments of Love!

Share your education and wealth with your fellow human beings. In fact, God is the real owner of the wealth acquired by you. The money you earn belongs to God's Trust. God Himself is the President of the Trust.

Keep your trust on God and make proper utilisation of your money. Do not hanker after money and other forms of wealth. Constantly contemplate on God. You need not have to go to the forest or caves in the hills in search of God. He is always with you. Develop that faith and win over demonic qualities. Today, wherever you see, demonic qualities and violence are rampant. People do not hesitate to acquire wealth by sinful ways. What ultimately comes along with you at the time of leaving the body is the sin or merit you have accumulated and not the wealth you have acquired. Share at least a morsel of food you eat, with others. Help yourself and help others. This is the greatest sadhana. In fact, it is so easy to practise. Leaving aside this simple sadhana and forgetting the noble quality of love, you are going in search of peace in the wide world. Is it not foolishness

14 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 15 on your part?

Embodiments of Love!

Cultivate Love And Brotherhood

Develop the quality of love. Do not hate anybody. Develop the faith that whatever happens is for your own good. Whenever you encounter any difficulty or suffering, you alone are responsible for it. Respect others. That alone will protect you. On the other hand, if you insult somebody that will punish you. Pleasure or pain, they are the products of your own making. The merit or sin committed by you will follow you like a shadow. Man today is giving sermons to others. But he himself is not following his precepts. What values such teachings will have? All this is mere deception. Whatever teachings you may read or listen to, can never help you if you do not put them into practice. Help your fellow human beings at least in a small measure. That alone will help you. Do not blame others for the difficulties you face. Do not ever abuse others. Love all. Treat all people as your brothers and sisters. Cultivate the feeling of brotherhood of man and fatherhood of God.

Embodiments of Love!

The Bharatiyas are really fortunate. They have all facilities. But the quality of love is missing in them. If only they cultivate love, none can excel them. Therefore, enhance your honour and prestige by cultivating the quality of love. Follow the twin principles of Sathya and Dharma with love. Love alone can protect you.

Embodiments of Love!

What for are you given the hands? Is it for feeding the mouth? No, no. You have to sing the glory of God with your tongue. The hands are given to you for the purpose of keeping the beat in accordance with the tune. Bharatiyas are those who worship God with Bhava (feeling) Raga (the tune) and Thala (the beat).

The syllable Bha also stands for bhakti (devotion) Ra for Raga (tune) and Tha for Thyaga (sacrifice). You have to sing the glory of the Lord combining these three aspects. They alone are the real Bharathiyas. Every individual born in the country of Bharat is sanctified. We do not need heaven. Let s participate in seva chanting the divine name. There can be no greater wealth than this. Why should we suffer when we have such a great wealth with us? Consider all your education and the service you undertake as God s work. The Gitacharya has given a clarion call, Sarvadharmam parithyajya Mamekam saranam vraja (surrender unto Me all your activities and seek refuge in Me alone). Hence, dedicate all your activities to God. Only then will you attain peace in every possible way.

Respect For Parents -

The Greatest Virtue

The sun shines serene and gentle. The brief daylight is softly wafting the cool wind. The fields are ripe with golden crops. Marigold ? owers are blossoming like garlands of pearls on the banks of rivers. The farmers are rejoicing and singing. The ripened chillies are colouring fields with vestments of bright red. The sweet festival of Sankranti has come, filling our homes with the freshly harvested grains of cereals and pulses.

(Telugu poem)

OF ALL the festivals , the imminent

Sankranti is the most important. It is the day on which the farmers bring home the harvested crop, feed the poor and rejoice. On this day, the Vedic scholars get up during the sacred Brahmamuhurtha time and Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 chant the Vedic mantras, purifying the hearts of one and all. This festival has a special significance also for the householders. They invite their newly married sons-in-law to their house, present them with new clothes and the entire house abounds with joy. In this context, there is a folk song in Telugu:

A Festival Heralding Plenty And Joy

As Sankranti is the festival of festivals,

Oh newly married bridegroom, visit your in-laws house,

Come, spend your time in fun and frolic with your brothers-in-law and sisters-in-law,

The entire household and the neighbourhood will honour you with love and affection.

It is also an occasion when the bullocks are decorated elaborately and taken to various houses in the village. The bullocks are worshipped and fed sumptuously as an expression of gratitude for all the hard work they do in the fields. Even the bovine members of the household are feted, a symbolic marriage is performed between a pair of bull and cow, naming them as Rama and Sita. They are taken along the streets and made to dance to the delight of everyone. In this manner, the festival of Sankranti bestows great joy and auspiciousness on farmers, householders, priests and children. Not only the human beings, even the birds and animals rejoice with the arrival of the sacred Sankranti festival. At sunset, it is a wonderful sight to see the birds ying back to their nests chatting merrily and loudly in their own language filling the air with a joyous hum. It is an equally delightful sight to see the cows rushing back from the grazing fields to feed their young ones and the young ones craving for the caresses of their mothers, mooing loudly. Sankranti festival is so sweet and endearing to one and all. Cool winds, melli? uous bird songs and the sweet sugarcane crops herald the arrival of Sankranti. People celebrate this festival by distributing sweets and rice puddings. This festival drives away all disappointments and despair and fills our hearts with hope and enthusiasm. People get up early in the morning, have a sacred bath and worship their chosen deities, such as, Ganapati, Subrahmanya and Lord Easwara. The divine form of Lord Siva is described thus:

The Lord of Kailasa has manifested His Divine form with the crescent moon adorning His head, the cool water of the Ganga ? owing between the matted locks, with His radiant eye in the middle of the forehead and the purple neck gleaming like the sheen of a blackberry. He wears serpent bracelets and a snake belt, His entire body is smeared with Vibhuti. His forehead is adorned with a kumkum dot, His ruddy lips glow with the juice of the betel, diamond-studded gold earrings dangle from His ears and His whole swarthy body

glows with divine effulgence.

(Telugu poem)

However, nowadays people are not celebrating Sankranti in its true spirit. Their celebration is confined to mere performance of rituals. They lack purity and sanctity. They are unable to enjoy the bliss of Sankranti because of hatred, jealousy and con? icts.

On this auspicious occasion of Sankranti, children aged 5 years are initiated into the process of learning with the chanting of sacred Vedic mantras. Our ancient sages declared, Vedhametham Purusham mahantham

Adityavarnam thamasah parasthath (I have visualised the Supreme Being who shines with the effulgence of a billion suns and who is beyond thamas - the darkness of ignorance). The Vedas have extolled the Supreme Being in manifold ways. The Rig Veda contains mantras extolling God and His blissful form which attracts one and all.

People address their bullocks with names such as Ramudu, Bhimudu, etc. Similarly, cows are named after Sita, Gowri, Lakshmi, etc. The inner meaning of this is that even animals are treated with the same concern and care as human beings. They decorate the cows and bullocks with saris and dhotis and take them out in a procession.

These days only birds and animals lead their lives in accordance with their natural qualities. So, they are able to enjoy happiness. On the other hand, man has forgotten his true nature and is behaving like an animal. Consequently, he is leading a miserable life. Birds and animals are better than men in the sense they live in unity and harmony. But due to the impact of modern education, man has degenerated to the level of a beast. He has lost the virtues of honesty and integrity. Birds and animals have a reason and a season, but man has no reason or season. In every house and in every human endeavour, money is given utmost priority. People are ready to stoop down to any level for the sake of money. Animals are satisfied once their hunger is satiated, but man has no sense of satisfaction. The more he earns, the greedier he becomes.

When a dog is sick, it does not eat food. If you have a pet dog, you might have observed this. Even if you pour milk into its mouth by force, it refuses to drink. It likes to remain on empty stomach. But man observes no such restraint with regard to diet when he is sick. He wants to take complete rest when there is only a mild rise in his temperature. He covers himself from head to foot and lies down on his bed. However, he gives no rest to his stomach nor does he observe proper diet restrictions even when he runs high temperature. He likes to eat sweets like Mysorepak, Burfi, Gulab jamoon, etc, which will only aggravate his sickness. Man is behaving like an animal and animals are behaving like humans! When a person misbehaves, the elders reprimand him saying, Why do you behave like an animal? Due to the impact of modern education, man has lost morality and integrity and has become worse than an animal. He is acquiring high academic qualifications like B.A. and M.A. But what is the use? He is adding the letter D (dirty qualities) to his qualification and becoming

BAD and MAD . This type of perverted behaviour is unbecoming of a human being. Man should develop good thoughts, good qualities and good character. On the contrary, he is taking to wrong ways to earn money. Money comes and goes, morality comes and grows. But man is selling morality in the market for the sake of money.

Embodiments of Love!

Resolve To Start A New Life

At least from this Sankranti day, make efforts to cultivate good qualities. Let there be a change in your behaviour for the better. The festivals of Bharatiyas are meant to impart sacred teachings and transform human behaviour. They are not meant to merely eat, drink and make merry. First of all, there should be transformation at the individual level. There should be unity in the family. In olden days, people used to live in joint families. The young couples would live with their parents, in-laws and other elders of the family in harmony. Whenever there was any difference of opinion between the couple, the elders in the family would give proper guidance and pacify them. The daughters-in-law would implicitly follow the advice of their in-laws. As a result, there never used to be any chance for con? icts in the family. But the modern trend is such that the daughter-in-law does not want to live in the house of her in-laws. She wants the family to be divided. Because of such divisive mentality, con? icts in the family are on the rise. Consequently, Kali Yuga has become Kalaha Yuga (age of con? icts) and Kalmasha Yuga (age of pollution). People in those days talked always in a pleasing manner. They would welcome the guests wholeheartedly by exchanging pleasant feelings like How are you? Please have your food with us, etc. More than the food, it was the warmth and affection of the host that appeased the hunger of the guest. But nowadays, even on a festival day, people do not like to entertain guests. When they find a guest entering their house, they greet him with the remark, Please come, hope you have already had your lunch; please be seated. Man has become so narrowminded that he does not want to offer even a morsel of food to the guests. Such being the sorry state of affairs, how can you expect the children to be ideal citizens? Due to the in? uence of parents, even children are becoming narrow-minded. Parents want them to acquire modern education and earn a lot of money. In order to get the children educated in expensive prestigious schools, even the mother has to take up a job. The children are left to the care of ayas (female attendants). Consequently, the children are unable to experience the love of the mother. They shed tears when the aya dies, but not when the mother passes away. The children should be brought up under the loving care of the mother. They should listen to her sacred teachings. Otherwise, how can they come up in life? Modern education cannot redeem man's life.

One may have acquired high academic qualifications such as B.A. and M.A. and attained name and fame,

One may have all the wealth and one may do acts of charity and earn merit and good reputation,

One may have all the physical strength and lead a long and healthy life,

One may be a Vipra (Brahmin) who teaches the Vedas and performs spiritual practices such as penance and meditation,
But none of them can be equal to the devotee of the Lord.

(Telugu poem)

Education Must Transform

What is this education? It is only leading to agitation. People are only acquiring degrees, but are not broadening their mind. True education is that which brings about transformation of the heart. There should be expansion of love. But, the present-day education system is leading to narrow-mindedness. People are highly egoistic of their academic qualifications. They have given up morality and integrity, the very essence of Indian culture. Without the virtue of honesty, how can one attain ananda (bliss)? How can education bereft of morality redeem your life? Today the students are going to countries like America, Japan, Germany, etc., as soon as they complete their studies. When the parents go all the way to spend their time with their children, they are asked to have their food in restaurants. Modern educated people are not so fortunate as to serve food to their parents with their own hands. They do not show gratitude to their parents who have brought them up with love and care. This is the worst sin. You should look after your parents well. You should take care of their needs in their advanced age and protect them with love and concern. Today, when parents become old, the children demand a share of their property. They are interested in property but not in developing a proper mind. They do not hesitate to go even to the Supreme Court to settle their property disputes. Instead, one should strive to attain the Supreme State by cultivating virtues. The more one is educated, the more virtuous one should become.

Dear Students!

Just now you have seen Me calling an American boy.

This boy is studying in our institution. Simultaneously, he is also learning Veda. In whichever portion of the Veda you question him, he will be able to chant the concerned mantra beautifully. In fact, it is the good fortune of the parents to have such children. It is only because of such parents, children are able to cultivate good qualities. This boy's parents are living in America, yet they have 24 25

admitted him in our Institute which is far away from their native place to enable him to learn good qualities and good behaviour. In fact, they have all the facilities available in America to educate their son there itself. But, they did not want to educate their son in America. They love our country and the noble qualities that the children imbibe here. Here the children learn education coupled with love. The children prostrate before their parents with respect and reverence. Such noble qualities have impressed these parents and therefore they have brought their son to pursue his education in our institution.

Here is a small example. There was one Hindi Pandit who was reputed for his literary skills. His two sons were studying in Allahabad, while he and his wife lived in a small town. One day he and his wife had to go by train on a visit to another town and they had to pass through Allahabad. He wrote to his sons to come and meet them at the station on that particular date.

The train halted at the station and the parents stood at the door of the carriage. They saw their sons hurrying towards them. The elder one touched the feet of both the parents before talking to them, while the younger son did not show such respect and reverence. The parents enquired about their health and studies. The elder son said, We are fine here. Please take care of your health. Your happiness is our happiness. On the other hand, the younger son did not enquire about their health at all. He asked for more money. As the train was about to start, once again the elder one bent and touched the feet of his parents while the younger one just waved his hand. As the train was leaving the platform, the parents were watching their sons through the window. The elder one was offering his namaskar till the end, whereas the younger son was keeping his hands in the pocket and looking somewhere with a callous attitude.

The mother became worried seeing the behaviour of the younger son. She blamed her husband for the reckless behaviour of the younger son. She said, You have kept him away from us for the sake of his education. He is behaving like an animal as there is no one to guide him properly. The father pacified her saying, After all, he is young, he will learn and improve in course of time. But, the mother could not come to a compromise and said, He is already doing his degree course, if not now when will he learn? Unable to control her feelings, she shed tears.

The mother's words proved to be true. In course of time the elder son, by virtue of his diligence and good behaviour, attained a high position in society. He was very much respected for his manners and sense of courtesy. He prostrated before his parents and said, It is because of your blessings that I have come up in life. The parents shed tears of joy and blessed him profusely, Son, it is because of your virtues that you have attained an exalted position in life. What happened to the younger son? He could not fare well in the examinations and ultimately 26 27 had to be contented with a clerical job. While the elder one received salutations from everyone, the younger son had to salute everyone. How can one who does not respect his parents be respected by others? Yad bhavam tad bhavati (as is the feeling, so is the result). Our future depends upon our present behaviour. In Western countries today, they give respect and take respect. But this quality is becoming extinct in our country. When you do not respect your own parents, even dogs would not care to look at you. Therefore, wherever you go, you should never forget to respect your parents. The Vedas in our country have also exhorted, Matru Devo bhava, Pitru Devo bhava, Acharya Devo bhava, Atithi Devo bhava (revere your mother, father, preceptor and guest as God). Thus, they promoted noble qualities by their exhortation. Whoever respects his parents and obeys their commands will certainly reach high positions in life. In fact, the festival of Sankranti exhorts us to cultivate such noble qualities. Kranti means transformation. Therefore, Sankranti is supposed to bring about a transformation in our lives. But, how are we reacting to this? Are we able to achieve transformation in our life? No. The purpose of our education is to remove the bad qualities and cultivate good qualities and good behaviour. This is what the festivals in India are meant for. But nobody realises the inner meanings of these festivals.

Revere Your Parents First

Embodiments of Love! Students!

Your parents are struggling hard to feed you, educate you and bring you up in life. Even if they have to starve, they would somehow try to feed you and look after your welfare. They always struggle to keep you in good mood and good condition. They give you good food, good clothing and good education. If you do not respect such parents, how do you expect to be respected by society?

You all know about Abraham Lincoln. He used to go to school in the company of wealthy boys, in his childhood. Those boys were wearing costly clothes and ornaments. Lincoln, however, had to go to school with worn-out clothes that were mended by his mother. One day, his friends made fun of his poor dress. He could not control himself. He went straight to his mother crying and told her, Mother! I will not attend school hereafter. My classmates are making fun of me. They are looking down upon me as a poor boy unable to wear decent dress. Then, the mother took him into her arms lovingly and consoled him saying, My dear son! You need not feel sorry for such a trivial issue. All this is going to help you in your future life. You must keep our family condition in view. Do not give attention to what others say. Lead a life of self-confidence and self-respect. Respect every individual and be respected by every individual. From that day onwards, Lincoln put his mother's advice into practice and started respecting everybody. Gradually, Abraham Lincoln could command respect from all people by his good behaviour. He earned a very good Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 name for himself. After sometime, elections were held in America. He was persuaded by his friends and wellwishers to contest the elections. At last, he bowed to the wishes of his friends and well-wishers and contested the elections. He won the elections with a thumping majority and was elected President of the United States of America in due course of time. He attained such an exalted position because he implicitly followed the advice of his mother and respected everybody. Truly speaking, he did not have much money, but he had the wealth of virtues. He was happy at the prosperity of others. He was contented with what he had and did not crave for money and material possessions. Because of such noble qualities, he rose to become the President of America. During his tenure, he passed a decree for abolishing slavery of black Africans in America thereby putting an end to their inhuman suffering.

It is self-respect that protects man and takes him to an exalted position. You may be poor financially, but if you uphold your self-respect, you will be respected by all. Do not look down upon the poor. Respect them and treat them with love. That is the true human nature. Lincoln's mother inculcated such noble qualities in her son. That is why Lincoln considered his mother as God and revered her. Whoever inculcates sacred qualities in you is your God. He is not to be sought after somewhere else. When you develop self-respect, He will manifest right in front of you.

Dear Students!

You must respect your parents, whoever they may be and in whatever condition they may be. You must respect their words and obey their commands, without any reservation. Then only you will be able to command respect from society. All the great people in yesteryears did obey and respect their parents and set an example to the world. Do you know the underlying meaning of the ancient customs and traditions of Bharat? For example, they used to build big mansions with small doors. Do you know why? We think that these small doors were to prevent thieves from entering the houses and escaping with ease. No, that was not the reason. These doors were purposely kept low to enable the visitors to observe the custom of entering the houses with their heads bent in reverence to the inmates. Thus, every custom and tradition of Bharat were meant to promote mutual respect and goodwill among people. It was established with great care and wisdom. But, even the Bharatiyas have forgotten such noble traditions. Nowadays you will not find even a gadapa (threshold) to the door frame of the main entrance to the house. They think that the threshold is an unnecessary hindrance to enter the house. No, it is not a hindrance at all! The ancient traditions and customs of Bharat are meant to promote humility, respect and reverence among people.

Dear Students!

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 Let Humility Be Your Badge

You must learn and observe such great traditions and command the respect of people. You must bring joy to your parents, by your behaviour. The parents must feel happy that their children are obeying them. It is enough if you earn such a good name. God's grace cannot be obtained by performing mere rituals like worship. However highly qualified you are, it will only promote ego, but not humility and respect towards parents and elders. Therefore, you must cultivate the qualities of humility, respect and reverence. Then only you will become good citizens of the country. It is not necessary that you should become great. It is enough if you become good citizens. Name and fame come today, but may be lost tomorrow. But, the good name acquired will last forever. Therefore, earn a good name. We must earn the grace of God. But, contrary to this, people are craving for the grass of worldly desires. Grass is something that is consumed by the cattle. You should not become cattle by developing a taste for grass. You must strive to earn God's grace and thus become good individuals.

Dear Students!

These are the sacred days of the festival of Sankranti. On this occasion, we must cultivate the quality of giving respect to others and taking respect. I am giving you a small example here. (Swami called the American boy, a student of Sri Sathya Sai Higher Secondary School, and said), This boy is securing first class not only in studies but also in the study of Vedas. He has given immense joy to his parents with his good behaviour. His father is very happy that his son has earned a very good name and is appreciated by one and all. (Swami called his father to the dais and showered His blessings on him.) This boy's mother is working in our Primary School and spending her time blissfully. The boy's parents have earned the love and respect of all because of his exemplary behaviour. In this manner, every one of you should strive to bring good name to your parents. Only then will your parents experience the real joy of begetting you as their son. You may earn a lot of money and build big mansions, but they cannot bring you good name. They are temporary. Once you earn good reputation, it will remain with you forever. Bring good name to the institution in which you have studied. Observing your noble qualities, people should be able to recognise you as Sathya Sai's Students. You are aware that we are not charging even a paisa from our students. Further, I am also providing books and other facilities for the needy and deserving students. The students have immense love for Swami and Swami also showers His love and grace on them. Even while leaving their parents and coming here, they do not shed tears. But when I go to Brindavan and return to Puttaparthi, the students in Brindavan start shedding tears unable to bear the separation from Me. How did they acquire such intense love? It is Swami's love that is responsible for this. It is only the love that I disseminate to all.

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37

My property does not comprise mansions and palatial buildings. Love is My biggest property. I am giving My love and receiving your love in return. I often tell the students, Give Me your love, I will give you whatever you want. That is why the students have such intense love for Me. Develop love more and more. Love your parents. Obey their command. Your lives will certainly be sanctified.

Think of God always. Wherever you are, in the forest or in the sky, in the village or in the city, on the hilltop or in the middle of the deep sea, love alone can come to your rescue. It is always with you, in you, around you, above you and below you.

Chaala Santhosham (very happy).

Character Is The Goal Of Education

Students, Boys and Girls!

THE present Vice Chancellor, the former Vice Chancellor, the Secretary of the Central

Trust and two students have made excellent speeches in beautiful vocabulary. In this vast world, wherever you see, you find most wonderful and joyful events that awaken your inner being and fill your heart with immense bliss. Our students also have developed great skill, intelligence and expertise in the fields of sports, games and music and demonstrated their talents giving joy to one and all. Whatever be the activity they undertake, they do it to please Swami and not for temporary happiness.

Education Must Develop Inner Vision

Right from the time of birth, all activities of man 34 35

are centred round the process of learning and acquiring wisdom. It is absolutely necessary to teach the spirit of idealism to our students so that they fill their hearts with love and give happiness to one and all. Today, there are a number of educational institutions all over the world, but, nobody seems to have understood what education really means. Students fill their heads with mere bookish knowledge, write examinations, secure pass marks and claim that they are educated.

In spite of his education and intelligence, a foolish man will not know his true Self and a mean-minded person will not give up his evil qualities. (Telugu poem)

Modern education leads only to argumentation, not to total wisdom. What is the use of acquiring education which cannot lead you to immortality?

Acquire the knowledge that will make you immortal.

(Telugu poem)

Vidya means Jnana (wisdom). Jnana does not mean worldly intelligence. True education is that which develops inner vision and makes you experience everlasting bliss. In what way are the students benefited by the present educational system? They are merely acquiring degrees and earning the appreciation of the authorities, but they do not understand the real significance of education. Modern students are unable to realise the true spirit behind their participating in sports and cultural events. In all events of sports and games, you have a winner and also a loser. People are interested only in the outcome of the events and not in enjoying the spirit of sports. The aim of sports and games is not to produce a decisive result but to inculcate the spirit of sportsmanship in the participants. Life is a game, play it. Life is a dream, realise it. Life is love, enjoy it. It is only he who understands the import of these statements and realises them in his daily life is a true student.

Modern system of education, instead of developing the power of discrimination in students, is making them narrow-minded. It neither bestows true wisdom nor does it help them to become broad-minded. The present-day education has become meaningless. The textbooks that are prescribed for students do not contain the essence of true education. I wonder why the government promotes such meaningless textbooks! May be, even the government is unaware of the realities. It appears as though someone at some low level is taking these decisions without consulting the higher authorities. It is bringing a bad name to the government, but nobody seems to be concerned about it. Such an unhealthy trend is on the rise. Nobody is making efforts to understand the sacredness associated with the ancient system of education. Students are interested only in bookish knowledge, not in the essence of education. Only their textual knowledge is tested, but not practical knowledge. Students think that degrees are meant to earn a livelihood. Education is for life, not for a living.

36 37

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37

But neither the students nor the parents realise this truth. Parents are happy if their children score high marks in their examinations. They are not bothered about the heap of bad remarks their children get. If only they care to look into the remarks, they will truly understand the type of education that their children are receiving. Due to the advancement in modern education, the study of Vedas and Sastras has declined. In this situation, how can the present education confer true wisdom on you?

Parents And Teacher Should Be More Responsible Students!

You should acquire such education which will be beneficial to the society and the world at large. What is the present state of society? In what way can we make it ideal? How should one work for the advancement of the society? Nobody seems to think on these lines. Even the present system of education does not lay emphasis on service to society. If someone talks about reforms in the system of education, the students just brush it aside. They think that textual knowledge is the be-all and end-all of education. The elders should take up the responsibility to give proper education to students. Students should uphold the honour of the society. We should follow the teachings of our ancient sages and seers who have given us the true meaning of education. It is a sign of foolishness to become egoistic by merely acquiring a few degrees. You should understand the needs of society and utilise your education for its progress. People say they are serving the society, but without really understanding what the requirements of the society are. Such service is not samaja seva (social service), but samadhi seva, meaning a lifeless, mechanical activity. Society will progress only when the system of education is set right. As the craze for Western education has increased, the study of vedic texts is being neglected. Parents should teach their children what is good and what is bad right from their childhood. They should not be satisfied merely by securing admission in a college and acquiring a degree by their children. They should ensure that their children utilise their education to serve the nation. The government may not be able to do much in this regard; it is the responsibility of the parents to guide their children on proper lines. They should encourage the children to work for the progress of the nation. But nowadays, parents do not have such broad-mindedness. Even teachers are not interested in the welfare of the nation. They feel that their responsibility ends with imparting bookish knowledge to students. They do not even enquire whether the information contained in the textbooks is beneficial to society or not. They do not take up the matter with the government. Even if they do take it up, the government is not responsive. They are changing educational institutions into factories which produce degree holders. Students alone are not to be blamed for this state of affairs. Parents, teachers and the government are equally responsible for this dismal state of affairs. It is not enough if students secure high ranks in the class and earn a good name. They should work for the progress of the society and the nation and thus bring a good name to parents. Parents should monitor the progress of their children from time to time, inculcate virtues in them and mould them into responsible citizens. They should not rest satisfied if their children get good marks. They should also observe what type of books they read at home. Some students read meaningless novels. But the parents do not bother to correct them. On the other hand, they say, What is wrong in reading novels? It is enough if they are happy. In this manner, they spoil their own children. They do not care to observe how their children behave in their absence. There is no point in merely educating the children without correcting their behaviour. Parents should emulate the ideals of our forefathers who brought up their children in the most ideal way.

Students Be Provided A Blend Of Secular And Spiritual Education

Embodiments of Love!

The modern system of education needs reforms.

Parents today take pride that their children are studying in English medium schools and are able to recite English poems. They fail to understand what type of impact and in? uence this modern education has on their children. The tiny tots in kindergarten are taught nursery rhymes like Ba Ba Black Sheep . Because of such education, the children are ultimately becoming black sheep themselves. I am really pained and disgusted watching the present-day system of education which is totally spoiling the lives of students. That is why I have established educational institutions spending crores of rupees to mould the character of students. I am providing even textbooks free of cost to the students. In the present-day world, the situation is so bad that even for admission to a primary school one has to register well in advance paying thousands of rupees as donation. Parents are happy if their wards get admission in what they consider good schools, but they do not bother about the benefit that would accrue on account of such an educational system. The children do not appreciate the privations the parents have to undergo for educating them. Parents take loans and even forgo proper food and sleep to educate their children. Ultimately, the children do not benefit out of this system of education. They are unable to understand what is good and what is bad for them. Today when the quality of education has become so cheap how can such education make one a chief? Neither the parents nor the teachers nor the students are able to understand how the society and the nation are benefited by the present system of education. Therefore, all of them should join hands and work unitedly to bring about a complete transformation in the society. At present students agitation is on the increase. However, it is not their fault. They are in themselves very good-natured. Fault lies with the teachers, elders and the government. It is a decided factor that the present system of education is not designed to mould the character of the students. There are many good students, but parents, teachers and textbooks do not guide them properly. It is high time that the parents opened their eyes and seen the real state of affairs. They should see to it that their children come up in their life by acquiring proper education. They should encourage their children to pursue such type of education which will lead them to immortality. Of course, secular education is also necessary. But, secular education should be harmonised with spiritual education to mould the character of the students and make them better citizens of the country.

The End Of Education Should Be Character Students!

Do not feel proud that you are pursuing higher education. Along with higher education, you should cultivate noble qualities. Education bereft of virtues is useless. The end of education is character. Today many students read useless, even immoral fictions. The authorities should ensure that such books are not sold in the market. Students should read only such books which can improve their character. They should participate in sports and games in the true spirit. This advice would equally apply to the girl students as well. They question, When boys ride motor bikes, why can t we do the same? In this way they argue and waste their time. Nobody says that girls should not ride motor bikes. But one should act according to the time and circumstances. The number of fatal accidents of young people involved in two wheelers is on the increase. Parents make many sacrifices to bring up their children. But, if the precious lives of students are lost in motor cycle accidents, I can understand their agony.

Today, girls want to compete with boys in every field. They also aspire for name and fame. Their argument is, In what way are we inferior to boys? Why can t we acquire the same type of education as boys? However, each one should acquire such type of education that is appropriate and suitable to them. It is essential for women to look after their families well and shape the character of their children in an ideal manner. Along with inculcating virtues in children, they should also be given proper education. The present-day education is leading students in the wrong direction. Parents are to be partly blamed for this. They want their children to acquire high qualifications and get married to another highly qualified person. Some parents while trying to fix up marriage alliance ask, My daughter has completed her postgraduation. She is good. looking. What about your son? Has he completed his postgraduation? Is he handsome? In fact, beauty is related to character, not to the physical appearance. Beauty of character is what one should aspire for. Is it always possible to get a postgraduate bridegroom for a postgraduate bride? The present-day education is leading to unhealthy competition and con? icts. I do not say that girls should not pursue higher education. If I am against women s education, why should I establish women s colleges? I have established various educational institutions with the sole purpose of inculcating virtues in students. I am providing education free of cost. There are no examination fees even. My only aim is that students should acquire proper education, become ideal citizens and give happiness to their parents.

Students!

Do not misunderstand My words. I am telling you all this for your own welfare and progress. You should acquire such education which will bring a good name to you and uphold the reputation of your family. Do not become egoistic and take to wrong ways in the name of freedom. I quite often caution the boys not to look here and there while walking on the road. Some boys, while speeding on their motor bikes, keep looking at girls who are passing by. Their attention is diverted and they end up in accidents. If your character is good, you will always be protected. You should always keep your senses under control. You should always have a check on your vision, listening and speech. Buddha undertook various spiritual practices with a view to have mastery over his senses.

Why are the eyes given to you?

Is it to look here and there? No.

The eyes are meant to see the beautiful form of the Lord.

Why are the ears given to you?

Is it to listen to vain gossip? No.

The ears are meant to hear the glories of the Lord.

(Telugu poem)

The ears are given for hearing good words and putting them into practice and thereby lead a virtuous life. Having realised that God has given the sense organs for the purpose of leading a virtuous life, Buddha discarded all ritualised spiritual practices and put his senses to sacred use. He assured himself that what he had to achieve in life was virtues, and not sensual pleasures. He realised that conscience was his true Guru and made efforts to control his sense organs like eyes and tongue. If these two sense organs are controlled, all the other organs would automatically come under control. Having thus set a goal for himself in life, Buddha entered the wide world, after renouncing his wife and only child. I am not, however, advising you to leave your wife and children and go to the forest like Buddha. You look after them well and fulfil your responsibilities towards them. Teach your children noble qualities and bring them up in life. Lead a life of virtue. This is what Buddha taught. If you cultivate samyak drishti (right vision) like the Buddha, the whole world will be under your control.

Strive For A Virtuous Life

44 45

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37

Do not pay heed to the wrong advice of others.

Foster noble qualities. If you can control your senses, that itself amounts to realising the essence of the epic, Bhagavata. The study of the epic Bhagavata is meant to transform you into a man of virtue. Hence, control your senses and become a master of the world. This is what you have to strive for, today. Explain to your parents also about your priorities in life. Tell them, Mother! You expect me to go for a job which offers a fat salary. But, high salaries are not as important as a virtuous life. If we give preference to money instead of a noble life, our life itself will be ruined. When you keep your senses under control, you will become a person of noble qualities. You will also gain the strength of character. Hanuman, the illustrious servant of Lord Rama is an example of such noble qualities. He was extolled as santhudu, gunavantudu and balavantudu (calm and serene, one of virtues, one of mighty strength). He became a great Guru because of his noble qualities. We should emulate his noble qualities.

Dear Students!

You are like pure gold. You are people of noble qualities. You are precious. But, some of you are misguided by bad elements. Even if others try to mislead you, do not deviate from your chosen path. Stand firm. Only then will you acquire name and fame. This is My advice to the students. In today's education you are taught skills which will enable you to rise up in your career, but, nobody teaches moral education. Morality is the most important aspect of education. Money comes and goes, morality comes and grows. Therefore, cultivate morality. That will earn you respect from society. God is your sole refuge wherever you may be, be it in a forest or in the sky or in a city or in a village or on the top of a mountain or in the middle of a deep sea.

(Telugu poem)

Cultivate noble qualities. I shall give you everything. Nay, I shall give Myself to those who cultivate noble qualities and also to those who teach them. In fact, I am living only for their sake. I do not seek anything in return from them. Lead a life of character and nobility. Bring good name to your parents, your institution and to Swami.

Dear Students!

You are all men of noble qualities, but you are in? uenced by the contemporary society to a certain extent. Therefore, do not succumb to distracting in? uences. First and foremost, make proper use of your senses. Any elders you come across, revere them as your father and mother. Earn good name for yourself by your thoughts, words and deeds.

Join good company, speak good words, cultivate samyak drishti and pursue good education that will build your character this is what I expect from you, students.

46 47

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37

In fact, this is what your parents also wish for. No father or mother will expect their children to be spoiled. But, they are unable to advise the children properly and put them in order, out of some sort of inhibition. Of course, I have no such qualms. Therefore, I am advising you, with all the emphasis at My command, to see good, be good and do good. Cultivate noble qualities. Thyaga (sacrifice) is the noblest of all qualities, not bhoga (indulgence). In fact, bhoga will lead you to roga (disease). The Veda has proclaimed Na karmana na prajaya dhanena thyagenaike amrutatthwamanasu (immortality is not attained through action, progeny or wealth; it is attained only by sacrifice). Hence, Bangaru! (My dear golden students) cultivate such noble qualities as thyaga. I am prepared to sacrifice everything for you. But, you must also be in a position to receive My grace. I am yours and you are Mine. That should be the relationship between us. Try to understand Swami's love. All this is meant to advise you to tread the right path. Do not go against the wishes of your parents. If, by any chance, you have to differ from their views, explain to them lovingly your viewpoint. They will also feel happy that you have respected their feelings. The Veda has declared, Matru devo bhava, Pitru devo bhava, Acharya devo bhava, Atithi devo bhava (revere your mother, father, preceptor and guest as God). Speak sweetly and softly to your parents. Convince them, if necessary. I am prepared to sacrifice anything for the sake of such students. Several students join our educational institutions. Some of them may not be in a position to pay fees. Therefore, we have decided that all education in Sathya Sai institutions should be totally free and no fees be collected from the students. You should be free from all anxieties and enjoy peace. By conforming to good behaviour only can peace be obtained. Several students today wish to enjoy good things in life, but are following wrong methods. They wish to partake of sugar, but consume bitter pills. They say one thing and do another. That is why it is said Manasyekam vachasyekam karmanyekam mahatmanam Manasyanyat vachasyanyath karmanyanyath duratmanam (those whose thoughts, words and deeds are in perfect harmony are noble ones; those who lack harmony of these are wicked)

I like such students whose thoughts, words and deeds are in perfect accord. I am prepared to sacrifice anything for them, nay, I will give away Myself to such people.

Dear Students!

Knowingly or unknowingly you might have committed mistakes in the past. But, at least in future, cultivate good qualities and try to keep your parents as well as Swami always happy.

(Swami called students from Primary School,

48 49

[Sankranti Message, 15-1-2004, Prasanthi Nilayam]

Love Is The Royal Path To Realise God

The sacred feet of the Lord are as vast as the cosmos, as pervasive as the sky. They reach even Patala Loka (lower world). His sacred crown lies beyond Bhrahmanda (cosmos). He is inaccessible, imperceptible and incomparable.

(Kannada poem)

Embodiments of Love! Students, Teachers and Educators!

I FIND it difficult to deliver a speech in Kannada language. It requires regular practice.

If you do an activity regularly, you become adept in it. I get a chance to speak in Kannada very rarely, not always. N. Kasturi stayed at Prasanthi Nilayam for about 30 years and he was always with Me. He made good use of this golden opportunity for Seva Sadhana.

50 51

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37

Kasturi was a well-known creative writer in Kannada. He was popularly known as Kannada Kasturi. He was very pure and sacred. Just by looking at his respectable personality one could make out the fragrance and sacredness of Kannada language. It is likely that I may make some mistakes here and there while speaking such an extremely fragrant language.

Pioneering Efforts Of Narayana Bhat

Narayana Bhat established two schools in Karnataka one at Alike in Dakshina Kannada district and another at Muddenahalli in Kolar district. Following Sathya Sai educational principles, he worked very hard for a long period of time to develop them into model schools (loud applause). In order to develop the schools, he had to take loan from various sources and also from a large number of his well-wishers. But he had to struggle hard to pay off the loan. He and his mother went to so many villages and towns and approached several persons for raising money. But the debts went on increasing and never showed any sign of coming down. On one occasion, Narayana Bhat approached Me and brie? y explained how those outstanding debts were causing him a lot of worry. He prayed to Me, Swami, Anyatha sharanam nasti, Twameva sharanam mama, Tasmat karunyabhavena. (I have no other refuge except You. You are my saviour. Show mercy on me and protect me.) Swami, I beg and plead with You, please take over these two schools and put new life into them.. Then I said to him, Narayana Bhat! Health and education are essential for all. I know that. But right now, don't give them to Me. You look after them as long as you can. I encouraged him to go ahead with his service activities. I blessed him and said, Be happy. Carry on teaching spiritual truths. Later on, Narayana Bhat worked with much more zeal and vigour. These institutions made rapid progress. They were hailed as model schools. He was indeed a beacon light for all spiritual-seekers and service-minded persons. Yad bhavam tad bhavathi (As is the feeling, so is the result). Soon many good teachers joined him. They were all men of character, intelligence and sacrifice. They renounced everything and stood by him steadfastly. Presently, all those dedicated teachers together are running the institutions very efficiently. Noble Ideals Set By Alike And Muddenahalli Institutions

Narayana Bhat carried on his mission and worked tirelessly day in and day out. But his time was drawing near. This body goes with time. Kalaya namah, Kala kalaya namah, Kaladarpa damanaya namah, Kalatheethaya namah, Kalaswarupaya namah, Kalaniyamitaya namah (salutations to time, to the one who is beyond time, to the one who has conquered time, to the one who transcends time, to the one who is the embodiment of time, and to the one who ordains time). Time is supreme. Everyone has to bow down to time. As time moved on, all of a sudden, Narayana Bhat met 52 53

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 with a car accident in 1978. The accident proved fatal and he left his mortal coil at once. The organization lost its mother. It was orphaned. Then Gangadhara Bhat, Narayana Rao, Narasimha Murthy and others came to Me and said, Swami, that day You made a promise that You would look after these institutions. Kindly take over these schools and protect us all. They intensely prayed and pleaded with Me.

My intention is to give proper direction to the present educational system. I always encourage any good move in this direction. Vidya has an important role in the life of man. Life without vidya is useless. One has to learn real Vidya and share it with others to lead them on the righteous path. That is what I intend to do in the field of education. If I took Alike and Muddenahalli institutions, I had to bear the burden of those debts standing against them. It was not a meagre sum. It was ten lakh rupees of those days! But all the teachers were praying; Swami, You are our Lord, You are our saviour. You have to save us. My heart melted at their sincere prayer. Instantaneously, I took over those institutions and cleared all their outstanding debts once and for all. From then onwards, I used to visit Muddenahalli while travelling between Prasanthi Nilayam and Brindavan. I would talk to those dear children and enthuse them. Darshanam papa nashanam, Sparshanam karma vimochanam, Sambhashanam sankata nashanam (sight of the Lord destroys all sins, His touch frees from Karmic consequences, conversation with Him destroys all sufferings). Thus, I gave them Darshan, Sparshan and Sambhashan. The teachers too felt encouraged and happy. Being free from all worries and problems, the teachers worked with relaxed mind and brought the institutions to this level. Now the institutions do not have the burden of debt. The schools have made a considerable progress attracting the attention of the world. The teachers are very good. They recognize the good qualities in each other and adopt them in their lives and thereby raise their moral and spiritual levels. They do not get into bad and demeaning company. You are judged by the company you keep. Tell me your company, I shall tell you what you are. Association plays crucial role in one's spiritual life. Teachers should always relish the company of the good and thereby work for the growth of the institution. The teachers of Alike and Muddenahalli are doing it. They are developing the inner strength of the schools. The schools have been showing excellent progress. They have now reached college stage. They have already won a lot of fame. People call them Sathya Sai Loka Seva Colleges. They will become full-fledged colleges in a few years. To reach the same standard, the remaining institutions of the Sai Organisation will have to put in a lot of effort.

The day-scholars in these institutions come from distant places. Some students walk some distance and then catch a bus and reach the schools. The heads of the schools and teachers cooperate with each other and help 54 55

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 each other to make good progress and march towards perfection. The students there have a high moral and spiritual standard. Students should totally avoid bad company. You should always associate with the good. You should always join the group of students who are good in their speech, behaviour and actions. By doing so, you will reach the height of eminence. In Treta Yuga, Lakshmana closely observed Hanuman and reported to Rama: Swami, Hanuman is virtuous and mighty. He serves Sugriva very competently. It is Sugriva a good fortune to have the satsanga of Hanuman. The company of Hanuman will help Sugriva and remove all his sufferings. In the same way, students should become good by associating themselves with good company. Going to Muddenahalli is what I always like. In the past, I frequently went there and saw those children and guided the teachers with timely advice. But the times have changed. Under these changed circumstances, I cannot go there so easily as I was doing in the past. Now hundreds of vehicles follow Me. It is very difficult to provide even a minimum hospitality to so many people. Why should I put those teachers to trouble unnecessarily? That is why I have reduced the number of these visits.

Dedication And Devotion Of Gangadhara Bhat

Let us talk about Alike now. Alike was also handed over to Me along with Muddenahalli school. It is not near but far from here. It is not possible to personally go there quite often. That does not mean that I don't like to go there. They have been praying for My going to Alike for so many years. Especially on one particular occasion, Gangadhara Bhat pressed Me so much that I had no option but to yield to his intense prayers. He, in fact, said, Swami, we are getting old. Once at least You should come to our village. You are our Redeemer. You have to grant us salvation. He prostrated and intensely prayed to Me. I finally yielded to his feelings and emotions. At once I rented a helicopter and went there. You must know why I had to hurry to Alike. Gangadhara Bhat's prayer came straight from his heart.

Even now, except Gangadhara Bhat, there is no one who can shoulder that great responsibility and lead the institution towards progress. That is why I said to him, Gangadhara Bhat, you must stay there only. You remain there as My re? action. For every action, there is a re? action, reaction and resound. You have to conduct yourself in such a way that your words should re? ect My views. You must have a feeling that the places you go about are the ones Swami has already trodden. While carrying out your duty, do it with a feeling that it is in fact Swami personally doing it. You must not leave the institution. After I told him firmly, Gangadhara Bhat took up the assignment as per Swami's command and marched along by putting his heart and soul in all the duties he performed. Right now both the institutions are making good progress. Seeing them itself gives Me great pleasure and happiness. Now they are developing at a 56 57

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 quick pace. What you saw there yesterday, you will not see it now. Growth is rapid there. It has become possible because of the efforts of the dedicated teachers.

Understand The Real Meaning Of Educare

Our schools and colleges (Prasanthi Nilayam, Brindavan, Anantapur) have also shown considerable progress. As the growth is inward, it is not possible for all to recognize it. This inner growth is educare. Educare brings out our latent sacred values. Values are not to be taught but manifested. Mere accumulation of information from various books is not educare; it is education. Educare is the blossoming of the Divine Lotus in our heart. Educare enables us to be not just receptors but vibrators and radiators of values to all creation. Values are to be translated into action. That means, both precept and practice are equally important. How to put the principles of educare into practice? Many modern boys and girls have no knowledge about these principles. It is absolutely necessary that every student should know all about educare and its importance. The latent powers in each student have to be brought out. These powers must play their part in all his activities as re? action, reaction and resound. Thus, the process of education has to work in such a way as to transform the students into re? actions of their latent powers. They are to be moulded properly and shaped beautifully. Our institutions bring out ideal students and present them to the world.

Sathyanasti paro dharma. (There is no Dharma greater than adherence to truth). You shall not tell anything but truth. What has happened should be reported truthfully. What all you have done, you should say it exactly. This is what most people say and believe when they give the meaning of truth. But this is only one dimension of the vast interpretation of truth. Similarly, you must understand that Educare has much deeper meaning. In fact, Sathya (truth) is educare; Dharma (righteousness) is educare. It is truth and righteousness which protected India from all dangers. Sathya and Dharma do not come from outside. All that comes from outside is not permanent. Today it comes, tomorrow it goes. But what comes out from one's heart is permanent. Educare comes from the heart and it has to go to other hearts only.

Recently, Vice Chancellors of 25 famous universities of India came to our Institute to take part in a Seminar on Value Education. They were all very eager to know about educare. They also wanted to know the workable method for introducing it into their curriculum.

Vidyannasti parodharma. (There is no Dharma greater than Vidya). Therefore, one has to acquire real Vidya. Heart is the source of real vidya. Mere accumulation of information is not vidya. Vidya is eternal bliss. Real vidya is educare. But head is the source of education. Educare starts from the source of the heart and comes out through buddhi (intellect) whereas education is merely 58 59

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 bookish knowledge emerging from the mind. Educare

is Buddhigrahyamateendriyam (Educare transcends the senses and can be grasped only by the intellect).

Saturate All Your Actions With Love

Whatever activities you do, love should be their foundation. There is no Prana (life) without love. Life without love is of no use at all. Education system should be so transformed as to develop love principle in one's heart. Sathya (truth) and Dharma (righteousness) are the re? ections of Prema (love). They give you the much desired Prasanthi (supreme peace). If love springs out from your heart, it is enough. It will give you salvation.

In Dwapara Yuga, Gopikas said to Krishna, Lord!

Kindly pour down the nectar of love on our barren hearts. Sow the seeds of love. May the ? ood of love ? ow from our hearts! (Kannada poem) They earnestly prayed to Krishna to fulfil their heart's yearnings. If the world is to prosper, the rain of love should pour on it. The sacred land of Bharat has been laying great emphasis on the importance of devotion and surrender since ancient times. It has set lofty ideals for mankind in all spheres of life.

Every being has love in his heart. If we do not have love, we are not human. Love is with us from our birth. We have got this body because of the merits of our previous births. The body becomes sacred only if it is saturated with love. So, you must cultivate love principle. Then your life becomes holy. You must cultivate love towards all beings regardless of what they are or what they do. It is natural for children to show love towards their parents. But it is important that they should be so moulded that they develop love for the entire mankind. Love comprises all aspects of Vidya.

The knowledge that the students acquire in schools and colleges is only information-oriented. Mere bookish knowledge is not of great importance. Expansion of love is very important. Your thoughts have to be purified. Only pure hearts comprehend God. Intellectual reasoning does not help you to realise God. Pure thought is another name for pure life. Love is God. God has no form except love. I wish that you all install love principle in the deep recesses of your heart.

Love is your Prana (life). It is enough if you have love. Love redeems all. Love wards off all suffering, hardships, pains and agonies. Love is nectarous in form.

Srunvantu viswe amrutasya putrah (Oh, the children of immortality! Listen). You are amritaputra, not anritaputra (sons of untruth). Do not weaken yourself by considering yourself as sons of untruth. Feel that you are amritaputra. Then the tree of love will grow in your heart and give you the fruit of atmic bliss.

Do not be attached to the body. Get rid of body attachment. You have to realise the atmic principle.

Immerse yourself in the ocean of atmic consciousness.

60 61

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37

As long as you have body attachment, you will not understand the atmic principle. You have to do selfinquiry

Who am I? From where have I come? Whither am I going? How long will I be here? The entire spiritual inquiry begins with these questions. When you feel that you are the Atma, you start contemplating on the atmic principle. What is Atma, what is Atma? , you think seriously about it. By making such an inquiry, you will understand the atmic principle.

All objects have both name and form. But the atma has no name or form. If you understand the atmic principle, you will understand the Paramatma principle. That is parama thriпти (supreme satisfaction), parama asha (supreme hope), parama gamya (supreme goal), parama sathya (supreme truth). In order to realise amrutwa (immortality), you have to become the embodiment of love. You have to radiate love. You have to treat everyone as your brother and sister. Whether others talk to you or not, you have to consider them as your own brother. If you are able to put it into practice in all walks of life, love will grow in your heart. You may have some enemies. You think that they hate you. Don't consider them as your enemies. Don't hate them. Instead whenever you happen to meet them talk to them lovingly and ask, How are you, brother? Then their feeling of enmity will suffer defeat in an instant. Their extreme dislike towards you will vanish and love will spring forth from their heart. Naturally, you will become friends. When love occupies your heart, jealousy, hatred, etc., cannot enter it. You will get absolute peace. People say, We want peace, we want peace. Peace does not fall from heaven. It has to come from love. Love is the royal path to realise God.

What is the purpose of your birth as a human being?

It is not just eating, loitering and merry-making. You must understand that you are born to realise the love principle. If love blossoms in your heart, you yourself will become Paramatma (God). You need not look for God here and there. He is in you. He is in the form of love. There is no escape from dualism as long as man does not recognize his inherent divinity. You should expand your love. Live in love.

Sel? ess Service Is Real Penance

At this juncture, I would like to say something more about Gangadhara Bhat. He was Narayana Bhat s trusted follower and a dependable person. He was verily his right hand. Once Narayana Bhat said to him, Gangadhara Bhat! Serve sincerely for the well-being of the institution. Whenever you run into difficulty, pray to Bhagawan Sathya Sai. Then He will personally take care of you all. From that day onwards till today Gangadhara Bhat has fully depended on Swami. He has unshakeable faith in Swami. Swami is his Paramatma. He firmly believes that Sai Paramatma will lead him. He has such a feeling of surrender. He performs his duties with devotion and dedication. He is working sincerely for the progress of both Alike and Muddenahalli

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 institutions. In fact, they have ? ourished under his honest leadership. I went to Alike two years ago (in 2002). I was wonderstruck on seeing the total transformation of Alike. When I went to Alike for the first time in 1979, there were only a few small buildings. Now Alike has become a town. That itself is not greatness. Its greatness lies in its inner strength. Mere buildings will not suffice. People construct expensive houses and tall buildings in towns and cities. They consider their houses as everything. They don't have purity of heart. Their hearts brim with evil thoughts and evil schemes. Such men do not understand the love principle. Purity in thought, word and deed is a basic requisite for man.

Thus, Gangadhara Bhat has been running the organization braving all hardships and unpleasant situations. Once he said to Me, Swami, it is not possible for me to manage all the affairs effectively. I am getting old. It requires both physical and mental strength. Swami, I request You earnestly to appoint any good person who will manage everything very well. As a matter of fact, all are good in My view. No one is bad. People think that they are bad. That is all. It is their feeling only. Badness exists in our thoughts. As love is in everyone, all are good. I said to Gangadhara Bhat: Don't leave your post. You remain in the same position. Do not worry. I will always help you and lead you. I will look after everything.

My words gave him courage and confidence. He has been continuing his work with enthusiasm. Where can he go if he relinquishes the post? He will have to go somewhere else and do Thapas (penance). What is penance? Simply spending time, doing nothing is not penance. Simply sitting at a place and reciting Rama, Rama, Krishna, Krishna is also not penance. Real penance lies in doing good work constantly, having good thoughts always and developing good qualities in oneself. Leaving one's home, going to forest, doing shirshasana (standing on one's head) and publicising. I am doing penance, is not at all penance. It is indeed false penance. Foster love in your heart; talk lovingly; do all work with love. Be in love. This is real penance. The teachers of Alike and Muddenahalli are doing real penance. (loud prolonged applause). This is how these schools produce students with purity of heart. I am happy to see all these students who have come here for the function. Today small children came to the dais and spoke beautifully. They gave a beautiful description of the Atma. Especially one high school boy spoke with heart full of love. What a sincere feeling he has! I am really delighted. That is real Vidya. I often tell the authorities of our Institute to give topmost priority to the boys of Alike and Muddenahalli while making selection for our colleges. Sometimes, these students may lag behind a little in Jagath Sathya (worldly knowledge). But they know Atma Sathya (atmic knowledge) very well. I am always telling everyone here not to leave them. Here, a little boy spoke with feeling of love. He expressed his love for Me in beautiful words. I am very much pleased.

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 It is what I want. I do not want that you come forward to offer the whole world to Me. I want your love. Give me your love. This is enough for Me. The seed of love should sprout in the field of your heart. Later on, it will grow into a kalpavriksha (wish-fulfilling tree). Then the world will ? ourish.

Students!

You have to follow the instructions of your parents.

Mathru devo bhava, Pithru devo bhava (Revere your mother and father as God). You have come from your parents. Mother is the maker of your fortune. She is responsible for your progress. Don't act against her wishes. Don't oppose her words. Treat your mother with love. Then you will get your mother's grace. Mother is Lokamatha (mother of the universe), Jaganmatha (mother of the world). Don't think that she is related to your body only. She is the Jaganmatha who has come in the form of your mother. Gangadhara Bhat served his mother tenderly and lovingly. As a result of his sincere service to his mother, he got Swami. That is why Swami has kept him so near and dear. (loud applause)

Our Narasimha Murthy (now Warden, Brindavan) came to Prasanthi Nilayam and took charge as Warden. One day, he came to Me and said, Swami, my mother is serious. She has cancer. I asked him, Foolish boy! You are telling me, mother is serious. Which mother? That is your body's mother. Body's mother is not permanent. You take hold of the permanent mother, eternal mother. After some days, he came to Me again and said, Swami, mother passed away. I comforted Narasimha Murthy and said, Narasimha Murthy, stay here itself. Don't leave Puttaparthi. This is your birthplace. Swami is your mother. I will look after everything. Narasimha Murthy's mother was a noble soul. She would often say, Narasimha Murthy, even in adverse situations, don't go away from Swami. Stay with Him always. (loud applause). All mothers are suffused with love principle. They pray to so many gods and goddesses for the wellbeing and progress of their children. Try to understand your mother's sel? ess love. All should look after their mothers lovingly.

Concentration Of Mind On The Divine

Is Real Sadhana

NACHIKETA, son of Vajasravas, prayed to Lord Yama to teach him Atma vidya. Then, Lord Yama said, Oh, the son of immortality! Listen. First establish your link with the source from which you have come into the world. He also advised Nachiketa that since the body was perishable like a water bubble and the mind was fickle and unstable, he should transcend both and realise the fundamental truth.

The Lord of Kailasa has manifested his Divine form with the crescent moon adorning his head, the cool water of the Ganga ? owing between the matted locks, with his radiant eye in the middle of the forehead and the purple neck gleaming like the sheen of a blackberry. He wears serpent 68 69

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 bracelets and a snake belt, his entire body is smeared with Vibhuti, his forehead is adorned with a Kumkum dot, his ruddy lips glow with the juice of the betel, diamond-studded gold earrings dangle from his ears and his whole swarthy body glows with divine effulgence.

(Telugu poem)

Nachiketa! You need not search for Lord Easwara, for He is very much present in you, said Lord Yama.

Comprehend The Transcendental Reality

Dear Students and Devotees!

You have to understand the true significance and philosophy underlying the festival of Sivarathri. First realise that you are not the physical body which is perishable and impermanent. You have to look at this objective world with jnana chakshu (the eyes of wisdom), not with charma chakshu (physical eyes). The animals, insects, birds and beasts look at this world with their physical eyes. If you also look at this objective world with physical eyes, then what is the difference between you and other living beings? If you remain at animal level, then how can you realise your true nature? You have to comprehend the transcendental reality which is beyond the body and the mind. This is possible only with the help of jnana chakshu (eyes of wisdom). The body is like a water bubble. It will disappear one day or the other. You are not the body that has birth, growth, decay and death ultimately. Therefore, Lord Yama exhorted Nachiketa to realise the atmathathwa that has no birth and death.

Then, the question arises as to what is the Atma?

The Atma is formless, infinite, indescribable and immeasurable.

Nirgunam, Niranjanam, Sanathana Niketanam,

Nitya, Shuddha, Buddha, Mukta, Nirmala Swarupinam

(Atma is attributeless, pure, final abode, eternal, unsullied, enlightened, free and embodiment of sacredness).

Such an atmatattwa is immanent in every individual, nay, in every being in the form of consciousness. Your life as a human being will acquire a meaning and purpose only when you realise the consciousness. Enquiries relating to worldly matters are meaningless and an exercise in futility. Lord Yama exhorted Nachiketa to realise that principle, having realised which he would have realised everything else. The body has birth, growth, decay and death. But the Atma is not subject to all these changes. It is the eternal witness of everything in the universe. You have therefore to realise the atmatattwa.

Thus taught Lord Yama to Nachiketa.

The Atma is eternal without birth or death. It has no beginning, middle or end. It is omnipresent and eternal witness.

(Telugu poem)

Look! Several electric bulbs are shining here.

70 71

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37

Though the bulbs are of different sizes, colours and capacity, the electrical energy manifesting as light through them is one and the same. Similarly, the same divine power is present in every living being and makes it function. That is atmatattwa. I often refer to the terms Sathya (Truth), Dharma (righteous conduct), Santhi (peace) and Prema (love). Sathya is the electricity, Dharma is the wire through which the electric current passes. Santhi is the bulb and Prema is the light. If you want to attain atmananda (atmic bliss), you have to follow Sathya and Dharma. That is why the ancient culture of Bharat laid great emphasis on Sathyam vada (speak truth), Dharmam chara (practise righteousness). In contrast to this noble principle, what is happening today? Sathyam vadha (truth is being killed) and Dharmam chera (righteous conduct is being imprisoned). No, No. This is not humanness. Speak truth and observe righteousness.

Lord Yama told Nachiketa, This human body which is like a water bubble is bound to burst one day or the other. Therefore, realise that atmatattwa which is real and eternal. You can recognise that atmatattwa, not by your charma chakshu (physical eyes) but by jnana chakshu (eyes of wisdom). Then, the question arises as to what is Jnana (wisdom)? Is it physical knowledge or secular knowledge or knowledge relating to the objects of Nature? No, none of these. Experiencing the principle of non-dualism is true wisdom (advaita darsanam jnanam). Atma transcends the name and form. Lord Yama, therefore, exhorted Nachiketha to attain atmajnana.

Today, people are going mad in search of spiritual knowledge. They adopt umpteen number of practices and bodily postures and call it spiritual sadhana. But, none of these can help to attain Atmajnana. What is important is prema (love) which is the undercurrent of all forms of spiritual sadhana. Realising the perishable nature of this deha (body), one has to realise the indweller (dehi), who is none other than the eternal Atma.

Give Up Attachment To Body

The body is made up of five elements and is bound to perish sooner or later but the indweller has neither birth nor death. The indweller has no attachment whatsoever and is the eternal witness. Truly speaking, the indweller who is in the form of the Atma is verily God Himself.

(Telugu poem)

The true and eternal atmatattwa is immanent in one's own body. It can be realised only by the jnana netras (eyes of wisdom). You have to gradually give up dehabhimana (attachment to the body) and cultivate atmabhimana (love for the atma). You think you are the body and develop attachment to it. So long as the process of inhalation and exhalation continues in the body, you consider it as yours. Once the process comes to a halt, 72 73

you will not know what is happening around.

The human body, though of perishable nature, teaches one great lesson, namely, SOHAM (you are nothing but the eternal atmatattwa). When you inhale, your breath, you make the sound So and while exhaling you make the sound Ham. The inhaling process represents life and exhaling represents death. If you wish to overcome life and death, one moment is enough. You have to give up body attachment, which I am demonstrating right before you day in and day out. This body which I have taken upon Myself is undergoing several types of suffering. Just as you suffer from physica ailments, this body also suffers. But I do not attach importance to this suffering. Several students and devotees have expressed anxiety and concern that I might undergo a lot of suffering while the Linga emerges from My body. No doubt, your apprehensions are true; but, I do not feel any suffering. In fact, it is only when I identify Myself with the body I undergo pain. Since I am not the body, I do not suffer any pain.

For example, this is a handkerchief (Bhagawan holding a handkerchief in His hands) As long as you consider this kerchief as yours, you pick it up, wipe your face and carefully put it back in its original place. Just because the kerchief is yours, do you accept it if there is dirt on it? No, never. You at once discard it. In the same manner, you should realise that you are different from the body. You should not attach any importance to the suffering of the body. All those objects which you consider as yours have to be discarded one day or the other. When you do not consider something as yours, you do not feel any pain in discarding it. This body underwent several types of suffering, the recent one being a fracture in the hip bone.

The body is after all a conglomeration of indriyas (senses). Whatever has happened is only to the body and not to Me. When you adopt this attitude, you will get peace. For example, when you find an ant crawling on your hand, if you try to scratch it, you will have more pain. After all, why should you have to suffer so much on account of a small insect like an ant crawling over your body? It is only because you are under the illusion that you are the body. The eye sees something. But what it sees may not be real since it is bound to undergo change after some time. What the ears have heard may undergo change after some time. In the same way, the food we eat will also undergo change after a few hours. There is nothing that is permanent in this world. You have to realise this truth. You have to enquire as to what it is that remains unchanged in the past, present and future. If I teach you this simple truth by quoting Sanskrit slokas and mantras, you may not be able to understand. If this is related to your day-to-day experience, you will understand it better.

Some time back, when My hip bone got fractured, I was taken to the hospital. The doctors were planning 74 75

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37
for performing a major orthopaedic surgery. I told them, You can do whatever you wish to. This body is yours. I am not the body. I am not under the control of the body. I am I. The doctors performed a major operation on this body. But I did not suffer any pain. Whatever pain was there, only the body suffered, not Me. If you also adopt a similar attitude, you will not feel any pain. Therefore, reduce your Dehabhimana (attachment to the body) gradually.

Cultivate Pure And Sel? ess Love

All of you are undertaking some sort of sadhana.

What exactly is the real meaning of sadhana? Give up body attachment and try to experience atmic bliss. How do you attain that bliss? It can be attained only through prema (love). If only there is pure love, all your suffering will be removed. Therefore, cultivate pure and sel? ess love. Supposing, you came across a person on the road who is inimical to you. If you hate him and move away from him considering him as your enemy, the distance between you and him increases further. On the other hand, if you greet him lovingly saying Hello! how are you? , naturally he would respond with love. Thus, when you both greet each other lovingly, there will be no scope for hate persisting any more. As is your feeling towards others, so is their feeling. The same idea is contained in the Vedic declaration: Yadbhavam Thadbhavati (As is your feeling, so shall you become). Today, we are directing all our negative feelings on others. We should not however bear any ill-will against anybody. Whatever negative feelings are there, they are just passing clouds. They come and go. The sun may not be visible when it is covered by thick clouds. The moment the clouds move away, the sun is visible. Similarly, when your negative feelings scatter away, what remains is pure love. You can achieve anything in this world with love. In fact, you can get the entire world under your control through love. People say they are sitting in meditation, both morning and evening. But, what kind of meditation is going on? What benefit are they deriving out of it? How long is its effect lasting? Not even a moment. Remember, all worldly matters are like passing clouds. Therefore, do not enagage yourself much in them.

Once Chaitanya Mahaprabhu was walking through the market place, chanting the divine name. In fact, he was dancing in ecstasy. Some people on seeing him thought he was a madcap. They snatched away his mridanga. But, he did not resent for this. He started chanting the divine name while beating the cymbals. The irate onlookers took away the cymbals also. Even then he was not bothered. He thought perhaps God did not like his beating the cymbals. He resolved not to touch the cymbals which he tought were not to the liking of God. He consoled himself saying whatever musical instruments were taken away from him, were not to God's liking. God's will prevails ultimately. Such was his faith. From then onwards, he gave up all worldly attachments and concentrated on prematattwa (principle of love), which none could take away from him. One has to aspire for that which cannot be taken away by others. That is pure love. A printed matter on a piece of paper cannot be separated from it. Likewise, your heart should be like a pure white paper and love the printed matter. These two are inseparable. Cultivate such love. Love is your sole refuge wherever you may be, in a forest, in the sky, in a city or a village, on the top of a mountain or in the middle of deep sea. (Telugu poem)

Wherever you may be, divine love will protect you always. Cultivate such type of love. That is the real sadhana. Sadhana is not something that is associated with dhana (money). Sadhana stands for salokya, sameepya, sarupya and Sayujya (perception of the Divine, proximity to the Divine, identity with the Divine, merger with the Divine). Unfortunately, today people do not understand the real meaning of sadhana. Students! You are reading big books written by elders. However, mere reading will not help. When you read a pustaka (book), whatever is contained in it will enter your mastaka (head). This means both the pustaka and mastaka become one. You should not stop at that, Whatever has been stored in the mastaka must get into the heart, where it will remain for ever.

Embodiments of Divine Atma!

Atma is divine. Never forget this aspect. Some people find happiness in physical sadhana. But, the pleasure they derive out of it is only physical and temporary in nature. All that is associated with time is bound to disappear one day or the other. You have to attach yourself to that which is permanent, eternal and real. God's love is beyond all description. It is supreme. On the other hand, the physical love is momentary and is associated with physical relationship. Whatever is associated with the body comes and goes. But, pure and sel? ess love which emerges from the heart comes and grows. You have to cultivate such love. It will never diminish. You need not have to beg for this from somebody. You cannot purchase this from the market either, since it is not a saleable commodity. God is the only source from whom love ? ows. It is available only in His shop. Therefore, find out a way to reach Him. Unfortunately, today people do not aspire to acquire such pure love in spite of being very near to the source of such love. They do not even realise that this invaluable gift is available right in front of them. People crave for worldly favours and objects, thinking there is great happiness in possessing them. No. They can never give real happiness. The happiness arising out of worldly things is only momentary. Only God's love is eternal principle. Therefore, love such Divine Love. You cannot get it from anywhere else except from God.

God has neither birth nor death. He has neither beginning nor end. He is present in all beings as the eternal witness.

(Telugu poem)

Renunciation Leads To Liberation

God's love is the only truth. It will never change.

Worship such changeless Truth. Seek refuge in that Truth. That is the only real sadhana for attaining liberation. What is meant by moksha (liberation)? Is it living in some palatial building with air-conditioned rooms, located in heaven above? No, not at all. To get rid of moha (attachment) is true moksha (liberation). You have to give up body attachment in the first instance.

Once you get rid of body attachment, you will naturally develop vairagya (renunciation), which will ultimately lead you to liberation. Love is the only path that can lead you to liberation.

You might have heard the story of Mandana Misra,

a scholar of great repute. His wife, Ubhayabharathi, too, was a great scholar. When Adi Sankara was proceeding on his victory march, he met Mandana Misra and entered into a scholarly debate with him. It was decided that Mandana Misra would take to sanyasa if he was defeated in the debate. Ubhayabharathi was chosen to be the adjudicator of the contest. Will anyone accept such a proposal wherein the rival's wife acts as the adjudicator?

But Adi Sankara had no hesitation to accept her as the adjudicator, for he knew that Ubhayabharathi strictly adhered to the principle of truth in letter and spirit. She was impartial in her judgement and declared Sankara

to be the winner. Mandana Misra took to sanyasa in accordance with the terms and conditions of the debate.

Ubhayabharathi, being his ardhangi (better half),

followed suit.

Ubhayabharathi lived in a hermitage near the bank of the river Ganga. Many women became her disciples.

Every day in the morning, they used to go to the bank of the Ganga to have a bath. On the way, there lived

a sanyasi, whom people considered as Brahmajnani

(knower of brahma). He had renounced the world to attain true wisdom. However, he was very much attached to a dried bottle-gourd in which he used to preserve water. One day he was lying down, using it as a pillow, lest someone should steal it. Ubhayabharathi observed this and asked her disciples as to who he was. One of the disciples said that he was known as Brahmajnani.

Then Ubhayabharathi remarked, Though he is one of wisdom, he is attached to his bottle-gourd which he is using as his pillow. The so-called Brahmajnani heard their conversation and became angry. When Ubhayabharathi and her disciples were returning from the Ganga, he threw away the bottle-gourd on the road, just to show that he was not attached to it. Seeing this,

Ubhayabharathi at once remarked, I thought there was only one defect in him - abhimana (attachment). Now

I realise that he has another defect also - ahamkara

(ego). How can one with ahamkara and abhimana be a jnani? Her comment was an eye opener for the sanyasi.

80 81

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37

Immediately, he fell at the feet of Ubhayabharathi and prayed to her to teach him true knowledge.

Seeing multiplicity is ajnana (ignorance); seeing unity in multiplicity is jnana (wisdom). Ubhayabharathi

imparted such sacred teachings and transformed the individuals. As she understood the principle of unity, she ultimately attained liberation. On the other hand,

Mandana Misra could not attain liberation as he was immersed in worldly feelings. Ubhayabharathi started preaching and propagating the path of wisdom. She became the guru of one and all. A true guru is one who dispels the darkness of ignorance and lights the lamp of wisdom. That which remains changeless in all the three periods of time is true wisdom. People accepted

Ubhayabharathi as their guru because her thought, word,

and deed were in complete harmony. Manasyekam vachasyekam karmanyekam mahatmanam (Those whose thoughts, words and deeds are in perfect harmony are noble ones)

Manonashanam (annihilation of the mind) is what you should strive for. You should have desire for God and nothing else. You should not get entangled in the worldly relationships. That is true wisdom.

The teachings of Ubhayabharathi spread far and wide and she became highly reputed for her wisdom.

Even today there are many such people of wisdom.

Without men of merit and wisdom, how can there be light in the world? However, wisdom cannot be acquired from individuals. It can be acquired only by developing love for God. A beggar who comes to our doorstep begs for alms saying Bhavati bhiksham dehi. He addresses dehi (indweller) and not deha (physical body). In this manner, you can learn profound spiritual truth even from a beggar.

Be A True Devotee By Fixing Your Mind On God

One may acquire a high academic qualification

such as M.A. and B.A. and attain exalted position,

One may amass wealth, perform acts of charity

and attain name and fame,

One may have physical strength and enjoy a long and healthy life,
One may be a great scholar studying and preaching the Vedas,
But none can equal a true devotee of the Lord.
(Telugu poem)

No doubt, worldly education is also essential to eke out a livelihood, but it cannot impart true wisdom. Only Atmavidya (knowledge of the Self) can grant you everlasting happiness. However, secular education is also essential to take care of your physical needs. You should not give it up altogether. Worldly education is Negative and spiritual education is Positive. Both are essential for happiness here and hereafter.

Students! You should become masters in both forms 82 83

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37
of knowledge, secular and spiritual like Ubhayabharathi.
But always remember that only atmic knowledge is true knowledge. Once you acquire it, you would have acquired everything else.

Last night, I came to Sai Kulwant Hall at 1 o'clock. It is during this auspicious time that the divine lingas emerge from Kailasa. The lingas emerge of their own accord at the Divine Will. I saw several students and devotees singing bhajans with great devotion. But who are the real devotees? I observed that only a few people were singing with real devotion and a pure heart constantly contemplating on the Divine name. There were thousands of people participating in the bhajans. But not all of them are real devotees. Their body was present in the hall but their mind was not fixed on God. They were mechanically participating in bhajans. This is not real devotion. Wherever you sit, whether in the prayer hall, or elsewhere, if your thoughts are fixed on God, then you are a true devotee, and you will attain His grace. If you feel sleepy, you can sleep. There is no objection. However, even in sleep, may your thoughts should be fixed on divinity.

Is it not because of your love and devotion towards God that you came all the way to Prasanthi Nilayam to participate in Sivarathri bhajans? I can understand your devotion. A true devotee does not need any conveniences. He does not wish any type of comforts. Wherever you go, keep the mind under your control and direct all your thoughts towards God. That is real devotion. That is what Ubhayabharathi taught to her disciples. If you also cultivate such devotion, your lives will be sanctified. Do not divert your attention on physical comforts. Always chant the Panchakshari mantra, Om namah sivaya. If you merely chant with lips it will merge into wordly sounds. On the other hand, if you chant the divine name silently with full concentration of your mind, it will spread all over the world. Chanting of the divine name with full concentration by the mind is real sadhana.

Embodiments of Love!

TODAY marks the beginning yet another new year. Many new years have gone by but your old habits have not changed and life remains the same. The reason is that man is not making efforts to experience the principle of divinity which is present in all in the form of love. Love is the true form of God. It is your foremost duty to recognise this eternal principle of love.

Do Not Forget Your Innate Divinity

Today you are in search of divinity. Where is the need to search for that which is everywhere at all times?

86 87

You are in search of God even when you are unaware that God is always with you and in you. You are trying to have the vision of God through meditation. However, you should not be satisfied by merely performing such spiritual practices. What is meditation? Adherence to truth is true meditation. The eternal, immortal, wonderful and blissful principle of divinity is present everywhere. You should make efforts to realise this truth. This is the royal path to attain the goal of life.

People are making efforts to realise truth but their efforts are not yielding the desired result. Divinity is the very embodiment of eternal bliss and is present in all of us. How can you visualise it? Firstly, you should understand that there is nothing superior to truth in this world. Your foremost duty is to recognise the principle of truth that is present in you. But you are forgetting your innate divinity. You are undertaking a number of sadhanas (spiritual practices) to experience divinity. In fact, you do not need to perform any special sadhana to have the vision of God who is always with you, in you, above you, around you. There is no need to search for Him.

Embodiments of Love!

It is a sign of ignorance to search for God who is all-pervasive. People perform various spiritual practices such as yama, niyama, asana, pranayama, pratyahara, dharana, dhyana and samadhi to experience divinity. What is meant by samadhi? It should be termed as sama-dhi, meaning equanimity in all situations. Such an equanimous intellect is in fact present in every individual. It is a misconception to think that only those who perform sadhana are capable of attaining this state.

Embodiment of love!

Do you go about searching for yourself in the outside world? Such a person can only be called foolish. If you want to see yourself, you should turn your vision inward. Unfortunately, you are moving away from your own sacred self by indulging in various practices with worldly outlook. You are endowed with the sacred principle of love. This divine love is your inherent nature. It neither comes nor goes. Divinity has neither birth nor death. It is always present in you. Instead of spending your time in various types of sadhanas, realise the truth that I am I. One who realises this truth need not perform any sadhanas. Where does this I come from? It is in you. Not realising this, you search for this divine self in the outside world. You have to realise that this divinity is very much in you. But because of illusion, you identify the principle of I with your body. In fact, you are different from the body. You should understand this truth and act accordingly. He is a true sadhaka who realises that God is present within. Some people sit in a corner, close their eyes and try to contemplate on divinity. One does not need to search for his shadow

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 which is always with him. Similarly, the divinity that you are searching for in the outside world is very much present in you.

Several people made efforts to fathom the true nature of Lord Krishna and undertook several types of sadhanas in that regard. But, ultimately none of them could realise the Krishna tattwa. In fact, where is Krishna? Where is God? He is present in one's own self. The person who cannot realise this truth and goes about searching for Him in the outside world is an ignoramus. Once Krishna told Arjuna, I am yours and you are mine. I and you are one. Not realising such unity, it is foolish to search for God in the outside world. The boy who spoke earlier said that he was doing sadhana to attain the vision of God. One need not search for God in some distant corner.

Sarvata Panipadam

Tat Sarvatokshi Siromukham,

Sarvata Sruthimalloke,

Sarvamavritya Thishthathi.

(With hands, feet, eyes, ears, heads and mouth

pervading everything, He permeates the entire universe).

Where is the need to search for God when He is present everywhere? Whatever you see is permeated by God. There is no place or form in which God is not present.

God is love and love is God

You can connect yourself with God only through love.

Develop love and achieve the supreme state of equanimity.

(Telugu poem)

Therefore there is no necessity to engage in a separate search for God. God is present everywhere as truth. Why should one search for such truth? Some people are under the misconception that Lord Krishna was born at such and such a place, left His mortal coil at such and such a place. No! This is not a correct concept. Krishna is present in all places at all times. Whatever you see and whomever you come across in this objective world is the very form of Lord Krishna. Only the names change; God is only one. It is foolish to search for such an omnipresent God. Instead of searching for God outside, try to realise the God who is immanent in you. You enquire into yourself who you are. Leave aside the body consciousness. Do not identify yourself with the body. It is only when you identify yourself with the body, the question of I and you arises. When this I and you merge into one, there will be unity. But unfortunately, today people are unable to forget their egoistic I. Wherever you see, it is only one I principle that is present in all. Once you realise that the same atma pervades every individual body, the differences of I and you vanish. But you are unable to give up your false identification with the body. Right from your birth, you

90 91
Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 are accustomed to identifying yourself with the body.

The I Principle Is Fundamental To All
Embodiments of Love!

Whether it is love or truth or peace or divinity there is no duality. They are all one. Only when you fortify the spirit of unity, will you be able to realise the truth. Love is not something that is acquired from outside. It emerges from within. When you share such love with everybody, you will be able to realise the truth that all are one. (Showing His handkerchief, Bhagawan said) It is made up of thread, which in turn, is made out of cotton. Similarly, mind is also made up of the threads of sankalpas and vikalpas (resolutions and aberrations)
Embodiments of Love!

You have to enquire yourself as to what extent

you have understood the principle of love which is uniformly present in all; differences arise because of our perception and feelings. Right from the beginning man is carried away by his identification with the body and, therefore, he perceives diversity in creation. In fact, it is unity alone that permeates the apparent diversity. Whatever differences are there, they are only the creations of the mind. If one wants to eliminate these differences and realise the principle of unity in diversity, one has to realise his true nature. It is only when you turn your perception away from this fact of unity will you experience diversity. Therefore turn your cognitive faculties on the principle of unity. I am not this body, I am I, the same I is present in every individual. When you identify Me with the physical form, you become separate from Me. It is only these differences in feelings that create differences between individuals. The principle of I is the only fundamental principle that is present in every being. Each person is like a mirror and the same I is re? ected in all. Mirrors are different but the re? ection is the same. You have to realise this reality of unity. Embodiments of Love, Students! God has no specific form. All forms are His. But, wise men describe divinity in different ways. That is why it is said Ekam Sath viprah bahudha vadanti (Truth is one but wise men call it by many names). To visualise unity as diversity is a misperception. This misperception arises out of maya (illusion). The truth is, there is only unity everywhere, not diversity. What you have observed as diversity is your illusion only. Forget this diversity and contemplate on divinity. i.e. unity. You may ascribe any name or form to divinity, but, God is only one. At one time, Radha the most ardent devotee of Krishna had realised that both Krishna and herself were one from the atmic point of view. But she slipped away from such feeling of unity and considered herself as different from Krishna on account of deha bhava (body attachment).

Embodiments of Love!

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37

Whatever you see, whomever you come across, consider every form as nothing but the manifestation of divinity. Do not give scope for differences of I and you. Wherever you see in God's creation, everything is reaction, re? ection and resound. You look into a mirror and say that you are in the mirror. In fact, you are not in the mirror. It is only your re? ection that appears in the mirror. When you go behind the hill and shout Oh!, you will immediately notice that someone is shouting at you with the same intensity. In fact that voice belongs to you only and to no one else. Thus, man today is immersed in such a mistaken impression. Whatever you see outside is the re? ection of your inner being. You consider unity as diversity and make a mistake. Unfortunately, nowadays, people are unable to understand their own true nature. Once, a young cowherd took his cattle to the forest for grazing. While the cattle were grazing, he began singing loudly. The song echoed from the hills. The innocent boy thought that someone was imitating to make fun of him. He grew angry. After he returned home, he complained to his mother about the incident saying, Mother! I will not take the cattle to the forest tomorrow. There is someone in the forest who is imitating whatever I sing. I hate him. The mother said that she would accompany him to the forest the next day. He took her behind the hills and started singing loudly. Again, a resound of the same song was heard. Then the mother said, Son, it is not that someone else is repeating your song to make fun of you. Whatever you sing, its resound is being heard by you. Like the foolish cowherd boy, the present day man is swept away by the re? ection, reaction and resound.

If you want to see God, you should firmly believe that you are not the body. To identify yourself with the body is but an illusion. Students should try to understand this clearly. All that is seen outside is only a re? ection and is not the reality. You see Sai Baba in front of you. You identify Sai Baba with the body. But I am not the body. I and you are one. Once you understand this truth clearly, there will be no difference whatsoever. If you slap someone on the cheek, it amounts to slapping your own self. If you abuse others, it amounts to abusing your own self. You are bound to face the consequences of your actions. You are the cause of your happiness or suffering. Others are not responsible for it. In fact, there are no others. All are one. How can we say this? Consider for example, you have prepared 5000 laddus and distributed to others. Laddus may be different, but sugar is the same in all. Likewise, the same principle of atma is present in one and all. You should make efforts to understand your true identity. You are the very embodiment of Love. The principle of love is one and the same in all. You share your love with your children, parents and spouse. The feeling towards each of them is different but the fundamental principle of love is the same. Atma is the fundamental truth. It is one only without a second.

Embodiments of Divine Atma!

94 95

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37

The Atma is one, not two. Once you recognise the truth that the same Atma is present in all, you will be free from all differences and con? icts. Develop firm faith that you are present in all. Understand this principle of unity. All the students have immense love for Me. They are happy that Baba loves them. Understand that it is only Baba who loves all. You see differences in individuals; but, in My view, all are one. I and you are one. Have firm faith in this unity. Only then can you transcend duality. When you enquire deeply, you will be able to understand this truth. Have patience. Do not feel disappointed that you are unable to have the vision of God. When you understand the principle of unity and hold on to it firmly, you become Sai Baba yourself. You are divine. But you are unable to realise it as you are intoxicated with the deep wine of worldly desires. All are the embodiment of divine. I am not different from you and you are not different from Me. We are one. Understand and experience this unity.

Manifestation Of The Vedas

In Human Form

Sweeter than sugar, tastier than curd, sweeter indeed than honey is the Name of Rama. Constant repetition of this sweet Name gives one the taste of divine nectar itself. Therefore, contemplate on the Name of Rama incessantly.

(Telugu poem)

THE Vedas are the quintessence of profound, immeasurable and infinite wisdom. In Treta Yuga, the four Vedas assumed physical form and incarnated as Rama, Lakshmana, Bharata and Satrughna. While Rig Veda assumed the form of Rama, Yajur Veda, Sama Veda and Atharvana Veda manifested in the forms of Lakshmana, Bharata and Satrughna, respectively.

96 97

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37
Divine Power of Mantras

Rama symbolized Rig Veda. He was Mantraswarupa (embodiment of mantras). Lakshmana was Mantradrasta (one who contemplated on the mantras) and he put the teachings of Rama into practice. He followed Rama faithfully. He considered Rama Nama as the taraka (liberating) mantra. He, in fact, considered Rama as everything - mother, father, Guru and God. Bharata was the embodiment of Sama Veda and chanted Rama Nama incessantly with bhava, raga and tala (feeling, melody and rhythm). While Bharata was engaged in nirguna worship (worship of formless God), Lakshmana rejoiced in saguna worship (worship of God with form). Atharvana Veda manifested itself as satrughna who followed his three elder brothers and conquered not only the secular world but achieved victory over the kingdom of senses also. The vedas thus incarnated in Treta Yuga to impart the most precious message to mankind. The two great sages Vasishtha and Viswamitra declared to the world that the four Vedas had taken birth in human form as Rama, Lakshmana, Bharata and Satrughna. As a consequence of great merit earned by Dasaratha, the four Vedas incarnated as his sons. If anyone asked Sage Viswamitra any questions about the Vedas, he replied, All the four Vedas have incarnated as the four sons of Dasaratha to set an ideal to the world. Hence the Vedas are not formless; they have a form.

The mantras contained in the Vedas are of immense significance. When Sage Viswamitra realized that the rakshasas (demons) wanted to stop the chanting of Vedic mantras and destroy righteousness and truth on earth, he sought the help of Rama and Lakshmana who symbolized the divine forces that descended on earth to destroy the demonic forces and establish peace in the world. With the power of mantras taught to them by Sage Viswamitra, Rama and Lakshmana annihilated the rakshasas. This incident signifies the fact that with the power of Vedic mantras man can destroy his demonic qualities. By engaging themselves in the chanting of the mantras, the people of Treta Yuga annihilated their demonic qualities. Symbolising the divine powers of the Vedas, Rama, Lakshmana, Bharata and Satrughna destroyed demonic forces and fostered divine forces in the world. The four brothers thus established the supremacy of the Vedas as manifestation of the aspect of God with form. Each mantra has a form. It has also its own inner significance. When chanting is done with contemplation on form, it leads one to the path of selfrealisation. The Vedic seers declared: Vedahametam

Purusham mahantam Aditya varnam tamasah parastat.

(I have seen the Divine Being who shines with the splendour of a billion suns beyond the realm of darkness). The seers and sages transcended the darkness of ignorance and visualized the effulgence of the Divine. They chanted the mantras, contemplated on the form of the Divine, performed Yajnas and attained peace and bliss. They made use of mantra, tantra and yantra in the performance of yajnas which ensured peace and prosperity of the people in Treta Yuga. With the help of the mantras, they quelled the rakshasas and established the reign of gods.

98 99
Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37

Namasmarana for Man s Liberation

But the people of Kali Yuga have forgotten these mantras with the result that Kali Yuga has verily become Kalaha Yuga (the Age of discord and con? ict).

Even brothers quarrel with each other. They live and eat together in the same family, yet there is hatred and con? ict between them. Different means for man's liberation have been prescribed for each of the four Yugas. While meditation was prescribed as the primary means of liberation in Krita Yuga, performance of Yajnas and chanting of mantras forms the means of liberation in the Treta Yuga. Similarly, archana (worship of God) was the chief means of liberation in Dwapara Yuga. But it is namasmarana that is the main means of man's liberation in Kali Yuga. As the people of Kali Yuga do not have the strength and capability to carry out rigorous sadhana, they have been advised to do namasmarana.

Harernama Harernama Harernamaiva

Kevalam; kalau nasyeva nasyeva

Nasyeva gatranyatha.

(In Kali Yuga, there is no other means more effective than the chanting of Divine Name for man's liberation).

The Ramayana is not an ordinary story. It contains the direct message of the Vedas. Rama symbolizes the wisdom of the Vedas. Rama married Sita who represents Brahmajnana (knowledge of Brahman). When Sita is taken away by demonic forces, Rama and Lakshmana search for her desperately. The Ramayana contains thousands of slokas. As it was not possible to remember all the slokas of the Ramayana, the sages recommended the chanting of the name of Rama. When the disciples of Vasishtha asked him what divine name to chant, the sage said, It is enough if you chant the name Rama. The name of Rama will make you free from raga (attachment) and roga (disease). As I often tell the students, the name Rama has two syllables, Ra and ma. These two powerful syllables are derived from the names of Vishnu and Siva. The syllable Ra comes from the ashtakshari (eight syllabled) mantra Om Namo Narayanaya. It is the life-breath of the ashtakshari mantra. Similarly, ma is the very soul of the panchakshari (five lettered) mantra Om Namah Sivaya. The astakshari mantra Om Namo Narayanaya and the panchakshari mantra Om Namah Sivaya become meaningless when ra and ma are, respectively, removed from the words of these mantras. Without ra the ashtakshari mantra becomes Om Namo Nayanaya which is meaningless. In the same way, the panchakshari mantra without ma becomes Om Nah Sivaya which is inauspicious. The name Rama is the life-breath of both the Vaishnavites and Saivites (worshippers of Vishnu and Siva).

In Treta Yuga when the sages and seers were engaged in the chanting of the divine name of Rama, Ravana, Kumbhakarna and other demons tried to put Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 hurdles in their way. They thought that if they abducted Sita, who symbolized Brahmajnana, Rama would lose His power. The name would lose its potency without jnana just like sugarcane loses its sweetness without rasa. Hanuman resolved to bring this rasa back to Rama and rejoiced in drinking ramarasa (ambrosia of Rama's name). The people of Treta and Dwapara Yugas considered the name Rama to be the essence of all sweetness and enjoyed its nectarous taste. Instead of tasting the delicious spiritual sweetness of the name of Rama, people today devour worldly sweets, and expose themselves to the risk of becoming diabetics. Worldly sweets cause diseases whereas the delicious sweet of Ramanama rids one of all diseases. In ancient India, even the cowherds and shepherds chanted the divine name while tending their cattle and sheep. There were not many diseases in ancient times. Rama, Lakshmana, Bharata and Satrughna propagated the glorious power of Vedic mantras to free the world from diseases and suffering.

Never Neglect The Teachings Of The Vedas

Mandodari, the queen of Ravana, strived hard to save her husband. She gave wise counsel to him but Ravana paid no heed to her. When husband takes to evil ways, a virtuous wife acts as his wise minister to put him on the right path. Mandodari was one such wife. Bharya (wife) is not the one who provides worldly pleasures to her husband; she is the one who does good to him by leading him to the path of wisdom and righteousness. Mandodari was a true Sati (wife) who tried to mend the ways of her Pati (husband). Sita also tendered wise counsel to Rama and advised Him not to destroy all the demons. She suggested that only those who committed the evil deeds should be punished. Justice does not lie in destroying the entire clan. Women are great because they show the right path to men. They are, in fact, the light of wisdom in the world. They, therefore, deserve protection and reverence. Sita symbolizes Jnanatattwa (principle of wisdom). Sita told Rama that goodness was universal, irrespective of caste, creed and community. It is because of women like Sita that men have made progress in life.

There are numerous species in this world. Every one of them has a definite purpose to fulfil in God's creation. Some of them may appear more beautiful than others. One cannot say whether a cow is more beautiful or a bull. But virtues are more important than physical beauty. Observing the good and bad in the world, the students should develop discrimination to choose the former. They should strive hard to cultivate virtues. Right from early age, they should inculcate good qualities and develop good character. Wherever you go, character is of utmost importance. When the students develop good character, the entire country will become good and great. It is virtues that lend greatness to any person. Rama shines in the Ramayana because of His sterling virtues. Virtues are more important than

102 103
bookish learning.

In spite of his education and intelligence man does not give up his mean-mindedness and evil qualities. He has no knowledge of the Self. Modern education leads to argumentation, not to total wisdom. (Telugu poem)

Students - Boys and Girls!

You should try to attain total wisdom. You should make right use of your eyes, ears and tongue which God has gifted to you. Whoever is able to control these three will achieve greatness. One should therefore cultivate right vision, right hearing and right speech. Always speak sweetly and softly. One who cultivates these three virtues will verily become divine. This is the primary objective and fundamental basis of all your education. Those bereft of these virtues are virtually demons. This is the essence and the message of the Ramayana. The four Vedas and other scriptures exhort man to follow these principles. Dear students! Never neglect the teachings of the Vedas. They are for the emancipation and redemption of mankind. Put them into practice in your life.

Uphold Truth Under
All Circumstances

The Effulgent Lord who shines in every atom and pervades the entire universe will protect you always. He is the Omnipotent Lord of Parthi who will grant you Bhakthi (devotion), and will certainly help you in all your endeavours. What else is to be conveyed to this assembly of noble souls?
(Telugu poem)

Embodiments of Love!

GOD does not need anybody's support or help.
He takes care of everything of His own accord and bestows His grace on all.

Humanity Cannot Exist Without Divinity

Devotees! Do not think that God is confined to a particular place and that you have to search for Him.

104 105

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37

It is a sign of ignorance to search for God who is everywhere at all times. First and foremost, you should enquire and understand who God is. He is the one who pervades in every particle and every atom of Prakriti (Nature). Nature is the direct manifestation of God. There is nothing that God cannot accomplish. He sees everything at all times. Without recognizing the divine power of God in Nature, it is a mistake to think that God does not respond to your prayers and come to your rescue. Devotion and divine grace are interrelated and interdependent. Man is unable to understand the divine power of God because of maya (illusion).

Whatever God does is for the welfare of the world.

Not a single act of God is without a purpose. Man gets confused as he is unable to understand the inner meaning of God's actions. The earth rotates on its axis at the speed of one thousand miles per hour causing day and night. Rising and setting of the sun as well as waxing and waning of the moon promote all activity on earth. Not merely that, the earth revolves around the sun at the speed of 66 thousand miles per hour, giving rise to various seasons. The seasons benefit man in many ways. Formation of clouds and occurrence of rainfall help man to grow food. In this manner, the earth provides food and sustenance to all beings. Can a human being or a government for that matter accomplish such a mighty task? No, no. Without recognizing these beneficial acts of God of such enormous magnitude, man wastes his life in delusion and doubt. If you enquire deeply, you will know that divine power is at work at all times. Every kana (cell), every kshana (moment) and every Yuga (aeon) is governed by Divine Will. God is everywhere and is in the form of Nature. Unable to realize this truth, people develop doubts regarding the existence of God. Everything is supported and sustained by God. There can be no Manavatwam (humanity) without Daivatwam (Divinity). Your life will be sanctified when you understand this truth.

Offer All Your Actions To God

God does not waste even a single moment. All the time He is engaged in action for the welfare of all. He is the sole refuge of all at every moment of time. Nothing is impossible for God who permeates anda, pinda and Brahmanda (terrestrial, celestial and cosmic planes). Every second of our life is dependent on the Divine Will. Every breath of our life is governed by God. We cannot take even one breath without His Will. People are unable to recognize such omnipresent, omnipotent God and waste their time in vain argumentation regarding His existence. They do not experience even an iota of joy due to their lack of faith in all-powerful God.

Once Arjuna asked Lord Krishna, Swami! What is the reason that You are always engaged in action?

Krishna replied, Arjuna! I perform karma (action) in order to demonstrate an ideal to the people to emulate.

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37

When I perform action, people follow My example. The entire world will come to a standstill if I do not perform action. The value of action is beyond all description.

Na Me Parthasthi karthavyam

Trishu lokeshu kinchana

Nanavapathamavapthavyam

Vartha eva cha karmani.

(Oh Partha! There is no action that I need to perform in all the three worlds. Nor is there anything worth attaining unattained by Me, yet I am constantly engaged in action). I do not perform actions for My sake nor do I gain anything out of them. There is nothing that I need to achieve by performing actions. Whatever I do is for the welfare of the world. You should understand this and emulate My example. God is teaching you everything not merely by precept but by practice. Only through proper enquiry can you understand this truth. You should enquire with sincerity and steadfast faith. If you lack faith, you cannot understand anything, however long you may try. Each step of Mine has a definite purpose. Each act of Mine re? ects a certain facet of dharma. Nothing can happen in the world without My sankalpa (will). But you are unable to understand My sankalpa and dharma. God has incarnated not for His sake but for the sake of all beings. God is the reality and the world is its re? ection. It is natural that the re? ection follows the reality. Whatever God does is for your welfare. Likewise, whatever you do should be pleasing unto Him.

Morality Earns Divine Grace

You may proclaim in public that all your actions are meant to please God. But that does not mean that He is really pleased with you. God will be pleased only when you cultivate papa bheethi, daiva preethi, sangha neethi (fear of sin, love for God, morality in society). Bereft of morality, you cannot be called a human being in the true sense of the term. Morality is the hallmark of a human being. That which adheres to neethi (morality) is true manava jathi (human race). First, you should develop love for God. Daiva preethi gives rise to papa bheethi which in turn develops sangha neethi. Hence, daiva preethi is the basis on which the mansion of human life rests. Humanity can progress only when there is morality in society. But modern man has no clear understanding of the term morality. Even birds and animals adhere to the code of conduct prescribed for them. But man is not following the rules of morality. If only he adheres to morality, God will certainly bestow His grace on him. Morality is not something that you should force upon yourself. It is your natural quality. Therefore, first and foremost develop morality. Only then will divinity blossom in you. The entire world will prosper when man adheres to morality. Only then can man lead a happy life. Wherever you are, whatever you do, consider morality as the basis of your life. Morality is, in fact, your true reputation. You can earn divine grace when you have morality.

108 109

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37

Truth Is The Real Name Of God

What is true worship? It is not merely offering ? owers to God and performing some rituals. You should implicitly obey the divine command and strictly adhere to morality in your daily life. That can be termed as true worship of God. Today people think that they are praying to God and singing His glory. But God does not need all this. You pray to God only for your sake and not for His sake. You undertake various spiritual practices such as japa, thapa, yoga, etc., only for your satisfaction. In fact, you need not do all this to worship God. It is enough if you discharge your duty properly. Then, God will certainly bestow His love and grace on you. If you do not do your duty sincerely, how can you expect to be the recipient of God's love? God thinks of your welfare every moment. Where is God? He is everywhere. Wherever we are, there God is. Sarvata panipadam tat sarvatokshi siromukham, Sarvata srutimalloke sarvamavirtya tishthati (With hands, feet, eyes, head, mouth and ears pervading everything, He permeates the entire universe).

It is sheer ignorance to think that God is confined to a particular place. As Mukundan (an earlier speaker) has said, truth is God, God is truth. Hence, we have to safeguard truth. Sathyam vada, Dharmam chara (speak truth, practise righteousness). Truth and righteousness are the two main pillars on which the entire world rests. If we protect truth and righteousness, they will in turn protect us wherever we go. Truth is the source of all happiness. If you do not adhere to truth, how can you expect to attain happiness? Truth is the fundamental principle of life. But today man's thoughts, words and deeds are tainted with untruth and unrighteousness. That is the reason why he is unable to enjoy happiness in life. The culture of Bharat teaches, Sathyam bruyath, Priyam bruyath, Na bruyath sathyamapriyam (speak truth, speak pleasantly and do not speak unpalatable truth). God protects those who protect Sathya and Dharma. There is nothing superior to truth in this world. Truth pervades the entire universe. But people ignore such allpervasive principle of truth. They try to suppress truth and indulge in falsehood. Consequently, unrighteousness is on the rise in the world. Embodiments of Love!

Truth is your life. There is no God other than truth. Only truth can protect you always. Since ancient times, the culture of Bharat has been emphasizing on the need to follow truth and righteousness. I am pleased to note that the devotees of Kerala are leading their lives in an ideal manner by cultivating love for God, fear of sin and morality in society. If you have love for God, you can achieve anything in life. Once you put Sathya and Dharma into practice in your life, every moment of your life will be filled with happiness. Those who are unable to experience everlasting happiness should come to Me; I will show them the path to happiness. If you uphold truth and righteousness, God will be with you always to protect you. What is truth? Trikalabadyam sathyam (Truth is that which transcends the three periods of time).

That which undergoes change with the passage of time cannot be called truth at all. But today children are not being made aware of the real significance of truth and righteousness. Small children do not understand the correct meaning of truth. It is not enough if you teach them to adhere to truth in their speech and conduct. We should teach them that truth is God and that it is truth alone that can protect them. Without teaching the correct meaning of truth and its importance, how can we expect the children to adhere to truth? Our entire life is based on truth and righteousness. There can be no Dharma without Sathya. Sathyannasti paro dharma (There is no dharma greater than adherence to truth). Truth is the root, righteousness are the branches and sub-branches and happiness is the fruit of the tree of life. Hence, we should lead our life keeping truth and righteousness as the basis of all our actions.

Many people perform ritualistic worship of God with great pomp and show. I feel like laughing at their ignorance. These are not the true spiritual practices. How can such sadhanas (spiritual practices) lead to sakshatkara (vision of God)? Instead, you should put Sathya and Dharma into practice in your life. Without Sathya and Dharma, all that you do is mere show. Truth is changeless and eternal. It transcends time, space and circumstances. It should form the basis of all your actions. If your actions are not based on truth, they become artificial. Truth emerges from your heart and it should be put into practice. We should pray to God with purity of thought, word and deed. You should never give up truth at any time and under any circumstances. Only then will you be protected by truth.

Body Consciousness Is The Cause Of Your Delusion

Embodiments of Love!

There is no point in adhering to truth and righteousness with a negative attitude. It is like building castles in the air! Whatever you do with a negative attitude is bound to yield negative result. Hence, develop positive attitude. Fill your life with love. Man has accomplished mighty tasks, but what is the use? He is unable to understand the importance of Sathya and Dharma. In fact, there is none superior to man. There is divinity in humanity. But man is unable to realize his innate divinity because of the in? uence of maya (illusion). Man should make efforts to recognize his divinity. Only divinity can redeem humanity. Instead of realizing his innate divinity, man is getting entangled in worldliness. What is that we have to experience today? It is divinity, divinity and divinity alone. It is eternal and is always with you wherever you go. You should never forget this positive power even for a moment. Give up negative feelings and develop faith in the positive power, i.e., divinity. It is very much present in you in the form of conscience, guiding you and guarding you. If you take to wrong ways, your conscience will immediately caution you. It shows you the right path. It is impossible to experience divinity if you ignore the dictates of your conscience.
112 113

All that you see is only God, and nothing else. You may point to an individual and say, I see him as another person. How can he be God? Wherefrom has he come? He has come from God. Everything is God. How can you have the vision of God if you see multiplicity in unity? In this world, wherever you see, there is unity and unity alone. Truth is only one. It cannot be two. Likewise, God who is the embodiment of truth, is only one. Ekam Sath viprah bahudha vadanti (Truth is one, but the wise refer to it by various names). You may call Him by any name, worship Him in any form but always remember that there is only one God. You may call Him Allah, Jesus, Rama or Krishna but He is one. Once you understand this principle of unity and get established in it, you will certainly attain divinity.

You should always speak truth. Truth is the real name of God. If you want to pray to God, it is enough if you say, Sathyaswarupaya Namah (salutations to the embodiment of truth). All other names are His duplicate names. Truth is God. This truth is installed in your heart. If you realize this truth, you can achieve the ultimate goal of life. It is possible to realize this truth in a moment. The same divine principle is present in all in mother, father, child, etc. But you have forgotten this divine principle. You think that God appears only in a specific form. In fact, God has no specific form. Wherever you see, He is there. All are His forms. Conduct yourself with such sacred feeling. That is true devotion. Give up body attachment. Whomever you come across, right from a child to an old man, consider everyone as the embodiment of God. When you develop such a sacred feeling, your devotion will become steady. If you do not give up body attachment and if your mind wavers every moment, you will end up in utter confusion. Body consciousness is the cause of your delusion. Hence, get rid of body consciousness and develop God consciousness. Do not be carried away by the illusory world. Develop love for God. Then gradually you will be able to overcome body consciousness and your devotion will become strong and steady. What is the reason that people lack steady devotion? They do not contemplate upon one name and one form. Your devotion becomes steady when you install one name and one form in your heart. When you do Laksharchana, you chant many names such as Kesavaya namah, Madhavaya namah, Narayanaya namah . (salutations to Lord Kesava, Madhava, Narayana). You may chant any number of names but you worship only one God. Keeping such principle of unity firmly established in your heart, you should pray to God.

Wherever you see, only God exists. Never doubt that God is here and not there. Wherever you search for 114 115

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37
Him, He is there. (Telugu poem). When you contemplate incessantly upon the Atma, you will see divinity everywhere. Hence, make efforts to recognize unity, realize it and become one with it. If you want to realize divinity, it is enough if you hold on to the principle of truth. Truth has a name and a form. Hold on to it firmly. Follow it implicitly. Only then will divinity reveal itself to you.

Everything Is The Manifestation Of God

Do not get deluded by names and forms. The youth of today lack steady mind because they are carried away by names and forms. Have firm faith that God is one, truth is one. Consider God as your sole refuge. Then wherever you go and whatever you see, you will find His manifestation. Wherever you see, He is there. He is not confined to one place. He is everywhere. What happened to the wicked Kamsa who followed the Pravritti Marg (path of worldliness)? Whenever he uttered the name Krishna , He was there. But he thought it was a mere illusion. He could not realize the divinity of Krishna because of his body attachment. You can have the vision of the Divine only when you develop atmabhimana (love for the Self). Atma is one and only one. Consider, for instance, the three words - Dehatma, Jeevatma and Paramatma. Atma is common in all. You should always contemplate upon atma. Develop firm faith that atma is God. Atma is always with you, in you, around you, above you and below you. Other than the atma, there is no other entity in this world.

Embodiments of Love!

Do not waste time. You waste not only your kalam (time) but also your Kayam (body). You may be performing spiritual practices but you are unable to overcome worldly illusion. Consider everything that you see as the manifestation of God. Even a mosquito is a form of God. An ant is a form of God. That is why Saint Thyagaraja sang thus, Oh Rama! You pervade everything right from a Cheema (ant) to Brahma. You are in Siva and Kesava as well. Please come to my rescue. (Telugu poem). There is divinity even in an ant. You all know very well what the pain is like when an ant bites you. Not merely that, ants build big anthills which become the dwelling places for snakes. If not for the presence of divinity within, how can a small insect like an ant be endowed with such power? Divinity pervades everything, right from microcosm to macrocosm. Never disregard microcosm since divinity is all-pervasive. Modern youth do not understand what divinity is.

This is the effect of their age. In youth, one's blood is hot and mind is unsteady. How can one understand divinity with a wavering mind? First, you should keep your mind steady. Only then can you realise divinity. Truth is the best friend of love, and righteousness is related to both truth and love. The terms such as truth, love, righteousness, etc., may be different but the underlying principle of divinity is one and the same in them.

Embodiments of Love!

Today three thousand youth have come from

Kerala out of their immense love for Swami. Develop such love day by day. Consider love as God. Only love will come to your rescue in times of need. When Suradas, a blind devotee of Lord Krishna, was travelling in a dense forest, Krishna came to his help in the form of a small boy. He told him, Suradas! I am going to Brindavan. Hold My hand. I will take you with Me. When he heard the name Brindavan, Suradas's joy knew no bounds. The boy had told him to hold His hand. Being under the in? uence of maya, Suradas held the stick which Krishna had in His hand. With Krishna's Divine Will, gradually the stick became smaller and smaller. Consequently, Suradas's hand was about to touch Krishna's hand. It was then that Krishna revealed His identity. He told him, Suradas! God is your sole refuge wherever you may be, in a forest, in the sky, in a city or a village, on the top of a mountain or in the middle of deep sea. That is why I have come to your rescue. No sooner had Surdas s hand touched Krishna s hand than he attained divinity. Till then he was speaking to Krishna and was listening to His sweet words but he had not touched Him. The moment he touched Krishna, he became ecstatic and called out loudly, Krishna! Krishna! It is said, Darshanam papa nashanam, Sparsanam karma vimochanam, Sambhashanam sankata nashanam (Vision of the Lord destroys all sins, His touch destroys the bondage of karma, conversation with Him destroys all troubles). God incarnates to grant darshan, sparsan and sambhashan to His devotees. Krishna came to Surdas in order to show him the way to Brindavan. Then He started conversing with him and ultimately granted him His sparsan and thus relieved him of the bondage of karma. Hence, darshan, sparsan and sambhashan, all the three are essential. You should not be satisfied with mere darshan. You should aspire to attain all the three.

Treat everyone as the form of God. It means that every individual is the embodiment of divinity. All names and forms are His. Here you are able to see thousands of forms of God. How lucky you are! It is a sign of ignorance to consider yourself weak, forgetting your innate divinity. Truly speaking, you are not a mere mortal, you are the embodiment of immortal divinity. God Himself is playing the role of a human being in this cosmic drama. Daivam manusha rupena (God assumes the form of a human being). Hence, develop firm faith that all are divine. Then you will lose your individual consciousness and become one with Divinity. Seeing multiplicity in unity is due to maya (illusion). When you understand unity, your jeevatwa (individual self) will be transformed into daivatwa (Divine Self).

Develop Love To Experience Divinity
All names and forms are but the manifestations of the Supreme Being who is the embodiment of peace and auspiciousness. He is Existence, Knowledge, Bliss Absolute and non-dual. He is Sathyam, Sivam, Sundaram (Truth, Goodness, Beauty).

(Telugu poem)

Embodiments of Love!

MANY describe at length the power of Sai,
the love of Sai and the truth and peace that He embodies. But, do they really practise Sai s teachings? The answer is an emphatic no. That is why I do not feel like giving discourses these days. People are heroes in giving speeches but zeros in practice. What is the use of speaking to those who do not put My teachings into practice? People are interested in 120 121

acquiring bookish knowledge but not in practising what they have learnt. No benefit accrues by merely learning the teachings by rote. You only strain your throat when you do not practise what you preach. Different people have different opinions about the path of spirituality. However, spirituality can neither be described in words nor be understood by merely listening to discourses. Spiritual teachings cannot fill your heart with bliss unless you put them into practice.

Krishna Permeates Every Atom Of The Universe

It was the time of the Mahabharata war. One day, Abhimanyu approached his mother Subhadra with the request to grant him permission to enter Padmavyuha (lotus-shaped military formation). He prayed to his mother to bless him so that he could vanquish the enemy and emerge victorious. Subhadra said, My dear son, I will certainly bless you to emerge victorious but ultimately it is God s Will that prevails. Everything depends on His grace. How can I permit you to enter Padmavyuha knowing fully well the danger involved in it? Padmavyuha is not an ordinary formation. It has been devised by the great military genius Dronacharya himself. Moreover, your wife is in the family way. We do not know whether the time is favourable for us or not. Your father Arjuna and uncle Krishna are also not here to give you necessary guidance and support. Hence, give up the idea of going to the battlefield. Abhimanyu replied, Mother, there is no place where my uncle Krishna is not present. He is everywhere. Bestowing her blessing on her son, Subhadra said, Krishna is the embodiment of love. Every atom of the universe bears the touch of His love. His love can be experienced through love only; there is no other way to experience His love. But, my dear son, how can you experience it in the battlefield? You see Lord Krishna everywhere. But do not act out of ego. Do not think that your views have divine sanction.

Lord Krishna permeates every atom of the universe.

Sarvatah panipadam tat sarvathokshi siromukham, Sarvatah sruthimalloke sarvamavrutya tishthati (with hands, feet, eyes, head, mouth and ears pervading everything, He permeates the entire universe). He is love personified. One can experience Him only through love. You can earn His grace only through love. Love can be conquered only through love. When there is love, the question of war does not arise at all. Love confers peace, prosperity, success, auspiciousness and bliss. They are not separate from each other; they are the various aspects of love. The principle of love is present in everyone in the form of atma. The atma is infinite and eternal. That is why the Vedas declared, Sathyam Inanam Anantham Brahma (Brahman is the embodiment of truth, wisdom and eternity). Where is God? He is everywhere in the form of atma. He is present in all beings. All names and forms are His. He is the embodiment of truth and bliss.

Everything Is Good In God's Creation

God's ways are mysterious. People develop doubts as they are unable to understand His actions. You consider something as good and some other thing as bad but everything happens according to God's Will. You say yes for good and no for bad but both are the manifestations of God. Man tries to judge something as good for him and some other thing as bad. It is impossible for man to make correct judgement. How can he know what is good for him? Good and bad happen according to Divine Will. Certain forms may not be pleasing to the eye but for God everything is Sathyam, Sivam, Sundaram (truth, goodness and beauty). How can you describe such a principle? There is beauty in whatever God does. But none can fathom His ways. From a worldly viewpoint, some things may appear bad to the eye but when you enquire deeply, you will understand the truth that everything is good. Since you have only external vision, you consider something as beautiful and some other as ugly. Whatever God creates is beautiful. But people are not able to appreciate real beauty because of their external outlook. If you enquire into the truth, you will know that everything in God's creation is beautiful. To every mother, her child appears to be beautiful. None can deny this fact. A child may appear to be ugly to you but his mother sees only beauty in him. You have no right to dispute the judgement of the mother in this regard. Similar is the case with God's creation. Then, how can you say that something is good and some other thing is bad? The entire world is full of beauty and charm. Can you show Me anything right from microcosm to macrocosm that is bad in this vast universe? It is impossible. You should accept everything as God's Will with an open mind. Consider everything as good. You do not have any right to pass judgement on God's creation or on what He does. The ways of God are highly mysterious and wonderful.

The sankalpa (Will) of the Lord and His stories are most wonderful and sacred in all the three worlds. They are like sickles that cut the creepers of worldly bondage. They are most ennobling and elevating. They confer bliss on the sages and seers doing penance in forests.

(Telugu poem)

See Divinity In God's Creation

Prahlada was a great devotee of the Lord. He incessantly chanted the Divine Name of Narayana and consequently experienced his oneness with the Lord. He could see the entire world as the manifestation of Lord Narayana. God pervades the entire universe. Such being the case, how can you say that God is present here and He is not there? You see the world but you fail to recognise it as the form of God. In fact, everything is divine. Do not get deluded by whatever you see with your eyes. Man does not have any power of his own. It is divine power that makes him function. But man, out of 124 125

his ignorance, is carried away by a sense of doership and develops ego. This is what we witness in the world today. Under these circumstances, it is not possible to differentiate between truth and untruth. It is better to consider everything as good. When God is all-pervasive, how can there be anything bad? Try to visualise God everywhere. Do not superimpose your feelings on His. It is impossible to understand the principle of divinity through the study of scriptural texts or worldly education. Even sages and seers of yore were unable to comprehend divinity. He is beyond the three worlds. How can anyone understand such divinity? What Ajit Popat (an earlier speaker) has said is true. But one should be realistic in one's views. You say that you have seen the form of Lord Vishnu. How does He look like? You say that He has Shankha, Chakra, Gada and Padma (conch, discus, mace and lotus) in His four hands. Shankha, Chakra, Gada and Padma are only symbolic. Such a form does not correspond to reality. It is only a superimposition of your feelings but not the ultimate truth.

Suppose, you find a snake in front of you while walking on a road. You think it is poisonous. Who is relatively more poisonous? Is not man more poisonous when all his thoughts, words and deeds are full of poison? In fact, he is more dangerous than the snake. Whatever is seen may not correspond to reality. You have to enquire deeply to know the truth. The Mahabharata is full of these teachings. He is a true human being who understands the teachings of the Mahabharata and puts them into practice. The sacred teachings of this epic are a great contribution of Bharat to mankind. With your limited understanding, you have no right to pass judgement on anything. True wisdom lies in accepting everything as good and following the path of truth.

Embodiments of Love!

There is love in each of you but you cannot experience it unless you give up body attachment. This body is a den of dirt, and prone to diseases; it is subject to change from time to time; it cannot cross the ocean of Samsara. It is nothing but a structure of bones. Oh mind! Do not be under the delusion that body is permanent. Instead take refuge at the Divine Lotus Feet.

(Telugu poem)

How foolish is it to develop attachment to such a transient body? The world appears to be permanent but in reality it is not so. What appears good to the naked eye may not be so in reality. To see bad in good is a great sin. You should try to see good even in bad. Never condemn anything as bad. Even if something appears to be bad, you should enquire deeply and try to visualise the positive aspect in it. You find innumerable forms in this vast world. However, all forms have emerged from the same source. They are the different aspects of the same divinity. All forms are essentially divine. Such being the case, how can you condemn something as bad?
126 127

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37

Everything is good. When you eat food, you consider it sacred. So long as the food remains in your stomach, you feel it is good. But when it comes out as waste, you cannot bear its sight and smell. If it is so disgusting, how could you keep it in your stomach earlier? Good and bad depend on your likes and dislikes. Leave aside your likes and dislikes. You have to keep in mind what God likes. Only God knows what is good for you. Hence, surrender to His Will and take refuge in Him.

True Love Is Changeless And Eternal

Embodiments of Love!

The principle of love cannot be described in words. All descriptions will only re-ect a part of the whole truth. So, instead of trying to describe it, make efforts to become deserving of God's love. Love is the form of God. He may bestow His love on you in any form. Love is your ultimate goal. Only love can sanctify your life. Hence, develop love more and more. Love alone will protect you. Love for the physical body is attachment. A child becomes a youth and a youth becomes old, and accordingly the physical body undergoes change and gradually loses its beauty and charm with the passage of time. But love remains constant at all times. The term prema (love) is not just a word; it has a form. There is no place where love does not exist. Love is all-pervasive. It encompasses anda, pinda and Brahmanda. Love is the basis of all our activities such as eating, talking, walking, etc. In fact, love sustains our life. People tend to forget such a sacred principle of love even after knowing its significance. How foolish they are! One should experience love, enjoy it and share it with others.

Embodiments of Love!

It is impossible to describe the principle of love in full. Love attracts all. Love of God has manifested in the form of Nature. Therefore, Nature attracts all. Karshati iti Krishna (Krishna is one who attracts). God attracts everyone and confers bliss on all. He is the embodiment of sweetness. People prepare various types of sweets but sugar is the same in all. Similarly, divinity is the same in all names and forms we see in this world. God cannot be limited to any particular form. Consider all forms as His. You may go anywhere, worship any form. All forms are divine. When you develop such love for and faith in God, you can see Him everywhere and experience His love. It is not possible to experience divinity without developing love. That is why the Gopikas prayed to Krishna thus:

Oh Krishna, play Your sweet ? ute and sow the seeds of love in the desert of loveless hearts. Let the rain of love fall on earth and make the rivers of love ? ow. (Telugu song)

The Gopikas yearned for Krishna's love and nothing else. You are the drops of nectarous love. A number of drops join to make a stream which ultimately merges in the ocean. But today man is not able to 128 129

understand what true love is. If he likes a particular object, he thinks he loves it. When you have likes, you will also have dislikes. But when you have love, there cannot be anything negative. Love is changeless and eternal. It is divine. It is truly the form of divinity. Ekam, Nityam, Vimalam, Achalam, Sarvadhee Sakshibhutam, Bhavateetam, Trigunarahitam (One without a second, eternal, pure, unchanging, the witness of all functions of the intellect, beyond all mental conditions and the three gunas of sattwa, rajas and thamas).

It is not possible to describe love in worldly parlance. It is foolishness to think of love in a worldly sense. You cannot find a term equivalent to love. You may describe love in various ways for your own satisfaction. But none of them corresponds to the reality. Only love equals love. It is not possible to describe it in any other way. It is this divine principle of love which you have to understand and practise.

Embodiments of Love!

You may get immersed in love, experience it and enjoy it. But your hunger for love can never be satiated.

Love can be experienced only through love. There is no other path to experience love. Love is love and that is all. Have firm faith that God is the embodiment of love. Love Him wholeheartedly. Do not superimpose your worldly love on God's love. His is the only true and eternal love. Focus your love only on God. God is present everywhere in the form of love. You should never entertain doubts in this regard. The stream of love should flow in you incessantly. Only then can you have the divine vision. No doubt, you have the desire to see God but you are not expanding your love. If you are interested, I am ready to grant you the vision of God. But you can see Him provided you cultivate true and eternal love in you.

Embodiments of Love!

I always teach you love, love and love alone. You may try to describe love in various ways. It is impossible to do so. Love has only one form, i.e., the form of attraction. Love confers bliss and grace. Love is God, live in love. On some other occasion, I shall dwell further on the principle of love. Worldly love is but artificial. But man, out of his ignorance, thinks that there is happiness in it. All that man loves is negative. He should direct his love towards the positive principle. It never changes. Here is a small example. You have been coming here for a number of years. Do you ever feel satiated with Swami's darshan? No. The same Swami whom you saw in the morning comes again in the evening. But you long to see Him again and again. The reason for this longing is love.

Mother Is Your First God

When man emerges out of his mother's womb
He has no garland of any kind around his neck:
Neither of pearls nor of gold, nor a necklace of topaz

Or of rubies or other precious gems

There is, however, one garland carrying the unbroken link of the consequences of the good and bad deeds of the past lives strung together.

Brahma, the creator, strings together the consequences of his past deeds into a heavy garland and puts it around his neck at the time of his birth

Embodiments of Love !

EVERY individual has four gurus in this world. The Vedas proclaim Mathrudevo

132 133

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37
bhava, Pithrudevo bhava, Acharyadevo bhava,

Athithidevo bhava, which means the mother, father,
teacher and the guest are to be considered as God.

Among the four, the mother is the first and the foremost guru. There are several inner meanings to the teachings of the mother. A true disciple is one who meticulously follows the mother's instructions. The mother may appear to be an ordinary individual like any other, but when you delve deep into her teachings, you will realize that she is a great guru (teacher). But, those who are not on the spiritual path, may take all this lightly.

Three Laudable Disires Of A Noble Mother

Once, mother Eswaramma was returning from Chitravathi river with a vessel full of water. An old woman was walking along with her with great difficulty, unable to bear the burden of the vessel filled with water. Eswaramma enquired Mother! Are you feeling difficulty in carrying the vessel full of water? The old woman who was perspiring and unable to keep pace with her replied, Yes, mother! I am unable to carry this vessel for such a long distance. But, I have no children to help me in this task. I myself have to carry this vessel full of water everyday. These words of agony were imprinted on the mind of Eswaramma.

After walking for some distance, she saw a small boy holding a slate and pencil in one hand and carrying a heavy load of books in a bag hanging round his neck. He was unable to walk, but he had to continue his journey to the Bukkapatnam School. Eswaramma enquired of the boy, My dear son! What for are these slate and pencil?

Why are you carrying such a heavy load of books?

The small boy replied Mother, I am carrying these books so that I can note down all that the teachers teach me. Eswaramma kept all these incidents in her mind.

After walking for some more distance, she came across a frail lady carrying her infant child on her shoulders proceeding towards Bukkapatnam. Eswaramma again enquired of this lady, you appear to be frail and weak, unable to carry the child. Why should you walk such a long distance up to Bukkapatnam? The lady replied,

Mother! What else can I do? There is no doctor in this remote village who can give some medicine for my child. He is suffering from cold and fever. I have to take him to the Bukkapatnam hospital. This incident also made an imprint on the mind of Eswaramma.

There used to be a mother and small child in a remote village near Kolkata. As soon as the child was born, the father died. The mother somehow brought up the child with the meagre income she earned by doing some odd jobs. There was not even a lamp in the house for the boy to study during the night. He used to sit under the street lights and study. Thus, he continued his studies with great difficulty and earned a high degree. That little boy blossomed into the legendary Eswarchandra Vidyasagar.

Once, a fair was being held in Kolkata.

134 135

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37

Eswarchandra s mother also started out to visit the fair, wearing a worn out sari. He saw her pitiable condition. While everybody else was going to the fair wearing expensive clothes, Vidyasagar could not bear the sight of his mother going to the fair wearing a worn out sari. He asked, Mother! Why are you going to the fair wearing such a worn-out sari? The mother replied My dear son! I am happy with whatever I have. Please do not worry. You continue with your studies and come up in life.

A few years after this incident, Vidyasagar completed his studies. He was able to secure a good job with a decent salary. He bought some good saris for his mother with his first month s salary. Then, his mother told him, I will not be really happy with these costly saris. If you help the poor people in our village and alleviate their suffering at least to some extent, that is enough for me. She further expressed that she had three desires. Immediately, Vidyasagar fell at her feet and prayed, Mother! It is my duty to fulfil your desires. It is the responsibility of a son to fulfil the desires of his mother and make her happy. Please let me know what your desires are. The mother replied, My dear son! There are several poor, uneducated and sick people in our village. Who will alleviate their suffering? I will be really happy, only when you can remove their difficulties. The children in this village have to walk long distances and go to the neighbouring village for studies. I am really moved at their pitiable condition. Should they have to undergo so many difficulties for the sake of education? I want you to build a small school in this village itself so that these children can comfortably study here. Vidyasagar built a small school in his village as per the wishes of his mother and she was happy. On another day, Vidyasagar found his mother sitting in a pensive mood and enquired what the reason was. She told him, My dear son! The people of our village are suffering a lot for want of drinking water. They have to fetch the water from long distances, walking all the way. The well in our village has completely dried up. How can old ladies like me fetch water from such a long distance? If you can arrange for the digging of a well in our village, it will be a great boon for them. This is my second desire. Vidyasagar assured her, Mother! I will certainly fulfil your desire. I will try to solve the drinking water problem in our village. Initially, he got two or three bore wells sunk in the village, but they were not of much use. The bore wells were able to supply water only during the rainy season. During summer, they used to dry up, yielding not even a drop of water. Therefore, the mother advised him to find a permanent solution for the problem. Then, Vidyasagar arranged for digging a big well and solved the problem of water scarcity permanently. His mother was happy.

Education Must Confer Humility

After sometime, Vidyasagar got a promotion in his job. His salary also increased. Then, he approached his mother and enquired, Mother! What is your third 136 137

desire? She replied, My dear son! You have built a school. You have provided drinking water to the villagers. But, the mothers in our village are compelled to take their children whenever they fall sick, to the neighbouring village for treatment. I am unable to see their plight. Hence, I will be happy if you can arrange to build a small hospital in our village. In accordance with his mother s wish, Vidyasagar got a hospital built in his village. Thus, he fulfilled all the desires of his mother in due course.

Gradually, he reached a high position in his career due to his good behaviour. His salary also increased commensurate with the high position. In spite of that, he continued to be humble and obedient and thereby earned a good name for himself. One day, his mother called him and advised him, My dear son! I am happy that you have attained a very high position in life. But, do not become arrogant.

For some people,

Excessive wealth gives rise to ego which in turn paves the way for many wicked qualities. When wealth leaves you, ego also vanishes and as a result the evil qualities disappear.

(Telugu poem)

However, this was not the case with Vidyasagar. He cultivated the quality of humility along with education. He earned a good name for himself as a great orator. Educated people in large numbers used to ? ock round him to hear his speeches. Once a meeting was arranged in a neighbouring town and Vidyasagar was to address the gathering. Vidyasagar started for that town. An ICS officer was travelling in the same compartment in which Vidyasagar was travelling. The officer was going to that town to hear Vidyasagar s speech. However, he had only heard his name, but had never seen him before. As soon as the officer alighted from the train, he started shouting Coolie! Coolie! On seeing this, Vidyasagar approached him and enquired what luggage the officer had. The officer replied that he had only a small suitcase. Then Vidyasagar asked him, Is it necessary for you to engage a coolie to carry this small suitcase? I will carry it for you. But, where are you going? The officer replied, I understand that a great scholar and orator by name Eswarchandra Vidyasagar is going to deliver a speech. I am going to attend his speech.

Vidyasagar then took the suitcase in his hands and started walking along with the officer. Both of them reached the venue of Vidyasagar's lecture. There, Vidyasagar handed over the suitcase to the officer. The officer then took out his purse and enquired how much money he had to pay Vidyasagar as portage charges. Vidyasagar politely refused his offer saying, Sir! You have given me an opportunity to serve you. I don't need anything more. He silently walked away from that place. Considering Vidyasagar to be a madcap, the officer proceeded to the venue and sat among the audience. The organizers of the function were waiting to garland Eswarchandra Vidyasagar on his arrival. In a few minutes Vidyasagar arrived there, dressed in very simple clothes. He was accorded a warm welcome and profusely garlanded by the organizers of the function. The officer who was observing this welcome-ceremony realized to his utter astonishment that the person who had carried his suitcase from the railway station was none other than Eswarchandra Vidyasagar himself. He felt ashamed. He reverentially offered his pranams to this great, yet humble individual, in his heart of hearts. Then Vidyasagar began his speech. He explained that humility is the foremost quality of an educated person. He said, pride and arrogance are the result of excessive wealth and consequently such a person loses the fundamental quality of human nature.

138 139

After the conclusion of the programme, the ICS officer met Vidyasagar and offered his sincere apologies for his mistake. He pleaded with Vidyasagar, Sir, your speech was a great eye opener for me. I behaved arrogantly due to the pride that I am a highly educated person. Please excuse me.

In course of time, Vidyasagar's reputation as a scholar and orator spread by leaps and bounds. He continued to do great service to the people. He got several poor students educated. He provided drinking water to several villages, where there were no such facilities. His mother felt very happy that her son was doing great service to the poor and needy. She prayed to God that every mother should be blessed with such noble children.

Humble Wishes Of A Generous Mother

Similarly, Sathya Sai has undertaken several community welfare activities in Puttaparthi like constructing residential houses for the poor, educating their children, providing drinking water to the villagers, etc., as per the wishes of His mother. What the mother expressed in those days were small desires. But, in course of time, they assumed the form of gigantic projects and created history. Mother Easwaramma was very happy at the great service rendered by Swami to the villagers. She expressed with satisfaction, My dear son! You built houses for the poor, You solved the drinking water problem for the villagers, You provided electricity to the village which was miserable under darkness. Not only that, You have also built a school and a hospital. You have fulfilled all my desires. She felt extremely happy that her son had undertaken and completed such great tasks. She used to tell the ladies gathering round her, I requested Swami to build a small school in Puttaparthi village. But, Swami established a great educational institution in its place.

Thus, the humble wishes of the mother transformed themselves ultimately into great projects providing immense benefit to the humanity at large. What the country needs today is children who follow the teachings of their mothers. The teachings of the mothers may appear to be very simple and insignificant, but, in course of time, they provide great happiness. Easwaramma's desires were very simple! She wanted drinking water to be made available to the small village of Puttaparthi. But, Swami provided drinking water to the entire district of Ananthapur. She wanted Me to build a small school. But, Sathya Sai built huge buildings and established great educational institutions. In those days, villagers used to suffer due to lack of basic medical facilities. Therefore, Mother Easwaramma requested Me to build a small hospital. But, Swami built great temples of healing, the Sathya Sai Super Specialty Hospitals, one in Puttaparthi and another in Bangalore. Thus, the small wishes of the mother resulted in the establishment of world class institutions.

Embodiments of love! You need not follow anybody. It is enough, if you engage yourself in activities that would satisfy your mother. If your mother is happy and contented, that will confer great blessing on you. Whatever your mother says, obey her command willingly and sincerely. That is what is required today! Obey your mother and become recipients of her love. Then the whole world will progress. You need not undertake any other acts of merit. Sacrifice your entire life to satisfy your mother. It is only because Sathya Sai fulfilled the wishes of His mother and provided satisfaction to her, His glory has spread far and wide.

Sathya Sai has built great Hospitals that provide expensive medical treatment absolutely free to everyone, right from the poorest of the poor to the richest. In the field of medical services, there are no institutions anywhere in the world which can be compared to Sathya Sai Institute of Higher Medical Sciences. In this hospital, medicines, operations, food everything is provided free of cost. Nobody is able to comprehend how we are able to provide all these things free of cost in the present day scenario of sky-rocketing costs. Unfortunately, people are not able to realize the great value of the services being rendered by our hospitals. Today, many hospitals advertise their facilities through electronic media, attract people and loot them of their hard earned money and even go to the extent of causing death to patients by negligence. This is not right. The poor people should be given free food, free education, free water and free medicine. There can be no greater service than providing all these services free of cost. I wish that all the students, past and present, should undertake such services. We are not collecting even a paisa from our students as fees. The Sathya Sai Educational institutions provide education totally free of cost. People have to spend huge amounts for acquiring higher education in other institutions. But, our students need not spend any money for their education here. I am providing totally free education from KG to PG to all the students who come here with love and great expectation. In fact, all our services are provided with loving care and free of cost.

Serve The Society With A Spirit Of Sacrifice
142 143

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37
The Sikh student who spoke earlier, tried his best for a long time to acquire higher education. But, he could not pursue his higher studies due to paucity of funds. Hence, he took up employment on a meagre salary. Later on, he joined our college and earned his MBA degree. Now, he is contributing his services to the hostel as a grateful offering to Swami. There are several students like him, who are undertaking service activities in Swami's institutions. The boy who spoke after him hails from Delhi. He also had a great desire to pursue higher education, but had no funds. He joined our Institute and qualified himself with an MBA degree in first class. All this is free of cost. Since then, he remained here in the service of Swami. He has decided to dedicate his life to the institution which produces such boys. Thus, all the students of the Sathya Sai institutions have been cultivating broad-mindedness and the spirit of service.

All our students are broad-minded. You will not find any narrow-minded students here. They are filled with love and behave among themselves like brothers. It is My endeavour to train such ideal boys and girls. It is My wish that all our students should willingly undertake free service activities to the society with a spirit of love and sacrifice.

Many of our students are working in highly paid jobs in big cities like Delhi and Agra. In fact, top companies in India are seeking the services of our students, offering them high-salaried jobs. Our students working in these places are also undertaking service activities like providing free tuitions to poor students. Wherever they are, our students are undertaking various service activities with a spirit of sacrifice and broadmindedness. Education is not mere bookish knowledge. Developing broad-mindedness, spirit of sacrifice, sharing one's resources willingly with fellow members of the society and making them happy-these are the true qualities of an educated person. There are several such students in Prasanthi Nilayam who are happy and contented by undertaking service to society. My main task is to prepare such boys and girls. I am providing everything that is required for them. I am even sending them abroad for higher education, if necessary.

Dr. Padmanabhan who is sitting here may be known to all of you. He qualified as a doctor at a very young age and wanted to set up a small clinic here in Bangalore. I called him and told him, Doctor! You must acquire higher degrees in medicine. You should not stop your education with the present degree. Your family circumstances may not be conducive to pursue higher education. But, I am with you. I will provide for your higher education. One day, I called him for dinner and later sent him to Vienna for higher education in medicine. Accordingly, he went abroad and obtained higher degrees in medicine. After his return, he is now doing wonderful service in Brindavan. He is not moneyminded. The great name he has acquired in Swami's service is all that matters to him. Can there be greater 144 145

wealth than a good name? He serves the poor. Even though he has undergone a heart surgery, he continues to serve the poor patients. Thus, Swami has moulded him as a loving, soft-hearted and selfless individual with a sacred heart and prompted him to serve people. Our students, in spite of being highly qualified, are very unassuming and without ego. They subsequently take up teaching jobs in our educational institutions. It is My firm resolve to foster such noble souls. There may be some minor ailments now and then to this body. However, they do not bother Me. They are natural to the human body. Last year, one boy was decorating the door with colour buntings, standing on an iron stool. Meanwhile, I opened the door and came out from My room. As soon as he saw Me, he became nervous and fell down from the stool. As he was falling, the iron stool got tilted and fell on Me. My hip bone was fractured. That is how it happened. It is not due to any past karma. I did not, however, mind My injury. Yesterday, as I was entering My room, I casually took the support of a brick projection from the wall. The brick, however, got loosened and fell down on the ? oor. Consequently I also fell down, landing heavily on the wrist. It was an accident. But, I had to perform My duty, come what may. Of course, accidents do happen due to past karma, but this incident is not of that kind. Such disruptions may happen now and then, but, no disease can ever af? ict Me. I carry on My work unmindful of such incidents.

There are seven boys here. All of them did their post graduation. They want to stay with Swami permanently, doing service here. I am looking after them. I told them, My dear children! You must progress in your education. You need not depend on your parents for this. I will take care of all your requirements. You study well and come out with ? ying colours. Set an example to others. Thus, I am making arrangements for their higher studies. I always help others and do not cause inconvenience to anybody. As for Myself, I will never be af? icted with any disease whatever. Some minor incidents may happen. But, I will carry on My work, unmindful of such incidents. Yesterday, when I fell down, there was a loud noise and people present there were very much afraid that some major accident had taken place. They thought to themselves - What has happened to Swami! Till recently, He was not able to walk properly due to the hip fracture. Now He has sustained an injury to His hand. What a misfortune has befallen us! But, I consoled them saying that nothing serious had happened and that they should not worry. The devotees had arranged a meeting here, in which I had to participate. I do not like to desist from performing My duty, whatever may happen to this body. Therefore, I agreed to come here. I put on My dress. The students arranged a shawl to cover My gown, so that I may not be inconvenienced with the bandaged arm. The doctors however advised Me not to move. They were right in their advice. But, I volunteered to come down against the doctor s advice, with the help of two boys. Since I love My boys so much, they also love Me with the same intensity. They are constantly in attendance on Me and look after Me.

146 147
Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37

(As per Swami s instructions, some boys stood up. Showing them to the audience, Swami said).

These boys have come from far off places like Delhi and other cities and studied here in Brindavan and Prasanthi Nilayam. They are all staying with Me and doing great service to Me. This problem is not something that can be cured with medicines. Their love itself is working as a great medicine for Me. Their love alone is protecting Me in different ways.

This boy did his PhD. All these boys are highly educated. Still they would like to stay back and serve Swami. There are some more boys inside Swami s residence. For example, Sathyajit and some other boys are constantly in attendance on Me like a shadow and are looking after Me. Such boys are My only property. Several people ask Me, Swami! How much is the value of your property? Where is it located? I tell them, My dear! I cannot say that the value of My property is this much. My students are My property. It cannot be evaluated in terms of money. Any amount of description of the love of My boys will be insufficient. I cannot remain for a single day without this property. They also cannot live without the loving care of Swami. These boys are setting a great example to the world by their service. Seva (sel? ess and loving service) alone confers great value on the educated. I cannot describe the amount of service they render, so lovingly. No one can adequately estimate and express in words the loving nature of our students. No one can understand their broad-mindedness. Outwardly, they appear like any other students. But, each one of them is highly educated, with double postgraduate degrees. Such boys can render great service to the world. They are serving Me in various ways.

Sravanam (listening), kirtanam (singing), vishnusmaranam (contemplating on Vishnu), padasevanam (serving His Lotus Feet), vandanam (salutation), archanam (worship), dasyam (servitude), sneham (friendship), and atmanivedanam (selfsurrender) are the nine paths of devotion.

These boys are expressing their total and unconditional love towards Me through those nine paths of devotion.

The doctors advised Me bed rest. In spite of that, I decided to fulfil My commitment to My devotees. Having known My firm resolve, the boys stitched a shawl to cover My robe and brought Me down stairs. This service may appear to be a small and insignificant one. But, if you enquire into the matter deeply, you will understand that it is very difficult to get this opportunity Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 to serve Swami in this way. It is only because of their loving care, that I am able to come down without much inconvenience to speak to you. Is it really possible in My present condition? In fact, it is their pure love that brought Me down here. These boys have good character along with good education. The service rendered by the boys here or in the Primary School or Higher Secondary School or other institutions in Puttaparthi, is beyond description. Even little boys in these Institutions behave well. I am standing before you today to describe the good qualities of My students; otherwise, I had no intention to give a discourse. The students are doing great service to the society, as per My advice. I exhort the new entrants who join the Institution this year to cultivate noble qualities, be healthy and happy and humble like these boys and render good service to the society. I conclude My discourse with blessings to one and all.

The Form Of God Is Love

Forbearance is the real beauty in this sacred land of Bharat. Of all the rituals, adherence to truth is the greatest penance. The most nectarous feeling in this country is the feeling of love towards one's mother.

(Telugu poem)

Embodiments of Love!

IN this sacred land of Bharat, forbearance is the real beauty. The modern man has no idea of what forbearance is. He is not able to realise that forbearance is the real beauty in this sacred land. One bereft of forbearance is no human being at all. We should have sympathy and forbearance towards the poor and the physically challenged. But the modern man shows disgust towards such unfortunate people. In fact, sahana (tolerance) is the most valuable and sacred mantra of the

Bharatiyas. But man, out of his ignorance, has given up such a sacred mantra and is carried away by yantra and tantra.

The foremost quality expected of a devotee is forbearance. What is bhakti (devotion)? Several people are under the mistaken notion that worshipping some idols, observing certain vows and performing some rituals is bhakti. It is not as simple as that. The foremost duty of a devotee, especially of the Bharatiyas, is observing the quality of forbearance in practice. Adherence to truth is the real tapas (penance). Man, today, has gorgotten this principle. Forbearance is a quality which inspires people to undertake noble deeds. This noble quality is to be taught to others as well, to enable them to imbibe it.

The nectarous feeling in this country is the feeling of love towards one's mother. Today, people overlook the most important duty to look upon every woman as one's own mother. There is nothing greater and sweeter than this motherly love in the world. One who has cultivated such noble feeling is most fortunate. It is not a quality that can be purchased or hired. This motherly feeling? ows from the natural love that one has for one's own mother. The people of Bharat are forsaking such noble qualities and are trying to imitate and cultivate alien cultures and traditions today. In fact, they are running after alien culture with excessive enthusiasm, treating it as their very life breath.

Divine Love Permeates The Whole World

Embodiments of Love!

You cannot find anything more sacred than love in the world. Today, you will find worldly and physical love everywhere. But, it is very difficult to find love suffused with atmic bliss.

Embodiments of Love!

Love is not merely that which exists between two individuals at the physical level. True love is that which exists between two hearts. Bharatiyas today are neglecting such sacred and noble love. It is only the love towards God that has sustained and protected the people in this sacred land of Bharat since ancient times, just as the eye lid protects the eye. This divine love permeates the entire universe. Wherever you look for, it is present. There is nothing in the world, except divine love. All other types of love are only mere passing infatuation. Real love emerges from the depth of one's heart. Cultivating such divine love and sharing it with others is most pleasing to Me. Today, you find worldly and physical love for achieving selfish ends everywhere. But, you cannot call it real love. Real love which is sacred, divine and sel? ess has to spring from one's heart.

Embodiments of Love!

Cultivate and strengthen such divine love. When you cultivate such love, you will not be lacking in anything. It is only when you cultivate such noble love, you will be entitled to be called Embodiments of love. God is omnipresent. Who is God? In fact, you are verily God. You must strive to attain that state. Though God is present everywhere, you should not forget the divinity immanent in you. Some people think that God exists separately in some distant place.

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37

Prahlada, the child devotee of Lord Vishnu declared:

Never doubt that God is here and not there.

Wherever you search for Him, He is there.

(Telugu poem)

This is the real culture of Bharat, which we are not able to preceive today. Everyone chants the name of God. But, where is God? In fact, you yourself are God. You and God are not separate. Man forgets the divinity latent in him and runs after trivial and mundane things.

Embodiments of Love!

Under all circumstances, do not give up love. Love is your greatest treasure. One who forgets this treasure, is not a human being at all! We love our father, mother, brothers, sisters, etc. All these relationships are but mere roles in the divine drama. You must try to apprehend true love. In fact, it is always in us. You need not search for it outside. Unfortunately, today we are going after things which are not real and permanent. (Showing a ? ower

...) What is this? This is a ? ower. Everybody says so.

But, the truth is, it is a manifestation of divinity. There are several petals in it which represent divinity. If the petals are taken out one by one, it cannot be called a ? ower. Similarly, if there is no love in a human being, he cannot be called an Embodiment of love . The source and sustenance for the entire universe is love.

This quality of love takes different shapes in different individuals, say between father, mother, brothers and sisters, but you refer to it all as love. All these individuals together consititute a family. It is not enough if you limit your love to the family members. The entire universe must live like a family. Whomever you see, offer your pranams. Say Namaskar! Namaskar! Can you come across a nobler feeling than this? All the forms you come across in this world are embodiments of divinity.

There is nothing in this universe which is not divine.

You consider the different objects in the universe as mere objects. No! No! Consider them as Embodiments of divinity . Unfortunately, today we have become foolish and are searching for God in some distant corner.

Wherever you see, there is God. Therefore, it is the noblest feeling to consider everything in the universe as Embodiments of divinity . The unviers is but a form of God! God is manifest in all forms. Consider such an omnipresent divinity as God. Do not give credence to the outward form of any object, but firmly believe in the divine power that is immanent in that object. We are not experiencing anything other than divinity in our day

154 155

- to - day activities. For example, we are thirsty. Thirst is a fire manifest as divinity. We quench our thirst by drinking water, which is another manifestation of the divine.

Thus all the five elements in the universe, the five senses, five sheaths and the five vital breathes in the body, are all manifestations of divinity. Today, we are misusing our senses. This is an act of grave sin. All the senses are pure, sacred and sel? ess. The senses have no distinction of caste, creed, religion, nationality, etc. Keeping such noble qualities in our own self, we are searching for divinity in the outside world. What a great pity! What do you think the human values are? They are nothing but divine qualities. God has no attributes separately. Divinity itself is the sole attribute. We are deluded to see the attributeless divinity as God with attributes.

Love Is God s Only Attribute

Embodiments of Love!

Whatever I speak, it is only love. I do not know any other word. There is no other quality greater than love. Hence, we have to love the quality of love, which is God.

The different ways by which we describe God such as Nirgunam, Niranjanam, Sanathana Niketanam, Nitya Shuddha, Buddha, Mukta, Nirmala Swarupinam (God is attributeless, pure, final abode, eternal, unsullied, enlightened, free and embodiment of sacredness) are only for our satisfaction. They cannot, however, describe God in full. In fact, God is beyond description. The only word by which we can describe God is love . Nothing better can describe Him.

Embodiments of Love!

You are all the Embodiments of love . Your form is love. God s form is also love. I am very much distressed to see those physcailly challenged children seated on the tricycles. They are, in fact, Embodiments of divinity . To look down upon those divine children with contempt is a great sin. In fact, there are no lowly people in the world at all! That low thinking is in us only. It cannot be attributed to God. God has only one attribute, which is love. That is His form. When someone converses with Me lovingly, My joy knows no bounds. If people employ empty rhetoric without love to describe My qualities, I am not at all pleased or impressed. Talk to Me with a loving heart. Pray to Me with a love - filled heart. Whatever you pray for with a loving heart, I will readily respond. You call Me Sai with love; I will readily respond saying Oyi . Any amount of prayer devoid of love cannot move Me. If you call Me with love, I will respond immediately, wherever I am. There is nothing greater than love. Therefore, if you wish to have the darshan of God and experience

Him, pray to Him lovingly. You may have any amount 156 157

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37
of wealth and virtues, but they are no match to the quality of love. The sweetness inherent in the word prema is not to be found anywhere else in the world. The more you cultivate and practise it, the sweeter will be your personality. Therefore, cultivate love as the foremost quality in you.

Love is your sole refuge wherever you may be, in a forest, in the sky, in a city or a village, on the top of a mountain or in the middle of deep sea.
(Telugu poem)

Love is not confined to any particular place or residence; it is universal. Therefore, cultivate such universal love. Such a universal love cannot be purchased with any amount of money. It can only be attained with a heart filled with intese love. Man has, therefore, to cultivate such pure and sel? ess love. In order to cultivate such pure love, bhakti (devotion) is prescribed as a means. Bhakti is not somewhere in some distant corner.

Prema (love) is bhakti (devotion). Devotion without love is deep ocean. And how is that ocean? It is full of salt water, whereas devotion with love is like sweet water.

Love is a nectarous feeling. Love is verily bliss. Love is a wonderful feeling. It is unfathomable. Therefore, such a nectarous, sweet, blissful and unfathomable love,
you should never give up.

Embodiments of Love!

Instead of making hollow claims of bhakti, keep prema as your goal to be attained. There is nothing greater than this sadhana. There is nothing that can liberate you easily than pure and sel? ess love. There are four words - mukti (liberation), bhakti (devotion), rakti (attachment) and anurakti (attachment or love towards God). But, love is the undercurrent in all these things. On this auspicious occasion of Guru Purnima, love is the most vaulable gift I hand over to you. This is my most precious gift to you. Devoid of love, whatever other gifts I may give, they will be of no use. My love is pure, sacred and most precious. You also cultivate such love.

My Students Are My Wealth

One may acquire a high academic qualification
such as M.A., B.A., MBA and MFM and attain exalted position,

One may amass wealth, perform acts of charity
and attain name and fame,

One may have physical strength and enjoy a long and healthy life,

One may be a scholar, but if he lacks human values
all his achievements will prove futile.

(Telugu poem)

Students! Boys and Girls! Teachers! Patrons of Education!

BY mere acquisiton of wordly education man cannot attain exalted position in life. All human efforts will be in vain without divine grace.

There are many in this world who are highly educated,
160 161

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37
but are they rendering any service to the nation? No. In this respect, the unlettered people appear to be better human beings than the highly educated. In spite of his education and intelligence, a person who does not know his true Self is but a fool. One may be highly intelligent and educated, but bereft of human values his life is meaningless. In fact, one devoid of human values is no human being at all! There is little use in acquiring a number of degrees without imbibing human values.
Character Is The Prime Objective Of Education
Embodiments of Love!

To know and recognise a truly educated individual, you have to look closely at our students. They are not satisfied with mere acquisition of degrees. They utilise their knowledge for the benefit of society. Education which is not useful to society serves no real purpose.
Our boys are highly virtuous and are endowed with the wealth of character. They consider virtues as their very life. Men of eminence who come here from all over the world learn many things from our students. Some of our students remain here and serve as teachers after the completion of their education. I am very happy about it.
We need not be worried about getting good and noble teachers from elsewhere for our Institute. Our own students, after their studies, take up the responsibility of teaching. In other academic centres students are interested in pursuing higher studies for their own selfish ends, but our students are not interested in accumulating degrees, but in disseminating their knowledge for the benefit of others.

One cannot acquire such character and nobility from mere education. The education they received here is not limited to textual knowledge alone. It develops virtues which originate from the heart. Our students are incomparable. They are taking up the roles of teachers all over the world and are helping society by moulding ideal students and men of character. Character is the prime objective of education here in our Institute. A person of such education and character, can rule over the entire world. Education without character is useless. I am very much pleased to have such students who are virtuous, energetic and intelligent. Our MBA students have all the noble qualities that are expected of them. In addition to their studies, they learn various languages. Students from Kerala have gained proficiency in various languages, such as, Tamil, Hindi, English, Telugu, etc. They speak all these languages with such ? uency that it is very difficult to identify their mother tongue. For such talented students, it is not difficult to learn the language of the Atma. They give talks even in Sanskrit. But they also adhere to our sanskriti (culture). Sanskara is not imbibed by learning Sanskrit, it comes from adherence to sanskriti. One who adheres to sanskriti will be able to attain all types of wealth and be an ideal to others. When I asked one of the students which place he belonged to, he said, Swami, I belong to Puttaparthi. That boy speaks Sanskrit very fulently. He has also learnt various other languages. Students who have studied in Puttaparthi are spreading Swami's message in various countries, such as, America, Japan, Germany, Italy, etc. Students who have such dedication and devotion are very rare these days. But here are many such students in our institutions. It gives Me great joy to have such students here. We need such students. I wish that these students, after completion of their education, share the knowledge they have acquired here with fellowmen in society and transform them. Men of eminence like the President of India, the Prime Minister and Chief Ministers are all praise for our students. They extol our students whenever they visit this place.

162 163

In our Institutes, students are provided education totally free of charge. In addition to this, scholarships are provided to deserving students. If you ask what is Swami's property, I say, Students are My property. Without the students, I will not be able to do anything. They are looking after Swami with utmost love and care. In fact, they are responsible for all the development that we find in our educational and other institutions.

The culture of Bharat is based on the Vedas which are in Sanskrit language. Here students chant the Vedic mantras both in the morning and in the evening. You cannot get such students even if you do intese penance. They can certainly bring about progress in society. There is no language that our students do not speak; they are very versatile in all kinds of skills. You may be under the impression that Swami is taking great pains to mould the character of students. There is no pain whatsoever. In fact, students are of great help to Swami. They are spreading the ideals of Sai to the rest of the world giving hai (joy) to one and all. There is a need to establish more similar institutions in order to mould such ideal students. Parents themselves are not aware of the innate potential of their children. Our students are filled with noble thoughts and sacred feelings. They give top priority to the service of their parents. They treat their friends and realtives with love and affection. They have no desire for accumulating wealth. Their sole aim is to obey Swami's command and work for the progress of society. I do not want any other property than My students. With the help of these students, many educational institutions can be developed. Unlike students elsewhere who wake up very late in the morning, our students get up in the early hours at the crowing of the cock. They observe moderation in food and habits. Such discipline can not be found among student community elsewhere. They are attentive in classes and learn their lessons well. They ae obedient to their teachers. They take part in sports and games, such as, Badminton, Tennis, Volleyball, etc., in the right spirit. They take good care of their health too. They are all very strong in physique and spirit. You do not find anyone weak and af? icted with diseases. Such students who take care of themselves are capable of taking care of the country as well. Our institution is fortunate to have students of such calibre. If there are another five institutions of this quality, they will be able to raise the happiness level of the whole country. In fact, other colleges are trying to emulate our institution. Our students are like diamonds. They are obedient to elders, courteous towards relatives. Seeing their good conduct and listening to their sweet words, the guests who visit their houses are highly impressed. They are creative in their thinking and shine as role models. We do not wish to praise the qualities of our own students. But when dignitaries who visit this Institute talk high of our students, I feel very happy.

164 165

(Here Bhagawan referred to the hip bone fracture He suffered last year.) I am not suffering from any disease or any ailment. Last year, one boy was hanging colour buntings on the door while standing on an iron stool. Meanwhile, I opened the door and came out of My room. As soon as he saw Me, he became nervous and fell down from the stool. As he was falling, the iron stool got toppled and fell on Me. He too fell on Me. That was the time when My hip bone was fractured. Doctors tried their best to set it right. They felt sorry that it would be difficult for Swami to walk. I told them, No one needs to feel sorry for Me. My students will take good care of Me. They will follow Me like shadow wherever I go. My students have become My doctors. It is because of them that I am able to move around. Our students tell Me, Swami, we don't need to be worried about anything when we are with You. We want to sanctify our lives in Your service. With such love and faith, hundreds of students have remained with Swami after the completion of their education, performing various duties assigned to them. They do not want to go outside for a job. You may find it hard to believe if I tell you about the work they do. Once someone from outside came here and took two of our boys for employment. They were given a salary of 50,000 to 60,000 rupees per month. They utilised the money to serve the poor children. Later on, they resigned their jobs and came here as they could not bear the separation from Swami. Our students have transformed Prasanthi Nilayam into a big workshop. They are able to handle various types of instruments and equipments very efficiently. They are striving hard for the development of hospitals. It is not possible for anyone to understand the sacred feelings of our students.

(Swami asked one of the boys who was sitting near Him to get up.) This boy did his Engineering and then completed his MBA degree in our Institute. Many people from all over the country requested him to join their companies. But he decined their offers.

What is he doing at present? He is spreading Swami's message all over the world through Radio Sai Global Harmony. Even his parents tell Me, Swami, please keep him with You always. When he was with his parents, though they would force him to eat more, he did not put on weight. But after coming here, he has gained 18 kg, even without timely intake of food. Now he is always with Me attending to My needs. At the same time, he does not keep his office work pending. He attends to it at night.

(Swami asked another boy to get up.) What do you think of this boy? He hails from a backward area in Orissa. His father has three sons. Now, all the four of them are working in Puttaparthi. These boys have completed their M.Sc. and MBA. They do not want to undertake any job outside. All of them have remained here serving Swami. They are satisfied with the salary they are paid here. In this manner, all the boys who are working here are full of virtues and are leading a life of sacrifice. For the last few months, our boys are taking good care of Me. I do not have any pain. I do not require any medical treatment. I do not need to be worried about anything. It is because of the loving service of My students, I am spending My time blissfully without any inconvenience or suffering whatsoever.

They are always ready and eager to serve Me. They carry out My instructions meticulously. There are 200 such students around Me in Parasanthi Nilayam. They do not sit idle; they discharge their duties diligently. It is not possible to describe the magnitude of work they do. They attend to all jobs. If there are such students everywhere, the nation will certainly prosper. They help everyone. I want to make them totally self-reliant. They should depend on the work they do and not on anybody else. They will certainly be able to lead their lives in that manner. I am telling all this today so that you will know the noble qualities of our students. They are gunavanthlu (virtuous), balavantulu (energetic) and also dhanavantulu (wealthy). They earn their own money. They do not take even a paisa from their parents. Sometimes, the parents may come and ask, Do you require anything? They reply, Swami has provided everything. He is taking care of us very well.

In future, many great events are going to take place. The country need not fear. Bharat will certainly become a land of plenty and prosperity. Our students will contribute a lot to the development of the nation. They are the future leaders. It is a matter of great joy for Me to see the students as future leaders.

Do Constant Namasmarana For Mental Peace

Oh man! You struggle hard in life merely for the sake of filling your belly. You acquire myriad types of knowledge from various fields. Examine and enquire for yourself what great happiness you have achieved by spending all the time from dawn to dusk in acquiring worldly knowledge and earning wealth, while forgetting God.

(Telugu poem)

Embodiments of Love!

WHETHER a pauper or a millionaire, one has to eat. But, having attained the sacred human birth, it is unseemly of man to spend his entire life merely for the sake of filling his belly. Why don't you spend a few minutes in the contemplation of God, instead of spending your entire life just to earn a living? There are of course a few people in this land of Bharat, who are sanctifying their time and their environment in the contemplation of God, but the vast majority are wasting their births in vain pursuits.

Human Birth Is Meant To Experience Divinity

Embodiments of Love!

It is not only in Srikakulam district, but in many other places all over India, there are people who are struggling and straining to eke out their livelihood. In spite of all the effort, they are unable to attain peace, happiness and comfort. Only those who are spending their time in the contemplation of God are able to experience peace and happiness. Those who forget God and spend all their time and energy in mundane pursuits are bound to suffer. Till this day, nobody has been able to enjoy mental peace and physical comfort in full measure. The body is like a water bubble. It is nothing but a bag full of bones. Mind is like a mad monkey. It is a mistake to strive for the happiness of such a physical body and wavering mind. So long as one is alive, one should make efforts to keep the body healthy, so that one may not cause inconvenience to others. There are many who spend their entire life for the sake of physical comforts and pleasures. It is only a few who are not concerned with their mind and body, but are centred on eternal peace and happiness. Human birth is meant to experience divinity and not to crave for eeating pleasures. Human body is a divine gift, which is being put to improper use, instead of its proper purpose of adoring God. Do not be under the mistaken notion that body is meant for eating and enjoying physical pleasures only. Certain duties have been assigned to man by performing which he will be able to experience happiness at the level of the body, mind, senses and the spirit. One should enquire what the purpose of human birth is? The goal of human birth is to work for release from the cycle of birth and death. This body is a den of dirt, and prone to diseases; it is subject to change from time to time; it cannot cross the ocean of samsara. The body should be used as an instrument to rise from the level of humanness to divinity. Human life is sanctified only when we experience divinity. There are many people who are making efforts in this direction. But only a few are able to realise the truth and achieve the goal. One may undertake any type of activities, but one should always aspire to attain peace of mind. Without peace of mind whatever enterprise that man undertakes will only add to his restlessness.

God Is Your Sole Refuge

Embodiments of Love!

You are really fortunate to have come here all the way from Srikakulam in spite of your financial constraints and various other difficulties. Swami is very well aware of your aspirations. You have come here to experience divine bliss. You were feeling sad that Swami has not spoken to you a word even after two days of your stay here. In fact, last night you were all praying intensely.

172 173

In response to your sincere prayers, I have decided to address you this morning. It is not My intention to satisfy you with just a discourse. I am ready to extend all the help required to fulfil your aspirations. Many of you are facing problems due to shortage of water. Some of you do not have even proper food to eat. Food and water are very essential for everyone. Do not give room to worry and anxiety. God is not stone-hearted. He will certainly take care of your needs. His heart is filled with compassion. Swami's concern for you is hundred times more intense than the concern you have for yourselves. You need not be worried at all. Develop the feeling that difficulties and suffering are for your own good. Even insurmountable difficulties will vanish like thin mist when you have firm conviction. Hence, do not be unduly perturbed about your problems. Difficulties come and go. Not only the poor, even a millionaire cannot escape from difficulties. Swami confers His blessings on you so that you will be relieved of your suffering soon. You may consult the elders of your villages and take the help of those who are willing to cooperate with you. I will see to it that there is plenty of water available in your mountainous area. Do not be depressed or bogged down by difficulties. Having put on the vesture of the human body, one cannot escape from difficulties. The physical body may undergo suffering, but you should make efforts to attain peace of mind. Mind is the basis for happiness for everyone. All physical comforts will be of little use without peace of mind. Only through contemplation of God can you attain peace of mind and not by any other means. Hence, chant the name of God incessantly unmindful of the difficulties that come in your way. It is because of contemplation of God's name that you have been able to experience peace in spite of the innumerable difficulties you faced. God is the refuge for the poor and the forlorn. He is always with them through all the vicissitudes of life. Do not think that God is in some distant land. God is by your side always. In fact, He is present in the inner recesses of your heart. Never think that God is away from you at any point of time. Neither friends nor relatives can come to your rescue. God is your sole refuge. He will protect you under all circumstances. In spite of numerous difficulties, Bharatiyas never swerved from the Godward path. If Bharat occupies a pivotal position among all nations, it is only because of Bharatiyas one-pointed devotion to God. There are many af? uent countries where people lead a luxurious life, but they are unable to attain peace of mind. It is the good fortune of Bharatiyas that they are able to enjoy peace of mind. Their devotion to God is responsible for this. Since ancient times, the culture of Bharat has been protecting the Bharatiyas in all respects. Its glory and grandeur defy all description. One who has peace of mind will have moral strength. Hence, chant the divine name constantly. Yesterday you went round the entire village singing the glory of God and entered the portals of Prasanthi Nilayam; you experienced peace of mind. It is not possible to experience peace by any other

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 means. Hence, never forget God. Sanctify your time by chanting His Name. Contemplation of God should be man's constant endeavour. There may be some jealous people who will try to dissuade you from chanting God's name. They say, What is the use of chanting God's name? It will not help us to eke out our livelihood. We have to work hard for our survival. So, stop chanting God's name. Do not pay heed to such narrow-minded people. Never forget God's name. You may not be aware; people all over the world in all villages are facing hardships. They are suffering from physical ailments and mental agitations. Only Bharatiyas are able to enjoy peace of mind because of their devotion to God. There is no happiness greater than experiencing peace of mind. Mental peace can be obtained only by constant contemplation of God. This cannot be purchased from the market. It is only by constant contemplation of God that mental worries can be overcome. This is the experience of people all over the world. Contemplation of God alone can bring about mental peace and happiness. No other means can achieve this.

To be born is a worry, to be on the earth is a worry; world is a cause of worry and death too; entire childhood is a worry and so is the old age; life is a worry, failure is a worry; all actions and difficulties cause worry; even happiness too is a mysterious worry. (Telugu poem)

Namasmarana Will Obviate All Difficulties
Contemplation of God is the right royal path that would remove all types of worries. Therefore, do not try other means for achieving mental peace and get into trouble and worry. March on along the divine and glorious path. All the karmas in the spiritual field are meant to bring peace and happiness to us. They are not intended to trouble us. Mental peace can be achieved only by performing one's own duty, not by any other means. Karma brings about a result; and that result brings happiness and peace. Even when you are undergoing difficulties, always think that they are meant to bring you happiness. Every human being undergoes difficulties, only to enjoy happiness later. However, he does not realise this during the period of suffering. But, in course of time, when suffering ends and happy days arrive, he would realise the truth. Hence, always remember the truth that sorrows and difficulties are prelude to happy days ahead. In fact, real happiness comes out of suffering only.

Embodiments of Love!

Love is the only property that always grows the more you spend, the more it grows; it never diminishes. Supposing you go up a hill and sing the glory of God; the divine vibrations will reach a large area and the people hearing the namasmarana even from a distance will feel very happy. Divine music can confer solace even to children and animals. By hearing namasankirtan, even the heart of a stone-hearted person will melt. We have 176 177

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 heard of several instances in Indian history where great devotees of God, by their namasankirtan, could bring about complete transformation in die-hard criminals. Suppose you are digging a pit; the soil in that is taken out and stacked by its side becomes a mound. You need not feel anxious that the pit is becoming deeper and deeper. The soil that is dug out of the pit and the soil that is piled up next to the pit are the same. Similarly, along with the difficulties you undergo, you will experience happiness also in abundant measure. When you fill in the soil that is piled up (namely happiness) in the pit of sorrows and difficulties, you will attain a state of equanimity. This is what you have to realise today. You need not feel sorry, Oh! I have fallen into this pit of sorrows and difficulties. How can I come out of this? How am I to bear this? The soil of happiness stacked next to the pit of suffering may be filled into the pit. You will attain a state of equanimity. You have to do this sadhana.

Embodiments of Love!

You have come here with love-filled hearts, undergoing lot of difficulties and physical strain. It is your love and devotion to Swami that brought you here. Go back to your places with the same intensity of love and devotion. Continue to enjoy the moments of joy and happiness you experienced in the presence of Swami.

Pleasure and pain, good and bad co-exist, none can separate them. You cannot find pleasure or pain, good or bad to the exclusion of the other. Pleasure results when difficulties fructify.

(Telugu poem)

Thus, happiness and sorrow come to teach us equanimity.

Embodiments of Love!

Love is the only wealth that can never diminish. That is the property of God. Therefore, cultivate pure and sel? ess love. God's love will always follow you wherever you are and will protect you at all times. Do not ever consider that money alone is your property. In fact, love is your real wealth. The wealth of Love always grows (expands), never diminishes. Those who realise the Paramatma will be able to understand this truth better. My heart is over? owing with love and joy on account of the namasankirtan you have done yesterday in the streets of Puttaparthi. Continue this namasankirtan wherever you are throughout your life. Especially, when your spirits are down with sorrow, sing the glory of God full-throated. Never feel diffident to sing the glory of God, thinking that others may make fun of you. Irrespective of what others may think or say against you, continue this sacred activity of namasankirtan. Only then will you be charged with divine power.

Embodiments of Love!
I am very happy that you are all gathered here. I 178 179

always wish joy, happiness, comfort and peace for all of you. Today, 8000 devotees from your place have come here to share the happiness of Swami's divine presence. All of you, please go to the canteen and partake of Swami's prasadam happily. Swami's prasadam will become akshaya (never diminishing) and will remove all your sorrows and difficulties. Everything that is granted by Swami is suffused with love. Whatever is granted by Bhagawan is always free. God will never succumb to monetary considerations. Wherever any service activity is associated with money, it is tainted. The entire property of Swami consists of Love only. Such divine love must become your very life-breath. All your past karmas will become extinct, if only you cultivate that pure love.

All of you go to the canteen and have food, as Swami's prasadam. Thereafter, you can go to your respective villages, happily.
Embodiments of Love!

Having come here from such a long distance, fill your hearts with love. Sometime ago, there was a singer by name Saluru Rajeswara Rao. He used to visit Swami, regularly. He remained absorbed so much in music that he would sing while walking in the streets, unmindful of what others thought of him. Today, his son has come here to sing some devotional songs in the divine presence of Swami. These devotional songs fill the hearts of people with overwhelming joy. Late Rajeswara Rao used to sing a particular song on Sri Krishna melodiously Challagaalilo Yamunathatipy Shyama Sundaruni Murali (Shyamasundara is melodiously playing His flute on the banks of the Yamuna, while the cool breeze is blowing). His voice as well as his feelings were sweet. Both Rajeswara Rao and another devotee Adi Narayana used to come here regularly. They were the people who composed the Sai Charita and sang those songs melodiously. They may be anywhere; the lives of such pure-hearted devotees are sanctified. Those, who sell their God-given talents and make a living out of it, can never be truly happy.

Rajeswara Rao and Adi Narayana never made business out of their musical talents. They always sang to their heart's content, with love and devotion. The glory of such devotees, whether dead or alive, will remain forever. There was another well known devotee by name Ghantasala Venkateswara Rao. He also underwent many difficulties. But, he was always devoted to God. Whenever he was in difficult situation, he used to sing, Oh! God! Won't You pull me out of these difficulties? Even when he was sick and was hospitalised, he used to sing lying in the hospital bed, Oh! Lord! How long have I to suffer this agony! Won't you relieve me of this pain? Once I went to the hospital to see him. I consoled him saying, My dear Ghantasala! Never think of these difficulties and suffering. These things happen to test your faith in God. You will come out successful in this test, by constant namasmarana. A devotee like him
180 181

who is constantly engaged in namasmarana under all circumstances, will become immortal. Namasmarana is the only property that lasts forever. Therefore, you also undertake this sadhana, as a lifelong activity. Whether your voice is good or not, continue to sing the glory of God by constant namasmarana at least in your heart. Thereby, you will acquire merit that will protect you throughout your life. If you do this sadhana, God will always be with you, in you, around you. Whenever you take food, do namasmarana before partaking of the food. By doing so, the food will be sanctified and will become prasadam (gift) of God. Your heart also will be purified. That is why, our ancestors prayed thus before partaking of food:

Brahmarpanam Brahma havi
Brahmagnou Brahmanahutam
Brahmaiva thena ganthavyam
Brahma karma samadhina.

When you pray in this manner before you partake of your food, God immediately responds thus:

Aham Vaishvanaro bhutva
Praninam dehamasrita
Pranapana samayukta
Pachamyannam chaturvidham.

(My dear! I am present in you in the form of Vaishvanara digesting the food that you partake of)

The prayer thus made invokes an immediate response from God. That is reaction, re? ortion and resound. Therefore, constantly engage yourself in namasmarana, which will confer bliss on you.

Divine Love Alone Can Save Us From Sorrows

Oh man! You struggle hard in life merely for the sake of filling your belly. You acquire myriad types of knowledge from various fields. Examine and enquire for yourself what great happiness you have achieved by spending all the time from dawn to dusk in acquiring worldly knowledge and earning wealth while forgetting God.

(Telugu poem)

Embodiments of Love!

Hunger, thirst, pleasure and pain, are quite natural to man. One follows the other. Food is essential for man. But filling the belly is not the be - all and end - all of human existence. Man is born not for the sake of ahara (food) but to experience ananda (bliss). One who is oblivious to ananda and spends his 184 185

time and energy in the pursuit of ahara will ultimately fritter away his life. The purpose of celebrating festivals is to experience bliss and not merely to partake of delicious food. No doubt the body requires food, but life is not meant for food alone. Unmindful of this truth, man is treading the path of unrighteousness for the sake of food and physical pleasures. The body is made up of five elements and is transitory. The mind is a mere bundle of thoughts and desires. We should not be unduly attached to the body and the mind. We should strive to experience bliss.

Sanctify Your Time With Sacred Actions

Embodiments of Love!

Human body has emerged out of love. Hence, we should lead a life for divine love and not for food. But man has not understood this truth. He struggles hard from dawn to dusk for the sake of filling his belly. He is not utilising the gift of the body for the purpose it is assigned to. This body is a den of dirt, and prone to diseases; it is subject to change from time to time; how foolish it is to develop attachment to such an impermanent body and strive for its pleasures?

Embodiments of Love!

We should lead our lives in such a manner to redeem ourselves. We should love God and aspire only for Him. Your love should be directed only towards God, not for the body. Our speech, actions and the life-breath itself are meant to experience the Atma. Sometimes the body may be af? icted with ailments, but they are like passing clouds. Man is born to attain the eternal truth of the atma. Life is meant for atmaanveshana (quest for the atma) and not for annaanveshana (quest for food). Annaanveshana gives cause to physical ailments. They come and go like passing clouds. How foolish it is to be depressed about such passing clouds ? We should never forget the truth that we are born to experience the eternal bliss of atma.

Embodiments of Love!

You have come here all the way from Kerala to celebrate the holy festival of Onam and experience joy and bliss in the divine presence of Swami. We should not allow trivial matters to dampen the spirit of enthusiasm. We should march forward with courage and conviction, unmindful of any hurdles and inconveniences in the way. A few minutes ago, when all of you were blissfully immersed in the celebration, all of a sudden My nose started bleeding. I went inside, wiped the blood and came out cheerfully as if nothing had happened. How can we discontinue the celebration of a sacred festival of this kind on account of such trivial matters? We should not lose our self-confidence on such minor physical discomforts. They are transient in nature; you should not get distracted by them. Ailment and suffering are but natural to the physical body. Sometimes even the sun is covered by clouds. But can the clouds ever diminish the effulgence of the sun? No. Just as the sun is not affected by the clouds, you too should remain unaffected by ailment and suffering. When you develop such courage, conviction and determination, you will not be depressed or dejected by any suffering.
186 187

Embodiments of Love!

We should sanctify our time by performing sacred actions. This is the spiritual lesson we have to learn today. We can experience transcendental bliss only when we overcome the difficulties and suffering that come in our way. Never be afraid of difficulties; face them with courage. Only then humanness will blossom in you. Once you experience the bliss of the atma, difficulties and suffering will no longer bother you.

Embodiments of Love!

Amidst the joyous celebration of the festival, My slight physical discomfiture has caused anxiety to you. You should never give scope for anxiety or worry. In order to allay your fears and anxiety and to give you joy I came back immediately. In this world, many difficulties come in our way. Truly speaking, they merely cause anxiety in you; they cannot harm you.

Transcend The Mind

Onam is the most sacred festival of Kerala. You have to understand the significance and message of this festival and put it into practice. Onam is an occasion to share our joy with others. You cannot experience happiness without undergoing difficulties. Na sukhata labhate sukham (one cannot derive happiness out of happiness). Happiness gains value in the face of difficulties. Even insurmountable difficulties will vanish like thin mist when you face them with courage and self-confidence. The problems may appear to be mountainous in nature, but you should not give scope for fear or anxiety in your mind. Mind is like a mad monkey. It easily gets swayed by difficulties. Hence, you should brush aside the difficulties that come in your way. Never allow them to get the upper hand. Mind is the veil of maya (illusion) that stands as an obstacle in your path to spirituality. You should not become a slave of the mind; you should conquer the mind. Only then can you attain divinity. But you are carried away by the vagaries of the mind which is nothing but maya. You should ignore the dictates of the mind. We consider the mind to be the most important aspect of humankind. However, it can lead you to dangers and difficulties if you are carried away by its whims and fancies. Hence, do not submit yourself to the mind.

Embodiments of Love!

One who has control over the mind is a true manishi (human). One who lacks control over the mind is no human at all. How can you call yourself a human being if you are fickle-minded and depressed over trivial problems? You should make efforts to overcome problems posed by the mind without being unduly worried about them. In this world, there is nothing

188 189
greater than God's love. Hence, we should transcend the mind that stands as an obstacle in the Godward path.

Embodiments of Love!

You are born out of love and sustained by love. You should sanctify your life by leading a life suffused with love. Treat love as the very basis of your life. You are not fit to be called a human being if you submit yourself to trivial problems. Even tiny ants are able to overcome obstacles that stand in their way. Problems are not limited to human beings alone; even birds, beasts and insects have problems.

Saint Thyagaraja sang,

Oh Rama, You pervade everything right from a cheema (ant) to Brahma. You are in Siva and also in Kesava. Please take care of me.

(Telugu poem)

The same divinity that is present in an ant is also present in man. Likewise, difficulties are also common for all. The suffering that an ant undergoes is similar to that of man. When such a tiny creature like an ant is able to withstand suffering, why is it that man is not able to do the same? He is in? uenced by his food and habits and thus has become a slave to his mind. That is the reason he is unable to withstand suffering. We should face the challenges of life with fortitude and brush aside the difficulties. Never be cowed down by difficulties. You can attain God only when you face difficulties with courage and overcome them.

Focus Your Mind On God

Embodiments of Love!

You should not seek anything other than divine love. There is nothing superior to love in this world. You consider gold, silver, diamond, etc. as most valuable. In fact, all these so called valuable things are meant to delude man. We should not care for such worldly possessions. Instead, we should focus our mind on God. Perform your daily activities keeping God as your goal. Only then will your human birth find fulfilment. We should strive to attain the grace of God and not be deterred by difficulties and losses. When you have God on your side, you can achieve anything. All your difficulties and suffering will vanish in a trice. When such omnipotent divinity is within us, why should we be worried about trivial matters? Love is the divine power that bestows on us the courage to overcome difficulties. Anything can be achieved with the power of love. We should be afraid of sin, and not difficulties. We have to develop daiva preeti, papa bheeti and Sangha neeti (fear of sin, love of God and morality in society). Instead of developing fear of sin, we are enslaved by sin. Instead of seeking refuge in God, we are submitting ourselves to difficulties. Morality in society will lead to love of God which will in turn lead to fear of sin. Hence, we should uphold morality in society and dedicate ourselves to God.

190 191

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37
Thyagaraja once prayed, Oh! Lord, I am deeply concerned about the fear of sin. I am unable to surrender to your love. Please grant me the strength of conviction to bow down before your divine love. Please give me the strength to overcome the fear of difficulties. What did we achieve in our life? What is the purpose of constant contemplation of God? One who is constantly contemplating on God should be able to keep himself away from sinful acts and develop love for God. There can be no greater fortune than having love for God. One must strive to achieve that great treasure. One should not be deterred by sorrows and difficulties in that sadhana.

Embodiments of Love!

You have all gathered here to attain that great fortune of love for God. One should never be subdued by sorrows and difficulties. Sorrow and sin are obstacles in the path of spirituality. They are like the waves. When one gets into the water and attempts to swim, the surging waves must be pushed aside, so that one may move forward. Similarly, in the stream of life, if one wants to move forward, one has to push aside the surging waves of sorrow and sin. From a child to the adult, everyone has to strive to attain the love of God. This struggle for God's love, moulds the personality of a human being. What is meant by personality? Does it mean height, weight and a strong body? No, it is a mistake to think so. Undeterred by the sorrows and difficulties, one has to march forward with courage to attain God's love. That is the real meaning of personality. In fact, God has already granted such personality to every human being. Unfortunately, we fail to realise this truth. The word Person implies a great divine force that is granted by God to Man. Our ancestors called this divine force as Persona. This is a great gift of God, granted to every individual. We are unable to safeguard this great treasure. These sorrows and difficulties are like passing clouds that come and go. Why should we be afraid of them? We have the eternal Divine principle immanent in our personality. Therefore, there is no need at all to be afraid of anything as long as we are constantly aware of our latent divinity. March forward with courage and conviction and achieve your life's goal. It is only to instil this feeling of courage in you and reinforce your faith in God that you are subjected to face certain anxious moments.

Be Rooted In The Atmatattwa

Embodiments of Love!

I am aware that you are very anxious about the physical discomfort that Swami underwent, a few moments ago. You are very worried about this physical body. Understand and be convinced by the fact that the body is after all physical in nature. It is like a water bubble; the mind is like a mad monkey. You need not be afraid of this mad monkey. You should not worry about these passing clouds. They are like visitors who come and go. We have to be firmly established in the Atmatattwa, which is nothing but divinity. Develop full faith in the Atmatattwa. That alone will protect you in every way.
192 193

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37

Embodiments of Love!

God can do anything by His divine will. Why should you fear when such all powerful God is always with you, in you and around you? Develop such courage and conviction and march on. There cannot be a more powerful force than faith in God in this world.

Embodiments of Love!

All these children have gathered here to spend some sacred moments in the divine presence of God. They are really fortunate. Their good fortune is the result of the merit acquired by their parents. Here is a small girl (pointing towards a girl). She participated in a group dance programme a short while ago. While doing so, she was constantly observing the steps made by other girls in the group. She developed so much concentration in this activity that she was constantly maintaining her steps in tune with the steps of other girls. (Swami created a gold chain and put it round her neck.)

Embodiments of Love!

I will be very happy, if all of you can become children once again. A child will never have the bad qualities of anger, passion, jealousy, conceit and ego. Jesus Christ was always appreciative of the quality of innocence in children. Once, he lifted a small child from the lap of her mother in the crowd and said I like this small child very much; she has all the qualities of divinity. She is pure, sel? ess and is in perfect bliss. Children in general are divine in nature. As they grow up they develop bad qualities like excessive desires, attachments, anger, jealousy, etc. Along with advancing age, sorrows and difficulties will also increase. Therefore, one should strive for attaining control over one's desires. That is ceiling on desires. If you can develop this control, you will come under the in? uence of divine power. Otherwise, you will be deluded by the power of desires and get into that vortex from which you can never come out. A child like simplicity, purity and innocence, is the road to divinity.

Embodiments of Love!

I wish you should become children at least for one minute a day. You should emulate those noble qualities, which are characteristic of children. Supposing you are troubled with desires, chase them away as unbecoming of your noble personality. Only then can you hold your head high. A few minutes ago, My nose was bleeding profusely. If I were to submit Myself helplessly to this bodily ailment, it would have aggravated further. Therefore, I decided to defy this bodily discomfiture and stand erect with firmness, unmindful of what is going to happen to the body. I washed My face and came back immediately. After all, this body and the blood circulating therein are nourished and nurtured only by the food we partake of. If we cannot control our own body, what is the purpose of our living? Wherever we are, we must keep the body in our control. Only then we become real human beings and can move closer to divinity. The more you control your body and mind, the nearer you move to God.
194 195

The Message Of Onam Is Love

In fact, love is the only quality that takes you nearer to God. There is nothing greater than love. It is a divine attribute. Love is God. Live in Love. When you cultivate this noble quality, you deserve to be called a human being. This divine love is like the blood that circulates in every human being, nay, every living being. If we can cultivate this universal love, you can love not only every human being, but all living beings. Love is God and God is Love. Therefore, take every individual lovingly to your heart. Do not ever show anger or hatred towards anybody.

Embodiments of Love!

The quality of love that permeates every human being is one and the same. There are no differences whatsoever in this regard. When you cultivate such universal love, it becomes your very life-breath, which is dearer to God. Therefore, cultivate such pure, unsullied and sel? ess love. Love your neighbour's child as your own child. All are embodiments of love. The message of this sacred festival Onam is Love. This festival is observed to spread this message of Love among all human beings. In fact, we are born to cultivate this sacred love and share it with others. If we fail in this endeavour, our whole life becomes a waste.

When My nose was bleeding a few minutes ago, some doctors advised Me that I should take complete rest and not to go out to give a discourse. I asked them why? The doctors explained that if I started talking, the bleeding might recur. Then I replied, Ok! Let Me see! Thus I faced the problem squarely with courage and confidence. Thus, when we encounter a difficult situation, we should not feel sorry and dejected. We must face it with courage. Only then can we overcome the situation.

Embodiments of Love!

Whenever you encounter suffering either bodily or mentally, do not lose your cool. Do not get dejected. Instead, face the problem squarely and undertake activities that will instil a sense of courage and confidence in you. No doubt, situations do arise in life when we have to undergo sorrows and difficulties. When our loving parents depart from this world, we are in deep sorrow.

Instead of losing our poise in such difficult situations, it is advisable to face the ordeal with courage, expressing gratitude to our parents for granting us the gift of this body.

Embodiments of Love!

I hope I am not causing inconvenience to you by speaking at length. It is only to instil courage in you that I am giving this long discourse. When I was suffering with a bleeding nose, all our children were anxiously waiting in the adjacent room in an anxious mood. I told them, Do not feel worried. I will go out and administer a strong dose for this ailment. Such is My courage and confidence in facing difficult situations. In fact, this courage is My real strength. Come! Let us go! The children collected all the blood-soaked towels and felt very distressed on seeing them. If those clothes are washed, the blood stains will vanish in no time. Likewise, only God's love can wash our sorrows off! Therefore, cultivate such divine love. All your sorrows and difficulties will be removed.

The Lord Accepts Only A Pure Heart

Oh Krishna! You don't eat what I give You,
You don't eat our home-food,
You go to the houses of the cowherds,
And eat butter stealthily,
You spoil Your good name, my dear!
(Telugu poem)

Thus, mother Yashoda expressed her anguish one day, having been vexed by the complaints of the neighbours. She chided Him saying, Oh Krishna! I have to face a lot of trouble on account of Your mischievous pranks. You don't have taste for the food prepared in our house. You always like the items prepared in the neighbouring houses. How shall I manage with You? True, people develop a taste for food in the neighbouring houses. A sweetmeat shop owner sitting in his own shop, all the while enjoying the sweet smell of the laddus, develops a taste for puffed rice from another shop.

The Vamana Avatar

Kashyapa, a great devotee of the Lord had completely surrendered himself at the Lotus Feet and was totally lost in divine bliss. One day, his wife, Aditi, approached him and advised him, My dear! We do not have children. You have surrendered everything of yours to the Lord. Why don't you pray to Him to bless us with a child?

Emperor Bali, in Krita Yuga, performed many vajinas. After completion of one hundred and seven vajinas, he made arrangements for performing the one hundred and eighth vajina known as Viswajit. As he was performing this vajina, Lord Vishnu appeared before him as Vamana in the guise of a dwarfish Brahmin. Vamana asked for three paces of land in charity from Bali, which he was about to give. In the meanwhile, Emperor Bali's preceptor Sukracharya came there and tried to dissuade Bali from giving this gift of charity. He advised Bali,

Please do not give anything in charity to this short Brahmin, much less the three paces of land. Do not underestimate him. He is not an ordinary Brahmin. He is an avatar of Vishnu. He is born to Sage Kashyapa, in fulfilment of the boon granted by Lord Vishnu to him. But Emperor Bali did not pay heed to the advice of his preceptor. He asked Lord Vamana, Sir, What can I do for you? Vamana replied, Oh King! I do not need anything. Just give me three paces of land. Sukracharya again pleaded with Bali, Oh King! You consider this person as an ordinary Brahmin. No. No. He is capable of filling the entire universe. It is not wise on your part to grant his request. But, Emperor Bali turned down his advice saying that he could not go back on his promise, as it was a great sin not to stand by one's word.

In those days, people considered death preferable to going back on one's word. But today in Kali Yuga, people make promises and break them at will. Emperor Bali was of pure heart. Once a promise was made, he fulfilled it, come what may!

He said, I gave a word to this Brahmin boy. I am prepared to face any eventuality in fulfilling my promise. I will offer the fruits of all the vajinas I have performed, including the one I am now performing to this Brahmin boy. So saying, he put the garland of the fruits of 108 vajinas performed by him round the neck of Vamana and prostrated before him. (As He said this, Swami created a necklace of 108 gold coins.)

Vamana covered the entire land given in charity by Bali under one foot. He grew in size and filled the entire universe with his second foot. There was no further space to put his third foot. Then Sukracharya said, Oh emperor! You did not pay heed to my advice. You underestimated this Brahmin boy and got yourself tricked by his innocent looks.

200 201

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37

Vamana received the offering of Emperor Bali and praised his large-heartedness and blessed him.

Vamana was short in stature, but he could fill the entire universe. Being an avatar, He was aprameya (beyond all limitations, indescribable and immeasurable). Human beings have limitations, but not an avatar.

The Universe Functions As ordained by The Lord

The sunrise and sunset happen according to a predetermined divine command. It happens regularly, uninterrupted. The sun, the moon and the stars follow a definite pattern of schedule. All the five elements in the universe discharge their duties regularly as ordained by the Lord. Even God Himself observes the rules that He lays down for all. Everything in God's creation goes on according to a predetermined order and divine command. Nothing in the universe, including the five elements, has an independent existence. But, unfortunately, man is unable to recognise this divine force that regulates the functioning of the universe. Scientists are making unstinted efforts to discover this divine force. The stars shining brightly in the sky at night are, however, not visible during daytime.

The sun rises in the morning and sets in the evening with utmost regularity everyday. The stars glitter beautifully in the sky at night and hide themselves during the day. The wind blows incessantly and sustains the living beings without taking rest even for a moment. The rivers make gurgling sounds as they ? ow perennially.

What could be the reason for this phenomenon?

Scientists probed into this aspect and concluded that the stars were not visible during daytime because the sun was shining brilliantly in the sky during that period. Similarly, they tried to explain the divine force in ever so many ways.

The moment the umbilical cord is cut and the child is separated from the mother, it cries. Why? Nobody could explain and explore this secret. The moment a drop of milk or honey is put on the tongue of the newborn child, it sleeps happily. This means ever since a human being comes out of his mother's womb, he struggles to satiate his hunger.

Oh man! You struggle hard to acquire various types of knowledge in order to fill your stomach.

In spite of all your hard work and acquisition of knowledge, you are unable to experience everlasting happiness. Instead, why don't you contemplate on the Lord and seek refuge in Him? He will certainly show you a way to overcome your misery.

(Telugu poem)

Every human being thinks that he is born merely for filling his belly. He constantly struggles to acquire food.

202 203

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37

There is another interesting phenomenon in nature. The branches of a tree rub against each other due to the wind and fire is born out of that friction between two pieces of wood. How does it happen? Though there is fire in the wood of a tree, it is not burnt away. Why? No scientist could ever discover this secret so far. There are several such inexplicable phenomena in nature. With a view to recognise and understand such phenomena, man is constantly engaged in the quest for divinity. However, one need not search for God, who is omnipresent.

Oh man! You struggle hard in life merely for the sake of filling your belly. You acquire myriad types of knowledge from various fields. Examine and enquire for yourself what great happiness you have achieved by spending all the time from dawn to dusk in acquiring worldly knowledge and earning wealth, while forgetting God.

(Telugu poem)

Everything in this universe moves strictly according to the Divine Will and force. Man, of his own accord cannot achieve anything. The divine force manifests itself in several ways in this universe, in the form of various types of energy. People think they are created by somebody. Strictly speaking, nobody has created them. They are natural phenomena that manifest out of divine will. For example, when two pieces of stone are struck against each other, fire is born. It means, there is fire latent in the stone, but does not manifest outside. Thus, all the powers are latent in nature.

Pure Devotion Of Suguna

A few minutes ago, one boy spoke about Nanda and Yashoda, the foster parents of Lord Krishna. In those days, there was no electricity. People in the village used to go to the house of Nanda (since he was the chief of the village) and lighted their oil lamps from the lamp lit up in Nanda's house. People were of the belief that they would attain plenty and prosperity if they lighted their oil lamps from the lamps lit in the houses of wellto-do-people. A newly married daughter-in-law by name Suguna arrived in that village. Her mother-in-law told her to go to the house of Nanda and get her lamp lighted from theirs. When Suguna went to the house of Nanda and lighted the lamp, she could visualise Krishna in that ? ame. On having this divine vision, she lost her body consciousness. She fixed her gaze on that beautiful form of Lord Krishna and was lost in bliss. She could not even realise that her fingers were being burnt, having come into contact with the ? ame. She was in total bliss. In the meanwhile, other ladies from the neighbouring houses also came there to light their own lamps. They were wonderstruck on witnessing this scene. They could notice that Suguna was not moving away from the ? ame

even though her fingers were being burnt. They then realised that she had the vision of Krishna in that ? ame. They sang a song describing this incident. (Swami sang a Telugu song, the meaning of the first few lines is as 204 205

It seems Suguna had a vision

Of Gopala in the house of Nanda

She saw Krishna in the ? ame!

On hearing this song, Yashoda came there literally running. She saw Suguna's fingers getting burnt in the ? ame. While all the Gopis were dancing in ecstasy, Yashoda went near Suguna and pulled her hand away from the ? ame. She chided her saying Oh! Suguna ! Did you not notice your fingers being burnt on coming into contact with the ? ame? Do you wish to bring a bad name to us that if anyone goes to Nanda's house, their fingers will be burnt? Suguna's mother-in-law was by nature a short-tempered woman. On hearing about this incident, she came running to the house of Yashoda and made a big issue of this incident. She ordered her daughter-in-law not to go to the house of Nanda again in future, for getting the lamp lighted.

Several miracles happened in the house of Yashoda. After Krishna left for Mathura, the Gopis could not bear His separation and were pining for His Darshan. In such a moment of yearning, Krishna appeared in Gokul. However, neither Nanda nor Yashoda could see Him. All the Gopis gathered at the house of Nanda and prayed that they may be allowed to have Krishna's darshan. They started complaining, Nanda and Yashoda! you have kept Krishna away from us. Please tell us where he is. But, Krishna did not make his appearance in public. He appeared to some Gopis individually in answer to their prayers.

A few minutes ago, a student of our University narrated an incident wherein Swami had appeared before him in answer to his prayers. No one else could see Swami. Then, the boy prayed again, Swami! What is the use of giving darshan to me alone? Please give darshan to all the students; otherwise, they will not believe my words and will make fun of me. I replied, Does not matter. Let people think whatever they wish to. This is your prapti (deservedness), only you deserve to see Me . So saying, I disappeared.

God Likes Only Pure Hearts

Once, Yashoda reprimanded child Krishna saying, Oh! My dear Krishna! You don't eat the food I prepared for you. You go to the houses of the milkmaids and stealthily eat the butter stored in their houses. You are creating problems for me. Is it that the butter suffused with mother's love does not taste good for you? So saying, she tied Krishna to a mortar with a rope. It is everybody's experience in the world that we do not like the food cooked in our own house. The items cooked in others houses will appear to be tasty. This is quite natural. However, Krishna did not steal the butter from others houses for its taste. There is an underlying message in this leela. Here, butter symbolises a pure heart. Wherever such a pure heart is available, Krishna takes it. Such a pure heart will be soft and sweet. The hearts of Gopis were ripened with devotion. They were pure, soft and sweet. Hence, Krishna had gone to their houses to steal their hearts.

206 207

Krishna is referred to as chora (thief). What does He steal? He steals the butter-like hearts of the Gopis, hearts which are pure, soft and sweet. If you address someone as chora (thief), he will be annoyed. But if you call Krishna as chiththa chora (stealer of the heart), He will enjoy this appellation. That is why, devotees sing in praise of the Lord most endearingly Chiththa chora Yashoda Ke Bal! Navaneetha chora Gopal! Gopal, Gopal, Gopal! Govardhanadhara Gopal! (Oh! Yashoda's little Krishna! Oh! Gopala! Stealer of butter! Oh! Gopala! Lifter of the Govardhana mountain!). The song thus sung melodiously with bhava, raga and thala will be liked by everyone. Great Singer-saints like Thyagaraja made sweet offerings to God in the form of kirtanas suffused with bhava (feeling), raga (tune) and thala (beat) and won His grace. There is so much sweetness in such devotional songs. God's grace can surely be obtained by such devotional singing. You cannot win the grace of God by empty rhetoric. It is only through devotional singing suffused with bhava, raga and thala, that divinity can be attained. God will be moved by such sankirtan. Even the Vedas have extolled the efficacy of devotional singing. Even by chanting the Vedas, God cannot be attained. There are several hymns in praise of God in the Rig Veda, Yajur Veda, Sama Veda and Atharvana Veda. But, not even a single individual chanting those hymns could obtain divine darshan. However, when these hymns are set to tune and sung with devotion, they could experience divine love. That is why God is extolled as ganalola and ganapriya. Therefore, you pray to God with devotional singing. You can easily win the grace of God. Some people may have a doubt, We cannot sing well; we have not learnt the art of singing. How can we please God? Do not worry. You may not have knowledge of music or a melli? uous voice. It does not matter. Sing the glory of God with intense love, in some tune which you know. That is enough to move the heart of God. What is music? It is not necessary to make a special effort to learn music. A simple song with intense love and yearning will move God. For example, you recite a poem, Rama! Nannu Kaapadu (Oh! Rama! Please protect me). There will be no sweetness in the poem. It is simply a literary rendering of your feelings. Similarly, if you make an appeal to God saying Rama! Nannu Kaapadu, it becomes an empty repetition of words. The same feeling, if it is expressed in a song set to a beautiful tune, Rama! Nannu Kaapadu, it will be so sweet and endearing to divinity. There is so much sweetness in music. Therefore, if you want to attain God, you have to do it only with devotional singing.

208 209

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37
Sing Soulful Songs

You need not be disappointed if you have not learnt music. Why disappointment? If there is an appointment, there will be disappointment. Therefore, do not make an appointment, in the beginning itself. You sing the glory of God in your own way. That is the easiest way to attain God. The divine bliss enjoyed by the gopis in Krishnavatar in Dwapara Yuga is unparalleled. Therefore, remember that divine bliss and try to please God with your love and devotion.

In no avatar devotees have merged in the divine love to such a great extent as in Krishnavatar. Thousands of devotees have merged in Sri Krishna during His avatar. Hence, if you want to merge in divinity, devotional singing is the only means. God is said to be ganapriya (pleased by devotional singing). Krishnavatar is the best example for this statement. One simple name Krishna sung by a devotee is enough to move Him. The leelas, mahimas and the miraculous deeds performed by Lord Krishna during His avatar are unparalleled.

Dear students! You are singing several bhajans. All of you are participating in the bhajans. But, each one is singing in his own way. This is not proper. If all of you sing in one voice and one tune with divine feeling, God will surely install Himself in your loving heart. Krishnavatar is the only avatar that had granted darshan to different people in different ways, clarified their doubts about His divinity and merged them in His own Self. Krishnavatar is the only avatar that made everyone happy and blissful by His sweet and loving words.

Embodiments of Love!

There is nothing superior to devotional singing. What a great joy and happiness you derive by singing the song Nanduni Yinta Gopaludanta Deepaana Kanipichenanta (It seems Gopala has appeared in the ? ame in the house of Nanda). Therefore, sing such soulful songs with bhava, raga and thala to please God and obtain His grace. You may sing any number of bhajans and songs, but it is only when they are suffused with intense love, devotion and sweet and soft feeling (bhava) you will derive immense happiness and joy.

God Protects Those Who Protect Sathya

And Dharma

No visit to any pilgrim centre, no penance, no

Yogic practice, no study of sacred texts nor charitable acts will help you in crossing over the ocean of Samsara, but the service rendered to the noble. (Sanskrit sloka)

Embodiments of Love!

YOU would have read in sacred texts that

Ravana was a master of four Vedas and six

Sastras. Having learnt these sacred texts, was there any transformation in him? No. Instead of developing daivatva (divine qualities), he developed danavatva (demonic qualities).

212 213

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37

Practise What You Preach

The ten heads of Ravana symbolised four Vedas and six Sastras. In the decisive battle, Rama severed

Ravana's heads since he did not put into practice the knowledge he had acquired. Mere learning of sacred texts and chanting of Vedas will not bring about any transformation. In order to drive home this message,

Rama cut off with his arrows Ravana's ten heads. It is only right at the end. Just before his spirit left his body

Ravana did recognise his faults and repented for them and became sacred thereby. All that God preaches is for the benefit and welfare of humanity. Therefore, it is enough if one puts into practice at least one of the teachings of the Vedas. It should be a natural trait for everyone to put into practice the divine teachings.

In Prasanthi Nilayam, you find that even the Primary school children join the senior students in chanting Vedas. They know all Vedas, but they do not have the required knowledge to put them into practice.

Mere recitation of the Vedas is of little use.

Only God exists everywhere and at all times. The world is but an illusion. The sacred teaching that God exists everywhere should be propagated to everyone.

You find many sadhakas (spiritual aspirants) chanting and teaching the Vedas. Consider this example: a cassette tape or a disc merely plays, but does not experience the melody. It would be fruitless if one does not practise what he preaches. So, one should recognise, understand and practise the sacred teachings. Lord Krishna put into practice what He propagated and also insisted that everyone should follow suit. You find many elders in the Mahabharata who were great scholars themselves, but, failed to put into practice the knowledge they acquired.

The same is the position today. God has no preferences or dislikes whatsoever. All are equal for Him. But, He watches to see how much a person puts into practice what he has learnt. Many people study sacred texts, go on pilgrimage, perform penance, repeat God's name, but what is the use? Many ask Me for a japamala (rosary). Is it to adorn your neck for publicity or is it for spiritual experience? One hand is enough for one who wants to practise this sadhana. (At this point, Swami demonstrated with His hand as to how one should do namasmarana.) The five fingers of the hand contain nine aksharas (letters) which are further divided into twelve Brahmas and this makes up to hundred and eight beads of the rosary. Chanting the name of Rama nine times twelve will make up to one hundred and eight. This sadhana requires neither a japamala nor a fixed place. It can be done while walking or even while lying down till you go to sleep. When there are such easy and sacred paths, why should one go for strenuous sadhanas foregoing sleep?

Droupadi is known for her chastity. She has protected her husbands in many ways. After the gruesome massacre of the young Pandava children,

Arjuna tracked down Aswatthama, the perpetrator of 214 215

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37

the atrocity, and dragged him before Droupadi. Instead of cursing the evildoer and pronouncing punishment for him, she fell at the feet of Aswatthama, the son of her husbands most revered Guru, and said:

It is at the feet of your father, Dronacharya that my husbands have learnt all that they know.

Being the son of Dronacharya, was it proper to kill my children. How could you have the heart to kill them who were unarmed, young, quietly

asleep, were not having any grudge against you,

and were not contemplating any harm to you?

(Telugu poem)

When Droupadi was praying like this, Bhima could not bear to see this. Exploding in anger, Bhima roared:

This Droupadi is a stupid woman, for she pleads

for this wretch's freedom. She feels no anger against this murderer of her sons.

(Telugu poem)

Practise Forbearance

When Arjuna was about to kill Aswatthama, Droupadi fell at his feet and reasoned with him thus: Arjuna! Will my sons be revived by killing Aswatthama? His mother too would experience the same kind of sorrow that I am undergoing at the loss of my sons. Having studied the Vedas and Sastras, how is it that you are not able to maintain your tranquillity? The body is made up of five elements and is bound to perish sooner or later, but the Indweller has neither birth nor death. The Indweller has no attachment whatsoever and is the Eternal Witness. Truly speaking, the Indweller who is in the form of the Atma is verily God Himself. (Telugu poem)

Thus, Droupadi pleaded with Arjuna to forgive Aswatthama for his heinous act. Arjuna replied, You are preventing me from keeping up my vow. To this Droupadi said, Tonsuring his head and removing the crown jewel from his head is equivalent to killing him. Arjuna paid heed to Droupadi's advice and as a token punishment shaved Aswatthama's head, took his crown jewel and sent him away.

What is papa (sin)? Hurting, abusing and killing others is sin. What is punya (merit)? Helping others is merit. Therefore, one should not retaliate to an evil act with an evil act. Instead, one should be magnanimous in forgiving the offender. There are many such sacred teachings in the Mahabharata.

There are many such noble women like Droupadi. She stands as an ideal for all women. Why are we forgetting the teachings of such great women? Today, women are treated as mere puppets. But they are full of courage, valour, sacrifice, determination and righteousness. Have you ever cared to recognise the power latent in women? Men do not possess such valour
216 217

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 and courage of women. It is because of such great women that our Bharatiya culture is held in high esteem. Otherwise, it would have declined long ago. Did you ever recognise the fact that women are endowed with such great powers as courage, valour, determination and righteousness? These qualities are not to be easily found in men. Why? Most of them are af? icted with the disease of anger, which is ruining them.

One with anger will not be successful in any of his endeavours. He will commit sins and will be derided by one and all. (Telugu poem)

It is possible that women may also succumb to anger and indulge in sinful deeds, now and then. Such people should be pardoned and encouraged to make amends, not denounced and condemned. The quality of patience and perseverance in women is great. In fact, it is the quality of equanimity in times of difficulty that was characteristic of Droupadi, which saved the Pandavas. There are several such women even in present times. The bad qualities of anger, passion, jealousy, envy and pride are more prominent in men. Women are able to control such evil qualities from overtaking them. Under the circumstances is it not our duty to encourage and honour such women who preserve and promote peace and harmony? On the contrary, women are belittled and slighted. No, no, this should not happen. Such women with noble qualities deserve to be encouraged and upheld.

A few days ago, you had witnessed a function in this Hall, where the glory of womanhood was highlighted. A playlet was put up in this Hall by Chethana, in which the greatness of mother Sita, as the ideal woman, was presented. Sita and Droupadi were great pathivrathas (women of chastity). Such efforts to highlight the greatness of women need to be encouraged.

Protect Sathya And Dharma At All Cost

Sathya and Dharma (truth and righteousness) are the greatest characteristics of Indian culture. If these two are protected, the country can be saved from degeneration. If you want to protect your country, you need not join the army and fight a battle. If truth and righteousness that are inherent in you are protected, they themselves will protect the country. It is not great to kill the enemies in a war. First and foremost, protect truth and righteousness in you. The country will automatically be protected. Indian culture exhorts Sathyam Vada (speak truth) and Dharmam chara (practise righteousness). When you do this with perseverance, you will become a great hero. When you protect Sathya and Dharma, God will, in turn, protect you. Instead of trying to worship God and obtain His grace, if you protect truth and righteousness, God will protect not only your country, but the whole world. Truth is your very life-breath. Righteousness is your armour. Therefore, protect truth; foster righteousness. That is enough. Truth and righteousness are inseparable. One cannot exist without the other.

218 219

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 They are the very life-breath for the universe.

Droupadi was assiduously observing and propagating these two.

Sathya Dharmamu Santhi Premalatho

Nee nithya jeevana yathra saginchu.

(Oh man! Carry on your life's journey with the help of Truth, Righteousness, Peace, and Love). You must hold on to these principles, come what may. God will always protect such people. History is replete with several examples wherein people held steadfastly to the principles of Sathya and Dharma, and were constantly protected by God. One such example is that of Pandavas and their chaste wife, Droupadi. You may argue, Where is Sathya and Dharma in the present-day world? Whom are they protecting? This is a totally wrong argument. If you protect Sathya and Dharma, they will, in turn, stand before you and protect you. They are the very embodiments of divinity. Unfortunately, today, instead of Sathyam vada (speak truth) and Dharmam chara (practise righteousness), people are following the distorted version Sathyam vadha (kill truth) and Dharmam chera (imprison righteousness). This is utter perversion. You should lead your lives based on Sathya and Dharma and consider them as more important than your lives.

When Droupadi was pleading with Aswatthama who killed her sons, Bhima was furious with uncontrollable anger. He clenched his fist and proceeded towards Aswatthama to kill him. In that uncontrollable rage, he argued with Droupadi. Are you mad? Why are you trying to save this man who mercilessly slit the throat of your five sons? I will break the head of this childkiller into pieces with my fist. Do not come in my way.

At that moment Droupadi fell at the feet of Bhima and pleaded with him to spare the life of Aswatthama. She prayed for regaining his composure. People around, who were witnessing this scene, were wonderstruck. They were wondering whether Droupadi was really mad! In fact, the world will be better if everyone is af? icted with such madness. Thus, when Droupadi pleaded with her husbands for saving the life of Aswatthama, he prayed for forgiveness. Droupadi was happy at the change of heart in Aswatthama and advised him, Brother! You need not beg for my forgiveness. Instead, you pay your respect and do service to your mother. Do not drown her in sorrow. Never cause her anguish; take good care of her. Even the loss of five sons did not make Droupadi shed tears of sorrow.

Several women come to Me with a heavy heart and tell Me Swami! My husband's death has caused me deep sorrow and anguish. How do I bear this calamity? Then I would respond saying, Oh! Your husband died? Very happy. They feel very unhappy with My attitude and question Me, What is this Swami? Are You so happy on hearing the news of my husband's death? What am I to say? I am always happy. I do not know what sorrow is. I always discharge My duty.

220 221

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37

God is the only person who protects everybody.

Therefore, pray to God always. Forgetting God and depending on the mercy of human beings! What madness! You must depend on God, for everything in your life. That is real thapas (penance).

Respect And Honour Women

Since ancient times, women have been the very life-breath and foundation for Bharat. They are the very embodiment of truth and righteousness. How much respect and reverence we must show towards such noble women? On the contrary, there are several people today, who put them to untold suffering. Due to bad habits and bad company, people lose their sense of discrimination and torture the women. No woman should be put to mental and physical torture, whatever be their nature. They must be revered and respected and protected in all ways. Women in Bharat have always been held in high esteem. There are several chaste and noble women in Bharat and still Bharatiyas are undergoing difficulties. What is the reason? Whose fault is this? It is only because the Bharatiyas are not giving proper respect and place to women in society. The fault lies squarely on the men.

Forbearance is the real beauty in this sacred land of Bharat. Of all the rituals, adherence to truth is the greatest penance. (Telugu poem)

The truthful character of women is really their tapas (penance). Therefore, such noble women must be encouraged and honoured. If you can put this one great principle into practice, your life will be sanctified. Those who ill-treat their wives can never be happy and prosperous. If men cannot protect their women who are prepared to sacrifice even their lives for the sake of their husbands, what for is their existence? Women are really the presiding deities of their homes. Our primary duty is to protect them. Never let your women shed tears. If women shed tears, such homes will be ruined in no time. Women are ideals to the society. Never cause them distress.

Men should lead a life of truth and righteousness.

Only then can they protect the country and become worthy of being called real men. Otherwise, how can they become heroic men? Several people go to temples. When they visit a temple, they must make a vow that they would respect and protect the women. Only then will they be protected. It is only when the women are safe, the whole world will be happy. Therefore, if you wish to protect Dharma in the world, you must first protect your Dharma towards women.

Embodiments of Love!

Imagine a situation wherein you are in the role of women and some men torture you. How miserable and helpless you would feel! Women are prepared to sacrifice even their lives for the sake of their husbands. But, men do not have such spirit of sacrifice. Men should also cultivate such a spirit of sacrifice, like women. Only 222 223

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37

then will you be fit to be called men. Otherwise, you will be men only in form, but lacking in masculinity. You consider women as abala (weak). But, the truth is they are Sakthi swarupas (embodiments of strength and power). Only, I know the plight of women who lost their husbands. It is our duty to protect such women. If you can discharge this duty properly, you will be happy throughout your life.

Embodiments of Love!

You must follow truth even in small matters. There are three letters Sa, Tha and Ya in the word Sathya. If you reverse the order, it will become Ya Tha and Sa. This means when you do thapas with austerities like yama (control of the inner senses) and niyama (control of the outer senses), you will have the divine vision of Sathyaswarupa (embodiment of Truth). You have to thus recognise the inner meaning of every word and follow them meticulously.

King Janaka, a great renunciant king, used to propagate truth and righteousness among his subjects by his own example. His daughter, Sita, also led a pious life based on truth and righteousness. You are not studying the life history of such ideal women. Instead, you are reading trash. No. No. This is unbecoming of you. You should study the ancient history of Bharat, which is so sacred. The character and morality of women in Bharat are very sacred. You will become worthy of being called men only when you undertake to protect such great women. By mere sporting a moustache or growing a beard, will you become men? Moustache and beard are not the real signs of masculinity. You must protect ladies and uphold the dignity of the family. Only then can you become great heroes and men of character.

Embodiments of Love!

Consider women as embodiments of truth. Even if some minor faults are noticed in them, do not give credence to them. Respect and revere them. Do not use even a single word that would offend them. If they really wish, they can achieve any great task. You should be even prepared to lay down your lives for the sake of protecting and fostering women. At least from today, all of you should come forward to protect the honour and dignity of women in the world. Women also should undertake a vow to contribute their mite in this great task of protection of Sthri Dharma. As regards men, there is nothing great or new in trying to protect women. That is your duty. Her duty is to foster and maintain the entire family as a unit. If women are protected, they in turn will protect the entire world. Never belittle women and treat them as mere playthings. I hope all of you men will, at least in future, undertake to protect the dignity and honour of women and thereby protect your own dignity and honour. I conclude My discourse blessing you all.

Teachings Of Noble Souls

Essential For The Young

Neither by penance nor by pilgrimage nor by study of scriptures nor by Iapa can one cross the ocean of life. One can achieve it only by serving the pious. (Sanskrit verse)

Several noble souls have worshipped God in different ways some by doing penance, some by charity, some even by sacrificing their lives. Some others dedicated their lives for teaching and propagating the sacred scriptures by touring the entire world.

Nevertheless, they could not win God's grace and love.

Why? samsara sagaroththara sajjana sevanam vina

(one cannot cross the formidable ocean of samsara, except by serving the noble souls). It is only by serving noble souls and great men that one can attain the power of penance. No sadhana other than sel? ess service will enable one to attain Divinity.

Love Is The Royal Path For Man's Liberation

The punya (merit) of our students is indeed great.

They have been able to have the darshan, sparshan and sambhashan of several noble souls and obtain their grace.

In fact, many people in Bharat sanctified their lives by such darshan, sparshan and sambhashan. (Referring to Sant Asaram Bapu, Swami said) He has taken a lot of trouble to come here all the way from Gujarat to address our students. It is their good fortune. He has a kind and loving heart. His teachings are very essential for our students. When faith and devotion have eroded and atheism has become the order of the day due to the effect of Kali Age, such teachings are very much necessary, especially for the students to keep them on the right track.

Cultivate Universal Love

Dear Students!

You cannot get fulfilment in life if you have only darshan or sparshan or sambhashan of noble souls. You will attain peace and bliss only when you have all the three.

In order to sanctify human life, Navavidha Bhakti (nine forms of devotion) are very essential. They are Sravanam (listening), Kirtanam (singing), Vishnusmaranam (contemplating on Vishnu), Padasevanam (serving His Lotus Feet), Vandanam (salutation), Archanam (worship), Dasyam (servitude), Sneham (friendship) and Atmanivedanam (self-surrender). Man can sanctify his life by sravanam, mananam and nidhidhyasanam (listening, recapitulation and contemplation). The modern generation of students is very intelligent. But it is only when they put their intelligence to proper use can they redeem their lives. And, spirituality is the only path that can make one's life sanctified! Today's students are, however, putting their intelligence to wrong use and are wasting their time engaging themselves in vain argumentation. God's grace can be obtained only through love and by no other means. It is the only Raja Marga (royal path). Students should develop the faith that their lives will be sanctified by treading that royal path.

Dear Students!

Education is not mere reading of books. By reading books, we can only acquire bookish knowledge. Whatever knowledge has been acquired must be put into practice. If you want to earn God's grace, love is the royal path. Man has been able to acquire several powers by love. It is by love alone can one win the minds of others. He can even gain control over nature. Spiritual sadhana can also become fruitful by love alone. The mind can never be controlled by bad qualities, bad thoughts and bad company. Human nature can be sanctified only by divine and selfless love. The only property and power that will never diminish in any human being is love. You may share it with any number of people, yet it does not diminish, but will continue to grow. The reference in 228 229 this context is not to worldly love, but to transcendental love. We must love God in the same way as we love our own father and mother. It should be so natural and spontaneous. You cannot find a parallel to such love. Therefore, every individual, from the time he gets up from bed till he goes back to bed, must strive to make his life sanctified by love. You must love your fellow human beings, treating them as your friends. By cultivating such universal love, the whole world can be united as a single family. It is not possible by any other means. Therefore, develop such universal love.

Dear Students!

You are struggling a lot to acquire education. By this education, you may perhaps read some textbooks, appear for examinations, pass them and secure a degree. But, all this education is negative in character. You must acquire positive education which would bring out the latent qualities in you like divine love, peace, compassion, forbearance, etc. You must cultivate those qualities assiduously by constant practice. Several people of the older generation sanctified their lives by fostering such noble qualities. If human mind is to be transformed, it could be done only by love, nothing else. Mind mind mind. You know how it works.

It is always changing and very powerful. It cannot be controlled by any power, except love.

God Can Be Attained Only Through Love

Dear Students!

Dedicate your love only to God. There are people in the world who dedicated their love for different purposes, for example, for acquiring education, for acquiring proficiency in various arts, sports and games, for the sake of certain individuals, etc. Could they attain divinity? No, No. You must realise the truth that it is only by constant contemplation of God with singleminded devotion that one can attain divinity. Therefore, dear students! You realise the truth that God cannot be attained by any other science, except the science of love. God gives Himself to love easily. Hence, attain divinity through love. There is no force greater than love in this world.

Everything In This World Is A Worry

To be born is a worry, to be on the earth is a worry; world is a cause of worry and death too; entire childhood is a worry and so is the old age; life is a worry, failure is a worry; all actions and difficulties cause worry; even happiness too is a mysterious worry. (Telugu poem)

If you are able to win the grace of God, all your worries will be removed. You may pursue worldly education; nothing wrong in that. But, you must be prepared to sacrifice your life even, for attaining Divine love, which is permanent, changeless and eternal. Several great and noble souls have travelled throughout the world 230 231

and strove to uplift the world by their sacred teachings. What would have been the fate of the country of Bharat, if such great souls were not born! Every individual should, therefore, strive to emulate the ideals of such great souls and elders. Whatever they say, must be taken as an authority of the scriptures. You may perhaps think that you are able to speak eloquently in English and therefore feel proud that you know everything. Pride and arrogance are most reprehensible qualities. They land you in abysmal depths. It is only by the quality of love does a human being become great.

Dear Students!

You should therefore, cultivate love and strive to attain the grace of God and sanctify your lives by humility, devotion and faith in God. Love is the sole refuge for a human being, which will take him to God. Several elders have reached their goal only through love. You follow their example. Never lose your wealth of love. Make love as your primary objective in your life. Love may appear to be very simple thing to you. But there is no force greater than love. Love is God, God is Love and therefore live in Love. That is what you have to learn.

[Divine Discourse (When Sant Asaram Bapu visited), 15-9-2004, Prasanthi Nilayam]

Obtain Divine Grace By

Obedying Your Parents

The moon illumines the world at night and the sun during the day.

Righteousness illumines the three worlds, and a virtuous son illumines his entire lineage.

(Telugu poem)

Embodiments of Love!

A VIRTUOUS son is greater than even those who have acquired jnana (knowledge), vijnana (wisdom), suajnana (higher levels of consciousness) and prajnana (constant integrated awareness). Lord Vinayaka is such a virtuous son. Every individual has a Guru. But, Vinayaka has no Guru at all. He is the Guru of Gurus and the leader of leaders. He is called by the name Vinayaka since He has no leader above Him and 232 233

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37

He is the leader for all.

Embodiments of Love!

Whenever a new task is undertaken, it is customary to perform puja to Lord Vinayaka to invoke His blessings for the successful completion of the task. Even while starting a musical concert, the singers pray to Lord Vinayaka with the kirtan, Vinayaka nannu brovara (Oh! Lord Vinayaka! Please come to my help). It is only when you thus pray to Lord Vinayaka and seek His blessings, will all your task meet with success.

Lord Vinayaka has an elephant's head and trunk. It denotes that Vinayaka can be compared to an elephant in intelligence, which always thinks twice before setting its foot forward. Similarly, it is only after intelligent discrimination that Vinayaka moves forward. The four letters in the word Ganapathi (ga, na, pa and ti) denote that Lord Vinayaka is full of vijnana, suajnana and prajnana. People today forget the underlying meaning in the name Ganapati and engage themselves in mere rituals. You may not perform any rituals, but, never give up worshipping Lord Vinayaka. Especially, it is the foremost duty of the students to come under the leadership of Vinayaka, who is a leader unto Himself. You would not find a parallel to Lord Vinayaka. When you take such a Lord as your ideal and pursue your studies, you will be able to master all branches of education. Vinayaka has a big tummy, which is full of jnana (wisdom). That wisdom is His power. We should worship such a powerful Lord. No one can comprehend the true nature of Lord Vinayaka fully.

Lord Vinayaka is the leader for one and all. He is the divine father and mother to everybody. In accordance with the prayer Twameva matha cha pitha twameva, Twameva bandhuscha sakha twameva, Twameva vidya dravinam twameva (He alone is the father and mother, friend and relation, wisdom and wealth to every individual). No one else can be compared to Lord Vinayaka in terms of power and prowess in this world. The world is unable to recognise the true nature of such a divine leader. We are, today, prepared to accept the leadership of ordinary mortals. This is an unfortunate situation.

Today is the holy day commemorating the birth of Lord Vinayaka. In fact, He has no birth at all. He created the entire universe. All the Vedas are the result of the divine sankalpa of Lord Vinayaka. All forms of knowledge have originated from Vinayaka.

God Only Feigns To Be Angry

Embodiments of Love!

Lord Vinayaka does not know what anger is. He is the embodiment of love. Where there is love, bad qualities like anger, passion, conceit, etc., cannot gain entry. You might have witnessed the facial features of Vinayaka. Did His face ever re? ect anger? No. He will 234 235

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 always be smiling. Vinayaka is omnipresent. People attribute a particular place as the birthplace of God and consider it as a Kshetra (a sacred place of pilgrimage). But, no single place can be ascribed as the birthplace of God. He is Swayambhu (Self-emergent). There is no specific place which can be ascribed as place of birth, place of upbringing, etc., for God. He is omnipresent. God will manifest in such a place where people get rid of their bad qualities and sincerely pray to Him with devotion. He is Gunatheetha (beyond attributes). He is Nirgunam, Niranjanam, Sanathanam, Niketanam, Nitya, Shuddha, Buddha, Mukta, Nirmala Swarupinam (God is attributeless, pure, final abode, eternal, unsullied, enlightened, free and embodiment of sacredness). God appears to be angry at times. But, that is not real anger. In order to put the devotees on the right path, He pretends to be angry. If He does not pretend so, there is no chance for the devotees to change their behaviour. His pretending to be angry is just a drama.

God has no trace of anger in Him. When we commit mistakes or tread the wrong path, we are afraid that God will be angry with us. But, God only pretends to be angry on such occasions so that you become aware of your own faults and deficiencies. For example, when Swami keeps Himself away from you, you feel very sad and think that Swami is not talking to you because He is angry with you. In fact, Swami does not know what anger is. He is the embodiment of love. He is full of love. However, on some rare occasions when He speaks harshly, it might be misconstrued that He is angry. This is quite natural even in our day-to-day life. When you call somebody, Son! Please come here, it sounds that you are calling him with love. But, if the same words are uttered with a raised voice (in an angry mood), it looks as though you are angry. Therefore, all these are variations in expression and nothing else. The same was the case with Sage Durvasa, whose expressions revealed anger and thus became synonymous for anger. But in fact, Sage Durvasa had no anger at all!

During the Mahabharata war, Aswatthama, the son of Dronacharya, took a terrible vow to annihilate all the Pandavas. Having come to know of this, Droupadi prayed to Krishna to save the Pandavas. The leelas of the Lord are not only wonderful but also mysterious. God enacts dramas and even changes the scenes in His play for the welfare and safety of His devotees. In this instance, the Lord saved the Pandavas with a delicate touch of humour that He alone is capable of.

He went to Sage Durvasa. He was immensely delighted to receive Krishna. The sage asked, Lord, what brought You to my humble ashram? Krishna smiled and said, I have a small job for you. The sage was happy and said, I am at Your service. You just have to command. Krishna then said, Good! Tonight, you have to save the Pandavas. Durvasa was puzzled and asked, Lord, it is You who protect everything in creation. Who am I to do that job? Krishna replied, That is a different matter. But for this job, you will be My instrument. I extend protection in many different ways. On this occasion, you have to do something specific as per My instructions. Durvasa wanted to know what it was and Krishna continued, Dig a pit, ask the Pandavas to hide themselves in it, cover it with planks, grass and mud, and then take your seat on the shelter so prepared. The enemies of the Pandavas may come and ask you about the whereabouts of the Pandavas. They may say, You know the past, present and future. Please tell us where the Pandavas are hiding. Durvasa intervened and said, Lord, I cannot tell a lie. Krishna countered, Did I ask you to utter falsehood? I am Myself the Embodiment of Truth, and I will always ask you to speak only the truth. However, you are at liberty to change your voice suitably to achieve the desired result. I am sure you understand. The sage nodded and smiled.

Some time later, after the Pandavas were hidden, Aswatthama came there, exactly as Krishna had foretold. Durvasa was sitting with his eyes closed. Bowing to the sage, Aswatthama enquired, in a most humble manner, about the whereabouts of the Pandavas. Durvasa slowly opened his eyes; which were like ? ame. Angrily he roared, Yes, the Pandavas are here, right below me. Aswatthama was frightened because the sage was well known for his bad temper and his propensity to curse those whom he is angry with. Promptly, he ? ed from the scene, and the Pandavas were duly saved. All Avatars employ such techniques, and Swami too does the same when required.

The sages and saints, yogis and inanis for ages have been providing rakshana (protection) and sikshana (correction) and make people tread the right path. Sage Durvasa did the same thing. Ignorant people accuse him of being one of anger in spite of being a great tapasvin. But, those people who are able to understand the real intention behind his apparent anger realise the truth. God has no anger. In fact, one who has anger is not fit to be called God at all!

Parents Are The Very Embodiment Of Divinity

Once Mother Parvati and Easwara called Vinayaka and His younger brother Subrahmanya, and advised them to go round the world. They also told them that whoever came first would be given a phala (fruit) as reward. This competition was intended to demonstrate the greatness of Vinayaka to the world. The younger brother Subrahmanya immediately plunged into action. He mounted His vehicle, the peacock, to ? y round the world. But, Vinayaka did not move and sat in His own place. Easwara then enquired, My dear son! Why did You not start on Your journey round the world? Vinayaka laughed at this question and replied Oh! Father! I need not go anywhere. The fruit of all My journey round the world is right in front of me. So saying, Vinayaka made a pradakshina (circumambulation) round His father and mother (Lord Easwara and Mother Parvati) and sat down

238 239 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 calmly. He claimed victory in the race. In the meanwhile, Subrahmanya came there, after completing His journey round the world. He was very much tired and reported to His father about His successful completion of the task. Lord Easwara then declared Vinayaka as the winner in the race and handed over the fruit to Him. The place where this episode took place is called Palani in the State of Tamil Nadu.

The underlying meaning in this story is that the parents are the very embodiment of divinity and it is enough if one does pradakshina to them in reverence. That would be tantamount to the punya (merit) acquired by visiting all the holy shrines in the world. Without the parents, there can be no son at all! If children are to be virtuous, it is the parents who have to take care of them. The parents are responsible for the success of their children in all the endeavours.

It is common practice for students to visit temples during examination time and pray for success in the examinations. They offer coconuts in the temples with the pocket money given by their parents. These are all external practices, which have little to do with sincere devotion. If they really wish to achieve success in their endeavour, it is enough if they please their parents and obtain their blessings. If they are satisfied, you are sure to succeed. In order to drive home the point that children should strive to please and satisfy their parents first, Lord Easwara and Mother Parvati arranged this competition of going round the world for Lord Vinayaka and Lord Subrahmanya. If you want to obtain the grace of God, it is enough if you obey the command of your parents lovingly. There is no greater divinity than the parents who are present right in front of your eyes. They have struggled hard in several ways to bring you up to the present state. They made a lot of sacrifice, so that you may come up in life. No parent would ever like to displease his children. They appear to be angry sometimes and may even give some punishment, but that is only outward. In their heart of hearts, they have abundant love for you. Even if they pretend to be angry, it is for your own good. The stream of infinite love ever flows in their hearts. Here is a small example: When the child does some mischief, the mother gives a beating. But, how? The beating merely produces sound but does not cause any pain to the child. Her anger is borne out of love only. On certain occasions, they may show anger, but it is only temporary. It is never permanent. You may think that your parents are angry with you. But, that is your own misunderstanding; you may not be able to understand their love, which is lying dormant. Even if they show anger and say chee (an expression in Telugu to indicate one's disapproval), it is only out of love. Students shall, therefore, try to understand the real nature of their parents.

In fact, one's anger is his own enemy, and happiness, his heaven. One should always be happy. A person with anger and irritable temperament can never achieve anything. Vinayaka is one who always obeyed

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 his parents command. That is why it is said that there is no leader above Him. Students sometimes ask for money from their parents to go to a cinema. When parents refuse, they think that the parents are angry. These are trivial issues. The parents, especially the mother, will be even ready to sacrifice her life, in order to save her children in times of danger. Unfortunately, today there are sons who even go to a court of law against their mothers. It is, therefore, essential that they change their attitude towards their parents and realise that they are verily embodiments of love.

Any number of diversions or silly thoughts may arise in children, but the parents love towards their children remains unwavering. There are several sons in the world who are angry with their parents, but relationship of the parents and their children is one of love only. The son may go to the court of law because of some differences with his mother. On being asked by the judge, he tells his mother's name as so and so. He utters the words, My mother. Similarly, the mother tells her son's name as so and so. She says, My son. Such is the intimate relationship that exists between the mother and son. Whatever differences that may arise between them are only temporary. Lord Vinayaka is the embodiment of love. He always showers love only. When He was acting as a scribe to write the Mahabharata to the dictation of Sage Vyasa, he displayed the same attitude of love. Since He was the embodiment of Love, Vyasa selected Him particularly to undertake the duty of a scribe. Throughout the period of writing the Mahabharata, Vinayaka displayed this quality of pure love. That is why you do not find even a single mistake in the Mahabharata. Since He was flawless, His word was also flawless. You do not find the bad qualities of anger, jealousy, envy or pride in Vinayaka. They are the qualities of a human being devoid of noble qualities.

Dear students! From today onwards, you give up whatever little anger you have towards your parents and cultivate pure love towards them. Love begets love. Receive love from your parents in abundance and prosper in life.

Today is the festival of Vinayaka Chaturthi. It is a very important festival. There is a custom in some families to invite the newly married son-in-law for the festival. Therefore, do not hesitate to go to your in-law's house to spend some time happily with them.

Oh newly married bridegroom, visit your in-laws house,

Come, spend your time in fun and frolic with your brothers-in-law and sisters-in-law,

The entire household and the neighbourhood will honour you with love and affection.

(Telugu song)

Observe Diet Regulations

When a son-in-law visits his spouse's parents

242 243

house, the entire household gets into a festive mood.

One is sure to feel happy and mentally relaxed. There are, however, some stone-hearted sons-in-law, who cultivate ill-feelings towards their in-laws and do not visit their house. Such ill-feelings are the result of food.

As is the food, so is the head. The feelings of the heart reflect the thought in the head (mind). Therefore, we must take the right food. You should never take such food as would kindle the flame of anger and envy in you. Since ancient times, sages in India have observed strict diet regulations. They always made it a point to consume sattwic food, not rajasic food. By consuming rajasic food, anger is generated. On the other hand, if you consume thamasic food, you will feel sleepy even while you eat. Therefore, both rajasic and thamasic types of food must be avoided. Only sattwic food must be taken. Excess of chillies, salt and sour items must be avoided in food. Before you take food, never forget to offer your prayers:

Brahmarpanam Brahma havi

Brahmagnou Brahmanahutam

Brahmaiva thena ganthavyam

Brahma karma samadhina.

(Brahman is the ladle as well as the oblation. He is the sacrificial fire as also the sacrificer. And finally, Brahman is the goal of one who is engaged in the act of sacrifice.)

When you pray in this manner before you partake of your food, God immediately responds thus:

Aham Vaishvanaro bhutva

Praninam dehamasritah

Pranapana samayukta

Pachamyannam chaturvidham.

(I am present in all beings in the form of digestive fire. United with the prana (inhalation) and apana (exhalation), it is I who consume the four kinds of food.)

While taking food, you must always ensure that you take only such items which you can easily digest. Never consume food which you cannot digest. Just as you sit down happily for taking food, so also when you get up after taking your food, you must feel happy and light. Some people sit for food with a light stomach and get up with a heavy stomach after eating bellyful. This is not the proper method of taking food.

Always take light food. These are the habits you must cultivate at least from this auspicious day of Vinayaka Chaturthi. If you cultivate these good habits and qualities you can become as great as Lord Vinayaka.

Your Reality Is In Your Own Self,
Not Elsewhere

By which power of love the earth does rotate without axle or bearing,

By which power of love do the stars remain in the sky without falling on the earth,

By which power of love do the oceans confine themselves to the limits without inundating
the earth,

By which power of love does the wind-god blow
cool breeze in all the worlds,

That mighty power of love is verily the Atmic
power.

That power of love is most wonderful, unique and all-pervasive.

The entire creation is permeated with love.

Embodiments of Love!

MAN need not undertake any special sadhanas to visualise the all-pervading truth. We call God by different names like Brahma, Vishnu and Maheswara. These are the names given by man to God based on some imaginary forms. But, who has actually perceived these forms? None so far. There is only one power in the world, which is all-pervasive.
That is the power of love.

It is only by love, are human societies formed.

There can be no humanity without divinity. It is only when man establishes contact with divinity to some extent, he can acquire a little of that divine power which is omnipotent.

Humanness Contains All Powers

Embodiments of Love!

In fact, all modes of powers are immanent in manavatwa (humanness) itself. It needs no special agent to vest it with any extra powers. The divine power fully manifests itself in a human being. Human power cannot function without the help of divine power. There are four mahavakyas in the Vedas, namely, Tattwamasi (That thou art), Prajnanam Brahma (constant integrated awareness is Brahman), Ayam Atma Brahma (This atma itself is Brahman) and Aham Brahmasmi (I am Brahman verily). The essence of these mahavakyas is further explained in the Upanishads and Bhagavad Gita. But, man is getting deluded as he is unable to understand the import of these mahavakyas. He is not able to realise divine power which, in fact, is in his own self. The divinity in humanity expresses itself as Sakthitattwa (energy). Today, man is striving to acquire several powers and make use of them for getting relieved of his sorrows and sufferings. In fact, these sorrows and worries are the stepping stones to divinity. Man should not give too much importance to these worries. If one analyses carefully, what is there in human existence, which does not cause worry? Man's life from birth to death is full of worries. I often quote a poem to describe this fact:

To be born is a worry, to be on this earth is a worry,

The world is a cause for worry and death too;
The whole of childhood is a worry and so is the old age;

Life is a worry, failure is a worry;

All actions and difficulties cause worry;

Happiness too is a mysterious worry.

(Telugu poem)

Embodiments of Love!

Some people say they had the vision of the Divine in their dream. Some others say they had it in their meditation. Yet others declare they had seen God through their jnana nethra (eye of wisdom). Most of these claims are the result of man's delusion. They are not real. Some people claim to have seen God in their dream. Where is dream? Where is God? In fact, dream experience itself is not real. It is only an illusion. They are deluded to think that way. The day man gets rid of this delusion, he will acquire divine power. Hence, everyone should come out of such illusion. Some sit in meditation and think they are contemplating on somebody. Some others claim to have seen some effulgence in their meditation. What is meditation? It means ekagratha (concentration on the inner vision of the omniself). It is visualising a drisya (scene) in a state of absolute stillness of the body and mind free from illusion. But wherever a man is, there is his mind as well. There is no place in this world without the mind being present. The mind is all-pervasive. It is said, Manayeva manushyanaam karanam bandha mokshayoh (the mind alone is the cause for bondage as well as liberation). We say we are happy. Where does this happiness come from? Certainly, it is not from outside. It wells up from one's own heart. The nature of the mind is chanchala (fickleness). This fickleness is in our own nature. It has not come from outside. All relationships we maintain in the objective world are only illusory. Supposing you marry a girl. From then on, you maintain a husband and wife relationship with her. Even prior to the marriage both of you were existing in the world, but this relationship was not there. From the moment you both are married you think she is related to you. Thus, it is a mental relationship.

248 249

Embodiments of Love!

Even maya (delusion) is associated with love. You do not find anything in this world, devoid of love. Love is in everything in this world. All relationships between people in this world are established and cultivated on account of love. Again, love becomes the cause for separation of two individuals. There are several types of sadhana in this world; bhrama sadhana (coming out of delusion) is one such. In fact, Brahma, Vishnu and Maheswara cannot be visualised in your sadhana (meditation, etc.). What all you see in your meditation are only re? ections of your feelings. Brahma, Vishnu and Maheswara are not really existing in this world. They are only your imaginary forms. What really exists in the world is manavattwa (humanness). Unable to believe the humanness that is present right in front of your eyes, if you contemplate on divine nature, how can you find it? The name and form that you attribute to divinity, namely, Brahma, Vishnu and Maheswara are not real. They are only a mirage born out of your delusion. Everything is contained in the human being. You are Brahma, Vishnu and Maheswara and every conceivable name and form attributed to divinity. When you begin to believe that you are everything, there can be no cause for any kind of worry. When you are able to realise Aham Brahma, Aham Vishnu, Aham Easwara (I am Brahma, Vishnu and Maheswara verily), there is no scope for any doubt. All these names and forms are products of your own imagination. There is no power greater than humanness in this world.

Embodiments of Love!

You say that Swami appeared in your dream last night. This is not correct. I do not appear in anybody's dream. When you intensely desire that Swami must appear in your dream and constantly think of the same, that intense desire will assume a form in your dream. God does not assume a form or change into another form. Some people think that God is angry with them. This presumption is also not correct. God has neither love towards somebody nor anger towards another. All these presumptions are of your own making. You attribute anger or other feelings to God. Instead, if you live in love constantly, you will not find anger in others. In fact, love is your true form. Man is born out of and brought up with love. Not only a human being, but every living creature experiences love right from its birth. There is no force more powerful than love in this world. No power on earth can change love. Do not get deluded by the thought that you have acquired this power and that power. All these are only illusions (bhrama). Bhrama is not brahman. Nor can Brahman be equated with Bhrama.

Embodiments of Love!

What is meant by divyatma? It means divine atma. Atma is nothing but consciousness. And, that consciousness is all - pervading. You do not find a place where there is no consciousness. Consciousness is omnipotent. There is one aspect to be borne in mind in this context. Consciousness is movable. But we are deluded to think that it is static. In fact, the real power is within you only. That is Atma Sakthi (atmic power). We have already known that atma is consciousness. Therefore, atma sakthi is chaithanya sakthi (power of consciousness). This is all-pervading. This enables you to witness different forms. The immense power in humanness is divine in nature. It confers peace and happiness. You may think that divine power is some special power. It is not true. Your own power of contemplation assumes the form of divine power. Therefore, first and foremost you realise your own innate divine nature. All that is written in the books or read by you are not in fact true. There are some kinds of power which are temporary. They are not eternal. Such transient powers should not delude one. You are learning the Vedas. Every sound that emanates from the Vedas emerges from the navel only. We are experiencing the sound emanating from our own navel. Supposing you go to a hill and shout Oh! the sound comes back to you as resound. Similarly, good and bad emanates from you only. They do not come from somewhere and get into you.

As You Think So You Become

Embodiments of Love!

For example, you go on repeating loudly a particular sentence taken from a book. After sometime, you will get it by heart. But, the sentence memorised by you is not yours. It is only a resound. In God's creation, everything is reaction, re? action and resound. All that we experience in the outside world is only a reaction, re? action and resound of the inner being. We are, however, deluded to think that this reaction, re? action and resound are real ones. Whatever feeling comes out of your heart and takes a shape outside is the real form. It means that, that form has already been conceived by you. Supposing you imagine a particular form for Lord Rama. Then, contemplate on that form, closing your eyes. You can visualise the same form, as a re? action of your inner thoughts. All that is manifested in the outside world is only a reaction, re? action and resound of your inner being.

252 253

Embodiments of Love!

You yourself are Rama, Krishna, Easwara, etc.

You think that you are Easwara and contemplate on that form. You will become Easwara, verily. Yad bhavam tad bhavathi (as you think so you become). Similarly, you think that you are Rama, Krishna, etc., and you will become Rama and Krishna. Today, people sit in meditation. It is only for developing concentration, not with a view to contemplate on God. People mistake concentration for meditation. This is not a correct method. All these exercises are reaction, re? action and resound. Only you are real, you are the truth. You are able to visualise God only in human form. Man cannot conceive or visualise anything greater than him. You are everything and everything in creation is immanent in you. Unfortunately, man today is forgetting his real nature and is imagining something which does not exist. This is the result of delusion, which, in fact, is of his own making. It is only when man comes out of this illusion that he will be able to realise Brahman.

Embodiments of Love!

Love is the most important factor. If you pray to God with intense love and devotion, your prayers will certainly be answered. Such is the power of love. Devoid of love, nothing can be achieved even in this mundane world. Love is God, live in love! The whole world becomes a vacuum, without love. That love alone assumes a form. Realise this truth. You sit in your socalled meditation, and try to forget yourself through imaginary experiences. If you forget yourself, how can you visualise the truth? Constantly live in the awareness I am God, I am everything and I am the reality. All forms are subject to change. For example, an infant at the time of birth will be small in size. Then it will grow into a child, a boy, youth and an old person. In all these different stages of life, man alone is the reality. All are one, be alike to every one. This is the lesson one must try to learn.

Embodiments of Love!

254 255

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37

Let the ? ame of your love be steady, not ? ickering.

There is no greater sadhana than love. That is the spiritual practice you have to adopt. That is the divine practice. Divinity is omnipresent. You have to realise that omnipresent divinity within your own self. It is present in all the three states of consciousness, namely, dream, wakeful and deep sleep state. One has to strive to experience that divinity constantly. That is Prajananam Brahma (constant integrated awareness is Brahman). That is sakshatkara (vision of divinity), an experience which transcends all the three states of consciousness. Embodiments of Love!

You are worshipping several forms of divinity. However, you cannot afford to forget your own innate divinity. In fact, you yourself are ascribing umpteen number of names and forms to divinity. But, divinity is only one, which is changeless. That changeless eternal divinity is immanent in you. All external forms and names are like eeing dreams. And those dreams are not real. Hence, strive to come out of that bhrama (delusion). It is only when you come out of that bhrama, you will be able to realise Brahman. You have witnessed something in your dream. What is it? It is your own self, nothing other than that. You are visualising your own self in the dream state. Your real nature is love. Hence, you manifest your real nature. There are several aspects which you have to learn in future. What is future? Future is uncertain; past is past; only present is what matters. Both past and future are contained in the present. You alone are present in all the three - past, present and future.

Visualise Your Own Innate Divinity

Embodiments of Love!

Divine powers and Divine manifestations are immanent in the human being; they are not to be sought from elsewhere. By constant sadhana, man can realise this truth. Your reality is in your own self, not elsewhere. In order to visualise that reality, one has to turn his vision inward. Reaction, re? ection and resound - all the three are existing in your own self; they are not external. Supposing you have a brother who earned a good name and fame. Who is he? He is your brother. He represents a particular form. From where did this form come? It came from reality. And that reality is his true nature. Thus, a form that manifested from reality deludes us from visualising the reality itself.

Dear students!

If you wish to understand certain aspects more clearly, I will explain in greater detail after sometime. The kind of meditation you are doing is not correct. You are keeping one form in your mind and contemplating on that. Where did this form come from? It is of your own making. You are deluded to think that God is confined to only this form. Thus, right from the beginning you are with a deluded belief. If only you come out of this

256 257

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 delusion, can you visualise the truth. Do not ever be under the illusion that God is somewhere in a distant place. You are, in fact, God verily. Your own form is Divine. Your bliss is Divine. Your reaction, re? ection and resound are Divine in nature. Never deviate from the firm faith that you are God. Always contemplate on one aspect: Aham Brahmasmi (I am Brahman).

What is the meaning of the mahavakya Tattwamasi (That thou art)? Tat is that. twam is this. Together they become asi. They become one. Thus, all these four mahavakyas Tattwamasi, Prajananam Brahma, Ayam Atma Brahma and Aham Brahmasmi lead you to the same truth, that is, you are God verily. Adi Sankara had expounded and explained this great advaita philosophy in ever so many ways and ultimately merged himself in that great truth. Thus, reality is not somewhere in a distant place. It is within you. Your very nature is reality. How can you realise this truth? Only by cultivating pure, sel? ess and Divine love. Without love, nothing can be achieved in this world. Love is the source and sustenance for the entire universe. Love is God and God is love.

Embodiments of Love!

All of you are embodiments of divinity. Your forms are divine. You and God are one. You are not different from God. Experience this unity. Ekam sath (truth is one). Unity is truth. Unity is divinity. God is not separate from you. God is manifest in you. Unfortunately, you are forgetting this truth. If you forget your own nature, it amounts to forgetting everything else. Never forget your reality. Without forgetting that reality, meditate on it. Always remember one fact: wherever I am, I am always Divine. Hold on to this firm belief, steadfastly.

That is the truth contained in the mahavakya Tattwamasi, the inseparable and non-dual nature of divinity. Do not be under the illusion Rama has appeared in my dream, Krishna has appeared in my dream, Swami has appeared in my dream. This is a sign of ignorance. All these are dreams only. How can a dream be called a reality? The very word dream explains its nature. As long as you are in sleep, this experience may be true. The moment you wake up, the experience vanishes.

Embodiments of Love!

Keep your love securely. Never give up love under any circumstances. There is no God other than love. Love is God, verily. Love is your path, and goal. Never deviate from this path of love. If you find any difficulty in treading this path or if you have some doubts to get clarified, I am always there to help you. Try to reduce your doubts. These doubts will lead you to delusion. Always get yourself firmly established in the truth Tattwamasi (That thou art). It is a mistaken idea to think that this form has visualised that form of divinity, for you and God are not separate. Brahman is very much immanent in this body. Brahman and Aham are one and the same. Undertake sadhana to realise the oneness of these two. That is the Pathway to God . If you wish to meditate on God, never allow your thoughts to be disturbed by worldly objects. You meditate on your own real nature, which is divinity. In that divinity, everything else is contained. If you thus meditate on your own innate divinity, you will realise your unity with divinity. In fact, that unity is Divinity.

258 259

ThefourMahavakyas Tattwamasi, Prainanam

Brahma, Aham Brahmasmi and Ayam Atma Brahma are Vedic declarations which emphasise the oneness of the individualised soul and the Supreme Soul. They exhort the individualised soul to realise this truth. Therefore, one has to strive to attain that state of unity. As you gradually progress in that sadhana, you will ultimately reach that goal. Supposing you want to learn the spelling of a word; just think how many times you will be repeating that spelling. In the same way, you must set out on this path of sadhana. This is a sacred sadhana. If you are able to know the true meaning of these mahavakyas, you will be able to realise the truth.

Experience Divinity Within In

Total Silence

Embodiments of Love!

YOU are very well aware of the present condition of the world. There is no scope for talking about God. Today dhanam (money) is considered as daivam (God). In such a situation, how can dharma (righteousness) prevail in the world?

Principle Of Love Is Changeless

Embodiments of Love!

There is no other path except that of love to attain God. Love is God, God is love. But people do not understand what love is. They consider attachment to all that is worldly and material as love. Out of their selfishness, they love worldly objects and materials. So, man's love today is tainted with selfishness. There is selfish motive behind whatever he does. How can then man have the vision of God who is the very embodiment of sel? ess love? Love is present in all beings, right from a pamara (ignorant person) to a Paramahamsa (realised person). How can one describe such a principle of love?

260 261

Ego and pomp have become rampant today.

Desires have become limitless. Man's heart is filled with selfishness, and compassion has no place in it. That is the reason why he is unable to have the vision of the Atma and experience bliss. I always speak about the principle of love. I do not know anything other than love (loud applause). When divinity is uniformly present in all, how can you share your love with some and deny it to others? How can anyone say, Love this and not that? God has no specific form. But if you firmly resolve to see God and make sincere efforts, God will assume a form and manifest before you.

There is love in everyone of you. What is the form of love? What is the nature of love? When we analyse carefully, we will realise that love is not limited to human beings alone but is present in all living beings. Every being is endowed with the quality of supreme divine love. One has to give up enmity and cultivate unity and purity in order to understand this truth. Love cannot be explained in words. How can you describe it? It can only be experienced and enjoyed. The experience of love confers bliss on us. Hence, we can say that bliss is the form of love.

Embodiments of Love!

Everything in this world is bound to change except the principle of love. Love is the only true and eternal path which will lead you to divinity. Divinity pervades each and every limb of the human body. It can be visualised only when we understand the principle of oneness. People attribute various names and forms to God. In fact, God should not be confined to a particular name and form. God is beyond all attributes and transcends all names and forms. Divinity is present in all in the form of love but each one experiences it in his own way. People imagine a particular form of divinity. They think divinity is limited to a specific name and form. That is why they are unable to experience it. One whose heart is filled with love will see the manifestation of divinity everywhere. It is a mistake to think that Nature is different from God. People give various names to divinity based on their own experience. Jewels are many but gold is one. Likewise, names and forms are different but divinity is one. Where does gold come from? It comes from the earth. Similarly, God manifests in human body. Daivam manusha rupena (God incarnates in the form of a human being). Hence, consider everyone as divine. Sahasra seersha Purusha Sahasraksha Sahasra pad (The Cosmic Being has thousands of heads, eyes and feet). All heads, all eyes and all feet are His. Such transcendental divinity can be experienced only in absolute silence and in solitude. There lies hidden sacred divine power in the depth of total silence. The tongue is given to you not to indulge in vain gossip. That is why the ancient sages and seers practised mounam (silence). It is possible to experience God only in the depth of silence. However, we should understand the true meaning of silence. Silence does not mean merely refraining from speech. It is much higher than that and includes the mind also. The transcendental nature of divinity cannot be described in words. It is beyond the grasp of the mind.

262 263

Focus Your Mind Only On God

Whatever you see in this world is the manifestation of truth. When divinity is all-pervasive, how can there be untruth? But you are unable to realise the allpervasiveness of divinity. Turn your vision inward and observe absolute silence. Only then can you realise the all-pervasive divinity. Mere intellectual exercise will not help you in this regard. Whatever you see, hear and experience is the manifestation of divinity. Only God exists everywhere. Such being the case, is it possible to attribute a particular name and form to Him? He is present in all forms. When we experience the principle of oneness, we will be immersed in bliss. Hence, we can say that bliss is His form.

Nityanandam, parama sukhadam, kevalam Inanamurtim, dwandwateetam, gagana sadrisham, tattwamasyadi lakshyam, ekam, nityam, vimalam, achalam, sarvadhee sakshibhutam (God is the embodiment of eternal bliss, He is wisdom absolute, beyond the pair of opposites, expansive and pervasive like the sky, the goal indicated by the mahavakya Tattwamasi, the one eternal, pure, unchanging, the witness of all functions of the intellect).

Embodiments of Love!

When God is all-pervasive, where is the need to go in search of Him? You should make efforts to experience your innate divinity by observing total silence and turning your vision inward. You can experience divine bliss only in absolute silence. That is why it is said, Silence is golden .

God is present in all forms. All names and forms are His. The Vedas state the same principle when they declare: Sahasra seersha Purusha Various types of jewels are made out of gold. Likewise, God has assumed all the names and forms that we find in the world. Hence, you should develop faith in the existence of God. If you make sincere efforts, you can certainly realise Him.

Many spiritual aspirants in the past could have the divine vision by their intense sadhana and by going into total silence. One has to annihilate the mind in order to have the vision of God. You cannot experience divinity until and unless you transcend the mind.

Today people conduct enquiry and research into 264 265

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 various aspects of the world. But divinity cannot be experienced with such enquiry and research. Select a divine form of your choice and contemplate on it. When you focus your mind on the divine form, your mind gets transformed completely and becomes one with divinity. Today man's mind keeps wavering from moment to moment. Do not rely on such a wavering mind. Instead, rely on divinity which is steady and changeless. Once you fix your mind on a divine form of your choice, never change it. Close your eyes and contemplate on it. Only then can you experience divinity.

Understand The Principle Of Unity

People use the word divinity without really knowing its meaning. The Vedas declare, ekameva adviteeyam Brahma (God is one without a second), ekatma Brahma (atma is Brahman). You may call Him by any name. He has thousands of heads, hands and eyes. Wherever you see, there is God only and no one else. The same primordial principle pervades everything. Contemplate on Him with single-minded devotion.

Nirgunam, Niranjanam, Sanathana Niketanam, Nitya, Shuddha, Buddha, Mukta, Nirmala Swarupinam (God is attributeless, pure, finalabode, eternal, unsullied, enlightened, free and embodiment of sacredness).

Divinity is present within you. Unable to realise your innate divinity, you waste your time searching for God outside. Whatever you see and experience in the world is only the reaction, re? ection and resound of your feelings. Do not get deluded by the reaction, re? ection and resound. Turn your mind inward and contemplate on the reality within you. You will certainly be able to experience divinity. You should have divinity as your goal and nothing else. Divinity is one without a second, and is all-pervasive.

Understand the principle of oneness and install God in your heart. Without the principle of unity, there can be no multiplicity. If you do not understand unity, you cannot understand the multiplicity of Nature. Nature is the best preacher. Follow the ideals demonstrated by this preacher with preeti (love). The more you develop love, the sooner you can see God. Body attachment is the cause of all differences. You will understand and experience unity in diversity only when you give up body attachment. Once you are free from body attachment, you can experience God in a moment. Whatever you see is the manifestation of God. The principle of unity in diversity is divinity. But you are unable to understand and appreciate this truth. In order to understand this truth, there should be total transformation in your feelings. As is the colour of the glass, so is the colour of the scene outside. Remove the colour glasses of body attachment and see the reality.

Make Your Mind Steady

Embodiments of Love!

Hold on to the principle of love firmly and you can achieve anything. When you fill your heart with love, you will be protected wherever you go. Love is the reality and everything else is only reaction, re? ection and resound. In order to experience the reality, you have to cultivate steadiness of mind in the first instance. How can you make your mind steady? You have to contemplate on one name and one form. Be firm in your chosen path. Do not get deluded by what appears to the physical eyes. Open the eye of wisdom and see the reality.

Embodiments of Love!

Consider everyone as the embodiment of divinity.

God is the mother and father of all. That is why, we pray: Twameva mathascha pitha twameva, Twameva

bandhuscha sakha twameva, Twameva vidya dravinam

twameva (Oh God! You alone are our father and mother, friend and relation, wisdom and wealth). Have firm faith that God is your everything. Do not entertain any doubts in this regard. It is because of doubts that man's mind is in a confused state. Many people ask Me about the proper way of meditation. I always tell only one thing, Meditation does not mean merely closing your eyes and imagining anything and everything. Choose one form, install it in your heart and see that it is steady. Have total faith in one name and one form and contemplate on it incessantly. That is true meditation. If you follow this practice earnestly, you can experience divinity.

Embodiments of Love!

There is no greater sadhana than following the path of love. Your love should ? ow only in one direction, and not in many directions. Your love should constantly ? ow towards God. Only then can you have the vision of God, who is the very personification of love. If you are unable to visualise God, it only means that you have not directed your love towards Him.

Make your mind steady and fix it on God. Mind is the cause of everything in this world. Mind by itself does not go anywhere. It is we who direct it and divert it in different ways according to our whims and fancies. We are responsible for its unsteadiness. When you keep your mind steady and focus it on God, you will find the brilliant and blissful form of God wherever you see. You are unable to see and experience God because you doubt

His existence. First of all, develop unwavering faith in God. Your faith alone will protect you. Do not follow the vagaries of the mind. You should be the master of your mind and not its slave.

Embodiments of Love!

People talk about meditation. Meditation is very simple. Meditation is not mere concentration.

Concentration can never be equated with meditation.

With un? inching faith and unwavering mind you should let your love ? ow towards God. If there is unsteadiness in your mind, it is re? ected outside. All unsteadiness comes from within you. I am rather surprised to note that man's mind is wavering every moment. Why should the mind waver? It has no such power. Manas (mind) and

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37

Manishi (man) should be one. When you achieve this oneness, you can experience the principle of unity.

Embodiments of Love!

You must firmly resolve to hold on to the principle of unity and divinity. What is the purpose of human birth? Is it to spend your time in eating and drinking?

No, no. You should make efforts to understand the underlying principle of unity of five elements, five senses of action, five senses of cognition and five life sheaths. If you make sincere efforts, you will certainly be able to experience the principle of unity. Among all the living beings, only man is endowed with the ability to understand and experience unity and divinity. In fact, the very purpose of human birth is to experience unity in diversity. Hence, make every effort to experience unity and sanctify your lives. It is possible only by following the path of love. There is nothing superior to love in this world.

Today I have awarded the gold medal for all-round excellence to a girl student from Anantapur Campus. She has been a diabetic right from her childhood. Her parents and doctors have been trying their best to control her diabetes but all in vain. However, she has un? inching faith in Swami. That is why she had no problem at all in spite of her blood sugar level being very high. She is not worried at all. In fact, when her parents get worried, she infuses courage in them, saying, Don't worry. God is with me. In this manner, she has spent sixteen years. She has studied in Puttaparthi school and Anantapur college. Sometimes, her blood sugar level is very high. No medicine can control it. Her father becomes anxious. But she is protected by her steady faith. Swami told her firmly, This disease cannot harm you. Have total faith in God. Do not pay heed to what others say. She forgets her badha (suffering) remembering Swami's bodha (teaching). She has followed Swami's words implicitly and has remained steady in her faith. That is why she has come up in life.

She devotes all her time to studies. She will pursue higher studies. She has absolutely no worry even if her blood sugar level shoots up. She says, It comes and goes. I have nothing to do with it. She has faced her health problem with fortitude. In this manner, one should never be afraid of problems. This body is a storehouse of dirt and a den of diseases. One should never rely on such an ephemeral body. The body may have to undergo suffering on account of some diseases. But whatever may be the problem, one should not worry about it.

Her father is teaching in Puttaparthi college.

Sometimes, he gets phone calls from his daughter's teachers in Anantapur Campus, telling him, Your daughter's blood sugar is very high today. She is unable to attend the classes. What should we do? He comes to Me for guidance and I tell him not to worry. I infuse courage in him, saying she would be all right. Because of her devotion and steadfast faith, she is maintaining her health and carrying on her studies without any

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 hindrance.

Having resolved, what ought to be resolved, hold on to it till you have succeeded. Having desired what ought to be desired, hold on to it till your desire is fulfilled. Having asked what ought to be asked, do not leave the hold till you get it. Having thought what ought to be thought, hold on to it till you have succeeded. With heart mellowed, the Lord must yield to your wishes or forgetting yourself, you should ask Him with all your heart. Persevere, be tenacious, and never give up, for it is the quality of a devotee never to retreat, abandoning his resolve. (Telugu poem)

She is leading her life with such un? inching faith and determination. Sometimes, she becomes very weak because of anaemia. Even in such a condition, she continues to do her work. That is true devotion. She is leading her life with total faith in Swami. She has stood first in her studies and has also achieved excellence in co-curricular activities. That is why she has been given the gold medal for all-round excellence.

Dedicate Your Life To Serve Society

All your education, all your positions of authority, all your acts of charity and service have little value without the four virtues of Sathya, Dharma, Prema and Santhi (truth, righteousness, love and peace).

(Telugu poem)

Embodiments of Love!

YOU are all forgetting the purpose for which you have come into this world. Wherever you are, you must remember three things, namely, Where did we come from? Where are we at present? and what is the purpose of our coming here? Supposing you are dropping an envelope or letter in a post box; it should have the From address and To address written thereon. If these two addresses are not written, where

272 273
Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 will the envelope or letter go? It will go to the dead letter office. Similarly, you are in the world now without these two addresses. You can very well imagine what will happen to such an individual. You must therefore find out yourself an answer at least for one of the three questions. Otherwise, your life itself will become a waste.

Here is a small story. The business people in the delta areas of East and West Godavari districts in Andhra Pradesh cross the river on boats. Once, a businessman was travelling in a boat. There was no one else in the boat except himself and the boatman. Usually, people would like to engage themselves in conversation with somebody during travel in order to forget the tedium of the journey. Therefore, he started a conversation with the boatman to while away the time. He asked the boatman, Do you have a newspaper? The boatman replied, Sir! I don't have a newspaper. I cannot read and write. To this, the businessman commented, Alas! If you cannot read and write, one quarter of your life is consigned to the waters of Ganga. The boatman felt sorry for his pitiable condition and kept quiet. After a few minutes, the businessman enquired again, My dear! Do you know the present prices of gold and silver in the Bombay market? The boatman replied, Sir! I do not have any experience in gold business. Hence, I do not know the prices of gold and silver in the Bombay market. Then the businessman commented, If you do not know about gold business, half of your life is consigned to the waters of Ganga*. The conversation continued. Observing the wrist watch worn by the boatman, the businessman again enquired, My dear! What is the time now? Though the poor boatman had a watch on his wrist, he did not know how to read a watch. The businessman again asked, Why then did you wear a wrist watch? The boatman replied, Though one does not know how to read a watch, it is a fashion nowadays to wear a wrist watch. That is why I am wearing one. Then, the businessman commented, If you do not know even to tell the time from a wrist watch, then three-fourths of your life is consigned to the Ganga. Meanwhile, a gale started with great force raising high waves in the river. The boat started tossing up and down and became unsteady. The boatman then asked the businessman, Sir! By the way do you know swimming? The businessman replied, Alas! I do not know swimming. Now it was the turn of the boatman to comment, Then, your entire life is about to be consigned to the waters of Ganga.

Today, we are all in the same situation and are tossed in the river of this world. But, unfortunately we are not making any effort to know why we are here, what have we to learn in this world, where do we have to go and by knowing what we could reach there, etc. Thus, by being ignorant of these aspects, our entire life is being consigned to the Ganga. Therefore, we have to

274 275
* Note : The expression consigned to the waters of the ganga is a colloquial way of saying that something is totally wasted.

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37
first try to find out answers to the queries of: Why have we come here? What are we supposed to know? and Where do we go from here? If we are not able to know the answer to at least one of these queries, our life's journey will be without a purpose. It is only when we are aware of the From address, To address and the present residential address, our life will be meaningful and sanctified.

You Must Have Un? inching Faith

Dr. Michael Goldstein (Chairman, Prasanthi Council and a devotee of Swami) and his wife visit Puttaparthi often. When I was going to the college one day, he approached Me and requested, Swami, if You kindly permit me, I will accompany You to the college. I told him to come. While we were travelling in the car, I asked Mr. Goldstein, What is your programme? He replied, Swami, I have to start my journey back home today. Then I advised him not to leave on that day. He again told Me, Swami, I shall go today, but I shall take the next day's ight from Bombay. Thereupon I told him firmly, You do not talk to Me about all those things. If I say don't go, it is final. Goldstein could not realise that his life itself would be in great danger if he decided to start on the same day. At last I told him, Okay, you can go, if you so wish. Then he returned to his room, packed up his luggage for the Bombay ight. Thereafter, he boarded the plane for USA. Soon after the plane took off, it was realised that there were some hijackers in the plane. The entire atmosphere in the aircraft was extremely tense. Two hijackers stood guard at the entrance. Another two were roaming about in the aircraft with fully loaded guns pointed at the passengers.

It is then that Goldstein realised why Swami wanted him not to board the aircraft on that particular day. He could not do anything in the situation and was praying to Swami as his sole refuge. His wife is a great devotee of Swami. She started chanting Swami's Name, Sai Ram, Sai Ram, Sai Ram. When the aircraft gained some altitude, the hijackers started shooting the passengers. The passengers were struck with terror not knowing what to do. As the hijackers opened fire, the aircraft was strewn with dead bodies. He and his wife were seated on the front portion of the aircraft. The hijackers started shooting the passengers around them. They thought it would be their turn next. Goldstein then told his wife, Swami advised me not to start on this day, but I did not follow Swami's instruction completely and that is why we are in this situation. Meanwhile, one hijacker set his eyes on the couple. Goldstein's wife, however, had been chanting the Name of Swami incessantly forgetting everything. The chanting of Swami's Name worked wonders and Goldstein's wife was spared. Goldstein then got up and stood at the entrance of the aircraft. The hijackers, however, could not notice him even though he was such a hefty person. Thus, the life of Goldstein was saved by Swami's grace. They remained on the plane as hostages for a long time without food, water and sleep. They were very much depressed. Goldstein's wife has intense devotion for Swami. Normally women are more devoted than men. It is not that men do not have devotion, but they do not show it outwardly. Goldstein's wife advised him, You do not worry, contemplate on Swami. At this point the hijackers began to shoot men, women and children mercilessly. Goldstein and his wife, however, continued to pray to Swami, Sai Ram, Sai Ram, Sai Ram. They silently prayed to Swami closing their eyes. In the meantime, all the ammunition in the guns of the hijackers was exhausted. The police caught the hijackers. Goldstein and his wife were released and put on board on another aircraft bound for America. However, the ordeal that they underwent continued to haunt them. After a few days, the police came to enquire about the incident. Goldstein was offered some compensation, but he did not accept it. After two or three months, Goldstein again came to Puttaparthi and had Swami's darshan. Now he realised through his own experience that he had not to fear anything under any circumstances if he did namasmarana (chanting of God's Name). After he had Swami's darshan, calmness was restored in him. From then on, when Swami would enquire about his return journey he would leave it to the Lord's Will. He realised that it would be better to leave the matter in Swami's hands. From then on Goldstein developed unshakeable faith in the words of Swami and stood firmly by them.

276 277

People today are unable to realise from where they came and where they would go. It is only after people have undergone such experiences that they realise the strength of faith. They have come into this world and somehow spend their time. When someone questions them how they spend their time, they reply that they have come into this world for enjoying food and comfortable sleep. However, it should be understood that man has taken birth in this world not merely for enjoying food and drink. The same truth has been explained by Adi Sankara in his famous Bhaja Govindam song thus:

Bhaja Govindam, Bhaja Govindam
Govindam bhaja moodha mathe

Samprapthe sannihithe kale

Nahi nahi rakshati dukrun karane.

(Oh foolish man, chant the name of Govinda; the rules of grammar will not come to your rescue when the end approaches.)

Realise The Purpose Of Life And Sanctify It

When people are questioned why the human birth was given to them, most of them would reply that it was for khana (food), peena (drink), sona (sleep) and marna (death). This assumption is totally incorrect. There are several things in life that one has to achieve. The purpose of a human birth is not for enjoying food and comforts. It is not even for pursuing education. The purpose of human birth is totally different and the people have forgotten it. You have to fulfil your life and sanctify your birth. The body comes, grows and dies, and finally undergoes decay. Before the body dies, one has to fulfil the purpose for which he has come into this world.

278 279

Embodiments of Love!

There will be several trials and tribulations in the journey of life. One has to acquire the power by which he can courageously encounter them. That is the power of spirituality. One should not become diffident and withdraw from his effort in the middle. In this Bhavasagara (ocean of life), there will of course be, turbulent waves which will toss your boat up and down.

Punarapi jananam punarapi maranam

Punarapi janani jathare sayanam

Iha samsare bahu dustare

Kripayapare pahi Murare.

(Oh Lord! I am caught up in this cycle of birth and death; time and again, I am experiencing the agony of staying in the mother's womb. It is very difficult to cross this ocean of worldly life. Please take me across this ocean and grant me liberation.)

The purpose of human birth is not to be born again and again from the womb of the mother, spend the life aimlessly and finally depart from this world. There is a specific purpose why one is born in this world. Therefore, one has to realise the purpose and sanctify his life. Our education, our work and the money we earn, all these must be spent in a purposeful way. The students of the present-day are pursuing education to make a living. They are acquiring degrees with the sole purpose of earning money. What is so great about struggling for filling one's own belly? Even dogs and foxes fill their bellies. You might have observed in the circus that even the monkeys learn several types of feats and display them. You, who are born as human beings should not behave like dogs, foxes and monkeys. If you do so, of what use is your education? The education you acquire must be put to proper use. Only then will it become meaningful and will give strength to your personality. The purpose of your life is not merely pursuing education and acquiring degrees. Of course, you may study, but it is not enough if you simply study for acquiring degrees. Can you call all those who know how to read and write educated?

Can one be called educated merely by acquiring degrees?

Can you call it education which does not confer virtues?

If education is just for a living, don't we find birds and beasts carrying on their lives?

(Telugu poem)

It is only when you keep education for both life and for living as your goal, your education will be meaningful. Therefore, every human being must keep the purpose of life in view. Of what use is it, if you exult in your success thinking, I have passed MBA; I have acquired several degrees. Those degrees must be put to proper use. Only a human being has the power to realise the purpose of his life. If one is satisfied thinking, I am born, I am educated, I earned money, I have sufficient bank balance, I have got my children educated and sent them for higher education to foreign countries, that is not the sole purpose of life. You should never forget the purpose why you were born in this world. Unfortunately, today, you have forgotten the purpose of your life and are indulging in futile activities. As long as you live you must experience peace until your last breath. You should attain true and eternal bliss.

280 281
Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37

Acquire The Spirit Of Sacrefice

Mahatma Gandhi went to London and was conferred with the degree of Bar-at-Law. He wished to fulfil his life by utilising his education in the service of society. Therefore, after his return to his motherland, he joined the Indian National Congress. He sacrificed his entire life for achieving Independence for the country. He started wearing a simple dhoti and a piece of cloth to cover the upper portion of his body. He underwent several difficulties in the north Indian States during the freedom struggle. He was beaten by the police with lathis (baton) in Lucknow. However, in spite of undergoing several difficulties and physical torture at the hands of the police, he did not give up his resolve to attain Independence for the country. He started practising Law. Even then, his life did not go smoothly. He joined the Independence movement on behalf of the Indian National Congress and underwent great torture at the hands of the British. Nevertheless, he did not lose heart. His wife Kasturba was a noble lady. She always served her husband with great devotion, even when Gandhi was in jail. Simultaneously, she was also engaged in service to the country. It is only her spirit of service that protected her throughout. During the days of their involvement in the Independence movement, there were occasions when the husband and wife got separated. But Kasturba was reconciled to the situation that whatever happened was for her good only. Thus, people who serve others with a noble heart will always see good only. At last, the country attained Independence and Jawaharlal Nehru became the first Prime Minister.

Subhash Chandra Bose was another great leader of the freedom movement who was good at heart and was a great patriot. It is only because of the efforts of such men of sacrifice, the country could attain Independence. However, it is not merely Swatantrya (Independence) that we have to wish for. We must attain Swarajya. That is great. Swatantrya is a temporary phenomenon of freedom from foreign rule while Swarajya is concerned with and attained by the heart.

Dear Students!

282 283

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37

You must be prepared to sacrifice even your life for the country. You are not the body. The body is only an instrument and a means for achieving something higher and noble. The body has to be put to use for achieving these higher and noble aims. The body is like the dress we wear. One day or the other the dress is bound to decay. Till then the body has to be maintained properly. It is only by sacrifice one can attain yoga. That is what the Veda has proclaimed, Na karmana Na Prajaya dhanena thyagenaike amrutatthwamanasu (immortality is not attained through action, progeny or wealth; it is attained only by sacrifice). Having been born as human beings we must dedicate our lives in the service of God and in the constant contemplation of God. If you do so, none of the physical ailments will trouble you.

Give Up Attachment To The Body

A small example which I would like to narrate to you. When I was in Bangalore sometime back, this body fell in the bathroom. There were two students by name Satyajit and Achintya who used to attend to My needs. They did great service to Me. I told them I have no body attachment. You may conduct an operation on this body, but I have nothing to do with this body. I am not this body. As long as the body is there, I have to do My work. The doctors wanted to put Me in bandage, but I did not agree. They advised Me to undergo an operation so that the fracture would be healed quickly. I placed this body in the hands of the doctors and let them do whatever they wished to do with it. I continued to walk which I am still doing. I have no pains or suffering. Several devotees are anxious that Swami is walking with great difficulty and perhaps is undergoing great pain. I would like to reiterate that I do not undergo any pain or suffering. Till today, I did not undergo any body pain whatsoever. If you thus sacrifice your dehabhimana, you can achieve anything in life. Whatever I do, I tell the same thing. One has to do what he says and say what he does. That is what is meant by

Manasyekam vachasyekam karmanyekam

mahatmanam

Manasyanyath vachasyanyath karmanyanyath

duratmanam

(Those whose thoughts, words and deeds are in perfect harmony are noble ones; those who lack harmony of these are wicked.)

That is the real manavatva (human nature). I can stand for any length of time though the doctors advised Me against it. Even now I have been standing for a long time. I have no suffering at all. I don't take even a single tablet. I don't put on any bandage. Mine is atmabhava and atmabhava alone. I set an example by My own actions.

Dear Students!

The body may undergo any amount of suffering. It is like a water bubble. The mind is like a mad monkey.

284 285

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37

Therefore, we should not follow either the body or the mind. We must follow our antharatma (conscience).

We must develop atmabhimana. If atmabhimana is developed, no pain can trouble us. It is only for teaching you about this atmabhimana, I am undergoing all this trouble. I don't feel any pain at all. I am telling you the truth. I am not suppressing the facts. In fact, I don't know or feel what pain is. We must face the difficulties courageously. It is only to teach you this steadfastness and courage, I have taken upon Myself this pain. You must follow My ideal. Do not ever give importance to the suffering of the body. Give up dehabhimana. However, engage the body in proper activities. Engage the body in the service of God. Our body is a gift of God. For what purpose has God given us this body? It is only for dedicating it in the service of the Lord.

Embodiments of Love!

The body has been given to you for performing sacred karmas (actions). Several people wonder why Swami does not feel tired in spite of undergoing so much physical suffering. Especially, the ladies can observe the signs of weakness quickly. I want to assure you that I am maintaining a constant body weight and good health throughout. Neither I have put on weight nor become weak. I can walk swiftly, but I am desisting from doing so only to satisfy the doctors. The doctors are particularly pressurising Me not to walk swiftly. They advised Me, Swami, please do not walk fast. You always keep two students with You to help You. It is only to please them and satisfy them that I am keeping these two students with Me. I am not causing any inconvenience to these boys. Both these boys, Arun and Prusty go to their offices and work there besides attending to My needs. The moment I call Prusty, he immediately rushes in. I ask him to get Me a glass of water and I drink the water given by him. Similarly, both these boys constantly attend to My needs. They are serving Me with great devotion and love. I do not cause any inconvenience to anybody.

Embodiments of Love!

Today you are celebrating Swami's birthday. In fact, it is the body that has a date of birth. This body has already passed 78 years and has entered the 79th year. But do I look like a 79 year old man? No. No. Not only now, even after 80 or 90 years of age, I will be like this only. I will never depend on anybody. My eyes and teeth are in perfect condition. Normally, by the time a person attains 79 years of age, all his teeth will be lost. His eyesight will be affected by cataract. His skin will have wrinkles, but I have no wrinkles at all. I will not have old age. In fact, I have no old age. Similarly, you also develop such courage and confidence. You will certainly feel good. Not only Myself, all of you should be in sound health. But you are spoiling your own health. You are misusing your physical strength in so many ways. If you put your body to proper use, you can come up well by Swami's grace. You can serve any number of Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 people with a healthy body and a sound mind. Therefore, you have to maintain your body in healthy condition in order to serve others, not to show off your beauty. Even for Me, this body is required for serving others. In the service to humanity, I am prepared for anything, even to sacrifice My life. Similarly, you must also be ever ready to serve others. Do not ever consider that the body is very important. Neither, you fritter away the physical strength. You must make proper use of the physical body. You must also gain enough mental strength. You must come up well in your educational career and make your life sanctified in the service to humanity. You must always be ready to face any situation in life boldly. That is the real nature of humanity. Whenever your services are required, you must respond immediately, saying, I am ready, I am ready, I am ready. Develop such a courage and confidence and set an ideal to the world. This body is a den of dirt and prone to diseases; it is subject to change from time to time; it cannot cross the ocean of Samsara. It is nothing but a structure of bones. Oh mind! Do not be under the delusion that body is permanent. Instead take refuge at the Divine Lotus Feet. (Telugu poem)

You seek refuge in the lotus feet of the Lord. Do not mind any amount of suffering of the physical body. You serve the country to the extent you can. Utilise every small opportunity to serve the country and society. Even a small help done to an old woman that you come across on the way is service. Do not ever think, What do I gain by helping this woman? There is great merit even in such a small service. Therefore, continue to serve. There is no greater sadhana than service to the fellow human beings. Seva bina nirvan nahi (there is no redemption without service). You should not mind any inconvenience that you may undergo while serving others.

I have no intention of celebrating My birthday on a grand scale. My only intention is that the body should be maintained in a proper condition and through the body service should be rendered to others. You must always be prepared to dedicate your life to serve society. That is the real service.

My Power Is The Power Of Love

How is it that the sun rises in the morning and sets in the evening with utmost regularity everyday?

How is it that the stars twinkle beautifully in the sky at night and hide themselves during the day? How is it that the wind blows incessantly and sustains the living beings without taking rest even for a moment? How is it that the rivers ? ow perennially making gurgling sounds?

(Telugu poem)

Embodiments of Love!

JAGAT denotes that which is subject to creation, sustenance and dissolution. God, who is responsible for these phenomena, has no specific form. He pervades the entire world in the form of the five elements, namely, space, wind, fire, water and earth.

290 291

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37
Food And Water Are The Gifts Of God

In man, these elements connote the faculties of sabda, sparsha, rupa, rasa, gandha (hearing, touch, sight, taste, smell), respectively. There is no place where these five elements are not present. Sarvatah panipadam tat sarvathokshi siromukham, Sarvatah sruthimalloke sarvamavruthya tishthathi (with hands, feet, eyes, head, mouth and ears pervading everything, He permeates the entire universe). That is why it is said that all hands, feet, eyes, heads, mouths and ears are His. The elders in the past therefore declared that God is present everywhere; there is no place where God is not present. How can we comprehend the principle of this all-pervasive divinity? People attribute various names and forms to God. They celebrate the birthdays of their chosen deities, worship them and derive joy therefrom. But it is not possible for anyone to fathom fully the nature of divinity. It is not possible to attribute any form to God. He is beyond all names, forms and attributes. God has neither birth nor death. How can anyone give a specific name to God who is all-powerful and all-pervasive?

God is eternal without birth or death. He has no beginning, middle or end. He is omnipresent and is the eternal witness. (Telugu poem)

When a child is born from the womb of its mother, it starts crying. However, it stops crying the moment you put a drop of honey or milk on its tongue. From this, we can deduce that everyone is born with hunger. What type of hunger is that? Is it worldly or spiritual? It is difficult to judge who is born with what type of hunger. Though food is of various kinds, hunger is common to all. Food is essential to satisfy one's hunger. So, every individual has to eat food. It is also his duty to share it with others.

It is the earth which provides food to man. It absorbs rainwater and supplies it to the crops. In this way, we grow crops. Thus, mother earth sustains our life by providing food to us. Water is also very essential for our survival. One may live without food for a few days, but not without water. Water is very necessary for growing food also. It can be acquired only through prayer and not by any other means. People perform worship and offer special prayers to invoke divine grace for water. Everyone should pray to God whether one is a pauper or a millionaire, for it is God who provides food and water to man. Food and water are the gifts of God. Man cannot create food and water by himself. He does not even know what type of food is essential to lead a healthy life. He should, in fact, make efforts to understand this.

Anything Can Be Achieved Through Prayer

Whatever God does is for the welfare of the world.

You must understand that world is the very form of God. The Creator and creation are not different from each other. We should not worship God for the fulfilment of worldly desires. We should pray to God to attain Him. He showers His grace on all. It is God who gives us everything. He alone knows what is good for us.

292 293

Everything that we need is provided by Him. However, it is not the quality of a true devotee to feel disappointed and to blame God if his desires are not fulfilled. It is our duty to find ways and means to earn God's grace and make efforts to attain Him. Nobody can understand or explain divine plans. God alone knows His plans and He only can reveal them. No one can comprehend the ways of God as stated by Thyagaraja:

Not even a blade of grass will move without divine Will,

Right from an ant to Brahma, God pervades everything,

But some people do not understand this and take pride in their intelligence,

But no one however mighty knows what is going to happen in the next moment.

(Telugu poem)

No one can predict when God will shower His grace on an individual. Only God knows the answers to the questions like who, when, where, why and how. If one forgets God and gets carried away by ego and sense of doership, one will not meet with success in one's endeavours. Anything can be achieved through prayer. There is nothing greater than prayer. Hence, everyone must necessarily offer his prayer to God. However, one should not pray for worldly gains. Oh God! I want Your love and nothing else. This should be your constant prayer. Once you become the recipient of God's love, you can conquer the entire world.

Do not pray to God for the fulfilment of your worldly desires. Instead, leave everything to God's Will. Have full faith that He will do what is good for you. Pray to Him, Oh God, please take care of us every moment of our life. When you discharge your duties surrendering everything to God's Will, you will certainly achieve success in all your endeavours. But God's Will takes shape at the appropriate time without any prompting or planning.

All Are The Children Of God

Any mighty task can be accomplished by prayer.

Hence, pray to God silently. Do not pray for the fulfilment of your petty desires. Give up all desires and pray to God wholeheartedly with love. You will certainly find fulfilment in life. You can understand and experience divinity only through love. Nothing can be achieved without love. Love makes all your tasks successful.

Some people complain, Swami, we are making fervent prayers but our prayers are not fruitful. I tell them, The mistake lies in your prayer and not in God. If your prayers are sincere, they will certainly be answered.

There is nothing that God cannot accomplish.

The stories of the Lord are most wonderful and sacred in all the three worlds. They are like sickles that cut the creepers of worldly bondage.

294 295

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 37

They are most ennobling and elevating. They confer bliss on the sages and seers doing penance in forests. (Telugu poem)

Today we are celebrating the sacred festival of Christmas. We should celebrate it in the true spirit without entertaining petty desires. Jesus was the son of God. While he was being crucified, he said, Oh Father, Let Thy Will be done. When you surrender yourself to God's Will, He will take care of you. Do not develop pride. Give up ego and ostentation. Pray silently and sincerely. Then your prayers will surely be answered. God is not confined to a place somewhere in a distant corner. He always resides in your heart. He can accomplish anything. He is ever ready to perform any task, big or small, for His devotees. All are His children. Hence, He will certainly answer your prayers. Jesus taught, All are the children of God. When you have such firm conviction, you can accomplish any task. You need not read voluminous books. Fill your heart with love and leave everything to His Will. You will certainly achieve success in all your endeavours.

Embodiments of Love!

Love is the quintessence of My teachings. My power is the power of love (loud applause). There is nothing greater than love. When you develop love, you can easily face the challenges of life and emerge victorious. God will always be with you, in you and around you and will take care of you. Any mighty task can be accomplished through prayer. However, your prayer should be sincere. Say what is there in your mind. Swami is within you; He knows your thoughts and feelings. Develop unity of thought, word and deed. Have faith that Swami is in you, and He always listens to your prayer. If you think that Swami is outside, how will your prayer reach Him?

Embodiments of Love!

It is only love that will help you to achieve success in your life. Hence, develop love. That is the true prayer God expects from you.

Publisher's Note

The various festivals that punctuate the Indian calendar in a year invariably bring with them refreshing showers of wisdom in the form of Discourses from the Divine. This invaluable gift of grace unfailingly reaches millions all over the world, soothing the drooping hearts and rejuvenating the palsied nerves of the listeners and readers alike.

The present compilation of 18 such discourses delivered during the year 2005 which constitute the 38th volume of Sathya Sai Speaks is yet another instalment of His benediction. Moral reconstruction of human society being the avowed mission of the Avatar, these discourses richly contribute to a strong ethico-moral fabric of human society. Though some of them are couched in a language for the younger generation, they are bound to impact the manners and habits of the grown-ups as well.

This compilation does not include the five discourses delivered during Dasara festival in October 2005 as they have been clubbed together and published as a separate booklet.

The Book Trust hopes that the readers will receive this volume with the same warmth and delight with which the earlier ones were received.

Your True Nature Is Bliss Realise It

The sun appears serene and peaceful. The days have become shorter.

The sweet festival of Sankranti has come filling our homes with the newly harvested grain.

(Telugu poem)

Sankranti is the most important of all festivals. Practically, every day is a festival day for humanity. But, people out of their ignorance have earmarked a few days as festival days and the rest as ordinary days. Many celebrate this festival without actually knowing its significance. On this day in this part of the world, people pay their respects to cows and bulls. Bulls are decorated daintily with a variety of ornaments and clothes and taken round the streets. They are called gangireddhulu (sacred bulls). Not merely this; a symbolic marriage is performed between the cows and the bulls. The person who takes round the decorated bull is called Gangireddudasu. He wears a special dress on this occasion. The very sight of Gangireddudasu fascinates children. The elder brother lovingly calls the younger brother to go along with him to see the sacred bull and its master.

1

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume -38

Oh my dear brother, here comes the Gangireddudasu.

Come, let us go and see him. He wears a silver medallion and a waist belt. He carries a decorated staff and wears special marks on his forehead. He brings with him the richly caparisoned sacred cow and bull and performs their marriage. Let us see the marriage ceremony and offer our gifts

(Telugu poem)

He brings with him a cow and a bull and calls them Sita and Rama, respectively. They are trained in such a way that they respond to his questions according to the movement of the stick in his hand. He asks the cow, Oh Sita! Do you like Rama? As per the training given, the cow shakes its head in disapproval. Then he asks the bull, Oh Rama! Do you like Sita? The bull also answers in the negative. In this manner, both of them disapprove initially and later on agree for the marriage. Then the Gangireddudasu performs the symbolic marriage of Sita and Rama.

The Message Of Sankranti

The festival of Sankranti bestows immense joyeven on animals and birds. It is a very important festival for farmers. This is the day he brings home the newly harvested crop and enjoys the fruits of his hard labour. Thus, right from a farmer to the king, everyone celebrates this festival joyfully. Names may vary, but this festival is celebrated by one and all irrespective of religion and nationality. It marks the beginning of the sacred time of Uttarayana (sun's movement toward North). It confers bliss on one and all.

Everyone aspires to attain bliss. In fact, that is the very purpose of human life. Life has no meaning if one cannot experience bliss. Bliss is your goal.

In accordance with the tradition, the newly married sons-in-law visit their in-laws house to celebrate this festival.

As Sankranti is the festival of festivals,

Oh newly married bridegroom, visit your in-law s house,

Come, spend your time in fun and frolic with your brothers-in-law and sisters-in-law,

The entire household and the neighbourhood will welcome you with love and affection.

(T elugu song)

Even those who have not visited their in-laws house for a number of years will be eager to go for Sankranti festival. The in-laws extend all hospitality to the son-in-law and make efforts to please him. They even go to the extent of borrowing money in order to give him new clothes and serve him delicious food. The entire household spends their time blissfully. But, today that spirit of Sankranti celebrations is not noticed anywhere. The son-in-law instead of giving joy to his in-laws, quarrels over petty matters with them.

Sankranti confers joy on human beings, birds and animals alike. Not only Bharatiyas, even the people of other countries celebrate this festival, but with different names. This is the season when cool winds blow and the farmer brings home the harvested crop. He spends his time in a relaxed manner free from all worries and anxieties. There is a saying in Telugu: One who is free from chinta (worry) will be able to sleep peacefully even in a santha (market place).

Everyone should make efforts to overcome worries and enjoy everlasting happiness. This is the message of Sankranti. People may interpret it in their own way, but few understand its true significance. Amongst the variety of festivals, the womenfolk accord a special place to this festival. The happiness that one enjoys during this season is unique.

Man makes various efforts to experience happiness.

You can find few in this world who do not want to be happy. But one must understand that happiness cannot be acquired from outside. It originates from the heart. Heart is the source of bliss. The happiness we enjoy in the external world is only a reaction, reflection and resound of the happiness within. Very few understand this truth. The apparent joy that one experiences today is artificial and temporary. Only the happiness that springs from the heart is permanent.

Happiness Should Mainfest From Within

Students!

Behave so as not to cause hindrance to anyone. Festivals are meant to experience happiness and share it with others. Happiness cannot be purchased in a market

nor can it be acquired by worldly means. It should manifest from within. It is not the nature of Bharatiyas to hurt the feelings of others for their own pleasure. One should respect others feelings and act appropriately. One should share his happiness with his fellowmen. You should welcome the arrival of the bounteous month of Pushya and celebrate Sankranti in the true spirit by manifesting your inner joy and sharing it with others. The word Kranti means change. It signifies a change

Your True Nature Is Bliss Realise It

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume -38

from misery to happiness, from restlessness to peace and from pain to pleasure. Sankranti bestows joy on everyone equally. That is why everyone eagerly awaits the arrival of Sankranti with enthusiasm. Even birds and animals are happy with the arrival of Sankranti. When the farmer brings home the harvested grain, birds partake of them and express their joy by chirping merrily.

The neighbours congratulate the farmer for the rich harvest he reaped as a result of his hard labour.

Students!

It is most essential that you understand the significance of every festival and celebrate them in the true spirit. As we do not go deep into their significance, we are unable to enjoy true happiness. One should be prepared to sacrifice his body to have the experience of eternal bliss. Body is a combination of five elements and the mind is merely a bundle of thoughts. One should neither be attached to the body nor follow the vagaries of the mind. Drive away the evil qualities of kama, krodha, lobha, moha, mada and matsarya (desire, anger, greed, infatuation, pride and jealousy) and manifest your inner peace and bliss. Instead of developing peace and bliss, man is destroying them. He is giving scope to unrest even in trivial matters. Neither asanthi (unrest) nor prasanthi (supreme peace) are acquired from outside. People say, I want peace. Where is peace? Is it present outside? If peace were to be found outside, people would have bought it by spending any amount of money. But outside, we find only pieces! The real peace is within.

Whether you boil it hard or dilute it with water, milk remains white. White symbolises purity. In the constant manner of milk, your heart should always remain pure, bright and peaceful in spite of trials and tribulations.

We should subdue sorrow, keep the evil qualities of anger, hatred and jealousy under check and manifest our innate bliss. When your desires are not fulfilled, you become angry. Hence, desires are the root cause of anger and they should be controlled in the first instance.

Embodiments of Love!

Everlasting bliss is the goal of everyone. You should derive happiness even from what seem to be troubles. One need not search for happiness elsewhere. It is always with you and in you. You are unable to experience it as you have not understood the true meaning of happiness. You are under the illusion that happiness lies in money, wealth and material comforts. Once you have the taste of true happiness, you will not crave for worldly possessions. True happiness springs forth from the depths of one's heart. When milk is boiled in a vessel, its level starts rising gradually. The milk level subsides when you sprinkle a few drops of water over it. It is because of its association with water that milk loses its value. Likewise, man loses his value when he associates himself with bad company. One will always be blissful if one is in good company. Before making friendship with an individual, one should enquire into his character.

Your True Nature Is Bliss Realise It

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume -38

You may or may not be aware; I am always in a state of bliss. I have no worries or difficulties whatsoever. Some people ask, Swami, do you have any worries? I do not know what worry is. I have never experienced it. I am always blissful. You should always think of bliss. Then you will see bliss everywhere. The experience of bliss is sweeter than sugar, tastier than curd, sweeter indeed than honey. People feel sad when they are faced with difficulties and at the bereavement of their near and dear ones. But at no point of time do I feel sorry about such happenings. They come and go like passing clouds. Happiness and sorrow follow one another. When you contemplate on bliss, there will be no room for sorrow.

Embodiments of Love!

There is love in each one of you, but you are directing it on worldly relationships. You have not tasted true love. Love God wholeheartedly. That is true love. People may come and people may go, but God neither comes nor goes. He is always present. When you are engulfed in sorrow, think of happiness. You will certainly experience happiness.

Bliss Is Our Essential Nature

Bliss is very much immanent in the human being.

Wherever we are, whatever be the position we occupy, our essential nature is bliss. People ask Me sometimes Swami! Did You ever experience sorrow? I am amused at this question. In fact, why should I experience sorrow? Should I feel sorry about the body? Not necessary. This body is always healthy and active.

The nature of the human mind is fickle. The body is like a water bubble; mind is like a mad monkey. Don't follow the mind; don't rely on the body since it is like a water bubble. After all, why should one feel sorry about the body and mind which are transient? In fact, bliss is our essential nature which is permanent.

Embodiments of Love!

Cultivate love that will help you to experience bliss. Start the day with Love; fill the day with Love; end the day with Love that is the way to God. If you can achieve this, you will not be disturbed by sorrows and difficulties.

The heart is the seat of bliss. True bliss flows from a pure and loving heart. Try to experience such bliss. All other forms of happiness are momentary.

Embodiments of Love!

Children are always happy and cheerful. They do not have any inhibitions. When somebody smiles at them, they will also smile innocently. They experience bliss that is the inherent nature of all human beings. There is a difference between happiness and bliss. In common parlance, happiness is momentary. It comes and goes. Bliss is something that wells up from within. It emerges from the heart, as a result of one's union with God. If one feels separate from God, one cannot experience bliss.

Your True Nature Is Bliss Realise It

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume -38

Embodiments of Love!

You have to experience such bliss in abundance in the days to come. Let me remind you once again that neither age nor position nor for that matter anything in this physical environment can bring about such bliss. It is only a pure and loving heart that is the source of bliss. The holy festival of Sankranti signifies change or transformation of the heart. It is experiencing bliss arising out of the realisation of the changeless, Eternal Principle. Divinity is the only principle that is changeless.

God is ever blissful. In fact, He is the embodiment of bliss. For example, this is a white cloth. It is only when this cloth is dipped in or painted with colour, it acquires some colour. Similarly, your essential nature is bliss. If you are experiencing sorrow, it is because you have immersed yourself in sorrow. Wherever you are, you must always be happy and blissful. For example, people wish me Swami! Happy Birthday! I would like to ask one question in this context. Is there real happiness in celebrating a birthday? I am always happy. Then, where is the question of celebrating a particular day in a year as Happy Birthday. This is only an expression in borrowed words. In fact, bliss is our true nature. We camouflage our true nature with artificial expressions and feel satisfied as though it is real bliss. This is not the correct approach.

Be Blissful By Keeping Desires At Bay

Embodiments of Love!

You are full of Love. In fact, your hearts are overflowing with Love. But, you are preventing your love from flowing and expressing itself outwardly. Otherwise, love has no barriers or hurdles at all! Constantly contemplate on God. Then you will always be happy physically, mentally and spiritually. Unfortunately, nowadays you are losing such a divine quality of bliss due to various desires. If you can keep these desires away from you, you will always be blissful. For example, this is a white cloth. Whiteness is its nature. But it acquires dirt because of constant usage. Similarly, your heart is always pure, bright and blissful. But it gets polluted because of desires. Therefore, cultivate Love and keep your heart always pure. Then you will be blissful every moment of your life. But, you have forgotten your innate nature of bliss and are always immersed in sorrow and unhappiness.

When someone enquires, How are you? you reply so, so. This is not the correct way. We must reply, I am happy. It is possible that we may encounter some ups and downs in life. But, they should not affect our essential nature, which is bliss. Did you observe Me carefully? How blissful I am! Not only now, I am always blissful and overflowing with bliss. In fact, you can also experience such bliss in My presence. However, if you approach Me with an evil mind, evil thoughts and desires, you cannot experience this bliss. These are human weaknesses. You must, therefore, try to correct them.

Dear Students!

11

Your True Nature Is Bliss Realise It

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume -38

You should never feel dejected. Supposing you fail in an examination sometime, you should not feel dejected. Reconcile yourself that perhaps you did not write the examination well and therefore you have failed. But never get depressed and dejected that you have failed in the examination. Similarly, you enquire into yourself the reason for your sorrow. You will yourself realise that your own thoughts are responsible for the present situation. Hence, correct them. You will be happy once again. Sorrows and difficulties are like passing clouds. You should never attach importance to them. You must always be happy and cheerful. Peace and happiness are your qualities. In fact, your true nature is bliss.

Man's Evil Deeds Cause Calamities

Embodiments of Love!

Today is the holy festival of Sankranti. In fact, this year is particularly important than the previous year. Last month several people suffered untold misery and suffering on account of a Tsunami. It is only man's evil deeds that are responsible for such a calamity. I, therefore, advise you not to indulge in wrong actions and evil deeds. It is possible that more troubles may occur during this year, compared to last year. However, we must move forward unmindful of those troubles. These are all passing clouds and you need not be perturbed by these occurrences. Be bold and courageous to face them. The calamity of Tsunami that occurred last month was in fact, man-made. It was not Divine Will at all! But, man feels that all such calamities are thrust upon man by God. Never! God always provides happiness to man. He has no anger or hatred. His nature is love. The question arises why these sorrows and difficulties in the world? Strictly speaking, happiness will not have any value without sorrow. Man cannot experience happiness without undergoing some difficulty or the other. Both happiness and sorrow are intertwined. One cannot exist without the other.

Pleasure and pain, good and bad co-exist, none can separate them. You cannot find pleasure or pain, good or bad to the exclusion of the other. Pleasure results when difficulties fructify. (Telugu poem)

God does not cause pain to any living being in His creation. All sorrows and difficulties are man-made only. God is the protector of all living beings. He provides peace and happiness to one and all. Lokah samastah sukhino bhavantu (May all people of the world be happy). This is the Will of God. How then can God cause sorrow to a human being? Unable to understand His divine will, you accuse God of causing sorrow. If you can fathom the divine will, you will realise that everything is for your good only. We are all embodiments of bliss. Day in and day out you experience that bliss and share it with others. Then only it will increase.

Your True Nature Is Bliss Realise It

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume -38

Embodiments of Love!

This Sankranti is prema Sankranti and ananda Sankranti. Hence, welcome this Sankranti festival. Welcome

God who is the embodiment of bliss. God is not satisfied with the appellations like Karunanidhi (the treasure house of compassion) and Premaswarupa (embodiment of love). God is always blissful. You should not pray to God to fulfil your umpteen desires. Just pray Oh! God! Share Your bliss with me. Make me blissful! Never deride God as nirdaya (one without compassion). Whatever God does is for our own good. Even the sorrows and difficulties we experience are for our own good. They are preludes to happiness and bliss. If you cultivate such positive outlook, you will always be blissful. Share your happiness with all. Contrary to this, man today is keeping happiness to himself and distributing sorrow to others. This is not what we should do. Suppress your sorrow and manifest inner joy this is the spiritual sadhana one has to undertake. When you encounter any difficulty or sorrow or restlessness, do not mind them at all. Ignore them. You are always embodiments of bliss. If you constantly contemplate on this reality, nothing will bother you.

Embodiments of Love!

May this festival of Sankranti, which is a symbol of change, bring about a transformation in your heart and provide bliss to one and all, so that you may always lead a happy, prosperous and cheerful life. In fact, the very name of a human being is anandamaya (full of bliss).

Manavatva (humanness) is meant for rising to the level of daivatva (divinity).

Students!

All your dramas and playlets that you have enacted here are good. If you analyse properly, where does the bad lie? It lies in your mind. Do not think bad and share your bad thoughts with others. Bliss is the real food for a human being. One should always be hungry to partake of that food of bliss. Let your faith in God be firm and unshakable. It is only God's love that is eternal. If you can secure that love, all other forms of happiness will automatically come to you. good only.

Embodiments of Love!

The elderly couples who participated in the Bhima Ratha Santhi celebrations held today have experienced inexplicable joy and bliss. In this context, you must understand the underlying meaning in naming this ceremony as Bhima

Ratha Santhi. It does not mean that all these couples must be physically strong and courageous like Bhima, the Mahabharata hero. Bhima was the son of Vayu (air), which is all-pervasive. The wind by nature is a very strong and powerful element, which can uproot even a mighty tree.

There are certain traditional rules for the performance of this Bhima Ratha Santhi. But there is no age restriction as such for this ceremony. By God's grace, everyone has sat sankalpa (good thoughts). Normally,

The mental make-up of a person can be judged from the way in which he maintains his immediate surroundings. For example, a person whose room is full of pictures of his relatives, friends, and political leaders can at once be understood to be one dominated by rajoguna. He is one who attaches undue importance to human relationships and adores worldly power and pelf, ignoring God. Similarly, if the room is full of ugly and obscene pictures, the individual is essentially thamasic in nature. Both these categories of men are unfit to practise the sacred path of meditation. A third category of men who have particulars of God and holy men adorning the walls of their rooms, converting their rooms into shrines, as it were, are the sathwic people, the people who are rightfully qualified to undertake meditation.

married couples celebrate the Shashtyabda Poorthi ceremony when the husband attains the age of sixty years, hoping to lead a peaceful and happy married life. They also celebrate when the husband attains the age of 70 years. Generally, people believe 70 years of age as the deadline in the lifespan of an individual. But, there are other milestones like 80, 90 and 100 years also to be crossed in life. When an individual crosses these important milestones in his married life these blissful occasions are named and celebrated as Bhima Ratha Santhi. Unable to understand and appreciate the importance of these holy occasions, the children in this Kali Age are sending their parents away when they cross 60 years in life, under the mistaken notion that they should not lead a married life and they are fit only to be sanyasis (renunciants). This is a serious mistake. On the other hand, children should take greater care of their parents when they attain sixty years of age and beyond. Generally, children are under the impression that people beyond the age of 70 years are useless and a burden to the family as well as to society. But, the truth is otherwise. In fact, the enthusiasm, encouragement and mental strength increase after a person crosses 70 years. It is only after 70 years that the mental faculties and atmic strength express themselves in full measure. Prior to that, they also behave like other human beings. They will not specially strive to set an example to others. The mental faculties, divine force and the will power in a person will manifest fully after 70 years and prompt him to set a new goal in life. As a result, such elderly persons will be contemplating upon and exploring the secrets of life. The divine force latent in these elderly persons is beyond the reach of the youth. It manifests in ever-so-many ways in their actions.

Today, we find several youngsters talking ill of their parents and making fun of them. This is a grave mistake. Instead, if one can analyse carefully their actions, every action of theirs will prove to be purposeful and divine in nature. If the youth of today wish to receive proper training to face the challenges in life, they must live with their parents and constantly observe the noble qualities that manifest in their actions. In fact, no one can match their systematic life and strict discipline. The blossoming of their intellect and the divine qualities in them will herald a new and meaningful life for humanity. You just observe their life closely and you will be thrilled at the changes it can bring about in your own life.

Embodiments of Love!

These days, we are ignoring these elders, considering them to be not useful to society. This is not correct. In fact, the strength and energy latent in these elders are not to be found in the youth. When you wish to undertake any new activity, it will become fruitful only when you take the guidance of the elders and walk in their footsteps.

Nowadays, a human being is unable to recognise the qualities of a fellow human being. The term manava

(human being) means a person who can make the quality of humanness blossom. People generally tend to describe the physical strength of body, whenever a mention is made of Bhima, the younger brother of Dharmaraja, the Pandava King. But that is not the real strength.

18

19

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume -38

The real strength of elders lies in their wisdom and noble thoughts. The ideals set by these elders for the younger generation are most valuable. Unable to understand their value, people ignore them as useless folk. Today, a lot of value is attached to the retired scientists. None can match their intelligence and passion for new inventions.

But, their services are not made use of properly for the benefit of society and they are being wasted. The world can benefit a lot from these elderly people. There is immense power in these elders that can be harnessed for the good of society. Today, we are making effort to reveal the strength and great spiritual power that were latent in the ancient rishis. These elderly people reflect those great ideals. Hence, we should not neglect them. Every thought that emanates from these elders is noble and most valuable. The youth cannot have even a minute fraction of thoughts and ideas in comparison. Hence, we must nourish and nurture these valuable assets and take good care of them.

Unfortunately, nowadays the younger generation grudges even to provide one square meal a day to their elders. They think it is an avoidable expenditure. Do not by any means let this happen. Even if you put them on a sustenance diet, they will maintain the dignity and reputation of your family as if they are well fed. The concern and enthusiasm displayed by these elders in bringing up the children in a proper way is not found in others. In the ancient times, kings and nobles made use of the great wisdom of the rishis by seeking their advice regularly. Even to this day, the great treatises on spiritual and temporal matters compiled by the great rishis of yore are an authority to the younger generation. Unfortunately, they are not able to understand the great truths expounded in those treatises. It is Swami's advice that from now on we must popularise this great ancient tradition of Bhima Ratha Santhi. It has great significance and value for the coming generations. The ritual of Bhima Ratha Santhi signifies nourishing and nurturing the quality of humanness by undertaking spiritually powerful and noble activities.

A Unique Example Of Forbearance

During the Mahabharata war, after the gruesome massacre of the young Pandava children, Arjuna tracked down Aswatthama, the perpetrator of the atrocity and dragged him before Droupadi. Instead of cursing the evil doer and pronouncing the punishment for him, she fell at the feet of Aswatthama, the son of her husband's most revered Guru and said:

It is at the feet of your father Dronacharya that my husband has learnt all that they know. Being the son of Dronacharya, was it proper on your part to kill my children? How could you have the heart to kill them, who were unarmed, young, quietly asleep, were not having any grudge against you and were not contemplating any harm to you?

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume -38

(Telugu poem)

When Droupadi was praying like this, Bhima could not bear to see this. Exploding in anger, he roared:

This Droupadi is a stupid woman, for she pleads for this wretch's freedom. She feels no anger against this murderer of her sons.

(Telugu poem)

Meanwhile, Arjuna was seething with anger and was about to kill Aswatthama. Droupadi fell at his feet and reasoned with him thus:

Arjuna! Will my sons be revived by killing Aswatthama?

His mother too would experience the same kind of sorrow that I am undergoing now at the loss of my sons. Having studied the Vedas and Sastras, how is it that you are not able to maintain your tranquility?

(Telugu poem)

Droupadi further pleaded with Arjuna to forgive Aswatthama for his heinous act. Arjuna replied, You are preventing me from keeping up my vow. To this, Droupadi said, Tonsuring his head and removing the crown jewel from his head is equivalent to killing him. As per Droupadi's advice and as a token of punishment, Arjuna took the crown jewel from the head of Aswatthama and shaved off the hair with his sword.

In ancient times, the rishis were not shaving off their hair since the hair was considered very sacred and powerful, spiritually. This body (pointing to Himself) is nearly 80 years old. Still, the hair on My head remains very strong and powerful to this day. I will tell you more about the power of the hair on My head, later. Once, Droupadi was alone as her husbands had gone out. She took out one strand of hair from her head and dropped it in the water, chanting some mantras. That single hair with the potency of the mantras could bind all the hills around. Later on, a number of yogis assembled together and enquired as to how a single hair could bind all the hills around. They concluded that it was the strength of the hair of Droupadi, and her will power that could perform this stupendous task. It is difficult to comprehend such latent divine phenomenon. Unfortunately, today man is unable to realise his innate divinity. Man, who is heir to the humanness is forgetting the very quality of his humanness. He is cultivating demonic qualities.

Develop Humanness And Rise To Divinity

Dear students!

You have to avoid acquiring such demonic nature and allow your natural humanness to blossom. Develop humanness and from there rise to the level of divinity. Always remember three things unity, purity and divinity.

Unity implies the oneness of human race. When there is such unity in humanity, divinity manifests.

Once, I went on a countrywide tour. During that tour I went to the river Sindhu along with a saintly person. Linguists know that some people pronounce Sindhu as Hindu. I stayed in Goa in the Raj Bhavan when Nakul Sen was the Lt. Governor of that State. His wife's name was Indu. I slept in the front hall of the Raj Bhavan. Nakul Sen and his wife slept in their bedroom. There was a window in their bedroom from where they could see what was happening in the front hall. After I slept, Nakul Sen's wife saw through the window a brilliant light emerging from My body. Unable to bear the effulgence of that brilliant light, she tried to wake up her husband. Nakul Sen would not like to be disturbed at that hour. He admonished her not to disturb him and to sleep peacefully.

But, she insisted that her husband should wake up and witness that brilliant light emanating from Swami. At last, Nakul Sen woke up and had the divine darshan of that effulgence.

In the early years of the advent of this Avatar, a great devotee by name Karanam Subbamma used to serve Swami. Her devotion to Swami was unparalleled. In those days, caste differences were widely prevalent and observed strictly in Puttaparthi. Especially, the Brahmins used to keep distance from the Harijans. Since, Subbamma was an orthodox Brahmin, she used to meticulously observe these practices. One day, I informed Subbamma that I would be visiting the Harijanwada. Subbamma felt very unhappy and tried to dissuade Me from going to that place saying, Oh! Swami! Why should You visit that place? I asked her, Why should I not go? Why should I not eat the food offered by the Harijans? I will certainly go there. So saying, I started for the Harijanwada.

However, as she was a great devotee of Swami and was very much attached to Him, she followed. The people living in the Harijanwada were very poor. They had no chairs or mattresses to make Me seated comfortably.

They spread an old dhoti on the floor and requested Me to sit on that. In the meantime, I felt drowsy and fell asleep. Thereafter, a big sound emanated from My navel, as though the roof over the building was being blown off. The people in the house trembled in fear, on hearing that big sound. All of them ran helter-skelter. Thus, the Divine power manifests from the bodies of the avatars, saints and yogis in many different ways.

Long ago, when I went to some African countries on tour, the devotees there presented Me with a comb made of iron. However, I had no necessity for it. I do not use a comb. If ever I put the brush on My hair, it will get stuck. My hair is so thick and strong. Even if one wants to pull out one hair, it is not possible. This is the nature of the hair of divine personalities. Not only Myself, every individual has certain divine powers which he should try to nurture. Today, the youth are not making any effort to protect the God-given power. They are frittering away the divine power in ever so many ways. They waste a lot of power daily with the result they lose their energy and become prematurely old. Especially, the head is the seat of all power. Hence, one has to carefully protect the head.

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume -38

Embodiments of Divine Atma!

You are all men and women of noble qualities and strong in body and mind. But, unfortunately, you are frittering away your energies in vain pursuits. You become weak by wasting your energy. When I clench My fist not even ten persons can prise it open. Even at the physical level the divine power is immeasurable and beyond description. All of you should try to realise this innate divinity in you, not for the sake of the physical strength, but to enjoy the divine bliss.

Embodiments of Love!

The divine power latent in a human being has no limits. Whether it is fine arts like music or any other human endeavour, when it is suffused with divine power, it reaches great heights. Hence, sanctify that divine power by dedicating all your efforts to God.

Experience The All-Pervading

Divine Consciousness

The Lord of Kailasa has manifested his Divine form with the crescent moon adorning his head, the cool water of the Ganga flowing between the matted locks, with his radiant eye in the middle of the forehead and the purple neck gleaming like the sheen of a blackberry. He wears serpent bracelets and a snake belt, his entire body is smeared with Vibhuti, his forehead is adorned with a Kumkum dot, his ruddy lips glow with the juice of the betel, diamond-studded gold earrings dangle from his ears and his whole swarthy body glows with divine effulgence. (Telugu poem)

No one seems to have made an effort to recognise the meaning and significance of Sivaratri. In fact, the very word

Sivaratri reveals its meaning.

3

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume -38

Siva means auspicious and ratri means night. Thus, Sivaratri means auspicious night. Then the question arises, Who is Siva? The divine consciousness pervading all the living beings is none other than Siva. This Sivatwa (divine consciousness) permeates not only human beings, but the birds, beasts and animals as well. In fact, every moment in our life can be taken to be Sivaratri.

We need not wait for Sivaratri on a particular day in a year.

Siva Consciousness Is Transcendental

Embodiments of Love!

The Siva-consciousness is all-pervading. How can we limit it to a particular time and place? Sarvatah panipadam tat sarvathokshi siromukham, sarvatah sruthimalloke sarvamavruthya tishthati (with hands, feet, eyes, head, mouth and ears pervading everything, He permeates the entire universe).

If we carefully analyse this aspect once, it will be obvious that all that we witness around is Siva consciousness;

nothing else. Siva does not mean a particular form with matted hair and tiger skin. Wherever we look and whichever form we come across whether a child or an elderly person, whether a woman or a man, in every form the Siva consciousness is resplendent. How can you describe that all-pervading Siva-consciousness or limit it to a particular time and place? People display a particular dance form to portray the Siva Tandava (the Cosmic dance of Lord Siva and Parvati). But, this is only symbolic and does not portray the real Siva Tandava. How can one describe the transcendental Siva consciousness which words cannot describe or the mind cannot comprehend?

Lord Siva is described by some as Mukkanti (the Lord with three eyes). All of us have only two eyes. But, the Lord has a third eye as well. We are aware of only the past and the present. We cannot visualise the future. Only God can. Lord Siva, who can visualise the future with His third eye, i.e., Jnana Netra, is therefore referred to as Mukkanti. God is described by different people in several ways. He is described to be donning several forms. Nevertheless, all those descriptions fail to describe Him in full. Each one describes God and ascribes

Him a particular name and form, depending on his imagination. The nameless, formless God is omnipresent and all-pervading. He is avanmanasagochara (neither words can describe nor the mind can comprehend Him) and aprameya (immeasurable). Who can describe such divinity? There is only one sign for divinity, that is, consciousness.

In whichever form this divine consciousness permeates, it will assume that form it may be the form of a dog, a crow, a crane or a human being. Easwarattwa, therefore, can be described as Divine Consciousness. This divine consciousness is permeating all the human beings, nay, even the insects, birds and beasts and animals.

One of the names given to this divine consciousness is Sivatwa (Siva Consciousness). It is not therefore correct to describe Sivatwa by such appellations like

Experience The All-Pervading Divine Consciousness

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume -38

Mukkanti, Trinetra, etc. Sivatwa means the all-pervading divine consciousness. In fact, all the devotees sitting in this hall are embodiments of Lord Siva. Sarvam Sivamayam

(all that you witness in this objective world is a manifestation of Siva). It is pervading all the three worlds, the earth, the space and the netherworld. It exists in all the three periods of time, the past, present and future.

It is indescribable. Any length of time is insufficient to describe the Sivatwa. Several people are worshipping such an omnipresent and all-pervading divine names and consciousness by describing it through different names and forms. Just as the all-embracing divine love does not make a distinction between living beings, so also the divine consciousness does not differentiate. It is only we who make distinction between people as my father, my mother, my brother, my sister, etc., based on our earthly relationships with them. In fact, every living being is an embodiment of Divinity. God assumes all names and forms. You are God. Once Parvati, the consort of Lord Siva enquired of Him, How can people recognise the divine consciousness which is said to be all-pervasive? Easwara replied that the same consciousness that is immanent in Him is permeating all the living beings. He also explained that it was permeating every cell even of her body. One cannot explain; one has only to experience it. Once Parvati could not find her own son Vinayaka though he was very much near Lord Easwara. She was searching for Vinayaka everywhere, except in the divine proximity of Lord Easwara. How strange! Similarly, man today is searching for God everywhere, not knowing that he himself is an embodiment of divine atma.

God Is Attributeless, Realise His Oneness

to different people. Who can describe the colour and effulgence of Lord Siva's body? Once, there arose a controversy between Lakshmi and Parvati about the physical appearance of Lord Easwara and Lord Vishnu. Lakshmi, in the course of arguments enquired, Parvati! How did you court this strange person who does not keep His body neat and who smears the ash from the cremation ground all over his body? Parvati was offended. She retorted, Amma! Your husband Vishnu reclines on the serpent, Sesha. He is blue in colour. Why don't you mend His ways and try to change the colour of His body? When they were arguing thus, Saraswati entered the scene. She tried to counsel them saying, There may be some differences in their physical appearance. So far as I am concerned, I do not find any difference between them. The same divine consciousness permeates both these forms. I am able to realise it. Since you are not able to realise it, you are entering into argumentation. Hence, forget all the outward differences.

This type of transcendental nature is immanent only in Saraswati. All such differences in physical appearance are only in the minds of human beings, but God is attributeless. It is the devotees who ascribe different names and forms and attributes to God. Based on their imagination, they picturise God in different forms like the great artist Ravi Varma. As you think, so shall be the form of God. People describe the form of God as Rudra and Santhiswarupa. But, God is always Santhiswarupa (embodiment of peace) only. He is always pleasant and smiling. To imagine such an embodiment of peace in a different form is only the making of the devotee. If at all there are any such illusions, one has to get rid of them. One has to realise divinity by cultivating love for God. It is only love that can bind God. Through such divine love, the oneness of God has to be realised. If the attributeless God has to be described, the description would be Ekam, Nityam, Vimalam, Achalam, Sarvadhee Sakshibhutam Bhavateetam Trigunarahitam (One without a second, eternal, pure, unchanging, witness to all functions of the intellect, beyond one's imagination, beyond the three gunas (satwa, rajas and tamas). We are attributing differences to such an attributeless God and feel very happy. This is not correct. The oneness of God has to be realised. There shall be no confusion in this regard, though poets and artists like Ravi Varma portrayed God in different forms, giving expression to their imaginative skills. Whatever be the different forms of portrayal by poets and artists, God is only one. For example, Lord Vinayaka appears as only one, wherever you see. He has no attributes, whatsoever. One who has no gunas (attributes) is Ganapati. He has no leader above Him. That is why He is called Vinayaka. If you thus analyse, each name ascribed to God would reveal one meaning. Since He has no leader above Him, even Brahma, Vishnu and Maheswara worship Him.

Experience The All-Pervading Divine Consciousness

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume -38

Embodiments of Love!

People today are promoting differences among human beings by attributing different names and forms to the nameless, formless and attributeless God. This is a serious mistake. Divinity is being divided by devotees. The oneness of God is not realised, with the result, futile arguments and counter arguments ensue. Whether it is Rama, Krishna, Easwara or Vishnu, all these are only different names ascribed by devotees to God. But, God is only one. These names are ascribed to God only for our own satisfaction. Divinity, however, has no difference at all! The best sadhana would be to realise unity in divinity and worship God as such. You may, however, worship God in the form you like. There can be no objection to it. But, the underlying unity between the different names and forms should never be forgotten. It is a misconception to think that Lord Rama may be angry if you worship Lord Krishna and vice versa. Such differences may be felt by the devotees, but they are not in Lord Rama and Lord Krishna.

God does not entertain such negative feelings. It is only the human beings who have differences and negative feelings. In fact, there is no possibility at all for negative feelings to enter divinity. He is all positive

only.

Dear Students!

Do not ascribe any difference or negative feelings to God. You may worship God with whatever name and form you like. If by any chance you find any difference in divinity, it is the mistake of your negative feelings, not that of God. Hence, worship God with single-minded devotion.

You Are All Amrutaputras

Sons Of Immortality

In this supremely holy land of Bharat

Tolerance is the towering quality of our character;

Of all the religious vows, the foremost is Adherence to Truth, which is difficult to practise;

The sweetest and most respectable feeling in this land of Bharat is the feeling towards mother;

Consigning to flames the moral fabric of our country, which ordains self-respect as greater than one's own life,

The dagger of unrestrained freedom has been given to people imitating the Western way of life; Alas! What can I say about the rulers of this land of Bharat?

Just as an elephant cannot realise its own strength

So ar

called Bharatiyas in the real sense. Losing sight of even one of these values will not entitle us to the great name of Bharatiyas. The real tyaga (sacrifice) is leading a life of constant practice of these human values in our day-to-day lives. Our life must be a continuous journey from Sathya (Truth) to Prema (Love) in the order of Sathya, Dharma, Santhi and Prema. These values must enter the core of our heart and flow in every cell of our body.

The whole creation is from Truth,

In Truth all creation merges.

Is there a place in this universe where the grandeur of Truth is not felt?

The entire universe is a manifestation of Pure consciousness; know this reality.

(Telugu poem)

From the time a human being is born from his mother's womb, it is Truth and Righteousness that are sustaining and fostering him. The women of Bharat have undergone many ordeals in sustaining these great values amidst their household duties and domestic chores. Yet, they have continuously taught these values to their children. Swami knows too well how much suffering the parents of these children undergo in bringing them up. What the students of the present times are expected to acquire is not education and high degrees, but the essence of Truth and Righteousness. One has to understand the real meaning of Sathya and Dharma. The word Sathya

Embodiments of Love!

No one has been able to realise uniqueness, greatness and sanctity of this holy land of Bharat so far. The culture of Bharat is nobler and holier than all other cultures in the world. This unique culture is pervading from the microcosm to the macrocosm equally. Unfortunately, nowadays, the Bharatiyas have forgotten this great culture and are practising the alien culture. The great human values of Sathya (Truth) and Dharma (Righteousness) have declined in this holy land of Bharat. However, fortunately, none has been able to root out these great human values so far. There is nothing more sacred than Truth and Righteousness. They are like the two eyes to a human being. Unfortunately, today, people are losing the vision in these two eyes and thereby becoming blind.

Foster The Human Values At All Cost

Though the students of the present times are pursuing higher education and acquiring degrees, they are losing sight of these great human values. Instead of fostering such a sacred and noble culture and leading their lives in accordance with the principles laid down in this great culture, people are wasting their time in vain pursuits. It is only the practice of these great human values of Sathya (Truth), Dharma (Righteousness), Santhi (Peace) and Prema (Love) that had made the country of Bharat the great spiritual leader of the entire world. It is only when we foster these great human values, we are entitled to be

37

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume -38

consists of three letters Sa, Tha and Ya. The letter

Sa signifies the satwic quality, Tha, the quality of tyaga (sacrifice) and Ya the qualities of yama and niyama (inner and outer sense control). Hence, the word Sathya means fostering the satwic quality with a spirit of sacrifice and by observing sense control. Unfortunately, today, we are losing sight of such great human values which formed the core of Bharatiya culture. Man today does not know what Sathya and Dharma are. Dharma is taken to be duty. This interpretation is not correct. This is only an English translation, rather inadequately expressed!

The real interpretation of Dharma is Dharayati iti Dharma (that which sustains is Dharma). It sustains the human life. Sathya (Truth) emerges from the hridaya nabhi (heart region) of a human being. Thus, when a man leads a life of Sathya and Dharma, he becomes sacred. The Pandavas and Droupadi led such a noble life by following Sathya and Dharma. All your present difficulties and humiliations are due to non adherence to Dharma.

One Can Achieve Anything With God's Grace

One should obey the divine command with total faith and without any disputation for or against. Markandeya was born out of a boon granted by Easwara to his parents. Easwara asked his parents whether they wanted a virtuous son with a short life-span or a son not so virtuous but who would live long. The parents opted for a virtuous son. Accordingly, Markandeya was born. He was one of good thought, good behaviour and good conduct. Easwara informed his parents that he would live only for sixteen years. Nevertheless, the parents were joyous as they had been blessed with a virtuous son. Years rolled by and Markandeya entered his sixteenth year. Remembering the words of Easwara, his parents became grief-stricken. His mother would often shed tears thinking of the impending death of her son. Markandeya could not understand the cause of her grief and wondered why she was shedding tears. One day, he found his parents steeped in sorrow. On enquiry, they revealed that his death was very near as willed by the divine and that was the cause of their sorrow. Markandeya felt sorry that Easwara's will was not revealed to him till then because of which he had wasted the precious time allotted to him. He did not want to waste any more time. He had an early bath, went to the temple of Easwara and started chanting the sacred Siva Panchakshari mantra, Namah Sivaya, with all sincerity and devotion. He lost himself in the contemplation of Easwara. He did not expect any reward for his prayers. He considered it as his primary duty to contemplate on God. The following day was supposed to be the last day of his earthly sojourn.

Hence he remained in the temple. As he had not returned home, his parents went to the temple and sat at the entrance. They were shedding tears thinking of the impending end of Markandeya's life. As ordained by the Lord, Markandeya left his mortal coil the moment he completed his sixteenth year. His parents were in

You Are All Amrutaputras Sons Of Immortality

deep sorrow. As Markandeya left his mortal body in the external world, his jiva (soul) reached Lord Siva in the divine world. The Lord was immensely pleased with the sincere devotion of Markandeya. He said, Markandeya! Today marks the completion of your sixteenth year. You have come to Me in a happy frame of mind. You have bowed down to My Will with implicit faith and obedience.

I am pleased with your devotion. As Easwara was speaking to Markandeya in this manner, Mother Parvati intervened and said, Oh Lord! Why don't You send him back to his parents as he has obeyed Your command implicitly. Easwara wanted Parvati also to accompany Him. Together they restored life into the body of Markandeya.

The parents joy knew no bounds when they noticed some movement in Markandeya's body. He got up and said, My dear mother and father, Lord Easwara and Mother Parvati have brought me back to life.

It is only God, who can save the life of a human being. Some doctors claim that they can give good medicines or perform surgery to save the life of a person. They make several such promises, but they fail. Except God, none else can save or prolong the life of a person. He only can interfere in the law of Karma. With God's grace, one can achieve anything in this world. Dear students! You must strive to earn the grace of God right from your childhood. When you pray for His grace and strive for the same, you will be protected by God.

Embodiments of Love!

Today is the holy day of Sivaratri. Siva means auspiciousness. Where there is Siva (auspiciousness) there cannot be sava (inauspiciousness). This holy day of Sivaratri must be spent in the constant contemplation of God chanting the holy name of Siva right from early in the morning till you go to bed. The Lord's name must dance on your tongue. Divinity is eternal. It cannot be achieved so easily. Nobody has been able to explain Divinity so far, though some vague definitions like eternal, changeless, etc., have been given. The proper definition of Divinity would be Ekam, Nityam, Vimalam, Achalam, Sarvadhee Sakshibhutam Bhavateetam Trigunarahitam (One without a second, eternal, pure, unchanging, witness to all functions of the intellect, beyond one's imagination, beyond the three gunas (satwa, rajas and thamas).

You Are Children Of Immortality

One of the names attributed to Lord Siva is Mrityunjaya, which means one who has transcended death. This is from the worldly point of view. But if one wants to understand the true and eternal nature of Divinity, one has to understand the relationship between Lord Siva and Mother Parvati. Once there was a slight difference of opinion between them about giving an appropriate name to their child. Parvati wanted to name the child by a particular name from among the several names Lord Siva had. Lord Siva, however, chose to name the child as Amrutaputra (son of immortality). In fact, every human being is an amrutaputra. Even the Upanishads

40

You Are All Amrutaputras Sons Of Immortality

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume -38

declare him so. The Upanishads reveal the true identity of a human being by addressing as Srunvantu visve amrutasya putrah (Oh the children of immortality! Listen).

Dear Devotees and Students!

You are also amrutaputras, not anrutaputras (sons of immortality, not falsehood). One who is an amrutaputra is not affected by change and death. You verily are the embodiments of the changeless, eternal principle. Once Mother Parvati was putting child Ganapati to sleep by rocking the cradle and singing a lullaby, Oh Amrutaputra!

Sleep my dear! Sleep. If you are awake, the whole world will be awake. Lakshmidevi, the consort of Lord Vishnu came there and witnessed the scene. She felt that it was rather a strange lullaby. She enquired about the name of the child and Parvati told her that His name was Amrutaputra. Lakshmidevi further enquired from where did she get that name. Parvati replied that it was Lord Siva who gave that name to the child. One who had descended from Easwaratwa was Easwara Himself.

Embodiments of Love!

You are not reading the sacred texts of yore. Unless you read those texts also, you will not be able to understand what is being related to you. Dear Students! You are all amrutaputras. People would naturally expect that you should live up to that great appellation. In fact, the names given to children by elders in our country have a lot of significance and meaning. They are not given just casually or for fun. In order to understand the underlying meaning and sanctity of these names, we must read the sacred texts like Puranas. Unable to realise the eternal reality of the values of Sathya and Dharma, we are taking to wrong ways. We are simply repeating the words Sathya, Dharma, Santhi and Prema like a parrot.

But, we are not making any effort to understand the true import and significance of these great human values. All of you are amrutaputras, not anrutaputras.

Dear students!

Try to understand the true nature and significance of the names. It is a fact that nobody has ever seen Lord Easwara in person. People call Him Kailasavasi (the Lord who resides in Kailasa). Where is Kailasa? It is only when you contemplate on Him in the depth of silence that you can visualise Lord Easwara in Kailasa. Therefore, one has to practise mouna (silence). And that silence implies total stillness of thought and word.

Embodiments of Love!

You are all amrutaputras. Hence, constantly remain under that awareness. Proclaim yourself to be amrutaputras. Whatever name has been already given to you, prefix that name with amrutaputra. If you consider yourself as anrutaputra, it is a great mistake and a misnomer. Hence, realise your true nature and call yourself amrutaputra.

All Are Bound By The Law Of Karma

Everyone has to face the consequences of one's own karma. Who has made the bats to hang from the branches of a tree with their heads downwards? It is their fate. Likewise, nobody can escape from the consequences of karma.

(Telugu poem)

Every human being, insect, bird, beast or animal, nay, every living being in this world is bound by destiny. None can escape from the consequences of karmas, good or bad. It is natural for every living being to obey the laws of Nature and the law of karma. For example, the bats hang from the branch of a tree head downwards. That is their nature. That is how they are born to live. Every human being in this world thinks that he is undergoing suffering, even though he had not done anything bad. He feels, I have not done anything wrong! Why then am I undergoing this suffering? But, the fact is

You should come with empty hands, without even the traditional offerings of pathram, pushpam, phalam and thoyam (leaf, flower, fruit and water). Come with clean hands that proclaim that they have renounced attachment to riches, then, I fill them with grace. I must say that I accept certain things, before giving you that grace; I demand and take sathya, dharma, santhi and prema. I seek the gifts of truth, virtue, peace and love. I draw you to me and then reform and reshape you. I am a kind of smith who repairs broken, leaky, damaged hardware. I repair broken hearts and fragile minds, warped intellects, feeble resolutions and fading faith.

otherwise. Whatever pleasure or pain undergone by a living being is certainly the outcome of the karma (action) performed by it. Every human being performs karma and enjoys its fruit as a consequence. Nevertheless, it is not clear to him till today whether it is a natural consequence of his actions or by any unknown reason. Not only the human being, even bacteria, birds, insects, beasts and animals are experiencing the consequences of their karma.

I Always Keep My Promise

In support of this inevitable law of karma, I would like to narrate certain incidents that happened long ago. These incidents explain how certain births took place, just to demonstrate this truth. There used to be a great devotee by name Subbamma in Puttaparthi. She was very rich. She had no children. Whatever she had, she used to give in charity to one and all with a feeling, I am only sharing my God-given wealth with my fellow human beings.

She was leading a pious and noble life with a sense of equanimity. She had, however, one desire. She used to pray, Swami! At the time of my departure from this earthly sojourn, You should quench my thirst by pouring a few drops of water into my mouth with Your Divine hands. I promised her that I would do so. Six years after I gave that promise to her, I had to go to Chennai once to fulfil an engagement in a devotee's house. That was the time of Second World War. Once in every hour, there used to be an air raid precaution siren and the streets would become empty in no time. I stayed there for three days and started My return journey straight to Bukkapatnam from Chennai in a car. Meanwhile, Subbamma fell seriously ill and was taken to Bukkapatnam from Puttaparthi. That was her parental home. There she died. Her relatives started making certain sarcastic remarks, Sai Baba gave word to her that He would pour water into her mouth at the time of her last moments. Did He come? Where has He gone? Subbamma's brothers and relatives made all arrangements for taking her body for cremation. In those days, it was not easy to procure firewood to cremate a dead body, especially in the villages. However, they procured some firewood and kept everything ready. While passing by the house of Subbamma, I noticed several people gathered there. I enquired, Who is going to be cremated? Washerman Subbanna was there. He replied, Swami! Subbamma is dead. I enquired again, Is it? When did she die? Three days ago, Swami, he replied. I went into her house where her body was kept. Her relatives were about to take her body out for cremation. Her sister saw Me and started wailing. She told Me, Baba! She longed for Your arrival. She yearned that You should pour water into her mouth before she breathed her last. At last, she died without her wish fulfilled. I told her that there was no possibility of such an eventuality and asked her to fetch some water in a tumbler. I put a basil leaf in the water. I removed the cloth that covered her face. Ants were crawling all over her body. I gently called her name, Subbamma! She opened her eyes and saw Me. She held My hands and wept. She enquired, When

47

All Are Bound By The Law Of Karma

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume -38

I am not a person who goes back on his word. I gave a word to Subbamma that I would be present by her side during her last moments and pour water into her mouth. That I fulfilled. I advised her to depart from this world peacefully. I kept My promise and I am now returning to My abode.

A Very Dedicated Devotee

Chandramouli felt very happy. In fact, Subbamma was held in high esteem by the entire village. She was the head of the village, being the wife of the Karanam. The entire property of the village was in her name. However, since she came into the fold of Swami, she had no other interest in life, except Swami. Right from early morning till she went to bed, she was constantly engaged in Swami's work only. On certain occasions I used to retire into the caves of the nearby hills without informing her. Poor lady! she used to go round the hills in search of Me. She used to pack upma, dosa, vada, idli, etc., in a tiffin carrier and come in search of Me. At last, when she could find Me, I used to enquire teasingly, Subbamma! What did you bring for Me? She used to reply, Swami! I brought the items of Your taste. Then I used to tell her, Give Me dosa. She then served dosa in a plate and handed it over to Me. I used to tease her further saying, Subbamma! I don't like this dosa. Give Me idli, upma, vada, etc.

Poor lady! She used to serve Me all those items.

did You come Swami? I replied, I came just now. I wiped her tears gently with a towel. I told her, Subbamma!

Look here. I then poured a few drops of the sacred water into her mouth and said, Now, close your eyes peacefully. Subbamma drank that water from My hands and breathed her last. Thus, I kept My promise to Subbamma. While this strange phenomenon was going on, all her relatives and the doctors who attended on her were watching the happenings with awe. They could not believe their eyes. They were wondering, How come! Subbamma died three days ago. There was no breath in her body. How is it that she opened her eyes now and spoke to Swami? Perhaps it is a divine miracle of Sai Baba. Subbamma was constantly worried during her lifetime that Swami was always on the move visiting several places and perhaps her last wish might not be fulfilled. But, I kept My promise made to her long ago. At last, the dead body of Subbamma was cremated by her relatives as per their family custom. She was a Brahmin lady. I started returning to Puttaparthi. A bullock cart was kept ready for My return. Myself and the brother of Griham Ammayi (Easwaramma) sat in the bullock cart and were returning to Puttaparthi. His name was Chandramouli (Swami's physical body's maternal uncle). We saw smoke emanating from the cremation ground where Subbamma's mortal remains were being consigned to flames. Chandramouli enquired, Swami! You were with Subbamma's dead body till now. Why did You not wait till the cremation was over? I told him, Chandramouli!

the request, Swami! Please give a word that You will pour sanctified water into my mouth with Your Divine hands at the time of my departure from this world. I used to tell them, My dear ones! All people cannot get this great boon. If you are destined to get it, you will certainly get it. I will come at the appropriate time and pour sanctified water into your mouth. Kondama Raju used to observe these people coming to Swami with such requests. He also developed a yearning for this prapti (deservedness). One day, he approached Me and requested Me, Swami! You are born in our family, in our lineage. You have upheld the honour and glory of our lineage. But, I also have a request to make to you. I wish and pray that my birth in our family should be sanctified. I therefore request you to please pour some holy water into my mouth with Your Divine hands during my last moments of life. I assured him that I would certainly fulfil his request. He felt very happy, for, he knew that once Swami had given His word, He would certainly stick to it. He lived for 112 years. Every morning, he would walk from the village to the New Mandir to have My darshan.

One day I asked him, Why do you walk all the way from the village to the Mandir and back. There may be cattle on the way and if they attack you, you will fall down and get injured. Won't you? He used to tell Me very boldly, Swami! When You are protecting me and constantly standing by my side, which animal

From morning till evening, she used to prepare a number of items and wait for Me. Yet, she was anxious to know what more did I need. Once I told her Subbamma! You need not fear. I don't need anything. I have put so many questions to you asking for this and that to make your devotion and surrender known to the world. Subbamma then requested Me, Swami! I am happy that I have been able to serve You food. I am also happy that You ate these items with love and affection towards me. I will be happy if You can kindly put a small quantity of this stuff in my mouth with Your Divine hands. Then, I took a small piece of idli from the plate and put it in her mouth with a little chutney. She felt extremely happy. Thus, Subbamma experienced great bliss in the divine proximity of Swami till her last breath. Chandramouli, who was a witness to My showering love and grace on Subbamma on a number of occasions, observed, Swami! How compassionate You are towards the devotees! We don't have words to express Your love and compassion towards devotees, especially Subbamma. True! Words fail to describe Swami's love and compassion towards Subbamma. The devotion of Subbamma toward Swami surpassed even that of Prahlada.

The Devoted And Deserving Grandsire

People had by now realised that Swami had fulfilled the promise given by Him to Subbamma. They felt that Subbamma's life was sanctified. Taking cue from her example, several elderly people used to visit Me with could attack me? One day, early in the morning he came to the Mandir and had My darshan. He returned home and lay down. After a while, he told Easwaramma to go near Sathyabhama Temple and see whether Swami was coming that side. She went there, returned and told him, Yes, Swami is coming in His car. Swami had a small car then. Kondama Raju said, Easwaramma! Get a tumbler of water and put a tulasi leaf in it. She did accordingly. He held the tumbler in his hand and was waiting for Me. He knew that his end was near and that I had come there to keep My promise. None else knew this. Holding the tumbler, he said, Swami! I am ready. I replied, I am also ready. As I poured the water into his mouth, he passed away peacefully. Before passing away, he said, What a great fortune it is to drink water from Your Divine hands before departing from this world! Even King Dasaratha who performed great penance and sacrifice, did not have such a fortune. My life is redeemed. Saying thus, he closed his eyes. With this incident of Kondama Raju, it was once again revealed to the whole world that Swami would certainly keep His word, come what may! The lives of Subbamama and Kondama Raju were thus redeemed. I manifest My Divine leelas in many ways to fulfil My word. I go to any extent to fulfil My promise. However, some devotees act contrary to their words.

The Hard Days Of Schooling

I was taken to Kamalapuram for higher education. The elder brother of this body, Seshama Raju was very intent on My pursuing higher education. Therefore, he took Me along with him to Kamalapuram and admitted Me in the school. In those days, I was struggling very much to prosecute my education due to paucity of funds. Often times I had to manage with empty pockets. Hence, I used to make use of My poetic skills to earn a few coins to meet My personal needs. In the same village, there used to be a businessman by name Kotte Subbanna. He used to run a provision shop in which some Ayurvedic medicines were also sold. Once a new Ayurvedic medicine by name Bala Bhaskara was introduced for sale in his shop. It was a new and very efficacious medicine.

It could fetch him a good profit if popularised. He therefore, requested Me to shoulder the responsibility of making propaganda for his new medicine. I agreed to his request, but asked for some more information about the medicine. Then, I composed a song about the efficacy of the medicine and gathered a few children of My age to go round the nearby villages with placards in their hands and sing the song composed by Me.

The song ran thus:

There it is! There it is! Oh, children! come, come!

There is the medicine Bala Bhaskara;

Be it an upset stomach or a swollen leg;

Be it a joint pain or flatulence;

Be it any ailment, known or unknown;

Take this Bala Bhaskara for an instant cure!

If you wish to know where it is available: There is the shop of Kotte Subbanna;

52

It is in that shop that you can pick it up.

Come here boys! come here!

It is an excellent tonic

Prepared by the famous physician Gopalacharya himself,

Come here boys! come here!

elugu song)

By the time we completed our propaganda tour of the nearby villages, all the stock of medicines in Subbanna's shop was sold out. He felt very happy. Then he called Me and offered a pair of knickers and a shirt stitched for Me. But, I flatly refused them saying, Subbanna! I did not compose that song for the sake of new clothes. I don't need them. I won't touch them. Please take them back. If you thus offer some money or articles in return for My services, I will not even step into your shop. He realised My sincerity and strong feelings. From then onwards, he used to say, Raju! I don't want anything in this world, except Your love.

Another incident had happened while I was studying in Kamalapuram. I attended a scout camp in a nearby village called Pushpagiri where a big fair was being held. I was away from the house for a few days and there was nobody to fetch water from a distant well for household purposes. Hence, the wife of Seshama Raju had to shoulder that responsibility. By the time I returned from the scout camp, Seshama Raju was angry that there was nobody in the house to help his wife. He was then drawing lines in a notebook with the help of a wooden ruler. As soon as he saw Me, he shouted at Me, Hey! Come here. There was no one in the house to fetch water for the last few days. Your sister-in-law had to attend to that job also, besides her normal domestic chores. So saying, he took the ruler and beat Me angrily. The ruler broke into three pieces. My hand was swollen and it was giving Me a lot of pain. I did not give a reply nor revealed the incident to anybody. I tied a bandage Myself to My hand with a wet cloth. The next day, Seshama Raju's son died. He gave a telegram to Pedda Venkama Raju (Swami's father). Venkama Raju immediately rushed to see Seshama Raju. He started from Puttaparthi and reached Bukkapatnam and from there to Kamalapuram. The Griham Abbayi (Swami's father) enquired from Me why I was having a bandage on My forearm. I tried to explain away very casually as if nothing had happened. I told him there was a slight pain due to a blister on the forearm and therefore I put a bandage on it. There was a lady belonging to the Vysya community in the neighbouring house, who used to make her living by preparing dosas and selling them. She tried to reason with Griham Abbayi saying, What! Venkama Raju! I know you are sufficiently well-off so as to get Raju educated at your place. Why should you put Him to so much trouble by keeping Him under the care of His elder brother at such a distant place? You do not know how much suffering the poor boy is undergoing here. He has to fetch drinking water from a distant place carrying two big pitchers with the help of a Kavadi on his young shoulders daily. Thus, she narrated several incidents where I had to undergo physical strain and suffering. Griham Abbayi was deeply moved on hearing My plight and immediately called Me and said, My dear son! You start immediately and come along with me. Let us go back to Puttaparthi. All the family members loved Me. He therefore lamented, I have come to know that the injury to your forearm was due to your elder brother's beating. I myself never beat You till date. You are undergoing so much suffering here. Come! Let us go back to Puttaparthi. At the time when this incident happened, Griham Abbayi made a comment which still rings in My ears even today: Sathyam! If one is alive, one can make a living even by selling salt. I can no longer put You to such an ordeal. Can I not provide for Your living even with my meagre income? So saying he shed tears. From then onwards, He did not send Me with anyone. My formal education stopped with the high school. I did not attend any college. Nevertheless, I have been continuing My Mission as a Sathya Bodhaka (Teacher of Truth), making Puttaparthi My headquarters.

I composed a beautiful poem depicting the glorious history of Puttaparthi, which reads as follows:

Encircling which town the sacred river

Chitravathi flows in all its pristine beauty;

Around which town there are beautiful Mango groves symbolising auspiciousness;

Standing guard on the four sides of which town are the deities of Parvati and Parameswara constantly protecting;

Firmly installed in the midst of which town is the effulgent Lord Vishnu in all His splendour;

That world famous town is Puttapuram or Puttaparthi

With its fresh water tank built by Chikkavadiyar

Standing as an everlasting monument to the glory of Bukkaraya.
(Telugu poem)

I built a residential colony in commemoration of the great love and devotion Subbamma had towards Me and named it as Karanam Subbamma Nagar, which is next to Gokulam. I also purchased some cows and engaged some people to look after them. Some of these people were accommodated in a few of those houses in Karanam Subbamma Nagar. Thus, I made efforts to see that the name of Subbamma is remembered for ever by devotees.

A few years ago, I started a project by name Deenajanoddharana Pathakam to adopt some orphans to provide food, clothing and education to them so that when they grow up they will be able to lead a life with honour and dignity. I am looking after these boys with all love and care. You must have seen these boys when they come for darshan every Thursday and Sunday. I also built living accommodation for these boys so that they may stay comfortably in those houses. Besides their normal education, they are now acquiring proficiency in extra-curricular activities also. Thus, there are so many service activities that I have undertaken right from My childhood. If they are all to be narrated now, it can go on for hours together.

Dear Students!

I have great love for you. I wish that all of you should come up well and earn a good name. I love such boys who earn good name. In fact, I give Myself to such boys. I will give you whatever you want.

Divine Discourse 9-3-2005, Prasanthi Nilayam

Man alone can rise through effort to higher stages of spiritual evolution. No other animal can do so. Animal trainers of the Circus can train a tiger to perform various tricks, but they cannot change its nature. They cannot make it live on grass and completely deprive it of meat. But man is different.

His nature can be changed by means of his own disciplined effort. He can control, by his will, the evil thoughts and ideas that arise in his mind. This is why birth as a human being is considered a rare gift.

Humility Is The Hallmark Of Education

Is there a place in the cosmos where truth is not?

(Telegu poem)

Embodiments of Love! Students!

You have joined this institution to pursue your education. First, make efforts to understand the true meaning of education. Humility and character are the mark of education. But today students do not develop humility. They are interested only in acquiring degrees. But our educational institution is an exception in this regard. Few students come here with the sole objective of acquiring degrees. Most of them come here with the single aim of pleasing Swami by striving to follow Swami's ideals and attain exalted position in life. They give happiness to their parents by their good conduct.

Understand The Meaning Of True Education

Students!

Education does not mean mere acquisition of degrees.

Oh man! Examine and enquire for yourself what great happiness you have achieved by spending all the time from dawn to dusk in acquiring knowledge and earning wealth unmindful of God.

(Telugu poem)

One may acquire a high academic qualification such as M.A. and B.A. and attain exalted position,

One may amass wealth, perform acts of charity and attain name and fame,

One may have physical strength and enjoy a long and healthy life,

One may be a great scholar studying and preaching the Vedas,

But none can equal a true devotee of the Lord.

Having entered the portals of this educational institution, you should try to understand the value and true meaning of education. Only when you understand these aspects, can you be called truly educated. There is a lot of knowledge in pustakas (books), but what is the use if the mastaka (head) is filled with mud? Once you fill your mastaka with knowledge, you need not refer to pustakas any more. Elders should evince interest in the education of their children. They should enquire as to what the children are learning in the educational institution and constantly monitor their progress. Modern students react to the queries of elders in a discourteous manner. They indulge in mere verbosity and confuse the elders.

Students should earn a good name in society and uphold the reputation and prestige of the institution in which they study. An educational institution is like a gigantic tree. Different subjects are like its branches and sub-branches. Virtues are like the fragrant flowers that you find on the tree. Faith is like the roots. When you water the roots of faith, you get the fruit of ananda.

At present, all educational institutions have begun to feel that character is very important for a student. The end of education is character. Character does not mean good conduct alone. One should consider the fellow human beings as one's own brothers and sisters. One should develop bhava shuddhi (purity in feelings), which will ultimately lead to jnana siddhi (attainment of wisdom).

Institutions Must Produce Virtuous Men And Women

Our students are highly virtuous. I repeatedly say that they are My property. When I have such a property with Me, why should I worry about anything? I asked the boys who appeared for the GATE (Graduate Apti60

Humility Is The Hallmark Of Education

tude Test For Engineering) examination, My dear ones! How did you write the exam? They said, Swami, with Your grace and blessings we have done well. You say that students are Your property. Having been blessed with the opportunity of being Your students, our only aim is to live up to Your ideals and bring a good name to the Institute. I was very pleased and deeply touched by their answer. It is heartening to note that there are such ideal students in our Institute. It is because of such noble students that the country has progressed and prospered. If there are no men and women of virtues, how can the world shine with all its brilliance?

Our students do not indulge in empty rhetoric; they are men of action. Their sincerity makes Me happy. I have come to impart such ideal education to the students and inculcate virtues in them.

In spite of his education and intelligence, a foolish man will not know his true Self and a mean-minded person will not give up his evil qualities.

(Telugu poem)

Modern education leads only to argumentation, not to total wisdom. What is the use of acquiring education which cannot lead you to immortality? Acquire the knowledge that will make you immortal.

(Telugu poem)

Once you acquire the knowledge of the Self, you would have acquired everything else. These words of wisdom are imprinted in the hearts of our students. Embodiments of Love! Students!

You have proved your worth among lakhs of students and secured high ranks in the GATE examination (loud applause). The examiners were highly impressed with the intelligence and behaviour of our students. They wanted to know whether our students came from East or West, North or South. Our students replied, Sir, we are neither from East nor from West, neither from South nor from North, we are the students of Sri Sathya Sai Institute of Higher Learning.

They are not satisfied with what they have achieved. They are striving hard to bring more and more laurels to our Institute. Wherever you go, you find our students leading exemplary lives propagating the ideals of our educational institutions.

Once someone asked our students what type of food they like to take, vegetarian or non-vegetarian. They replied in one voice, Non-vegetarian food gives rise to evil thoughts and feelings; hence we would never touch non-vegetarian food. They are 100% vegetarians.

Even the students who used to eat non-vegetarian food earlier became vegetarians once they joined our Institute. Once someone tried to persuade one of our students to take non-vegetarian food, saying it contained a lot of good nutrients. But, he did not budge from his

Humility Is The Hallmark Of Education

stand. He said, I don't want such vitamins and proteins.

Even vegetarian food has all the vitamins and proteins that I need. I want to tread the path of truth and non-vegetarian food is not at all conducive for spiritual progress. Along with secular education, I want to acquire spiritual education and propagate it to the world. There are many such students who are firm in their resolve to spread the Sai ideals. It is because of such noble students that our institution has attained worldwide fame.

Cultivate Healthy Habits Right From Childhood

Students should develop good habits right from their childhood to enjoy good health and happiness. In this context, there is a poem which reads as follows:

Get up early in the morning at the crowing of the cock,

Have a bath after your morning ablutions,

Wear a proper dress.

Eat properly and moderately.

Go to school and study diligently.

Earn a good name.

Don't move out when it is raining,

And never go near the murky pools.

Take part in games,

Run and play.

If you abide by all these rules,

You will have both health and wealth.

(Telugu poem)

Students should exercise restraint over their food habits. Even birds, beasts and animals observe certain regulations in this regard. Born as human beings and having acquired education, is it not expected of you to follow proper discipline with regard to food? Students who eat non-vegetarian food right from their childhood give up that habit when they join our institution. Even their parents are surprised at their transformation. When one of our students went home during vacation, his mother tried to serve him non-vegetarian food. He refused to touch it and requested his mother not to prepare non-vegetarian items in future. He explained to his parents the ill effects of consuming non-vegetarian food.

Non-vegetarian food causes several diseases, like cancer. You might have read in journals and newspapers that most of the people in Singapore eat fish. Consequently, they are infected by several harmful micro-organisms. Similar instances were reported from various parts of Bharat. It is because of unhealthy food that people suffer from diseases. Many are under the mistaken notion that non-vegetarian food gives them strength, but in reality it makes them weak. Once you spoil your health by partaking of non-vegetarian food, you will never be able to regain your health even if you spend the rest of your life in forests eating fruits and tubers.

These were the answers given by our students when they were asked questions about their food habits. The explanation given by our students made such an impact on the audience that many of them became total vegetarians.

As is the food so is the mind. As is the mind so is the

Humility Is The Hallmark Of Education

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume -38

man. Hence, one must necessarily partake of sacred and satwic food to lead a happy and healthy life. Of late, there is a growing awareness among the Bharatiyas about the influence of food on one's mind. Consequently, people are changing their food habits for the better. Our body is made up of flesh. Why should you feed it again with flesh? Such unsacred food gives rise to unsacred thoughts.

Students!

It is not enough if you observe regulations with regard to food alone; you should cultivate good habits also. You should participate in sports and games regularly. Take part in such games which will help in the blossoming of your physical and mental faculties. Healthy food and good habits will take you to exalted position in life.

Dear Bangaru Students!

Truly, you are like gold. It is not possible to describe your sacred feelings. You speak from the depths of your hearts. The language you speak is not ordinary. It is atma bhasha (language of the spirit). You are leading your lives with sacred feelings. However, keep away from bad company. It is said, Tell me your company, I shall tell you what you are.

As is your company, so you become. Hence, always keep good company. Be in the company of those who speak good words. Never utter harsh and unsacred words. If you use unkind words, people will treat you like an enemy. If you speak softly and sweetly, people would enjoy your company and talk to you for any length of time. When you are in the company of others, make sure that your body is clean and your mouth does not emit bad smell. You should take proper care of your health in every possible way. When your body is clean and healthy and when your thoughts, words and deeds are pure, you will be loved by one and all.

Wherever you may go, ensure that you are presentable and acceptable in every way. Only then will you earn the respect of others. Always keep your mouth clean. Bad breath leads to various diseases. Not merely that, it will cause inconvenience to others. If your mouth emits foul smell, people will try to avoid you. Hence, the moment you get up from bed in the morning, you should brush your teeth and clean your tongue thoroughly. When you keep your mouth fresh and clean, you will enjoy good health. Though I don't sleep in the night, I brush My teeth before going to bed. I brush My teeth at regular intervals so as to keep My mouth fresh and clean. That is why I don't have any health problem. I don't have any pain whatsoever.

You should take care that no food particle sticks between your teeth. Some people use a hard brush to clean their teeth. As a result, their gums start bleeding. But I use a very soft brush. Even now My teeth are so strong that I can crack a betel nut. My students are struck with awe and wonder when they witness My physical power.

Students!

It will be a matter of shame that you spoil your health and submit yourself to the hands of a doctor. Hence, each one has to take care of one's own health. One should never be dependent on others. This is what I teach to My students quite often. Get up early in the morning, do some jogging and exercise so as to keep your body fit. During examination time, students try to keep themselves awake in the night even during late hours to study. They keep dozing with books in front of them. Such studies will take you nowhere. Do not force yourself to study when you feel sleepy. Keep the books aside and go to bed peacefully. You should study only when your mind is fresh and attentive.

Oh man! Do not feel proud of your education and scholarship. If you do not offer your salutations to God and not contemplate on Him with devotion, of what use is all your education?

(Telugu poem)

Education And Educare Must Go Hand In Hand

Students!

First and foremost, take care of your health. Your education will prove a mere waste if you do not maintain proper health. Do not rest content with secular education.

You should also acquire Educare. Education is related to gathering outside information, whereas Educare

relates to inward transformation. Educare is that which makes the human values blossom from within. Whether you have acquired educare or mere education will become evident in your speech. A word of caution in this regard - you should not talk loosely; especially when you speak to elders, you should carefully frame your sentences and speak with all humility and respect. True education is not limited to textual knowledge. You should manifest the human values of truth, righteousness, love, peace and non-violence. Truth should not be confined to mere words. It should be translated into deeds.

Students!

Having come here and acquired education of the highest standard, lead a life of virtues. Share your knowledge with others.

Let us all move together, let us all grow together,
Let us all stay united and share our knowledge,
Let us live together with friendship and harmony.
(Telugu poem)

This is what you have to learn today. Always have a smiling countenance and be a good friend to others. A good friend is one who always has good thoughts, speaks good words and performs good deeds. When you lead your life in such a manner, you will be an ideal person and a source of inspiration to others.

Love And Unity - Your True And

Eternal Property

The creation emerges from truth and merges into truth,
Is there a place in the cosmos where truth does not exist?

Ponder this pure and unsullied truth with wonder and joy. (Telugu poem)

The body is made up of five elements and is bound to perish sooner or later but the indweller has neither birth nor death. The indweller has no attachment whatsoever and is the eternal witness. The indweller in the form of the Atma is verily God Himself. (Telugu poem)

The melodious songs and bhajans of the devotees

from Hyderabad this morning was a joy for the ears and feast for the heart.

Heart must understand heart, heart must be drawn to heart, if friendship must last. Friendship must bind two hearts and affect both of them beneficially, whatever may happen to either loss or gain, pain or pleasure, good fortune or bad. The bond must survive all the blows of fate and be unaffected by time, place and circumstance. Each must correct the other; for each must welcome criticism and comment from the other; for each knows that they come from sympathy and love. Each must be vigilant that the other does not slide from the ideal, that the other does not cultivate habits that are deleterious or hide thoughts and plans that are productive of evil. The honour of each is in the safekeeping of the other. Each trusts the other and places reliance on the other's watchful love. Only those deserve the name friends who help in uplifting life, cleansing ideals, elevating emotions and strengthening resolves.

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume -38

Divine love is the most precious thing in this world. No amount of extolling its virtues will exhaust its greatness as no living thing of this world can be devoid of the influence of love.

Saint Thyagaraja sang:

From an ant to the Brahman, in Siva or in Kesava, You do indwell in pure unsullied form of love, Oh! Rama, please be my protector too.

(Telugu poem)

What is the form of an ant and what is the form of Brahman?

Brahman is infinite. On the other hand, ant is a tiny creature. From the physical point of view, there can be no comparison between the form of an ant and the form of Brahman. But from the spiritual point of view, Divinity is immanent in both.

Humanness Shines When Selfishness Is Given Up

A hungry bear once went to an anthill and pleaded with an ant saying, I am unable to bear the pangs of hunger. Please give me some food. The ant could not control its laughter. It said, How can a tiny creature like me alone provide food for you? I don't have sufficient food to satisfy your hunger, wait, let me see what can be done. It is natural for ants to store food for six months in their anthills. It went inside and with the help of its fellows brought out some of the food that had been stored. The bear wondered, How could a tiny creature like an ant store so much food? If one has the will and puts in the necessary effort, one can amass anything; it does not matter whether one is big or small. It is said, Jantunam nara janma durlabham (out of all living beings, human birth is the rarest). Ants, though tiny in form, are able to acquire food, share it with friends and also store for future. But, modern man, in spite of being endowed with intelligence, is frequently unable to earn his food even for a single day. Is it not a matter of shame? In this world, there is nothing superior to the human intelligence. But they are unable to make proper use of their intelligence. They conduct themselves in an unworthy manner because of their selfishness and self-interest. Humans do not lack anything in their life. There is everything at their disposal. They lack the discrimination to make proper use of the resources available. They are not able to give up their petty nature and rise to a higher level. There is a lesson to be learnt even from ants. When an ant bites one's leg, one feels the irritation and immediately tries to kill it. But they are not making efforts to kill the evil qualities within themselves which are making their lives miserable.

Embodiments of Love!

In this vast world, no matter where you look, you cannot find any motive power more powerful and valuable than love. Deep-rooted selfishness and self-interest are making man's intelligence perverted and leading him astray. When you give up selfishness, humanness will blossom in you and your latent powers will manifest.

Love And Unity Your True And Eternal Property

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume -38

Your power of intelligence will become manifold.

Attain Divinity By Serving Society

Embodiments of Love!

Nowadays students are reading a wide variety of books. But there is little use in studying a pustaka (book), if the mastaka (head) is filled with rubbish. Students are filling their heads with useless information and in the process are misusing their energy. There is no point in going through a number of textbooks over and over again. They cannot save you from the cycle of birth and death. You should acquire such knowledge, which will make you immortal. Present day students have become proficient in bookish knowledge. They have the intelligence to answer any question from the textbook. But they are not making efforts to translate their bookish knowledge into practical knowledge.

One may acquire a high academic qualification such as M.A. and B.A. and attain exalted position,

One may amass wealth, perform acts of charity and attain name and fame,

One may have physical strength and enjoy a long and healthy life,

One may be a great scholar studying and preaching the Vedas,

But none can equal a true devotee of the Lord. (Telugu poem)

74

The knowledge one acquires should be utilised for the benefit of society. We should utilise our wealth and knowledge not for selfish purposes, but for the welfare of others. God has given you the human body not merely to eat, sleep and enjoy worldly pleasures.

Paropakartham idam sariram (human body is meant to do good to others). The body is given to you so that you make proper use of your intelligence and power of discrimination and manifest your innate human values. Of what use is your education and intelligence if society is not benefited by them? Presently man is making new discoveries and inventions but till this day he has not really understood the purpose of human birth. What is the meaning of the word manava (human being)?

Ma means ajnana (ignorance), Na means without, Va means

Varthinchuta (vrittih vasya sah-to conduct oneself). Hence, manava is one who conducts himself without ignorance. But these days we hardly find anyone leading a life of wisdom in consonance with the name manava. In spite of being endowed with a high degree of intelligence, man is frittering away his life in vain pursuits. Before undertaking any task, enquire whether it would befit the title of a human being. Accept everything as the Will of God. God has blessed man with intelligence, knowledge and wealth so that he will work for the welfare of others. But, man is acting contrary to God's wish and thereby ruining himself. Animals like bulls and buffaloes render service to man in a number of ways. But man lacks the spirit of service that even

Love And Unity Your True And Eternal Property

77

animals possess. Without understanding the purpose of human birth, man is developing demonic qualities and leading a miserable life. Vyashti (individual) signifies humanness and Samashti (society) symbolises divinity. Hence, one can attain divinity only by serving society.

Embodiments of Love!

You may be highly educated and intelligent, yet there is so much you can learn from ants, birds and animals. These lessons of life cannot be taught in the classroom. Even teachers are not making efforts to understand the principle of divinity within. Education is not meant to merely eke out a livelihood. You have to share your knowledge with others, give joy to one and all and thereby rise to the level of the Divine. Samatwa (equal-mindedness) is the hallmark of a true human being.

Manavatwa without samatwa cannot attain divyatwa (divinity). Hence, develop samatwa in the first instance. Divine power is latent in every human being. But man is becoming weak as he is unable to realise his latent divine power. In order to manifest the divine power, one should cultivate sacred feelings. Manavatwa has not come into existence in the recent past, it has been there since ages. Human being is born from the womb of the mother, but humanness has originated from divinity and has been present at all times. There is divinity in every human being. As he is unable to recognise his innate divinity, man is forgetting his very human nature itself. What is the use of being human only in form but not in practice? Human birth will find fulfilment only when we practise human qualities. All the sacred texts such as Upanishads and Sastras are meant to show mankind the path of redemption.

Man should manifest his latent divinity by following their teachings. The sacred texts will bring out the hidden treasures of divinity from within. That is why Bhagawan has introduced Educare programme in the educational institutions. Education is related to worldly knowledge. It can be acquired by going through books, whereas educare is meant to externalise the latent divinity in man. Education has temporary benefits, whereas educare bestows everlasting happiness. One cannot become great by mere acquisition of education. One should practise educare and manifest the latent values.

Strive For Transformation

Embodiments of Love!

Educare is the need of the hour. Only through educare can you realise divinity which is present in every atom and every cell of your body. In fact, you are seeing divinity every moment but are unable to recognise this truth. You can call yourself educated only when you recognise divinity which is all-pervasive. Secular knowledge is related to education which can be acquired from outside. It is mere bookish knowledge, whereas educare cannot be acquired from books. No benefit

Love And Unity Your True And Eternal Property

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume -38

accrues by gathering information from books. What is required is transformation and it is possible only through educare. Acquisition of information which cannot lead to transformation is a mere waste of time. But man has developed a taste for such information which is but a waste. Man's intelligence, knowledge and power are all the gifts of God. They have to be nourished and made proper use of, through educare. Truly, God has endowed man with immense potential. That is love. It is beyond all description and measure. There is no greater power than this. But man is giving up such power without realising its value. He is under the mistaken notion that love means physical and worldly relationship. True love lies in unification of two hearts. People utter this word repeatedly without actually knowing its meaning. Love does not hurt anybody. It always helps. Hence, consider love as your true wealth. There is no property greater than love in this world. You are misusing the God-given gift of love by diverting it on worldly matters and sensual pleasures. Your foremost duty is to make proper use of love by following the dictum, Help Ever, Hurt Never. There is no greater Dharma than this.

Embodiments of Love!

Love is your only true and eternal property. But, you are diverting it on mean and worldly pursuits. It should be treasured in your heart and utilised for sacred purposes. You may share it with any number of people, it will never diminish. You are unable to understand and experience love in its true spirit. Love is the life-breath of every being. In order to understand love, you have to dive deep into the ocean of love. Love cannot be understood from a superficial level, you have to immerse yourself completely in love. Worldly love is such that you can just taste it and give it up, but once you taste divine love, you will never give it up. Love is God, God is love. Hence, you cannot separate love from God. Live in love. That is the only way you can understand love and experience God.

Embodiments of Love!

It may be easy to give lectures on love, but it is difficult to understand it. Make every effort to experience love. If you understand the nature of your love, you will understand the love of others. Love is in you, with you and around you. Once you understand love, you will become the very embodiment of love.

Students!

The more you understand the principle of love, the nobler you will become. Once you understand the principle of love and put it into practice, others will also try to emulate you.

Unsullied fraternal love is the core of Ramayana

In the epic Ramayana, not only the four brothers, Rama, Lakshmana, Bharata, Satrughna, but also their wives played important roles. They demonstrated great

78

79

Love And Unity Your True And Eternal Property

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume -38

ideals to the world. People extol only Rama and ignore the model conduct of the others. In fact, each of them was as great as Rama Himself. You might have heard of Sumitra, the mother of Lakshmana and Satrughna. People do not attach much importance to her role in the Ramayana. In fact, her name does not figure prominently in the epic. She was a paragon of virtues. Her name Sumitra

itself signifies that she was a good friend to one and all. She shared her happiness with everyone. Kausalya and Kaikeyi had one son each, whereas Sumitra had two sons.

When we enquire into the reason, we can understand the mystery behind it. When Dasaratha performed the Putrakameshti Yaga, the Yajna Purusha appeared and handed over the vessel of sacred pudding to Vasishtha. Vasishtha gave the sacred pudding to Dasaratha who in turn distributed it equally between his three wives. Kausalya and Kaikeyi took their share of the pudding to their respective puja rooms. Each of them was happy thinking that her son would be the heir apparent to Ayodhya's throne. But Sumitra had no such thoughts. She carried her bowl of pudding to the terrace and placed it on the parapet wall while drying her hair in the sun. Suddenly, an eagle swooped down and carried away the bowl of sacred pudding. She immediately ran down and informed Kausalya and Kaikeyi about what had happened. Kausalya and Kaikeyi came to the rescue of Sumitra and shared their sacred pudding with her.

Kaikeyi gave half of her share to Sumitra. Kausalya did the same. In due course, Kausalya gave birth to Rama, Kaikeyi to Bharata, and Sumitra to Lakshmana and Satrughna.

The sons of Kausalya and Kaikeyi were happily playing in their cradles whereas Sumitra's sons were crying all the time, day and night, without even taking food. Sumitra went to sage Vasishtha and told him about her predicament. Sage Vasishtha closed his eyes. His yogic vision enabled him to know the truth. He said to Sumitra, As you partook of the sacred pudding given by Kausalya, you gave birth to Lakshmana who is an amsa (part) of Rama. Similarly, Satrughna is born out of the share of pudding given to you by Kaikeyi. So, he is a part of Bharata. Put Lakshmana by the side of Rama and Satrughna by the side of Bharata. Then they will rest peacefully. Sumitra did as instructed by Vasishtha. The children became peaceful and stopped crying. Sumitra felt very happy at this and said to Kausalya and Kaikeyi, Lakshmana and Satrughna are your gifts. My children will serve your children. Lakshmana will serve Rama and Satrughna will serve Bharata. It is my good fortune that my sons will serve their brothers. This was the basis of the intimate relationship between Rama and Lakshmana, Bharata and Satrughna.

Sumitra used to experience ineffable bliss, since her two sons Lakshmana and Satrughna were always in the company of Rama and Bharata. She was never depressed

by the separation of her children. No one knows

Love And Unity Your True And Eternal Property

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume -38

why certain things happen and for what purpose. As the four sons of King Dasaratha were growing Lakshmana always used to accompany Rama and Satrughna would accompany Bharata. Both Lakshmana and Satrughna were mighty warriors. Without them, there could be no Ramayana at all! Lakshmana was born to serve Rama and Satrughna was born to serve Bharata. Lakshmana was the embodiment of Love. Similarly, Satrughna used to serve Bharata with all the power at his command. Thus, the four brothers Rama, Lakshmana, Bharata and Satrughna were inseparable. Hence, it is not correct to say that Rama was born to Kausalya, Bharata to Kaikeyi and Lakshmana and Satrughna to Sumitra. Though their mothers were different, they always used to move about in the company of one another. The four brothers Rama, Lakshmana, Bharata and Satrughna were parts of the same substance and facets of the same Divinity. Similarly, their mothers Kausalya, Sumitra and Kaikeyi used to move always in the company of one another. There was no discord between them. The unity between the four brothers was in fact the sum and substance of the story of Ramayana. None can describe in full the glory of Ramayana. Each one attempted to describe the glory of Ramayana in his own unique style. With the result, a number of literary works on Ramayana have become available today. The human nature is not limited to the mere form. It consists of the body, mind, intellect, senses and, above all, the heart the seat of love. The Ramayana is a great story of intense interaction between these five aspects of human nature. It is not possible for anyone to fully describe the interplay of these factors in Ramayana, however much one may strive.

Once, Kausalya was engaged in some work. Meanwhile, Bharata came running and sat on the lap of Kausalya and started crying.

Kausalya was a bit surprised about the reason for Bharata's agony. She tried to console him and enquired as to what made him cry. Bharata replied that they were playing a ball game and each time Rama was purposely getting defeated in order to ensure the victory of other brothers. Thus, the unity, love and affection between the brothers were such that they always tried to please others. They used to experience supreme bliss in the company of one another. It was only Lakshmana who could understand fully the nature of Rama and it is only Satrughna who could understand fully the nature of Bharata.

The women in Ramayana were also exemplary in nature. When Rama was going to the forest to fulfil the wishes and command of his father, King Dasaratha, Sumitra asked Lakshmana to accompany Rama. Immediately,

Lakshmana followed him. He experienced great joy in accompanying his elder brother Rama to the forest. Similarly, Satrughna also experienced great joy in the company of Bharata and accompanied him wherever he went. What does the name Satrughna imply? It means the one who destroys the enemies. Rama, Lakshmana, Bharata and Satrughna were ideal brothers. It is not enough to merely extol their ideals, but we must also try to experience that great bond of love in our day-to-day lives and share it with others. The great epic Ramayana is not a mere story. It also explains and expounds the Atma Tattwa. One has to experience that Atma Tattwa with reaction, reflection and resound. The Ramayana Tattwa has to be understood properly and translated into our day-to-day lives.

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume -38

Ramayana Is More A Story Of Human Relationships Embodiments of Love!

The Ramayana cannot be compared with other Puranic texts. It is not merely a great poetic work, but a great treatise on human relationships between parents and children, between brothers, husband and wife and the king and his subjects. It is only when we are able to understand the significance of Ramayana in this larger context, that the country will prosper with love and affection between the citizens. In a few years time, nay, very shortly, the whole world will realise the greatness of Ramayana and try to emulate the ideals set in Ramayana. Today, we find a wide variety of nations, religions and castes in the world. No. No. The situation will certainly change. Within a short span of time, the world will realise the truth:

There is only one religion, the Religion of Love.

There is only one caste, the Caste of Humanity.

There is only one God, He is Omnipresent.

The greatest truth propounded by Ramayana is the oneness among humanity. When there is such unity, there will be mutual love between people. When that mutual love between different people develops, the whole world can experience great joy and happiness. Thus, it is only Ramayana that can provide great joy to the entire humanity. Hence, let every individual chant the Divine Name Rama! Rama! Rama!

Urmila, the wife of Lakshmana was a good painter. She was painting a picture to be presented to Sri Rama on the occasion of His coronation. Exactly at that moment, Lakshmana entered her room. She wanted to get up and look who was the visitor. In the confusion, the paint got spilled over the unfinished painting. She felt very bad. How come this painting got spoiled when actually I wanted to portray the beauty and majesty of Sri Rama on the occasion of His coronation and show it to the world, she thought.

Urmila had a very compassionate heart. She always entertained noble thoughts. She did not feel sad even for a moment when her husband Lakshmana accompanied Rama to the forest. She was always contemplating on Sri Rama during His exile to the forest. Not only she, the wives of Bharata and Satrughna, (Mandavi and Srutakeerthi) were also engaged in constant contemplation of Sri Rama and praying for His return to Ayodhya. Thus, when they were in constant contemplation of Rama, their strength increased day by day. If

Love And Unity Your True And Eternal Property

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume -38

you analyse the underlying meaning of every incident in the Ramayana, all of them point to only one principle the principle of unity; unity between the brothers, unity between their wives, etc. Even in times of calamity like when Lakshmana fell unconscious during the war with the rakshasas (demons) in Lanka, Rama did not lose heart; nor Sumitra, the mother of Lakshmana. She was always confident that no danger would ever befall Lakshmana, since he was in the service of Lord Rama. Thus, during the entire period of 14 years of Rama's exile to the forest, all the brothers and their wives were always thinking and wishing for the well-being of Rama only; so, were their mothers. Such was the nobility of their hearts.

Embodiments of Love!

Any amount of narration of the greatness and nobility of the characters in the Ramayana will not suffice and do justice to the cause. The story of Ramayana cannot be fully described since it is His Story.

The stories of Lord Vishnu are amazing,
They purify the lives of the people in all the three worlds,
They are like the sickles that cut the creepers of worldly bondage,
They are like good friends who help you in times of need,
They are like shelters for the sages and seers doing penance in the forest.

87

It is therefore, very essential for every human being to emulate the ideals set by Lord Sri Rama in their day-to-day lives.

Ugadi, 9-4-2005, Prasanthi Nilayam

Why drag on your existence as a mere consumer of food, a moving burden encumbering the earth and obstructing others? Eat but, transform that precious matter into good thoughts, sweet words and beneficent service. Move but do not cause pain to others. Move, in order to lessen misery and promote joy. Do not demean yourself as weak, sinful, conceited, wicked. When you demean

In all creation human beings are the highest. It is said Jantunam naranma durlabham (of all living beings, birth as human is the rarest). It is the human creation that has caused major changes in the world. Joy does not exist alone; it is entwined with sorrow and vice versa; the human being is the root cause for both happiness and sorrow.

Practical Knowledge Is Real knowledge

Embodiments of Love!

Nowadays man is unable to realise his true nature because he is giving importance to only the physical form

Those attached to God, aspiring for God, aware of God, adoring God have certain distinct marks by which they can be identified. Such people have a compassionate heart. If a person turns the rosary on the fingers, and is intently engaged in watching the tip of his nose unmindful of the distress that dances around him, we can at best name him a sloth, that is all. Get up, place the rosary in its bag, and activate yourselves in relieving distress that is the true spiritual path. Do not waste all your years with stone images, pictures or idols. Learn to see in every living vital active person, the embodiment of all energy, all beneficence, namely, God. God is subtler than ether, filling the smallest crevice with His majesty. Sathya Sai Speaks Volume -38

He has lost his reasoning faculty. As he calls himself a human being, it is his duty to realise the uniqueness of humanness. A person cannot be called a human being merely on the basis of his birth and educational qualifications.

Actually, real humanness cannot be found in academic degrees. Even birds and beasts can be taught certain skills to perform wonderful feats imitating human beings. It is no credit to a human being deriving satisfaction simply by empty rhetoric, quoting scriptures and relating to others. Real humanness consists in practising ideals in one's life and setting an example to others. Man has no authority to teach ideals to others without putting them into practice himself first. There is immense divine power in human beings. He is not simply a dehadhari (one who has assumed a human body). He is endowed with vijnana (higher wisdom), prajnana (constant integrated awareness) and suajnana (discriminatory knowledge). He is, therefore, expected to channelise these higher forms of knowledge in the right path. First and foremost, one has to understand the true meaning of jnana. Some people think that knowledge acquired by reading numerous books is jnana. No, this is not correct. Real jnana is the knowledge that emerges from one's own self and which is experienced and taught to others. Finally, this would enable the person concerned to be greatly benefited and enlightened.

One has to realise the importance of the term human quality first. Human quality emerges from one's own self. It cannot be acquired by reading textbooks or listening to others.

Embodiments of Love!

You have come all the way from Kerala and assembled here to acquire jnana and to know the real meaning of the terms prajnana, vijnana, and suajnana. Mere textual knowledge without practical knowledge becomes allergy. On the other hand, when bookish knowledge is transformed into practical knowledge, it becomes energy. In otherwords that which has been acquired by practice is the real knowledge. That alone would entitle you to the epithet manavatwa (humanness).

Embodiments of Love!

All that we teach to others must be supported by practice. Everything is reaction, reflection and resound of one's own inner being. Every word we utter is the resound of the inner being. Reflection is that which is contemplated upon, experienced and put into practice. The third aspect, reaction is however, very important. Reaction comes out of action. Hence our actions must always be pure and sacred. The three aspects reaction, reflection and resound occupy a place of prominence in the life of a human being. Whatever man learns today comes under the category of resound, meaning, they are taught by the teacher from textbooks. This is bookish knowledge. Resound comes out of reaction and reaction transforms itself into reflection. The unity of all these

Understand The Spirit Of Service

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume -38

three aspects constitute humanness. Hence, a human being should not waste his time by empty rhetoric. Every word he utters must be backed by deep contemplation and knowledge of its inner meaning. It is only after that he should try to teach others. Unfortunately, these days mere bookish knowledge is considered as true knowledge and a lot of time is spent in acquiring it. Real knowledge should emerge from the mastaka (head and heart). One should, therefore, cleanse his head and heart and remove the impurities therein. Then only it is possible to understand things in the right perspective and acquire wisdom.

Exult not on your erudition oh man, without humble

prayer and devotion to your indwelling God, all your learning is just a load in your head.

Real Education Must Enable One To Realise One's Own Nature

Embodiments of Love!

It may be necessary for you to adapt yourself to new techniques and practices from time to time. At present the world is undergoing phenomenal changes. All those changes may not be relevant to you. Nevertheless, you are required to acquire several branches of knowledge in the modern times to cope with the rapid changes in science and technology taking place all over the world. However, they do not constitute real vidya (knowledge). Real education is that by which one is able to realise one's own nature. Avidya breeds avidya. Hence, one cannot become great by pursuing secular education. One has to make efforts to distinguish between vidya and avidya. Vidya is that by which one can develop the power of reasoning and discrimination and realise the truth. On the other hand, avidya constitutes indiscriminate usage of words and vain argumentation. One has to acquire practical knowledge as well by which one can gain experience.

This experience can be shared with others. Such practical knowledge and experience confer strength on a person. However, this strength is not to be construed as mere physical strength. It is like the electrical energy latent in a wire. Just as there is electrical energy in a live wire, there is latent energy in the human body which manifests in different ways. It can be harnessed for different purposes like reading, writing, walking, talking, etc. It has, however, no form. Nevertheless, it travels throughout the body of a human being from head to toe. By tapping this energy, an ajnani (ignorant person) can become jnani (one of wisdom).

Embodiments of Love!

You are all students and you continue to be so throughout your life. It is a mistake to think that you have finished your education and are now engaged in service activities. You are not servants working under somebody. In fact, you are leaders. It is a mistake to confer doership on yourselves for any service activity undertaken by you. This should never happen. In fact, several other things which you have to learn. What is Seva Dal? Each member of the Seva Dal is like a Dal (petal) in a beautiful flower. There are several skills to be learnt by the members of the Seva Dal. If you plant a sapling, it will grow into a plant in due course and yield beautiful flowers. However, the sapling by itself is not attractive. When the plant grows and yields flowers, the beauty of the flowers and fragrance therein will provide joy to one and all. There are several petals in a flower. The flower appears beautiful as long as there are petals in it. Once the petals fade and fall down, the flower ceases to exist. Hence, you should be like the petals of a beautiful flower. Let everyone experience the beauty and enjoy the fragrance of the flower in which you are like the petals. There are several things still to be told to you which Mukundan will tell you. Later on, I will provide any clarifications you may require.

whatever service activities you are undertaking are for your own upliftment. These service activities must be undertaken with self-confidence, self-satisfaction, self-sacrifice and ultimately for the purpose of self-realisation. Thus, the spirit of service develops from the self. Service is not any way construed to be helping others. You may think that you are helping others by joining the Sathya Sai Seva Organisation and undertaking service activities. This is not correct. Also, you need not seek the help of others in these service activities. You can depend upon your own innate strength and energy. The power of your own self will help you in all your endeavours. In fact, you are the beneficiary of all your service activities and not others. Your own self will protect you in your endeavours.

Service Actually Is For Self-Fulfilment

Members of the Seva Dal!

You may think that you have come here for undertaking service. This service is not for others. You are coming here for serving your own self, just as you eat food for filling your own stomach. Man undertakes every activity for his self-fulfilment.

There are several things which you have to learn in these two days. We will discuss these matters later. Since this is the first day, I spoke to you in detail so that you may understand the spirit of service. There are

Embodiments of Love!

You have come here with a lot of expectation to take part in the conference. Though your stay at Prasanthi Nilayam is short, your experiences are profound and you have described them at length in your speeches. However, you deserve much more.

The day on which all the devotees gather and sing the glory of God melodiously, the day on which the sufferings of the poor are lovingly removed and all people live like brothers and sisters, the day on which groups of dasas (servants of God) who conThe word Dharma, which is really bound up with an infinite variety of meanings, is being inadequately described by one word, duty, in the modern age. Duty is something which is connected with an individual, a predicament, or with a particular time or country. On the other hand Dharma is eternal, the same for everyone everywhere. It expresses the significance of the inner atma. The birthplace of Dharma is the heart. What emanates from the heart as a pure idea, when translated into action will be called Dharma. If you have to be told in a manner that you can understand, one can say, Do unto others as you want them to do unto you that is Dharma. Dharma consists in avoiding actions which would hurt others. If anyone causes happiness to you, then you in turn should do such things that will cause happiness to others. When we recognise that what others do will cause difficulties and if we do the same things, that would be adharma.

and sorrow, gain and loss, victory anddefeat). Never be carried away by the vagaries of the mind. When you follow the mind, you see only matter, but not the reality. Mind is related to matter. You should not have anything to do with matter. When you associate yourself with the mind, you can never visualise unity. You cannot develop true love and devotion unless you give up duality.

Embodiments of Love!

Understand that the same principle of love exists in you and others. A true devotee is one who understands the principle of unity and acts accordingly. Non-dualism is true devotion. Share your love with others without any expectation. Love everybody only for the sake of love. When you extend your love to others, you can attain the state of non-dualism. The love that you experience at physical and worldly plane day in and day out is not true love at all! True love is that which is focused on one form, one path and one goal. It is a great mistake to divide love and divert it in different directions. Love is God. God is love. Live in love. Only then can you realise the principle of oneness and attain fulfilment in life.

Prema muditha manase Kaho Rama Rama Ram (Sing the sweet name of Rama with your heart filled with love). You may choose any name you like, but you should call Him with all love. Love is most sacred, sweet and non-dual. It is a great mistake to divide such love and associate it with multiplicity. Your love should remain steady in pleasure and pain. Love and devotion

Give Up Duality

Embodiments of Love!

In this conference, you have dealt at length on various aspects such as the duties and responsibilities of youth and how they should mould their character. Let all your activities be suffused with love. Modern youth fail to understand the true meaning of love. Love cannot exist if there is a feeling of duality. Ekatma Prema (non-dual love) is true love. Give and take relationship does not reflect the true spirit of love. One should keep giving and giving, without expecting anything in return. That is true love. To retreat in times of difficulty is the sign of selfish love. Yathartha prema (true love) will reign supreme only when you give up swartha (selfishness) and strive for parartha (welfare of others). You should know the difference between padartha (matter) and yathartha (reality). Reality transcends matter. Sarvam khalvidam Brahma (verily all this is Brahman). Consider everything as divine and treat the dualities of life such as pain and pleasure, loss and gain with equanimity. Sukhadukhe samekruthwa labhalabhau jayajayau (one should remain unaffected by happiness

do not give any scope for differences. All differences are the making of your mind. Develop the feeling of oneness that I and you are one.

Never think that I and you are different. That is the sign of true devotion.

The letter I stands for oneness. You (individual identity) will not exist when you develop purity and experience oneness with divinity. Hence, give up dualistic feeling. The principle of oneness has to be experienced through love. It cannot be explained in words. But you have not understood the true meaning of love. You are interpreting it in the physical and worldly sense. Consequently, your love is never steady. It keeps changing every now and then. Love should not be tainted with body attachment. Body is made up of matter. All that is related to matter will never give you peace and happiness.

Hence, transcend the matter and see the reality. Develop Ekatma bhava (feeling of oneness). All are one, be alike to everyone. It is a big mistake to attribute worldly feelings to love. There is no scope for dualism in love.

Embodiments of Love!

Your names and forms are different but the principle of love is the same in all of you. That is why I address you as the embodiments of love. Love is always one, it should not be divided. Consider God as one and love Him wholeheartedly. Such one-pointed love towards God can be termed as true devotion. Devotees like Jayadeva, Gauranga and Eknath developed such divine love and sanctified their lives. Likewise, Mira and Sakhubai had unwavering love and devotion toward God. They did not worship various names and forms. They followed one path. They installed one name and one form in their heart and contemplated on their chosen deity incessantly. Those who are dual-minded and change their path every now and then are bound to ruin their lives. Hence, never be dual-minded. Experience divinity with ekatma bhava. You may choose any name you like Rama, Krishna, Easwara, etc., and contemplate on the form. You will certainly reach the goal of life. Lead your life with your mind always focused on the goal.

True Love Alone Is The Godward Path

Once Radha could not find Krishna anywhere. As she was deeply attached to Krishna's physical form, she went in search of Him everywhere. She always yearned and pined for His physical proximity. The name and the form are one and the same. However, people are unable to enquire deeply and experience such oneness.

The power of love is unparalleled. It is beyond the ken of human understanding. Love can be understood only through love. Mira's husband Rana had built a mandir for Krishna. Being a great devotee of the Lord, Mira was always found in the Mandir singing His glory ecstatically. Consequently, she earned the wrath of Rana. He commanded her to leave the Mandir. This came as a great shock to Mira. She thought to herself, When Krishna is all-pervasive and not confined to this Mandir alone, how can Rana take me away from Him? She left her home and hearth and set out to Mathura. Where is Mathura? It is not some geographical location. The heart suffused with nectarous love is Mathura. She sang, Chalo re man Ganga Yamuna teer (Oh mind! Go to the confluence of Ganga and Yamuna). Here Ganga and Yamuna symbolically mean ida and pingala (left and right nostrils). The central part of the eyebrows where ida and pingala meet stands for Mathura. This is the esoteric meaning of the song. She proceeded towards Mathura chanting the name of Krishna incessantly crossing rivers, hills, dales and forests. When she ultimately reached Brindavan, she found the temple doors closed. In spite of her repeated prayers, the doors did not open. Then she said, Oh Krishna, my heart is Your temple. I have installed You in the altar of my heart. She banged her head against the temple door, calling out to Krishna. She had the vision of Krishna and merged in Him. King Rana repented for having driven away Mira from the temple. He prayed to Krishna for forgiveness.

People these days do not enquire into the inner meaning of certain words they use. They are carried away by the worldly meanings and interpretations. You should take into consideration the feelings that emerge from your heart which is true and eternal. This is how Mira experienced oneness with Krishna. If one wishes to tread the path of devotion, one should hold on to the principle of love firmly. Ordinary mortals do not have such firm determination, but a true devotee will never deviate from the path of love under any circumstances. No other path except love can take us to God. Develop love more and more. Wherever you are, love is your sole refuge.

Embodiments of Love!

Fill your hearts with love and let love be the guiding principle in all your activities when you return home. When you have love in your heart, you do not need to worry about anything. God will always be with you, in you, around you and will look after you in all respects. When you say, Krishna, I will follow You. It means that Krishna is separate from you. It is possible that you will lose your way. Hence, you should pray, Krishna, please be with me always. In fact, He is always in you. When you enquire deeply, you will experience this truth. It is impossible to be away from Him. Many devotees proclaim, Oh God, I am in you, I am with you and I am for you. They repeat these words like parrots, but do not say from the depths of their heart. Actually, God is never separate from you. Pray to Him wholeheartedly with the conviction that He is always in you, with you, above you, below you and around you. When you offer such a prayer to God, He will certainly redeem your life.

We have one more day left. I will explain all these in detail so that you will understand them better. Do not

Ramayana - A Sacred Way Of Life

Sweeter than sugar, tastier than curd, sweeter indeed than honey is the Name of Rama. Constant repetition of this sweet Name gives one the taste of divine nectar itself. Therefore, one should contemplate on the name of Rama incessantly.

(Telugu poem)

The Ramayana represents a sacred path, sacred door to Divinity, a sacred way of life. The Ramayana is not merely the biography of an individual. All characters in the Ramayana are equally important. Dasaratha distributed the sacred pudding he received from the Yajna Purusha equally among his three wives. Kausalya received her share of pudding joyfully and took it to her puja (worship) room. Kaikeyi also did the same. Each of them was happy thinking that her son would be the heir apparent to the Ayodhya throne. However, Sumitra had no such desire. She carried her bowl of pudding to feel satisfied with what you have experienced so far. There is much more to be experienced which will fill your heart with bliss. How can you say that your hunger is satisfied by eating a little? There is a lot of scope for you to experience divinity in full measure in the days to come.

The most beneficial thing that can happen to a person is that he can draw God's love to himself. His love for God is less important, because it is an imperfect mixture of divine and worldly love. The most important action whereby to gain God's love is righteousness (dharma). There may be gold, silver, copper, iron filings, diamonds, rubies, silks and other things of value spread out on flat surface. But a magnet pays no attention to all the riches; it selects only the iron filings. It is the same with devotees. God does not select on the basis of wealth. He looks to the purity of heart.

the terrace and placed it on the parapet wall while drying her hair in the sun. All the while, she was contemplating on God. As she watched helplessly, an eagle swooped down and carried away the bowl of sacred pudding. She was shocked and disturbed thinking of the reprimand she would have to face from her husband for being careless. She at once rushed downstairs and informed Kausalya and Kaikeyi about what had happened. Unlike the co-wives of the present time, the three queens had utmost love and affection for each other. Kausalya and Kaikeyi hugged Sumitra and consoled her, saying, Sister, why are you disturbed so much? We three are one and we will share our pudding with you. Kausalya and Kaikeyi at once went into their respective shrine rooms and brought their pudding bowls. Each of them gave half of her share of pudding to Sumitra. Sumitra felt greatly relieved and expressed her gratitude to her sisters. The three queens offered their pudding to God and partook of it. Very soon, they conceived. It was Kausalya who developed labour pains first and gave birth to a male child. Then Kaikeyi was blessed with a son. Soon Sumitra developed labour pains and gave birth to two sons. In fact, Sumitra never had any desire to have children. But she was blessed with two sons. She accepted it as the Will of God and was very happy about it. The three queens were waiting for King Dasaratha to come and bless the children. Dasaratha went to each of them and showered his blessings on the children. It was then that Sumitra revealed to King Dasaratha about the incident of the eagle carrying away her bowl of pudding, and her sisters Kausalya and Kaikeyi giving half of their share of pudding to her. That was the reason she was blessed with two sons.

The Naming Ceremony

King Dasaratha requested Sage Vasistha, the family preceptor, to christen the newborn children. Sage Viswamitra was also invited for the function. Many sages,

Vedic scholars and eminent personalities who attended the naming ceremony were spellbound by the ethereal beauty of the children. Sage Vasistha, Sage Viswamitra and other sages blessed the children by chanting Vedic mantras. Everyone was wondering how Sumitra had two sons while Kausalya and Kaikeyi were blessed with only one son each. How can anybody comprehend the ways of God? Everything happened according to God's Will. Sage Vasistha named Kausalya's son as Sri Rama as He had the power of attraction in Him. Ramayathi ithi Ramah (that which attracts is the principle of Rama). The name Rama was given to Him according to His birth star. His form was highly brilliant and resplendent. As per tradition, Vasistha wrote the name Rama on rice. Then Vasistha named Sumitra's first son as Lakshmana as he looked valorous and his face shone with all auspicious attributes. He named her second son as Satrughna, saying he would destroy all satrus (enemies). Vasistha then went to the place where Kaikeyi was seated with her son on her lap. She was bubbling with joy as she remembered the promise made by Dasaratha that her son would be made the crown prince of Ayodhya. She was thinking that her son would rule over the kingdom of Bharat. Keeping this in mind, Vasistha named her son as Bharata. In this manner, the naming ceremony came to a happy conclusion.

The sons of Kausalya and Kaikeyi were having timely food and sleep and were happily playing in their cradles. On the other hand, Sumitra's sons were crying all the time, day and night, without even taking food. Sumitra became restless seeing the plight of her sons. When she mentioned this to King Dasaratha, he consoled her saying, Everything happens according to God's Will. Pray to Him. He will take care of the rest. There was little he could do about it. Three days passed, the situation remained the same. Sumitra could no longer bear the suffering of the children. She went to sage Vasistha and told him about her predicament. Sage Vasistha closed his eyes. His Yogic vision enabled him to know the truth. He said to Sumitra, As you partook of the sacred pudding given by Kausalya, you gave birth to Lakshmana who is an amsa (part) of Rama. Similarly, Satrughna is born out of the share of pudding given to you by Kaikeyi. So, he is a part of Bharata. Put Lakshmana by the side of Rama and Satrughna by the side of Bharata. Then they will rest peacefully. Sumitra did as instructed by Vasistha. The children became peaceful and stopped crying. Everyone heaved a sigh of relief. As the children grew up, it became very clear to Sumitra that Lakshmana was an amsa (part) of Rama and Satrughna, an amsa of Bharata. One day, she told Kausalya and Kaikeyi, Dear sisters, your sons may ascend the throne of Ayodhya in future. I have no such ambitions. I am happy to see my sons being in the company of their elder brothers and serving them. Accordingly Lakshmana and Satrughna were always in the company of Rama and Bharata, respectively. They served them and spent their time blissfully. King Dasaratha and the three queens were very happy to see such unity and harmony among their children.

The Princes On A Mission

It is but natural that both happiness and difficulties follow each other. As King Dasaratha was spending his time blissfully, one day Sage Viswamitra came with a request which caused great anxiety to the king. Viswamitra said, Oh king! I want you to do me a favour. Without a second thought, Dasaratha promised to do the needful. Then the sage said, I have decided to perform a Yajna. I request you to send your son, Rama to protect the Yajna from the demons. Dasaratha was in a dilemma. He thought, Rama is very young and tender. He knows no hardship. How can I send Him to the forest with the sage? How can He fight the cruel demons? When he expressed his feelings to the sage, Viswamitra became furious and said, Oh King! It is a great folly to go back on your word, for no one in the noble lineage of Ikshvaku has, until now, ever broken his word. You are tainting their glory by breaking the promise given to me.

Dasaratha became frightened on hearing the words of Viswamitra.

He consulted Sage Vasishtha in this regard and ultimately decided to send Rama with the sage. He left everything to God's Will. He called Rama to his presence.

Rama came there with all courage. It was natural for Lakshmana to follow Rama wherever He went. Hence, Lakshmana also came to Dasaratha with Rama. Nobody had called Lakshmana. He came of his own accord and sat next to Rama. The king did not want to dissuade Lakshmana from following Rama. The Ritwiks chanted Mantras and blessed Rama and Lakshmana before the two brothers set out with Sage Viswamitra.

When they reached the banks of the Sarayu, Sage Viswamitra said, My dear ones! This is a very sacred place. Hence, you may perform Sandhya Vandana here. Rama and Lakshmana offered their prayers as instructed by the sage. They closed their eyes and sat in meditation for some time. Then Viswamitra thought that it would be very difficult for the royal princes, who are used to palatial comforts and luxuries, to keep awake day and night to guard the Yajna. They cannot even think of food as they have to be on high alert all the time to fight the demons. It was then that the sage taught them the sacred mantras of Bala and Atibala which would help them overcome sleep and hunger.

Viswamitra, accompanied by Rama and Lakshmana

reached Siddhasrama and started the performance of the Yajna.

Rama and Lakshmana guarded the Yajna night and day chanting the mantras taught by the sage. They never felt the pangs of hunger nor did they feel sleepy. They were on high alert all the time in all enthusiasm and exuberance. All of a sudden the demons appeared in their frightening forms and tried to disrupt the Yajna. They were making deafening sounds. But, the princes were least perturbed. They fought the demons with great valour and ultimately vanquished them. Viswamitra was very happy that he could complete the performance of the Yajna without any interruption. He showered his love and blessings on Rama and Lakshmana.

In the meantime, a letter arrived from Janaka, the king of Mithila, inviting the sage to take part in a Yajna. Viswamitra told the princes, My dear ones! We have received an invitation from the noble King Janaka. I am proceeding to Mithila and I wish that you two should accompany me. At first, Rama was not inclined to go to Mithila and said to Lakshmana, Dear younger brother, our father instructed us to follow Sage Viswamitra and protect his Yajna. We don't have his permission to go to Mithila and take part in the Yajna performed by King Janaka. When the same was conveyed to Viswamitra, he convinced them saying, My dear ones, your father commanded you to follow me and it is your duty to follow me wherever I go. The princes had no option but to obey the command of Viswamitra.

The arrival of Rama and Lakshmana in Mithila created a sensation. People admired them and began talking about them. As they were moving in the streets, they attracted everybody's attention. Who are these handsome princes? They look strong and valorous. Have they come to marry the daughters of King Janaka? , people started talking to themselves in this manner. They reached the royal palace allotted to them and rested. The Yajna was to commence on the next day. A meeting was also being arranged for which the gallant heroes of Bharat were invited. It was to see if anyone could break the bow of Siva. The victor could win the hand of Janaka's daughter, Sita. One after the other, the princes tried to lift the bow of Siva, but had to return to their seats humiliated. At the instance of Viswamitra, Rama gently walked towards the bow, and raised it with His left hand. There was a thunderous applause. When He bent the bow to tie the string, it broke with a thunderous sound. Sita was brought there ready with a garland. Then Viswamitra asked Rama whether He was ready to marry Sita. He was ready to undertake any task entrusted to Him by Viswamitra, but was certainly not prepared for the marriage. Rama offered His salutations to Viswamitra and politely said, Swami! You have brought us with you to safeguard your Yajna and not for performing our marriage. I would not think of marriage unless I get the consent of my father. The sage was in a fix. There was absolute silence in the assembly.

Everyone was surprised at Rama's reply. Rama was firm in His stand. Thereupon King Janaka sent his messengers along with a few disciples of Viswamitra with an invitation to King Dasaratha. Viswamitra's disciples narrated to Dasaratha all that had happened. The king, the queens and the people of Ayodhya were filled with joy and jubilation at the prospect of the marriage between Rama and Sita. Dasaratha accompanied by his queens, Bharata and Satrugna and a host of others, arrived at Mithila.

The womenfolk proceeded to the venue of the wedding in all enthusiasm, singing joyously, exhorting each other to witness the celestial wedding of Sita and Rama.

Welcome to all for Rama's wedding; together we shall witness the joyous scene.

Many have gathered already, decked up in all their finery.

With necklaces the ladies are adorned of jewels pure and gleaming.

Rama shall tie the knot today to beautiful Sita, oh what a fine match they make.

Father Dasaratha has made ready bounteous feasts.

All learned sages are assembled with Vasishtha presiding.

had two daughters by name Mandavi and Srutakeerthi. With the consent of King Dasaratha, it was decided that the four brides would be given in marriage to the four brothers. Dasaratha was happy that all his four sons who were born on the same day were getting married on the same day and same time. The marriage function was celebrated in all grandeur.

Sweet notes of auspicious music reverberated in the air. The Vedic priests chanted the sacred mantras full-throated and blessed the couples. King Dasaratha shed tears of joy. Everyone was filled with divine bliss watching the marriage proceedings. It is customary during the occasion that the bride and the bridegroom exchanged garlands. Sita had to garland Rama first, before the other brides could garland their respective bridegrooms. Sita, being short in stature, could not garland Rama who was ajanubahu (tall personality). Unless Rama bent His head before Sita, she could not garland Him. But He did not want to bend His head lest people should blame Him for not maintaining the honour of His lineage. Unable to garland

Rama, Sita was holding the garland in her hand for a long time. There was another secret in this act of Rama. Lakshmana was the incarnation of Adishesha who carried mother earth on his hood. Rama looked at Lakshmana as if to say, Look, why don't you raise that part of the earth where Sita is standing to enable her to garland Me. Then Lakshmana indicated to Rama that it was not possible to raise any particular area. If he tried to raise that part of the earth where Sita was standing, simultaneously Rama and their brides shone like brilliant gemstones. The onlookers shed tears of joy watching the grand spectacle.

Confrontation With Parasurama

As they were returning to Ayodhya, they heard a loud and frightening sound. Rama instructed Lakshmana to be ready for the battle. Parasurama appeared on the scene and challenged Rama saying, Oh Rama! I have heard that you have broken the bow of Siva. It is of no consequence and is not at all difficult to lift. If you really have strength, you should break this weapon of mine. So saying, Parasurama hurled his weapon at the feet of Rama. Rama calmly picked it up and broke the weapon. Parasurama at once fell at the feet of Rama. The people of Ayodhya welcomed the newly-wed couples. At the main entrance, Kausalya, Sumitra and Kaikeyi offered the brides and grooms mangalarati and took them inside.

The entire city of Ayodhya bore a festive look and everyone rejoiced.

Today, everyone is celebrating the marriage of Sita and Rama. But after the marriage Rama had to face many ordeals; He overcame them all with fortitude. He decimated the demonic forces. Lakshmana was His main weapon. With his help, Rama emerged victorious in the battle with demons. Many a time He lavished praises on His brothers saying, My brothers are greater than Me. I owe My victory to them. I could win over the enemies because of the strength of unity among us. The lives of Rama, Lakshmana, Bharata and Satrughna demonstrated the ideal brotherhood to the entire world. Such ideal brotherhood is not noticed today. Many wonderful events took place in the life of Lord Rama.

The stories of Lord Vishnu are amazing,

They purify the lives of the people in all the three worlds,

They are like the sickles that cut the creepers of worldly bondage,

They are like good friends who help you in times of need,

They are like shelters for the sages and seers doing penance in the forest.

(Telugu poem)

It is not enough to merely celebrate the Rama Navami as the birthday of Sri Rama. You should understand the purpose of His birth and practise the ideals He demonstrated.

Rama Kalyana does not mean the marriage of Rama and Sita at physical level. Rama Kalyana is Atma Kalyana; it signifies the merging of atma (individualised soul) with Paramatma (universal soul). The Ramayana is not the story of an individual. Rama symbolises the cosmic and universal spirit.

Win The Love Of Your Mother

To Win The Love Of God

When man is born out of his mother's womb he has no garland of any kind around his neck. Neither of pearls, nor gold, nor a string of gems nor a necklace of topaz or of rubies or other precious gems can be seen even for a sample. There is, however, a garland around his neck, carrying the unbroken link of the effects of the good and bad deeds of his past lives strung together by Lord Brahma. (Telugu poem)

Embodiments of Love!

The love of the mother is nobler and supreme than the love of all the friends and relatives in the world. The power of love the mother is unparalleled.

That is why we are calling the native country as Motherland. The country of Bharath is like our mother.

Even if you cannot love others, do not hate them, or feel envy towards them. Do not misunderstand their motives and scandalise them; if only you know, their motives may be as noble as yours, or their action might be due to ignorance, rather than wickedness or mischief. Pardon the other man's faults, but deal harshly with yours.

well in life. Hence, one should respect and love one's mother. She must be given the pride of place. It is only such people that can really lead the country. We may or may not worship other deities, but we must certainly worship our mother as God. We should never forget the love of our mother. The love of a mother is supreme. It is only by the love of the mother that divine feelings develop in the children. Where there is a mother of noble qualities, there will surely be all kinds of peace and prosperity. It is foolish to crave for the love of the people, ignoring the love of one's own mother. One should, therefore, revere and respect the mother. One should try to experience the love of the mother.

The mother of Sri Ramakrishna Paramahansa was a noble lady. Even in dire circumstances when she had no food and drink, she developed unflinching faith and devotion to God and spent her time engaging herself in cultivating noble thoughts and performing noble deeds, thereby earning God's grace. It is only when one respects his mother and wins her love, that he can be called a human being in the real sense. There is no God greater than one's mother in this world. Unfortunately, today people forget this truth and go to different places in search of God. Instead of craving for the unseen God, one should worship and serve the living divinity that is right in front of him. Several people undertake different activities like penance, pilgrimage to holy places, worship and other rituals in order to have the holy darshan of God, but

In this sacred land of ours, several types of energy have been developing since ancient times. Great and holy men like Ramakrishna Paramahansa and Vivekananda could acquire great spiritual power only due to the strength of their mothers' blessings. The sacredness of a mother's heart and the strength of her blessings are unparalleled. But, unfortunately people are unable to understand properly the love of a mother, not only in our country but in every country.

Revere Your Mother First

It is a great sin to ignore the mother endowed with such a divine power. It is only to remind the people of the nobility and sacredness of the mother that she has been given the foremost place in the spiritual field, by exhorting people to worship the mother first as God. It is said, Mathrudevo bhava (worship the mother as God); Pithrudevo bhava (worship the father as God); Acharyadevo bhava (worship the teacher as God); Athithidevo bhava (worship the guest as God). Thus the mother has been given the first place in that order. It is only when we uphold the honour and dignity of the mother that we will be entitled to be called true sons. The life of a person who could not win the love of his mother is a mere waste. Hence, we must first acquire the deservedness to win the love of the mother. No one can describe the love of a mother in words. It is only by the strength of a mother's will that a son would come up

Win The Love Of Your Mother To Win The Love Of God

they will be of no use. One cannot win the grace of God without first winning the love of his mother. The love of the mother flows as an undercurrent in every human being. You go through the history of any great person; it is obvious that they could reach such great heights in life only with the help of their mother's love. When one leads his life in accordance with his mother's noble thoughts, one will be relieved of all kinds of suffering. One may or may not respect any other person; but one must definitely respect one's mother. One should dedicate his entire life to win the love of his mother. The mother's love is always selfless. We must learn to cultivate such love. Wherever you go, whoever you may see, you can find that they have become prosperous only with the blessings of their mother's love. If one cannot win the love of his mother, how can he hope to win the grace of God? Hence, first and foremost you must strive to win the love of your mother. You should not undertake any work that will hurt the feelings of your mother. The heart of a mother is very tender. Therefore, one should not hurt the feelings of the mother.

The culture of Bharat has laid great stress on the teaching Mathrudevo bhava (revere the mother as God) and Pithrudevo bhava (revere the father as God), more than all other aspects. A person who could win the love of his mother can win everything else. Sri Ramakrishna Paramahansa could earn such a great name for himself only because he could win the love of his mother. How many great people are there in the state of West Bengal? How many people of noble qualities, rich and educated are there? But, they could not succeed in life due to lack of faith in God. It was only Ramakrishna Paramahansa who could lead an ideal life by loving his mother and obeying her commands, due to his implicit faith and devotion to his mother. He used to teach people that there is nothing greater and nobler in this world than mother's love. The mother is God, verily. It is, therefore, not proper to hurt the feelings of a mother who is the embodiment of love. It is only when we develop love towards our mother, our life will become happy and prosperous. Hence, first and foremost, we must strive to win the love of our mother. Whatever the mother does is for our own good. We must develop such firm faith. You take the history of any great person in this world; he owes his greatness to his mother.

Mother Embodies Sacrifice

Students of the present time are unable to win their mothers love. The mother can undergo any great ordeal, she is even prepared to undertake hard labour to earn a few rupees to bring up her children and educate them. What a great sacrilege it is to forget the love of such a noble mother! It is only a person who could win the love of his mother that can earn God's love as well. We are not born from the earth or the sky; we are born from the womb of our mother. It is possible that differences may arise between a mother and a son, at times.

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume -38

But, the mother does not hate her son on that count and forsake him. There may be sons who hate their mothers, but there are no mothers who hate their sons. The mother will always aspire for the welfare of her son. Even if they go to the court in a matter of dispute, the mother will say He is my son and I am his mother. They cannot refer to each other in any other manner. The mother will always strive for the safety, health and welfare of her children. Man, today, is undergoing several difficulties on account of ignoring the love of such a noble mother. If you strive to win the love of your mother, you can win the love of all other people. The love of your mother will always be with you, constantly guarding and guiding you in all your endeavours. Unfortunately people are not able to realise this truth. They think, it is enough to provide a few morsels of food to that old lady. They are so narrow-minded and selfish. It is a great mistake to think that their responsibility will end by providing some food to their mothers. The mother should always be held in high esteem and served. She must be made to feel happy and contented.

The One-Pointed Filial Devotion of Pundarika

Pundarika was a great devotee of Lord Panduranga.

He always held the view that service to the parents was of paramount importance. One day, he was serving his parents by massaging their feet. In order to test his love towards his parents, Lord Panduranga appeared before him. But, Pundarika did not want to be distracted from his duty and continued to serve his parents. Then Lord Panduranga enquired of him, My dear son! I appeared before you to give you My darshan;

but you are not looking at Me. Whom are you serving with such single-minded devotion? Pundarika replied that he was serving his parents. Then, Lord Panduranga queried, Is not God greater than the parents? Won't you have My darshan at least for one second? But, Pundarika was not disturbed. He replied, My parents are living divinities for me. I cannot have your darshan, unless I put my parents to sleep. If you wish to give me your darshan, you stand there on this brick till then.

So saying, he pushed a brick towards Lord Panduranga.

The Lord then commended his love ad devotion towards his parents and declared The world will always remain safe and prosperous if all people cultivate such love and devotion towards their parents. May such noble sons like you proliferate in this world. From then on, great and noble ideas of sacrifice and detachment began to develop in Pundarika. He spent his time happily serving his parents and winning their love.

Lifelong Lesson From A Noble Mother

Putlibai was the mother of Mahatma Gandhi. She continued to observe a vow right from her early days. She never used to take her food in the afternoon, without hearing the singing of the cuckoo bird. Gandhi was a child then. One day, it was already 3 o'clock in the afternoon and his mother did not take her food, since the cuckoo did not sing. Gandhi could not bear to see his mother being hungry. He, therefore, thought of a plan. He went behind their house and imitated the call of a cuckoo. Then he went into the house and pleaded with his mother, Mother! The cuckoo sang. You can now take your food. His mother, however, could realise that her son was lying. She grew very angry. She caught hold of him and slapped on his cheek twice. She could not contain her anger and anguish. She chided him saying, it is my misfortune to have given birth to a liar like you. Gandhi then repented for his mischievous act and begged his mother to forgive him. He also took a vow that he would never speak a lie thereafter in his life. Thus, mothers of old times used to teach their children good behaviour and put them in the right path. Such ideal mothers are very rare in present times in the world. The present-day mothers would always think, My son should get good marks and ranks in the examination. He should acquire high degrees and earn lakhs of rupees. He should rise to a high position in his career. There are hundreds of such mothers now-a-days. But, there is not even a single mother who teaches her son My dear son! You pray to God daily. Never forget God. That is the reason why the country of Bharat is facing innumerable difficulties. The Bharatiyas of yester years always used to pray daily. Oh! Rama! Krishna! Govinda! They used to chant the divine name incessantly. But, things have changed. Now, there is no such contemplation on the divine name. On the other hand worldly desires have proliferated. The culture of Bharath always exhorts the people, Sathyam vada (speak the truth) and Dharmam chara (follow righteousness). Unfortunately, today people act contrary to such noble ideals. They are distorting those ideals as Sathyam vadha (kill the truth) and Dharmam chera (Imprison righteousness).

The Chosen Mother's Gesture

Once Easwaramma came to Me and requested, Swami! Several poor mothers have come here along with their children. They have no food to eat. Kindly bless them. Then I rendered them proper help and thus fulfilled Easwaramma's wish. On another day, she came to Me and expressed her anguish thus: Swami! Small children of five years age are daily walking to Bukkapatnam

and back for attending their school. How can they study after walking such a long distance daily? Then, I called their parents and advised them: These tiny tots can learn more from their mothers than from their teachers in a school. Instead of sending these small children to such a long distance for education, you first teach them what little you know. You teach them at least two or three alphabets which you know. Later, I established a school in Puttaparthi and fulfilled the wish of Easwaramma.

Mothers Of Old Times Were Patriotic And Prayerful

Why do you cry my child, why do you cry?

Do you cry because our people lack in unity

All the people will unite and fight

For our freedom; don't cry.

India will certainly attain freedom

Don't cry my child, don't cry

The mothers of those days used to sing such inspiring patriotic songs and teach their children good things. They used to mould their character to make them as heroes of the country. There used to be no place at all for untruth in their talk. By their truthful words, they used to train their children in the path of truth.

Once, the village of Puttaparthi was affected by infectious diseases like cholera and plague. Several people died on account of these diseases. Then, I warned the children in the village that these diseases would spread through polluted water and impure food and therefore they should take proper care in this regard.

I exhorted them, Purify the water and then drink. You eat only clean and wholesome food, though in small quantities. Not only that, keep your mouth always fresh and clean. Several diseases will affect you due to unclean mouth. It is not good for you to eat anything that you come across, when you feel hungry. Whether it is for keeping good health or happiness, God's grace is important. Hence, always pray to God. Happiness can be attained only through constant contemplation on God; nothing else. It is not something that can be attained by

The mothers of those days, though they were innocent and illiterate, never gave up praying to God. Love God. There is no use wasting your time in worldly matters. We should never try to imitate others. We must try to develop faith in the Truth that manifests from our own heart. It is not good to develop hatred towards other castes and religions. One should develop faith in one's own religion and follow it diligently.

Once, when this body was a student, some political leaders approached Me and requested, Raju! We understand that you write good poetry. We have arranged a meeting where a number of our people are expected to participate. We request you to please write a good song that can inspire our people. Those were the days of the Second World War. Adolf Hitler was marching forward to conquer various countries in Europe. He was trying to march into Russia. India was then under the control of Britishers. Taking the situation into account, I wrote a small playlet. In it, I kept a rubber doll in a cradle and sang the following song rocking the cradle gently:

Don't cry my child, don't cry

If you cry, you will not be called the valorous son of Bharat

Did you cry because the murderer Hitler

Invaded the immortal Russia?

The Red Army and the brave Stalin

Are there to crush Hitler; don't cry external objects. It can only spring from one's own heart. In order that we may attain good health and happiness, we must constantly contemplate on God and thereby sanctify our time.

It is only the parents who led ideal lives that nourished and nurtured our country of Bharath, since ancient times.

Unfortunately, today you do not find sons who obey their parents. The youth of today brush aside their parents words as insane talk and ignore them. This is not correct. They are not insane words; they are verily truthful words spoken from the depth of their hearts. God will certainly hear the prayers said with purity of consciousness and shower His Grace on such people. Hence, one should always pray to God in whichever form one likes and sanctify one's life by the grace of God. Since ancient times, the women of Bharat offered such prayers to God, in all sincerity and devotion. That is the reason why the country of Bharat could attain great heights.

Help The Children Learn Healthy Habits

Embodiments of love! If you wish that you or the children to be born to you must be sacred, constantly contemplate on God. It is only when the parents lead a good and noble life, their children will be good and noble. Hence, the parents must be good, in the first instance. Unfortunately, today the parents are unable to set an example to their children, with the result, the children are taking to bad ways. Such sacred teachings have become extinct in the country of Bharath, today. The mothers in ancient India used to teach good things and good habits to their children thus:

Get up early in the morning at the crowing of the cock,

Have a bath after your morning ablutions,

Wear a proper dress. Eat properly and moderately.

Go to school and study diligently.

Earn a good name.

Don't move out when it is raining,

And never go near the ditches.

Take part in games,

Run and play.

If you abide by all these rules,

You will have both health and wealth.

(Telugu poem)

Both the elders as well as the children are not brushing their teeth properly, today. That is why all sorts of diseases are spreading from ourselves only. For both, good and bad, we only are responsible. They do not come of their own accord. When we cultivate sacred feelings in us, we will be rewarded with good results. If sacred feelings are to take root in us, we have to cultivate good habits.

Better indeed is knowledge than mechanical practice.

Better still is meditation. But, better than meditation is surrender of the fruit of all actions. For, such renunciation of the fruit of all actions would indeed result in liberation. (Gita Ch.12 Sloka 12)

Right from early morning till we go to bed, if we are engaged in good activities, that itself will automatically become a practice. In fact, the country needs such youth. Who are youth? People generally think that boys and girls aged between 18 and 20 years constitute youth. This is not correct. It is only people with noble thoughts, who can be considered as youth. Hence, one must cultivate noble thoughts. As soon as you get up, your first action shall be chanting the divine name Rama! Krishna! Govinda! Again, before you go to bed, you must chant the divine name. When you do such chanting of the divine name, you will always have good thoughts. Unfortunately, today people totally forget chanting of the divine name. People think that they are highly educated and have high degrees, but they will not enable you to tread the right path. Education that will not develop enquiry into one's own self is not education at all! It will only lead to agitation! Mere book reading does not constitute education. Book reading will contribute only to acquiring bookish knowledge. That is artificial knowledge. Real knowledge comes out of the heart. When the young men and women realise and propagate this Truth, the country will progress in all directions.

Always Contemplate On The Divine

Embodiments of Love! Do not waste your time in reading voluminous books, thinking that such books will help you in acquiring great knowledge. One should read such books which will help in the contemplation on the divine name. Do not be satisfied with acquiring mere bookish knowledge. Such knowledge is only a superficial knowledge. What you need really is the knowledge of Self. Strive to acquire that knowledge. It manifests from within. It cannot be acquired from external sources. Is it not a fact that the more you dig in the river bed, the more the water that comes out of the sand! Similarly, the more you remove the bad thoughts in you, the more the sacred knowledge and sacred thoughts that manifest in you. Purity, Steadiness, Wisdom and such other noble qualities manifest only from one's own heart. First and foremost you have to cultivate sacred and noble thoughts. But, you need not give credence to all such talk. You have to always tread the sacred path.

The mothers in the ancient times used to teach their children such sacred things. That is why the children of those days used to engage themselves in constant contemplation on God, with the result, the country was constantly protected by God. It is not the body that is important for us, it is the thought and the feelings. Several people question Where is God? I tell such people My dear! I am God; you are also God. This is the Truth. Why should we be afraid of speaking this Truth? God is omnipresent. All are embodiments of God! There is divinity in every human being. If not, we cannot live in this world. It is only because of our faith in God, we have been able to survive in this world till today. A small story to illustrate the point: There used to be a husband and wife in a village. The wife was constantly chanting the divine name Rama! Krishna! Govinda! and worshipping God daily. The husband, however, was not doing any worship or contemplation on God. But, he used to attend to his daily chores. The wife used to feel Alas! My husband is not chanting the divine name atleast once in a day. One night, the husband could not get sleep and was turning this side and that side on the bed restlessly. At that time, he casually said Rama! His wife was overjoyed on hearing the divine name coming out of the mouth of her husband, though unintentionally. The next day, as soon as she got up from her bed, she collected all the rice available in the house, cooked it and fed the poor people, in jubilation. The husband who was observing this feeding of the poor, enquired her What is the matter! You are cooking and feeding the poor today. What is the special occasion? The wife replied. Last night, I heard the divine name of Rama! emerging from your mouth. My heart overflowed with joy on hearing the divine name from your mouth. Hence, this celebration. On hearing his wife's reply, the husband felt sorry and thought to himself Alas! I have installed Rama in my heart and worshipped him there all the while. Has my Rama gone out from my heart today? Several people do not give expression to their love and devotion to God. They keep their devotion to themselves. However, one day or the other it manifests outside.

Embodiments of Love!

Contemplate on the divine name, irrespective of the religion, caste, creed or sex. You can always chant the divine name of your liking. The mother of Ramakrishna Paramahansa taught her son good things and shaped him into a great yogi. All the mothers should take her as an example and strive to put their children in the right path. If you constantly contemplate on and chant the divine name, that itself will purify your thoughts and feelings. Never forget the divine name. If you constantly contemplate on the divine name, your life will surely be sanctified. Embodiments of Love! You, therefore, contemplate on the divine name constantly.

Thyaga is a supreme virtue in man. One who has no spirit of sacrifice will be sick in body and mind. What does thyaga do to man? It eradicates his selfishness. As long as self-interest is dominant, one cannot understand the Reality. A self-centred man cannot attain the supreme. Hence, we must cultivate a broad mind and serve our fellow-beings. Even in the pursuit of mukti (liberation), there is no place for concern with one's self. To be concerned with naa mukti (my salvation) will lead only to na mukti (no salvation). Those who aspire for their individual liberation will never achieve it.

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume -38
Develop The Spirit Of Oneness
Embodiments of Love!

Many dignitaries from Sri Lanka have spoken to you about the great teachings of Buddha. First of all, you have to understand that God is omnipresent.

There is no place where you do not find God. The essence of the teachings of all scriptures is that God is present everywhere. Out of their ignorance, some people argue that God is limited to a particular place.

Divinity Indwells In All Beings

Truly speaking, Divinity is present in everyone and is all-pervasive. This is the basic truth of all doctrines and philosophies. See God everywhere. If you see God everywhere, nothing bad will happen to you. This ekatma bhava (principle of oneness) should be understood by the Bharatiyas.

God manifests in man in three forms described as Bhur Bhuvah Suvaha. Bhu is the material form (padartha). Bhuvah is spandana shakthi or prana (life principle). Suvaha is the form of prajna. Prajna shakthi is the radiation which through vibration (prana shakthi) gives the material form represented by the body. God manifests in all these three forms. The body is a combination of water, iron, lead, phosphorus and other things which are but inert matter. The body is inert but is made to function actively through vibration or the Life Force. Prajna shakthi is conscience. It occupies a special place in the body. God, in the form of conscience, activates the body. If only man understands this truth of spirituality, he will never indulge in bad deeds. The functioning of the body is itself a mystery.

See no evil; see what is good,
Talk no evil; talk what is good,
Hear no evil; hear what is good,
Do no evil; do what is good,
Be always with God.

Some people call Him Rama, some others adore Him as Krishna and still some others worship Him as Buddha. Names and forms may vary, but God is one. God is not limited to a particular name, form, region or religion. There is only one God who pervades every atom of the Creation. Words fail to express the glory and grandeur of Divinity. People may describe Divinity in a number of ways, but no description can ever portray Divinity in full measure. In fact, to describe Divinity is a sign of delusion. Where is God? You are all the embodiments of God. God pervades all beings as their life-breath. Such transcendental principle of Divinity cannot be described. One may do one's best to describe it at any length, yet all descriptions will fall short of what reality is. Water is infinite; a container cannot hold more water than its capacity. As is the size of the container, so is the quantity of water collected. Likewise, God is infinite, but each one describes Him based on his limited understanding. Divinity is much more than what human mind can comprehend.

Embodiments of Love!

It is impossible for anyone to describe Divinity in full measure. God is one, but people may describe Him in various ways depending on their feelings. Divinity is one. It is a sign of ignorance to divide God in the name of religion and limit Him to a particular name and form. God is limitless and boundless. He is sarvantaryami (all-knowing inner reality). He is sarva bhutantaratma (indweller of all beings). How can anyone describe such Divinity? God is present in everyone in the form of atma (Self). Develop self-confidence and spirit of oneness. Ekam sat viprah bahudha vadanti (truth is one, but the wise refer to it by various names). (Pointing to the tumbler, Swami said) This is water. Telugu people call it neeru, Tamilians call it thanni, so on and so forth. Different people call it by different names, but water is the same. Likewise, the same God is extolled by various names. The indweller is the same in all beings.

People worship God by different names and forms, but God is one. The principle of the atma which resides in everyone is the true divine power. Only those with self-confidence are true bhaktas (devotees). You cannot call yourself a devotee if you lack self-confidence. Without self-confidence, you cannot achieve anything in life. Therefore, first and foremost, develop firm and unshakeable self-confidence. From self-confidence arises self-satisfaction. Self-satisfaction shows you the path of self-sacrifice which ultimately leads to self-realisation. Self-confidence is the basis for self-realisation.

Today many people practise meditation without knowing what it is. In the process, they waste a lot of time. What is meditation? Is it to sit cross-legged with closed eyes? No. Not at all. People undertake meditation with a deluded mind. Consequently, they are unable to achieve the desired result. What is meant by meditation? To think of God at all times and under all circumstances is true meditation. You should install God in your heart and discharge your duties with the feeling that God is the basis of everything. Only then can you be called a true devotee. Wherever you go, whatever you may do, recognise the truth that there is only one God and He is all-pervasive. Never give scope for differences saying my God and your God. Where is your God? Where is my God? All are one; be alike to everyone. There is only one God and He is present in everyone. It is a big mistake to think that God is different for different people. You should have firm faith that God is one. The process of inhalation and exhalation as indicated by the Soham principle is one and the same in everybody. Soham means I am God. This clearly demonstrates that God is not different from you. When man comes into the world, the first word he utters is Koham, Koham (who am I?). He should constantly keep asking this question until he realises his true identity. He should realise his true nature and proclaim, Soham, Soham (I am God) before leaving the world.

Never attribute multiplicity to Divinity on the basis of different names and forms such as Rama, Krishna, Jesus, Allah, Buddha, etc. You may call Him by any name, but God is one and the same. But these days, we do not find teachers who can make lasting impression on the hearts of people by imparting such sacred teachings. All the time, man keeps searching for God elsewhere. How can you find God elsewhere? Some people may call Him Allah; others may call Him by some other name. Does God become different for different people just because they call Him by different names? No, no. These are only names. To think that God is different for different people is a great delusion. You may call Him by any name. God is one.

Sri Lanka Will Be Safe And Secure

When you develop such spirit of oneness, you will certainly have sakshatkara (vision of the Divine). Everyone should develop ekatma bhava (spirit of oneness).

Easwarah sarva bhutanam (God is the indweller of all beings). It is sheer ignorance to say, My God is different from your God. Those who quarrel with each other in the name of religion are foolish people. For some time now, certain types of differences have cropped up in Sri Lanka. Whatever others may say, we have to firmly believe that God is one. It is a great mistake to develop differences on the basis of our deluded thinking.

Once an old woman went in search of Jesus. When she met him, she asked, Are you Jesus? Jesus replied, That is the name given to me. But you can call me by any name, I shall respond. Names and forms are bound

You are the embodiments of Love. Where there is love, there cannot be any adversity. Love is God. God is Love. Hence, fill your hearts with love.

Very soon I will visit Sri Lanka and bestow eternal bliss on all of you (thunderous applause). In the present situation, it is difficult for Me to walk. However, difficulty is only for the body. It comes and goes. I do not care for such physical constraints. I will certainly come to your country very soon and fulfil your long cherished dream. Right from a child to an old man, devotees in Sri Lanka think of Swami always. Your prayers and penance will certainly find fulfilment very soon. Cherish this sacred

Understand The Principle Of Fundamental Truth

The Present Vice Chancellor and the former Vice Chancellor have narrated their experiences.

When vyashti (individual) identifies himself with samashti (community), he realises Parameshti (God). It is very difficult to understand Parameshti which is beyond both vyashti and samashti. There will be harmony between vyashti and samashti when one develops equanimity.

Know What Is True And Eternal

One should realise that samashti is the basis of everything. People are not able to understand what is meant by I and you. Where are you studying? Where am I studying? In these two sentences, there are two different identities of the same principle of Samashti. Few have truly understood the principle of Samashti so far. But there lies in it the transcendental principle

There are some mothers who feed the baby only when it starts crying. The more considerate and loving type of mother knows when the baby is hungry; she need not be called to its side by a loud wail. This Sai Matha is that type of mother. I have come because I felt I had to come; I resolved upon this. There is no need now for tears or despair, either among the repositories of the Vedic wisdom or among the good who suffer from the cruel winds of adharma. This campaign will succeed; it will not fail. The welfare of the world will be ensured through the fostering of the godly everywhere, and more particularly of these reservoirs of the ancient wisdom of this land.

of Parameshti. However, the transcendental principle of Parameshti is much more difficult to understand. Our Gokak (Prof. V.K. Gokak, first Vice Chancellor of Sri Sathya Sai Institute of Higher Learning) also found himself in such a situation. He had read volumes of great books. He knew answers to many intricate questions.

But he could not understand what was true and eternal. Similarly, he could not understand the difference between atma (Self) and anatma (non-Self). Truly speaking, anatma has no existence. There is only Atma everywhere. After some time, Gokak realised this truth and understood it clearly. I provided help to him at that time. Man wants help of many types for the sake of clarity. This help will provide a lot of lasting strength to a true devotee. This help is not temporary. It is true and eternal. When you keep on enquiring what is true and eternal, gradually the veil of Maya will be removed.

After some time, Gokak came close to Me. All his doubts disappeared and he held on to the principle of divinity which is formless, true, eternal, pure and unsullied.

It is not possible for all to understand this divine principle. This principle of truth is present in you, Me and everyone equally. One who takes truth as the basis will never become unsteady. Everything may change, but truth will remain changeless.

Attain The State Of Doubtlessness

The principle of Karma (action) is difficult to understand. One type of karma may be responsible for all your doubts. But another type of Karma will destroy your doubts and take you to the state of unity. Gokak realised this truth and became doubtless. When you attain the state of doubtlessness, you realise the truth. This is the royal path of attaining moksha (liberation). What is the real meaning of moksha? Moha kshaya (removal of attachment) is moksha (liberation). So long as one has attachment, one cannot think of liberation. Hence, one should strive for detachment in the first instance.

Gokak firmly held on to the principle of truth. One day, he came to Me and asked, Swami! Am I the knower or is conscience the knower? I told him, There is something else between conscience and conscious. That is maya. Maya is responsible for all delusion. Do not become a victim of maya. When you cast aside maya, then truth will manifest from within. What type of truth is it? Truth can neither be heard nor seen though it appears that it is seen and heard. But it transcends both. All that is seen or heard cannot be experienced by the heart. When you transcend the senses, you see the dawn of consciousness. Truth is that which is close to consciousness. Next morning, he came to Me again and said, Whatever doubts I had yesterday, have been removed. But I am finding it difficult to understand the origin of doubts. Then I told him, Take for, example, bats; they move about like birds, gather their food like birds. But contrary to the nature of birds, they hang head downward from the branches of trees. You may doubt whether they are birds or animals. Doubts come to man in the same manner. At one point of time, all these doubts will stop coming to you. This is not something related to Me and others; it is related to you and Me.

Vyashti constitutes samashti and samashti is the collective form of vyashti. In the final analysis, samashti is the expansion of vyashti. One who understands the relationship between vyashti, samashti and parameshti can know the truth. This is what Gokak understood ultimately.

Everyone has to make an effort to understand this truth. We are leading our lives in fun and frolic, but this is not the reality. We can understand the reality only when we transcend worldliness. Total change cannot come instantly. Gokak understood this truth fully well. Hence, he held on to this principle of fundamental truth firmly. In the end, he forgot everything else.

Dawn Of Truth And Experience Of Bliss

At that time, Gokak was studying Savitri (an epic poem written by Sri Aurobindo). All his inner thoughts were focused on Savitri. There exist inner thoughts in every human being which cannot be seen. One day or the other, truth becomes manifest all of a sudden when you are consistent in your sadhana. At that time, Guru Purnima was fast approaching. He said, Swami, I can see light approaching me on the path I am proceeding. After saying this, he closed his eyes. He did not utter a word. I went near him and touched his head. I told him, My dear, now you go home, have a cup of coffee and come. But he did not say anything. He had transcended the state of duality. He went home, prayed to Savitri and came back. Ultimately, he could get all the answers from Savitri. From then onwards, he started contemplating on Savitri. He used to come to Me both in the morning and in the evening. One day when he came to Me, he was all smiles. I asked him, You seem to be very happy, what is the reason? Swami! This bliss is Your blessing. It has not come from me, he replied.

Nityanandam, Parama Sukhadam, Kevalam Jnanamurtim, Dwandwateetam, Gagana Sadrisham, Tattwamasyadi Lakshyam, Ekam, Nityam, Vimalam, Achalam, Sarvadhee Sakshibhutam (God is the embodiment of eternal bliss, wisdom absolute, beyond the pair of opposites, expansive and pervasive like the sky, the goal indicated by the mahavakya Tattwamasi, One without a second, eternal, pure, unchanging, witness of II functions of the intellect).

On Experiencing Illumination

I told him to remain in that state forever. Next morning, he came again. He said, Swami, I have been in the same state. He said that he did not even think where the blissful state had come from. Knowing very well that he should not speak much at that time, I asked him to go home and come later. He left. Next morning only on the fundamental principle.

Once when I was at Kodaikanal, he sent a lengthy telegram to Me. I then sent him a telegram with the message,

I know, this is right. Don't change your mind. From then onwards, there was no further correspondence between us. However, once he asked his wife to write a letter to Me. Her name was Sharadamma. She was also a Mahajnani (one of great wisdom). She used to write in such a way that two words written by her would have four different meanings. Thereafter, only atmic relationship existed between us. He attained the state of absolute silence. He did not touch any book nor did he ask any question. He did not write any letter either. All that he said was, Swami! All Your answers have touched my heart. Then I told him, Both of us understand the relationship that exists between us. You don't worry about anything else. After that, the relationship between us at physical level ceased to exist. At the same time, our relationship at spiritual level became more intimate. Before leaving his mortal coil, he wrote these words, I have reached You.

at Brahmamuhurtha time, he came again. He knocked at the door thrice, but I knocked six times. He understood the meaning and left the place silently. After this, no scope was left for questions and answers. Thereafter, he stopped asking questions. He went on contemplating on Savitri. Ultimately, he attained the state of non-duality.

One day when he was meditating with closed eyes, I slapped hard on his head twice. Then he started experiencing illumination. As illumination dawned on him, he lost interest in all worldly matters. He remained in that state. On another day, I told him to close his eyes. He did accordingly. As he closed his eyes, I pressed his Bhramadhya (centre of the eyebrows) with My thumb. Instantly, all his doubts disappeared. He said, Swami, I am one, God is one, love is one. I do not require anything else. I told him to go and come the next morning. Gokak was very punctual and always came at the correct time. As he came again and again in this manner, he had the vision of Savitri. He could visualise Savitri every now and then, but not continuously. He considered Savitri as the fundamental principle. He held on to this principle firmly. In this manner, he could attain the state of divinity.

As you proceed on the path of sadhana continuously, certain powers will manifest in you. You should not attach any importance to them. Once you understand the fundamental principle, you will have everything. That fundamental principle is one, and not two. Truth is one, not two. Everything else is untruth; it is like passing clouds. He forgot everything else. He focused his mind

Who has made the bats to hang from the branches of a tree with their heads downwards? Has anyone done it out of hatred? No. It is their Karma (fate). Likewise, nobody can escape from the consequences of Karma.

(Telugu poem)

Birds fly in the sky with the help of wings. Likewise, bats too fly in the sky, but unlike other birds, they hang with their heads downwards from the branches of trees. Is it not their fate? One may perform any activity, but one is bound to face the consequences of one's action. This is the law of nature.

An Avatar assumes the form that is beneficial to and within the reach of human beings, for man cannot normally comprehend the Formless and Attributeless Absolute. But, unfortunately, even when the Formless Absolute assumes a form there are persons who, impelled by their own attitudes, attribute their own human foibles to the avatar. When He has the same form as ours, the same physical features, and eats, talks and moves about like any of us, what is the difference between the avatar and ourselves? , they ask. Because of this narrow-minded approach, these persons distance themselves from the Divine.

escape the consequences of their actions. Whether he is a pamara (simpleton) or a mahaneeya (noble soul), he has to face the results of his actions. Let no one be under the illusion that one can commit sin and still go scot-free. Hence, one should enquire before undertaking any activity whether it is good or bad. Wherever you go, the results of your actions will follow you like your shadow. However, it is possible to escape from the consequences of action by the grace of God. God is always by your side saying Tathastu! , Tathastu! (so shall it be!). Man is not taking cognisance of this truth and is indulging in wicked deeds. He knows pretty well what is good and what is bad, yet, he is unable to give up his evil ways. One's experiences in life, good and bad, depend on his actions.

No one can comprehend the ways of God. They are beyond description. You may think that you can commit a mistake surreptitiously and feel that no one has seen you. But you cannot hide your actions from God. The consequences of your actions will haunt you wherever you go.

One should not be judged by his external appearance.

One may look noble and speak in a pleasing manner, but his actions may not be in consonance with his words. We may undertake a number of good activities, yet we cannot escape from the consequences of our past deeds. We have to bear this truth always in mind.

The world is full of wonders and mysteries. The law that governs human life and the world at large is beyond the ken of human understanding. The principle of divinity is not visible to the naked eye, but that is what prompts you to perform action and experience the consequences thereof.

The story of the Lord is amazing,
It purifies the lives of people in all the three worlds,
It is like the sickle that cuts the creepers of worldly bondage,
It is like a good friend who helps you in time of need,
It is like a shelter for the sages and seers doing penance in the forest.

Students!

You may wonder if there is a way to escape from the consequences of karma. Yes, it is possible for those who earn the grace of God. Once you become the recipient of God's grace, you will not be affected by karma phala. Hence, you should strive to earn divine grace. Scholars say, it is impossible to escape karma. What they say is true to a certain extent. But once you earn Divine grace, even if you have to experience the consequences of karma, you will not feel the pain. Take for instance a bottle containing medicine. You find the expiry date mentioned on the bottle. After the expiry date, the medicine will lose its potency. Likewise, God's grace will make the karma phala expire, i.e., it nullifies the effects of karma. Hence, it is possible to escape from the consequences of karma. Man should cultivate necessary strength and will power to deserve divine grace. You will be free from the shackles of karma once you earn divine grace.

Lord Easwara had granted only sixteen years of life-span to Markandeya. But Markandeya was unaware of this. One evening, he found his parents in great sorrow. On enquiry, they revealed that his end had approached and that was the cause of their sorrow. They said, Lord Easwara had ordained that you would live only for sixteen years and today happens to be the last day of your earthly sojourn. Tomorrow our earthly ties will be snapped. Markandeya was surprised to hear this. He also felt sorry that he was not made aware of it earlier. He said, I would have made proper use of my time if I had known that I would live for only sixteen years. He went to the temple of Easwara without wasting even a moment, hugged the Siva Linga and started chanting Om namah sivaya wholeheartedly. At the appointed hour, Lord Yama (God of death) cast his noose around the neck of young Markandeya. As he was hugging the Linga, the noose fell around the Siva Linga also. Easwara manifested there and remonstrated with Yama, How dare you cast the noose around Me? Pleased with the devotion of Markandeya, He blessed him with the boon of immortality. In fact, it was Easwara who had stipulated 16 years of life-span for Markandeya. But on account of Markandeya's intense devotion and total surrender Easwara had to change His decree.

Markandeya s

episode bears ample testimony to the fact that one can escape even from the God of death if one becomes the recipient of Lord Easwara's grace. Hence, contemplate on God and chant His name incessantly.

Once when Lord Yama was going round the world, he noticed that everyone was chanting the divine name. Wherever he went, he found devotees contemplating on the Lord. If everyone starts chanting the Divine Name, how am I to discharge my duties? How can I cast my noose around a devotee?, he wondered. He started praying to Lord Easwara thus. Then Easwara appeared before him and said, You may cast your noose on anyone at the appointed time. But, remember that only those who have to experience the fruits of their actions will be ensnared by your noose. It cannot touch those who have no trace of karma phala (fruits of action). That is why Markandeya became My property and I showered My grace on him.

That is why people start chanting the divine names such as Rama, Krishna, Govinda as the end approaches.

As demonstrated by Markandeya, devotees can alter the Will of God by their sincere prayers. In matters relating to divinity, the word impossible does not exist. God can accomplish anything. If you surrender to Him completely, He can cancel the consequences of your actions and confer His grace on you. One need not feel depressed or dejected thinking that he is bound by karma phala. God can cancel your karma phala if your prayers are sincere. In this manner, God protected the lives of many devotees and alleviated their suffering in response to their prayers. Some people out of their ego doubt the power of God and try to test Him. They think, Let us see, how He will do this. But God cannot be understood or experienced by such tests. Such tests are futile exercises. Evil qualities like ego, jealousy and hatred will ruin man's life. One should make every effort to earn the grace of God. Sarvada sarva kaleshu sarvatra

Hari chintanam (everywhere, at all times, under all circumstances contemplate on God).

Chant The Name Of God Incessantly

That is why Swami is exhorting you to undertake spiritual sadhana. Nagar sankirtan is one of the sadhanas that is prescribed for devotees. No one knows when one's end approaches. Yama has no consideration of what one is doing, good or bad, at the time of casting his noose. One may leave his mortal coil even when one is doing nagar sankirtan. Hence, one should always be prepared to face Yama by chanting the divine name. You should undertake spiritual practice and earn the divine grace so as to be free from karma phala. One need not feel depressed and resign to one's fate. One can easily overcome fate with sincere prayers. The story of proves this point beyond doubt. Everything depends on God's grace. Embodiments of Love!

Markandeya

You may undertake any number of spiritual practices, but never forget God's name even for a moment. Only then will you be protected. Never do anything that will take you away from God. You can achieve anything through prayer. You need not pray loudly; it is enough if you pray mentally. Some people have a mistaken notion that God will not come to their rescue if they do not pray loudly. God resides in your heart. He listens to your prayers. If you aspire to attain His grace, you have to contemplate on Him incessantly. Worldly difficulties come and go. One should not attach much importance to them. However, through prayer one can overcome any difficulties. Only God's grace is true and everlasting.

Chant the name of God day in and day out. That alone will protect you at all times. Just as air is all-pervasive, God is present in you, with you, around you, below you, above you. Hence, you should be in constant communion with divinity. When you develop faith in divinity, you will naturally have unity. Consequently, there will be no scope for enmity. You need not perform any rituals in order to win the grace of God. It is enough if you do namasmarana (chanting the Divine Name) from the depth of your heart. Hari Bhajana bina sukha santhi nahin (one cannot attain peace and happiness without singing the glory of God). If you incessantly chant the divine name Rama, no harm can ever befall you.

God is your sole refuge wherever you may be, in a forest, in the sky, in a city or a village, on the top of a mountain or in the middle of deep sea. (Telugu poem)

Students,

Embodiments of Love!

I am very much aware that you think of Swami always. It does not matter whether you sing the divine name loudly or silently. I see only the feeling behind it. Nothing can come in the way of God and His devotee. Rishis of yore went to the Himalayas in order to spend their time in contemplation of God. Wherever you are, God listens to your prayers. Do bhajans sincerely. Swami will certainly listen to you. Never give room for any type of weakness. Be always courageous. When you adhere to Swami's words, the power of Sai will manifest in you. Chant any name of your choice, Easwara, Rama, Krishna, etc., but always remember that God is one. I will never force you to chant a particular name. One should not limit God to a particular name or form. You may call Me by any name, I shall respond.

Recently, a strange incident took place. Subramaniam

Why have you come here? Who has sent you here? How dare you enter our area without our permission? They replied, We have come here in your own interest. As there is scarcity of

They said, We are living in the forests and hence are not aware of the magnificent service activities that Swami has undertaken. They guided the engineers as to where to lay the pipes and fix the taps. They are all coming here for Swami's darshan.

Your Welfare Is My Welfare

The Water Supply Project works in East and West Godavari districts are nearing completion. We have already drawn plans for a water supply project in Krishna District also. I am taking up these projects and completing them of My own accord, without anybody's asking. Water is very essential for the survival of everyone. It is the sustainer of life. What else can be of greater service than providing drinking water to the needy? It is the source and sustenance of life. I do not expect any rituals or worship from you. I am doing it out of My love for you. East Godavari, West Godavari and Krishna districts are now being covered under Sri Sathya Sai drinking water supply project. The people of those districts are extremely happy. There can be no greater service than providing drinking water. That is what I have been doing. You need not ask for it. I am giving it out of My own accord. Till today no government or anyone for that matter has taken up the task of providing drinking water to Krishna district. It is only Sai who is providing water to all. I am always engaged in such humanitarian projects. I do not involve Myself in any other work. Water is essential for human life. Hence I am prepared to provide water for all. Devotees should pray that everybody should have water to drink. Pray for the welfare of all. Prayer is the need of the hour. You may be worried that Swami is not able to walk. But always remember that Swami is not the body. I have no connection with the body. I am always happy and healthy. Do not pray to God for the fulfilment of your desires. Pray for the welfare of all. When I had a fall, the people of East Godavari and West Godavari came and prayed, Swami, we want only Your health and not water. I told them, Your welfare is My welfare. They are bringing a helicopter for Me with the prayer that I should pay a visit to East Godavari and West Godavari districts. Very soon, I will be visiting these districts.

In this world, there are millions of educated people. Right from a child to a learned old man, everyone is interested in reading books and acquiring knowledge. But in what way are they benefited by the acquisition of bookish knowledge? Such education can only help you to eke out a livelihood. Right from a pauper to a millionaire, everybody wants his children to be well educated. Parents are prepared to spend any amount of money and they even borrow money (even

There are three desires which every I cannot escape from. I must live is the first. The will to live is over-powering and paramount. This is the urge for immortality. The desire to know is the second. This too is unquenchable thirst and is an indication of the position of which the I is the inheritor. The desire for joy is the third, prompting beyond their means) to provide quality education to their children. In spite of the fact that the parents face a lot of hardship in educating their children, the children do not have any gratitude towards their benefactors. They do not introspect, Who is responsible for all my development?

Who has made me what I am today? Under these circumstances, we should enquire into the true purpose of education. One may study a number of books and master various branches of knowledge, but does he enjoy peace and tranquillity? All the knowledge that we acquire from books can only take care of our physical needs. The fact is, true knowledge is latent in everyone. Women do not lag behind men in academic excellence. People think that education confers on them respect and esteem. But, people lack true wisdom in spite of their high academic achievements.

Education Must Result In Transformation

In the present, parents want their children to pursue solely job-oriented education. But, what is the use of such education which does not bring about transformation among children? Neither are the children benefited nor are they able to render any help to their parents. Modern man develops ego on account of his educational achievements.

Humility is the hallmark of true education. If a man lacks viveka (discrimination) and vinaya (humility), all his education is of no value. You should understand that your education is meant for the welfare and progress of society. But, in what way is society benefited by educated people? Actually, you are learning many things from society and derive benefit from it. But power of discrimination which is found even in uneducated people is not to be found in the so-called educated people today.

When this is the true state of affairs why should the educated get inflated with ego? There is scarcely any humility among students today. They show no respect towards elders. They do not realise their responsibilities towards society. What is the use of merely acquiring bookish knowledge if one does not respect elders and serve society? One who leads such a life is not true to his nature. His walking, talking, reading, writing, everything becomes an affectation. If this is the result of academic education, why should one go to college at all? Every student must enquire into himself, What am I doing in the college? What am I supposed to do? Only when he conducts such self-enquiry, can he understand the true meaning of education. Mere bookish knowledge is not true education. It is merely transfer of what is contained in pustaka (book) to mastaka (head) and vice versa. In this manner, people are entangled between pustaka and mastaka without really understanding the true meaning of education. They are wasting their time in the pursuit of bookish knowledge instead of acquiring practical knowledge.

No doubt there is a lot of information in pustaka, but what purpose does it serve if the mastaka is filled with filth? You can never achieve the desired results from such an education. The same was explained by the chief guest in his address. Though all people learn and study, what is the ultimate result out of this? he questioned. People spend thousands of rupees for acquiring academic education. What is the role the educated people play in society today? Do they contribute for peace in society? Do they try to bring about transformation in individuals?

No. In fact, they are unable to inculcate discipline in their own children. Most children may pretend to be well behaved and humble in the presence of their parents, but they behave like rowdies once they step out of their houses.

Students should strive to earn a good name in society. Today's education is making the students materialistic.

It does not prepare the students to turn inward to listen to their inner voice. One should acquire Atma prabodha (atmic knowledge). That is true education. Without awareness of the Self, all other knowledge is useless. Why should one pursue such education?

Deeds Must Follow Words

People are interested in exercising their influence and power; they are not making efforts to cleanse their mind and heart. This is the result of modern education. People have learnt to talk sweetly, but they do not translate

their words into action.

Embodiments of Love!

Mere learning by rote the contents of books is not important. You should imbibe the gandha (essence) of all granthas (texts). That is true education. People read a number of books, but what is the use? They merely quote what others have said. Is this what you are supposed to learn? You should listen to the prompting / utterance of your inner voice and share it with others. But, scarcely anybody thinks on these lines today.

Embodiments of Love!

You must put into practice at least one or two principles of what you have learnt and set an example to others. There are many learned scholars, but do they practise what they have learnt? They appear to be people of eminence (chief), but they are cheap in their behaviour.

The end of education is character. We should consider character as our very life-breath. Education without character is useless like half-cooked rice. We should practise at least one or two principles and only then venture to preach to others.

There are three important principles in every human being Manas (mind), Buddhi (intellect) and Atma (Self). What is the nature of Self? It is all-pervasive. True education is that which originates from the heart. The reference in this context is to the spiritual heart and not the physical heart. There are many noble souls who are setting ideals to society by translating their knowledge into action. If you do not act in a principled manner, all your education becomes useless. It is what you practise that matters, not what you speak. Wherever you may go, your behaviour should be exemplary. That is what pleases Me.

Strive To Acquire Spiritual Knowledge

Happiness is union with God. You are not ordinary mortals. All are essentially divine. In order to realise your true nature, practise what you preach. Only then can you experience bliss. Verily, bliss is the true nature of man. Why should you give up that which is natural to you and lead an artificial life? Wherever you see, in colleges and schools, students lack practical knowledge. They give importance only to bookish knowledge and become books themselves. True education is that which originates from the heart. Heart is very important for human existence. When a child is born, the first thing that people observe is the heart beat. You should rely more on your spiritual heart than on the physical heart. Conscience is another name for spiritual heart. Keep your heart pure. That should be your main endeavour. Whatever is done with love and purity of heart will confer bliss on you. In fact, bliss is latent in everyone. But man is unaware of this truth. One should make every effort to manifest one's innate bliss in him. What is the nature of this bliss? Nityanandam, Parama Sukhadam, Kevalam Jnanamurtim, Dwandwateetam (God is the embodiment of eternal bliss, He is wisdom absolute, beyond the pair of opposites). It transcends duality. So long one is immersed in duality one cannot experience bliss. First of all one should understand the principle of unity. Unity leads to purity and purity leads to divinity. A true human being is one who strives for unity, purity and divinity. Otherwise, he is no better than birds and animals. First, purify your senses and develop unity. Consider all as your brothers and sisters and live in harmony. In public meetings we hear the speakers addressing people as brothers and sisters. But do they really mean what they say? Do you find unity among brothers and sisters today? No. True happiness lies in unity. Human life can be compared to a tree. Our relations are like branches and sub-branches. Contemplation of God is like a flower from which you will get the fruit of bliss.

Students!

You can certainly acquire secular knowledge. But you should not rest contented with that. You should turn inward and acquire spiritual knowledge as well. Only then can you attain peace.

Embodiments of Love!

Love is the essence of education. Bereft of love, education is artificial. Therefore, develop love in the first instance. Understand that the indweller is the same though bodies are different. Hold on to this fundamental principle and experience ananda (bliss). So many of you have assembled here. Everyone's attention is focused on Swami. In the same manner, let your mind be focused on divinity always. Contemplate on God. Serve your fellowmen.

If a person who has been starving for ten days is served a sumptuous feast, you can well imagine the joy

171

Unity, Purity, Divinity

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume -38

he experiences. When all the tanks and lakes are dried to a trickle, you can imagine the joy that a continuous downpour brings with it. Similarly, serve those who are in desperate need of your help. Give them happiness. You can attain divinity only through service. Human life is most precious. But, man is behaving like an animal and thus wasting his life.

Students!

Being vidyarthi, you should endeavour to acquire true vidya (education). There is no point in merely going through books without understanding the true meaning of vidya. Always contemplate on the fundamental principle of life. Beings are many, but the divine principle is one and the same. Hence, recognise the principle of divinity that is present in all in the form of atma. Atma is adhara (support) and body is adheya (the supported). Consider atma as the basis of your life and everything else will be taken care of. Everyone can have the vision of the atma. All are endowed with such power. Enquire into yourself what have you achieved by going through a number of voluminous books? You have become hard-hearted. If that is the result of your education why should you study at all? First of all, develop love. When you have love in you, everyone will become your friend. If your heart is not suffused with love, your life will become artificial. Life is meaningless without love. If everyone shares his love with his neighbour, there will be no room for hatred at all. Share your love with everyone and live like brothers and sisters. Today we find conflicts and differences even among brothers and sisters, because they lack proper understanding.

Understand The Principle Of Oneness

People do not understand the true meaning of love. Their love is tainted with physical and worldly feelings. When you understand the principle of love and develop love to love all will become one. The Veda says, Sahasra seersha Purushah ... It means that all heads, all eyes, all feet are His. Once you understand the principle of oneness that is present in all, you can live in tune with the true spirit of brotherhood.

Our hand has five fingers and each of them has a specific duty assigned to it. All the fingers work in unison and harmony while performing a task. Once an argument ensued among the five fingers of the hand as to which finger among them was great. The thumb claimed, It is not possible to undertake any work without me. Hence, I am the great. Then the index finger smiled and said, Look here, Oh thumb! How can you perform any task without my support? Moreover, I am used as pointer to identify individuals. Hence, I am greater than you. The middle finger intervened and said, There is no point in what you say. I am the tallest among all the fingers. Two of you on one side and two on the other are serving me as Aide de Camps. Hence, I am the greatest. Then the ring-finger said, I feel like laughing at your ignorance. Don't

173

you know that people adorn me with gold rings studded with precious stones like diamond, emerald, topaz, etc.? Hence, I am your king. In the end, the little finger said, I always lead from the front when it comes to teaching a lesson to someone and punishing the guilty. Hence, I am your leader and you have to follow me. As the fingers were arguing among themselves in this manner, the heart intervened and said, Oh ignorant ones! Each one of you is as important as the other. One cannot perform any task if there is no unity and harmony among you. In fact, you represent the five human values which are like five life-breaths of a human being. Hearing these words of wisdom, the five fingers realised their mistake and bent their head in shame. A deep enquiry reveals that the heart is the greatest of all. Body, mind and intellect are mere instruments. Hence, one should follow the advice of the heart in all his endeavours. Understand that all are one and each one is equally important. Do not become egoistic thinking that you alone are very important. Do not waste your precious time in vain argumentation. Be friendly with all and face the challenges of life with unity and harmony.

Students!

You have to lead your lives in an ideal manner. In fact, all ideals are latent in you. They cannot be learnt from books. The principle of I is common in all. If someone asks, Who is Sai Baba? I respond saying, I. If someone asks who is the Vice Chancellor? He will say, I. The single letter

I represents the principle of atma. The Veda declares, Ekameva adviteeyam Brahma (God is one without a second). True spirituality lies in knowing your true Self. But you are unable to know your true Self as you identify yourself with the body. Identification with the body gives rise to ego. One with ego cannot know the reality. Your welfare and also of others will be ensured when you have a firm conviction that all are one. Develop such a spirit of unity. You cannot expect divinity to manifest in you unless you cultivate such unity. The Veda has exhorted:

Let us all move together, let us all grow together,

Let us all stay united and share our knowledge,

Let us live together with friendship and harmony.

(Telugu poem)

Some students do not share even their textbooks with others. How can they attain happiness if they are so self-centred and narrow-minded? You should all stand united. Where there is unity, there is bliss.

Embodiments of Love!

There is only one thing that you have to learn. Develop love. The same principle of love is present in you, in Me and in everyone. I see only love in others. Hence, all are one for Me. You too should develop such feelings of love and equality. All are one, be alike to everyone. This is what you have to learn today.

174

175

Embodiments of Love!

Along with the acquisition of secular knowledge, you should also make efforts to understand the principle of oneness. Only then can you achieve unity and harmony.

Take for instance this rose flower. It consists of a number of petals. Likewise, our heart can be compared to a flower and the virtues are like petals. The petals of a rose flower may fade and fall by the next day, but the flower of heart remains ever fresh. It symbolises the principle of oneness. People worship the navagrahas (nine planets) to invoke their blessings. You might have observed that there is perfect unity and harmony among the nine planets. (Bhagawan with a wave of his hand materialised a gold ring studded with nine types of gems.) Here you see a navaratna ring. Whoever wears this ring will be protected by the Navagrahas wherever he goes.

Develop unity. Be courageous and develop the necessary strength to face the vicissitudes of life. I don't want to take much of your time. Whatever you have learnt here, let it be imprinted in your heart. Only then can you attain peace and your education will become meaningful.

Embodiments of Love!

I shower My love and blessings on one and all.

Be always united and spend your time in bliss. Make your parents happy. Your body is given to you by your parents. Hence, first of all, express your gratitude to them for this gift. Only then can you find fulfilment in life.

All men are Mine; so the whole World has to be saved from the consequences of ignorance or limited knowledge. I will get all My people near Me, for they are Mine, and I am theirs. Then, I will start teaching and training them, until they become entirely ego-free. For the last 25 years, it has all been sweetness, kindness, soft persuasion;

hereafter, it will be different. I will drag them, place them on the table and operate. That is to say, I have no anger or hate. I have only love. It is Love that prompts Me to save them and to open their eyes, before they get deeper into the morass.

Embodiments of Love!

Man thinks that he is able to lead a comfortable life with the help of wealth, food, clothing, houses, etc., he has acquired. This is not true. The very survival of a human being is dependent on God's grace. There are many wealthy people in this world. Do they all lead a comfortable life? It is a fact that none can achieve anything in this world without God's grace. Hence, first and foremost man must contemplate on God. One may read a number of books, acquire a number of academic

You should not pray to God for seeking this favour or that. The reason is that no one knows what immensely precious, divine, and magnificent treasures lie in the treasure house of Divine grace. No one can know what God intends or desires to give to a devotee. In such a situation, by asking for trivial and petty things, man is demeaning his divine estate. No one can understand what valuable, sacred, and divine favour God chooses to confer on a deserving devotee. Hence, man should not seek from God nor desire nor pray for some petty trifles. More precious and desirable than anything else is God's love.

Baba

degrees and visit a number of countries, but these cannot help a human being to lead a comfortable life.

Education Sans Educare Is No Education

People think that they have acquired high academic qualifications, but they enable them to acquire only bookish knowledge. At present, you find that everyone is engaged in acquiring bookish knowledge. But, they forget the fact that people led a happier and better life without bookish knowledge in the past.

People think that pursuing academic education and acquiring bookish knowledge is real education. No, that is not real education. Education devoid of educare is not real education. What is educare? Educare is that which brings out the latent divinity in a human being. Divinity is also known as consciousness. It is only because of the consciousness present in him that every individual is able to know the nature of the world around him. But, unfortunately, no one is able to recognise this all-pervading consciousness. In fact, it is only this consciousness that is protecting every human being. In spite of one's education and scholarship, one is not able to realise this truth. Education is negative and artificial, whereas educare is positive. People are going to foreign countries to acquire such artificial education. What is the use of acquiring such education? Instead, everyone should strive to acquire educare. One need not go to foreign countries for acquiring educare. It wells up from within and protects the person constantly. Educare is the unity of thought, word and deed.

Awareness Of The Atma Tattwa Is Real Education

One who has realised his own nature is an educated person in the real sense. One may enquire, Who are you? Who is he? , etc., but one may not know one's own self. One might have acquired encyclopaedic knowledge about everything in this world. But, of what use is it if he does not enquire into himself by questioning

Who am I? Real education constitutes enquiring into oneself about his true nature. You may question someone, Sir! Where did you come from? The person replies, I am from India . That very reply that he came from India connotes a negative sense. The real I is to be explored. That I is the real source. Without realising this source if one simply states that he came from this place or that place, it is not the correct answer. The reply that he came from India refers to the body. The body must have travelled from India. But, the consciousness is all-pervading. When someone questions, Who are you? The correct answer would be, I am I . If someone replies that he came from America or India, it connotes a negative sense. We often make a statement that this is my body, my mind, my intellect, etc. These are all artificial and not real. Nowadays, a lot of research is being made into the nature of the mind. But the mind is never steady. The mind is like a mad monkey and the body is like a water bubble. You are not this mad monkey. You are not this water bubble. The name given to the human race is mankind . But, today that kindness is gone and mankind has become monkey mind. You don't find even an iota

Eschew Body Attachment

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume -38

of kindness and compassion in human beings today.

Realising one's innate divinity is educare. That innate divinity in man has been referred to by several people as atma. Without realising the nature of the atma one cannot understand the nature of the body.

Educare consists of realising the nature of the atma. When someone questions you what is the meaning of the word self , you answer I .

But that is not the correct meaning of self. It is not correct to identify I with self , i.e., body. I refers to Aham (individualised soul). As long as one identifies I with self, one cannot understand the real meaning of I . It is only when one sheds attachment to self and develops the feeling of equanimity, can one understand the nature of atma. This Atma Tattwa is equally present in every being. This is the fundamental principle. It is only because of this fundamental principle that every living being acquires value. One has to recognise this fundamental principle. Only then does one deserve to be called a human being. In this world birds and beasts live along with human beings. Human beings can be differentiated from birds and beasts only when man realises that fundamental I which is the Atma Tattwa. Since ancient times people in India have been striving to realise this fundamental I which is present in all beings.

The Fundamental I Alone Is Eternal

These days people are confronted with several difficulties and worries in their life since their awareness is limited to bodily relationship. Such body consciousness is artificial. It does not reveal their true Self. One has to strive to realise the fundamental I. Human body is ephemeral and is bound to perish one day or the other. When we speak of I, it should not be limited to the ephemeral human body, but to the fundamental I.

The body is made up of five elements and is bound to perish sooner or later but the indweller has neither birth nor death. The indweller has no attachment whatsoever and is the eternal witness.

(Telugu poem)

The deha (human body) with which we identify ourselves saying I, is subject to birth and death again and again. But, the dehi (indweller), is the eternal devadeva (Paramatma). While the vesture of deha (body) has birth and death, the dehi is beyond birth and death and is omnipresent.

Consciousness has neither birth nor death. It has neither beginning nor end. It is present in all beings as the eternal witness.

(Telugu poem)

You might have observed a beggar standing infront of your house seeking alms with a request Bhavathi bhikshaamdehi (give me alms). He is reminding you of your true nature of divinity by addressing you so.

182

Eschew Body Attachment

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume -38

The word Dehi refers to divinity. He is seeking alms from God Himself. Hence, true education is realising the dehi. Education is not merely reading a number of books, which confers only bookish knowledge. Why do you run after these books? This bookish knowledge will enable you to merely eke out a livelihood. But, there is something beyond this bookish knowledge and livelihood, which all of you have to pursue.

Can you call all those who know how to read and write educated?

Can one be called educated merely by acquiring degrees?

Can you call it education which does not confer virtues?

If education is just for a living, don't we find birds and beasts carrying on their lives?

(Telugu poem)

One may acquire a lot of wealth and become a millionaire with the help of bookish knowledge and high academic degrees. But, ultimately people will give value to a realised soul and not to the one who has accumulated enormous wealth. As long as the body is present, people will refer to a person as so and so; a very rich person; a king, etc.

At present, man is exposed to unrest and lack of peace. What could be the reason for this state of affairs? Not even one individual is living peacefully. The whole world is in a state of turmoil. It is true that secular education is necessary for one's living in this world. But, one has to go beyond this level and explore into the realm of universal consciousness that leads and motivates every living being. That consciousness is present equally in every human being right from a pauper to a millionaire. The fundamental I is present in you, him and every individual. Here is a small example. Supposing you question somebody, Who is the doctor? The doctor will immediately rise to answer, I am the doctor. In this example, the doctor identifies himself with his profession and says I am the doctor. But he forgets about the fundamental I present in him. When a question is put, Where is God? The natural answer would be, He is present in all. The same truth is enshrined in the aphorisms, Easwarah sarva bhutanam (God is the indweller of all beings) and Isavasyam idam sarvam (the entire universe is permeated by God). Different varieties of sweets like Mysore pak, Gulab jamoon, Laddu, Khova, etc., are prepared. Names are different, but the fundamental ingredient (sugar) in all these sweets is the same. Similarly, one who realises the truth that the same Atma Tattwa is present in every human being and, in fact, in every living being, is the happiest person. Every person must attain such a level of consciousness. People in ancient times strove to attain that state and therefore they were aptly referred to as Yogis. They realised the truth that every human being was actually a three-in-one entity (1) the one he thinks he is, (2) the one others think he is, and (3) the one he really is. All the three aspects are present in one individual, with no separate entity for each aspect. This principle is changeless and eternal.

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume -38

Do Not Give Excessive Importance To Physical Relationships

We often come across people who claim that their sons are employed in lucrative jobs in America. As a matter of fact, who is your son? You say that so and so is your son, keeping in view the bodily relationship with someone who has a name and form. Devoid of name and form, who is the son and who is the father? All these names and forms are acquired only after a person is born.

When man emerges from the womb of his mother, one does not find any garland around his neck. There are no jewels made of pearls nor are there glittering gold ornaments. There are no chains studded with precious stones like emerald and diamonds. But there is one garland around his neck. Brahma strings together the consequences of his past deeds into a heavy garland and puts it around his neck at the time of his birth.

(Telugu poem)

As long as there is bodily relationship between you and him, you call him your son. If the body perishes, whom do you call your son? All these relationships are worldly and physical. As long as the physical relationship exists you consider someone as your relative, friend or foe. Hence, do not ever give excessive importance to these physical relationships. It is only when you rise above these physical relationships that you will realise the Antaryami (inner motivator). You may enquire from any of our boys, Where is God? They will spontaneously answer, Everywhere. In fact, you are God. Their relationship with God is beyond the physical level of the body.

We are always leading a life based on physical relationships. But, these are not permanent. Such relationships exist today, but may cease to exist tomorrow. As long as there is life in the body, you say, I am . Once the body perishes how can you call yourself I ? When you enquire into the matter deeply, everything in this objective world reduces itself to zero. All that we see in this world are zeros. Unfortunately, today we consider the zero as hero. However, there is one fundamental principle I which is eternal. That fundamental principle is hero. It is present in every individual, but it is not noticed. It is the inner motivator. We often refer to our human body consisting of flesh and blood as I . Our physical body is not eternal. It is like the passing clouds which come and go.

Considering such transient body as the eternal I , we often struggle to keep the body in comfort. This is not the correct approach. The body must be employed for the purpose for which it was given to us. Man is born

Eschew Body Attachment

to realise the eternal truth. Here is a small example. You performed the marriage of your son and brought a girl into your house, claiming her as your daughter-in-law. Before her marriage to your son, who was this daughter-in-law? The relationship ceases to exist once you leave this world. Such relationships are like passing clouds. Unfortunately, today we are passing our lives keeping such passing clouds as our true relationships. This is not the proper thing to do. Every individual should desist from leading a life based on dehabhimana (attachment to the body). Even educated people have attachment to the body, they constantly strive to maintain the physical body feeding it with comforts. It is only because of attachment to the body that they are exposed to sorrows and difficulties. Hence, shed body attachment and cultivate attachment to the Eternal Truth. People crave for the darshan of Rama, Krishna and other deities, which are the names given to the physical body donned by Divinity in different ages. As long as you are attached to the physical body, you cannot realise the Atma Tattwa. In fact, atma does not have any attachment. The atma is present in you, Me and every individual and every living being in keeping with the aphorism Ekatma sarva bhutantaratma (one Atma dwells in all beings). Realising the nature of such an all-pervading atma is considered to be true spirituality;

not just performing some rituals like worship, religious vows and bhajans. When someone enquired of Sita, Where is your Rama? , she replied, Sri Rama is always with me only. What people generally refer to is the physical body of Sri Rama, the son of King Dasaratha. In fact, the real Rama is not related to any individual neither the son of some king nor the son-in-law of another king. He is immanent in every living being.

Instead Of Dehabhimana Cultivate Spiritual Relationship

Keeping in view the bodily relationship, people often make enquiries, Where did your uncle come from? Where did your aunt come from? , etc. Supposing you question the same person, Where did you come from? He cannot give a correct answer. The truth is all people come from the same source. When one realises this truth, there will no more be any worry or sorrow. Hence, one has to realise this universal truth. If you do not develop faith in unity, but follow diversity, your entire life will be chaotic. Do not develop attachment to the world. Instead, cultivate spiritual attachment. When you live in harmony with your fellow human beings, you will derive happiness. Then you will enjoy the unity between human beings. The real devotee is one who has realised such unity. Unity leads to purity, which in turn leads to Divinity. One who has not experienced such unity, purity and divinity confines himself to body attachment and will be trapped in the birth-death cycle.

You are all aware of the havoc caused by tidal waves that shook the coastal villages on the east coast of India (Tsunami), a few months ago. More recently, in America a very devastating hurricane submerged several towns and villages. The entire region presented the picture of a vast sheet of water. No one knew who survived and who died. It is only after the water receded, an estimate of the extent of damage caused to life and property could be made.

Embodiments of Love!

Eschew body attachment and realise the unity in divinity present everywhere. That is real sadhana. Today, people undertake sadhana to achieve something, all the while thinking of something else. As a result, they are unable to achieve their goal. Such divided attention is the fault of the concerned individual, but not that of the objective world. Ensure that your sadhana is on the right track. Only then will you be able to realise the unity in diversity. Several people live long years of age, some even 100 years. But, they are unable to realise this unity. Instead, they visualise duality everywhere. This cannot be termed as real sadhana. One who has realised the non-dual (advaita) Brahman alone can be considered to be a real manava (human being). Hence, try to realise the unity in diversity by removing the feelings of duality and experience bliss. In fact, unity is divinity and that divinity is immanent in you. As long as you are under the influence of duality, you will not be able to realise that unity. Realise unity, experience unity and spread unity to the entire world. Unity alone brings purity and purity develops love. If only you develop such pure love, you will be able to understand everything in the spiritual realm. I will take some other opportunity to explain in greater detail the concept of pure love. If you entangle yourself in worldly attachments and still aspire for divinity, how is it possible? Hence, keep yourself away from all attachments and attain unity.

Childhood passes in trivial play with other children.

Youth passes in amorous sport,

Middle age absorbs time and effort in amassing wealth,

Come dotage, time crawls in futile longing for worldly desires, yet there is no time for contemplation of God.

Thus is wasted the precious heritage of human birth, deeply entangled in the net of karma.

(Telugu poem)

Why waste your time in idleness?

Time wasted is life wasted;

Arise, awake, it is not too late,

Think of the future, at least now.

(Telugu poem)

In order to escape being tossed about on the waves of joy and grief, one should cultivate unconcern (upeksha), an attitude of welcoming either, as a sign of Grace. Sri Ramakrishna said that if you must avoid the sticky fluid in the jack-fruit from contacting your fingers when you peel it, you have to apply a few drops of oil on them. So, too, said he, If you do not want the World and its reactions to stick to you, have a few drops of unconcern applied on your mind.

The foundation for real peace is, according to the Vedas, the quality of Maithree. Maithree means amicability, friendship, compassion and kindness.

It can also be taken to mean, My three that is to say, my word, deed and thought shall be in accordance with words, thought and deed; that is to say, we shall speak, think and act together, without friction or fraction, in an atmosphere of love and understanding. That is what is wanted in the world today: My three.

Embodiments of Love! Dear Students!

If you spend your time thus, if you fritter away your time and energy in vain pursuits thus, what for is your human birth? What will happen to you in future? Did you ever ponder over this? Time is the measure for human life. Time is the most precious aspect in human life. Don't waste time. Time wasted is life wasted. You have to seriously question yourself whether it is sensible to waste your time thus. If you waste your precious time in this young age, when will you be able to sanctify your life?

Man has to perform karma in this karmabhoomi (field of activity) right from birth to death. In fact, the human birth has been given to us to perform karma. We are, therefore, engaged in performing various karmas continuously. But, very few make any effort to enquire from themselves whether the karmas performed are satkarmas (good deeds) or not.

One has to strive to sanctify his time right from childhood. We are partaking of a variety of items as food to sustain the human body. But, none is making an enquiry whether the food one consumes is proper and healthy; whether it is beneficial for nourishing and nurturing his physical, mental and spiritual health.

Man is born out of karma, grows and departs from the world due to karma;

Karma is verily the embodiment of divinity. It is only due to Karma that Happiness and sorrow occur in the world.

(Telugu poem)

The Bhagavad Gita exhorts that man has a right only to perform his duty and not to the fruit thereof. Of course, there will be a result for every karma that is performed by a human being. There will be a good result for a good karma and a bad result for a bad karma. This is the eternal law. When you partake of a mango fruit, you will have only the belch of that fruit and not that of a lime fruit. In the same manner, your head (thoughts) will always be conditioned by the type of food you consume.

Transform Yourselves Into Satwic Individuals

As is the food, so is the head (thoughts). As is the head, so is God. Thus, the food, the head, and God will be on the same wavelength. Hence, one has to cultivate good and noble thoughts always. If you eat satwic food and cultivate satwic nature right from childhood, your entire life will run smoothly. Hence, one has to be wary of his food and head (thoughts). If you wish to sanctify your human birth, you should not live like a bird, beast or an animal. Having taken birth as a human being, one has to perform the karmas worthy of a human being. One has to conduct oneself as a human being. What does the term Human Values imply?

Sathya (Truth), Dharma (Righteous Conduct), Santhi (Peace), Prema

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume -38

(Love) and Ahimsa (Non-Violence). It is only when we cultivate and manifest these five human values in our daily lives that we will be entitled to be called as human beings. Human being is a repository of trigunas, namely, satwa (calm serenity), rajas (passionate activity), tamoguna

(sloth and slumber). Unfortunately, today, we find the rajo and tamo gunas more active in human beings. We do not find even a trace of satwic guna anywhere. Hence, it is of utmost importance today that people are taught and encouraged to cultivate satwaguna, perform satwic karmas and finally reach the abode of satwaguna.

Embodiments of Love!

You are now in the stage of childhood. This is the right age to cultivate satwic qualities. The quality of your life in the later stages will depend on the qualities you cultivate now. What is the use of trying to cultivate Satwaguna at the very end of your life, when your physical body refuses to co-operate with you in your sadhana? Hence, you must cultivate and put into practice satwic qualities in the youthful age itself. If man wishes to experience manavatwa (humanness) and reach divatwa (divinity), satwaguna is very essential. It is only when you consciously cultivate satwaguna that you will be able to attain satwic nature. If you aim to attain satwic nature but indulge in rajasic and tamasic acts, it is not possible. All our ancient sages and seers did their sadhana when they were young and strong. Embodiments of Love!

You have to partake of satwic food. By partaking of satwic food, you will be able to cultivate satwic thoughts. And, by cultivating satwic thoughts, you will be able to undertake satwic karmas. It is absolutely necessary that one should have satwic friends in youth and constantly move about in their company. It is said,

Good company leads to detachment;

Detachment makes one free from delusion;

Freedom from delusion leads to steadiness of mind;

Steadiness of mind confers Liberation.

(Sanskrit verse)

Hence, you have to consume satwic food keeping your goal of liberation in mind. You may at times have a doubt that you would not get such satwic food always. I do not at all agree with this view. Don't you get vegetables and edible green leaves in plenty? In fact, the moment you are born out of your mother's womb, you are surviving and thriving on your mother's milk or cow's milk. Is this not satwic food? Can you not live upon a vegetarian diet consisting of vegetables, green leaves and cow's milk? Why should you cater to the dictates of your palate adding chillies, salt, tamarind and spices? It is only when you gradually reduce these ingredients for taste you will be able to cultivate satwaguna. Parents have a great responsibility in teaching the children about the efficacy of satwic food and getting them accustomed to it right from their childhood. On the other hand, if the parents themselves prepare and serve rajasic and tamasic food consisting of meat, fish, etc., in their homes, how can they expect the children to develop satwaguna? I am of the view that the children at least should abstain from such rajasic and tamasic food and demand from their parents only the satwic food. One has to consciously cultivate the habit of consuming of only satwic food. Only then will one be able to develop satwaguna.

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume -38

Embodiments of Love!

All our senses are conditioned by the trigunas and the gunas, in turn, are conditioned by the food we consume. Hence, if we start eating satwic food, undertake satwic karmas and move about in the company of satwic friends, I am sure that we can transform ourselves into satwic individuals. It is the bad company that is responsible for evil qualities. If you want to cultivate good qualities, you have to eat satwic food. In fact, it is the food that we consume is responsible for all the evil qualities.

Shun Evil Qualities

Dear students!

If you develop bad qualities like anger, passion, envy, jealousy, etc., right from this early age, your entire life will be spoiled. You are poisoning your young minds with these evil qualities. My advice to the youngsters and students is eat satwic food; cultivate satwic behaviour and keep the company of satwic people right from this early age. I often observe that youngsters today join bad company the moment they enter the school or college and continue to move about in the company of bad people. With the result, they cultivate bad qualities, resulting in bad behaviour. Often they are not even aware of the subtle changes taking place in their behaviour towards elders, parents, teachers and society. They think that they are on the right track, since they are pursuing education in a good educational institution. The education they are pursuing may be good, but the core of their heart is polluted due to bad company. Several bad thoughts emanate in their mind even at a young age.

People think that it is a natural phenomenon due to young age. I do not at all subscribe to this view. It is not a natural phenomenon at all! It is most unnatural. Since you are partaking of bad food, you are having bad thoughts. Hence, first and foremost, give up bad food. People who are devoted to Swami, must join satsanga. But, you are joining bad company and, as a result, are developing bad thoughts. Once bad thoughts enter your mind, none can drive them away. Hence, you have to cultivate good thoughts, even before bad thoughts enter your mind.

Dear children!

There are several parents who are not concerned about the future of their children. Either they are too busy pursuing their vocations or they are helpless in supervis198

199

Cultivate Satwic Qualities Right From Childhood

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume -38

ing your behaviour. But, if you tread the right path they will be most happy. On the other hand, if you are moving about in bad company cultivating bad habits, resulting in bad behaviour, they will be very sad and will be unable to share their distress or anguish with anybody. Hence, it is your foremost duty to keep your parents happy. If you want to keep your parents happy, you must tread the right path. So, tread the right path and keep your parents happy. Only then will you be able to cultivate good behaviour.

There are three aspects in human life which are interlinked the thoughts, behaviour and the end result. As are the thoughts, so will be the behaviour and as is the behaviour, so will be the result. Teachers expect good behaviour from their pupils. How is it possible when the students move about in bad company, eat wrong kind of food and entertain bad thoughts? The end result is always bad in such a situation. While taking bitter food, how can you experience sweetness? In short, the rajasic and tamasic food that you consume is the root cause for the bad thoughts that are entering your mind.

Dear students!

All of you must tread the right path. Even if your parents for any reason offer you rajasic and tamasic food prepared in the home, you must explain and convince them of the ill-effects of such food, saying, Mother! If you serve rajasic and tamasic food to methus, I will only get bad thoughts. This is not conducive to good behaviour on my part. You must also convince them of the need to prepare and serve satwic food to all members of the family. Not only should you eat satwic food, you should also read good books. Your entire life is dependent on good food, good thoughts and good company.

Dear students!

You should not read all sorts of trash like cheap novels, stories, etc. Such trash will generate bad thoughts in you and pollute your mind. When you go to a library, you should read the biographies of great and noble people which will help to cultivate good qualities and good thoughts in you. One reason for the pollution of young minds and proliferation of bad thoughts in them is reading all sorts of cheap literature. In fact, it is only the mind that is responsible for good or bad thoughts. That is why it is said, Manaeva manushyanam karanam bandha mokshayoh (Mind alone is the root cause for either bondage or liberation). Unfortunately, in these days it is only cheap books that have become popular and acquired great attraction. Good books have become a rare commodity. A question may arise as to where one would get such good books. You go to good libraries of institutions committed to the moral and spiritual uplift of humanity. Frequently we come across people travelling in trains and buses purchasing worthless books available in the railway platforms and bus stands and reading them with absorbing interest. They may say that they are reading them for whiling away the time. They do not realise how harmful those books are in generating bad thoughts and polluting their minds. Hence, you must always select books that contribute to your intellectual, moral and spiritual development.

201

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume -38

Embodiments of Love!

If you wish to cultivate good thoughts and good behaviour, you must read good books. Many students today consider it a fashion to read cheap literature that is available for a low price. With the result, cheap thoughts and cheap behaviour are generated in them. They look for cheap books and trash distributed free of cost. They woefully lack a sense of discrimination to judge whether such writings are conducive to their moral, spiritual and character development. They will, however, realise the consequences of their action after their minds are totally polluted. Then it will be too late for them to retrace their steps. It is only through good books that good thoughts and good behaviour can be cultivated.

Dear students!

There are several other important aspects to be taught to you in these three days which will enable you to cultivate noble thoughts and tread the right path. I will teach several aspects in due course that will help you to cultivate pure thoughts.

Develop The Spirit Of Oneness

Embodiments of Love!

Today, being Ladies day, many ladies have gathered here to share their happiness with one and all. We distinguish and differentiate between ladies and gents on the basis of upadhi (vesture) or physical form. However, the principle of Brahman present in ladies and gents is one and the same. Sarvam khalvidam Brahma (verily all this is Brahman). Everyone aspires to attain divinity. Many sages, seers and yogis did intense penance to have the vision of God. Where is God? Daivam manusha rupena (God incarnates in the form of a human being). God assumes human form to protect humanity. This has been the mission of all avatars.

Every One Is An Embodiment Of God

Embodiments of Love!

God transcends names, forms and attributes. He is infinite and not limited to a particular form. Once Sage Narada and a few other sages prayed to Lord Narayana to incarnate in human form and redeem mankind. Lord Narayana said, Narada, Brahma Shakti (Divine power) is positive. It is not possible for Brahma Shakti to incarnate on earth unless it is coupled with negative power. It is only when the positive and negative combine that Divinity manifests in human form.

In response to the prayers of sages and seers, God comes down in human form. He strives for the welfare of humanity and bestows joy on one and all. The Avatar is a manifestation of Brahmaswarupa and manavatwa (humanness). The same principle of Brahman is latent in all. One has to develop inward vision in order to experience Him. Easwara sarva bhutanam (God is the indweller of all beings). In this cosmic drama, God alone is the director and also the actor. He is donning all the roles such as mother, father, husband, wife, daughter, son, etc. Someone says, I have been blessed with a grandson today . The grandson is a manifestation of Brahma. Brahma alone assumes various names and forms in this world. When God incarnates on earth, He has to assume the form of jiva. The principles of daivatwa (Divinity) and jivatwa (individual) are inseparable. You cannot find one to the exclusion of the other. Divinity has no specific form. Only the jiva has a name and a form but not deva. He is present in all. In fact, each one of you is an embodiment of God. Whatever you see around is also the manifestation of God. Even the small birds that you see here are endowed with the principle of divinity. There is no place which is not pervaded with divinity. There is no form which is not divine. However, God assumes a particular form based on the feelings of His devotees.

God is extolled as Sabda Brahmayi, Characharamayi, Iyotirmayi, Vangmayi, Nityanandamayi, Paratparamayi, Mayamayi and Sreemayi (embodiment of sound, mobility and immobility, light, speech, eternal bliss, perfection, delusion and wealth). Hence, even the words that we utter manifest our innate divinity. It is God who speaks through each one of you. You should have this firm conviction. If someone accuses you, think that God in that form is accusing you. When you develop such spirit of oneness and tolerance, you will never be perturbed by censure and blame. Your mind will always remain in peace. Whatever may happen, accept it wholeheartedly as the Will of God. Have firm faith that it is God and God alone who is the doer. Do not consider your fellow human beings as mere individuals. When you talk to someone, think that you are talking to God. When you do not see God in others and treat them as your own, you will be giving room to evil qualities like anger, jealousy, hatred, etc. Develop the spirit of oneness. Only then will your life be redeemed.

When you go to a noble soul and ask him for a message, he will merely say, My dear son, know thyself. Today People are interested in knowing about others. They keep on enquiring, Who are you? Where do you come from? But, they do not enquire into themselves

Develop The Spirit Of Oneness

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume -38

Who am I? It is only when you conduct such a self enquiry, will you get the correct answer. God has given you the human body. It is He who makes you talk, walk, laugh and even cry. Everything happens according to His Will. Develop such firm faith.

Selfless Desires Of Mother Easwaramma

On this occasion, we should remember Mother Easwaramma and the ideals she exemplified. She was a paragon of virtues. She was always happy, cheerful and had a smiling countenance. Her heart was tender and sweet as it was filled with love and compassion. One day she approached Me with a request, Swami, when the children of our village suffer from any ailment, their mothers have to carry them all the way to Bukkapatnam hospital. It is a heartrending sight to see the grief-stricken mothers carrying their children that far. There is no guarantee that they get proper medical attention even after going there. Hence, kindly establish a small hospital in our village itself. I pacified her saying that her wish will certainly be fulfilled at an appropriate time. It is only when the kala, karma, karana and kartavya (time, action, reason and duty) are favourable, can one attain the desired result. I constructed a hospital as per her wish. On some other day, she came to Me with another prayer, Swami, I am unable to bear the sight of small children carrying heavy loads of books and walking all the way to Bukkapatnam school. Even You had to walk to Bukkapatnam school in those days. Kindly construct a small school in our village and save them from the trouble of trudging all the way to Bukkapatnam for their studies. I assured her, Don't worry, I will surely construct a school in the village. Accordingly, I fulfilled her wish.

She came to Me with yet another request, Swami, people in our village are suffering for want of drinking water facility. They have to go all the way to Chitravathi river to fetch water. Even in Chitravathi, we do not find water always. It is not a perennial river. We find water only when there are rains. I feel very sad to see small children carrying pots filled with water on their tender shoulders. Water is the sustainer of life. Hence, kindly get a well dug in our village and quench the thirst of people. I told her, Your desires are very simple. I will certainly fulfil them in a big way. You don't worry about these things. I will make sure that the people of our village have proper education and medical facilities.

As per My promise to her, I got a small school constructed in the village. In the earlier days, she was concerned that not all the children of all the villages were attending school. Later on, I established a college. Easwaramma was very happy. Gradually, the college has developed into a university.

To begin with, I got a small hospital constructed on the top of the hill. Dr. Seetharamaiah from East Godavari district came here to serve in the hospital at

207

Develop The Spirit Of Oneness

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume -38

My behest. He was an ardent devotee. He served here till his last breath. The hospital was totally managed by one doctor and two nurses in those days. Now much more has been achieved than what Easwaramma had asked for by establishing a Super Speciality Hospital.

The simple desires of Easwaramma in those days paved the way for gigantic social welfare projects.

Once when I went to the banks of the river Chitravathi,

I noticed some ladies from the village scooping out sand to get their pots filled with water. Later, Easwaramma also told Me about the hardships of the housewives in the village for obtaining drinking water and requested Me to do something to relieve their difficulties.

Thereafter, I arranged for water to be supplied to the villages from a few hundred kilometres away. In fact, I fulfilled every little desire that she had expressed, the reason being, her desires were never for her own benefit but invariably in the larger interest of the villagers.

Whenever anyone expresses a truly selfless desire, Swami will surely fulfil such wishes. What was once a small school has now been transformed into a multi-disciplinary university. What was once a small well has been transformed into a gigantic water supply system.

Electricity was a rare privilege for the rural population

those days. The politicians who came to power were not very enthusiastic and effective in supplying electricity for most villages. Therefore, I decided that without seeking their assistance or help, I must get these facilities provided by Myself. When Puttaparthi was electrified, there was jubilation and this even caused jealousy in nearby villages. Hence, I expanded the facility to other villages also. These were not casual acts of fancy, but were provided after ascertaining the needs of the villagers.

See this vast auditorium. For whom have I got it constructed? Is it not for the comfort of all of you? It is said, Paropakaraya punyaya, papaya parapeedanam (one attains merit by helping others and commits sin by hurting them). Help ever, Hurt never. Hence, always strive to help everybody. Selfishness is an evil. Fish is better than selfish.

Unfortunately, today you see persons who are utterly selfish everywhere. It is difficult to trace the origin of the present-day politics steeped in utter selfishness, but its consequences are rampant corruption and evil tendencies. If this kind of politics is eliminated, there will be happiness all around. All and sundry have now entered politics. Even panwalas and beedi vendors have developed political aspirations. One has to understand the true purpose and significance of politics before one enters into it. Instead of being helpful to society politicians actually engage themselves in harming those whom they are supposed to serve. Those in power expect that everyone should hanker after them for obtaining things as a matter of favour which in fact, are their right. I would therefore advice that you shun such politics. Instead, rely on your own innate strength. What sort of a practice is it to go from door to door begging for votes? If you lack the competence, your endeavours

Develop The Spirit Of Oneness

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume -38

are bound to fail. Depend on God's grace. If you depend on God, He will turn the minds of people in your favour. God is everything. Victory is secured only when you totally depend on God's grace. Here again your prayers to God should not be for selfish reasons. If you are selfish, it practically renders you incapable of helping others. First of all, acquire good qualities. You must be helpful to a few people around you at least. Your efforts should reflect an element of sacrifice. Karmanyevadhikarasthe ma phaleshu kadachana (you have right only to work, but not to the fruit thereof). Be active in your life. Whatever work you take up, depend on your own innate strength. Do not depend on assistance, support or help from others. Be self-reliant. If you wish to have your family and children well educated and flourishing, you pray to God.

Strive To Purify Your Heart

Wherever you look, God is present. From stars to hillocks, from insects to elephants, everything is pervaded by Brahman. Fill your heart with divine feelings. God is known as Hridayavasi (resident of heart). Here heart does not mean the physical heart. If there is enlargement of physical heart, it results in a disease. What I refer in this context is the spiritual heart which is present in every individual. When there is an expansion of heart, it gives rise to broadmindedness. On the other hand, when there is contraction of heart, you will have only narrow feelings. Hence, never entertain mean qualities. The human birth is highly sacred. That is why God assumes the human form. Hence, develop purity of heart and lead your lives in a sacred manner. When I give a discourse or involve you in bhajan singing, it is only meant for the expansion of your heart. When you participate in Nagar Sankirtan in the early hours of the day, your heart will be brimming with bliss. It is not enough if you merely sing for your own satisfaction. You should participate in community singing wholeheartedly and share your joy with one and all. Sing His glory full-throated and make everyone drink the nectar of the divine name. Your aim should always be to attain expansion of heart in every endeavour. Only then will the title of human being befits you. Be broadminded and share your happiness with everybody.

At present selfishness and self-interest are on the rise. People are not striving to purify their hearts. On the other hand, they are trying to cover up their mistakes and pose to be men of eminence. They are interested only in the welfare of their own family and friends. You should have concern for the feelings and well-being of others also. Love is God. Live in love. Love should not be tainted with narrow feelings of I and mine. All should live in amity with the spirit of oneness. It is possible only when you have firm faith that God is present in all. Without the presence of divinity within, one cannot live. With such awareness, live always in God consciousness. Consider the suffering of others as your own. Do not do unto others what you do not want others to do unto you.

Ladies Day, 19-11-2005, Prasanthi Nilayam

Dear Students!

I do not wish to speak much about the present day education. In fact, there is but one purpose and goal for education; that is truth. Whatever is learnt other than truth, cannot be construed as true education. That is only secular education. There are many educated people in the world today. But, what is it that they are engaged in? I do not find educated people engaged in service to society today. Nevertheless, the educational institutions in the world are turning out more and more such educated people. The education that these people acquire is only secular education and not spiritual education. In fact, spiritual education is the only true education, which will establish the existence of god. Secular education enables one to secure employment and eke out a living thereby. It is for the physical sustenance of the person concerned

There is no Vidya which our students are not proficient in. They develop all the virtues and they saturate every act of theirs, including their skills and studies, with those high and pure qualities. To demonstrate that this process will yeild joy, peace and prosperity, I have these students as My instruments. They would themselves act as ideals. They are the source of My delight and they sustain My hopes. They are My Ananda and Ahaara.

Baba

and his or her family. As the saying goes, The end of education is character. Devoid of character, all other possessions are useless. Unfortunately, today character building has been relegated to the background. It is the last priority. Of what use is it to pursue such education which does not confer character on a person? Modern education may help one to gain control over men and matter, but utterly fails in uplifting one's own self. There must be unity between one's inner feelings and outward actions. The harmony between thought, word and deed is of utmost importance. Education should enable one to cultivate good qualities, character and devotion.

Character Is The Mark Of A Human Being

When there is unity between thought, word and deed, one can acquire purity and realise divinity. Modern education is fully self-centred. Wherever you see, selfishness is rampant. Contrary to it, true education teaches selflessness. People pursuing such type of education, give up their selfish interests and work for the larger interest of society. It is said, Paropakaraya punyaya papaya parapeedanam (one attains merit by serving others and commits sin by hurting them). Wherever you see, people today analyse whether a particular activity they wish to undertake will bring material benefit to them or not. Everywhere you will find only selfish interest coming to the fore. People tend to forget that the real self is one's own Self (atma), which is the same Self (atma) present in every individual. And, that Self is chaitanya shakti

(the power of universal consciousness). This Chaitanya Shakti is present in every human being, nay every living being. That is why it is said, Easwarah sarva bhutanam (God is the indweller of all beings). Hence, one has to give up one's self-interest and strive to realise the atma tattwa that is present in every living being. Modern education is steeped in utter selfishness. It is only when one transcends his self-interest can one acquire true education and purity of heart. One has to rise above self-interest and help others with a spirit of sacrifice. It is only then that one can become a true human being and can be called as such; not by mere education. Birds, beasts and animals cannot realise this sacred atma tattwa and manifest selflessness.

Only a human being can do so by sadhana. A human being can acquire value only by developing good character. Hence one has to strive to acquire and protect one's character by pursuing true education.

Education is not for earning a fat pay-packet. After all, what can money do? In what way can it help us? It may perhaps help us to acquire name and fame and build palatial buildings with modern comforts. But, devoid of character, of what use are all these comforts? Unfortunately, today the world respects such people only. In My view, a person without character is unfit to be called a human being. He is only an animal. Even an animal is better than such a human being, for, it has a season and a reason. But, a human being has no season and reason at all! Wherever you see, you will find only selfishness today. Only such people pass off as

gentleTruth

And Righteousness, The Foundation For True Education

men in society in present times. Then again, character is the most important aspect of a human being. Truth and righteousness are the foundation for character. As the saying goes, Sathyannasti paro Dharma (There is no Dharma greater than adherence to truth). The mansion of righteousness rests on the foundation of truth. If the very foundation of truth collapses, there can be no righteousness. Hence, truth and righteousness are the two most important limbs of a human being. When truth and righteousness go together, love manifests.

Bereft of truth, righteousness, love and peace the value of all your education is zero;

Bereft of truth, righteousness, love and peace the sanctity of all your acts of charity is zero;

Bereft of truth, righteousness, love and peace the utility of the positions of power occupied is zero;

Bereft of truth, righteousness, love and peace the result of all your good deeds is zero;

These four qualities are the four pillars that support the mansion of Sanathana Dharma.

What more can I explain,

Oh! Men of noble qualities!

(Telugu poem)

There can be no peace without truth, righteousness and love. You often come across people complaining, I have everything in life, but I have no peace of mind. A person without peace of mind is confronted with troubles from all sides. If only one has peace of mind, one can be happy in the world. He will have no troubles at all! Such a person is a great soul.

Let us now analyse the true meaning of the word Manava (human being). It means one without attachment to the world. Only such a person can be called a real human being. To marry someone, beget children and develop a family these are all considered to be attachments. Man loses peace on account of developing attachments. A paradoxical situation has developed today where man has everything good food, comfortable life, etc., but, he has no peace of mind. Why? Because, he has developed an attachment to the objects of enjoyment. Peace is something which cannot be purchased in a market. It depends upon one's attitude to life and living. Hence one has to develop ekatma bhava (feeling of oneness). If this ekatma bhava is developed, one can move about freely in the world with no attachment to any particular individual or object. When man loses his freedom he will become bound by the objective world. He will develop desires, lust, etc. Where there is lust, love cannot exist. The rose flower which is a symbol of love teaches many good things. It is a thing of beauty that speaks silently in the language of fragrance. It is surrounded by thorns. In this example, the rose flower is comparable to love and the thorns to lust. Man must be able to pluck the flower of love without being pricked

Truth And Righteousness, The Foundation For True Education

by the thorns of lust. It is only when man develops pure love untainted by desire and lust that he can be called a true human being.

Attachment Denies Peace

Adi Sankara, the greatest exponent of the Advaita philosophy, once went on a tour to North India on a mission of winning over scholars by argumentation. During the course of his tour, he came across a great scholar by name Mandana Mishra. He had a wife by name Ubhaya Bharati who was equally well-versed in scriptures. Besides, she was a realised soul. She was selected to be the arbitrator and judge to decide the winner in the argumentative sessions between Sankaracharya and Mandana Mishra. She was a truthful lady and was aptly suited to be a judge. The judges of modern times are not comparable to Ubhaya Bharati in the qualities of truth and objectivity.

She always believed in the aphorism Truth is God and therefore was eminently suited for the assignment. The arguments commenced in the presence of Ubhaya Bharati. She was following the arguments and counter arguments with rapt attention. Finally, Sankaracharya defeated Mandana Mishra and he was declared as winner by Ubhaya Bharati. As per the conditions, Mandana Mishra had to take to sanyas and he did accordingly. As a dutiful wife, Ubhaya Bharati followed suit and she also took to sanyas. A question may arise here as to what is sanyas in the real sense. It is giving up of all desires. As long as one entertains desires, he will only be a samsari (householder). He will develop worldly relationships. He will desire to have a son in the first instance. Thereafter, the whole retinue of daughter-in-law, grandsons, granddaughters, etc., will follow. Ubhaya Bharati did not wish to entangle herself in the web of such worldly relationships.

Hence, she took to sanyas (renunciation).

One day, she was going along with her disciples to the river Ganga for taking a holy dip. On the way, she observed a sanyasi relaxing on the wayside, keeping a dried bottle gourd under his head. This, he was using for storing drinking water and hence he was preserving it safely. Ubhaya Bharati saw this sanyasi's attachment to the bottle gourd and commented to her disciples, Look! This man calls himself a sanyasi, but he is attached to a bottle gourd which he is keeping safely under his head as a pillow. The sanyasi heard this comment, but did not utter anything then. While Ubhaya Bharati and her disciples were returning from the river, he threw away the bottle gourd in front of them in order to demonstrate that he was not attached to the article. Observing his action,

Ubhaya Bharati aptly remarked, I thought there was only one defect in him abhimana (attachment). Now I realise that he has another defect also ahamkara (ego). How can one with abhimana and ahamkara become a jnani and sanyasi? Her comment was an eye-opener for the sanyasi. Immediately, he fell at the feet of Ubhaya Bharati and prayed to her to teach him true knowledge.

Truth And Righteousness, The Foundation For True Education

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume -38

People today put up a show as though they had renounced everything. In fact, it is they who crave for worldly possessions. Dear students! You are all engaged in pursuing education. Hence, you must have only one desire now. That is Brahmacharya (celibacy). When you come here to join the Sri Sathya Sai Institute of Higher Learning as students, you pray, Swami! We don't want anything. We have no desires like marriage, setting up a family and building of houses, etc. Please lead us on the path of liberation. But, the moment you leave the portals of the Institute, umpteen number of desires swarm you like honey bees.

Bad Company And Bad Place Influence Human Behaviour

Man's behaviour is influenced by Sthanabala (power of the place), Bhujabala (power of the physical body) and Dhanabala (power of wealth). For instance, in the Ramayana, when Sita, Rama and Lakshmana were taking a stroll in the forest, Lakshmana suddenly felt tired and told Rama that he was exhausted and would like to go back to Ayodhya as quickly as possible to have a more comfortable living. Rama smiled at him and said, Let us proceed further, I shall explain everything later. How did Lakshmana who previously had declared that Rama was everything to him and that he would not live without Rama even for a moment, suddenly develop this attitude? How did this concern for bodily comfort arise in him suddenly? After they walked some distance, they sat under a tree. That moment Lakshmana felt the pangs of repentance for his impertinent behaviour. He realised his mistake, caught hold of Rama's feet and implored, Rama! Forgive me for what I had said. I cannot understand how these devilish qualities and bad thoughts entered

me. What could be the reason? Rama thought over the matter for some time and explained, Lakshmana! The region through which we passed just now was the haunt of Surpanakha. She used to rest under that tree. Hence, the place is surcharged with all her devilish qualities.

The vibrations of those evil qualities aroused bad thoughts in you. The moment you came out of the place, you are your normal self again. Your inherent good nature asserted itself. Thus, one's association with a particular place also has its effect on one's behaviour. That is what is called sthanabala (power of the place).

People often wish and pray for a son. But what type of son should they pray for? One who will emulate the noble qualities of the parents. Unfortunately, today you do not find noble qualities anywhere. Youngsters often move in bad company and cultivate bad qualities. This is not correct. They should always make friendship with good people and emulate their qualities. The great epic Ramayana is replete with several examples of how association with good people results in developing noble qualities. Adi Sankara in his famous Bhaja Govindam song very graphically described how satsanga would ultimately lead one to liberation:

220

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume -38

Satsangatwe nissangatwam,

Nissangatwe nirmohatwam,

Nirmohatwe nischalatatwam,

Nischalatatwe jivanmukti.

(Sanskrit verse)

Today, people move about in bad company and ultimately spoil themselves. This is the effect of Kali Yuga, which is often referred to as kalaha yuga (the Age of Conflict). Man, by nature is divine, but turns bad on account of dussanga (bad company). That is the reason why sages and seers in ancient times constantly strove to cultivate noble qualities by satsanga. Today, trash literature is found everywhere. Wherever you see, you will find people, especially youngsters reading bad books that pollute their minds. You might have observed youngsters visiting the library invariably on Sundays and holidays. They search for bad books and read them with absorbing interest. Those bad books are very exciting to the young minds. Thus, youngsters spoil themselves on account of bad company. No force on earth can change such boys. Not even God. Unless one makes introspection into one's behaviour and strives for transformation, one will continue to move about in bad company. One's character and conduct are of paramount importance. If they are taken care of, one is sure of treading the right path. There is no use acquiring high academic degrees with a view to earn high salary and position. How long will they last? On the other hand, it is possible that they may land one in trouble sometimes.

In keeping with the saying, Yad bhavam tad bhavati

(as is the feeling, so is the result), one has to cultivate noble thoughts and feelings. One has to read good books that will bring about a transformation of heart and uplift the soul. You often find youngsters going to the library and remain engaged in deep study. What sort of books do they read? They read bad books camouflaged in a good cover. Once you remove the cover and look into the book, everything is trash with bad pictures. You will have to be very strict with such students. No one can be taken for granted. They speak sweet words outwardly as though they are very innocent. But, they stealthily engage themselves in bad activities. Unlike the students in the Gurukula system of the ancient times, the present day students indulge in bad behaviour. In spite of great efforts on the part of teachers to bring about a transformation in them, they continue to exhibit their bad qualities. It is not surprising to see students assaulting teachers in the educational institutions today. There are students who find fault with those who actually provide for their living.

There are also students who do not hesitate to hurt the very hand that feeds them. Such are the qualities of the present day students. They do not appreciate the role played by the teachers in their uplift.

Truth And Righteousness Are The Foundation For True EducaSathya Sai Speaks Volume -38

What are the qualities expected of a student?

Students should pursue such education which confers on them the sacred qualities like good character, adherence to truth, devotion, discipline and duty.

(Telugu poem)

Only those students who cultivate such qualities are eligible to be called students in the real sense. Those who act against those principles are not students, but stupids. You should not associate with such people. Neither you should call them stupids and earn their wrath. Be neutral in your relationship with them. You should keep up your own good qualities, which the world will appreciate. Love all. In fact, love is the most important aspect of education. One who teaches the method by which man can cultivate selfless love is the real Guru. There are, of course, several such teachers. I have established the Sathya Sai Educational Institutions only with a view to inculcate love and teach good qualities to the students. It is not an exaggeration to say that there is not a single bad book in our library. Our students are very good students. They do not at all move in bad company. Even when they go home for vacation, they do not like to stay there for long. Sometimes, their mothers may say, My dear! You stayed for one full year in Brindavan or Puttaparthi. You never had an opportunity to eat tasty and spicy food. I shall now prepare such food that you will relish. Our boys will then reply, Mother! You should also not eat such rajasic food. It is not good for health. As is the food, so is the head (thoughts). Thus, when the food and head go together, people forget God. Hence, do not change your food habits. Continue to stick to a sattwic diet. Take plenty of green leafy vegetables. It is only when you maintain spartan habits with regard to food and head, will you become a good-natured individual. You are aware that people outside have high expectations of the students studying in Sri Sathya Sai Educational Institutions.

Students, as long as they remain in our hostels, exhibit good behaviour and devotion. Once they go out of the portals of the institution, they turn bad. This should not happen. Wherever you are, whether in the hostel here or when you go out, you must continue to exhibit good behaviour. Of course, I have no doubt at all about the behaviour of our students. They are good boys. I hope that our students will continue to be good and become good citizens worthy of emulation by others. I conclude My Discourse with blessings to all.

Truth And Righteousness, The Foundation For True Education

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume -38

Realise Your Innate Divinity

To Attain Peace

Bereft of truth, righteousness, love and peace the value of all your education is zero;

Bereft of truth, righteousness, love and peace the sanctity of all your acts of charity is zero;

Bereft of truth, righteousness, love and peace the utility of the positions of power occupied is zero;

Bereft of truth, righteousness, love and peace the result of all your good deeds is zero.

(Telugu poem)

Embodiments of Love!

Human birth is meant to attain peace and not for occupying positions of authority. One may have all types of wealth and comforts but bereft of peace life itself has no meaning. There are many in this world who are well-to-do, highly educated and occupy This is the best time to tell you something about the authenticity of this Advent. I only wish to communicate the Truth. There are many who cannot bear or tolerate the Splendour that I am manifesting, the Divinity that is expressed in every act, the wonders and amazing happenings that are the result of Grace; these people label these as acts of mesmerism or miracles or feats of magic! They hope to bring these down in the estimation of people. Let me tell you this; mine is no mesmerism, miracle or magic. Mine is genuine DIVINE POWER.

Baba

Life sustained by food is short; life sustained by the Atma is eternal. Do not lay claim to long life; but to Divine life. Do not pine for more years on earth, but for more virtues in the heart. The Buddha knew and made known to the World the Truth. Everything is grief. Everything is empty. Everything is brief. Everything is polluted. So the wise man has to do the duties cast upon him with discrimination, deligence and detachment. Play the role but keep your identity unaffected.

Baba

ing positions of authority. But, in what way is society benefited by them? They have no time or inclination to wipe off the tears of the suffering humanity. How can we help the poor and the downtrodden? This should be the concern of the people in power. But, nobody seems to think on these lines. In the name of social work, people are actually indulging in show-work! They drive away the beggars who come to their doorstep begging for alms. Man should engage himself in acts of charity in order to experience peace.

The Goal Of Human Life

You should understand the import of the term manava in the first instance. What is the goal of a human being? Is it to strive for the fulfilment of one's desires? Is it to come up in life in the worldly sense? Is it to enjoy sensual pleasures? Human life is a mixture of happiness and sorrow. It is not possible to experience one to the exclusion of the other. How can you expect to attain happiness and peace if you are not prepared to help your fellow human being? Everyone has to experience ups and downs in life, but they are like passing clouds. Difficulties are a part of life. None can escape them. Hence, one has to treat happiness and sorrow with equanimity. There is pleasure in pain and vice-versa. One should not be elated by pleasure nor depressed by pain. We have to develop the spirit of equanimity in order to progress in life. Samatwa (equality) is very essential for samaja (society) to progress. Sukhadukhe samekruthwa labhalabhau jayajayau (one should maintain equipoise in happiness and sorrow, gain and loss, victory and defeat). But, man, in spite of enjoying all comforts and pleasures, is unable to bear even a small difficulty. He is disturbed and distressed by the slightest trouble. If you ask a well-to-do person, whether he is happy, what will be his reply? He will say, Sir, I have no dearth of money. My sons are well settled in life. My home is very well furnished with all types of comforts and conveniences. I have everything in life except peace of mind. How can one attain peace of mind? It is possible only when one realises his innate divinity. Why are we not able to experience peace? Where does the mistake lie? We go on enquiring from others, Who are you? But, we do not make an effort to enquire into ourselves, Who am I? There lies the mistake. Once we realise who we really are, we will be free from sorrows and difficulties forever. Hence, first and foremost we should make efforts to realise our true identity. What is the use of knowing everything without being aware of the Self?

Is it not a futile exercise to sow seeds when there are no rains? Even when there are rains, can you reap a harvest unless you have sown seeds? Both the positive and the negative are required for the electric current to flow. In the same manner, both self effort and divine grace are essential to achieve success in your endeavours. Easwarah Sarva Bhutanam (God is the indweller of all beings). Isavasyam idam sarvam (the entire universe is

Realise Your Innate Divinity To Attain Peace

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume -38

permeated by God). We must realise that we are born to experience our innate divinity and not merely to enjoy worldly pleasures. We have to take to the path of spirituality to experience our innate divinity. If we lack in spiritual outlook, we do not deserve to be called human beings. In fact, it amounts to betrayal of God. God does not expect you to worship Him. He expects you to lead an ideal and purposeful life.

Once sage Narada enquired Lord Vishnu as to what was the royal path to immortality. Then Lord Vishnu replied, One should realise that I am present in all beings.

The spark of divinity is present in all. Man is not a mere mortal. He is essentially divine. Jiva (individualised soul) and Deva (God) coexist. The former is negative and the latter positive. Lord Vishnu told Narada, I have to assume the form of a human in order to move among men and protect the world. I am present in everyone in the form of atma. When man constantly contemplates on the principle of atma, I manifest Myself.

The same divine principle of atma is present in all. One who realises this truth experiences the all-pervasive divinity. God is in you, with you, around you, above you and below you. However, you cannot realise this truth unless you give up negative feelings. God is everywhere. You do not have to search for Him. Develop firm faith that He is in you. God has no specific form. He transcends all names and forms.

Having been born as a human being you should strive for the welfare of the society. You are a member of the society and your welfare depends on the welfare of the society. Hence, undertake activities which are beneficial to the society.

The Atma Alone Is Eternal, The God In Man
Embodiments of Love!

Do not identify yourself with the body. You are the embodiments of

the atma.

The body is made up of five elements and is bound to perish sooner or later, but the indweller has neither birth nor death. The indweller has no attachment whatsoever and is the eternal witness.

(Telugu poem)

Can anyone say My atma is dead ? The physical body perishes with the passage of time but the atma is eternal. One can see the reflection of the sun in a well, in a water tank, in the river and also in the ocean.

Without water, there can be no reflection. Each human being can be compared to a flow in which the reflection of the same atma is seen. The sun is one, but appears as though there exists a separate sun for each country. When it is daytime in India, it is night-time in America and vice-versa. The sun may appear at different times in different countries, but it is one and the same. We cannot call it as Indian sun,

Realise Your Innate Divinity To Attain Peace

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume -38

American sun and so on and so forth. Similarly, God is one. Truth is one. Love is one. Live in love. When you adhere to the twin principles of truth and love, you will experience the manifestation of divinity in everything.

Who is God? In fact, you yourself are God. Hence, everyone should develop the firm conviction, I am God . When you develop such firm conviction, there will be no room for ego and hatred. You are God and your fellow human being is also God. Develop such principle of oneness and equality. When you harm others, you actually harm yourself. Victory and loss are a part of the game of life. One should not criticise or blame the other. When someone meets with failure in his endeavour, empathise with him. When you do not identify yourself with others, differences are bound to crop up.

Who are you? You think you are the body. But, you are neither the body nor the mind. The human body is like a water bubble. How can you identify yourself with such an ephemeral body? You may say I am the mind . Mind is nothing but a bundle of desires. One day or the other you have to give up all desires. Hence, do not identify yourself with the mind. Today's man has limitless desires. His mind wavers from moment to moment and hence is called a monkey mind. Do not allow your mind to behave like a monkey. You belong to mankind and hence keep your mind always steady. Constantly remind yourself that you are a human being. Daivam manusha rupena (God is in the form of human). Give up body consciousness and live in the constant awareness that you are God.

We construct temples to consecrate idols and worship

them. Where does the idol come from? It is your own creation. You offer worship to the man-made idols but you are not prepared to worship the God in man. There is no point in merely worshipping idols if you do not realise your innate divinity. Everyone must respect and revere the principle of the atma within. Consider atmaviswasa (faith in the Self) as your very life-breath. Faith in the idols is temporary. When you go to Tirupathi, you worship God in the form of Lord Venkateswara. You extol Him saying, Lord Venkateswara is our family deity . When you make a pilgrimage to Brindavan, you worship God in the form of Krishna. In Ayodhya, you worship Him in the form of Lord Rama. Depending on the place and circumstances, different names and forms have been attributed to God. But, in reality Lord Venkateswara, Krishna, Rama, Sai Baba, all are one and the same. Call Him by any name, He will respond. He has no differences. You should not be deluded by differences in name and form. Develop firm faith in the oneness of the atma. Religions are many but the goal is one .

Let Your Mind Be Purified Through Refinement

Embodiments Of Love!

Having come here after spending a lot money

and putting up with inconveniences, you should make proper use of your stay here. Ask yourself, whether you have spent your time in a purposeful manner. What is the use of coming here if you do not practise Swami's teachings? Develop unwavering faith in the oneness of divinity. Only then can you experience peace. So long as you do not contemplate on the oneness of God, your mind will continue to play its tricks.

You may criticise someone as a bad person today and extol him as a good person tomorrow. Good and bad are your own thinking. Your mind is the cause for both. In reality, man is always good by nature. Human life is highly sacred. That is why it is said, Daivam manusha rupena. Do not belittle yourself thinking that you are a mere mortal. You are verily God Himself. The very fact that you portray God in a human form and worship Him proves that human being is essentially divine. Do not attach undue importance to names and forms. Understand the inherent principle of divinity.

What is the use of taking birth as a human being if you conduct yourself like an animal? You need not give up everything and become a sanyasi. See God in man. God is all-pervasive. You cannot say that God is confined to a particular place. There is no place where God does not exist.

Sarvatah panipadam tat sarvathokshi siromukham, sarvatah sruthimalloke sarvamavrutya tishtati (with hands, feet, eyes, head, mouth and ears pervading everything, He permeates the entire universe).

We cultivate paddy. However, we do not consume it in its raw form. We remove the husk covering the grain and refine it into rice. So long as there is husk, it is obliged to have rebirth . Our desires are like the husk covering the rice grain. We will be free from the cycle of birth and death once we give up all desires.

Paddy becomes suitable for consumption only after it undergoes the process of refinement and becomes rice. Rice is used for making various preparations such as Pulihora, Chitraannam, Chakkeram Pongali, Paayasam, etc. Rice flour is used for preparing Idlis and Dosas. The names of these food items may vary, but the essential ingredient of rice is the same in all. Just as paddy is transformed into rice, our mind should also be purified through the process of refinement, termed as samskara.

You are deluded because of your materialistic outlook. You have to change your vision. Do not expect God to change the creation. He has given you everything in its pristine form. But, you are polluting it because of your selfish desires. The mind is the root cause for all this. Hence, annihilate the mind and everything will be clear to you.

Embodiments of Love!

Your heart is pure and sacred but you are deluded by the clouds of desires. Just as the sun and the moon are not visible to us when they are covered by the clouds, we are unable to visualise our reality because of our desires.

235

234

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume -38

Childhood passes in trivial play with other children,

Youth passes in amorous sport,

Middle age absorbs time and effort in amassing wealth.

Come dotage, time crawls in futile longing for worldly desires, yet there is no time for contemplation of God.

Thus is wasted the precious human birth, deeply entangled in the net of Karma.

(Telugu poem)

Man feels proud of his youth and falls into the trap of maya (delusion). As the end approaches he regrets for not having attained peace of mind in spite of enjoying all comforts and pleasures. Man passes through various stages in life, such as, childhood, youth, middle age and old age. However, there is no transformation in him with the advancement of age. Instead of trying to change the srishti (creation), man should change his drishti (outlook). We can see the reality only when we change our drishti. There is nothing wrong with srishti. God's creation is perfect and none can alter it. In this creation God can make anything happen by His divine Will.

So long as one is endowed with physical strength and vigour, one may enjoy himself by participating in aatalu and paatalu (play and song). However, one should not indulge oneself in any activity beyond a certain limit. As the age advances, the physical body undergoes certain changes. All of you are aware what a great singer M.S. Subbulakshmi was. However, her voice refused to cooperate with her in the old age. When she mentioned this to Me, I told her that she had used her voice in excess and that was the reason for her predicament.

Your voice and vision are bound to change with the passage of time. You suffer from unrest and anxiety because you rely on your physical body. Instead, rely on the changeless and eternal principle of the atma.

Man is ruining his life because of his habits. He should lead a life of righteousness. Do not give undue importance to food and drink. Consider character as your very life-breath. If you lack character, you will have to face innumerable difficulties in life.

Contemplate On One Name And One Form

Divinity is referred to as Sat, which means the changeless and eternal principle. People of different religions call it by different names. The Muslims extol God saying, Allah Ho Akbar. They consider God as their sole refuge. Whether one is a Muslim or a Hindu, God is the only refuge for all. You should emphatically declare to yourself, I want God. You should get immersed in the divine, not in deep wine! Once you accept Rama as your God, you should spend your entire life in the contemplation of Rama. But, these days man has become fickle-minded. One day he keeps the picture of

Realise Your Innate Divinity To Attain Peace

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume -38

Lord Rama in his altar and starts worshipping Him by chanting His name, but, the very next day he replaces Rama's picture with that of Krishna's, if his wishes are not fulfilled.

Once there lived a devotee of Lord Siva. He used to worship Siva every day and chant the sacred panchakshari mantra Om Namah Shivaya. But, after some time he felt that Lord Siva had not done him any favour. Hence he put aside Siva's picture in the almirah and kept Rama's picture on the altar. Initially, he could experience some peace. However, his desires remained unfulfilled and he became restless. He kept Rama's picture also in the same almirah and started worshipping Krishna, on the advice of his guru. He chanted the divine name Gopala Krishna incessantly. After some time, he felt that even Krishna had not done him any good. One day a lady devotee came to him and said, What is the use of worshipping Rama and Krishna? Better you do Devi puja (worship). As per her advice, he kept a picture of Devi on the altar and started worshipping it. As the puja was in progress, he noticed that the fragrance from the incense sticks was wafting towards the almirah where the pictures of other deities were kept. He therefore decided to remove those pictures from the almirah thinking that the incense sticks were meant for the goddess and that the other deities had no right to enjoy the fragrance. Immediately, the Divine Mother manifested Herself before him and said, Oh simpleton! You worshipped Siva for a few days, and then you switched over to Rama and later on to Krishna. What is the guarantee that you will not discard My picture also tomorrow? This is not true devotion.

You should contemplate on one name and one form till your last breath. You should remain unperturbed by difficulties and lead a spiritual life. Fill your heart with sacred feelings. Only then will your life be redeemed. If you want to progress in life never forget the name of God. Do not divert your mind from one name to another. Let your mind be focused on one name and one form.

Manah eva manushyanam karanam bandhamo- kshayo (mind is the cause for bondage as well as liberation of man). The mind wavers because of the desires you entertain. Hence, you will attain peace only when you give up desires. Mere performance of acts of charity will not confer nobility on you. Offer yourself to God with single-minded devotion. Only then can you attain peace and happiness. Control your desires. Control your thoughts. Then everything will come under your control.

Embodiments of Love!

You are endowed with the eternal principles of truth and love.

Sathyannasti paro Dharma (There is no Dharma greater than adherence to truth). Consider Sathya as the basis of your life. Follow the path of Dharma. Only then will the principle of Love manifest in you. When you have love, you will be successful in 239

238

Sathya Sai Speaks Volume -38

all your endeavours.

I Am The Truth And The Love Present In All

Embodiments of Atma!

You are not the body which is bound to perish. You are the indweller which has neither birth nor death. It has no attachment whatsoever. You will attain immortality once you realise your true identity. You will be free from all worries and desires. You may ask, Is there anyone without worries and desires? I am Myself the living example in this regard. I have absolutely no desires whatsoever. Everything is in My hand. I can give you whatever you ask for. However, do not crave for materialistic things from Me. They are transient like passing clouds. Ask for that which is eternal. The entire world is sustained by the twin principles of truth and love. They are present in everyone. I am the truth that is present in all. I am the love that is present in all. Truth and love are all-pervasive. However, you are not making efforts to experience truth and love.

Embodiments of Love!

Today you may be occupying positions of power, but how long can you remain in power? It is only temporary.

Only divinity is everlasting. You have chosen the path of truth. Never deviate from it. Never forget the principle of truth you have experienced. You may forget anything in life but not truth and love. Truth is bahirvahini (manifest flux) and love is antarvahini (undercurrent). Both of them have to be protected and sustained. That is the duty of a human being. Bereft of truth and love one does not deserve to be called a human being at all!

Embodiments of Love!

Let your life be filled with love. Do not confine your love to your family and friends. Share it with one and all. Whomsoever you come across, consider everyone as the embodiment of divinity. Share your love with your fellow human being and become the recipient of his love. Follow the path of truth. I always teach the principles of truth and love. Congregations such as this are meant only to exhort you to adhere to the path of truth and love. All of you have gathered here out of your love for Me. Having come here and listened to My message, you should practise truth and love in your daily life. Only that will make Me very happy. Let your love be not tainted with worldly feelings. Let it flow incessantly towards God. This was the ideal demonstrated by Radha. She was the kind of person who was always in the thought of Krishna and her name itself conveys her greatness and sacredness. If you start with R you get Radha; if you start with A you get Adhar (basis), if you start with D you get Dhaara (incessant flow), and if you start with A you get Aradh (worship). This means that the very basis of Radha's life was incessant aradhana (worship) of Lord Krishna. Radha symbolised Dhara (Prakriti or Nature). Krishna was Paramatma

241

(God). Radha knew only Krishna and none else. She was totally immersed in the love of Krishna. It is because of such one-pointed devotion that she could attain liberation.

One who aspires to attain liberation should follow the path of love as demonstrated by Radha.

Embodiments of Love!

I do not want to cause inconvenience to you by speaking at length. Hence, I bring My discourse to a close. Consider whatever work you do as God's work. See God everywhere. I will be happy when you develop such divine feelings. So many people have assembled here. I confer on you the sacred wealth of My love and bliss. May all of you lead a long, happy, healthy and peaceful life!

ublisher's Note

The various festivals that punctuate the Indian calendar in a year invariably bring with them refreshing showers of Wisdom in the form of Discourses from the Divine. This invaluable gift of grace unfailingly reaches millions all over the world, soothing the drooping hearts and rejuvenating the palsied nerves of the listeners and readers alike.

The present compilation of 19 such discourses delivered during the year 2006 which constitute the 39th volume of 'Sathya Sai Speaks' is yet another instalment of His benediction. Moral reconstruction of human society being the avowed mission of the Avatar, these discourses richly contribute to a strong ethical fabric of human society. Though some of them are couched in a language for the younger generation, they are bound to impact the manners and habits of the grownups as well.

This compilation does not include the ten discourses delivered during Ati Rudra Maha Yajna in August 2006, as they have been clubbed together and published as a separate book.

iv

The Book Trust hopes that the readers will receive this volume with the same warmth and delight with which the earlier ones were received.

Discharge Your Duties With

A Sense Of Surrender To God

God is love and love is God. True spiritual discipline lies in developing love to love relationship. Dear children! Hold on to this principle of love and demonstrate the ideal of unity.

(Telugu poem)

Dear Students! Boy And Girls!

It is said Daivam manusha rupena (God incarnates in the form of human being). That is why human birth is considered to be highly sacred. God incarnates in human form to redeem mankind. Do not be under the mistaken notion that God is confined to a specific form. Divinity is not a separate entity. It is immanent in humanity. The human form is a conglomeration of five elements, namely, earth, water, fire, air and ether. The divine power which makes the five elements function is referred to as the atma. What is the form of atma? Many people often ask this question. In fact, it transcends name and form.

2

Distinction Between Education And Educare

Merely having a human form does not make one a human being; it is the conduct and behaviour that matter. In the same manner, mere acquisition of bookish knowledge does not make one truly educated. Such worldly education is negative in nature. One must make a distinction between education and educare. Whereas education is information-oriented, educare is transformation-oriented. Education is limited to physical and mental levels. Just as the rivers like Krishna and Godavari have their source in the ocean, education has its roots in educare. Physical and worldly knowledge corresponds to education. Educare is related to our inner feelings and purity of heart. Our mata, pata and bata (speech, song and way of life) should originate from the heart. That is the essence of educare. Even if you acquire a number of degrees, if you lack purity of heart, you cannot be called truly educated. Nowadays very few make efforts to understand what educare is. Only those endowed with practical knowledge and wisdom will be able to understand and appreciate the concept of educare. Others will be deluded by high academic degrees. They are interested only in acquiring bookish knowledge and disseminating the same. Such vain pursuits will not entitle them to be called really educated. It is common now-a-days for students to acquire various academic degrees such as B.A., M.A., C.A., Ph.D., etc. However, those who understand the real purpose of education and its inner significance are rare. Once you understand the purpose of education and act accordingly, your life will be redeemed. You should not entirely depend on what your teachers teach in the classroom. You have to understand the nature of your body, mind, senses and intellect to be able to realise your inner self.

Every individual has three attributes, namely, satwa, rajas and tamas. They represent the Trinity of Brahma, Vishnu and Maheshwara. Satwa guna corresponds to the inner purity. Rajo guna is reflected in our actions. However, the fundamental truth is that atma has complete control over all the senses and functioning of the human body. You perform various tasks. You participate in sports and games. All these represent rajo guna. These days people teach parartha (spiritual values) without giving up swartha (selfishness). This is a grave error. You should give up swartha in the first instance and consider parartha as the basis of all your endeavours. Develop faith in God. God is the adhara (support) and everything else is adheya (supported). Divinity is one. The Veda has therefore declared: Ekoham bahusyam (the One willed to become many). The names and forms may vary, but the inherent divine principle is one and the same. For example, this hall is decorated with a number of bulbs. But the electric current that flows through them is the same. Similarly, sweets may be many, but the essential ingredient in them, that is sugar which imparts the sweetness is the same. Often times, we merely go by the names and forms, forgetting the reality.

Discharge Your Duties With A Sense Of Surrender To God

Everything Originated From The Atma

A human being should essentially have three qualities nischalathwa, nirmalathwa and nirmohathwa (steadiness, purity and detachment). One who has these three qualities is verily God Himself. You do not need to enquire from others whether you are good or otherwise. Your conscience is the judge. You should think of God always. There have been many divine incarnations in the past, but the inherent divine principle in all of them is one and the same. Just as sugar assumes the form of a variety of sweets, divinity incarnates in various forms. People worship God, sing

His glory thinking that He is present in some distant place. In fact, the panchabhutas (the five elements) are the very manifestations of God. Your heart is the temple of God. Hence, fill your heart with love. One bereft of love cannot be called a human being. Consider the five elements as divine and put them to proper use.

Who has given you life? What is the source from which it has manifested? Have you acquired it by some spiritual practice? No! God gives you life and He is the one, who sustains it. He is present in every living being in the form of atma. Everything has originated from the atma. Students study a number of textbooks and acquire high academic qualifications. What is the source of all their knowledge and learning? It is nothing but divinity. But, man due to his delusion is unable to realise this truth. First and foremost, develop firm faith that God exists. When He incarnates in the human form, He conducts Himself like a human being. Only then can man understand divinity and the sacredness of human birth.

Educare is related to bhava (feeling), whereas education is related to bahya (external). The education you acquire should be beneficial to society. You should utilise your knowledge and intelligence for the benefit of society. Keep your emotions under check. Do not fret and fume like Durvasa who had no control over his temper. Only the one who has complete control over himself is a true human being.

6 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 39

The atma represents the oneness of all beings. Ultimately, everything merges in the atma.

Religions are many but goal is one.

Clothes are many but yarn is one.

Jewels are many but gold is one.

Cows are many but milk is one.

(Telugu poem)

Unfortunately, today instead of visualising unity in diversity, man sees diversity in unity. That is the cause of all his suffering. The principle of atma is the basis of all creation. You may forget anything but not the atma. The five elements that are immanent in you are nothing but the manifestations of atma. Merely rotating the beads of a rosary does not constitute japa. One should transcend the worldly and physical plane of existence. That is true japa. One who realises the source of his being is truly human. You may study Bhagavad Gita and learn all the slokas by heart. But that does not make you a scholar. It is enough if you are able to put at least one sloka into practice. With the help of letters of the alphabet a, b, c, d any number of books can be written. Hence, the letters in the alphabet form the basis for any book, be it

Ramayana, Mahabharata or Bhagavata. Likewise, the atma is the basis for everything. Once you understand the principle of atma, you would have understood everything else. It is only to impart such knowledge that we have established educational institutions. In our schools and colleges, character, virtues and conduct are given utmost priority. One should have the desire to tread the right path in life and attain God. One should accept everything as the Will of God. When you develop purity of heart, you will be successful in all your endeavours.

In the name of meditation, people sit cross-legged and with closed eyes. How can such practices lead you to Divinity? When you close your eyes, you cannot see even the person standing in front of you, leave alone seeing God. In fact, God is present in you. A true vyakti (individual) is one who manifests the avyakta (latent) divinity. If you understand the principle of atma and make sincere efforts, you can certainly experience atmasakshatkara (realisation of the Divine). You may do japa or tapa, but if you lack purity of heart, all your spiritual practices will prove futile.

Whatever may be the practice you undertake, you should always focus your mind on the atma only.

Strive To Attain The State Of Die Mind

Manishi (man) is one who is endowed with manas

Discharge Your Duties With A Sense Of Surrender To God

8 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 39

(mind). Manishi is also known as manava. What is the inner meaning of this term? Ma means maya (ignorance), na means nasthi (without) and va means varthinchuta (to conduct oneself). A human being is one who overcomes maya and conducts himself without ignorance. Education is meant to help you overcome delusion. One who transcends the mind is a Paramahamsa (a realised soul). We are not simply manavas (mere mortals). We are verily the embodiments of Madhava (immortal divine principle). We should have faith in God and face the challenges of life with courage and valour. Only then do we deserve to be called a human being. The mind is meant to contemplate on God. One who knows the value of a diamond will preserve it safely and make proper use of it. Likewise, the one who realises the power of mind will not let it go astray. One should strive to attain the state of die mind (annihilation of the mind). It is possible only by contemplating on God incessantly. It is said, Mano mulam idam jagat (mind is the basis for the entire world). If you do not control your mind and get carried away by its vagaries, what will be your fate? It is only through mano nashana (annihilation of the mind) can one become a Paramahamsa. Never follow the mind. The mind by nature is highly sacred, but due to the impact of modern education it has become unsteady like a monkey. What is the use of going through voluminous books without understanding the nature of the mind? When you learn the alphabet from A to Z, you should also learn the meaning of words. What is the use of reading words without understanding their meaning? Here, students learn the Vedas. It is said, Anantho vai Vedah (the Vedas are infinite). They are endowed with infinite power.

Have Unflinching Faith In God

When you read the Bhagavad Gita, you should make efforts to understand its teachings and put them into practice. Otherwise, there is little meaning in going through the Bhagavad Gita or giving lectures on it. No benefit accrues from merely repeating the slokas like a parrot without understanding them. The Vedas have been handed down from generation to generation by noble souls. They contain the eternal truths. But, in the name of modern education, people are neglecting them. One may like it or not, but the study of the Vedas is very essential for one and all. It is not enough if you merely read the Vedas, you should also understand the teachings contained therein. Man has forgotten his true Self. He is trying to acquire education without knowing his own reality. As a result, he reposes faith in everything else except God. You should never forget the fundamental principle, namely, divinity.

Discharge Your Duties With A Sense Of Surrender To God

10 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 39

Dear Students!

You are able to understand and acquire worldly and secular knowledge. But it is not easy for all to understand the inner reality. The names and forms of individuals may appear to be different, but essentially all are one. The innate reality is adhara and the external names and forms are only adheyas. Knowing the adheya without understanding the adhara will serve no purpose. Even while dealing with physical matters we should have spiritual outlook. Hence, develop faith in God in the first instance. Anything can be achieved with unflinching faith in God. Discharge your duties with a sense of surrender to God. That is the essence of true education. Education does not mean mere acquisition of bookish knowledge. True education is beyond bookish knowledge.

Students! Embodiments Of Love!

First of all, you have to realise that divinity is present everywhere. Let all your actions be pleasing to God. You have come from God and are living in God. All your actions should therefore be dedicated to God. When you follow such a sacred path, you will ultimately merge in God. God is bhavapriya (lover of inner feelings) not bahvapriya (lover of external form). He sees the feeling behind your actions. The world is interested in bahyam (outward show), but God is interested in your bhavam (feeling). Hence, purify your feelings in the first instance.

You ask others, Who are you? But have you ever enquired into yourself, Who am I? True education lies in knowing the answer for this question. What is the use of knowing about others if you don't know your own reality? That is not true education at all! A true spiritual aspirant is one who understands and experiences the principle of oneness. You say, She is my mother, He is my father, so on and so forth. Such physical relationship is related to the mind. If you take the physical relationship to be real, you will never understand the truth. You say, I am Ramaiah. It is the name given to the body. But you are not the body. You should say with firm conviction, I am I. However, when you call yourself Ramaiah, you should act according to your name. Once you understand your reality, you will experience everlasting bliss. Many students have gathered here. But not all are studying the same subject. You are pursuing various courses such B.A., M.A., M.Sc., etc. You should understand the purpose of education. Nowadays several students aspire to go abroad after completing their studies. They forget the very purpose of education, and are enamoured by worldly attractions.

Discharge Your Duties With A Sense Of Surrender To God

12 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 39

One should have single-minded devotion towards God. Your faith should be total and unconditional. If your faith is unsteady with bumps and jumps, you will be confused and will become restless. Keep your desires under control. Limitless desires will take you away from divinity. Annihilation of desires will lead you to the principle of unity. You should develop virtues and lead a good life. Understand the purpose of education and act accordingly. Only then will your birth as a human being be meaningful. One electric bulb can provide illumination to many. Likewise, a heart filled with love can illumine many lives. The educated people should not look down upon the uneducated. If they are truly educated, they will treat everyone equally and develop unity. Where there is unity, there is purity. When we have purity, we can experience divinity. Love is the basis for unity. Devoid of love differences are bound to crop up.

Students !

Having joined our institution if you merely acquire degrees without developing virtues, we will not be happy. You should develop purity within and purity outside. Only then can you earn a good name in society. People will praise you saying, So and so is a good boy, he minds his own business and does not involve himself in unnecessary activities. Such good persons can bring about transformation in society. Being students, you should follow the code of conduct prescribed for the state of Brahmacharya. On the contrary, if you succumb to the vagaries of the mind and move about without any restraint, people will call you a rowdy. When you are good in thought, word and deed, everyone will talk high of you.

13

You Are Not Different From God

Embodiments Of Love!

There is love in one and all. There is none bereft of love in this world. Develop love. Let people speak what they want. Do not be perturbed by criticism. If someone criticises you loudly, it goes into thin air, if he criticises within, he will only be the one who will be affected by it. In this manner, you should neither be elated by praise nor depressed by criticism. If you want to attain God, there should be harmony in your thoughts, words and deeds. It is said, Manasyekam vachasyekam, karmanyekam mahatmanam, manasyanyath vachasyanyath, karmanyanyath duratmanam. (Those whose thoughts, words and deeds are in perfect harmony are noble ones; those who lack harmony of these are wicked.) It is not enough if you have good command over language and speak eloquently about Divinity. You should also put into practice what you speak and experience divinity. You may be able to attract people with powerful speech, but what is the use if you do not translate your words into action.

Discharge Your Duties With A Sense Of Surrender To God

When Jesus was born, three Arabian kings came to see the child. Seeing the divine effulgence of the child, the first king exclaimed, He is the messenger of God. The second king said, He is the son of God. The third king proclaimed, He is verily God Himself. All the three statements are true. Never think that you are different from God. You should transcend duality and understand oneness with divinity. Whatever may happen, do not deviate from the path of oneness. You should have unwavering faith. Install these teachings firmly in your heart and put them into practice in your daily life. Even after you go back to your room, ruminate over what is being taught here.

With prayer to God, you can achieve anything in life. I want you to pray. I want you to stand united like brothers and sisters and earn a good name. Only then will the purpose of establishing colleges here be fulfilled. I am always with you, in you, above you, around you. Make efforts to instill such faith and devotion in your fellow human beings. That will make Me very happy.

Today is Sankranti, which marks the commencement of Uttarayana, the auspicious and sacred time. At least from today onwards, develop noble feelings. Follow the sacred path. Then your future will certainly be safe and secure. I hope I am not causing inconvenience to you by speaking at length. When I see all of you, My heart overflows with ananda (bliss). Happiness lies in union with God. Hence contemplate on God incessantly. Never give scope for anxiety or worry, thinking examinations are approaching. How am I going to face them? Will

I pass in the examinations? Do not give scope for despair and despondency with such negative attitude. Have faith in God. Do your duty and face any situation with courage. Then, the result is bound to be good. Love is everything. Love is God. Live in love.

Discharge Your Duties With A Sense Of Surrender To God

16 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 39

Realise God through

intense Love

The only easy and sure means for ordinary people to realise God, without regard to their caste, nationality, sex or any other qualification, and without their having to practise various austerities and penances, is intense devotion and love for God. The Gopikas experienced the continuous presense of God within and without. They showed that such sublime love was possible for ordinary persons with little knowledge of the scriptures or spiritual disciplines. They demonstrated the inextricable link between the Divine and the individual.

Control Of Senses Is The Real Sadhana

Embodiments Of Love !

My blessings to you all. I am happy that you all have studied here right from the Primary School stage up to the 12th standard and obtained good marks and earned good name for yourselves. With good character up to the Primary School stage. But after you left the Primary School you yourself can imagine what change has come about in you. As long as you were in the Primary School, you had developed many good qualities like love, compassion, kindness and joy. You were all moving like brothers with mutual love and affection. Your speech, your play, your songs were all full of sweetness. But, the moment you joined the Higher Secondary School, the quality of purity in your thoughts, words and deeds deteriorated. I am not saying that all the boys who took to wrong ways and are spoiling their mind. You can judge for yourself how pure is your mind. Humanness consists of five components - the gross body, mind, intellect, consciousness and the senses. If a human being is to attain liberation, he has to cleanse his mind first. It is a serious mistake to desire for that which does not belong to him. Whenever the mind desires for something, one has to enquire first whether that particular object belongs to him or someone else. When you know for sure that it belongs to someone else, you must be careful to divert your mind from that object. The mind has to be kept absolutely pure and sacred. One should not taint the mind with the impurities of conflict and agitation. You all have to develop such kind of jnana, right from this early age.

Unfortunately, today you are all spoiling your life by cultivating desires for all and sundry things. This is all madness and delusion. Whatever you do, you must do it with a sense of dedication and surrender to God. All the work you undertake must be carried out with this spirit. Sarva karma Bhagavad prityartham (all actions must be done to please God). In fact, what you think to be yours is not yours. First and foremost enquire into yourself, Who am I? The entire universe, right from the microcosm to the macrocosm, is permeated by Divinity. Sugar, sand, an ant, a mosquito or an elephant - all are embodiments of Divinity. God is assuming all these forms like different characters in a drama. There is nothing in this universe which is not permeated by God. Everything in this universe is God. Everything in this universe is God. The entire creation is an embodiment of Divinity. In fact, He owns all the characters in this cosmic drama. All dialogues and songs are His only, Yet, the characters He owns appear to be different. Hence, whatever we say-everything is God. One has to realise this truth and conduct himself accordingly.

Cultivate Faith In The Unity Of Divinity

Unfortunately, today some people take to wrong ways due to the effect of bad qualities, bad practices, bad thoughts and bad looks. Whomever you come across, treat them as embodiments of Divinity. Whatever you say, it must reflect Divinity. When you conduct yourself in such a manner, that itself is mukti (liberation). One has to cleanse his five sense. One should conduct himself in such a manner that neither he hurts others nor is hurt by others. The words you make use of must be sacred. You should not covet others property or develop a desire for it. One has to cultivate faith in the unity of Divinity, Some boys are not able to develop such universal outlook. They are languishing in a feeling of separateness. They distinguish between people as mine and thine. The ancient history of India is replete with instances of the ill-effects of such divisive tendencies.

Control Of Senses Is The Real Sadhana

20 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 39

You all know about the history of Kauravas and Pandavas in the great epic Mahabharata. The Kauravas were one hundred in number and were the sons of King Dhritarashtra. The Pandavas were five in number. They were the sons of Pandu, the younger brother of King Dhritarashtra. There ensued a fierce battle between the Kauravas and the Pandavas. But, who was at fault in this battle? In fact, Dhritarashtra and Pandu, both were the sons of the same father. They were brothers. Their kingdom was one. But, their thoughts and aspirations were different. A malicious desire for annexing the entire kingdom for themselves on the part of the Kauravas resulted in evil thoughts and divisive tendencies. Similarly, in the Ramayana there were two brothers - Vali and Sugriva. They were also brothers born of the same father. But, some unfortunate and selfish interests on their part resulted in a fierce battle between the brothers. While Vali the valiant king was enjoying regal comforts in the city of Kishkindha, his younger brother Sugriva had to languish in the hills and forests.

There is no use doing japa and tapa for months and years without giving up divisive tendencies. Such tapas converts itself into mere tamas. Several people give up their sadhana in the middle with a sense of frustration and despair, thinking that God is not merciful enough to reveal Himself before them in spite of doing japa for long years. If you wish to have the vision of God, first and foremost you must develop a sense of oneness with God. In fact, your own mind is an embodiment of Divinity. People often question, Where is God? Who is God?, etc. I would say, Your mind is God. It is said, Mana eva manushyanam karanam bandhamokshayo (mind is the cause for bondage as well as liberation of man). Both bondage and liberation occur due to the mind only. Hence, mind is God. Similarly, the intellect is God, so also the chittha (consciousness). It is a common sight to see people praising a person of sharp intellect as an intellectual. But, God alone is the true intellectual. We have to dedicate our chittha to God. Once a great devotee sang, Oh! God! Let me offer my worship to You with chittha suddhi (Purity of consciousness). Hence, you should all pray to God with purity of consciousness.

Just as the mind, intellect and chittha are the embodiments of Divinity, so also the senses.

Control Of Senses Is The Real Sadhana

22 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 39

Hence, one should not taint one's senses with the arishadvargas (the six inner enemies of lust, anger, greed, delusion, pride and jealousy). Kama signifies the desires, which you can divert towards God and pray that you want only God and none else. You love God alone. Such love only will be sanctified. To love people on the basis of their name and form cannot be termed as real love. That is only worldly love. When you love God, everything will be added unto you. All your desires must be God-oriented. Every desire of yours must be to please God. Suppose you love someone, do not treat him as a mere mortal. On the other hand, you must be able to visualise the divinity in him.

There is no object other than the panchabhuthas (the five elements of air, water, earth, fire and ether) in this universe. You will not find a sixth element, however much you may try and explore. For example, this is a hand consisting of five fingers. There is no sixth finger. In case someone has a sixth finger, he will be taken to the doctor for removing it by surgery. Similarly, we all have five senses. What is mukti (liberation)? Liberation is control of the senses. Unless one controls his senses, liberation is not possible. It is foolish to think that God is somewhere in a distant place. Strictly speaking, who is God? The panchabhuthas are embodiments of Divinity.

Strive To Achieve Sense Control

If it is only the senses that bring us good or bad. Hence, controlling the senses should be our top priority. You often express your inability thinking Swami ! is it possible for us? I am emphatically saying that it is possible, provided you make an effort with firm determination. When you are able to please God and obtain His grace, sense control is not a big task for you. The senses are very trivial things. Unless you are able to control the senses, you do not deserve to be called a human being. It is said, Jantunam nara janma durlabham (of all living beings, human birth is the rarest). To be born as a human being is a rare gift of God. Having obtained this rare gift, one should strive to achieve sense control. Even if you succumb to the wishes of even one of these five senses, you will stoop down to the level of an animal. It is said Kaivam manusha rupena (God is in the form of a human being). Having attained such a rare and sacred birth of a human being, how foolish it is to say that you cannot control your senses? One who succumbs to the wishes of the senses is a rakshasa (demon), verily! In fact, such a person is worse than a rakshasa. One has to evolve himself into a noble human being. You may be fond of your wife and children. But on that basis, you cannot denigrate others. You should not entertain a feeling that so and so is mine and others are different. All are embodiments of Divinity! All are children of God. There is such an intimate relationship between people in this world. Whatever object you come across in this world, it belongs to God only. It does not belong to any particular individual. In every object, every being, Divinity is immanent. Divinity is present in every grain of sand and every particle of sugar. It is said, Viswam Vishnu swarupam (the entire universe is the embodiment of Lord Vishnu). The whole universe comes under one family. Hence, one has to cultivate such universal love. That is real atmic love. It is only when you cultivate such love, you deserve to be called a human being. Only then can you visualise the atma tathwa. Devoid of love, if you go on cultivating evil qualities like anger, hatred, jealousy and a feeling of difference between one another, you will be worse than animals. Beasts and animals fight among themselves. If you also fight like them, what difference is there between you and the animals? In fact, anger and hatred are not the qualities of a human being. The feeling of difference originates in human beings when man considers himself as different from God. Where there is a feeling of difference, there hatred raises its head. Whatever activity you undertake, it must be done in a spirit of dedication to God. We extol Lord Easwara as Hiranya garbhaya namah (I offer my pranams to the golden-wombed Lord). He is the embodiment of gold. Here gold signifies immutability. You are all golden children. But, you forget your real nature and associate yourself with dust and rust. Hence, great souls have to take birth in this world now and then to cleanse you and make you realise your innate divinity. However, when some great soul embarks upon such a mission, some people doubt his effort saying, It is all his foolishness. Can earth become gold? Can sand become sugar? Modern man is full of doubts and doubts! What could be the reason for these doubts? It is only when one thinks that he is separate from God that doubts arise.

24 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 39

25

The Omniscient Gods Is Always Steady

It is a well known fact that a vessel filled to the brim will be steady. Similarly, God is omniscient and hence He is steady always. Many people who come here have several experiences. (Swami called a student onto the dais). I am aware of the past, present and future of every individual, irrespective of caste, religion and place of birth. Some people who come here have several experiences. (Swami called a student onto the dais). I place of birth. Some people who come here may think, Perhaps Swami does not know who I am. But, there is nothing that I do not know. Even though I know everything, I pretend as if I do not know. (Pointing to the student) The parents and brothers and sisters of this boy visited Prasanthi Nilayam sometime ago. I called all of them for an interview and promised to the father, My dear! The mother of these children may not survive for long. In fact, she may breathe her last even before you reach your village. You don't worry. I will take up the responsibility of all your children. The children started crying. I told them, Don't cry. Why fear when I am here? I will look after everything. From that day onwards, I have been looking after their welfare, as promised. The girls are all married. All the children have been provided with their requirements. None of them faced any difficulty. There is one boy among our Band group. That boy is the youngest of all the brothers. He was very young when he came here along with his parents sometime ago. I called him and told him, My dear! You don't need to worry for anything. I am your father, mother and everything. I will look after you in every aspect. Whenever he came here, I used to call him and talk to him instilling a sense of security and confidence in him. Now all the members of the family are happily living. This boy was very young then. Now, he has grown up. Thus, I have been showering My love and grace on one and all, whether I talk to them particularly or not. What is My property? Love! Love! Love!

I have no anger whatsoever on anyone, at any time. It is only to correct an erring individual, I pretend to be angry. But I have no anger on anyone. My entire body is suffused with pure love. It is said, Easwara sarva bhutanam (God is the indweller of all beings). Who is Easwara? Easwara is not merely the one who is portrayed as wearing rudraksha garlands around His hands and serpents round His neck. It is only a form that is created for the common man to comprehend divinity to some extent. The various names and forms like Easwara, Vishnu, Parvati, Lakshmi, etc., were created to enable the common man to worship God in some form or the other. In fact, every human being is an embodiment of Easwara. There is nothing in this world which is not permeated by Easwara. The earth is Easwara. This handkerchief is also an embodiment of Easwara. All names and forms originated from Easwarathwa.

In fact, it is only the one who has gained control over the five senses that can comprehend Divinity. Divinity is not limited to one name and form. People say then had the vision of Rama, Krishna, etc., but it is only their imagination! However, Divinity is only one and that has been named as Easwara. Unable to comprehend Divinity, people ascribe several names and forms to it and get deluded, Today, it is the devotees who change their chosen deities frequently, But, God does not change. God is one. He is permanent.

Real sadhana is gaining control over the five senses. One has to undertake such type of sadhana instead of engaging himself in japa, dhyaana, etc. For example, even if you are engaged in japa and dhyaana closing your eyes, your monkey mind will be roaming about all the three worlds. People do not realise this truth and engage themselves in different types of sadhana. There is nothing but Divinity in this world. Whatever you see, whatever you hear, everything is permeated by Divinity

Do Not Get Attached

Once the Pandavas were Performing the Rajasuya Yajna. At the conclusion of the ritual, Sri Krishna was honoured by the Pandavas in the presence of all kings in the court. Sisupala could not bear with this honour bestowed on Sri Krishna. He reviled Lord Krishna. Severely criticising Him for various omissions and commissions. One of the points of his criticism was that Krishna stole the saris of women who were bathing in a lake. The Pandavas could not bear these insinuations heaped upon their dear Lord Krishna. They felt humiliated. Krishna then tried to reason with them saying, He did so out of ignorance. I am beyond praise or scorn. I am the eternal witness to everything that goes on in this world. You should not, however, respond to that criticism and start paying him in his own coin. Do not ever get attached to anyone deeply. If you lead a life of detachment thus, I will be with you constantly guarding you and guiding you.

29

Divinity never encourages differences among men. God is Love and Love is God. There are several thousands of people gathered in this Hall. However, the love that is permeating every individual is only one. There may be differences in the names and forms of people and their relationships, but the Divinity permeating all people is one and the same. Hence, all should lead a life filled with love like brothers and sisters. In educational institutions where the system of co-education is in vogue, the boys and girls should move like brothers and sisters. Nowhere should any difference on account of gender raise its head. When the children get into the Higher Secondary stage, these differences crop up. You should not give scope for such things. Whoever entertains such differences, is sure to fail in the examination, the examination of pure love. There is nothing great in passing examinations in the worldly sense. Everyone can pass, provided one puts in a little effort. There is no use passing a worldly examination, while at the same time failing in pure and unsullied love for a fellow human being who is none other than God. He who has passed the examination of divine love is the most successful person in life.

All are God's children. All are reflections of the Hiranyagarbha present in the human body. Hence, from now onwards all of you should live like brothers and sisters with mutual love and affection. Then only you deserve to be called ideal students. But, I do not find in the present day students such feeling of kinship. Instead they are cultivating differences such as, I am different and You are different. You should not, under any circumstances, cultivate anger and hatred. Anger should be controlled and hatred given up. Your safety and welfare lie in controlling anger. It is common knowledge that when the controls in a railway station are not functioning properly, the trains moving on the track derail. In such a situation, the controller in the railway station is held responsible. Similarly, the mind is the controller for all thoughts and feelings arising in us. Hence, if the mind is kept in control, the entire body comes under our control.

You are all embodiments of pure gold. You are all golden children. Your words are sweet. Let your conduct also be sweet in conformity with your words. Wherever you go, as students of Sri Sathya Sai educational institutions, you must display an exemplary conduct and behaviour. Merely because you wear white dress, you do not deserve to be called students of Sri Sathya Sai educational institutions. In keeping with your white dress, Keep your mind pure and your heart sacred. Only then will you become ideal students. Swami will constantly be with such students, guarding and guiding them. I will give them everything. In fact, I am protecting several people in several ways; but, no one has realised this point till today.

Develop Equal - Mindedness

Your own atma is divinity. That is Easwara. One has to develop firm faith in that feeling. How can you be called a human being if you do not develop such faith? Love is God; live in love. Your love should not be limited to an individual or some family members. You must share it with all. If only you develop such broad-mindedness, you can become a leader and set an ideal to others. (When Swami enquired of the students whether they had faith in Swami's words, all of them unanimously responded by saying loudly, Yes Swami!). It is not enough if you just pay lip service by saying yes. The conviction must come from the depth of your heart. You commit a mistake and say sorry. That is not enough. You should desist

Control Of Senses Is The Real Sadhana

from repeating the same mistake. Truth is the very life-breath for a human being. Truth is God. Do not speak untruth. If only you follow truth in your life steadfastly, you can achieve everything. Truth is like a shield that will protect you. Truth is your support. If you give up such a noble quality of truth and speak untruth, how can you be called a human being? You should never give scope for falsehood in your life. God is the only leader for the entire universe. God is the only leader and judge. It is only God who can decide justice or injustice, You should not forget such an omnipresent, omnipotent and omniscient God. Do not entertain feelings of difference like mine and thine. Develop equal-mindedness. May all people live together happily and bring good name for themselves and the country (Bhagawan created a gold ring with a green stone embedded in it and presented it to the student standing in front of Him). Everyone should thus earn the grace of God. The green colour is a sign of peace and welfare. I wish that all of you should earn such peace, welfare, love, devotion and geace of God. It is only when you drive away the bad qualities in you, that you will be able to live in the divine presence. May you make proper use of the punchabhutas (the five elements of earth, water, fire, air and ether). May you control your panchendriyas (five senses). Then God will be constantly with you guarding and guiding you. Divinity cannot be attained merely by offering prayers and doing bhajans. Along with these sadhanas, you must also develop a pure heart and offer it to God. Let your mind, intellect and chittha be constantly associated with God wherever you are and whatever work you are undertaking. Then your very mind, intellect and chittha will be transformed into Divinity. When God is present right in front of you in the form of panchabhutas, where is the need for searching for Him separately? There is no scope at all for such a feeling! It is a serious mistake to think that God is separate from the panchabhutas. Considering God as your everything and sole refuge, dedicate your senses to Him. This is an easy method to reach God. When you follow such an easy path, you will attain moksha (liberation). After all, what is moksha? Moha kshaya is moksha (coming out of delusion is liberation). There is no use chanting Ram, Ram, Ram.... when your mind is full of moha (delusion). Whatever work you undertake, do it with a sense of Bhagavad prityartham (to please God). Whomever you come across, consider him as an embodiment of God. Even the beggar standing in front of your door is an embodiment of God. He may be a beggar from the point of view of the physical body. But, he is really an embodiment of Divinity from the atmic sense. Whether one is a king or an emperor or a beggar, the same Divinity permeates every individual. May you dedicate your lives to win the love of God and His grace. Undertake every activity as an offering to God. Even your reading of your text books can be done with such a sense of Dedication to God. You will surely pass your examinations in 1st class. I am happy that you are all good boys. But, one caution-you must exhibit the same good behaviour in your Higher secondary School, as in the Primary School.

Let Me remind you that the teachers in the Higher Secondary School will not hesitate to punish you whenever necessary if you go wrong. They have nothing against anybody, but they are duty bound to put you on the right track. If a teacher shirks his responsibility and condones your bad behaviour without giving a punishment, then he is a guddi guru (blind teacher). He cannot be called a Guru in the real sense. The role of a headmaster in the school is also important. In fact, he is the head for all the teachers. Hence, he should oversee the work of all the teachers.

Education does not mean simply reading of books. One cannot become great by acquiring an academic degree. In fact, degrees are not great; Divine is great. Hence, develop such divine nature. Only then will your life become sanctified and your education meaningful. Your parents will also be happy. You might be aware that your parents have admitted you in Sri Sathya Sai educational institution with great hopes. You should not disappoint them. You must earn the praise of your father, mother, teacher and God-all the four. Make your life meaningful and sacred by good thoughts, feelings, practice and behaviour.

Discourse on 23-2-2006, Prashanthi Niliyam

Control Of Senses Is The Real Sadhana

36 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 39

Follow Your Conscience

Do not shape your conduct with an eye on the opinion of others. Instead, follow bravely, gladly and steadily, the sweet and pleasant promptings of your own sathwic manas, your own awakened conscience, your own inner self. Associate yourself with those who are richly endowed with Truth. Spend every second of your life usefully and well. If you possibly can, render service to others. Engage yourself in nursing the sick; but when thus engaged in service, do not worry about either the result, or the act of service, or the person to whom it is rendered. The service is made holy and pure if you ignore both the good and the bad, and keep on silently repeating in your heart the mantra that appeals to you.

Limit Not The All Pervading Brahman With Names And Forms

Is it possible to build a temple for the One who pervades the entire Brahmanda (cosmos)? Can anyone give a name to the One who is present in all beings? Is it possible to give a bath to the One who is present in all rivers? Can anyone offer food to the One who has the entire Brahmanda in His stomach? Man out of his ignorance is unable to know this truth. He is under the delusion that he is Naswara (impermanent). In fact, he is not Naswara, but Easwara Himself for the entire world.

(Telugu poem)

praparapancha is the name we have given to the apparent world. It is called prapancha as it is constituted by the panchabhutas (five elements), namely, earth, water, fire, air and ether. Pra means to manifest, to blossom. Hence, prapancha means the manifestation of not only the five elements, but also the five life principles, namely, prana, apana, vyana, udana and samana. They form the basis for the entire world. The principle of Brahmatathwa is present in all the five elements as the undercurrent. It is eternal and immortal. The term Brahma refers to the divine principle which pervades the panchabhutas, pancha kosas and pancha pranas. But man out of ignorance attributes a particular form to Brahma and offers his prayers. Names and forms are transient. Brahmatathwa, which is the basis of all names and forms is the only permanent entity. Out of our ignorance and limited understanding we confine such a cosmic principle of Brahman to a tiny form and worship it. We should worship the cosmic form of the divine. Brahmanda (cosmos) is the very form of God. Brahman pervades the anda, pinda and Brahmanda. Anda is the combination of padartha (matter) and prana (life principle). Pinda is that which is born out of the mother's womb. Ultimately, they become one with the Brahmanda.

38 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 39

See God In All Embodiments Of Love

Love is the basis for Brahmanda. Without prema (love), there is neither prakriti (nature) nor prapancha

39

(world). The world is sustained by the principle of love which is uniformly present in the five elements. You may worship Divinity in a number of ways, but all your worship will prove futile, if you forget the principle of love.

The five elements are responsible for the sustenance of human life and the world at large. Everything will come to a standstill even if any one of the five elements is missing. We hear the sound with our ears. We see the world with our eyes. In this manner, we are able to experience the world through the five senses. They prove the existence of the world. Man has forgotten the divine principle of love and is striving to attain ananda (bliss) through mean and worldly pursuits. It is said, Iantunam nara janma durlabham (out of all living beings, human birth is the rarest). In fact, human being is essentially divine.

Dharma, artha, kama and moksha are prescribed as the four goals of human life. But, man today has given up dharma and moksha. He is running after artha and kama (wealth and desire). God has created this world. Your wife, children, friends and foes are all created by God. It is not enough if you maintain good relationship with your wife, children and friends. You must be able to see God in all. That is your primary duty. Your wife, children, friends and even foes are all the very embodiments of Brahman. Even God had to fight the enemies sometimes. However, in spite of their animosity towards God, they ultimately merged in Him owing to His grace. In this world, there is no place where God does not exist. He is present everywhere.

40 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 39

Sarvatah panipadam tat sarvathokshi siromukham, sarvatah sruthimalloke sarvamavrutya tishthati (with hands, feet, eyes, head, mouth and ears pervading everything, He permeates the entire universe).

The people around you may not be able to see what you do, but He is watching you. Others may not hear what you speak, but He is listening to you. He is the eternal witness. Unfortunately, you are unable to realise this truth. Some people argue, How can you say that God is present everywhere when we do not actually see Him? How is it possible for Him to hear our prayers? In fact, sound is the very form of God. There is no place where there is no sound. He can hear everything since sound is His own form. Light pervades the entire world. God can see everything in this world as the very light is His vision. Hence, never be under the mistaken notion that God does not know what is happening. Do not doubt or deny His existence just because He is not visible to the naked eye. How does sankalpa (will) originate? Will it originate in your hridaya (heart)? It happens as per the Will of God. There may be ups and downs from the worldly point of view, but divine principle always remains steady.

The loka (world) and Loksha (God) are inseparable. The creation and the creator are one. There is an intimate and inseparable relationship between the two. Atma is the name given to the principle of divinity. It has no specific form. It pervades the entire world in the form of sankalpa (will). It is a grave error to attribute a particular name and form to the atma. It is essential that we understand the oneness of atma and experience the same. Everything is divine. Sarvam khalvidam Brahma (verily, all this is Brahman). As you are unable to comprehend the divine principle in totality, you confine God to a specific name and form such as Rama, Krishna, Vishnu, etc., and worship Him. A potter makes the idols of Rama, Krishna, etc. However, it is only the clay that takes the forms of various deities. The same clay is moulded into various forms.

Jewels are many but gold is one.

Cows are many but milk is one.

Beings are many but breath is one.

(Telugu poem)

As you are unable to understand the principle of

Limit Not The All Pervading Brahman With Names And Forms

42 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 39

unity, you are deluded by the apparent diversity.

Embodiments Of Love ! Consider The World As The Very Form Of God

No one can describe God as having this form or that form. He permeates the entire universe. Without name there can be no form and vice versa. The principle of divinity is represented by a name and a form. Every object and every being in this prapancha (world) is the manifestation of divine love. Hence, do not see the world merely from the physical point of view. Consider the world as the very form of God and the manifestation of divine love. Because of your limited understanding, you confine such an all pervading divine principle to a name and a form. Yad bhavam tad bhavati (as is the feeling, so is the result). God responds according to your feelings towards Him. If you have purna bhakti (unwavering devotion) and love God with all your heart, He will confer on you purna ananda (supreme bliss). God transcends the dualities of birth and death, happiness and sorrow. You may think that even God has pain and suffering. But, from God's point of view, pain does not exist at all! It is an aspect of divinity. Bliss also is an aspect of divinity. God is beyond pleasure and pain, merit and sin. Happiness and sorrow are of your own making. Pleasure is an interval between two pains.

Do not consider God as a separate entity.

Unfortunately, people are unable to understand the principle of divinity and hence indulge in all types of imaginations. God is one. The Veda declares, Ekam sath viprah bahudha vadanti (truth is one, but the wise refer to it by various names). However, when the situation demands, divine incarnations appear on earth and play a role in the cosmic drama. When Droupadi was humiliated by Duryodhana and Dussasana in the royal court, Bhima was seething with anger. He wanted to crush them to pulp. But, even under such circumstances, God did not kill them. It is most essential you understand that everything happens as per His will. Whatever happens is for your own good. With such firm conviction, you should accept pleasure and pain, good and bad with equanimity. It may be difficult for you to bear misfortunes. You should pray to God to grant you the necessary strength to bear them. You may have difficulties today, but tomorrow it will be different. Difficulties are like passing clouds. They will certainly give way to happiness. Man always strives for happiness. How can he attain it? True happiness lies in union with God. In fact, God is beyond happiness and sorrow. Whatever you may do, He says, Tathastu (So shall it be). He showers His blessings on you saying, Let it be for your own good. You will be free from sorrow once you understand the Bhagavadtathwa (nature of divinity). If you are undergoing difficulties, do not get disheartened. Have faith that God is making you go through the ordeal for your own good. Happiness and Limit Not The All Pervading Brahman With Names And Forms sorrow coexist. You cannot attain happiness without undergoing difficulties.

Embodiments Of Love! Be Attracted Only Towards God And None Else

Do not attribute multiplicity to divinity. Consider everyone as the embodiment of divinity. Install such sacred feeling firmly in your heart. Treat even the person who hates you as your own. Having attained human birth, you should be able to withstand pain and suffering with courage and fortitude. Be convinced that they are good for you. All that God has created is good. In God's creation, everything is good and sacred. There is nothing which will cause sorrow and misery. In fact, misery arises out of man's delusion. The delusion is because of his identification with the form. What is the meaning of the term Manava? Ma means Maya, Na means without and Va means Varthinchuta (to conduct oneself). Therefore, Manava is one who conducts himself without maya. If you fall a victim to maya, you will never be able to understand marmamu (reality). In fact, maya is man's own making. It arises out of his imagination.

However much one may try, it is not possible to know God in totality. Once mother Kunti said to Krishna, Oh, Krishna! Though You are verily God, sometimes we are deluded to think that You are also a human being like us. Saint Thyagaraja too echoed the same feelings in the following verse:

Oh, Lord! You answered the prayers of Droupadi and saved her from humiliation. You made ugly-looking Kubja beautiful. You protected the Pandavas. Is it possible to estimate Your glory and splendour? You are beyond all description and human comprehension. Krishna, it is not possible for even Brahman to describe Your glory.

(Telugu song)

Good and bad lie in your mind; they are not outside. Hence, correct your feelings in the first instance. Get rid of all animal qualities so that humanness can blossom in you. If you notice even a trace of hatred in yourself, drive it away at once. Having attained human birth, it is shameful on your part to have evil qualities like hatred. Do not fall a prey to infatuation. You should be attracted only towards God and none else. You love your son because you consider him to be your reflection. In fact, the one who loves you, the one who hates you, the one who criticises you, all are your own reflections. At one time, one may be angry and later the anger may give way to love. People are carried away by the vagaries of the mind. Being deluded by the names and forms, they are unable to know the transient nature of the world. Truly speaking, you have neither friends nor enemies. It is only your love or hatred that is reflected from outside. God does not give you happiness or sorrow; they are of your own making. They originate from you.

Limit Not The All Pervading Brahman With Names And Forms

46 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 39

Never Deny God

Embodiments Of Love!

God is present everywhere in the form of five elements. Everyone is endowed with five elements and everyone is an embodiment of love. All are one. There is no second entity. Wherever you see, there are five elements. You do not find a sixth element anywhere. The principle of love present in you represents Easwarathwa and Brahmatathwa. It is merely bhrama (delusion) to think that Brahman is separate from you. Everything is Brahman. Everything is the manifestation of atma and ananda. That is why God is extolled as Nityanandam, paramasukhadam kevalam inanamurtim (God is the embodiment of eternal bliss, He is wisdom absolute). Even the karma (action) that you perform is the manifestation of Brahman. When you perform your action with such divine feelings, they will yield good results. Never criticise God. Never deny Him. Everything is the manifestation of Brahman, Vishnu and Maheswara. All are divine. This is what you have to learn on this auspicious day of Sivaratri. There is nothing other than divinity in this world. The principle of divinity present in a grain of sand and in a big laddu is one and the same. Once you realise this truth, you become Brahman verily.

You do not need to search for Brahman elsewhere. You are Brahman, you are Vishnu, you are Siva, you are the very embodiment of the divine Trinity. It is only your feeling that assumes the form of Brahman, Vishnu and Maheswara.

You are subjected to unrest and suffering because of your dualistic feeling. You perceive unity as diversity, instead of visualising unity in diversity. Number one is the basis for all other numbers. Likewise, names and forms vary, but all are essentially one. There is no second person. Other than divinity, there is no second entity in this world. Many spiritual aspirants and yogis have made concerted efforts to understand the principle of divinity. They ultimately realised Ekam sat viprah bahudha vadanti (truth is one, but the wise refer to it by various names). As you have not understood this truth, you are deluded by the apparent duality. You should understand the spiritual Mathematics in order to know that divinity is one. It is most essential that you understand this principle of oneness and conduct yourself accordingly. When you understand this oneness, you will experience divinity. You will realise that the individual is not different from God. When you put a zero after the numeral 1 it becomes 10; put one more zero it will become 100. In this manner if you go on adding zeros, the value also increases to 1000, 10,000, and so on and so forth. Zeros gain value only when they are positioned next to the numeral one. I, my wife, my children, my property, etc., all these are like zeros. They will have value only when they are associated with God who is like numeral one. The entire world is like a zero. It has emerged from the Hero, God. It is because of your delusion that you mistake zero for Hero. So long as you are immersed in delusion you will never be able to realise divinity. Delusion gives rise to doubts which will rob you of your bliss. They will poison your mind and put you to danger. Hence, never entertain doubts with regard to Divinity.

48 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 39

Strengthen your faith in God.

A car can run smoothly only when there is air in all its four tyres. Even if one tyre is punctured, it may lead to accident. The human body is like a car. Mind is the steering wheel. Dharma, artha, kama and moksha are its four tyres. They should be filled with the air of faith. Even if one of the tyres is punctured, your life will be put to danger. Your mind should be steady and under control. Only then can you reach the goal of life, i.e., moksha (liberation).

Keep Your Mind Under Control

Embodiments Of Love!

The entire world is pervaded by the five elements. You should maintain perfect balance and harmony among them. When you are riding a cycle, if you do not maintain proper balance, you will fall down. Likewise, you can lead the life of a true human being only when you have proper balance of mind. If you lack proper balance of mind, your humanness will be ruined. It is said, Jantunam nara janma durlabham (out of all living beings, human birth is the rarest). Having been blessed with such precious human birth, what a shame it is if you behave like an animal! You should live like a human being. Keep your mind under control. This is My message to you on this holy night of Sivaratri. Understand that you are born as a human being, not as an insect or a worm. Neither are you an animal, nor a bird nor a beast. You should understand the meaning of the term manava. Ma means not and nava means new. You are not here for the first time. You are not new to this earth. You have gone through a number of births before attaining this human birth. Give up all your old and mean qualities and start your life afresh. Human life is highly sacred and mysterious. Only God can unravel its mystery. Visweswara (the Lord of the universe) permeates the entire viswa (universe). He transcends all description. He is present in you in the form of atma. There is only one path for the realisation of atma. Give up the feeling of mine. You say this is mine and that is mine. Once you get rid of such worldly attachment, you will develop purity, steadiness and selflessness.

You will be free from suffering, worries and anxiety. Ultimately, you will attain moksha (liberation). Having attained manavathwa (humanness), you should make efforts to rise to the level of Madhavathwa (divinity). That is your goal. What is the use if you remain in manavatwa forever? You should develop sanmathi (pure mind) to rise to the level of divine. Unity confers purity which will in turn lead to divinity. Hence, all of you must stand united. You belong to the human race. You belong to one family. Hence, you must conduct yourself like brothers and sisters. Absence of such spirit of unity will diminish purity and take you away from divinity.

Embodiments Of Love!

Being students of Sathya Sai College, you must set an example to others with your spirit of unity. You deserve to be called Sai devotees only when you develop unity. Love God with all your heart. Love for God will transform your heart. It will drive away hatred and other evil qualities. You can achieve anything through love.

(Bhagawan sang the Bhajan Prema muditha manase kaho and continued His discourse)

Embodiments Of Love!

Since time immemorial, the divine name of Rama

51 has been protecting the devotees and leading them on the right path. One can very well imagine the divine potency of Rama s name as it has remained etched in the hearts of people through all the ages. This in itself is a mystery. Thousands of years have passed since the advent of Rama, yet His name remains ever fresh and ever new. One may be on the top of the mountain or in a village or in a city, everyone derives immense delight in singing the name of Rama. Ramayathi ithi Ramah (that which delights is the principle of Rama).

Beware Of The Words You Utter

Once in the court of Krishnadevaraya, there was a debate in which the eight scholars of the royal court popularly known as the Ashta Diggajias participated. Krishna devaraya wanted to know who among them was the best. He wanted them to frame a meaningful sentence consisting of five letters, each letter having the same meaning in five different languages. Whoever comes out with an answer to this question by seven tomorrow morning will be suitably rewarded, he added.

Since his house was far away, Tenali Ramakrishna decided to spend the night in his brother-in-law s house. When he was provided with a comfortable bed for the night, Ramakrishna refused to sleep on it. He said, I have to think of an answer to a question put by the king by tomorrow morning. A bed like this is certain to put me to sleep in no time. So, provide a cot for me in the cow shed.

As he was lying on the cot, at one o clock in the night, one of the cows in the shed gave birth to a calf. Ramakrishna called out to inform his brother-in-law about this. His brother-in-law wanted to know which cow had given birth, since he had given different names to his cows, like Parvati, Lakshmi, and Saraswati. He asked Ramakrishna, Ye Aav Ra Bava (which cow is that, Oh! brother-in-law).

When Ramakrishna heard this, his joy knew no bounds, since he had found an answer to the king s question. So, he repeated the phrase again and again. His brother-in-law thought that Ramakrishna was behaving in this strange manner due to lack of sleep.

The next morning, Ramakrishna went to the royal court and found that no one else had a solution to the question. All others were convinced it was not possible to frame such a sentence. Ye Aav Ra Ba Va is the answer, he said. Everyone was intrigued. Then he explained, Ye in Marati, Aav in Hindi, Ra in Telugu, Ba in Kannada and Va in Tamil convey the same meaning, i.e., come. Five languages are represented in this sentence.

Students!

The words you utter sometimes convey different meanings. Hence, you should be very careful while speaking. Develop virtues and lead an ideal life. Only then will Swami be pleased with you. If you make Me happy with your ideal conduct, I will confer much more happiness on you. Your happiness is My happiness. Wherever you go, earn a good name for yourself. Your character is very important for Me. Hence, make every effort to mould your character and be an ideal to others. This is the message I would like to give you on this auspicious day of Sivaratri. The day on which you experience eternal bliss is Sivaratri for Me.

Once Thyagaraja performed a musical concert at Thanjavur. Many eminent musicians and scholars were present in the concert hall. In the beginning of the programme Thyagaraja offered salutations to all of them through his famous composition, Endaro mahanubhavulu, andariki vandanamulu (there are many great souls who have had the divine experience; I prostrate before all of them). Everyone was blissful listening to his melodious singing. He demonstrated by his example that one should pay his respects to everyone in the assembly before addressing them since there was divinity in all of them. Many years ago, in

54 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 39

Prasanthi Nilayam, a scholar was invited to address a congregation. While commencing his speech, he addressed the audience thus: Brothers and Sisters except one! Then he explained that his wife was also present among the audience. Even while addressing a congregation he was remembering his wife.

One should not observe such differences while addressing a public gathering. One should offer his salutations to one and all.

Embodiments of Love! I shower My blessings on all of you on this holy night of Sivaratri. Sing the divine name throughout the night. To the extent possible, spend the night in contemplating God. Only then can you experience divine bliss. You can even witness the manifestation of divine effulgence. Sing the divine name wholeheartedly. You may sing any name, but you should understand its inner meaning.

For example, Digambara is one of the names of Lord Siva. Digambara in common parlance refers to the one who is naked. But if you enquire into the inner meaning, you will know that Digambara is the One who has dikkulu (four sides East, West, North, South) as his ambara (vesture). There is a possibility that people misunderstand this word and think that Siva does not wear anything on His body. Hence, it is better that you do not use this word in bhajans.

DRAUPADI S father Drupada organised a swayamvara (ceremony to select a groom by the bride) to perform her marriage. Thousands of youths, princes and kings came to his court to win the hand of Droupadi in this swayamvara. Just as King Janaka had declared that he would give his daughter Sita in marriage to the prince who could string the bow of Lord Siva, King Drupada arranged a matsyavantra (a device with the replica of a fish). The condition of the contest was that whosoever was able to hit the eye of the fish that was revolving high above on a pole with an arrow by looking at its reflection

in

56 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 39

water below would be successful in winning the hand of his daughter.

Extraordinary Qualities Of Draupadi

Many valorous youths and princes who were confident of their victory tried their luck without any success. This was not an ordinary test that everyone could succeed. Many thought that it was easy, but in reality it was not so. When no one could succeed in the contest, the entire assembly fell into a stunning silence. The Pandavas were present incognito in this assembly. Lord Krishna, who was also present, looked at the Pandavas and smiled noticing that the Pandavas spoke to each other in whispers. Arjuna then walked majestically towards the matsyavantra, smiling all the way. He was totally calm and composed. Looking at the reflection of the fish in water, he shot an arrow. When it hit the target successfully, the entire assembly went into raptures. All the people looked at Arjuna in admiration with great delight. King Drupada then asked his daughter Droupadi to garland Arjuna.

At that time, the Pandavas were staying in the house of a potter. When they went back to that house along with the bride, their mother Kunti was inside. Even before entering their house, they announced to their mother that they had received a very valuable fruit. Their mother replied from inside the house that they should share the fruit equally between themselves. The Pandavas always obeyed the command of their mother and honoured every word that she uttered. They went inside and offered their salutations to their mother and vowed to follow her command religiously. In this way, Droupadi became the wife of all the five Pandavas. The Pandavas dutifully accepted the command of their mother. But, how could the world accept this? It is the duty of the children to obey the command of their parents, irrespective of the fact whether the world accepts it or not. People, however, accepted this in view of the intimate relationship that existed between the five brothers.

When can one consider a woman as one's wife? Not merely because one is married to her. One can call her as wife only when one considers her as half part of his body. Many people questioned Krishna how Droupadi could be called a pativrata (chaste wife) when she was the wife of five husbands. Then Krishna described her qualities which earned her this noble status.

She dutifully obeyed the command of her husbands.

She would never say to any one of them That she had no time to serve him.

She was satisfied with whatever she got in life.

She was the supreme example of chastity, And none could match her in this respect.

(Telugu poem)

Atma Is The Nameless, Formless Divinity

58 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 39

She never asked for anything beyond the means of her husbands. A true chaste woman is one who conducts herself according to the condition of her husband. The husband should also recognise the qualities of his wife and have equal concern for her. Only then can both of them lead a virtuous and noble life.

Looking at her virtuous conduct and her power to control the five senses, Dharmaraja told Droupadi, You do not merely belong to us; you are the embodiment of primal energy. Her father Drupada had also held this view and considered her as the embodiment of divine energy. Only those who achieve control over the five senses and the five elements can know the reality of the world and conduct themselves in a righteous manner. One who has complete control over one's senses can achieve the greatest heights in life.

Droupadi was endowed with great power of discrimination and she could discriminate between what was good and what was bad. Both good and bad are present in this world just like darkness and light. She encouraged all those who were virtuous and imparted sacred teachings to evil-minded people to transform them. Not only she had control over the five senses and five elements, she had thorough knowledge of pancha kosas (five sheaths of the soul) and pancha pranas (five life-breaths) also. She could differentiate between atma and anatma (Self and non-Self). Thus, she set an ideal to the world and earned a good name.

Droupadi taught that one should do one's duty with dedication. She exhorted all to exercise control over their desires and discriminate between good and bad, imbibing all that was good and giving up all that was bad. One should never forget to perform good actions and discharge one's duties, she advised. Everyone should discharge one's duty with dedication and should not interfere in the duties of others, she counselled the people. You may have wife and children. It is your duty to fulfil your responsibility towards them, but at the same time all your desires should be directed towards the path of goodness and righteousness, she said. Thus, she became an ideal to the world and showed the path of truth to one and all. One can attain Dharma only by following the path of Sathya. Sathyanasti paro dharma (There is no Dharma greater than adherence to truth). There can be no Dharma without truth. It is the path of truth that leads one to God.

Follow The Path Of Sathya And Dharma

Everyone should perform his duty meticulously and adhere to dharma. Even an ant follows its Dharma.

Atma Is The Nameless, Formless Divinity

60 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 39

Wherever it finds food, it carries it to its place and consumes it. It does not harm anybody nor does it steal anything from anybody. All the birds and animals follow their natural dharma and conduct themselves accordingly. The path of Dharma is the same for cheema (ant) and Brahma. The same principle of truth is present in both. This truth was propagated by Droupadi. She also taught that one should not become a victim of the six inner enemies, namely, kama (desire), krodha (anger), Lobha (greed) moha (attachment), mada (pride) and matsarya (jealousy).

Anger is the greatest enemy of man. One with anger cannot follow the path of Dharma. This is contrary to human nature. One should not unnecessarily show anger towards others.

One with anger will not be successful in any of his endeavours.

He will commit sins and will be ridiculed by one and all.

His own people will abandon him.

He will lose all wealth and respect.

His anger will ruin him completely.

(Telugu poem)

Hatred is another great enemy of man. Whom should you hate? Should you hate those who oppose you or those who have harmed you or those who dislike you? No; none of these. You should hate only the evil qualities. You should extend your love and support to those who follow Sathya and Dharma. If you hate Sathya and Dharma, you are not a human being at all. Truth is the basis of all virtues. By following the path of truth, Droupadi could experience peace and love. She taught that one should refrain from violence. One should not indulge in violence through one's actions, words and even thoughts. By following the path of truth, Droupadi set the greatest ideal to the world.

As You Sow, So Shall You Reap

By exercising sense control, man can achieve great heights in life.

Damayanti was a woman of great virtues like Droupadi. She earned this name as she was endowed with dama (sense control). The senses are wayward by nature, and it is difficult to control them. Man should, however, do his best to control them and put them to right use. Why has God given you ears? Is it to hear vain gossip? Never listen to anything that is bad. Listen to all that is good. Why has God given you tongue? It is not merely to satisfy your sense of taste. It has been given to sing the glory of God. Just as the tongue accepts all that is tasty and palatable and rejects all that is bad and unpalatable, man should accept all that is good and reject everything that is bad.

Atma Is The Nameless, Formless Divinity

People think that it is God who is the cause of their happiness and sorrow. But it is not really so. Each one is responsible for his actions and reaps their consequences, good or bad. God is the eternal witness and does not interfere in this. He gives neither happiness nor sorrow. If you talk endearingly to someone, he will also speak to you in the same loving manner. But if you talk in an arrogant way, you will get a similar response. As is the action, so is the reaction. The reaction, reflection and resound are based on your own thoughts, words and actions; God is not responsible for them. If you stand before a mirror, you will see your own reflection. In whatever way you speak to others, you will have the resound in the same way. Whatever thoughts you have in your mind, they will be reflected back to you. It is therefore essential for man to know whether his thoughts and actions are good or bad. Whatever good or bad you experience is the result of your thoughts, words and actions. When any bad thought comes into your mind, give it up immediately. If you conduct yourself in this manner, you will become a true devotee of God and achieve liberation.

Everyone has to face the consequences of his actions, whoever he may be. No one can know what lies ahead for him in future. But this much is sure that everybody has to reap the consequences of his actions. Even the mighty Rama suffered the pain of separation from His consort Sita and cried like an ordinary person.

63

(Telugu song)

Young Men!

Good and bad coexist. It is not possible for anyone to separate them. When you cultivate more of goodness, the bad in you will become absolutely insignificant. There is no need to use any force to drive away all that is bad. When you forget bad, goodness will develop in you in full measure. This is the message I would like to give on this day. Do not think that the New Year will give you some new fruits. The fruits that you earn will be based on your qualities and actions. All that you think will be reflected back to you. Everything is the result of your thoughts.

World Is Reaction, Reflection And Resound

Once there was a cowherd who used to take cows for grazing to a place surrounded by three mountains. One day when the cows were grazing, he sat down under a tree and started singing a song in praise of God. As he sang the song, he heard its echo. He thought that someone was imitating his song to tease him. Therefore, he shouted in anger at the invisible intruder, and heard its resound in the same

angry tone. In this state of anger, he went home and did not even take his food. His mother asked him why he was so upset. He narrated what had happened. Next day, his mother accompanied him and came to know that it was his own echo which was the cause of his trouble. In the same manner if you criticise or abuse anybody, all that will come back to you. The world is nothing but reaction, reflection and resound. Whatever you do will come back to you, and nothing else. This is the divine law. Those who are full of love will see love everywhere. Those who are full of hatred will see enemies all around. Therefore, love and hatred do not come from outside. They have their origin within you. The good and bad you experience arise out of your own feelings. God is not responsible for any of these. God is nirguna, niranjana, sanathana (attributeless, pure, eternal). It is only your feelings that change. God is changeless.

Students!

All your feelings are reflected back to you. Everything is within you. Whatever you experience is the reaction, reflection and resound of your thoughts and feelings. You see somebody laughing and think that he is laughing at you. But how can you conclude in this manner? Once a famous wrestler was doing exercise on a road early in the morning. At that time, a woman was coming from a village to sell milk and curd. When he looked at her, he felt she was laughing at him. The wrestler became angry and said to the woman, How dare you laugh at me? Do you know who am I? Are you aware of my strength? The woman replied, I am not laughing at you. You are so strong that you can stop a speeding car with one hand. What is the use of your physical strength if you lack forbearance? All our notions are based upon our deluded feelings.

65

Be Good, Do Good, See Good

Students!

No doubt, your inner feelings are good. But they undergo change depending upon what you see and hear. It is the external impulses that are responsible for changes in your thoughts and feelings. Truly speaking, there is no human form. In fact, there is no form at all. It is because of your illusion that you see a form and give a name to it. It is a sign of foolishness to think so. You may think that you are highly educated and very intelligent. But how can you call yourself so if you are ignorant of your true Self? You can be called truly educated only when you know your real nature. If you do not know your own truth, how can you know the truth of others?

First of all, you should control your mind. Only then can your worship and prayer be fruitful. The mind is the root cause of the world. Manah eva manushyanam karanam bandhamokshayo (mind is the cause of bondage and liberation of man). It is comparatively easy to control the body, but not the mind. When Pramila, the ruler of women's kingdom, captured the Aswamedha horse and defeated Arjuna in the battle, Arjuna told her that she could arrest his body but not his mind. It may be possible to capture the whole world with army, weapons and bombs, but it is not possible for anyone to capture the mind. When you gain control over your mind, everything else will come under your control. Therefore, you should make all efforts to control your mind. Then you are sure to become an ideal and great person. First and foremost, you should know your mistakes and try to rectify them. Only then can you aspire to become a mumukshu (spiritual aspirant). Knowingly or unknowingly, you may have committed some mistakes. Once you know your mistakes, you should have repentance. Repentance is true atonement. This is the royal path which leads to divinity. There is little use in performing puja (worship), vratas (rituals) and yajnas without repentance and atonement.

Atma Is The Nameless, Formless Divinity

Iantunam nara janma durlabham (out of all living beings, human birth is the rarest). It is not easy to attain human form. Man is not a mere mortal. He is verily divine. Daivam manusha rupena (God is in the form of a human being). If you do or think something bad, you are not divine. First of all, you should become a good person. Be good, do good, see good. This is the way to God.

Develop The Qualities Exemplified

By Rama And Sita

Students!

First of all, you have to control your mind. Offer your mind to God. He can do everything for you. Have deep devotion to God with firm faith that He is everywhere.

Do not doubt that God is here and not there. Wherever you search for Him, He is there.

(Telugu poem)

Where is God? Sarvatah panipadam tat sarvathokshi siromukham. Sarvatah sruthimalloke sarvamavruthya tishthati (with hands, feet, eyes, head, mouth and ears pervading everything, He permeates the entire universe). Many people are not able to recognise this truth. God is present in all beings, be it a small insect like an ant or a big animal like an elephant or a lion. He is present in a particle of sand and also in a particle of sugar.

Discharge your duty earnestly with devotion to God. Put your knowledge into practice and earn a good name. I never prevent anyone from pursuing his studies. But along with acquiring secular knowledge, you should acquire spiritual knowledge also. Proper enquiry of the mind and purity of heart are very essential. Students!

You have completed the academic year, and you will now go home for vacation. You will be looking for your results and searching your roll number in the list of successful candidates. More than searching your roll number, search your heart. If you have really written well, you are sure to find your roll number. On the other hand, if you have not written your examination well, you should not be delighted even when you find your roll number in the list of successful candidates. It is not the number of marks that are important. What is important is that you should become number one man (loud applause).

This morning, our students sang the song conveying the message that one should have a son like Rama and a daughter like Sita. You may aspire to have a son like Rama and a daughter like Sita. But, how is it possible when you have the demonic qualities of Ravana and Surpanakha? If you want a son like Rama, you should follow Dharma like Him. If you aspire to have a daughter like Sita, you should have the virtues as exemplified by Sita. Whatever form you aspire for, you should cultivate the same type of qualities corresponding to that. Only then can you attain harmony, tolerance and peace. Where is peace? Peace lies in the control of the senses. If you are not able to control your senses, you cannot attain peace; you will get only pieces. If you want to be peaceful, you have to imbibe the qualities of quietude and composure. Let anybody criticise, abuse or hurt you; you should maintain your composure. When someone criticises you, do not take it to heart. Think that his tongue has produced some sound. You have nothing to do with it. If you receive the abuses hurled at you, you will be affected by them. Otherwise, you will not be disturbed. Even if somebody beats you, think that he has beaten your body and not you. In fact, none can ever harm or hurt you, because you are not the body.

If you have such a firm conviction, then you will not have anger or hatred towards even those who abuse or assault you. Therefore, firm conviction is most essential for peace.

Offer Your Heart To God In Prayer

Droupadi had deep devotion for Krishna. She prayed to Him, Oh, Krishna! I worship You day and night. Oh, Lord! Be compassionate and protect me. If You are compassionate towards me, then I will not be bothered about any other thing in life. Droupadi faced many challenges and ordeals in life, but her devotion towards Krishna remained unaffected. Thyagaraja said, Oh, Lord! I have been praying to You incessantly. Why are You depriving me of Your love and compassion? What is that I have not offered

70 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 39

to You?

I have surrendered my wealth,
my family and everything to You.
Now, please come to my rescue.

I seek refuge only in You.

(Sanskrit sloka)

Mere words are not enough when you pray; you should offer your heart to God in prayer.

Man has a name and a form, but the atma transcends both. It has neither a name nor a form. People like some particular names and forms. One cannot have faith in many names and forms, but one can surely have faith in the formless principle of the atma which is present in all. Na atma sakshi (my atma is the witness) is a common saying in Telugu, which shows that people have faith in the atma. That is why atma is the common name for all. Some may pray to Rama, others may pray to Krishna. Names and forms are many, but Divinity is one. atma is the nameless, formless divinity. When you worship such a formless and nameless divine principle, you will certainly attain Divinity.

Experience The Sweetness Of

Rama s Name

THIS motherland of Bharat has given birth to many noble souls who attained great name and fame in all the continents of the world. Many sages and seers of Bharat have been sanctifying their time by propagating Rama tathwa (principle of Rama) since ancient times. The Ramayana belongs to Treta Yuga. Though thousands of years ha ve passed, yet the Ramayana is being read with reverence in every village and every hamlet.

Do As You Say

People, young and old, chant the sacred name of Rama even now with great devotion. They may forget any other name, but not the Rama nama (name). Be he a millionaire or a pauper, everyone takes refuge in the divine name of Rama in times of difficulty. In Bharat, it is hard to find anyone who does not contemplate upon or chant the name of Rama. Many sages in the past did penance and undertook several kinds of vows to spread the glory of Rama nama in the world. However, Rama never wished or told anybody to chant His name or contemplate upon it. He, in fact, declared that all were the embodiments of divinity.

The foremost teaching of Rama was that one should follow sathya. Taking sathya as the basis, one should sustain and promote dharma (righteousness). Dharma is not confined to any particular place or country; it is present in all. It is born out of sathya (truth). In fact, dharma cannot exist without sathya. What is dharma? Dharayati iti dharma (that which sustains is dharma). Some people wrongly limit dharma to mere feeding of the poor or acts of charity. Dharma should flow from one's own heart. Then, it should be put into practice. Do as you say. That is man's foremost duty. There should be perfect harmony between one's words and actions. On the other hand, if one says one thing and does something contrary to it, it connotes adharm (unrighteousness). Moreover, one should carefully analyse and weigh the pros and cons before saying something. Manasyekam vachasyekam, karmanyekam mahatmanam (Those whose thoughts, words and deeds are in perfect harmony are noble ones). You say that you are a human being. But, you are entitled to be called a human being only when your thoughts, words and deeds are in harmony. Rama achieved unity of thought, word and deed. In contrast, Ravana's thoughts, words and deeds were at variance with each other. Manasyanyath vachasyanyath, karmanyanyath duratmanam (Those who lack harmony of thoughts, words and deeds are wicked).

Develop Your Innate Qualities

There has naturally been a conflict between sathya (truth) and asathya (untruth), dharma (righteousness) and Adharma (unrighteousness). Rama scrupulously followed sathya, whereas Ravana resorted to asathya. There is no dharma greater than adherence to sathya. Hence, we should adhere to truth even in trivial matters. We should never resort to untruth to escape from a difficult situation.

The creation emerges from truth

And merges into truth ;

Is there a place in the cosmos
where truth does not exist?

Visualise this pure and unsullied truth.

(Telugu poem)

In fact, truth is the foundation of the entire creation. If for any reason this foundation is disturbed, the whole world will collapse. What is the reason for all the trials and tribulations of man today? It is because man has forgotten truth. He is facing humiliation and disrepute because he is indulging in injustice and falsehood. Hence, one should not resort to untruth under any circumstances. One should speak only truth. Sathya is a small term. But it connotes Sat (changeless divinity). Since we try to change this changeless truth, we undergo changes and distortions.

Experience The Sweetness Of Rama's Name

74 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 39

Dear Students!

You are all young. If you follow truth right from this young age, you will surely become an ideal to the entire country. What is truth? God's word is truth. Hence, when you speak with the feeling sarvam Bhagavad pretyartham (everything is to please God), then everything will become truth. Every thought and feeling emanating from man is a reflection of his inner truth. Unfortunately, it gets converted into falsehood by the improper use of the tongue. The tongue is one of the five senses. These senses are the cause of changes in us. They are responsible for the sin or merit that we earn.

The panchabhutas (five elements) pervade the entire universe, right from the earth to sky. There is no sixth element other than these five elements in the universe. The same five elements are found in every human being in a subtle form. One has to realise this truth and conduct oneself accordingly. Sathya (truth), dharma (righteousness), santi (peace) prema (love) and ahimsa (non-violence) that are present within you have to be nurtured and developed. Sathya is the path. Dharma follows it. Prema is the experience. It is only then that ahimsa manifests. Himsa (violence) is not limited to harming or hurting others; acting contrary to one's words is also himsa. There can be no greater ahimsa than using our tongue in a sacred manner.

Santi (peace) is not to be found somewhere else. It is very much within us. There are many distasteful qualities present within us. It is for us to make good use of these qualities. You may ask, Why does not God change our nature? No, God does not at all interfere; He is a witness of everything. It is not for God to tell you what is good and what is bad. Your own thoughts and feelings tell you what is good and what is bad. If you eat a cucumber, you will get the belch of a cucumber. Hence, what is there in you will be reflected outside. Whatever bad you see in others, it is nothing but the reflection of your own thoughts. Some people are constantly immersed in worldly thoughts. Such people can never be happy. Only those attain the state of bliss whose mind is steady, without any thoughts. Some people consider themselves very intelligent and keep enquiring deeply into their accumulated bookish knowledge. This type of pedantry is like allergy. Once this allergy starts spreading, their energy is sapped. Unfortunately, today we are developing allergy, not energy. Do not keep deliberating upon whether something is good for you or not. Everything is good. Whatever happens, consider that it is good for you. When you develop such an attitude, everything will turn out to be good for you.

76 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 39

Embodiments Of Love!

Love all. Hate none. Do not misunderstand others. Some people develop misunderstanding even about God! It is the worst of sins. Hence, do not entertain such misconceptions. If by any reason such thoughts enter your mind, consider them as your enemies and drive them away. Be loving and cheerful always. It is only love that protects and sustains you. You are yourself the embodiment of love. Where there is love, there hatred cannot enter.

Embodiments Of Love!

Human body is a miniature world. It is constituted by panchabhutas (five elements), panchendriyas (five senses) and pancha pranas (five life-breaths) which, in turn, are born out of truth, are sustained by truth and ultimately merge in truth. Hence, one should follow truth earnestly. Since people distort truth, they lose their purity. The main reason for the impurity of one's heart is one's tendency to distort truth. Hence, if one wishes to maintain purity and sacredness of one's heart, one has to speak truth. If you are wedded to truth, whatever you say will come right.

Some people complain, Swami! Though we are treading the path of truth, untruth still troubles us. What could be the reason for our predicament? The question can be answered by a simple example. While the pure and crystal clear Ganga river flows, some streams and rivulets formed by the rain water join it during its course, thereby polluting the river. However, one has to be careful not to allow any impurities to join the pure and unsullied truth of one's heart. It is because of the weakness of our senses that various impurities enter our heart and pollute it. These impurities are the six inner enemies of man. The purity of nectar can be destroyed even by an atom of impurity. Once a music director composed a song :

I am aware, You are like the moon
in the distant sky;
Yet my mind tries to grab You;
I don't know why.

(Telugu song)

In fact, where is the moon? Not in the distant

Experience The Sweetness Of Rama's Name

78 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 39

sky. Our mind itself is the moon. We are unable to gain control over the mind because of these six inner enemies coming in our way. Is it not a fact that even the bright light of the moon on a full moon night is not visible if the clouds come in its way? The moment the clouds move away, the moon is visible. Similarly, you have to do constant namasmarana in order to drive away the clouds of these six inner enemies.

Follow The Ideals Set By Rama

Today we are celebrating Sri Rama Navami. On this sacred day, we should resolve to follow the teachings of Rama. Sathya and dharma are the two main teachings of Rama. Do not consider yourself as a mere human being. Develop full faith that you are none other than Rama! People often say, Only my Atmarama knows it! Thus, our atma itself is the embodiment of Lord Rama! The atma has no specific form. The same atma that pervades the entire universe took a form and incarnated as Rama. Similarly, dharma took the form of Lakshmana who constantly followed Rama. Lakshmana considered Rama as his very life-breath. Rama was everything for him.

During the exile of Rama, Lakshmana and Sita, once Lakshmana ventured into a particular part of the forest. Soon he was beset with evil thoughts. As soon as he returned, he told Rama, Oh! Rama! Why are we undergoing all these troubles? Why should the innocent mother Sita be put to these ordeals? Come! Let us go back to Ayodhya, this very moment. Sita was surprised at the sudden change in the attitude of Lakshmana. Since Rama knew everything, He called Lakshmana to His side smilingly and made him sit near Him. Immediately, Lakshmana realised his fault. With great agony, he enquired from Rama, Dear brother! How come these evil thoughts entered my mind? Never before such a thing had happened to me. Rama then explained, Dear brother! This is not your fault. This is the region of a demon. Hence, all evil thoughts entered your mind. Tell me your company, I shall tell you what you are. As is your company, so are your thoughts. Hence, keep yourself away from bad company. Join the company of good and noble souls. Then, you will get good thoughts. As are your thoughts, so shall be the result. Yad bhavam tad bhavati (as are the feelings, so is the result).

When Kausalya was shedding tears after Rama left for the forest, Sumitra tried to comfort her, saying, Dear sister! Why do you cry? Is it because Rama is going to the forest? No, no. You are mistaken that Rama would live in the forest, while we would enjoy royal comforts in Ayodhya. In fact, wherever Rama lives is Ayodhya and the rest is nothing but a forest. We should lead our life with equanimity, remaining equal-minded in happiness and sorrow. Happiness and sorrow come one after the other. We should not be affected by them. We should neither be elated by happiness nor depressed by sorrow. Can there be a human being in this world without happiness and sorrow? Rama is, in fact, omniscient and omnipotent. No harm can ever befall Him from wild animals or demons in the forest.

Kausalya was also worried about Sita since she was accompanying Rama to the forest. Rama had tried to dissuade her from going to the forest, saying, Sita! The forest is full of thorny bushes and wild animals. You will be put to a lot of difficulties in the forest. Sita then reasoned with Rama, Oh! Rama! You are the protector of the entire world. Can You not protect Your own wife from the wild animals? You are omnipresent, omnipotent and omniscient. I am sure that none of these wild animals can cause any harm to me when You are with me. I have no such fear. Rama felt very happy to hear these words of Sita.

When Sita was abducted by Ravana, both Rama and Lakshmana became very much worried about her. Seething with anger over Ravana's mean act, Lakshmana approached his elder brother Rama and said, Dear brother! Give me Your permission. I will reduce all these wicked demons to ashes. Rama counselled patience and said, Lakshmana! We don't need to do any such thing. The demons will destroy themselves on their own. In fact, they will become victims of their own evil qualities. Subsequently, Ravana was killed by Rama and His army of Vanaras. Rama then explained to Lakshmana thus: Lakshmana! People behave in a particular way and reap the consequences of their actions, depending upon their prarabdha (destiny) and their qualities. We need not be too much concerned with that. As long as one is attached to worldly objects and thinks in terms of mine and thine, one will be afflicted by sorrow. Hence, one has to treat the worldly objects with the attitude, these are not mine; all these are the property of the Divine,

All acts should be performed to please God. If one develops ego with thoughts of I and mine, one is sure to perish. You say this is mine and that is mine. In fact, what really belongs to you - the body, the mind, the intellect or the senses? You say this is my body, this is my mind, this is my intellect, etc. But, none of these belongs to you truly. The body which you consider as belonging to you will leave you in a moment, even without your knowledge. Similarly, the mind roams about like a monkey. Is it possible to restrain this mad monkey? Do not say, I am this or that . Say, I am I . This is your correct description. The correct answer to the question Who are you? is I am I . Rama did not criticise or harm anyone. Then, who will have hatred towards Him? Good acts of Rama brought good results to Him. Thus, when we do good to others, there is no possibility for us to undergo sorrows and difficulties. If we still feel we are put to difficulties, the fault lies with us. God is not responsible for our sorrows and difficulties; it is the waywardness of our senses that is responsible for them. So, we should control our senses. If we are able to control our senses, everything else will come under our control. That is the essence of the teachings of Rama. The Ramayana is not merely the story of Rama. In fact, it is the story of every human being.

Experience The Sweetness Of Rama s Name

82 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 39

Sweetness Of Ramanama Never Diminishes

We blame God for our problems and difficulties. But, God loves one and all equally. He has no hatred towards anyone. He is always cheerful and smiling.

A smiling countenance is the natural quality of a divine being. Where there is a smile, there can be no hatred at all! People with such divine attributes do not get disturbed under any circumstances. Hence, be always smiling and cheerful. Never put on a castor-oil face . Some students are very much worried about examinations; they want them to be delayed or postponed. However, the sooner you write the examinations and pass them, the quicker will you move onto the higher class. Instead of examination worry, you should make hurry to go to the higher class. There is no worry in this hurry.

Come! Oh, devotees! Come!

Take the sweet of Ramanama.

Do not buy and eat other sweets out of ignorance.

They will spoil your health.

By mixing the wheat flour of

The essence of the Vedas

With the milk of Vedic declarations,

Adding the sugar of Subuddhi (virtues)

and the ghee of Nibaddhi (truth),

Removing the dirt of Abaddhamu (falsehood),

Our ancient Rishis have prepared this most delicious sweet of Ramanama.

(Telugu song)

Your health will be spoiled by eating all kinds of sweets sold in the marketplace. Those sweets may be tasty, but are harmful to you. Instead, take the sweet of Ramanama that has been prepared by our great Rishis. It has a wonderful effect on your mind. It can never become stale or spoiled. The more you eat this sweet of Ramanama, the more joy will you derive from it. It is sweeter than sugar and tastier than curd.

The divine name of Rama is full of sweetness and it remains sweet forever. There have been many incarnations of God on earth. But the divine name of Rama has remained eternal. Since ancient times, Ramanama has remained as the taraka mantra (mantra that liberates) for one and all. Right from children to elders, everyone can derive the bliss of chanting Ramanama. Age is no obstacle in experiencing the sweetness of Ramanama. There is immense sweetness in this name. We should never give up such a sweet, nectarous and blissful Ramanama even for a second. Unfortunately, today people are neglecting the chanting of Ramanama. It is their misfortune.

Lead An Ideal And Exemplary Life

When Mirabai was asked to leave the Krishna temple in the palace by the Maharana, she was full of anxiety, thinking, How can I leave my dear Lord Krishna and go away! But her unflinching faith in Krishna developed the firm conviction in her, Krishna Himself would come along with me. She prayed to

Lord Krishna, Oh, Lord! I obtained the precious pearl of Divine Name after a great effort. Please bless me that I do not lose this invaluable pearl. Chanting the name of Krishna incessantly, she reached Dwaraka. However, she found the doors of the temple closed. Unable to bear the agony of separation from her dear Lord Krishna any more, she banged her head against the doors of the temple. Lo! and behold! The doors of the temple opened and Lord Krishna appeared before her. After having Darshan of her dear Lord, Mirabai merged in Him.

We have to broaden our heart. This does not refer to the physical heart. If the physical heart is enlarged, it requires surgery by the doctors. Broadening one s heart implies the quality of large-heartedness. Some people sit here stretching their legs and occupying a lot of space. Instead, if people sit closely, some more devotees can be accommodated. We can help each other by caring and sharing.

Dear Students!

The summer vacation has started. From tomorrow onwards, you will be going home to spend your vacation with your parents. Spend your time happily with your parents. Contemplating upon the happy time you have spent here learning many sacred teachings,

Experience The Sweetness Of Rama s Name

86 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 39

make your parents also happy. If you are happy, they will also be happy. Never make your parents unhappy by your conduct. Your parents occupy an important place in your life. It is your foremost duty to make them happy. It is not enough if you look after your own comfort and welfare. First and foremost, the parents are to be made happy. Life is not confined to khana (food), peena (drink), sona (sleep) and marna (death). We are not born to eat and roam about and enjoy comforts. We are born to serve our parents and make them happy. If you make your parents happy now, your children would make you happy in future. Lead an ideal and exemplary life. Only then will your life be sanctified and the education acquired by you in Sri Sathya Sai educational institutions will become meaningful. I wish that all of you should earn name and fame as the students of this great institution.

Happiness Is Holiness

LORD KRISHNA made this divine declaration:

Mamaivamsho jivaloke jivabhuta sanathana (the eternal atma in all beings is a part of My Being). Hence, do not feel that you are different from God. God resides in you. In fact, you are God.

Nothing Is Permanent In This World

You think you are a human being because you are endowed with a human body, but the atma that indwells a all manifests your divinity. There are thousands of bulbs that have been put up for decoration. Their colour and wattage may differ, but the electric current in all of them is one and the same. Like the current that makes all the bulbs shine, the atma present in all human beings makes them see, hear and work. But today man is caught in worldly affairs and is ignoring spirituality. If you have spiritual vision, you will know that it is the same God who is present everywhere. Everything from earth to sky is nothing but God. Even this flower, this tumbler, this microphone and the tablecloth that you see here are all aspects of divinity. Divinity pervades each and everything in this universe. But you see differences due to your faulty vision.

Change is the nature of the five elements, and not of God. There are only five elements in this universe; there is no sixth element. Our human form is a combination of the five elements and is sustained by them. Man has relationship with the five elements so long as the body lasts. Once the body perishes, he has nothing to do with even one of them. These elements are present in man in the form of his senses of sound, sight, touch, taste and smell. Our senses are responsible for good and bad, merit and sin. Good and bad are not given by God; they are the consequences of man's own actions. Sometimes you think that God has given you suffering and sometimes you feel God is responsible for your happiness, but God neither gives happiness nor suffering. These are all man's illusion. Man suffers due to his own evil qualities like jealousy, hatred, anger and pomposity. Where does anger come from? It comes from within us because of our wrong food and evil thoughts. Desire arises because of your covetous nature. kama, krodha, lobha, moha, mada and matsarya (desire, anger, greed, attachment, pride and jealousy) all arise from us.

You think God has a form. But God is formless. God is positive and man is negative. Negative comes and goes, but positive is permanent. Repose your faith in the positive and not in the negative. Everything in this world comes and goes like passing clouds. A boy gets married to a girl. But before marriage, where was the boy and where was the girl? Their relationship developed only after marriage. But even that is not permanent. There is nothing in human life that is permanent. Everything is temporary; it comes and goes. If man wants to become eternal, he has to develop atma viswasa (faith in the Self). You may come and go, but I am with you forever. Divinity is changeless. Instead of aspiring for the changeless, man is running after all that is fleeting and temporary. All that we desire in this world is subject to change. Bodies are subject to change. You may see a body today and may not see it tomorrow. There is nothing in this world that is permanent. There is only one entity that is permanent about whom it is said, Sarvatah panipadam tat sarvathokshi siromukham, Sarvatah sruthimalloke sarvamavruthya tishthati (with hands, feet, eyes, head, mouth and ears pervading everything, He permeates the entire universe). There is only One that is present always, but during our short life-span we develop many illusions.

Happiness Is Holiness

90 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 39

Pray To God Desirelessly

We celebrate New Year and feel very happy. In fact it is not new; it is just a change of time. Today is the beginning of Chaitra (a month in Indian calendar). Next month is Vaishakha. In this way, many Chaitras and Vaishakhas have come and gone, but nothing is permanent. Why should we bother about all that is impermanent and passing? A fruit is at first unripe and after some time it becomes fully ripe and ultimately it decays. Similarly, human body is subject to change; it has childhood, youth, old age and ultimately death. So, there is nothing in this world that is permanent. Whatever you see in this world is just temporary and passing. There is only one thing that is permanent and you have to pray for that. But whom are you praying for? You are praying for yourself, not for God. In fact, you are praying to yourself because God is in you.

Because of your identification with the body, you think you are a devotee and God is separate from you. There is no difference between the devotee and God. Whatever you see, it is God; wherever you go, God is there; whatever you do, it is for God. God is present even in a particle of dust. When the wind blows, the dust goes up. When there is no wind, the dust comes down. In the same way, when man has desires, he is engulfed in delusion. When he is without desires, his delusion is also subdued. Sometimes man is peaceful and at other times he is agitated. These states of man are the result of his food, his habits and worldly relationships; they are not caused by God. God has nothing to do with that. God is eternally present and the five elements are also present forever. Even after man dies, the five elements continue to have their existence. The consciousness present in all the five elements in man is responsible for all his body functions.

When a man is newly married, he loves his wife very much. His love is so intense in the beginning that if she is about to put her foot on a thorn, he pulls her away with great concern, saying, There is a thorn, there is a thorn. After some time, when the same situation arises, he merely cautions her, Be careful, there is a thorn. When more time has elapsed, he will resort to scolding, Don't you have eyes? Can't you see the thorn? The love that is there in the beginning gives way to anger with the passage of time. Worldly love is subject to change. Even the love between husband and wife and mother and child undergoes changes with the passage of time. Everything is temporary in this world. It is impermanent and it comes and goes. We are happy when we gain something; we are grieved when we lose anything. Loss and gain are the cause of our happiness and sorrow. But profit and loss are only relative terms.

Embodiments Of Love!

There are no permanent relationships in this world. So long as the body lasts, the relationships exist. When the body is lost, the relationships are also lost. There is one thing that is permanent in this universe and that is what you have to aspire for. Human life is given to man to know himself and to realise God. People worship God and pray to Him. When their desires are fulfilled, they are very happy. If their desires are not fulfilled, they change even the photo of the deity in their altar. If we worship God only to fulfil our desires, then it is not true worship. Our love and devotion for God should be changeless. It should not change under any circumstances. Love is the very form of God. Love is God. Live in love. Love is present in all. Even the person whom we think as wicked has love for his wife and children. If you have love in your heart, you will find love everywhere. If you love a dog or a cat, they will also reciprocate your love. You will not have fear of even wild animals if you do not harm them. Yad bhavam tad bhavati (as is the feeling, so is the result). Everything depends on our feelings.

Desires Are The Cause Of Man's Suffering

All of us should consider our body as only an instrument to discharge our duties. Never think that this body is permanent and you have to accumulate wealth to maintain it. It is merely a waste of time and effort when you try to accumulate worldly possessions. Everything else is temporary except love and truth. Sathyannasti paro dharma (There is no dharma greater than adherence to truth). There are many types of duties that we have to perform with the help of the body. But our foremost duty is to develop love. Where there is love, there is bliss. True relationship exists only when there is love. Where there is no love, bliss cannot exist there, can there be true relationship. God is the embodiment of bliss. Nityanandam, parama sukhadam, Kevalam jnanamurtim, dwandwateetam, Gagana sadrisham, tathwamasyadi Lakshyam, ekam, nityam, vimalam, Achalam, sarvadhee sakshibhutam, bhavateetam, trigunarahitam (God is the embodiment of eternal bliss, He is wisdom absolute, beyond the pair of opposites, expansive and pervasive like the sky, the goal indicated by the mahavakya tathwamasi. One without a second, eternal, pure, unchanging, witness of all functions of the intellect, beyond all mental conditions and the three attributes of sathwa, rajas and tamas.) Man should develop the divine quality of love and not the worldly relationships.

Happiness Is Holiness

Suppose a person has delicious dishes and fruits before him which he loves to eat, he will get happiness when he consumes them. If at that very moment he gets the sad news of the tragic death of his son in an accident in the bazaar, he will run to see his son and throw away all the dishes, because his love for his son is more than his love for food. When the food is before him, he thinks that his entire happiness lies in consuming it. Where has the love for food gone now? In a similar way, man develops love for many things in this world. In fact, there is nothing in this world which you should desire for. Desires are the cause of all the suffering of man. As the Saying goes Less luggage more comfort. When there is luggage, you cannot escape from trouble. Here luggage refers to worldly relationships and desires. Only when you get rid of worldly bondage can you be happy. There is nothing in this world that you should desire for. If any worldly desire crops up in your mind, give it up at once. Giving up of desires is true renunciation. Less luggage, more comfort makes travel a pleasure. You can have real happiness only when you reduce your luggage. There are so many millionaires in this world. But, are they able to live forever? They come and go like passing clouds. You find clouds only in the sky. Without sky there can be no clouds. So long as you have body consciousness, you will have the clouds of desires.

Everybody Has To Leave The World Empty-handed

Embodiments Of Love!

You should have body consciousness only to discharge your duties. You have to do your duty. Duty is God. You should not develop undue worldly relations. But, you are developing more and more desires and more and more greed. You have to reduce the luggage of your desires. You may accumulate any amount of luggage, but it is not going to be permanent. Alexander, the great emperor, conquered different parts of the world and came to India with a desire to conquer this country. On his return journey, he suffered a grave illness. Sensing that his end had approached, he called all his ministers and generals and told them that he was not going to live any more. He instructed them to take his body to his country after his death. He further told them to expose his hands out of the bier with his palms upwards and take the funeral procession to all the streets of the city. This was to tell the people of the world that in spite of his great conquests in the world and a great name and fame, Alexander left the world empty-handed. This is true of all of us. Whatever we may accumulate, we have to go empty-handed only. In the ultimate analysis, all the worldly possessions are useless. Then why should we worry about all that is useless? Do your duty making best use of the present; do not unnecessarily worry about what is to come in future.

Happiness Is Holiness

Many things happen in this world; God is the witness of all that happens. God is always blissful; He has no suffering, no difficulty, no worry. God is not the cause of the difficulties and sufferings of anybody. He has no desires. You may think that God has desires, but in reality He has none. He is gunatita (beyond attributes), trigunarahita (devoid of the three qualities of sattwa, rajas and tamas). You become the victim of delusion as you are bound by these three qualities. If someone dies, people lament over his death for a few days and then they forget. In this manner, nothing is permanent in this world. However, we have to do what we are supposed to do. You wear a shawl when it is cold. As soon as the cold is gone, you remove the shawl. Likewise, you don the vesture of human body and nourish it for performing your worldly duties. Ultimately, you have to give up this body.

Do All Actions To Please God

Embodiments Of Love!

You do all kinds of worship, penance and yainas, but what is the use of all this? They cannot protect and sustain you if you are bereft of the divine quality of love. It will be just a waste of time and energy. What you have to nourish and develop is love. If you have love, you can conquer anything. Except love, there is nothing that can nourish and sustain you. Develop self-confidence. When you have self-confidence, you will attain self-satisfaction which will lead you to self-sacrifice and ultimately to self-realisation. What is the meaning of self-realisation? It means to realise one's Self. You keep asking everybody, Who are you? But you do not ask yourself, Who am I? Am I the body, am I the mind, am I the intellect, am I the chittha, am I the senses? When you say, my body, you are different from the body. Body is like a water bubble, mind is like a mad monkey. Do not follow the body, do not follow the mind. Do not think that the body is permanent. But so long as you have the body and mind, you have to use them to perform your duties. If your mind is not sound and steady, none of your endeavours will fructify. Hence, first and foremost control the mind. Who is man? One who is endowed with mind is man. Do not allow your mind to become a monkey mind. Understand that you

Happiness Is Holiness

belong to mankind. So, you have to conduct yourself with kindness and compassion.

You are running after all that is false and ephemeral giving up all that is true and eternal. In Kali Age, everything is becoming business. Wherever people go, whatever they do, they do it with a business motive. Even trivial matters have become business activity. How long can you do this business? It is all useless. Man should learn to give; he should not try to grab all that comes his way. Body is given to man to do good to others.

Paropakaraya punyaya, papaya parapidanam (one attains merit by serving others and commits sin by hurting them). Do not always accept the service of others; rather, try to serve others to the extent possible. When you serve others, think that you are serving God. Do all actions to please God. All your actions will become meaningful only when you do them with the motive of pleasing God. Never do anything with a selfish motive. Today you are here. Tomorrow you may be somewhere else. Nothing is permanent. Only love is permanent in this world. Fill your life with love. You can love others only when you have love within you. Your innate love is your divinity. If you have love in your heart, nobody will hate you. Others will hate you only when you have selfish desires. Never hate anybody, never feel jealous of anybody and never get angry with anyone.

Embodiments Of Love!

You have come all the way from distant places because of your love for Swami. Preserve this love forever and live in the presence of God. Never forget this love which is in you, with you, below you, above you, around you. Do not think that God is separate from you. He is the witness of everything. People go to temples with trays full of flowers and fruits.

Is it possible to limit the One to a temple Who pervades the entire cosmos?

How can one offer food to the One

Who has the entire cosmos in His belly? How can one give a bath to the One

Who is present in all rivers?

(Telugu poem)

Worry Is A Mentally Created Fear

People offer food to God and afterwards consume it themselves! God does not want anything. God has no desires at all. Sometimes, God may act in a way which makes you think that He has desires. But God has no desires at all. He has no bondage either. Whatever He does is for your sake. Whatever He says, does and thinks is for your sake. Pray for the welfare of all. Loka samasta sukhino bhavantu

Happiness Is Holiness

(May all the people of the world be happy!). Do not wish any harm even to your enemy. Love Ever, Hurt Never. Do not do anything that is contrary to the principle of love. Love is God. Live in Love. Consider love as God. Salute whomever you come across, even if he be your enemy. Love even your enemy. Whomsoever you salute, it will reach God, for God is in all. With these sacred feelings, do not have hatred towards anyone.

All that has to happen will happen. Do not worry about it. Past is past, forget the past. Future is uncertain, do not brood over it. Present is important, live in the present and be happy. Do not worry about past and future. Where is the past? Many people have passed away. Has any of them come back? None. Similarly, we do not know anything about future. Why should we worry about it? You should try to seek happiness in the present. When you have such an attitude, you will never worry about anything in life. What is the shape of worry? It is a mentally created fear. We should never worry. A true devotee will not have any worries. You cannot call yourself a true devotee if you are beset with worries. Hurry, worry, and curry are the cause of heart diseases. One should therefore avoid hurry, worry, curry.

All of you are the embodiments of love and divinity. You are Atmaswarupa (embodiment of the atma). For the sake of identity, you have a name, but in reality, all of you are the embodiments of the atma. Only the atma is eternal.

Today marks the beginning of the Tamil New Year. People of Kerala celebrate it in a traditional way by having the holy vision of Vishukkani in the morning. They will have delicious dishes and all merriment. It is a festive occasion for the farmers who bring home the harvested grain. It is, in fact, a holy day for them as they reap the fruit of their hard labour after toiling hard from morning to evening in their fields all the year round. The farmers lead a very hard life. This is the time of their rejoicing as the harvested grain ensures them freedom from all worries and makes them happy and blissful. Happiness is true holiness. True bliss lies in cultivating the principle of love and leading a life of contentment. We should always be contented. When there is no contentment, worries raise their head. All troubles are created by worrying.

Live Always In Bliss

Embodiments Of Love!

The day you are happy is the holy day. Love is divine. Suffuse your love with the principle of divinity. Keep your heart filled with love forever. Then every day will become a New Year for you. What is New Happiness Is Holiness

102 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 39

Year? The celebration of New Year does not lie in eating payasam (sweet pudding) and other delicious dishes. The day you are filled with bliss is the New Year. Always live in bliss. If difficulties confront you, drive them away. In fact, suffering and troubles have no real existence. Then why are you worrying? Develop the attitude of detachment. Then you will have no suffering and no worry. Remind yourself, I am a human being. These difficulties and suffering do not belong to me. If you develop real body detachment, you will not be affected by any affliction. Physical ailments like stomachache, headache or body pain are natural to the body. Why should you worry about that which is natural? You suffer because you develop too much attachment to the body. However, you have to take care of the body to the extent that you are not dependent on others. You should realise your true nature. Regulate your diet and habits. Since you have too many desires, you have all the problems. If you eat too much, you will have to suffer from indigestion. Hence, control your craving for food. Eat moderately and maintain good health. That is what I advise the children always.

Get up early in the morning

at the crowing of the cock;

Have a bath after your morning ablutions,

Wear a proper dress.

103

Eat properly and moderately.

Go to school and study diligently.

Earn a good name.

(Telugu poem)

Develop good health, cultivate good habits, have good conduct and earn a good name. If you have all these, you will not need anything else in life. Do not run after medicines and doctors for your small problems. If a medicine cures one disease, it will create another. Many doctors have made the medical profession also a business. What are you going to achieve if you lead a life full of worries? Nothing at all! Some doctors may exaggerate even your minor ailments as cancer and ulcer. In such cases, even if you do not have such a disease, worry caused to you by the imaginary disease may lead to it. The more you worry about it, the more would be your suffering. Therefore, do not worry about your small physical problems. If you lead a life of moderation and maintain a healthy lifestyle, you don't need to be at the mercy of doctors.

Embodiments Of Love!

Stop the habit of worrying. Even an intelligent student will not be able to write his examination well, if he becomes nervous in the examination hall due to his doubts, though he may know the answers to the questions. Doubts are the cause of your worry. You have to face all difficulties because of your habit of worrying. You should work hard without worrying for anything. When you lead such a straightforward life, you will not have to run after anybody and beg for favours. Experience the bliss that is within your heart without making a show of it to others. Have belief in that which ought to be believed. Have love for that which ought to be loved. You have to love only one thing and that is God. Once you have love for God, you will have everything in life. On the one side is the world and on the other, God. You cannot have both simultaneously. It is like riding on two horses which is sure to prove dangerous. Focus your mind only on God and have total faith in Him. Ekam Sat viprah bahudha vadanti (truth is one, but the wise refer to it by various names). You should always think of God, both in pleasure and pain. If you aspire to have happiness and bliss, you should desire only for God. Do not worry too much about your difficulties. If you have love for God, all your difficulties will vanish in a trice. All difficulties are like passing clouds.

Swami loves His students very much. Once it so happened that a student was trying to tie buntings on a door while standing on a steel stool. As he saw Me coming, he felt nervous and fell from the stool. Both the stool and the boy fell on Me and My hip bone was fractured. Doctors advised rest for three to six months. But I told them that I did not need rest even for three minutes. What is this body for? It is for helping others. The body needs balance. There would be difficulty in walking when the balance is lost. But I do not care even for balance. It is temporary and will become all right on its own. I am able to walk with the support of boys. We should not worry about small problems. Do your duty. Then everything will become all right. Develop love.

Embodiments Of Love!

Do not forget the principle of love. Love God. It is nothing great if you help someone who has helped you. Greatness lies in helping those who have done harm to you.

True Spirit of Ugadi Celebration

You may have celebrated many Ugadi (Telugu New Year day) festivals in your life. Certain traditional practices go with every festival, such as having a sacred bath, wearing new clothes, cleaning the house and decorating it with buntings of green leaves. Greatness lies in purifying our thoughts, not merely the transient human body. The significance of a festival does not lie merely in wearing new clothes but in cultivating new and noble thoughts. The house should be decorated not merely with buntings of green leaves but with everyone. Only then would you be celebrating the festival in its true spirit.

Do Not Burden Yourself

With Limitless Desires

Sathya, Dharma, Santi, Prema are the pillars of Sanathana Dharma. Without imbibing these values, the acquisition of all education, performance of all acts of charity and undertaking of all spiritual practices is of little worth. What else is to be conveyed to this assembly of noble souls?

(Telugu poem)

Embodiments of Love!

WHAT is the meaning of Avatar (incarnation of God)? It connotes the combination of Divine consciousness with human consciousness. Man is the combination of body, mind, intellect and consciousness. God, who is the embodiment of love, assumes human form to establish identity with man so as to bring about transformation in him through love. God descends on earth and involves Himself in the affairs of the world to teach and guide man and to put him on the right path. Here is a small example.

Do Not Superimpose Human Qualities On Avatars

Once the Gopikas approached Yashoda and complained to her, Mother! Krishna came to our house and broke our pots of curd and milk. Some other Gopikas came and complained to Yashoda that Krishna entered their house at midnight and tied the plaits of one Gopika with that of the other. When Yashoda chided Krishna for these mischievous acts, Krishna said to His mother, Mother! You know that I was sleeping by your side all through the night. Then you tell me, how could I go to their houses at midnight? Yashoda realised that what Krishna said was true. Obviously, the Gopikas were telling lies, she thought. There is a difference between human consciousness and divine consciousness. If the divine pranks of child Krishna were to be analysed from the spiritual angle, the earthen pots represent the human body. Hence, breaking of the pots renotes denouncing dehabhhranti (delusion caused by body attachment). Not realising this deeper meaning behind the seemingly childish pranks of Krishna, the Gopikas complained against Him to Yashoda.

Later, the Gopikas realised the true nature of Krishna and prayed to Him, Oh! Krishna! You are the embodiment of bliss, free from trigunas (satwa, rajas and tamas) and duality and beyond the ken of human mind. It was our mistake to superimpose human qualities on You. Whatever complaints we made against You to Your mother were caused by our ignorance. Oh, Swami! Kindly pardon us and take us into Your fold. Krishna then pardoned all of them and explained to them the principle of oneness, saying, You are not different from Me. You and I are one. Thus, when we develop faith in the principle of oneness, our lives will be sanctified.

Man is endowed with the body and the mind, both of which breed kama and krodha (desire and anger). But God has neither desire nor anger. God does not have even an iota of worldly desires or aspirations. Whatever God does, sees and says is all for the good of the devotees, and not for Himself. When God incarnates on earth in human form, He behaves like a human being only. He may make somebody cry, make some other laugh and indulge in playful pranks with yet another. Seeing all these seemingly human acts, people are deluded to treat the avatar as an ordinary human being. In fact, what could be the reason for God to descend on the earth with a human form? It is only to set an ideal for man and lead him on the path of righteousness.

Do Not Burden Yourself With Limitless Desires

Unity And Equality Are The Hallmarks Of Human Society

When someone asks your name, the usual reply would be: My name is Ranganna or Somanna, etc. But, these names are given to you by your parents. They are not your true names. In fact, when someone asks your name, you should reply, I am I. This is your true name. This I is present in every individual. That is the atma tathwa (principle of the Self). Excepting this, all other names are only imaginary. This implies that God is immanent in every human being, nay, every living being. All are the embodiments of God. Ekoham bahusyam (the One willed to become many). It is the One that has assumed all forms. Aham Brahmasmi (I am Brahman). This should be the realisation of each individual. This realisation is the basis of the unity of vyashti (individual), samashti (society), srishti (creation) and Parameshti (God). Without srishti, there can be no samashti, and without samashti, there can be no vyashti. But who is vyashti? He is the embodiment of divinity which is present in all. Therefore, society, which is the conglomeration of individuals, is the collective form of divinity. Hence, all are equal in society. No distinction can be made as high or low. Whomever you ridicule, it amounts to ridiculing yourself. It is only your reflection that you see in him. It is only the resound that you hear. One has to realise this truth and develop the feeling of oneness. The names Rama and Krishna were given to the avatars by their parents. When God incarnated in the past, He did not proclaim that He was Rama or Krishna. These names were given to the avatars after their incarnation and not before. Names and forms are merely the marks of distinction of individuals in society.

You need not search for God anywhere. When someone asks you, Where is God?, you should say with confidence, I am God. People build temples and buildings with brick and mortar and install idols of God in them. In fact, God is firmly installed in the hearts of all human beings, nay, all living beings. It is only to explain this truth that Lord Krishna in the Bhagavad Gita declared, Mamaivamsho jivaloke jivabhuta sanathana (the eternal atma in all beings is a part of My Being). It is possible to realise this truth by adhering to the five human values of sathya (truth), dharma (righteousness), santi (peace), prema (love) and ahimsa (non-violence). Where are these human values? They are not outside. All of them are within you only. It is most unfortunate that you search them outside, while they are very much within you. As long as you search for the reflections outside, you will not be able to recognise the object within. Divinity is immanent in you. Hence, you should consider yourself divine and proclaim, I am God. Then, you will not have any fear or anxiety or delusion. So long as you do not realise your divinity within, you cannot get rid of body attachment.

There is no need to go on pilgrimages to search for God. God is present everywhere. Sarvatah panipadam tat sarvathokshi siromukham, sarvatah sruthimalloke sarvamavruthya tishthati (with hands, feet, eyes, head, mouth and ears pervading everything, God permeates the entire universe). Wherever you see, God is present there. There is no place where God is not present. There is no form which does not belong to Him. Man searches for God, thinking that He is at some distant place. But God is in front of you, behind you, beside you. All are the embodiments of God. However, you do not consider the people around you as embodiments of divinity. You look at their form and consider them as mere human beings. Forget the form. Be firmly established in the feeling that wherever you see it is God only. It is only He who provides everything for our sustenance. Hence, whatever work you undertake, consider it as God's work and dedicate it to Him.

If you perform your actions as an offering to God, they will turn out to be pure and sacred. God is not somewhere in a distant corner. You are God. You are society. You are the world. You are the sky. You are the earth. You are the stars. You are everything. Hence, develop the feeling, I am everything. You see duality in the world since you go by names and forms. If you see beyond names and forms, you will find unity everywhere.

All of you are the embodiments of the atma. Being the embodiments of the atma, why should you search for the atma elsewhere? What is the meaning of atma? The atma denotes consciousness. Consciousness pervades everything. As long as there is consciousness in the body, it is nourished and protected. When consciousness leaves the body, it loses all its worth.

Develop Purity And Goodness

Supposing a boy and a girl decide to marry. After the marriage, the girl refers to him as her husband. Similarly, the boy refers to her as his wife. But, for how long? Only for some specific period, i.e., as long as they live together. Later, if either of them dies, one will not have any relationship with the other. Who is the husband and who is the wife? All these relationships are imaginary and transitory. Similar is the relationship between the mother and the son. The son addresses her as mother for a number of years. But when she leaves her mortal coil, the son wails over the dead body of his mother, saying Oh! Mother! You have left me! In fact, where has his mother gone? The physical body which he referred to as mother all these years is very much in front of him. If the physical body were to be really his mother, he could have as well kept it in his house; is it not? But, will he do so? Not at all! He takes the body to the cremation ground and cremates it. Hence, all these bodily relationships are only illusory and not real. These are like passing clouds. Only the atma is eternal. Whatever may happen to the physical body, the atma does not undergo any change.

114 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 39

All are the embodiments of God. Since we are deluded to think that God is separate from us, we undertake various spiritual practices to attain God. We think that sravanam (listening), kirtanam (singing), Vishnusmaranam (contemplating on Vishnu), padasevanam (serving His Lotus Feet), vandanam (salutation), archanam (worship), dasyam (servitude), sneham (friendship), atmanivedanam (self-surrender) are the sadhanas we are required to perform. But, what is sadhana? sadhana = sa + dhana. The letter sa in the word sadhana implies salokya (perception of the Divine), sameepya (proximity to the Divine), sarupya (identification with the Divine) and savuiya (merger in the divine). This is the dhana (wealth) man has to acquire and treasure. But, man today is craving for dhana (money) forgetting this sa consisting of salokya, sameepya, sarupya and savuiya. Every activity in the world today is centred around dhana. Supposing you request someone to sing a song or do some work for you, he will immediately start bargaining the amount you will pay for his services. Every activity of man has become business today, so much so that business has entered the field of spirituality also. There is no necessity to purchase God with money which, of course, you cannot. In fact, you yourself are God. You yourself are the divine principle. You are endowed with immense divine power. But you have to keep your mind steady. Let it not jump from one thought to another. If you write correct answers in your examination, you will get correct marks. If you have a good mind, everything will turn out to be good. But if there are bad thoughts in your mind, the result will also be bad. First and foremost, understand the nature of your mind. You can understand the secret of human life only when you understand your own mind. Be Good, Do Good, See Good. Then everything will become good in your life. Be always good and tread the right path. Do not follow the wrong path by imitating others. Follow your conscience. If your heart is pure, everything will become pure and sacred.

Do Not Burden Yourself With Limitless Desires

116 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 39

Keep Your Desires Under Control

Embodiments Of Divine Atma!

There is a limit for everything in this world. There is nothing without limit. In fact, the world is a limited company. What will happen to the limited company if it violates its limits? Hence, everyone should conduct himself within his limits. When a doctor prescribes a particular medicine to a patient, he also indicates the dosage. If the patient takes the medicine without regard to the dosage and exceeds the limit, he may contract another disease. Similarly, God has set a limit for every individual. But modern man has limitless desires. It is necessary that he keeps his desires within limits. He will be put to great danger if he exceeds this limit out of his ego. Whether it is the individual or society or the world, all should observe the prescribed limits.

Man is born with many relationships, like father, mother, relatives and friends. All these are created by the world. When he gets married, he has a wife. Later, he has children. Thereafter, he has grandchildren. Thus, his relations go on increasing without any limit. As the relations grow, his desires also grow without limit. Man will be happy if he reduces his desires. Less luggage, more comfort. Reduce your luggage. Develop courage and confidence. These are not the qualities you can borrow from others. You yourself have to develop them with patience and perseverance.

Embodiments Of Love!

Sanctify your life by developing sense control. It is only because people have no control over their senses and no limit to their desires that there is a lot of unrest and agitation in society. Such people roam about freely in society like animals. You should not become animals. Whenever some evil thoughts arise in you, you should remind yourself that you are a human being and not an animal. Anger is an animal quality. When animals get angry, they fight with one another. Unfortunately, today human beings are also fighting among themselves like animals. In a way, animals are better than man today. Animals have a reason and a season, but man has no reason, no season. Thus, man today is behaving worse than animals. Being a human being, you should cultivate human qualities. In fact, a human being should not get angry at all! Even if anger overpowers you, you should try to become calm and quiet. Do not lose your cool. When you cultivate calmness, you will never become agitated and restless.

Peace is within you. It cannot be found outside. Outside, there are only pieces. Similarly, happiness is not outside. Many people come to Swami and pray, Swami, I want peace of mind. I tell them that they have to search for peace within themselves. I am always full of peace and bliss. What is the reason for loss of peace in man today? His desires are the basic cause of his restlessness. Where there are desires, peace disappears from there. Therefore, reduce the luggage of your desires. Then you will have less burden in life.

118 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 39

Do Not Allow Evil Qualities To Enter Your Heart

Embodiments Of Love!

All of you know that man has to adhere to the path of truth. He should never adopt the path of untruth under any circumstances. Whatever happens in your life, think that it is good for you. Even if someone criticises you, you should think that it is good for you. If you consider everything good, then everything will become good for you. God is not outside, He is within you. Similarly, Sathya, Dharma, Santi, Prema, Ahimsa are not outside. They are within you. When you get angry, you lose your peace. Therefore, you should always remain peaceful and blissful. Being a human being, you should have human qualities. A true human being is one who is suffused with sathya, dharma, santi, and prema. When you develop these human qualities, you will enjoy peace at all times. Then you will always have a smile on your face. But when the mind is disturbed, you cannot have peace.

You are not a mere human being. There is divinity immanent in you. Realise this truth. As long as you consider yourself as an ordinary human being, you cannot escape from restlessness. Changes occur in you due to your food and conduct. Sometimes, some bad qualities like anger and jealousy arise in you. But you should not give scope to these evil qualities. Suppose, you build a house and fix doors in it. Simply because you have fixed doors in your house, will you allow all sorts of animals and insects like donkeys, pigs, snakes and scorpions to enter your house? Not at all! Even if they try to enter, you will at once close the door. Similarly, control is the door of your heart. If you close the door of the heart on evil qualities, they cannot enter it. You should not get angry with anyone, nor criticise or harm anyone. If, for any reason, such circumstances arise, control yourself. When anger overtakes you, put it down immediately considering it as your enemy. It is said, anger is your enemy, patience is your shield of protection, happiness is your heaven. Fill your heart with love and compassion. If you have love in your heart, you will see God everywhere. Bereft of love, you will see only devil. When you develop firm faith that God is in you and you are God and that your body itself is the temple of God, then there will be no scope at all for anger, jealousy, pride, etc., to trouble you.

Hence, Bangaru! Develop love and compassion.

God is your sole refuge

wherever you maybe,

In a forest, in the sky, in a city or in a village, on the top of a mountain, or in the middle of deep sea.

(Telugu Poem)

Truth is unchangeable, irrespective of time and place. Wherever you are, truth is truth, love is love! If you have love, truth will automatically become part of you and vice versa. You are all born with love. But unfortunately as you grow up, the love in you gradually starts declining and hatred and jealousy begin to increase. Jealousy is a very bad quality. It will harm not only others, but it will cause harm to you as well. Hence, do not at all give scope for such evil qualities. Strive to cultivate good qualities like love and truth. Then only can you experience uninterrupted peace.

Mother's Love Has Immense Power

When man emerges from the womb of his mother, one does not find any garland around his neck. There are no jewels made of pearls nor are there glittering gold ornaments. There are no chains studded with precious stones like emeralds and diamonds. But there is one garland around his neck. Brahma strings together the consequences of his past deeds into a heavy garland and puts it around his neck at the time of his birth.

(Telugu poem)

Embodiments of Love!

WHAT we have to understand today is that we are born with a garland of karma

122 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 39

around our neck. Brahma strings together every single action of ours, be it good or bad, to make this heavy garland. Hence, before performing any action, we have to enquire whether it is good or bad.

Make Sacred Use Of Your Senses

There is always a reward for our good deeds, whether we aspire for it or not. Likewise, we cannot escape from the dangerous consequences arising out of our seeing, thinking, hearing, talking and doing all that is bad.

Do you know the purpose for which the eyes are given to you?

Is it to look at anything and everything that you come across?

No, no, you are endowed with eyes

So that you may attain the vision of the

The Lord of Kailasa.

Do you know the purpose for which the mind is given to you?

Is it to wander in the lanes and bylanes?

No, no, the mind is given to you

To experience bliss by contemplating on the beautiful form and name of God.

(Telugu song)

123

In this manner, you have to enquire what is good and what is bad and act accordingly. No one can escape from the consequences of his actions. Everyone born in this world has to experience both good and bad. Some noble souls understand this truth, experience the bliss of treasuring in their mind all that is good and ignore all that is bad. Sometimes your vision is polluted by seeing bad things and bad people. In such a situation, you should at once exercise caution and remind yourself that eyes are given to you to have the vision of noble souls and not to look at all sorts of people around you. Some people indulge in evil talk and criticise others. It is the worst of sins to criticise others. Instead of criticising others, criticise your own evil qualities. How can you acquire merit when you criticise others? You will earn only sin.

The world has acquired the name prapancha as it is the manifestation of the panchabhutas (five elements). Man today is misusing them. He thinks it is quite natural for him to exploit them to his maximum advantage. But it is most unnatural and unsacred. It may seem to be good and natural for the time being but later on he will be faced with insurmountable difficulties. These five elements are present in every human being in the form of the senses of sabda, sparsa, rupa, rasa and gandha (sound, touch, form, taste and smell). Your life will be redeemed only when you make proper use of the five senses and the five elements. Never use your senses in an unsacred manner. Today people are interested in seeing wrong things. They are all ears when someone indulges in vain gossip and evil talk. Never lend your ears to evil talk and get carried away by it. God has blessed you with two eyes and two ears so that you may see His beautiful form and hear His sweet and sacred name. It is only when you adhere to these principles can you lead the life of a true human being. Human birth is highly sacred. Janmam nara janma durlabham (out of all living beings, human birth is the rarest). It has been called rare and precious because you can perform sacred deeds in it. But, if you do not sanctify your five senses and make proper use of the five elements, your life as a human being becomes unsacred and meaningless. Of what use is such a life? It is, in fact, a living death. Hence, it is very essential for boys and girls as also for elders to follow the right path and make proper use of the five senses.

124 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 39

Human life is highly sacred. What is the meaning of the term manava

(human being)? Ma - maya (delusion), na - without, va - varthinchuta (to conduct oneself). Hence, true humanness lies in transcending maya and following the righteous path. Man is not new to this world. He is ancient and has been here many times before. It is unfortunate that he is yet to understand the true significance of human life in spite of passing through a number of human births. He spends his entire life in eating, drinking, sleeping and enjoying worldly pleasures. Is this the purpose of life? Even the birds, beasts and animals do the same. Then, on what basis can man consider himself to be superior to animals? If you fight with your fellow beings and hurt them, then your behaviour is no better than that of wild animals. It cannot be called human behaviour. Do not hold others responsible for your suffering and point an accusing finger at them.

Students Should Follow Noble Ideals Of Indian Culture
Embodiments Of Love!

When you are born from your mother's womb, you are free from delusion. But as you grow up, you are overcome by delusion. Your desires also grow in number. You should exercise control over your desires. In fact, there should be a limit for everything in life. But man today is conducting himself without any restraint. World today has provided man with many modern means of comfort in life. No doubt, they have made his life easy and comfortable, but at the same time these very things are leading him on the unsacred and sinful path. You are aware that having a cell phone has become an obsession with modern youth. Even the government is encouraging the use of cell phone as it is considered to be the most convenient way of communication. But no one is enquiring into the negative impact it has on the students. Once you have a cell phone, you can talk to anyone, anything, anywhere and at any time. When youth are given such freedom, they are bound to misuse it and ruin themselves. Even innocent youth are lured on the wrong path by the use of cell phones. If you do not put the students on the right path and do not inculcate virtues in them, these gadgets and means of comfort will certainly spoil their minds, and they will commit grave mistakes. It will take quite some time for them to rectify their mistakes and walk on the Godward path.

Mother's Love HAS Immense Power

Modern students are highly intelligent. Their intelligence should be properly channelised. They should be made aware of what is important for them in life. That is the type of education we have to give them. But, due to the impact of western culture, students are being given such education that has no relevance to their life. Under the influence of western culture, they are developing limitless desires, unnecessary relationships and are crossing the limits of propriety. Indian culture is highly sacred and noble. It has demonstrated high ideals for the rest of the world to emulate. Unfortunately, the Bharatiyas have forgotten their own culture and have become slaves to western culture. The difference that should be observed between men and women with regard to their conduct is totally forgotten. The history of Bharat is replete with examples of women who have demonstrated great ideals. Since time immemorial, the culture of Bharat has stood as a beacon light, showing the path of redemption to the people of the world. But these days, leaders themselves are unaware of our glorious culture. Bharat is the birthplace of men and women of great virtues who made great sacrifices to uphold this ancient culture. This is the land ruled by the noble king Harishchandra who considered truth as his very life-breath. This is the land that gave birth to Sita who proved her chastity by coming out of blazing fire unscathed. People today have forgotten the ideals as exemplified by noble and virtuous women like Droupadi, Savitri and Damayanti who proved that women were in no way inferior to men in terms of courage, determination and power. Hence, one should never look down upon women. They are endowed with infinite divine power.

Forbearance is the real beauty,
in this sacred land of Bharat.
The nectarous feeling in this country,
Is the feeling of love towards one's
Mother's Love HAS Immense Power
128 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 39
mother.

(Telugu poem)

There is no love greater than mother's love in this world. It is imbued with immense power. But such a sacred principle of mother's love is being neglected today. Mothers are being treated like servants. When parents grow old, they should be looked after with love and care. Instead they are being sent to old age homes. One who ill-treats his parents is bound to suffer a similar fate at the hands of his children. Yad bhavam tad bhavati (as is the feeling, so is the result). Whatever actions you do, they will come back to you as reaction, reflection and resound. Love your mother. Then you will be loved by all. As is the seed, so is the sapling. Hence, first and foremost, develop sacred and selfless love. When people share their love with each other, the whole world will be replete with love. But do not taint your love by selfishness and self-interest.

Love Is The Foremost Quality Of A Human Being

Everything in this world is subject to change except truth. There is none in this world who can change truth. Humanness is sustained by the twin principles of love and truth. Both are essential for humanness to blossom. People have to open their eyes and recognise this fact. But they have become narrow-minded today. They should develop broad-mindedness and strive for the welfare of society and the nation at large. Bulbs may vary in size and shape but the electric current passing through them is one and the same. The physical bodies are like bulbs and the atmic power is the current that illumines them. Here you find a number of bulbs illuminating this place. When you put off the main switch, the light goes out from all the bulbs. Likewise, when the divine principle is withdrawn, all beings will become lifeless. The same truth is declared by Lord Krishna in the Bhagavad Gita: Mamaivamsho jivaloke jivabhuta sanathana (the eternal atma in all beings is a part of My Being). The same divine spark is present in all. When God says that you are a part of His Being, should you not cultivate divine qualities? Should you not behave like a divine being? Everyone born in this world is an aspect of divinity. Considering each being as divine, offer your salutations to him. There is nothing wrong in doing so. If you want to be respected by others, first of all you should respect them. You should love everyone. Only then will your life become a shining example for others to emulate.

Human life is highly sacred. The principle of love immanent in man is infinite. None can describe the power of love. It is impossible. But worldly love has limitations. It diminishes with the passage of time. Take, for instance, the case of a newly married couple. In the first week of the marriage, the husband cannot bear separation from his wife even for a moment. If the husband happens to notice a thorn on the way, he at once pulls her aside with great anxiety, lest the thorn should prick her foot. A month after the marriage, he merely cautions his wife if he notices a thorn. Six months after the marriage, if a similar situation arises, he shouts at his wife, Don't you have eyes? Can't you see the thorn? Worldly love undergoes change in this manner. Due to the influence of modern times, the situation has become such that married couples resort even to divorce. But in olden days, people were not so fickle-minded. Their love for each other was steady right from the beginning till the end.

Mother's Love HAS Immense Power

Steady and changeless love is true atmaprema (divine love). Worldly love is only dehaprema (physical love). It is tainted by desires and body attachment. Love with desires is like a passing cloud. Divine love alone is eternal. Why do you give up such an eternal love and crave for physical and momentary love? Even the elders and parents are not able to guide the children on the right path. In fact, the elders themselves are under the influence of modern times more than the youngsters. The elders cannot set ideals to the youth and the youth do not strive for transformation. The Vedas say: Matru devo bhava, Pitru devo bhava, Acharya Devo bhava, Atithi devo bhava (revere your mother, father, preceptor and guest as God). But these days we do not find such respect and love among children towards their parents. In this way, they are losing their humanness even. Man is endowed with a pure intellect and a sense of discrimination. One who makes proper use of his intellect is a true human being. It is a sign of foolishness to be carried away by the tide of time in the name of modernism.

When there is transformation at the individual level, only then there can be transformation at the national level. The progress of a nation depends on the character of her men and women. But these days, the Bharatiyas have forgotten humanness and are trying to imitate the western culture. It is not the right thing to do. You have a culture of your own and they have theirs. Do not imitate the culture of others. Adhere to your culture and traditions. Do not change your culture to suit your whims and fancies.

Embodiments Of Divine Atma! Embodiments Of Love!

Love is the true human quality. Consider love as your very life-breath. One without love is no better than one without life. Considering love as the basis of your life, follow the path of truth. Then you will not only find fulfilment in life, you will also attain purity and ultimately divinity. Wherever you are, whatever may be the situation, never deviate from the path of love and truth. Do not try to distort truth in order to fulfil your desires. When you say, I want this, you give expression to your compulsive desire. You will have satisfaction in life if you accept whatever Nature has to offer you. On the other hand, if you transgress the laws of Nature to fulfil your desires, you will ruin yourself. Leave aside your likes and dislikes.

Fulfil Noble Desires Of Your Mother

You are born from your mother's womb. Hence, you should express your gratitude to her and bring her a good name. In a village, near the city of Kolkata, there lived a noble soul by name Ishwarchandra Vidyasagar with his mother. They were very poor. His mother used to do odd jobs to earn a meagre income. They did not even have proper food to eat. She would prepare one roti (bread), give half of it to her son, and she would eat the other half. Sometimes, she would starve giving to her son whatever little food she prepared. Vidyasagar used to study under streetlights at night as they could not afford to have even a lamp in their house. He worked hard day and night and passed his examinations. In the beginning, he secured a small job and the salary he earned was sufficient for both of them to lead a comfortable life. One day, his mother was going to a fair. Vidyasagar felt sorry to see her wearing an old Sari. He told her, Mother, today being a festival day, all are wearing new clothes. Why don't you also wear a new Sari? He went to the bazaar and bought a white sari and requested his mother to wear it. But she told him, Son! I have three desires. I will wear this new sari only after they are fulfilled.

Gradually, Vidyasagar earned a promotion in his job and his salary also increased. One day, he approached his mother and requested her to express her desires. She said, Son, the children of our village are going to the neighbouring town to attend school. I am pained to see children walking such long distances carrying a heavy load of books. So, please construct a small school in our village. Accordingly, Vidyasagar established a school in the village. He asked her, Mother, are you happy now? She said, Son, I have two more desires. I feel pained to see the women of our village trekking long distances to fetch water. I will be happy if you can get a well dug in our village. Vidyasagar immediately got a well dug and fulfilled his mother's desire. After some time, she told him, Son, you have provided water to the village and also established a school for children. But it is the lack of medical facilities in our village that is troubling my mind. Please build a small hospital here. As per her wish, he constructed a small hospital. She was highly satisfied. It was only then that she wore the new white sari bought by her son.

Gradually, Vidyasagar's name and fame spread far and wide. People used to gather in thousands to listen to his speeches. (Bhagawan here narrated the incident how Vidyasagar carried the suitcase of an I.C.S. officer to the place of his lecture, teaching a lesson of self-reliance and humility to the officer.)

Vidyasagar fulfilled all the three desires of his mother. Sathya Sai also fulfilled the wishes of His mother (loud applause). One day, I found mother Easwaramma in a rather pensive mood and asked her the reason. She said, Swami, I am pained to see small children of our village walking all the way to Bukkapatnam to attend school. Please construct a small school in our village. Fulfilling her wish, I established a small school in Puttaparthi. After some time, she said, Swami, people of our village are very poor. They cannot pay for the medical expenses to doctors in Bukkapatnam, where they are forced to go even for a minor ailment. Therefore, please build a small hospital in our village. Accordingly, I got a small hospital built. Her third wish was to provide drinking water to the village. She pointed out that the women had to undergo great hardship to get water from the Chitravathi river which had almost dried up. To fulfil her desire, I provided drinking water not only to Puttaparthi but to other surrounding villages also. The small school that I established is now a big university. The small hospital that I constructed has become a super speciality hospital.

Mother Easwaramma shed tears of joy when she saw that her desires had been fulfilled in a grand manner.

She led a life of happiness and contentment and breathed her last peacefully. It is the foremost duty of children to fulfil the wishes of their mother and make her happy. Serve others to the extent possible. You need not take up any service activity beyond your means and capacity. If you find your neighbours suffering, give them solace. Help them to the extent possible and make them happy. This is what I expect you to learn today. On the occasion of Easwaramma Day, I exhort all of you to practise these three principles of service, experience bliss and share it with all.

Love All, Serve All

In all religions birthdays of great personalities are celebrated, but the ideals for which they lived are not remembered and followed. If you do not care to follow their teachings, the celebrations lose their meaning and become artificial observances; it is not doing justice to the great men whose birthdays you celebrate. Jesus taught people to love all beings and serve all with compassion. It is only by practising these ideals that you can truly celebrate his birthday. You must live in love and lead a life of selfless service based on love. This is the only right way of celebrating the birth of Jesus.

Embodiments Of Love!

ON this sacred day of Buddha Purnima, we talk about Buddha and purnima (full moon). But we seldom enquire into Buddha's teachings, his virtues and the exemplary way in which he led his life.

138 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 39

King Suddhodhana and his wife Mayadevi performed many spiritual austerities such as japa, tapa, vratas and yainas for years together with the aspiration to have a son. They also consulted many astrologers. Suddhodhana had no peace of mind as the worry of not having an heir to the throne haunted him day and night. At last their prayers were answered when Mayadevi gave birth to a son at Lumbini. Unfortunately, Mayadevi died soon after giving birth to her son who was named Siddhartha. Gautami, the second wife of Suddhodhana, brought up the child with loving care like her own son. That is the reason why he was also called Gautam. The astrologers predicted that Siddhartha would not rule the kingdom; he would leave the kingdom and become a renunciant. The prediction of the astrologers was always ringing in the ears of Suddhodhana and caused him anxiety every as he watched his son grow. He took all precautions to see that his son did not step out of the palace and get into the company of others lest he should be influenced by them. Thus, he protected his son from the influence of others for twenty long years.

Siddhartha's Yearning For Ultimate Truth

One day, the parents of a girl came to Suddhodhana and expressed their wish to give their daughter in marriage to his son Siddhartha. The name of the girl was Yashodhara. Suddhodhana accepted their proposal and performed the marriage of Siddhartha with Yashodhara. Owing to their loving insistence, Siddhartha continued to stay with his parents in the palace even after the marriage. One year after the marriage, he begot a son who was named Rahul. Both the husband and wife spent their time happily with their son.

In spite of all the comforts of the palace and happy married life, Gautam's mind became restless when he saw people afflicted with old age, disease and death after he ventured out of the palace one day. One night, there was a sudden transformation in his mind. As his wife was fast asleep, he got up at midnight, caressed his son and left for the forest. He had to undergo numerous hardships and difficulties in the forest. But he faced all ordeals with forbearance and determination. His parents were immersed in sorrow, unable to bear the pangs of separation from their son. Though Siddhartha was also undergoing a lot of anguish, he marched on his path of attaining self-realisation.

During the course of his journey, he once met a holy man. The holy man told him that the cause of his anguish was actually within him, and it was his anguish that was coming in the way of his self-

Attain Enlightenment By Renouncing Desires

140 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 39

realisation. So saying, he gave him a talisman for protection and asked him to wear it around his neck. (At this point of time, Bhagawan materialised that talisman and showed it to the congregation amidst thunderous applause). This was the talisman given by the sage to Siddhartha. When Siddhartha put it around his neck, all his anguish disappeared instantaneously. Till the last moment of his earthly sojourn, Buddha had the talisman around his neck. When he shed his mortal coil, the talisman disappeared.

Siddhartha started doing intense penance which went on for a long time. He kept questioning himself, Who am I? Am I the body? Am I the mind? Am I the Buddhi (intellect)? Am I the Chitta (mind-stuff)? He came to the conclusion that he was none of these. Ultimately, he experienced the truth, I am I.

Recognise The Unity Of All Creation

The Vedas declare, Aham Brahmasmi (I am Brahman) and Tat Thwam Asi (That Thou Art). Even these two Vedic declarations state two things: I and Brahman, That and Thou. True wisdom lies in seeing oneness. Advaita darshanam jnanam (experience of non-dualism is true wisdom). It is a sign of ignorance to see duality ignoring the underlying unity. Duality is not the truth. In this manner, Buddha enquired deeply and ultimately got the experience of I am I. That is true realisation. You may do penance for many years, you may do meditation and perform many yogic practices. But all these spiritual practices give only temporary satisfaction, not everlasting bliss. Some people talk about meditation. Even Buddha advocated the practice of meditation. What is that you have to meditate upon? What is meant by meditation? Does it mean concentrating upon a particular object? No, no. That is not meditation at all. To contemplate upon the principle of I am I is true meditation. No other sadhana (spiritual practice) can match this.

So long as you have the dualistic feeling of you and I, you cannot experience unity. Buddha recognised the principle of unity and based his life on this truth. Under the direction of many yogis, he had performed various kinds of meditation and penance, but ultimately he found them to be a mere waste of time as none of these could lead him to the ultimate experience of oneness. He regretted having wasted his time in such a manner. One should find fulfilment in life by making proper use of time. This is the primary duty of man.

Embodiments Of Love!

Many people perform different types of spiritual practices such as japa and dhyana without recognising

Attain Enlightenment By Renouncing Desires

142 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 39

the principle of unity. The tongue utters the name of Rama but there is void in the heart. This is just waste of time. Instead of wasting your time in such a manner, undertake social service, seeing God in everyone. That is true spiritual practice. Recognise the innate divinity of all beings.

In creation, there appear to be two entities, you and I. But you and I are in reality one. Vyashti (individual) is a part of samashti (society), and samashti is a part of srishhti (creation) which emerges from Parameshti (God). this Parameshti is Parabrahma tathwa (principle of Brahman). That is the fundamental basis of the entire creation. In this way, you have to recognise the unity of all creation. Only then can you attain Parameshti or the principle of Brahman. Everyone has to repeatedly remind himself, I am Parameshti, I am Parameshti. All are the embodiments of the atma and all are sustained by the atma. Buddha experienced the unity of all creation. There was total transformation in him once he attained the vision of ekatma (oneness of the atma). He realised that all worldly relations like mother, father, wife, children were false. He transcended body consciousness. That is why he earned the appellation Buddha (the enlightened one). Man should use his buddhi (intelligence) to understand this principle of unity. Buddhi is of two types. The buddhi that sees diversity in unity is worldly intelligence. Man should develop adhyatmic buddhi (spiritual intelligence) in order to realise the underlying unity of all creation. It gives you the experience of the atmic principle which is the same in the entire creation. Buddha attained the vision of the atma. after this experience, he went on teaching that there existed only one divine principle in the world.

Buddham saranam gachchhami,

Sangham saranam gachchhami,

Dhammam saranam gachchhami.

Buddha taught that the principle of unity of the atma was the only true principle in the world. One who realised it by using his spiritual intelligence was true Buddha, he said. Other than the atma nothing existed in this world.

In this transient and ephemeral world, there is one thing that is true and eternal. That is divinity. That is what everyone should aspire to attain. Sathyam saranam gachchhami (I take refuge in truth). Ekam saranam gachchhami (I take refuge in the principle of oneness). Everything is the manifestation of divinity in this world; there is no second entity other than divinity. It is the divine principle that governs the entire world. Having realised this truth, Buddha, along with his disciples, went from village to village to propagate

it. He never felt the need to take rest. He thought that it was his duty to share this supreme knowledge with his fellowmen. Even his father Suddhodhana came to him. He also recognised this truth and was transformed. What did Buddha teach? Buddha taught that everyone was endowed with the same principle of divinity. Ekam Sat viprah bahudha vadanti (truth is one, but the wise refer to it by various names). The same message was conveyed by Lord Krishna in the Bhagavad Gita when He said that all beings were His own reflection, and no one was different from Him. Buddha had to undergo great hardships to realise this truth. Many noble souls who were the contemporaries of Buddha acknowledged the greatness of Buddha. They said that Buddha had experienced the truth which they were unable to realise. As he gave up all desires, Buddha became an epitome of total renunciation. There was nothing in him except love. He considered love as his very life-breath. Bereft of love, the world would turn into a void.

Try To Understand The Profundity Of Buddha's Teachings

When you offer your salutations to someone, understand that you are saluting your own self. That someone is none other than your own reflection. See others just as you see your own reflection in the mirror. This is the message conveyed by the mahavakya (profound statement), Aham Brahmasmi. Names and forms may be different, but all beings are part and parcel of the same divine principle. You may call this a handkerchief. You may call this a robe. But both are made out of cotton. Likewise, divinity is the underlying principle in the apparent multiplicity of this world. Many so-called scholars are preaching only multiplicity today. They claim to have mastered the scriptures and try to interpret them in their own way with their limited knowledge. Their interpretations do not correspond to the reality. They only add to confusion.

Buddha taught that we should not have anger, we should not find others faults, we should not harm others, because all are the embodiments of pure, eternal principle of the atma. Have compassion towards the poor and help them to the extent possible. You think those who do not have food to eat are poor people. You cannot call someone poor just because he does not have money or food to eat. Truly speaking, nobody is poor. All are rich, not poor. Those whom you consider as poor may not have money, but all are endowed with the wealth of hridaya (heart). Understand and respect this underlying principle of unity and divinity in all and experience bliss. Do not have such narrow considerations as so and so is your friend, so and so is your enemy, so and so is your relation, etc. All are one, be alike to everyone. That is your primary duty. This is the most important teaching of Buddha. But people do not enquire into the teachings of Buddha and do not understand the sacredness of his heart. They only talk about his story. Truly speaking, Buddha is not just one individual. All of you are Buddhas. You will see unity everywhere once you understand this truth. There is unity in the apparent multiplicity. When you are surrounded by many mirrors, you see a number of reflections. Reflections are many but the person is one. Reactions, of yours, reflections, and resounds are many but the reality is one. When I am speaking here, My voice is heard through each and every loudspeaker in this hall. In the same manner, there exists the principle of unity in our hearts which we have to recognise. Man's life finds fulfilment only when his mind experiences the principle of unity. There is no point in bringing about unity among people without uniting their minds. Manah eva manushyanam karanam bandhamokshayo (mind is the cause for bondage and liberation of man). You see someone and say he is a bad person; you see another person and call him good. But, in reality, good and bad are present in your mind and not in the people around you. You call this handkerchief white and this microphone black. The difference in colour is perceived by your eyes, but essentially black and white are one and the same. Everyone should make efforts to visualise unity in diversity. Only then can one experience divinity.

146 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 39

The principles taught by Buddha have profound significance, but people are not trying to understand them. You might have observed that

Buddha had curly hair on his head. One lock of hair was entwined with the other. There is an underlying message of unity in this. He had only one feeling in his heart, the feeling of love. He taught, Dharmam saranam gachchhami

(I take refuge in righteousness), Premam saranam gachchhami (I take refuge in love). Bereft of love, humanness has no existence. We should love all, irrespective of the fact whether one is a pauper or a rich man. Money should not be the criterion to share your love with your fellowmen. Money is not important. Money comes and goes, morality comes and grows. Do not hurt others. Help Ever, Hurt Never. Only then can you attain the state of Buddha. There is little use in giving lengthy lectures if you do not realise the principle of unity in divinity. You may call God by any name such as Rama, Krishna, Buddha, Sai, etc., but all of them embody the same divine principle. Keep the flower of oneness in the altar of your heart and let its fragrance spread everywhere.

Attain Enlightenment By Renouncing Desires

148 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 39

Spiritual practices such as japa and tapa will not yield the desired result unless you recognise the principle of unity. Many people count the beads of the rosary. But, what is the use of rotating the rosary if the mind also keeps going round the world? Understand that the mind is most important. You should have a steady mind. Only then will your life be redeemed. What is the use if your mind hovers around on each and every object like flies which hover on dirt as well as laddus?

Do not allow your mind to vacillate between good and bad, unity and multiplicity. Focus it on all that is good and realise the principle of unity. That is the royal road which will lead you to the experience of truth. On the other hand, if you allow your mind to follow the crooked path, it will not lead you anywhere.

Embodiments Of Love!

The same divine principle of love is present in all of you. When you take to the path of love, you will become Buddha yourself. Today is Buddha Purnima. Purnima means full moon. The underlying message of Buddha Purnima is that the mind should shine with total purity like full moon. It should unite with its source, i.e., the atma which is pure and effulgent. There is no darkness on the full moon night. On this auspicious day of Buddha Purnima, we should attain full purity of the mind.

Purnamada purnamidam,

Purnat purnamudachyate,

Purnasya purnamadaya, Purnamevavashishyate.

(That is full, this is full. When the full is taken out of the full, what remains is again the full.) We have to recognise this truth.

Embodiments Of Love!

It gives Me great joy to see that all of you have gathered here today. You are united with each other with the bond of love. Love is only one; it is not different in you, Me and others. You have unified your love with that of Swami. Love is one. Live in love.

Associate Yourself Only With Good Company

Vyakti (individual) is a part of samashti (society). samashti is an aspect of srishhti (creation) which has emerged from parameshti (God). It is therefore the duty of every individual to undertake sacred and selfless service of society. True society is constituted by such individuals. All actions of man should be devoted to the service of society. All are the members of the same society. Though the individuals are different, they are endowed with the same heart. Ekam Sat viprah bahudha vadanti (truth is one, but the wise refer to it by various names). Ekatma sarva bhutantaratma (one atma dwells in all beings).

This is a blank paper. If you pack vegetables in it, it will acquire the smell of vegetables. If you pack fruits like plantain in it, it will acquire the smell of plantain. If you pack dry fish in it, it will emit the smell of dry fish. The paper has no smell of its own; it absorbs the smell of the substance that you pack in it. Man by nature is pure and sacred. But he acquires evil qualities by associating himself with bad company. It is said Tell me your company, I shall tell you what you are. Tell me the type of people you associate with, I can tell you the type of person you are. It is therefore necessary that you associate yourself with good people in all your activities. It is the company that makes you good or bad. Therefore, keep away from bad company. Join the company of those who have a pure heart and sacred feelings. Man is a part of society. The evils that are present in the society are the result of evils of individuals who constitute it. Similarly, the evils of the society affect the individual. The entire creation is divine. All are essentially sacred. One's behaviour may, however, undergo change due to the impact of the environment.

Differences In Society Are Created By Man

Man is endowed with panchapranas (five life-breaths), panchendriyas (five senses) and panchabhutas (five elements). The five elements are present in man in the form of the senses of sabda (sound), sparsha (touch), rupa (form), rasa (taste) and gandha (smell). We will have the type of experience according to the type of path we follow. Therefore, we should associate with good people, earn a good name and lead a good life. Fill your heart with pure and divine feelings. These are the qualities that Buddha was endowed with. Buddha declared: Dharmam saranam gachchhami (I take refuge in righteousness), Sathyam garanam Gachchhami (I take refuge in truth). All our endeavours should be based on sathya and dharma. Even if you come across bad people, see only good in them. The same God is the indweller of all beings.

Selfless Service To Society Is True Sadhana

154 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 39

People attribute many names to God like Allah, Jesus, Rama, Krishna, etc., but God is one. Do not observe any difference between the different names of God. There are many sweets like laddu, jilebi, mysore Pak, but they have the same essential ingredient of sugar in them. Names and forms may vary, but the atma is the same in all. Rama and Krishna were not born with these names; they were given these names by their parents. God does not come down with any particular name. Nirgunam, niranjanam, Sanathana Niketanam, nitya, shuddha, buddha, mukta, nirmala swarupinam (God is attributeless, pure, final abode, eternal, unsullied, enlightened, free and embodiment of sacredness). It is the people who attribute names and forms to God and develop differences on that basis extolling one form and condemning the other.

Do not be carried away by names and forms. Rely on the principle of the atma which is formless. The atma is the embodiment of bliss. Nityanandam, parama sukhadam, kevalam jnanamurtim, dwandwateetam, gagana sadrisham, tathwamasyadi lakshyam, ekam, nityam, vimalam, achalam, sarva- dheer sakshibhutam, bhavateetam, trigunarahitam (The atma is the embodiment of eternal bliss, wisdom absolute, beyond the pair of opposites, expansive and pervasive like the sky, the goal indicated by the mahavakya Tathwamasi, one without a second, eternal, pure, unchanging, witness of all functions of the intellect, beyond all mental conditions and the three attributes of sathwa, rajas and tamas.) Differences arise when we attribute different names to the atma. These differences are created by you, not by God. God is the embodiment of love and truth. Truth is God. Love is God. Live in Love. Fill your heart with love and lead a life of love. Love everyone because God is present in all in the form of love. There is no one in this world without love. Love may appear to have many forms, but in reality it is only one.

Fill All Your Actions With Love

Whomsoever you see, consider him as the embodiment of atmic principle. Do not be carried away by what others say. Whatever people may say about you, consider that it is good for you. When you develop your thinking like that, everything will become good for you. Even if someone criticises you, do not be afraid of it. Face it with courage. Fill your heart with courage. Walk on the path of truth and love with courage. Love is most sacred. It is the form of God. If you hate love, it is equivalent to hating God. There is no other name for God except love.

Embodiments Of Love!

In the last three days, the songs you sang and the activities you performed gave bliss to one and all (loud applause). You had waited for this opportunity for a long time and today your aspirations found fulfilment. Your love and your sadhana will never go waste. Love remains as love and truth remains as truth. Whatever activity you undertake, fill it with love. When you give food to a beggar, do it with love. Do not entertain disgust, anger or hatred towards anyone. If you perform all your actions with love, that is true devotion. Some people do japa, chanting Ram, Ram, Ram. As they turn the beads of the rosary, their mind also roams everywhere. That is no japa. The name of Rama should fill your heart with delight. You will be able to visualise the divine form of Rama when you chant His name wholeheartedly with closed eyes. Prema mudita manase kaho Rama Rama Ram (Chant the name of Rama with heart full of love). The name of God should be imprinted on your heart.

God is the embodiment of love and beyond all attributes. It is only your imagination that assigns attributes to God. Desire, anger, hatred, greed, jealousy and pride are your own creation; they have not come from God. God always blesses you with love. You look at an object and want to possess it. That is due to your covetousness. God has nothing to do with it. God is absolutely desireless. Some people even try to hoodwink God by superimposing their desires on Him. They accuse God by attributing to Him what is not there in Him. In spite of that, God always loves you. Attain the love of God through love. Similarly, attain truth through truth. When you lead your life in such a manner, that is true sadhana. Going to a forest and sitting in solitude is not true sadhana. Live in society and serve it selflessly, thinking that you are serving God. When you serve somebody in distress, consider that you are serving God Himself. There is no place where God is not there. Everything is pervaded by divinity. There is divinity in this cloth, microphone and, in fact, in everything in this world. From the worldly point of view, you may call this a cloth, but when you develop divine vision, you will see God in everything. The cloth is made of threads and threads come from cotton. Without cotton, there can be no threads and without threads there can be no cloth. Just as cotton is the fundamental basis of cloth, God is the fundamental basis of this world. There is no place in this world where God is not there. Wherever you look, He is there.

of God. When you close your eyes and enquire, you will see God in yourself. People undertake many kinds of spiritual practices. All these spiritual practices lead to the same goal. As all the rivers ultimately merge in the ocean, the prayers of all will reach God. Do not consider yourself merely a human being. You are the embodiment of love. When you ask someone his or her name, he or she may say Ramaiah or Lakshamma.

They are not born with these names; they are given these names by their parents. All other names keep changing. There is only one name that does not change and that is I. When somebody asks you, Who are you?, you should say with conviction, I am I. You have no other name or form except this. You should develop this spirit of oneness. Do not identify yourself with the name given to your body. Your real name is I, I, I. I is the ultimate reality which remains with you for ever. So long as you have the body, people may call you by your name. When the body is gone, what happens to the name? In fact, you are not one person; you are three: the one you think you are, the one others think you are, the one you really are.

Embodiments Of Love!

You are all filled with love, devotion and truth. Therefore, you are all embodiments of God. Never forget love. Imprint it on your heart and assimilate it. Do not feel bad that Swami did not speak to you during the last three days. Swami was always ready to speak to you. But the organisers did not provide any opportunity for Swami to speak. Otherwise, I would have spoken to you on all these three days at length (loud applause). I am happy to receive the love of all of you. It is your good fortune that you are the recipients of My love. The bond of love is the only relationship between you and Swami. All are born in love, are sustained by love and live in love. Never forget love; imprint it on your heart.

It is out of love for you that I have given this discourse and sang the bhajan. Your love is reflected in Me and My love is reflected in you. I accept your love and shower My love on all of you. Love is most important for all. Love is the binding force between all of us. Without love there can be no relationship, not even between mother and child. The love that exists between you and Swami is greater than even the love that exists between a mother and her children. Swami wishes you a happy and blissful life.

Shed the body consciousness

The Lord's first foot covered this world and the second foot covered the other world. How huge the Lord's foot would have been to cover the whole world! How can such a huge foot be kept on Emperor Bali's head for the third step of land? The inner significance of the three steps is that the Lord entered Bali's body, mind and soul as he offered them to Him. Once the ego or body consciousness is surrendered, there is no bar to one s realisation. It is the body consciousness that stands in the way and makes you forget God. Vamana opened Bali's eyes to help him realise the Divine.

The Youth Should Follow The Path

Of Sathya And Dharma

All names and forms are the manifestations of the Supreme Being who is the embodiment of peace and auspiciousness. He is Existence, Knowledge, Bliss Absolute and non-dual. He is Sathyam, Sivam, Sundaram (Truth, Goodness, Beauty).

(Sanskrit verse)

THERE are four entities: vyashti, srishti and Parameshti (individual, society, creation and Creator). Srishti emerges from Parameshti.

Samashti is a part of srishti and vyashti, a part of samashti.

162 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 39

The Basis Of Creation

Being its part, the individual should serve society. In fact, service to society is the most important duty of man. It can endow him with divine power. Service to society is, in reality, service to Divinity. For whose sake is the existence of man? It is for the sake of society. Similarly, society has its existence for the sake of creation. This is the basis of the entire creation. The creation is the manifestation of God. Man has a unique position in it. But what is the use if man behaves like animals and birds? Divinity is immanent in every being. The same truth was proclaimed by Lord Krishna in the Bhagavad Gita: Mamaivamsho jivaloke jivabhuta sanathana (the eternal atma in all beings is a part of My Being). Since every being is a part of the Divine, all should be respected, loved and adored. You should not hate anybody and should not create distance between one another. Just as all the parts of the body form one organism, similarly, all beings are like various limbs of God. When there is an injury in the leg, it is the eye that sheds tears. The same type of intimate relationship exists between God and all the beings as exists between different limbs of the body. You may ask why man faces troubles and difficulties when he enjoys intimate relationship with God. God is essentially the embodiment of immortality and bliss. He does not cause difficulties and problems for anyone. Some people think that God is the cause of their problems and difficulties, but this is a big mistake. All your troubles are the result of your own actions; they are not given by God.

Everyone has to face the consequences of his actions, whoever he may be.

No one can know what lies ahead of him in future.

But this much is sure that everybody has to reap the consequences of his actions.

(Telugu song)

Our joys and sorrows are the reflection of our own actions; they are not caused by others. To blame others for our sorrows is a big mistake. Everything in this world is reaction, reflection and resound. Every man is his own witness.

Acquire Education That Gives Knowledge Of The Self

It is only the youth who are capable of protecting this world. It is the youth and youth alone who can set this world right. No nation can stand without youth. Sometimes, the elders underestimate the capabilities of the youth, thinking that they are inexperienced and young. But the youth are endowed with immense

The Youth Should Follow The Path Of Sathya And Dharma

power. If they take a firm resolve, they are capable of achieving anything. If they realise their power, they can emancipate the nation. This does not need any education. What is education? Education means Vidya which connotes the knowledge of the Self. This is the foundation of all education. Today students are acquiring only bookish knowledge. Does a man become educated just by acquiring a college degree? Can a person who lacks wisdom and does not perform righteous actions be called educated? Education which does not confer wisdom is no education at all; it is only worldly and bookish knowledge. Modern youth are hankering after this type of education. They go to foreign countries like Germany, Japan and America to pursue this type of education. The education that is not there in Bharat is not available anywhere else (loud applause). Yanna Bharate, thanna Bharata (what is not there in Bharat cannot be found anywhere else). Some people have a mistaken notion that those who are educated abroad are great. In fact, many of them come back after acquiring evil qualities, evil thoughts and evil habits.

In Bharat, the students acquire sacred education; it begins with the thoughts of God. Even an illiterate driver in Bharat salutes the steering wheel before starting the vehicle. Similarly, a musician offers salutations to the musical instrument before playing on it. In fact, all type of learning in Bharat begins with the name of God and prayer to Him and every activity is done as an offering to God without any artificiality and ostentation. People educated abroad come back with big degrees. What is that degree? It is only a piece of paper. They do not understand the essence of education. The students of Bharat have a pure and sacred heart. I feel blissful when I see Indian students. One can see the goodness of education reflected on their faces. The Bharatiyas are not inferior in any way; they are endowed with immense sacredness. Every individual in Bharat is imbued with divine feelings. Forgetting this type of sacred education, people these days are running after worldly and materialistic education. Today there is an influx of gadgets like calculators and computers. They are mere yantras (machines). These yantras do not stand any comparison with mantra (incantation). The real mantra is the name of God which gives immense bliss. The Bharatiyas are not able to understand this truth because of their delusion. But their heart is very sacred.

Bharat Is The Land Of Sacrifice

People today are ruining themselves by craving for worldly and materialistic possessions. Even those responsible for conducting the affairs of the government

The Youth Should Follow The Path Of Sathya And Dharma

166 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 39

are treading the evil path. They want only worldly type of education to be promoted in our country. They talk about science and technology. What is this technology? It is only trick knowledge. They say it is technology, but what they do is tricknology. Many people in Bharat are indulging in dirty business; they are cheating others and doing injustice to them. No Bharatiya should take to this type of business. Everyone should have divine feelings in his heart. All actions should be done to please God. When you start all your activities with prayer to God, you are sure to be rewarded with bliss. Today if you invite a music artiste to sing devotional songs, he will ask, How much will you pay? In this manner, all our activity has become business-oriented. Even food and drink have become a big business. The sacred land of Bharat is annapurna kshetra (land of plenty). The tradition of Bharat is to offer food free to every hungry person and water to every thirsty person. This sacred tradition seems to have disappeared these days. By imitating the culture of the West, the Bharatiyas today are casting a blot on the fair name of Bharat. It is the land of great culture. There is hardly any other country which can stand comparison with her so far as the sacredness of the culture is concerned. Having been born in this sacred land of Bharat, we should live like true Bharatiyas. The land of Bharat which is known for tyaga (sacrifice) is being turned into a land of bhoga (pleasure) in mad imitation of western culture. That is why Bharat is facing many problems these days. What is needed in this country is not bhoga but tyaga.

Imagine the great sacrifice of Sakkubai who renounced everything for the sake of God. Na karmana Na prajaya dhanena tyagenaikē amrutathwamanasu (immortality is not attained through action, progeny or wealth; it is attained only by sacrifice). Money is the root cause of many evils. Money makes many wrongs. The first priority of the moneyed people today is to send their children abroad for education. Even elders are encouraging the youth to go to foreign countries for the sake of earning money. Too much money leads man to the path of evil. Money comes and goes, morality comes and grows. So, we have to develop morality. The very foundation of Bharat is based on sathya and dharma. This is what we have to propagate. The Bharatiyas should consider adherence to truth as the greatest dharma. sathya and dharma are most important in the life of man. The youth should strictly adhere to them. What is sathya? It is the harmony of thought, word and deed. Where these three are in harmony, sathya is present there. People speak something on the platform, they have something else in their mind, and their actions are entirely different from what they speak and think. This is the worst sin.

168 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 39

Service To Society Is The Sign Of Nobility
Embodiments Of Love!

Your very form is love. Love protects the whole world. The five elements that constitute the universe are based on love. Only when love combines with the five elements does the universe come into existence. But love is not to be seen anywhere these days. Today there is lack of love even between mother and children. What happened to that love? We are bartering it for money. When money is lost, nothing is lost. Instead of putting our faith in money, we should have more faith in love and should develop love to love relationship with others. When you have this type of relationship based on love, love will develop more and more. Only then will we be able to love everybody.

We should not observe such differences as so and so is mine and so and so is someone else. We should develop the feeling that I belong to all and all belong to me. All are the children of the same mother. Being the children of the same mother, all should live like brothers and sisters. There may be some differences, but they are temporary. They will come and go like passing clouds. The only thing that is permanent and eternal is love. There is nothing great in acquiring education and amassing wealth. There have been many millionaires in this world, but what have they taken with them at the time of leaving this world? The great world conqueror Alexander did not carry anything with him when he left the world.

Even King Harischandra, who strictly followed the path of truth, had to leave this world ultimately leaving behind his vast kingdom and riches. Emperor Nala, who reigned over a great empire, could not take with him anything when he passed away. Did King Mandhata, who adorned the Krita Yuga, carry any wealth with him when he left the earth? Is Lord Rama, who built the bridge across the ocean, present on earth today?

(Telugu poem)

You may earn any amount of money, but as long as you are alive you should give joy to others by undertaking acts of charity. Those who have money should look after the poor and sick people. Utilise all your earnings in a proper manner. Consider social service as service to yourself. Those who undertake social service are noble people. On the contrary, those who do not take to the path of service are wicked. When somebody salutes you, you also salute him. Do not consider that since somebody is your enemy

The Youth Should Follow The Path Of Sathya And Dharma

170 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 39

you should not salute him. All are friends. Do not bear hatred or enmity toward anyone. Enmity is a wicked quality. Friendship is very important. You and I should become one. That is true maitri (friendship). All should become united. If you really want to see God, first see Him in everyone. The youth should greet and treat each other with love like brothers and sisters. But these days this type of relationship is not seen between people. They greet each other, saying hello, hello, but their heart is hollow without any feelings. Love everybody and develop faith in God. One without viswasa (faith) is actually without swasa (breath). Faith in God is our life-breath. If you want to develop faith in God, develop love. If you do not have love, you cannot be called a human being.

Humanness Blossoms In A Pure Heart

Embodiments Of Love!

Develop love. When we come into this world, it only love comes with us. From love comes truth. When love and truth come together, humanness finds its sustenance. The mansion of human life can be built with self-confidence as the foundation, self-satisfaction as pillars and self-sacrifice as roof. Only then can you have self-realisation in life. If you want to have self-satisfaction, first have self-confidence. Without self-satisfaction, there can be no happiness.

How can one without self-confidence have confidence in others? People doubt anything and everything. Doubt endangers life. A person with doubts will not achieve anything in life. He will not have faith even in his wife and children. Therefore, first and foremost, develop faith. We think we are great and highly educated. But what is the use of this education?

Even animals like goats and monkeys can learn many things. A monkey can be trained to ride a bicycle.

Man is much superior to animals. His conduct should be such that manifests this superiority. It is said, Jantunam nara janma durlabham (out of all living beings, human birth is the rarest). Man should therefore not behave like birds, animals and insects. People distribute sweets when they beget children. What is so great about it? Even a pig can give birth to ten offspring. Give up all wicked qualities and lead an ideal and blissful life. Only then will humanness find fulfilment.

Embodiments Of Love!

Face all difficulties with forbearance. Accept all trials and tribulations with love. Accept both pleasure and pain with love. Fill your heart with love and not with the poison of evil qualities. Even poison becomes prasadam (sacred food) if it is offered to God. When Mira was given a cup of milk mixed with poison, she offered it to Krishna. Krishna accepted the poison and gave her the milk as prasadam.

The Youth Should Follow The Path Of Sathya And Dharma

172 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 39

(Bhagawan sang the bhajan, Prema mudita manase kaho Rama, Rama, Ram and continued His Discourse.) Rama, Rama, Rama, in fact, connotes prema, prema, prema. Rama and prema are one and the same.

People adore many deities like Rama, Krishna, Sai, but the divine principle in all of them is the same. atma has neither a form nor a name. atma is also referred to as Brahma. Brahma sathyam jagan-mithya (Brahman alone is real, the world is unreal). God has no attributes. He does not punish or harm anybody. He is present in your heart in the form of pure and unsullied love. Develop love more and more. That will protect you always. There is no other greater protection than this. There is no weapon more powerful than love. Everything is love. The very word love is suffused with sweetness. Treat each other with love, converse with each other with love, lead a life full of love and enjoy bliss.

(Bhagawan referred to the drama Ekalavya which was to be enacted that evening and called upon the youth to follow the path of truth, obey the command of their preceptors and adhere always to righteousness like Ekalavya. Associate yourself only with Good Company. With this advice to the youth, Bhagawan concluded His discourse.)

The Lord shines resplendently in the universe; so also the universe shines in the Lord. The relationship between the Lord and the universe is intimate and inseparable. What else is to be conveyed to you?

Embodiments Of Love!

The people of Kerala celebrate the Onam festival today. Onam is very sacred, holy and divine. Several interpretations are given to the Onam festival. People celebrate the Onam festival by taking an oil bath and wearing new clothes. They also cook a variety of special dishes and partake of them. Thus, all members of the family enjoy the festival, feasting and wearing new clothes. Some people also visit temples on this occasion. Of all the temples in Kerala the temple of Bala (child) Krishna Guruvayur is very dear and important to them. Many people also do parayana (reverential reading) of the Ramayana on this day. All these sacred activities are the result of their faith and devotion to God. They celebrate the Onam festival by contemplating on God, visiting temples and by undertaking sacred activities.

In the ancient times, Emperor Bali ruled the kingdom of Kerala. He treated his subjects as his own children and did a lot of service to them. The people, on their part, also loved and respected Emperor Bali. They led a happy and peaceful life, reposing their faith and hope in the emperor. Emperor Bali performed several yajnas and other Vedic rituals during his reign. Once, he commenced a great yajna. On that occasion, he announced his resolve to the people that whoever asked for anything would be granted without any hesitation. Having heard of this promise, Lord Vishnu assumed the form of Vamana (a dwarfish brahmin boy) and came to the yagasala (the pandal where the yajna was being performed), holding an umbrella made of coconut leaves. Ratnavali, the daughter of Emperor Bali was enchanted by the divine effulgence, radiance and aura surrounding the young boy. She thought to herself, Aha! Who is this brilliant young boy radiating divine effulgence? What a great wonder! How nice it would be if I had a son like him! Thus, while everyone in the yagasala was spellbound on seeing this divine child, Vamana entered the yagasala and went near the altar. On seeing Vamana, Emperor Bali stood up and extended a reverent welcome to him and made him seated in a proper seat and enquired, Sir! May I know on what purpose you visited us? What can I do for you? The young Vamana replied, Oh, Emperor Bali! I just need three foot step length of land. I don't need anything more. Emperor Bali was taken aback and spontaneously agreed to His request saying, Oh! Is that all? All right, take it. Vamana expanded in His stature and with one foot reached out over the entire skies. When he set his second step, the entire earth was transcended. He then enquired of Bali, Where do I put my third step? Emperor Bali replied, Swami! You asked for just three foot steps of land. But, you covered the entire sky and earth with just two steps. All my domain is already exhausted. You please bless me by putting your third step on my head. Vamana then placed his foot on Emperor Bali's head and sent him down to the netherworld (Patala). You may have a doubt in this context as to how Bali could be pushed down to the netherworld by Vamana simply by placing his foot on Bali's head. When the entire sky and earth could be covered with one step each, you can imagine how powerful and gigantic Vamana's steps were! The third step was equally powerful and gigantic. Its impact could therefore push Emperor Bali down to the netherworld.

Develop Broad-Mindedness And Live In Bliss

176 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 39

Shun Anger And Ego

There are other reasons too! Emperor Bali was no doubt a great devotee with humility. However, there was an element of ego in him. God will tolerate anything but not anger and ego. He will not appreciate these qualities. What is this ego? What for is this ego? Is it for physical beauty or strength of the senses or intellectual acumen or wealth? None of these is permanent. Ego breeds several other evil qualities. God has gifted every human being with such sacred and noble qualities as Sathya (Truth), Dharma (Righteousness), Santi (Peace), Prema (Love) and Ahimsa (Non-violence). Develop these qualities. These are the pancha pranas (five vital airs) for a human being. Anger, jealousy, hatred, etc., are evil qualities befitting an animal. How can a person with such animal qualities be called a human being? A human being is one who has good qualities. Follow truth. Truth is God. Cultivate love. Love is God. Live in love. Unfortunately, today people are not making efforts to manifest sacred and noble qualities that are inherent in them. Ignoring their innate nature, they lead a life with qualities acquired from outside. The human body is like an iron safe. The atma residing inside this iron safe is like a precious diamond. You are supposed to give value to the precious diamond-studded ornaments inside, not to the outer iron safe. There are invaluable ornaments like sathya, dharma, santi, prema and ahimsa inside the human body. The physical body which is made up of the five elements is bound to perish one day or the other.

The body which is made up of five elements is weak and is bound to disintegrate.

Though hundred years of life-span is prescribed, one cannot take it for granted. One may leave his mortal coil at any time, be it in childhood, youth or old age.

Death is certain. Hence, before the body perishes, man should make efforts to know his true nature.

(Telugu poem)

People repose their faith in such a frail and impermanent physical body. This body is like a puppet with nine holes in it, and it may collapse at any time with a mere sneeze. Reposing their faith in such a perishable body, people forget the invaluable ornaments stored in it. That is the reason why they

Develop Broad-Mindedness And Live In Bliss

178 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 39

suffer mental agitation. You go to a millionaire and enquire, Sir! You have everything in this world; but, do you have peace? He will immediately reply, I have everything in this world, but not peace. Wherever you see in this world today, there are only pieces, not peace. Peace is very much in your inner self. Hence, search for it by inward journey. That is your duty. Unfortunately, you forget this sacred duty and desire for paltry and mean things. When you are able to manifest your own innate noble qualities, you can experience true and eternal peace.

Bereft of truth, righteousness, love and peace

The value of all your education is zero;

Bereft of truth, righteousness, love and peace

The sanctity of all your acts of charity and kindness is zero;

Bereft of truth, righteousness, love and peace

The utility of all your positions of power is zero;

Bereft of truth, righteousness, love and peace

The result of all your good deeds is zero.

(Telugu poem)

The five human values of Sathya, Dharma, Santi, Prema and Ahimsa are the true and lasting property of a human being. Since time immemorial, the people of Kerala possessed such sacred qualities and are worshipping God. What is the inner meaning of Vamana setting his foot on the head of Emperor Bali and pushing him down to the netherworld? The incident reveals the crushing of Bali's ego. Having realised this inner meaning, the people of Kerala shed their ego. That is the reason why the State of Kerala has earned a good name as a land of peace, purity and greenery everywhere.

Every human being has some desires. But, the people of Kerala do not have many desires. Their worldly desires are few. They always move with others amicably. Even if some differences crop up, they set them aside. They consider them as passing clouds. Truly, the people of Kerala are pure, selfless and steady in mind. Others have to emulate their qualities. In spite of their busy schedule, they do not forget to put on vibhuti on their forehead and visit the temple both in the morning and evening. People say, Kerala is a communist State. I do not subscribe to that view. It is not communist, but come-you-next! Their own sacred feelings have taken them nearer to God. The people of Kerala go to the temples on this auspicious occasion of Onam and perform special pujas (worship). They go in large numbers to the Bala Krishna temple. They enjoy singing devotional songs. Due to the effect of modern age, of course

Develop Broad-Mindedness And Live In Bliss

some change has come in their attitude. It was not so before. They always used to be pure and steady in their heart. They always wished and prayed for the welfare of all people. They never developed any desires which, they knew, were not pleasing to God. The people of Kerala are broad-minded and they pray for the welfare of all people in the world (Loka samastha sukhino bhavantu). They are really good and noble.

When Lord Vamana pushed Emperor Bali down to the netherworld, the people felt very unhappy thinking, Oh, God! Our emperor is no longer with us; who will look after us from now on? Emperor Bali then made a promise to his people that he would visit them every year on this day. That auspicious day of Emperor Bali's visit to his kingdom every year is termed as Onam. He would visit his people on this day and bless them. Goodness will always yield good results.

Character Is Real Education

We should not develop obstinacy. One should develop a sense of discrimination and enquire into things objectively. If you behave foolishly, you will earn a bad name for yourself. Study well. Perform well in your educational career, but along with this, you should also develop good character and conduct. Character is real life; character is real education. Hence, one should develop good character. Students try to imitate one another. Mimicking others out of a false sense of values is bad.

181

Dear students! You must move in good company to enable you to develop good character:

Satsangatwe nissangathwam,

N

issangatwe nirmohathwam,

N

irmohatwe nischalatathwam,

ischalatathwe jivanmukti.

(Sanskrit sloka)

It is said Tell me your company, I shall tell you what you are. Hence, first and foremost, move in good company. Then only can you become a good individual. We need not acquire goodness from somewhere. It is inherent in our nature. We have only to develop it. We have to make efforts to develop such goodness, just as a small sapling is nourished and nurtured to become a big tree. You must earn a good name to your parents, society and the country. The country of Bharat has another name Hindu. It stands for the following qualities:

Develop Broad-Mindedness And Live In Bliss

182 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 39

H Humility

I Individuality

N Nationality

D Devotion

U Unity

It is only when we conduct ourselves in keeping with these ideals that we deserve to be called as real human beings. Having been born as human beings, it is a great sin to behave like animals. Whenever animal qualities raise their ugly heads, remind yourself, I am not an animal; I am a human being. You are a human being. Hence, develop human values. Unfortunately, today human values are very deficient in human beings. Wherever you see, animal qualities are rampant. Wherever you go and whomever you come across, there is only one desire for every individual money, money and more money! Nowadays, everything is related with money only. Why is this craze for money? Money comes and goes, but morality comes and grows. Hence, cultivate moral values. Then only will you become real human beings. The people of Kerala are fostering moral values well. Of course, they also have a desire for acquiring wealth. But, when compared to others, their desire is less.

From Goodness To Godness And Ultimately To World Peace

Cultivate good nature, lead a good life and earn a good name for yourself. From goodness, one has to travel to godness (Madhavathwa). First and foremost, ensure that the food you consume is good and Sathwic. Such food ensures good head (mind). It is only when the head (mind) is good, God will manifest before you. Thus, it is only when the food you consume is sattwic you will be able to realise God. Nowadays wherever you see, pollution is increasing. The air we breathe, the water we drink, the food we eat and the work we do are all polluted. The Sadhana we have to undertake to cleanse this polluted atmosphere is Bhagawath Prarthana (prayer to God). It is only when we are able to remove this pollution and make our hearts pure, we deserve to be called as real human beings. Divinity can be attained only by purity. And, that purity can be achieved by unity. Unity, Purity and Divinity are interrelated. Hence, you should always remember the intimate relationship between these three. The country of Bharat will prosper only when such noble and sacred feelings manifest in you. The land of Bharat has earned a great name as Punya Bhumi (the land of merit), Tyaga Bhumi (the land of sacrifice) and Yoga Bhumi (the land of spiritual practice), since ancient times. Unfortunately, today it is turning out to be a Bhoga Bhumi (the land of worldly pleasures). What we need most today is a spirit of sacrifice. Then the question arises as to what is Tyaga? Tyaga is not going to the forest, leaving behind one's wife and children and property. What is to be sacrificed is the result fruit of desires. That is the real sacrifice. We have to renounce indiscriminate desires. Then only will our heart become pure like a piece of white cloth. God desires only such a pure and sacred heart. God does not desire anything from you. He has no desires at all! It is only you who have desires. If you develop sacred desires, God will be happy. It is only then your family, society and the country will experience peace and happiness. First and foremost, peace should reign in your own house. Then, that peace should be radiated to the society. When the society becomes good, the country will prosper. If peace is to be established in the country, the individual should experience peace in the first instance. World peace is possible only when peace is established at the individual level. If there is no peace in the individual himself, how can there be peace in the world?

Develop Broad-Mindedness And Live In Bliss

184 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 39

Dear students! All of you must desire and work for establishing peace in the country. The greatness of Bharat is beyond words. It has been striving since ancient times to establish peace in the world. However, due to fascination for western ways, knowledge of one's own religion and culture has declined. Peace has broken into pieces! You may learn any language. There is nothing wrong in it. But, you should not seek foreign habits at the cost of your own heritage. You must establish peace in your heart. You must always be happy and blissful. Sweet smile should dance on your lips. You should not put up a castor oil face under any circumstances. You must always be smiling. When somebody sees you, he should also feel happy. Thus, you should always lead a happy and blissful life with a sweet smile on your face. You should be happy and at the same time make others happy. The people of Bharat led such blissful life with such noble qualities. There is, however, no dearth of such people even today. May be they are not wealthy economically. But there is no narrowness in their minds. When you develop broad-mindedness, you can achieve any great task. You must all realise the truth that this festival of Onam is observed for developing such broad-mindedness. You must experience bliss at the individual level and in the family and then share it with the society. Then all people will be happy. Happiness is union with God. You must realise such happiness. May all people be happy! May you all live like members of one family, sharing your love and happiness with one another! You must all live in unity, wishing each other, Hello! Hello! lovingly. You should not become separate, saying goodbye. You must become good boys. You must develop such sacred feelings. Time is very important. Time waste is life waste. Hence, you should not waste your time. There is still some programme to be covered. I will not inconvenience you by giving a lengthy discourse.

Give Up Selfishness And Strive For Self-Realisation

The physical world as perceived by the naked eyes is considered as truth. But it is only illusory. Divinity is the only reality. Unable to realise this truth, people are wasting their time.

(Telugu poem)

Embodiments Of Love!

Godod is only one, now and forever. Not realising

this truth, you are wasting your precious time thinking that all that you see in this objective world is true. No! None of these objects is real. Truth is eternal, beyond the three periods of time - past, present and future. That is Divinity. How foolish it is to think that the worldly vision which is subject to change from time to time is real. You are a student today. Tomorrow you will become an officer in an organisation and after some years you will be a retired officer. Then, which is true? Is it the life as a student or as an officer or as a retired official? There is a boy and a girl, who wish to get married. Before their marriage, who is husband and who is wife? Once they are married, they are referred to as husband and wife. But, how long does this relationship last? It is only temporary. Thus, all that you see in this objective world and all the relationships between individuals are only temporary. They are never real and permanent. But, Divinity is not like that. Divinity is what it is - yesterday, today and tomorrow. It is Divinity always! Not reposing your faith in such a true and eternal God, you are deluded into thinking that what you see in this objective world is true. Hence, first and foremost try to recognise the eternal truth. It is only when you have recognised the Truth, you are deemed to have recognised everything else. All others are only transitory. The entire universe is subject to change. It is temporary and unreal. Today's mountain may be reduced to a mere hillock tomorrow. Today's rivulet may transform itself into a mighty river tomorrow. The country of Bharat was once beautifully described as: lofty mountains, large rivers, huge trees with many branches, which make it a beautiful country.

188 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 39

God Is The Only Changeless Principle

People today repose their faith in that ephemeral and unreal world and forget God who is the embodiment of truth. That is the root cause for all sorrows and difficulties faced by humanity. You say you are encountering difficulties. From where did they come? Difficulties are the consequences of one's past deeds and thoughts. Everything in this world is susceptible to change. It appears to be unchanging, but it is not true. God is the only changeless principle. We have therefore to install such a changeless and eternal God in the altar of our sacred hearts and offer our love to Him. Thereby, we can experience bliss. That is the foremost duty of a human being. What is human life, after all? Is it merely eating, drinking, sleeping and dying ultimately? By doing so, how can the human life be termed as sacred? Man, at the time of his birth is very pure and sacred. As he grows old, gradually he loses his purity. This is not proper. A human being has always to maintain his purity. Take for example, My case. I was born. I grew up to be a boy, youth and old person. But, the childlike simplicity and purity are always there in Me. I am always like a child. As age advances, there might be several changes in the physical body. They are all at the physical level. It is only out of our delusion that we are exposed to the arishadvargas (the six enemies of desire, anger, greed, delusion, pride and jealousy). As a result, we are unable to realise the atma (Self). It is said lantunam nara janma durlabham (Of all living beings, human birth is the rarest). Having attained such a rare birth as a human being, we have to strive for self-realisation. We should not waste our energies in worldly pursuits. He who is a realised soul, is the liberated person in the real sense. Such a person constantly contemplates upon the atma. On the other hand, one who is constantly engaged in the pursuit of material comforts has his gaze fixed on the panchabhuthas (the five elements of earth, water, fire, air and space), pancha kosas (five sheaths of the soul) and panchendriyas (five senses). One who realises the truth that the physical body is ephemeral and the mind is like a mad monkey, will develop an insight into the inner Self. The physical body is like a water bubble. People know about it, yet they lead their lives reposing their faith in such a physical body. As long as one has attachment to the physical body, one has to experience sorrows and difficulties and sin and merit.

The body is made up of five elements and is bound to perish sooner or later ;

191

But the indweller has neither birth nor death. The indweller has no attachment whatsoever and is the eternal witness.

(Telugu poem)

Names And Forms Are Temporary And Unreal

The dehi (Indweller) in the deha (physical body) is eternal. It is referred to as the atma. We identify the physical body with certain names. For example, the name Anil Kumar is an identification for a particular form. Similarly, the name Sathya Sai Baba represents this physical body. It is not possible to identify the physical bodies, without names. A human being lives in the world, donning a physical body that is ephemeral. All that we see in the objective world are the creation of our own mind. What we cannot see with our physical eyes is the truth. That is the atma. Hence, when someone enquires, Who are you? , you should reply I am the atma. You should not refer to the name given to your physical body. The name given to your physical body is the one that is given to it by your parents. The whole world calls you by this name only. It is not the name that is important. Both name and form are temporary and unreal. As long as you live in this world, they are relevant. The moment you depart from this world, none cares for them.

Give Up Selfishness And Strive For Self-Realisation

192 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 39

For example, there is a millionaire. He has plenty of money and is, in fact, rolling in wealth. His end is nearing. He is undergoing great suffering. All his relatives surrounding him are restless. In fact, they are weeping. Exactly in that moment, wisdom dawns on him. He is reminded of Adi Sankara's verse:

Punarapi jananam punarapi maranam,

Punarapi janani jathare sayanam.

He has realised the fact that all his relatives and friends cared for him as long as he lived. He felt very sorry for his pitiable state and wailed, My dear ones! All that I have earned during my life has been handed over to you. Even the palatial buildings and big mansions that I have built have also been handed over to you. My bank deposits have also been given away to you. Yet, you do not care to think about me and are worried about your own future. True. People are worried only about wealth and property as long as they live in this world. They do not think at all about what will happen to the life principle after their death. As long as there is life-force in the body, people are deluded to think, It is my body, my mind, etc. You are now sitting in this hall. As soon as you get up and take two steps, you do not know what will happen to you. Once you depart from this world, who is related to whom? Who are your friends and relatives? No relationships at all! Hence, the physical body should not be given too much importance. The body should be purified by undertaking good deeds. Since people develop many kinds of relationship with the external world, they are afflicted with several impurities. It is only when such impurities are cleared to a certain extent will one keep good health. For example, there were rains a few days ago. Because of the rains, the water was polluted. Several people who drank the polluted water became sick. In many places, people suffered due to their ill-health. Today the food we eat, the water we drink and even the air we breathe, are all polluted. Hence, this widespread pollution has to be controlled at least to a certain extent by undertaking sacred activities. That is the reason why the nine forms of devotion have been prescribed as sadhana: sravanam (listening), kirtanam (singing), Vishnusmaranam (contemplating on Vishnu), padasevanam (serving His Lotus Feet), vandanam (salutation), archanam (worship), Dasyam (servitude), Sneham (friendship), and atmanivedanam (self-surrender).

Give Up Selfishness And Strive For Self-Realisation

194 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 39

One has to adopt any one of these sadhanas for pollution control. Humanness is not confined merely to jivathwa (life force); it is associated with Daivathwa (divinity). Every human being, in fact every living being, is an embodiment of Divinity verily! Even the insects and bacteria!

Constant Contemplation On God Is Real Sadhana

What is the sadhana that a human being is expected to undertake? Sadhana does not mean mere physical exercise. It is an enquiry into Truth at the level of the mind and intellect. What is Truth? Is it the body or the mind or the intellect? No, none of these. The mind is a mad monkey. It is fickle in nature. If you follow such a fickle mind, you cannot reach your true destination. It has to be discarded one day or the other. However, food and recreation are necessary to a certain extent to protect the body. Even that food has to be pure and satwic. If you thus carry on your activities and lead a sacred life, what more sadhana is required? Whatever activities you may undertake, you must constantly contemplate on Soham mantra, which reminds you of your innate divinity with each inhaling and exhaling process. The same principle has been explained in the mahavakya, Aham Brahmasmi

(I am Brahma) in the Vedas. From the time you get up from your bed till you go to sleep, you must constantly remind yourself that you are Brahman verily and not merely a human being made up of the five elements. You must develop the faith that God is your mother, father and everything else and that He alone is your sustainer and refuge. After all, who gave you the mother? Is it not God? Everything in this world is by God's grace only. If you forget God and concentrate on other thoughts, you will lose everything in life. If you constantly contemplate on God, all worldly thoughts will leave you. Hence, cultivate godly thoughts with love. Prema muditha manase kaho Rama Rama Ram (Sing the sweet name of Rama with your heart filled with love). Love is God. God is love.

Devoid of this love, there is no mother, no father, no brother, no wife. Everything is suffused with love. It is only for our convenience, for our pleasure and for our own selfish purposes that we develop worldly relationships. Hence, give up selfishness and strive for self-realisation. You must enquire into yourself, Who am I? Body, mind, intellect, chittha or ahamkara? You are none of these. You are yourself.

I am I. Recognise this truth. You are all pursuing education and acquiring academic degrees like B.A., B.Com, M.B.A., etc.

How many people are there with such degrees!

Give Up Selfishness And Strive For Self-Realisation

196 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 39

What service do they render to the society? They are all concerned with their own career and earning. They do not at all help others. All this worldly education is for making one's own living. That is not the purpose of one's education. We must render selfless service. The fruit of all actions must be sacrificed. It is only such a person who deserves to be called a yogi. A yogi is not one who merely sits under a tree and meditates, closing his eyes. Real sacrifice involves giving up your desires. One has to broaden his heart. One should not be narrow-minded. If you are inflicted with narrow-mindedness your whole life will become narrow. Develop broad-mindedness. Cultivate broad heart. The reference to heart in this context is not to the physical heart. If the physical heart is enlarged, it needs surgery. Develop love. Only then can you be called a real human being.

Always Be In Good Company

Dear students!

You think Swami's discourses are very simple. But, the entire essence of the Vedas is contained in them. The essence of all the sastras is to be found in Swami's words. Why should you be proud of your education? However high academic degrees a person may have acquired, a human being must always conduct himself with humility and obedience. Education with humility is the watchword. At the mental level man must be desireless. Then only can he be called a human being. Excessive desires lead to danger. You should not indulge in unnecessary desires. That will lead to waste of time. Time waste is life waste! Time is God, don't waste time. Even the little time at your disposal must be spent in contemplation on the Soham mantra. Then only will your birth as a human being be sanctified. If you go on wasting your time in reading newspapers, all that you acquire will only be useless. Nowadays newspapers have degenerated into a nuisance. You will find all sorts of unnecessary things in the newspapers. You might have seen several advertisements with obscene pictures in the newspapers daily. What sort of pictures are they? Fie on them! We don't like to go through such newspapers at all! These are not the stuff we have to read. We have to visualise God, who is beyond name and form. God's name is sweeter than the sweetness of banana fruit and dates. What for all these festivals being celebrated? Every festival is meant to remind us about God. People of all religions have festivals to celebrate.

All religions teach only good things.

Realising this truth, one should conduct himself carefully with proper understanding.

If you have a discriminatory intellect, which religion is bad?

Oh! The brave son of Bharat! Hear.

(Telugu poem)

Give Up Selfishness And Strive For Self-Realisation

198 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 39

Every religion preaches good only. Religion per se is not bad. Hence, you should respect people of all religions. It is only when your mind is distorted that you develop a bad opinion about a particular religion. Once you develop a discriminating intellect, you will realise that all religions lead to the same God.

Dear Students!

Please do not waste time. Sanctify every minute of your life and thereby experience bliss. Man is essentially the embodiment of bliss. Hence you must always be happy and blissful. Do not crave for unnecessary desires and feel depressed when they are not fulfilled. Happiness is union with God. You must always be happy and smiling. Even when you are faced with difficulties or during examination time, you should not put up a castor-oil face. Always be smiling. The more you feel enthusiastic and energetic, the more you will be happy. After all, what is there for you to worry about? Nothing, to My knowledge. A student who did not prepare himself well will be worried during examinations. If you have prepared well, then why should you worry? You will surely get good marks. Hence, read well, pass the examinations with distinction and serve the country.

The festival that is being celebrated today is meant only to encourage you. The ten-day Dasara festival is meant to control your ten senses. The legend says that

Goddess Chamundi killed the demon Mahisha during this Dasara festival. What is the inner meaning of this story? We should not under any circumstances associate ourselves with demons. You are a human being and not a demon. How can there be friendship between a human being and a demon? A human being shall have relationship with another human being only.

Always be in good company. If you join bad company, you will also become bad. Hence, you should never make friendship with a bad person. The moment you come across such people, just say goodbye and move on. You need not develop hatred towards them. Whomever you come across, consider them as embodiments of Divinity and salute them. Even when you come across people who hate you, offer your pranams (salutations) to them. Enquire,

How are you brother? Then they will also respond, How are you brother? A human being is one with certain human values. What are those human values? Sathya, Dharma, Santi, Prema and Ahimsa. They are all interrelated. Always speak truth, observe Dharma (righteousness). Be peaceful. Be happy and blissful. You should conduct yourself with love in society. Love is God, God is Love. Hence, live in love. Then only can you acquire true knowledge. That is wisdom.

Embodiments Of Love!

I always address you as embodiments of love. The reason being, I am suffused with love. Love is My property. You all are heirs to that property.

I will distribute that love to one and all. I do not hate anyone. I have no selfishness at all! My love is selfless love.

Love of God Is True Education

Embodiments Of Love!

People think worldly education is real education. This is not correct. Real education comes from the heart. Such an education is unwavering and lasting. Atma Vidya (knowledge of the Self) is the real education. Devoid of such atma vidya, what is the use of all your intelligence and education?

Contemplation On God Grants Divine Bliss

The Gopis, though lacking in worldly education and intelligence were pure at heart and deeply devoted to Lord Krishna. The ladies in Repalle used to go to the house of Nanda and Yashoda every evening and light their oil lamps from the one kept in front of their house.

That was the tradition in those days. Even now this practice is in vogue in some villages. The tradition had originated from the belief that if they lighted their lamp from that kept in the house of a wealthy householder, they would also become prosperous. Nevertheless, not all the mothers-in-law in Repalle would permit their daughters-in-law to go to the house of Yashoda for this purpose. They were afraid that if they were allowed to go and see Krishna there, they may out of their devotion get mad and run after Him. They, therefore, used to chide their daughters-in-law saying, Can t we light the lamp in our own house? Why should we get it from their house? In spite of these restrictions, all the ladies used to gather near the village well and discuss about Lord Krishna only. Then a new bride of one of the houses arrived in the village. Her name was Suguna. She had heard a lot about the divine leelas of Lord Krishna. She developed a deep desire to have the darshan of Krishna, somehow. She did not reveal her desire to her husband or her mother-in-law. She kept it as a tightly guarded secret within herself. However, it is impossible to conceal the truth. The entire creation has originated from truth:

The creation emerges from truth,

And merges into truth;

Is there a place in the cosmos where 203 truth does not exist?

Visualise this pure and unsullied truth.

(Telugu poem)

In spite of her keeping her desire as a closely guarded secret, it became known to all. One day, she went to the house of Yashoda and was lighting her lamp from that kept in front of their house. Suddenly, she could visualise Krishna in that flame. She lost her bodily consciousness in that divine experience and put her fingers in the burning flame. Her fingers were getting burnt, but, she had no body consciousness at all! Meanwhile, Yashoda came out smelling the burning finger. Immediately, she pulled out the hand of Suguna from the lamp and asked, What is the matter with you girl? Are you asleep? Your fingers are burnt badly. Don't you realise? Don't you feel the pain? Suguna then came to her senses and replied, Mother! Lord Krishna gave me His darshan in that flame. I lost my body consciousness on seeing Him. The other gopis heard her explanation. They were very happy to know about the divine experience of Suguna. They went round the village singing and dancing:

It seems our Suguna had the vision of Krishna,
In the house of Nanda:
Krishna appeared to her in the flame of the lamp.
Love of God Is True Education

(Telugu poem)

Thus, if you constantly contemplate on God, you can forget your sorrows and difficulties and experience divine bliss. Devotees, since ancient times, have experienced bliss by constant contemplation on God and shared their experiences with the world.

Today, intelligence has increased but educational standards have declined. Wherever you see, the students refer to newspapers and magazines from abroad. They do not however evince the same interest in their textbooks. They do not at all think about their own customs and traditions. Students in this modern age are accustomed to such false sense of values. They would like to engage themselves in discussion about all unnecessary things. For example, they discuss about novels making comments like so and so author has written a book; how great it is! They involve themselves in discussions and argumentation over such trivial matters. But, they forget about their lessons in the textbooks. Thus, they go on acquiring knowledge about all and sundry and try to increase their worldly knowledge. They do not have any concern for the glory of real education.

Our Karmas Are Responsible For Our 205 Happiness Or Sorrows
We should desist from aspiring for the fruits of our karma (action).
The Gita exhorts us Karmanyevadhikaraste ma phaleshu kadachana (you have right only on action, not on its fruit).

Man is born in action, sustained by action and ultimately merges in action. Action is the cause for pleasure and pain. Truly speaking, action is God for man.

(Telugu poem)

The karmas (actions) that we perform are responsible for all the happiness and sorrow we experience. When we perform good deeds, we get good results. When we perform bad deeds, we get bad results. Good deeds will result only in good results and bad deeds in bad results. That is why it is said, DO GOOD, BE GOOD, SEE GOOD; THIS IS THE WAY TO GOD. When you cultivate good thoughts and undertake good activities, you will experience good results. Therefore remember that the result of our own actions is responsible for all our sorrows and difficulties. All our elders have experienced peace and happiness by following our ancient traditions. But, today's children gave up those good traditions, forgot the path shown by their elders and are exposed to various kinds of unrest due to modern education.

Love of God Is True Education
206 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 39

They are not only exposed to unrest, but they do not also have contentment and satisfaction in life. With the result, they are becoming sick mentally and physically.

Man's thoughts and resolutions are the root cause for his ill-health. For all the unrest and agitation he suffers, the gunas (qualities) are responsible. Hence, our thoughts must always be good. You may observe that a person taking good and sattvic food, drinking pure water and breathing unpolluted air is always healthy. In contrast, people consuming unsacred food, drinking impure water and inhaling polluted air are exposed to various kinds of diseases. The root cause of man's ill-health today is unsacred food and impure water. All that we consume must always be pure and sacred. The Dasara celebrations are meant to foster good and noble qualities in us. We can always lead a happy life by taking a good bath, performing puja in our house, partaking of sanctified food and drinking pure water. If we follow this routine, our face will also be radiant. On the other hand, if we consume unsacred food, drink impure water and move about in a polluted atmosphere, there is the danger of forgetting our humanness even! In such a situation, we may lose our divine nature and acquire demonic qualities.

Several people wonder, Swami is nearing 81 years, yet, his physical body does not reveal any signs of old age. My answer to those people is: My dear devotees! I am not taking unsacred food or breathing polluted air. I am breathing the air of prayers of the devotees. How then can I lose My divine effulgence? I have no ailment of any kind. I have no pain at all! Sometime back, I fell down on the floor on account of an inadvertent error committed by a student. I broke My leg then. Hence, I feel a little difficulty in walking. That is all! There is another reason too! Nowadays I don't feel like walking. Nevertheless, I am coming to Sai Kulwant Hall daily and giving darshan to the devotees. What difficulty or pain is involved in this routine? I do not have any pain or suffering. When I am able to make the devotees happy, I too will be happy. Sorrows, difficulties and pain are nowhere near Me. I am always happy and blissful. Bliss is My food. There is no greater happiness than My bliss. If for any reason I am unable to come out and give darshan to the devotees, I feel very sad: Alas! How much the devotees are pining for My darshan! For how long they have been waiting in the hall! How much suffering they are undergoing? , etc.

Sometimes I may be late in coming to Sai Kulwant Hall due to some urgent work. Still I do not miss giving darshan to the devotees. Hence, you should not feel that Swami has not come due to pain or suffering. I am revealing these facts to you today, so that you may not feel any distress because of My absence and always be happy and cheerful.

Love of God Is True Education
208 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 39

Be Rooted In The Atma Tathwa

I expect that you should face difficulties boldly, reposing faith and devotion in God. If you constantly contemplate on God, no other thoughts will trouble you. Sorrows and difficulties will not affect you. I am always happy. You should also be happy always. Happiness is union with God. When you are associated with God, you will not feel any pain or suffering. You may have some physical pain or mental anxieties. But, you should ensure that they do not disturb your Atma Tattwa (the principle of the atma). If you are thus firmly established in the atma tathwa, nothing can bother you. This is the message of Navaratri. We encounter several difficulties, sorrow, pain, etc. We are mentally disturbed day in and day out due to several reasons. But, we should ignore them with a detached feeling. They are not mine, they are somebody else's. They just come and go like passing clouds. As for Myself, I do not at all attach importance to them.

We should not think that someone else is putting us to all these difficulties. We should not blame others for our difficulties and suffering. Our sorrows and difficulties are of our own making. The Kauravas tried their best to cause suffering to the Pandavas. But, the Pandavas did not relent. What was the reason? It was only because of their unwavering faith and devotion to Lord Krishna. They felt that when Krishna Himself was constantly protecting them, any number of difficulties and obstacles could not cause any fear in them. Similarly, you also develop firm faith that Swami is always with you, in you and around you. Do not at all worry about these sorrows and difficulties. These are all like passing clouds. None of them can shadow the blazing sun. It is only during rainy season that the clouds come in the way of sun rays. Similarly, it is only when our mind is wavering and disturbed we suffer from sorrows and difficulties. When our mind is steady and firm, no clouds can disturb us. Hence, keep your mind pure and steady. Develop courage and fortitude.

How does a man lead his life today? He is enacting his role in the cosmic drama, singing the songs of kama (desire) and krodha (anger) and playing games obsessed with mada (pride) and ahamkara (ego). Several people appreciate their acting as very good. But, some people are not carried away by this acting.

Love of God Is True Education

210 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 39

Unconcerned with the reaction, reflection and resound of this drama, they repose their faith in reality. And that reality is Divinity. Divinity is unwavering, invisible and beyond delusion. We must hold on to that reality, firmly. When we rely on such reality, our thoughts, words and actions will always be pure and sacred. Hence, Dear Students! You should not at all be afraid of these passing clouds. You should not be concerned with them. You perform your duty well. You fulfil the aspirations of your parents. Your parents have sent you here with great expectations. If you go against their wishes, you yourself can imagine how much they will feel. If you cause pain to your parents, it amounts to causing pain to Swami. Are you not praying daily.

Thwameva mathacha pitha Thwameva, Thwameva bandhuscha

sakha Thwameva, Thwameva vidya dravinam thwameva (you alone are the father and mother, friend and relation, wisdom and wealth).

(Sanskrit sloka)

There is no difference at all between God and parents. Hence, keep your parents happy. Swami is always happy. Establish that truth firmly in your heart. Then only can you be called true students.

Once, Hiranyakasipu called his son Prahlada close to him and enquired, Dear son! I have placed you in the hands of the gurus. I requested them to teach you good things. What did they teach you? Prahlada then replied, Father! The teachers have taught me many many things ;

I have understood the four objectives of life Dharma (righteousness),

Artha (wealth), Kama (desire)

and Moksha (liberation).

I have studied manythings ;

in fact, I have understood

the very essence of education.

(Telugu poem)

Hiranyakasipu felt very happy at his son's reply and told him, Son! Please explain that secret of all education. Prahlada then replied Dear father! All that we see and experience in this world is unreal and impermanent. Only Divinity is real and true. The father got angry. He held his son by his neck and pushed him down. He commanded his officers to throw him into the sea, saying, a son who flouts the commands of his father does not deserve to be in my presence. Take him away and dump him in the sea, immediately. Thereupon, the demons took Prahlada to the top of a hill and pushed him down into the sea. Even then, Prahlada chanted the name Narayana! Narayana! Lord Vishnu then emerged from the sea and saved Prahlada from drowning. Hiranyakasipu noticed that Prahlada was still alive. He fretted and fumed with anger on seeing Prahlada. He then ordered him to be thrown into the fire. Immediately, the flames subsided. Even the fire was not willing to consume him. What is the inner meaning of this episode? Good people will always encounter problems from bad people. Nevertheless, the good people will not be affected by them. It is only the fruit-laden tree that receives stones. Similarly, good people will always face certain obstacles. However, one has to face such difficulties boldly reposing faith in God.

Love of God Is True Education

Durga, Lakshmi And Saraswati Represent Thoughts, Words And Actions

Dear Students! You should obey the commands of your parents and God meticulously. Cultivate good behaviour. Then, everything will turn out to be good for you. Nothing will deter you. No difficulty will ever bother you. It is only to enable you to put such good thoughts into practice that goddesses Durga, Lakshmi and Saraswati are worshipped during these Dasara celebrations. Durga is not to be understood as a ferocious goddess. She is the goddess supreme who protects you.

Lakshmi is the embodiment of all wealth. Then, Saraswati is the goddess of speech. Good thoughts, good words and good actions (behaviour) represent the tathwa (nature) of these three goddesses. He who teaches good things to you is verily the embodiment of goddess Saraswati. He who teaches evil is verily a demon. Goddess Durga destroys only such demons. Durga, Lakshmi and Saraswati are, in fact, not different from you. They are very much installed in your own heart. They exhort you to lead the life of a human being, since you are a human being. Durga, Lakshmi and Saraswati are the three mothers to a human being.

You should treasure these good words in your heart and put them into action. Thereby you should come up in life and set an example to others. You should, by your example, spread the message to the world that Bharatiya Vidya is great. There are several people in the modern world imparting education that leads to evil ways. You should denounce such education. You should not go after it. You must enquire, will it help to purify my heart or not. If you feel it is not conducive to your progress, you must give it up immediately. It is only when you are able to satisfy your conscience that your life will be happy, peaceful and contented. Do namasmarana incessantly.

Be My Instrument

Krishna was born during the Krishna paksha (the dark fortnight of the month). The effulgence of the Lord is seen with greater effect when it is dark. In a world of disorder, Krishna was born to establish order. He was born on Ashtami day. Ashtami is associated with troubles and difficulties. When do troubles arise? When righteousness is forgotten. Krishna's advent therefore signifies removal of darkness, end of troubles and effulgence of Supreme Wisdom. Krishna's primary role was that of a teacher. He taught the Gita to Arjuna. He told Arjuna: Be only My instrument. Krishna thereby declared: Using you as an instrument, I am reforming the whole world.

Embodiments Of Love!

Since I came a bit late today for this afternoon programme, you all had some misapprehensions about My health. I want to assure you that I am perfectly alright. I cannot be idle, that is my nature. There were a few devotees waiting for Me there. I therefore spoke to them for sometime and made them happy. Thereafter, I started for giving darshan to the devotees in Sai Kulwant Hall. Whatever I do, it is only for satisfying the devotees. I have no other work. There is no work you can call My own. I have not come down for eating and drinking. Eating food and drinking water are of no importance to Me. Occasionally, I just sip a few drops of water and continue My talk. After all even a brand new car, needs petrol in its tank to keep it moving. Is it not?

What Is Educare?

These days the world is taking to strange ways. In every field - physical, moral, spiritual and worldly - there is rampant pollution. We are of two minds with the way in which the world is moving. We are both amused and sad at the state of affairs.

Humanness is very sacred. There is no greater force than humanness. Man has to pursue two kinds of education - Education and Educare. Education is acquiring knowledge from textbooks written by someone else. Educare is manifesting the divinity latent in a human being. This is by self effort. It involves bringing out something which is already there from within, by one's own sadhana not bringing out evil qualities that are carefully and perversely preserved in one's bosom. Educare is bringing out or manifesting the human values of Sathya, Dharma, Santi, Prema and Ahimsa by sadhana.

The first among the five human values is Sathya (truth). Who is the author or who spoke and taught about this Sathya? It is said Manasyekam vachasyekam karmanyekam mahatmanam (those whose thoughts, words and deeds are in perfect harmony are noble ones). Such noble souls have preached this truth since time immemorial. Sathya (truth) manifests from one's own heart.

The second value is Dharma (righteousness). Who created this Dharma? What is Dharma and what is Adharma? If you go on enquiring, it becomes clear that Dharma is not something that is created by someone. Sathyannasthi paro dharmah (there is no Dharma greater than adherence to truth). Dharma originated from Sathya.

The third value is Santi (peace). You enquire from any millionaire, Sir! You have everything in this world for a happy living. Are you happy? Pat comes the reply, I have everything, but I have no peace. Peace is not something that a person passes on or gives in charity to another person. It has to come from one's own heart. Today, wherever you see, only pieces, no peace.

The fourth value is Prema (love). Where did this love come from? Did it come from mother or father or some friend? Did anyone gift it? No! Love is your very life-breath. Devoid of love, the world cannot exist.

The fifth human value is Ahimsa (non-violence). Gautam Buddha taught Ahimsa paramo dharmah (non-violence is the supreme dharma). But, today wherever you see, there is only violence. Like the other human values, the heart is the seat of non-violence.

Expel The Six Enemies And Elicit Values

218 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 39

The five human values Sathya, Dharma, Santi, Prema and Ahimsa are not independent of each other. They closely follow one another. These five qualities are the gift of God to a human being. We as human beings have to manifest these five human values by putting them into practice. That is Educare.

Values Are Natural To Humans

What is the foremost quality of a human being? Speaking truth is the foremost quality of a human being. To speak untruth and talk irresponsibly does not befit a human being. If you indulge in useless and indiscriminate talk, how can it be called truth?

In fact, truth has to dance on your tongue. Before you speak something, you must enquire whether it is truth or not. Truth is one, not two. If there is duality, it cannot be truth. We have to speak only truth which emerges from our heart. The entire world has emerged from truth and everything merges into truth.

The clouds moving in the sky sometimes obscure the Sun. It is not possible to remove the clouds. They just come and go. Once the clouds move away, the resplendent Sun is fully visible. Similarly, it is only when the dark clouds of resolutions and confusions in our heart are cleared, truth manifests.

The panchabhutas (five elements) are natural phenomena in creation. Similarly, the five human values of Sathya, Dharma, Santi, Prema and Ahimsa are natural to human beings. Man has to manifest them from his heart and lead a natural life. They should flow from the source and not be extracted by force. Truth is pure and unsullied. Love is selfless. We have therefore to lead a selfless life. That is real love. Love does not expect anything in return. Selfishness troubles a human being in subtle ways. It is very cunning. Hence, one should not allow selfishness to come near him. If you are suffused with love, selfishness cannot approach you. Hence, develop love. Love is divine. When you are able to develop love, non-violence will come to you of its own accord. Where there is love, there can be no trace of violence. Thus, when man is able to manifest the five human values of Sathya, Dharma, Santi, Prema and Ahimsa, then his intellect becomes steady and he can walk the straight path.

Everyone has to face the consequences of his Karma (actions).

Who has made the bats to hang from the branches of a tree with their heads downwards?

Has anyone tied them upside down out of hatred? No, it is their fate. Likewise, nobody can escape from the consequences of Karma.

(Telugu poem)

Expel The Six Enemies And Elicit Values

220 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 39

None Can Escape Karma PHALA

The bats will be hanging to the branches of trees with their heads downwards. They move about in darkness only. Their entire life is spent in darkness. Is it anybody's malice that makes the bats hang heads down from their perches on the branches? No, this is not anyone's making. It is God's leela. Similarly, man has to follow his destiny. While experiencing the result of his past karma, it is possible that some changes can occur. Sometimes, the ways of karmaphala (fruits of action) appear to be rather strange. Once, Lord Vishnu enquired of sage Narada, Narada! How is the world? Narada replied,

The stories of the Lord are amazing ;

It purifies the lives of the people in all the three worlds.

It is like the sickle that cuts the creepers of worldly bondage ;

It is like a good friend who helps you

in times of need,

It is like a shelter for the sages and seers Doing penance in the forest.

(Telugu poem)

Karmaphala makes the human beings dance to its tunes in several ways. People cry when someone close to them dies. Similarly, they feel happy when a child is born in the family. Is it not a fact that happiness and sorrow are the result of karmaphala? Is it not true that they are part of the divine lilas? Hence, develop the faith that whatever happens is as per the divine will. It is a common practice in the present-day world to blame others for all their ills and praise themselves when they are happy. This is not correct. Develop the attitude that everything is God's gift and whatever happens is for our own good. Happiness and sorrow, losses and gains are all like passing clouds!

Develop Good Vision And Good Thoughts

Embodiments Of Love!

First and foremost, control your thoughts. The clouds of these thoughts are moving about in the sky of your heart. The clouds, as they move will cover the sun called the intellect and the moon called the mind. It is said, Chandrama manaso jataha (the moon was born out of the mind). The moon reflects the mind's nature. The intellect is the reflection of the sun. Both of them move about in the sky of the heart. Sometimes, our own thoughts form dark clouds. More so in the youthful stage. The dark clouds are water-borne, meaning they are associated with desires. When such dark clouds gather, the sun and the moon are hidden by them. It is only in the youthful stage you are troubled by an excess of thoughts. You will be drowned in them literally and will forget your very humanness. Hence, first and foremost, you have to remove those clouds. From where do these clouds come? They are formed on account of your sankalpas (resolutions) and vikalpas (indecisiveness). Hence, first and foremost, you have to control your thoughts. If you are able to do it, then your mind and intellect will shine brightly. The mind is a bundle of thoughts. When the thoughts and resolutions are controlled, it will be clean like a placid lake. Narendra (Swami Vivekananda) tried his best to control his thoughts, when he was a youth. When he finally succeeded, he acquired a pure heart. He constantly reminded himself, I am very proud of my birth as Bharatiya. How great and sacred is this country Bharat! How pure it is! To whichever country he travelled, he used to teach the people of that country about the greatness of Bharat. The very thought of the sacredness of Bharat would make you great. Hence, you must constantly remind yourself of the greatness of Bharat. The students of the present times are not at all reading the life history of great people like Ramakrishna Paramahansa and Swami Vivekananda. They read all trash novels. They consider them as great literature. I want that you should throw away such cheap literature.

Expel The Six Enemies And Elicit Values

God is immanent in every human being. God is everywhere. It is said, Ekatma sarva bhutantaratma (one Atma dwells in all beings). The same Atmic principle is present in all human beings. You may have a doubt in this context, if that is so, then why should I not make friendship with such and such person? When his age, behaviour and thoughts are not conducive to your moral and spiritual development, you should not make friendship with such a person. If you do so, you will also become like him. Tell me your company, I shall tell you what you are, Its said. We should make friendship with good people. It is only in keeping with this principle, Adi Sankara in his famous treatise Bhaja Govindam declared as under:

Satsangatwe nissangathwam,
Nissangatwe nirmohathwam,
Nirmohatwe nischalatathwam,
Nischalatathwe jivanmukti.
 (Sanskrit sloka)

(Good company leads to detachment; detachment makes one free from delusion; freedom from delusion leads to steadiness of mind; steadiness of mind confers liberation.)

You should move with good people, speak good words and see good things. It is only when you develop good vision and good thoughts and undertake good activities, you will become a good person. You should not read bad and cheap literature. Reading such trash is like moving in bad company.

Values Are Like Vital Airs

Especially today, I don't wish to dilate upon such topics as Divinity, spirituality, etc. What I am interested in is that you should lead your daily life in accordance with the principle of truth. The five human values of Sathya, Dharma, Santi, Prema and Ahimsa are embedded in you. They are like the five vital airs in you. They are, however, enveloped by the arishadvargas, the six enemies of kama (desire), krodha (anger), lobha (greed), moha (delusion), mada (pride) and matsarya (jealousy). What you have to do is to throw away this outer layer of arishadvargas and bring out the five human values latent in you. If you want to draw water from a well, you have to tie a rope to a bucket and with the help of this bucket you can draw water. In the well of your heart, there is the pure water of human values. In order to draw that water from the well, you have to secure the rope of firm faith. However, people today lack such faith and become blind.

The loss of the spiritual eyes of faith leads to spiritual blindness. You should not become blind. It is only when you develop firm faith in God, will humanity be transformed into Divinity. Many people can deliver speeches. But, we do not derive satisfaction merely by listening to such speeches. We just listen to them and forget them soon after that. It should not be so. What has been listened to has to be contemplated upon and then put into action. The most important aspect is you should develop firm and unwavering faith. When the rope of faith is strong and secure, the bucket can draw out the water of the five human values from the well of your heart. This process is called Educare. Educare is to bring out that which is in the depth of one's heart. It is not something external. It cannot be purchased from the market. Nor can it be taught by a teacher. You yourself have to strive for it. Only then can you attain self-realisation. For this, the prerequisite is self-confidence. In order to gain self-confidence, you must develop noble qualities.

Embodiments Of Love!

Your education may help you to achieve a sharp intellect. But, real happiness comes from Educare only. That should in fact, be the basis for our life.

Expel The Six Enemies And Elicit Values
 226 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 39

Bookish knowledge is not very important. Even those who have acquired high academic qualifications have to give importance to educare. Devoid of educare all the education and academic achievements are useless. You may acquire high degrees, but your education is not complete without educare. Of what use is all your education? Is it only for making a living? There is no shortage in this world of highly educated people. What is it that they are doing? Did they contribute anything for promoting non-violence in the world? Do they protect dharma in any manner? Are they fostering santi (peace)? At least, are they able to live in peace? No, not at all! They are unable to live in love and harmony even with their own children. Hence, first and foremost, cultivate love and share it with all. Only then will you experience its taste. Students have all the capabilities at their disposal. They have a strong and healthy body and mind. But, if they do not put them to proper use, they will become weak physically and mentally. Such weak people cannot achieve anything in their life. A strong will is a prerequisite in the spiritual field.

Having resolved on what ought to be resolved, hold on to your resolution till you have succeeded. Having desired what ought to be desired, hold on to it till your desire is fulfilled. Having asked what ought to be asked, do not leave the hold till you attain it.

Having thought what ought to be thought, hold on to it till you have succeeded. With heart mellowed, the Lord must yield to your wishes or with no regard for yourself, you should ask Him with all your heart.

Persevere, be tenacious, and never give up ; For it is the quality of a devotee never to retreat, abandoning his resolve.

(Telugu poem)

If you wish to secure good marks in the test given by God, you must have a firm resolve. This is necessary even in your worldly education. You should not, however, be satisfied with getting high academic degrees. You should not be elated by good marks; avoid bad remarks. Only then will your education have value.

Dear students! I am teaching you many things daily. But, you are not giving proper thought to them. You are forgetting the purpose for which you have joined our Institution. You have to recognise that purpose in the first instance. You came here with a purpose, but your actions are different. There is no

Expel The Six Enemies And Elicit Values

228 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 39

use at all by such behaviour. For example, you wish to have a breakfast of idli and sambar. But, you go to a military (non-vegetarian) hotel to get those items. You have joined this Institute to sanctify your heart and make it pure. But, you are taking part in unholy activities. The reason is your mental pollution! You should not at all pollute your mind and thoughts by involving yourselves in such activities. These are the things that our elders have been teaching us since ancient times. You are students of the modern age. Along with the modern education, you should sustain our ancient traditions. It is only when you conduct yourself accordingly, will you be able to attain the happiness you wished for. Then only will your life be sanctified. Worldly education is for the life here and spiritual education is for the life hereafter. You have come here to acquire Brahma Vidya (knowledge of the Brahman), not merely worldly education. Along with academic education, you also learn spiritual education. You have to strike a balance between these two. Only then will your life be sanctified.

Embodiments Of Love!

The country of Bharat is ancient and has a glorious history. There is no village in Bharat where there is no temple of Lord Rama. In whichever village you see, you will come across at least a few persons with the name Rama. Since ancient times, the Rama Nama has been shining brilliantly in the entire length and breadth of the country of Bharat without undergoing any change. The astikas (theists), nastikas (atheists) and asthika nastikas (theistic atheists) are all chanting the name Rama. For example, a person while getting up from his seat utters the name Rama. The Rama Nama is so popular in the daily life of people in Bharat. Not only here, even in China, Rama Nama has become popular. In fact, Rama Nama has spread to the entire world.

The Rama Story

King Dasaratha did not have children for a long time. He had three wives. He was very hopeful that he would beget a son through any one of his three wives and that he would uplift his clan. But, he was disappointed. He did great penance for getting a male child. Then as well as now, it is only through tapas that one can fulfil one's wishes. He also performed the Putra Kameshti Yaga, along with his three wives. At the conclusion of the yaga, the Yajna Purusha appeared before him and handed over a vessel containing payasam (sweet pudding). He told King Dasaratha, Dear son Dasaratha! Distribute this payasam to your three wives in equal measure. Dasaratha did accordingly. This incident is described differently in some texts. It is mentioned that King Dasaratha did not distribute the payasam equally between his three wives. This is not correct. He arranged to bring three golden cups and filled them with the payasam in equal measure, in the presence of Sage Vasishta. He then handed over the cups one each to his three wives, Kausalya, Sumitra and Kaikeyi. Sage Vasishta blessed them, May your desire be fulfilled! The queens were happy and took the cups filled with payasam to their respective prayer rooms. Sumitra, however, had different thoughts about begetting a son. There was a valid reason for her disturbed mind. When the king of Kekaya kingdom gave his daughter Kaikeyi in marriage to King Dasaratha, he laid down a condition that the son born to his daughter only shall rule the Kingdom of Ayodhya. Dasaratha agreed to this condition and

Cultivate Sacred And Noble Thoughts

married Kaikeyi. Hence, he could not go back on his word any way. Queen Kaikeyi was therefore very happy that the son to be born to her would be the king of Ayodhya in future. As for Kausalya, she was very happy and sure that her son to be born would definitely be crowned by King Dasaratha, since she was the first among the three wives. Thus, both Kausalya and Kaikeyi were happy. Sumitra, however, was not entertaining any hopes. She took a head bath and went upstairs to dry her hair. As you know, in those days, fans or hair dryers were unknown. She kept her cup of payasam on the parapet wall of the terrace and was drying her hair. Meanwhile, a kite descended over the cup and carried it away. Sumitra was very much afraid and thought to herself, It does not matter if the cup of payasam is lost. I am afraid that my husband and our guru Vasishta may scold me for my negligence. She came down immediately. Kausalya and Kaikeyi were waiting there for her. Kaikeyi enquired, Dear elder sister! Why are you so much disturbed? Sumitra related the entire incident. In those days, the wives never fought with one another, as in the present times. They used to move about like sisters with mutual love and affection. Kaikeyi then told Sumitra, Dear elder sister! You don't worry. I will give you some quantity of payasam from my share. So saying, she brought a cup and poured some quantity in that cup.

233

The broad-minded Kausalya too shared some of her payasam with Sumitra. They then took the three cups of payasam to Sage Vasishta for his blessings. He blessed the cups saying, May you beget sons with noble qualities, long life, supreme valour and who are capable of ruling the kingdom in a manner that will please the subjects.

He Who Pleases Is Rama

First Kausalya gave birth to a male child. The child was extremely charming and resplendent. Sage Vasishta therefore named him Rama. He was so beautiful, charming and attractive. He made everyone who came to see him, happy and blissful. Hence, it is said, Ramayathi Ithi Ramah (He who pleases is Rama). The second wife, Sumitra gave birth to two sons, while Kaikeyi too had a son born to her. Sage Vasishta was wondering, How come? Kausalya and Kaikeyi has one son born to each while Sumitra gave birth to two sons? He contemplated over the matter and realised with his yogic vision, what exactly had happened. He realised that the two children born to Sumitra were born out of the two shares of payasam given to her by Kausalya and Kaikeyi. The four children were named Rama, Lakshmana, Bharata and Satrugna. Lakshmana was an amsa (part) of Rama and Satrugna that of Bharata. Sumitra then thought to herself, If Rama becomes the king, my son Lakshmana should be his servant. Similarly, if Bharata were to be the king, my other son Satrugna should serve him. I don't want that my two sons should ever aspire for kingdom. It is enough if they serve Rama and Bharata, respectively. She did not however reveal her thoughts to anyone.

Cultivate Sacred And Noble Thoughts

Both Lakshmana and Satrugna were crying incessantly, right from the time of their birth. They neither took food nor slept. Sumitra could not understand the reason for their restlessness. She tried various methods like mantra, tantra and yantra. But, they did not yield any result. They did not stop crying.

Finally, she approached her guru Sage Vasishta and prayed to him, Oh! divine guru! I am not able to understand why my sons are crying incessantly. Kindly let me know the reason. Sage Vasishta closed his eyes for sometime and with his yogic vision tried to understand the reason for their incessant crying. He then explained, Mother! Lakshmana is the amsa (part) of Rama and Satrugna that of Bharata. Hence, please make Lakshmana lie in the cradle of Rama next to him. Similarly, in the case of Satrugna, make him lie beside Bharata. Sumitra, after obtaining the permission of Kausalya and Kaikeyi made the two boys lie in the cradle beside Rama and Bharata, respectively. The very next moment both Lakshmana and Satrugna stopped crying and started to play happily. Thereafter, they drank milk and slept peacefully. Since then Lakshmana followed Rama like a shadow and Satrugna followed Bharata.

After the marriage ceremony of Rama, Lakshmana, Bharata and Satrugna was over, Bharata left for his maternal uncle's (King of Kekaya) house. Satrugna followed him. Here in Ayodhya, Rama was preparing to leave for His fourteen-year exile to the forest, as per the command of His father, King Dasaratha. Sita and Lakshmana followed Him, voluntarily. Thus, when Lakshmana was following Rama and Satrugna was moving in the company of Bharata, people thought that the two pairs were separate. But, the fact was that the mutual love among the four brothers was unparalleled.

During their exile in the forest, while Rama, Lakshmana and Sita were moving about, they came across an asram (hermitage). On enquiry, they came to know that it belonged to Sage Agastya. Agastya and his disciples extended a warm welcome to them. They conveyed their grateful thanks to them for visiting their asram. During the course of their conversation, sage Agastya advised, Rama! You cannot be comfortable in this Asram. There is a forest called Dandakaranya,

Cultivate Sacred And Noble Thoughts

nearby. There, you will be comfortable. Mother Sita will also be happy there, without any inconvenience. You will get a variety of fruits in plenty there for eating. The sacred river Godavari is flowing in that forest. Hence, you build an asram and live there. As per the advice of Sage Agastya, Sita, Rama and Lakshmana built a small parnashala (cottage) on the banks of the river at Panchavati in the Dandakaranya forest and started living there happily.

Destiny Is Invisible

All species of animals used to move about in the surroundings of that ashram. One day Sita happened to see a golden deer in the vicinity of their parnashala. She was enamoured by it. How can Sita who left all her gold ornaments in Ayodhya and followed Rama to the forest, have a desire for a golden deer? She thought for a moment and concluded that it might be her illusion. But, destiny is invincible. In spite of her knowing that there is no possibility of a golden deer living, she requested Rama to catch the deer and bring it to her so that she could play with it. She prayed, Rama! How beautiful that deer is! If You can catch that deer and bring it to our parnashala, I can play with it and spend my time happily. When You are moving in the forest, I am alone in the parnashala. Why don't You fulfil this small request of mine and make me happy? Rama said, All right, your happiness is My pleasure. So saying He left to catch that golden deer. Lakshmana then counselled Rama, Dear elder brother, this is a strange animal. It is not really a golden deer. I think some demon must have donned the form of this golden deer to trick and delude us. You need not go after it to catch it. I will go. However, Sita insisted that only Rama should go and catch the golden deer. That was how her mind worked during that crucial period. As per Sita's prompting, Rama went after the deer, chasing it. After going for some distance, Rama released an arrow on the deer. Once Rama's arrow struck the deer, the demon donning the form of the golden deer assumed his real form. He shouted, Ha! Sita! Ha! Lakshmana and died instantly. Sita, who was at a distance from that spot heard that voice and mistook it as that of Rama's. She advised Lakshmana, Oh! Lakshmana! Please go immediately to help Rama. I feel Rama is in some trouble and is seeking our help. I think He is calling us. Lakshmana then explained to Sita, Mother! This must be some trick played by the demons. No danger can ever befall Rama. Don't lose heart. Please maintain your poise. Sita was angry that Lakshmana did not move, in spite of her repeated requests. She cast several aspersions on him. She went to the extent of slandering Lakshmana, saying, Do

Cultivate Sacred And Noble Thoughts

238 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 39

you wish to take me as your wife, if Rama dies? Unable to bear her words, Lakshmana moved out at that very moment and went in search of Rama. However, before leaving the parashala, he drew a line around it and advised Sita, Mother! I am not worried about the accusations hurled at me. But, you please don't come out of this line under any circumstances. The demons, animals or for that matter any kind of insects cannot enter the asram, crossing this line. You remain in the asram only. You might have noticed a product called Lakshmana Rekha being sold in the market even today. If a line is drawn with that stick, no ants or insects can cross over. Similarly, the demon Ravana who came to the asram with the intention of abducting Sita during the absence of Rama, could not cross the Lakshmana Rekha and enter the ashram. He therefore stood in front of the ashram beyond the line drawn by Lakshmana and begged for alms crying, Bhavati bhiksham dehi (mother, give alms). Sita took pity on him, thinking, Alas! Poor fellow! He must be hungry. It is not fair on my part to turn him away. She therefore came out crossing the Lakshmana Rekha to offer food to Ravana. The moment she crossed the Lakshmana Rekha, Ravana abducted her and took her away to Lanka. After Rama and Lakshmana returned to the asram, they noticed that Sita was abducted. They were anguished. In Lanka, Sita too felt very sorry that she had to encounter this pitiable situation because she did not pay heed to Lakshmana's words. Sitting in Ashoka vana in Lanka, she was pondering,

239

Will I ever move out of this prison?

Will I ever be able to see Rama?

Oh! My dear brother-in-law Lakshmana!

I hurled several abuses at you,

Oh! Noble one!

She was repenting, Lakshmana! I am undergoing this punishment for having hurt your feelings. Sita spent ten months thus in Lanka. But, she never looked at the face of Ravana. Ravana donned several kinds of vestures, played several tricks and made several promises to Sita during those ten months. But, Sita was unrelenting. She abhorred his very presence castigating him, Fie on you! You don't even match the nail of the foot of Rama. When Ravana started abusing Rama, she lost her temper and declared, Rama is a man of supreme valour. He is courageous and profound in character. You are a mean fellow and trivial in nature. You don't deserve to utter even the name of Rama. Unable to make her submit to his overtures, Ravana left that place giving her time of ten days to bow to his wishes.

Sita, however, was spending her time with courage and confidence constantly contemplating on Rama. She assured herself that her own conscience was her witness and none could do anything to her. Among the ladies belonging to the demonic community appointed to guard Sita

in the Ashoka vana, there were two by name Ajata and Trijata. They were the daughters of Vibhishana, the younger brother of Ravana. One day while consoling Sita who was weeping, Trijata told her Mother! Last night, I had a dream. I saw one monkey entering Lanka and setting the city ablaze. I also saw very clearly that Rama invaded Lanka, killed Ravana and took you to Ayodhya. Ajata too counselled Sita saying, Oh! Mother! It is true. I too had a similar dream. You need not be sorry any more. Both of them gave a lot of love and kindled faith in Sita. In fact, their father Vibhishana was a devotee of Rama. Hence, his daughters too developed devotion towards Rama.

Thus, ten months passed by. Suddenly, one day there was a big commotion in Lanka. On enquiry, it was known that the battle between Rama and Ravana had started. In a few days time, the news that Ravana was killed in the battle also spread. Sita felt very happy that she would soon be free from confinement and would join the divine presence of Rama. However, she had a doubt in her mind whether she had to go herself to Rama or Rama would come to her and take her along with Him. In the meantime, Rama sent a word that Sita be brought to His presence. All the vanaras gathered there. They are by nature fickle-minded. No further elaboration is required about their behaviour. They were dancing and jumping to have a glimpse of Mother Sita. On having her darshan, their hearts were filled with joy. At last, Sita was taken to the divine presence of Rama. But, Rama did not look at her. He bent His head and was sitting quietly. He commanded the people around him to prepare a fire so that Sita could enter into it and prove her chastity. Rama knew that Sita was a very chaste and noble woman but He wanted the fact to be made known to the world too. Someone may later question, How did Rama accept Sita back into His fold, when she had spent ten months in Lanka in the captivity of Ravana? Is it not a fact that He has to answer such questions? That is why He ordered Sita to undergo the fire test. Having realised this truth, Sita went round the fire three times and chanting Rama's name jumped into the fire. The very next moment, the god of fire appeared and handed over Sita to Rama with the request, Oh! Rama! Sita is a woman of supreme chastity. She is the noblest. It is not fair on Your part to doubt her chastity. Kindly accept her. The chastity of Sita was thus made known to all. This incident established the glory of truth and chastity.

241

Vibhishana, the younger brother of Ravana took Sita, Rama and Lakshmana along with their entourage to Ayodhya in the Pushpaka Vimana. The coronation of Rama as the king of Ayodhya was celebrated on a grand scale. The people of Ayodhya lived in peace and happiness during the reign of King Rama. The Ramayana story is most sacred. The pathivratha dharma (chastity) itself protected the ladies in those times.

This land of Bharat has given birth to many noble women like Savitri who brought her dead husband back to life; Chandramati who extinguished wild fire with the power of truth; Sita who proved her chastity by coming out of blazing fire unscathed and Damayanti who reduced an evil-minded hunter to ashes with the power of her chastity. This land of piety and nobility attained plenty and prosperity and became the teacher of all the nations of the world because of such women of chastity.

(Telugu poem)

The noblest quality of chastity is unique to the culture of Bharat. You don't find it anywhere else in the world. In those days, whenever the men came across women, they used to move on bending their heads in reverence to them. But, today both women and men stand in the middle of the road, gossiping. At the fag end of the Dwapara Yuga, Dharamaraja witnessed such a scene one day. He felt very unhappy and immediately called for a meeting of his brothers. He expressed his anguish to them thus: Oh! Bhima! Arjuna! Nakula! Sahadeva! The kali yuga (age of kali) has begun. yesterday while I was taking a stroll in the city, I saw a woman talking to a man in public. I am sorry I cannot bear witness to such immoral behaviour. On another day, his younger brother Arjuna narrated another incident, Today, I saw a farmer returning from his field carrying his plough on his head. I asked him why he was carrying it, as he could have left it in the field itself while returning to his house. He replied, Alas! Swami! It cannot be left there. If I leave the plough in the field itself, the thieves may take it away. Hence, every day I am taking it home and bringing it next day to the field. On another day the Pandava brothers noticed some woman locking the door of her house before going out. On enquiry, the woman replied, If I don't lock the house, someone will enter the house and carry away our articles. All these were signs heralding the advent of kali age.

During the time of Rama Rajya, there was no practice of locking the houses or carrying the agricultural implements back home or ladies and gents chit-chatting in public places. It is only due to the effect of the kali age, such incidents have started happening. That is why the Pandavas decided on their Mahaprasthana (final journey in the northward direction). The kali age has begun. Let us therefore depart, that was their resolve. Accordingly, they returned to their heavenly abode. The Pandavas led a sacred life. It is only on account of such noble and sacred souls, the country of Bharat has earned the name of a sacred country. Today, however, such purity and sanctity has declined. Of course, it is still there, but it is not manifest. It is only Dharma that protects one and all! Both, men and women have to protect Dharma (righteousness). In order to do so, the mind has to be kept pure and steady. You should not allow evil thoughts enter your mind.

Ahalya, the wife of Sage Goutham was a great and noble lady, yet, she had to suffer on account of the curse of her husband. He cursed her on one occasion, May you become a stone and lie in the dust! It is only due to the grace of Lord Rama at a later date that she could come out of the curse. The moment Rama's feet touched the stone, the stone transformed itself into Ahalya. God can turn even a stone into a human being and sanctify it. He can purify the impure. However much you suffer from evil thoughts, the moment you think of God, all your impurities will be removed. Mind is the root cause for everything. Hence, ladies and gentlemen, everyone should cultivate sacred and noble thoughts. You must purify your heart. Only then can humanness survive. Otherwise, it degenerates into demonic nature.

Vyakti

The sun derives its energy and effulgence from the Divine cosmic source. It is the same cosmic source that accounts for the power of the human mind and the marvellous power of the eye to see the most distant star. With this power of sight, man is able to see the entire creation. There is no greater power than this. This boundless power is being recognised and exercised by each according to the level of his development. Because of man's ability to manifest the divine boundless cosmic energy, man is described as a manifestation of the Divine (Vyakti). Humanness lies in manifesting what is hidden and invisible to man.

Put Human Values Into Practice

Man today feels proud that he has mastered

many branches of knowledge and studied a number of texts. But he does not try to understand the essence of education. Nowadays, learning is limited only to physical and worldly aspects; moral, ethical and spiritual aspects are left out.

A Test Of Intelligence

Today the parents make strenuous efforts to provide education to their children. But nobody is trying to know the real meaning of education. People think that those who can speak eloquently and have studied a number of books are highly educated. But the fact is that it shows just the knowledge of the alphabet and nothing else. Mere knowledge of the alphabet cannot be called education. Besides knowing the letters, one has to know the meaning of the words and the sentences constituted by them. Having realised this truth, King Krishnadevaraya convened a big assembly. He posed a question to all the assembled poets and scholars. Also present in this assembly were eight renowned poets of his court known as ashta diggajais (eight eminent scholars). They were: Allasani Peddana, Nandi Thimmana, Madavyagari Mallana, Dhurjati, Ayyalaraju Ramabhadru, Pingali Surana, Ramarajabhushanudu and Tenali Ramakrishna. Krishnadevaraya wanted to know who among them was the best. He wanted them to frame a meaningful sentence consisting of five words, each word having the same meaning in five different languages. Whoever comes out with an answer to this question by tomorrow morning will be suitably rewarded, he declared.

Since his house was far away, Tenali Ramakrishna decided to spend the night in his brother-in-law's house. When he was provided with a comfortable bed for the night, Ramakrishna refused to sleep on it. He said, I have to think of an answer to a question put by the king by tomorrow morning. A bed like this is sure to put me to sleep in no time. So, provide a cot for me in the cowshed. As he was lying on the cot, at one o clock in the night, one of the cows in the shed gave birth to a calf.

Ramakrishna called out to inform his brother-in-law about this. His brother-in-law wanted to know which cow it was since he had given different names to his cows like Lakshmi, Saraswati, Radha, etc. He asked Ramakrishna, Ye Aav Ra Bava (Oh! brother-in-law! Which cow is that?). When Ramakrishna heard this, his joy knew no bounds since he had found an answer to the king's question. So, he repeated the phrase again and again. His brother-in-law thought that Ramakrishna was behaving in this strange manner due to lack of sleep.

Next morning, Ramakrishna went to the royal court and found that no one else had the answer to the question. All others were convinced that it was not possible to frame such a sentence. Ye Aav Ra Ba Va. This is the answer, he said. Everyone was intrigued. Then he explained, Ye in Marathi, Aav in Hindi, Ra in Telugu, Ba in Kannada and Va in Tamil convey the same meaning, i.e., come. All the five languages were represented in this sentence.

In this manner, one should know the meaning of every letter. People today read many books without knowing the real meaning of the words. But in ancient times, people knew the meaning of every letter that they studied. Pleased with the answer of

Put Human Values Into Practicve

250 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 39

Tenali Ramakrishna, Krishnadevaraya presented a bundle of gold coins and precious diamonds to him. Ramakrishna was happy to receive the precious gift from the king, but he was worried how he should safeguard it. Therefore, he requested the king to provide him with two bodyguards to enable him to carry the bundle safely to his house. Accompanied by the bodyguards, he carried the bundle safely to his house. On reaching there, the thought of keeping the bundle safe in the house caused him a lot of worry since he did not have any iron safe. His wife came near him and saw the bundle. At that time, Tenali Ramakrishna noticed two thieves who had followed him all the way and were now hiding in the backyard of his house. Then he told his wife that he was going to drop the bundle of gold coins and precious gems into the well in the backyard of his house for its safety. He spoke loudly so that the thieves could overhear him. Instead of putting the bundle of precious gems in the well, he actually put a bag of stones in it. All through the night, the thieves kept on drawing water out of the well in expectation of getting the bundle of gold coins and precious gems. All their attempts proved futile. They left the place at daybreak. Tenali Ramakrishna was happy that he could save the precious bundle from the clutches of thieves and in the process his garden was adequately irrigated.

One who knows the meaning of every letter, every word and every sentence is a true poet. Tenali Ramakrishna was one such great poet.

Acquire The Knowledge That Makes One Immortal

Today people try to know the meaning of sentences without trying to know the meaning of letters and words that constitute the sentences.

Even the preceptors today give only the worldly meaning of the sentences, but none gives the moral, ethical and spiritual import of the sentences. It is the responsibility of teachers to disseminate the knowledge pertaining to moral, ethical and spiritual principles. That is true education. Today the students pursue their studies,

Put Human Values Into Practicve

but if you ask them what they are doing, they reply, Chaduvu-Kontunnamu, which also means, We are buying education. That is no education at all. We have to know the meaning of every letter, every word and every sentence and act accordingly. Despite acquiring all this worldly knowledge, one has to meet one's end which is inevitable. One should acquire that knowledge which makes one immortal. It is the knowledge of the five human values, namely, sathya, dharma, santi, prema and ahimsa.

The first one is sathya (truth). Truth is deathless. Truth is one, not two. Dharma (righteousness) is eternal. santi (peace) is the source of bliss. Next is prema (love). Right from a child to an old person at the verge of death, everyone is endowed with love. But love has no death. The last, but not the least, is ahimsa (non-violence). Where is the death for ahimsa? Buddha propagated this principle. He declared: Ahimsa Paramo dharma (non-violence is the highest dharma). Knowledge and practice of these five principles is real education. Speak truth, follow the path of righteousness and experience peace. Share your love happily with all and lead your life with non-violence. This is the essence of education. These are the five main human values which should be propagated in the world. They are eternal and immortal. Today we run after all that is perishable, ignoring that which is immortal. The President of India has told you many important things. You can achieve great heights if you put his teachings into practice. Every human being is endowed with these five human values. If we promote these five human values, we become God. The Vedas declare: Tat Thwam Asi (That Thou Art). This profound statement of the Vedas contains the essence of all knowledge. Therefore, these five human values have to be inculcated in everyone right from childhood.

When you rely on truth, you can achieve anything in life. Daivam manusha rupena (God is in human form). God is not separate from man. All are the embodiments of divinity. The same principle of the atma is present in all. But it assumes many names. Develop self-confidence. Face all difficulties with self-confidence. Whomsoever you see, consider him as your own reflection. God is beyond all attributes and actions. Develop the spirit of sacrifice. Na karmana na prajaya dhanena thyagenaike amrutatthwamanasu (immortality is not attained through action, progeny or wealth; it is attained only by sacrifice). You should be prepared to make any sacrifice. Have the firm conviction that you are God and God is not separate from you. Wherever you see, God is there. There is nothing else except God. Names and forms may be different, but the same principle of the Atma is present in all.

Practice Of Human Values Promotes Unity And Harmony

All that man experiences is the result of his actions. It is already very late now. I do not want to cause inconvenience to you by speaking at length. It is enough if you know these five principles and put them into practice in your daily life. It is only by practising these five principles that you can know them, not merely by reading or writing about them. Any knowledge that is not put into practice is no knowledge at all. Put into practice at least one or two principles in your life out of all that you have learnt. Then only will your life be redeemed and you will acquire merit. Then you would have followed the right path. You have heard many things from Me and Kalam. What is the use of all your listening if you do not put anything into practice? It is your rare fortune that you got the opportunity of listening to such sacred talks. Make the best use of the opportunity and attain the goal of your life.

Lord Krishna declared in the Bhagavad Gita, Mamaivamsho jivaloke jivabhuta sanathana (the eternal atma in all beings is a part of My Being). You are all sparks of divinity. You are not mere mortals. You are not separate from Me. Being an aspect of My Divinity, you should conduct yourself accordingly. Do not waste your time in vain gossip. These five values have originated from God. Wherever you see, there is the principle of unity. You and I are one. Many people ask Me about My true identity. I tell them, You and I are one. You are not separate from Me. Consider all your fellowmen as your brothers and sisters and strengthen the bond of love with them. You should all stand united. Never give room for evil qualities like anger, hatred and jealousy. These qualities will create only differences. We should develop the five human values which will promote harmony and unity in the world. We should develop those qualities which will bring us closer to each other and not the ones which will distance us from each other. Leave the burden of all your responsibilities to God. This is My message to you today.

Acquire Self-knowledge

Self-knowledge is that knowledge by acquiring which everything else becomes known. A person with self-knowledge can indeed be acclaimed as all-knowing. Secular learning cannot confer on us abiding and absolute peace. Self-knowledge alone can help us cross the sea of sorrow. So, all should strive to attain self-knowledge which can be acquired through purity of mind. And purity of mind can be attained through sacred deeds, charity, compassion and devotion.

When the child emerges from the womb of its mother, one does not find any garland around its neck. There are no jewels made of pearls nor are there glittering gold ornaments. There are no necklaces studded with precious stones like emeralds and diamonds. But there is one garland around its neck. Brahma strings together the consequences of his past deeds into a heavy garland and puts it around its neck at the time of birth.

Embodiments Of Love, Students Boys And Girls!

It is not possible to describe how fortunate a human being is. Jantunam nara janma durlabham (of all living beings, human birth is the rarest). Man is not able to realise the value of humanness and is deluded by the sight of ephemeral and transitory objects of the world. The basis of man's life is not the transitory and ephemeral world. His life on earth is a synthesis of moral, ethical and spiritual values. Man, in fact, is the image of divinity. Mamaivamsho jivaloke jivabhuta sanathana (the eternal atma in all beings is a part of My Being). All of you are a part of Myself, you are not different from Me. Unable to realise the value of his humanness, man becomes a victim of his many delusions. All your learning and your strenuous efforts should be directed towards realising this truth. You don't need anything else after realising this fundamental truth. All the material possessions of this world are a cause of bondage for man and so long as man is in bondage, he has to suffer. Therefore, man should try to achieve freedom from this bondage. He should get rid of the feeling of attachment. Nothing is mine and thine, everything is one. Develop the feeling in your heart that all are one. Only then can you experience truth, peace and bliss.

258 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 39

The One Dwells In The Many

Embodiments Of Love!

Your life is full of ambitions and desires. You have to enquire whether you are making appropriate efforts to attain fulfilment in life. First search your heart to know what your thoughts and feelings are whether they are pure, steady and selfless or are they tainted with desires. Desires are like luggage which is a heavy burden in the journey of life. Less luggage more comfort makes travel a pleasure. Therefore, gradually reduce your desires. If you have less luggage, you will be more peaceful. On the contrary, man today is increasing his baggage of desires instead of lightening it.

Thousands of people have assembled here. Heads are many, but the feeling is one. Ekatma sarva bhutantaratma (one atma dwells in all beings). Because of your body attachment, you are subjected to too many troubles. Today you are a single person. After completing your studies and securing a good job, you will try to get married. Then you become

two. When one wears one bangle, no sound is produced. Only when one wears two bangles sound is produced. After marriage, you are inclined towards worldly acquisitions. You will have children and your family will expand. With this type of progress, how can you have peace? All these worldly attachments are the result of your deluded thinking. There is no reality in them. When your thoughts and feelings are not in the right direction, you are bound to suffer. Instead of getting yourself entangled in worldly life, you should engage in the service of society. Once you take to the path of service, your problems will gradually decrease. Love All, Seveerve All. Do not consider anybody as other person. Develop the feeling that he and you are one. The entire mankind is one. What you see in this world is only the reaction, reflection and resound of the reality that is one. Once you understand this truth, you will be peaceful. Only then will your mind be steady and one-pointed in the pursuit of your study and profession. Therefore, first and foremost, engage yourself in the service of society. What is society? Society is your own reflection. Therefore, do not distance yourself from society. Keep yourself always engaged in the service of society. Why has God given hands to you? They are not given to scribble something on paper. They should be fully engaged in the service of God. Work is worship. Duty is God. Do your duty.

Service To Society Is Service To God

Embodiments Of Love!

You are now young and all your limbs are healthy and strong. First is the body. Next come the senses. Higher than the senses is the mind, and the intellect is higher than the mind. The atma is the highest. When you understand and contemplate on the principle of the atma, you will be free from all suffering and bondage. It is the perversion of the mind that is the cause of all your sufferings and bondages.

The Devaki And Yashoda Of Kaliyuga

Once the mother of this body, Easwaramma, went to a well to fetch water. Suddenly, she felt giddy and heard an ethereal voice, I am entering your body. She was fear-stricken and was at a loss to know what was entering her body, whether it was a ghost, a spirit or an angel. She heard the voice again, I am entering your body for the welfare of the world.

Easwaramma was not the name given to the mother of this body at the time of her birth. This name was given to her by Kondama Raju, the grandfather of this body. He was a noble soul who had realised My Divinity even when I was a child. Realising that she was the mother of Easwara, he changed her name to Easwaramma (mother of God). Easwaramma was not an ordinary woman; she was a high-souled person who was loved and admired by one and all. Wherever she went, people greeted her with great love.

Karanam Subbamma was one of great virtues. She had a highly respected position in the village. As time passed, there was great transformation in her. She prepared food for all the devotees who came for My darshan. Whatever she made, she made it for the sake of Swami. Those days, I did not stay at home most of the time. I moved about in the adjoining hills and valleys.

262 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 39

Subbamma made many preparations, put them in a tiffin box and went searching for Me wherever

I was. Her love for Swami was great. In the Dwapara Yuga, it was Devaki who gave birth to Krishna, but Yashoda had the great good fortune of being called the mother of Krishna. Similarly, Subbamma had such great good fortune in this Age.

Once Karanam Subbamma performed Sathya- narayana Vrata. She invited Easwaramma also to participate in it. As I was born after Easwaramma partook of the Prasadam (sanctified food) of Sathyanarayana Vrata, I was given the name of Sathyanarayana. Right from My birth, people did not consider Me as an ordinary person; they always considered Me as a Transcendental Being endowed with great divine powers. When I was a child, all the children in the village used to surround Me. I used to ask everyone of them what he wanted. Each one of them wanted to have something or the other like a pencil, a pen, a sweet or a peppermint. Whatever they asked, I used to take it out of My empty bag. I did not have even a single paisa with Me. On receiving the items they asked for, they used to wonder how I was able to give them all those things. There was no possibility of My mother giving them because she too had no money. One day, I left My bag and went inside. Finding this as an opportune moment, the boys searched the bag all over. They were not ordinary boys. They wanted to make sure if there was anything hidden in the bag. After making a thorough search, they could not find even a single pin. Then they realised that all these things were coming from some unknown source. They were wonderstruck. In this manner, I was always surrounded by boys right from My childhood. Gradually, My name spread far and wide. This created jealousy in some people. In spite of the jealousy of people, My name and fame spread to all corners of the world. People from many countries of the world representing various faiths started coming to Prasanthi Nilayam in large numbers and started celebrating their festivals here. Now December is coming and Christmas is approaching. Christians from all parts of the world will assemble here and celebrate this festival. Likewise, Mohammedans also will come to Prasanthi Nilayam and pray for My permission to celebrate their festivals. People belonging to all faiths have been coming to Prasanthi Nilayam to celebrate their festivals here. As I have always been telling you, All are one.

Religions are many, but the goal is one.

Clothes are many but yarn is one.

Jewels are many but gold is one.

Develop Human Values To Insure Peace

Likewise, there are many beings, but the indwelling atma in them is the same. However, there are certain people who are creating differences. As the name and fame of Swami is spreading, many people have developed jealousy and they are making false propaganda. Recently, a meeting was held in London in which Air Chief Marshal (retd.) Suri repudiated all such false propaganda. There he told the critics that they should go to Sathya Sai Baba, observe and experience the truth personally and then only make any comments. He further asked them not to listen to all sorts of gossip and start talking about it. What do you gain by listening to others? Those who spread rumours have themselves not seen or experienced anything. But they started false propaganda and it spread to many countries; it reached India also. Without ascertaining the facts, some Indian newspapers also published these false articles, imitating the foreign newspapers. In fact, these critics don't have faith in what they themselves speak. Then, why should they believe in what others say? Their only intention is to defame Swami by foul means. But it is not possible for anyone to defame Swami. Not only now, but for all times to come, nobody can tarnish Swami's name. Everybody has to surrender to Swami's love one day or the other (loud applause). The Name of Sai is eternal and changeless. One can speak whatever one likes. Boneless tongue can be twisted in any way. Stones are hurled only on a fruit-laden tree. Like a fruit-bearing tree, all noble people are subjected to many ordeals and difficulties. But when one firmly adheres to truth, nothing can shake one. Let any number of people fight against truth; they can never win. Therefore, hold on to truth firmly, come what may. One who stands by truth is bound to be victorious. Therefore, never give up truth. Who is God? Truth is God. Truth is unshakable. Sathyannasti paro Dharma (There is no Dharma greater than adherence to truth). It is Dharma that leads man to peace. Without peace man cannot live. Saint Thyagaraja said, One cannot have happiness without peace. When you attain peace, you will experience love and bliss. Truth is the origin of bliss. Non-violence also emerges from truth. A man of love will not entertain even a thought of violence. Sathya (truth), Dharma (righteousness), Santi (peace), Prema (love) and Ahimsa (non-violence) are like the five life-breaths of man. These are the prime qualities of a human being. The need of the hour is to develop these human values. Only when these values are developed can there be peace in the country. Wherever you see today, you find limitless desires in people. Take any area of human endeavour, man's desires have no limit. There is no limit even in reading of books. People

Service To Society Is Service To God

keep reading books all the time. This reading of all sorts of books is a mere waste of time. What is the use of reading if it does not give you self-satisfaction? Your bookish knowledge can help you only in earning a living. Bharatiya culture emphasises the inculcation of morality, ethics and spirituality. But our modern authors are ignoring these three principles. That is why in spite of widespread academic learning, there is no real progress.

Oh, man! Do not feel proud of your education. If you do not offer your salutations to God and do not think of Him with devotion, all your education Will become useless.

(Telugu poem)

Therefore, man should develop love for God. If you have love for God, you will have everything. Without love for God, everything will come to nothing. Love for God is like the main switch. If the main switch is put off, no other switch can function and there will be no light. Once the main switch is on, you will get light by pressing any switch.

Humanness is the main quality of a human being. Mother Easwaramma was fully endowed with humanness. All her thoughts were always focused on Swami. The Summer Course was going on at Brindavan. Easwaramma had her breakfast and coffee. After that, she was chewing betel. Suddenly she shouted, Swami, Swami, Swami three times. I said, I am coming, I am coming, I am coming. I came down immediately and she breathed her last. She had an easy death without any suffering at all. The body has value so long as there is life in it. Once the life goes out of it, it is just like a log of wood. The body of Easwaramma was taken to Puttaparthi according to My instructions and the final rites were performed. Many people said that I should also go. But I did not go. I do not have any body attachment. Body attachment is a big bondage. Once you surrender your body to God, your wayward senses will also lose their power and you will be free from bondage. There may be some ups and downs in life, but once you have surrendered to God, nothing will disturb you.

Do Good To Society. Swami Will Be Happy.

make your mother, father, preceptor and guest happy, then God will give you more happiness. All your learning is useless without love for God. You are all young. You should study well and earn a good name in society. This is what I expect from you. I do not want you to merely acquire high academic qualifications. There are many highly educated people in the world. But what good have they done for the world? You should work hard and make others happy. You will have fulfilment in life only when you make the society happy. Kalam is highly educated and is devoted to the service of society. Render all possible service to society. That alone will make Swami happy.

Yesterday, Ram Setty said that he did not want to go back to America. He wants to spend the rest of his life here in the service of Swami. His son is as worthy as his father. He is also a doctor. He told his father that he did not want to come in the way of his father's wish. This stadium is built by the munificence of Ram Setty, his wife, son and daughter. He sold all his property and donated the entire money for the construction of this stadium. He is a man of great sacrifice. He has donated 40 crore rupees for the construction of this stadium. How many will have the spirit of sacrifice of such a high order? In this Age when people turn away even a beggar without giving him anything, this family has made such a great sacrifice. He has a son and a daughter. Even then he has donated such a huge amount. Both his son and daughter are not interested in worldly enjoyments. Their only objective is to obey Swami. Peace and happiness lie in spirituality and in nothing else. You may study, get married, have children and lead a happy life. There is nothing wrong in it. But never forget God. Without forgetting God, you may follow any path. This is My blessing to you. Spread the divine Name of Sai to every nook and corner of the world. That will lead to manifestation of divinity within everyone. The closer you come to Swami, the divinity within you will become more pronounced. Then your life will be sanctified. The worldly pleasures are no pleasures in the real sense of the term. Today you may enjoy pleasure, tomorrow you may experience difficulties. You may be happy when a son is born, but you will be grief-stricken when some mishap occurs to the son and he dies. One day you smile, another day you cry. There is only a little gap between happiness and sorrow. Everything in man's life is transient and temporary. Ma kuru dhana jana yauvana garvam, Harathi nimeshath kalah sarvam (do not be proud of your wealth, progeny and youth; the tide of time may destroy them in a moment).

Service To Society Is Service To God

Students!

May you live long and lead a happy life! Serve the society. Consider service to society as service to God. Service to society alone can confer peace on you.

Earn Eternal Peace With Eternal Truth

The pompous person

with unclear mind;

What chance has he

of realising the true self?

An intellect pure alone

is able to comprehend

the true principle of self ;

No more is there to be said on this.

(Telugu poem)

Everythingeverything is contained in purity of consciousness. Here is a bouquet of flowers. Outwardly, it appears like a single flower. But, there are a number of flowers in this bouquet. Similarly, the world appears to be a single entity. But, it consists of many individuals with diverse names and forms. All such individuals stay together like the flowers in a bouquet. The Panchabhuthas (five elements) are the most important characteristic of the world. The world is a conglomeration of individuals. All are one. There is nothing like I am Deva (God) and you are Jiva (individual). You and I are one only. Not realising this, you perceive unity as diversity.

Embodiments Of Love!

Love is one. The same feeling of love permeates every human being.

Nevertheless, depending upon the mental make-up, the state and destiny of different human beings it assumes different forms. A child is called a baby . When she grows up, she is called a girl . Later, when she is married and goes to her in-laws house, she is referred to as daughter-in-law. The same woman after giving birth to children is called mother. She also becomes grandmother in due course.

God Is Beyond Gunas

Is it not a fact that the lady being referred to by so many names is only one? Similarly, all human beings living in this world belong to only one category. Jesus Christ exhorted: All are one; be alike to everyone. We should love all. We should take everyone into our fold. In fact, that is My way. But, some people may not agree. That is due to their lack of maturity; the reflection of their inner feelings. God assumes different forms in consonance with the inner feelings of the devotees. For example, when someone calls Me thatha (grandfather), I appear to them so. Some people call Me father and I appear to them as father . Yet some others address Me as Swami and I will be Swami to them. By whatever name and form the human beings contemplate on God, He will appear to them in the same name and form.

In this Age of Kali even good appears to be bad. The same individual loves one and hates another. He develops enmity with one and friendship with another. This sort of friendship or enmity is not something that he has acquired from outside. Such feelings are of his own heart. When you consider someone as your enemy , he becomes so. On the other hand, when you consider someone as your friend , he becomes a friend. Supposing you come across a girl, you call her a college girl . After sometime when you marry her, you call her as my wife . Your wife of today and the college girl sometime ago are one and the same. Is it not a fact? Thus, man develops a number of relationships based on names and forms. In fact, it is the mind that is responsible for so many changes in the world. Man, per se is faultless. It is love that permeates all human beings. It is true that human beings exhibit qualities like anger, hatred, jealousy, pomp, etc., sometimes. But, God is not affected by them. God is beyond gunas (attributes), whereas human beings are with gunas. Those gunas may be positive or negative. Good and bad are only in a human being, not in God. We often come across people who are by nature angry, displaying feelings of intense love sometimes. In the Kali age we find several such people with such paradoxical behaviour. When you witness such changes, you think that God is bringing about such changes. No; God is only a witness. He is not responsible for these changes. God is like milk, which, when added to the decoction, becomes coffee. The same milk can become a sweet pudding too. All the changes that are taking place in the human beings are only due to their gunas.

A person called Paul was inimical towards Jesus Christ in the beginning. The same person became an ardent devotee later. The qualities in a human being bring about a lot of changes. For example, this African devotee has been devoted to Me since his childhood. He used to love Me intensely from the beginning. I advised him that he was still young and he should return to his country to pursue his vocation. Bowing to the wishes of Swami, he returned to his native land. But, there is no change whatsoever in his devotion.

He has been constantly praying to Me, calling

Baba! Baba!

Pure Love Has No Barriers

Some years ago, when I went on a tour to East Africa, several Africans came to Me for darshan. Each one of them prayed, Swami! Please spend some time with us. There were a few hundred children among them. All of them had their vision glued to My form. You know the then President of Uganda, Mr. Idi Amin. He was a military officer. He was young and very energetic then. He was tall and hefty. He had a number of wives. He was very fond of Swami. He used to have the darshan of Swami both in the morning and evening. I was very short before that giant. The sight of Me beside him was like the view of a deer by the side of a camel. People were surprised at his love and devotion towards Swami. He was well educated and was the President of his country, Uganda. He was known for his stern nature. Such a person shed tears when I started on My return journey. He told Me, Swami! I have never shed tears since my birth. Today, I am very sad and have a feeling of separation because Swami is leaving us. He covered his face with a handkerchief so that others may not notice his feelings. His hands were very strong. He held My hands firmly, expressing thanks for My visit. He also prostrated before Me. He held My feet so tightly that it became difficult for Me later to climb the ladder for boarding the aeroplane. At the time of My departure, he pleaded with Me Swami! I will surely come to have Your darshan shortly. Otherwise, You please visit our country again. I cannot bear the separation from You. The situation in Uganda then was such that he could not leave the country.

Earn Eternal Peace With Eternal Truth

During My stay in Uganda, he planned to host a dinner for Me in his house. He therefore came to the house of Dr. Patel to personally enquire about the arrangements to be made in this regard. He collected all information as to how to organise the dinner, what should be the menu, who are to be invited as guests, etc. He arranged for brand new utensils for cooking various dishes. He also arranged for new tumblers for the guests. Finally, when I visited his palace for the dinner, all his wives stood in rows on either side and greeted Me with veneration. He introduced them to Me, one by one. I stayed in Kampala, the capital of Uganda. The last day was Guru Purnima, an important occasion for Sai devotees. I had earlier promised to return to Bombay by that date. But, the Africans did not allow Me. They fell at My feet and prayed: Bhagawan! Please spend this holy day with us, with tears in their eyes. In answer to their prayers I stayed back to spend Guru Purnima with them. On that day, they wished to take photos with Me. I told them that they might silently pray in their hearts so that their request would be fulfilled. To their joy, each one of them found a photo with Swami standing beside them. The devotion of Africans is indescribable. Even now, I feel very happy when I think of their devotion. My next visit was to the country of Tanzania. There also, everyone who came to have My darshan felt very happy. Ladies and gents came in large numbers to welcome Me, wearing their traditional dresses. They danced in ecstasy on seeing Me. On the day of departure, just before the plane took off, all of them stood in front of the aircraft and pleaded with Me, Swami! You should not go from here. You must be here only. How can I accede to their request? I had to leave. The pilots and other officers in the airport counselled them saying, You should not obstruct Swami's aircraft like this. This is not good. They then moved away. I was observing all this from the window of the aircraft. Finally, when the plane started to take off, many of them nearly fainted in grief. That scene was fresh in My memory till I reached Bombay. During that trip, I visited three countries - Kenya, Uganda and Tanzania. They are all neighbouring countries. I was very happy and felt deeply touched at the devotion of African people. During My return journey, the aircraft was filled to the brim with the articles gifted by the African devotees. What are those gifts any way? They brought all sorts of articles like dinner sets and tea sets in gold colour. They are still with Me. We are making use of them while hosting high dignitaries like Prime Ministers and Governors.

There are several devotees in foreign countries who love Swami. Their love towards Swami is incomparable. The devotees of East Africa enjoyed a lot during My visit to their places. I had decided then itself that I would make no further visits abroad. Since then, I never visited any foreign country. Even for My visit to East Africa, there was a reason. Dr. Patel prayed to Me from the depth of his heart that I should pay a visit to Africa. He prayed Swami! Your visit is not exclusively for us. There were several wild animals in these parts. Kindly confer the good fortune of Your darshan to these animals and bless them too. When I went to that place, he arranged for some small aircrafts for our journey through the wild life habitats. He saw to it that only two people sat in each aircraft, with plenty of space to move about in it. Sitting in those small aeroplanes, we saw a number of places abounding in scenic beauty. The huge Lake Victoria is spread over a vast area. It took us one and half hours to cross that lake by those aeroplanes. There are several crocodiles in that lake of extraordinary size. Unable to find enough space to move about in the lake, they were falling on one another. Later, we had a boat ride in the lake. The crocodiles were looking at us with jaws wide open while we were moving in the lake. We threw apples towards them. Surprisingly they did not eat those apples, till we completed our boat ride. They were holding the apples in their mouth and gazing at us. There were several Hippopotamuses in that lake. Some of them were suckling their babies. It was a charming sight of wild animals in their natural habitat. The beautiful scenery was a feast to our eyes. The animals also have desires like human beings. But, their love towards us was unparalleled. By the time we reached the shore of that lake, we could see big herds of elephants moving about. The African elephants have enormous fan like ears. The wind caused by a quick swaif of their ears was enough to make people fall down. I went into their midst in a car. On seeing Me sitting in the car, they raised their trunks in veneration and paid obeisance to Me. The noble qualities in those wild animals are not to be found even in human beings. There is no feeling of hatred at all in those animals! All those animals are living together happily. Normally, an elephant fears a lion. But, the lions and elephants are living together

280 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 39

happily in those forests. We went to a small hillock, where there was a group of ten lions. The elephants were moving about in their presence without any fear. We went near them and took photographs. There may be fear and anxiety in the human beings now and then. But, not even one wild animal displayed any fear on seeing us. There were some lions relaxing there. Our jeep passed over their tails. But, they were not bothered. On the other hand, they drew their tails near their mouths and kissed them. I was really moved by their love and affection. I could not come out of that place. Such intense feeling of love is not to be found even among the human beings today. The humans hate one another. Even the mother and child hate each other. The husband and wife hate each other. But, we could not find even a trace of hatred in those wild animals. I could witness an unparalleled and intense feeling of love and equality in those wild animals.

The Agony And The Ecstasy

It was time for us to leave that wonderful place and people. The agony of separation suffered by the people, especially the devotees living in those countries at the fine of our return journey is indescribable. In fact, I also felt sad to leave those loving devotees. Our plane reached Bombay very late. Sri K.M. Munshi was waiting there for our arrival. You know, who Munshi was? He was the chairman of Bharatiya Vidya Bhavan. He was suffering from a paralytic attack of his right side and his mouth. The moment he had My darshan on alighting from the plane, he could raise his hand. With boundless joy, he shouted, Bhagawan Sri Sathya Sai Babaji Ki Jai ! The people around were surprised that Munshi could raise his hand and speak. Munshi took Me to the Bharatiya Vidya Bhavan, straight from the airport. The world conference of the Sathya Sai Organisations was to be held there. A large number of devotees and public had gathered there. Munshi addressed that gathering without any difficulty. He declared: The invisible Lord is standing right in front of us and speaking to us today. He made a small request that I should stay in his house for three days. Acceding to his request, I stayed in his house for three days. Those three days passed like three seconds to him. He was very happy.

After My return from the East African tour, I tried to explain the intense love and devotion of the African people and the wild animals residing there, to the people in these parts. If the animals could develop such intense love, why not the human beings? The animals have no prajnana (divine wisdom), vijnana (discriminatory intellect) and sujnana (higher level of consciousness). But, human beings who are endowed with all these noble qualities and read a number of texts are bereft of even an iota of love. Hence, oh! human beings! I wish that all of you should lead a life of mutual love. Love all! Serve all! - this is My exhortation to you. If only there is love, you can achieve anything. Love is everything. Love is life; life is love . Life is associated with love, not hatred. Today, wherever you see there is hatred, hatred, hatred! This is not a good sign. Having been born as human beings, it is not proper to possess animal qualities, throwing to wind the human qualities. Sometimes, the animals seem better than human beings in this regard. The animals seem to possess human qualities. Today, the animals are transforming themselves into humans and the humans degenerating into animals. This is not proper. The human beings should lead the life of human beings. They should strengthen their human qualities.

282 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 39

Be Courteous And Loving

The person who spoke a little while ago is an African. He is engaged in propagating the human values. The world is full of such people. But, persons imbued with human values are very rare. In fact, some people do not know how to talk courteously. Even if you enquire with love, Sir! Where did you come from? They will give a curt reply, I came from somewhere. Whatever they talk, will be discourteous and harsh. This is not correct. A human being should talk sweetly and softly. The words must be suffused with love. Only then will you experience peace. When your behaviour and talk is bad, how can you expect peace to reign in your heart? Peace is not in the outside world. It is very much in your own heart. There are only pieces outside, not peace. You say I want peace . Let your behaviour be good and courteous. Then, peace will flow from you. Wherefrom do you get truth? Can you obtain Truth from the text books you read? No! Truth is very much in you. Truth, righteousness, peace, love and non-violence are the innate qualities of a human being. Love is the very form of God! We can experience God's love only with love from our side. Love and peace are the most essential qualities for a human being. A millionaire may build several residences, purchase a number of cars and have several conveniences. But, whomever you come across, they say that they have no peace. Of what use is all this wealth and comforts and conveniences, if there is no peace within?

Give Up Attachnent

Nowadays, there is a real estate boom all over the country. How much land does a human being require? Only six feet! Nothing more. There was a rich landlord who went in search of some land. He wanted to purchase an additional piece of land. Having come to know of this man's efforts, a person came to him and advised, Sir! You may please go to the Himalayan region where plenty of land is available free of cost. This man went to the Himalayas and contacted the king of that region. The king told him: I promise to give you all that land which you cover by walking from sunrise to sunset. The landlord was very happy. Next morning, he set out on his expedition, enthusiastically. In fact, he began to run greedily with a view to acquire more land. He was thus running continuously from morning till evening. It was sunset. He was very tired and weak. Yet, he did not give up his greed. Just when he was at a distance of six feet before his final goal, he swooned and fell down. The king came to that spot, saw his condition and commented: Alas! What this man requires now is only six feet land! In fact, what every human being requires is only that much land!

Earn Eternal Peace With Eternal Truth

284 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 39

King Alexander conquered several countries and finally set his foot in Bharat. As he was crossing a river, he had a heart attack. The doctors who examined him confirmed that he was nearing his end and any medicines will be of no use. King Alexander then lamented, I am the king of such a vast kingdom. I acquired gold in plenty. I have a great army by my side. Is there no one who can save me from the clutches of death? Immediately, he called his ministers and told them, Oh, ministers! After my death, you take my dead body to my native country. Wrap it with a white cloth keeping my hands in a raised position and take it in a procession through every street. As per the king's wish, his dead body was taken in a procession through the streets. The people were rather surprised at this strange act and enquired, Why are you taking the dead body of the king in procession, with his hands raised? The ministers replied, Alexander the Great, who was rolling in great wealth left this world empty-handed. It is only to make this fact known to the people as per the king's last wish, his dead body is being taken in procession like this. Not only Alexander, but every human being has to ultimately depart from this world empty-handed. One may acquire a vast kingdom; one may have a great army behind him; one may have a number of friends and relatives; but, none will accompany one during one's last journey.

Several kings and great souls spread this truth in those days and exhorted people to give up attachment to the body. Unfortunately, you are not reading the stories of such great people. What you are learning now is not history, but hysteria. No one reads history. What is history in the real sense? His story is History! Man today is pursuing high education.

Earn Eternal Peace With Eternal Truth

286 Sathya Sai Speaks Volume - 39

He is learning science and technology. But, today's technology is mere trick-nology. What you read may not remain in your brain. Only what you have actually put into practice lasts long. It is enough if you put into practice at least one aspect of what you have read. That will help you in every way.

Embodiments Of Love! Dear Students!

You may pursue any type of education; but, do not forget the human values. Truth, righteousness, peace, love and non-violence are the five human values to be cultivated by a human being. You learn these five human values and put them into action. Then your life will go on smoothly. This is what I wish to communicate to you today as an important message. Truth is eternal. It is only when you follow this eternal truth that your name will remain in the annals of history forever. Eternal truth will earn eternal peace for you. If you succumb to bad qualities like anger, jealousy, envy, arrogance, etc., your entire life will become miserable with unrest and agitation.

Repose Faith in Your Conscience

by

Bhagavan Sri Sathya Sai Baba

The sun appears serene and peaceful.

The days have become shorter,

and the cool wind is blowing.

The fields are ripe with golden crops.

Marigold flowers are blossoming

like garlands of pearls on the banks of rivers.

The farmers are rejoicing and singing.

The sweet festival of Sankranti has come in the month of Pushya (a month in Indian calendar),

filling our homes with the newly harvested grain.

(Telugu poem)

God willed that the Sankranti festival shall bring all prosperity to the people and they shall not feel any inconvenience in the matter of food and other needs. The farmers, having brought home the produce after harvesting it, will be happily taking rest in their homes. Even the agricultural workers will be free, for the harvesting season will be over by then. Having worked hard day and night in the fields for some months, they will be now enjoying the comfort of a home, by God's grace.

Whatever God does, it is for the good of the people! For, they are all His amsa (parts) only! Mamaivamsho jivaloke jivabhuta Sanathana (the eternal Atma in all beings is a part of My Being), said Lord Krishna in the Bhagavadgita. Not only human beings, even animals, birds, and insects are the embodiments of God! However, all people do not realise this truth.

Saint Thyagaraja sang in one of his immortal kirtanas,

Cheemalo Brahmalo Siva Kesavaadulalo prema meera velasi unde birudhu vahinchina Rama nannu brovara

Oh Rama! In Your pure and unsullied form of love,

You indwell all beings from an ant to Brahma as also in Siva and Kesava. Please be my protector too.

Unable to realise this truth, people kill the ant that crawls on their bodies. The same people worship the ant if it appears as an embodiment of Divinity.

Thus, the feelings

make all the difference.

During this season, the sun appears to be gentle and soothing during the day time. The days are shorter, and the nights are long. During the nights, the moonlight is cool and comfortable. Having worked hard during day, people will have comfortable sleep during the night.

The human body needs rest. Hence, every human being should have adequate rest. As the saying goes, "Sleep a while after lunch." One should take a nap at least for a short period after lunch. However, one should not keep awake for long during the night. One should have sound sleep during night.

Everything is God's will.

The entire universe is created by God.

Nothing in this world will move without God's will.

Not even a blade of grass will move without divine Will.

People who do not realise this truth get carried away

by their pride of intelligence and discrimination.

But no one however great one may be knows what lies ahead for them in future.

(Telugu Poem)

Who is a "HINDU"? The letters in the word HINDU stand for: H: Humility, I:

Individuality, N: Nationality, D: Devotion, and U: Unity.

Wherever there is unity, there will be Divinity. Only Divinity can unite the world.

You should not try to break the world into pieces saying, "this is my India", "this is my Japan", "this is my Germany", etc. The Divinity called "I" in all human beings is only one! There is only one race: the human race.

Humanness is very sacred, holy, and divine. The word manava (human being) means very sacred. The festival of Sankranti reminds you of this truth and awakens you to this reality. During this holy period of Makara Samkramana, people, especially the village folk, enjoy by participating in several kinds of rural games and play.

As a matter of fact, this is a festival season for the animals too! Some people in the villages bring together the gangireddu (a decorated bull) and a cow, naming them Rama

and Sita, and perform their marriage symbolically, in the hope that their marriage will bring forth peace and welfare to the world.

The cowherd gives proper training to the bull and the cow in advance. He asks the cow

"Amma! Is Rama beautiful?" The cow shakes its head in disapproval of the suggestion.

Then, the gangireddudasu with the stick in his hand tries to counsel the cow "Amma! Rama is blackish blue in colour. Yet he is very good. He is a great king. He is mighty and prosperous." Thereupon the cow nods its head in approval. It seems to indicate, "Yes, I like Rama."

The children in the village watch the gangireddu play very enthusiastically. They invite their friends and relatives to witness this play, thus:

Oh my dear brother, here comes the gangireddudasu.

Come, let us go and see him.

He wears a silver medallion and a waist belt.

He carries a decorated staff and wears special marks on his forehead.

He brings with him richly caparisoned sacred cow and bull and performs their marriage.

Let us see the marriage ceremony and offer our gifts.

(Telugu Song)

Thus, the village folk will be tastefully decorating their cattle and playing with them.

The festival of Sankranti gives joy to the birds too. They will be perching in large numbers on the temples and minarets, chirping and singing. They

thus teach a lesson in unity and joy to the human beings of all regions and religions in the world. Sadly, several people nowadays have no faith in the religion. Religion sets a great ideal for the human beings to follow.

Several students are studying in Sri Sathya Sai Educational Institutions. They have no differences of religion at all! In fact, one who believes in such differences is not a human being. There is only one religion: the religion of love. A real human being is one, who follows such a religion. We must cultivate the goodness in all religions. There is a lot to learn from the birds, beasts, and insects. Religion means love.

Today, we do not at all find such religion of love. Devoid of love, there can be no relationship with anybody. Hence, we must follow the religion of love. No one thinks of such religion of love in the modern age.

Our ancestors did recognise the true meaning of religion and followed it in letter and spirit. They took their elders as an ideal in this regard. Even now, if you enquire some children, "who told you this?", they reply "my grandmother told me; my grandfather told me," etc.

Never disregard the advice of elders. When you follow their advice, everything will turn out to be good for you. Unfortunately, no one listens to the good words of elders these days. However, they listen to all sorts of movie songs played in a tape recorder. They imitate those songs. Whatever tune is played in the tape recorder, they try to imitate that tune. Man today is not living like a human being. He is turning out to be a mere gramophone record or a tape recorder. Never disregard the words of elders.

Man today does not listen to the sound advice of the elders and acts contrary to the nature of a human being. People do not listen to good things, and they indulge in all unnecessary and unwarranted activities.

The festival of Sankranti is meant to remind man about the sanctity of humanness. It is said, Easwara Sarva Bhutanam (God is the indweller of all beings). Hence, every human being, nay, every living being, is an amsa (part) of God!

But there seems to be a flaw in your own behaviour. Why? You throw sacred feelings to the winds and allow your mind to run after all and sundry things.

That is how your behaviour is tainted.

You are now in your prime of youth. Your body, mind, and intellect are strong and secure in this age. Hence, you have to make proper use of your capability to live up to your sacred feelings.

Sankranti is not to be considered as a mere festival like any others.

The festival of

Sankranti brings great joy to one and all. Even a poor man will arrange to make payasam

(sweet pudding) in his house and partake of it happily. The festival of Sankranti will bring joy in ever so many ways. It is not limited to song and play. It expands one's heart with joy. It is a festival of unity, that unity develops purity, resulting in Divinity in human beings. Hence, people must cultivate unity and purity in the first instance.

What is purity? Our vision must be sacred; our words must be soft and sweet, and our ears must listen to only good things. Our nose should smell only divine fragrance. Thus, all the senses in our body must be put to proper use.

Man is born out of karma.

Karma is the most important dharma (duty) of a human being:

Man is born in action, is sustained by action,

and ultimately merges in action.

Action is the cause for pleasure and pain.

Truly speaking, action is God for man.

(Telugu poem)

Hence, we should continue to perform karma. What is karma? It is not merely reading and participating in the games of football, volleyball, etc. Even inhaling and exhaling are karma! There can be no karma without these two.

When you inhale your breath, the sound of "so emerges. Similarly, when you exhale your breath, the sound of hum emerges. Thus, every act of inhaling and exhaling results in the sound of sohum, meaning "I am that Divinity." The life-breath, which is a great energy, is the gift of God to a human being. It is vital to the sustenance of a human being. It is not the real nature of a human being to eat, drink, and be merry.

First and foremost, wherever you go, people will observe your qualities. You must conduct yourself in such a way that people will be able to say, "Look! His behaviour is good. We feel very happy to talk to him. We feel very happy by merely looking at him."

It is only your good qualities that bring happiness and joy to you.

Man should make proper use of his panchapranas (five vital airs), panchabhuthas (five elements), and panchendriyas (five senses). The food we partake must be sathwic (pure, serene). It is not good to take too many chilies or too much chilly powder. One should not hanker after "taste". It will "waste" our life. One should eat for the sake of satisfying one's hunger, without hankering for special taste or flavour.

There is no charity greater than feeding the hungry,

There are no greater gods than parents,

There is no greater gain than the company of the good.

(Telugu poem)

There is nothing greater than truth. Truth is only one, not two. By associating yourself with good people, you will also become good.

Who are real friends? It is only the good people who are real friends to you. Tell me your company, and I shall tell you what you are. Hence, you must always join good company, talk to good people, and live with good people. Only then will you become a good person. Otherwise, you will spoil yourself.

Good friends shall always strive to work for the good of each other and bring about a transformation in each other. If for any reason your friend takes to bad ways on any occasion, of what use is your friendship if you do not try to bring him back into good path? On the other hand, if you are taking to bad ways, your friend should help you to come back to normal ways. Thus, trying to help each other to tread the good path is the hallmark of true friendship.

 However, friends in present time wish each other "hello" and separate. Later, they say "goodbye". Such attitude is not good. Instead of saying, "goodbye," become a good boy.
 Thus, you must tread the path of truth in daily life. Only then will you become an educated and courageous person in the real sense, with a sense of discrimination.
 If you are a good person with a sense of sacrifice, several people will follow you. If your behaviour is not good, none will even look at your face. It is only people without character who will be moving in your company. It will do no good for your spiritual advancement.
 You say, "so and so is my good friend." But for how long? Only for some time. Later on, if that person does not pay attention to your words or refuses to oblige your demands, you hate him. You will become enemies. Indeed, you must be very careful in developing friendship with others.
 In every aspect of our life, our behaviour itself is a witness to our interpersonal relationships. You may reside in any place or go to any country, but keep up your good character. Respect all! Love all! Hate none. Earn a good name for yourself.
 It is not the academic degrees that bring greatness. How many Ph.D.s are not there in this world today? How many people who did I.A.S. are not there in the country now? Has the world become better in any way on account of these people? In fact, it is only because of the so-called educated people that the country is sliding down from its eminence.
 Let us not be concerned with such so-called "great" people. It is enough if people wish each other with a namaskar and enquire their welfare. That itself is greatness. One has to imbibe humility and obedience, along with education. Only such a student is the real student. Do not have even a trace of ego, pride, pomp, and such other bad qualities.
 The student who did the role of Prahlada in yesterday's play did well. His voice was sweet. Also, his acting was exemplary.

Prahlada's father, Hiranyakasipu, had to undergo punishment on account of his hatred toward God. God donned the Narasimha (Lion) Avatar and killed him.
 When we lead a good and virtuous life, our end will also be good. We will also earn a good name for ourselves. Right from our birth until death, we must lead an exemplary
 life.
 However, people do not listen to good words. They listen to only wrong advice and spoil themselves. It is our common experience that while we travel in a train or a bus, we come across a beggar singing the glory of Ramanama beautifully. Our fellow travelers will be happily listening to the song, fully immersed in it. Finally, when the beggar
 completes his song and begins to move away, people compliment him saying, "You sang well and made us very happy." They express their gratitude to him by offering some charity.
 Thus, life can be really meaningful when you make others happy.
 You are all students gathered in this hall. You must share good thoughts and words amongst you on such occasions as these. Good thoughts, good words, and good deeds are qualities of Divinity. Cultivate good qualities.
 When you stand in front of the sun at sunrise, your shadow will be fifty feet long while you are actually five feet tall. As the sun begins to rise in the sky, your shadow becomes shorter. When the sun positions itself exactly above your head at noon, your shadow falls under your feet. In the same way, when you begin your journey toward God and gradually progress in the Godward path, the shadow of maya (illusion) falls behind.
 On the other hand, if you go against God and travel in the opposite direction, the shadow of maya will be in front of you.
 Embodiments of Love!
 All our students are gold. What sort of gold? Pure 24 carat gold.
 Wherever they go and in whichever activity they participate in sports, in education, in behaviour, in their talk, and in every activity they are earning good name for themselves.
 It is only due to this reason that I have seen people praising, "The students of Sri Sathya Sai Educational Institution are exemplary in character," everywhere. If you just look at them, you will find Sai Baba reflecting in their faces.

The Ati Rudra Yajna will commence on 19 January in Chennai. But the people in Chennai are eagerly awaiting the arrival of Swami's students, not the Ati Rudra Yajna. They are looking forward with a feeling, "We understand Sai Baba will be here to participate in the Yajna along with His students. His students alone are ideals for us."

The sanctity of education is deteriorating due to the misuse of scientific knowledge, today. Scientists are endeavouring to change the laws of nature. If a tree were to bear fruit, it is being given an injection. If a cow were to yield milk in more quantity, it is fed tripe from other slaughtered animals. They think that by feeding animal parts to the cow it will grow strong and yield more quantity of milk. Even the water is polluted nowadays. It is that polluted water that is responsible for all the diseases suffered by man today.

In whichever fruit you see, there are insects and bacteria. Figs used to be very good for consumption, earlier. But, now there are bacteria and pollutants even in figs. Why?

Because of the polluted water that is fed to the plant. People have to clean and boil the water, and only then can they drink it.

We have supplied drinking water from the Krishna river to the people of Chennai by spending rupees 300 crores. I have seen small children bathing in cesspools and drinking the same dirty water. I felt very sorry for them. I have decided then itself, "I will not visit Chennai till we supply pure drinking water to the people of Chennai." That was ten years ago. Now I have supplied drinking water to them. I am now visiting Chennai in the backdrop of the children drinking pure water and happily spending their time in play.

We can be healthy and happy only when we drink pure water and eat healthy food. That is how you have to protect your health. However, I find that some students are not partaking of good food. They are tempted by all varieties of dishes. Please do not look for taste. Decide for yourself whether the food you are eating is good for your health or not. Only then will you be healthy and happy.

Dear students!

Study well. Do not waste time. Whenever you find time, read only good books. Tread the good and Godward path and become good people. It is only the students of Sathya Sai Educational Institutions that can transform all the people in the world into good citizens. Be good and make others good. Avoid evil qualities like kama (desire) and krodha (anger).

Today, our children are going to present a play called "Sri Krishna Rayabaram". You all know that in the Mahabharata the evil Kauravas troubled the Pandavas in many ways.

However, the Pandavas were of very good nature. Their mind was pure. They tried their best to do good to the Kauravas. I will quote one small example to illustrate how pure their minds are.

The elderly Kunti, mother of the Pandavas, broke down and breathed her last on hearing the sad news of Lord Krishna leaving His mortal coil. Dharmaraja, her eldest son, who was near her during her last moments, kept her head on his lap. The four brothers Bhima, Arjuna, Nakula, and Sahadeva surrounded him. Dharmaraja then explained to his brothers

"Dear ones! Lord Krishna, who protected us all the while, has left for His heavenly abode. Therefore, we should not remain in this world any more."

He then called Bhima near him and told him to make arrangements for the funeral of their mother. He also called Arjuna and told him to make arrangements for the coronation ceremony of Parikshit as king. Finally, he called the two younger brothers, Nakula and Sahadeva, to his side and ordered them, "We have to begin our great march toward the Himalayas. Go and make all arrangements for our journey." Thus, on one side he was arranging for the funeral of their mother and on the other, the coronation of the grandson of his younger brother as king to ensure the continuity of the dynasty. Can anyone undertake such task in such a grievous situation? Thus, all responsibilities were discharged at the same time, then and there.

The Pandavas embarked on their great march: Draupadi, Bhima, Arjuna, Nakula, and Sahadeva dropped down in the middle of the journey. Dharmaraja continued his journey and first reached naraka (hell). He saw many people undergoing several kinds of punishment for their sins, there. The moment Dharmaraja stepped into hell, they were relieved of their suffering and felt very happy. Now, the question arises as to why at all did Dharmaraja have to go to hell in the first place?

He never spoke a lie during his entire life. However, during the Mahabharata war he spoke the words, "Aswatthama hathah (Aswatthama died)," loudly and then "kunjarah" (the elephant) softly, so that the mighty warrior Dronacharya would die on account of the shock of the news. The words, "Aswatthama hatha kunjarah," meant that the elephant by name Aswatthama died. Unfortunately, the name of the son of Dronacharya's was also Aswatthama. In the din and commotion of the war, Dronacharya could not hear the word

"kunjarah" properly and mistook the words of Dharmaraja as "Aswatthama died." Unable to bear the grief and shocked over the "death of his son Aswatthama," he threw away his bow and arrows in the battlefield.

Thus, Dharmaraja was indirectly responsible for the fall of Dronacharya by uttering a falsehood on one occasion. For expiating this sin, he had to spend sometime in hell.

Thereafter, he was taken to heaven.

While Dharmaraja was leaving for heaven, the people undergoing punishment in hell fell on his feet and prayed, "Sir! Please do not leave us, you stay here itself and give us happiness."

Dharmaraja replied, "My dear ones! I cannot but obey the command of God," and left for heaven.

Wherever we are, if we do good, we will experience good only. Good work begets good results only.

Dear students!

After passing your examinations in this Institution, you can pursue higher studies elsewhere if you wish. But along with academic excellence, let your behaviour also set an example to others. Do not indulge in falsehood, injustice, and evil ways. Follow the path of truth and become immortal.

The Gitaacharya declared, "Mamaivamso" Do not forget this truth. You pursue any type of education anywhere, with this awareness.

(Bhagawan then enquired, "Am I giving you any trouble?" The students replied in one voice, "No! Swami!")

Making you all happy, working for your progress, striving to remove all pain and suffering from you, making your parents also happy this is My job.

Your happiness is My food. I need no other food. That one type of food is sufficient for Me.

Hence, may you all lead a happy and blissful life always! You may encounter any number of difficulties;

keep them aside and march forward.

Today, some people are indulging in false propaganda saying, "Sai Baba's reputation is growing day by day. Sai Baba is converting all foreigners as Hindus." They are highly jealous of Me. Due to this jealousy, they write all sorts of trash in the newspapers.

Ignore such writings. Have firm faith in your own conscience.

Whatever they may say, put it aside considering it as nonsense! I have nothing to do with it!

Repose faith in your conscience.

Whatever I do, it is for the good of all! If someone abuses you, take it that he is abusing only your body, not you. If they hurl abuses against you openly, let them merge into thin air. On the other hand, if they scold you silently, they do not reach you. Do not bother about them. Keep your faith in God firmly. That should be your attitude.

God is immanent in every living being. The name and form may be different, but God is only one. He is present in one and all. You are all embodiments of Divinity! Develop that feeling in you. Do not cultivate differences of high and low. All are one. Repose faith in the principle of the fatherhood of God and brotherhood of man and lead your lives happily.

Dear students!

I wish that all of you should come out in first class in your examinations with good

marks.

(Bhagawan concluded His discourse with the bhajan, "Hari bhajana bina sukha santhi nahi".)

Embodiments of Love!

Man is born in action, is sustained by action, and ultimately merges in action.

Action is the cause for pleasure and pain.

Truly speaking, action is God for man.

(Telugu Poem)
 The Youth should tread the Sacred Path
 There is no need for man to search for God anywhere. God is present in each one of you.
 Lord Krishna declared in the Bhagavad Gita: Mamaivamsho Jivaloke Jivabhuta Sanathana
 (the eternal Atma in all beings is a part of My Being). "All are an aspect of My Divinity," He declared. Where then would you search for God when He is in you and with you? Whatever work you do, consider it as the work of God. God has blessed man with body, mind, intellect, and mind-stuff (chitta). The youth are endowed with a healthy body, a strong mind, and a sharp intellect capable of deep thinking, but they are misusing them. Instead of thinking of God and making proper use of their limbs, they are misusing their senses. This is a big mistake. At this age, you should put the power of the body, mind, and intellect to right use. What is meant by right use? It means to tread the sacred path. Just because we are gifted with eyes, there is no need to see everything. Try to see all that is good. Do not hear with your ears the criticism of others or all that is unnecessary. Hearing the criticism of others and seeing all that is evil is a great sin. We acquire evil only when we see evil. We do not try to listen to good words with our ears; instead, we listen to evil talk. Surdas was blind. But he constantly chanted the name of Krishna. Hence, Krishna gave him darshan and fulfillment in life. Why has God given you tongue? Is it to enjoy the taste of anything and everything or to talk ill of others? No, no. It is meant to sing the glories of God. Sravanam (listening), kirtanam (singing), Vishnusmaranam (contemplating on Vishnu), padasevanam (serving His Lotus Feet), vandanam (salutation), archanam (worship), dasyam (servitude), sneham (friendship), Atmanivedanam (self-surrender) can attain God-realisation by putting these modes of worship into practice. Consider all as the Children of God. Chant the name of God. Let others also hear it and redeem their life. We do kirtan (devotional singing). Why do we do it? Is it to enjoy the melody of raga (musical mode)? No, no. We do it to get rid of our roga (disease). "Rama! Save me!" This can be recited like a poem. But it does not give us as much happiness as it gives when we sing it in the form of a song. If we chant the name of Rama wholeheartedly, it is enough. The name Krishna is also very powerful and supreme. Many people describe and praise Krishna in many ways. But what we are supposed to do now is not merely to chant the name of Rama, Krishna, or Sai but to help anybody who is in trouble, saying, "Oh dear one! What do you want? Are you hungry? Take this food." You should offer food and help to him to the extent possible. Many small children roam about in streets when both parents go to work. They are exposed to many accidents and dangers. We should help such children and protect them from dangers and mishaps. Some people get injured in accidents; they should be taken to hospitals and provided treatment and other necessary help. Be courteous to the poor and help them. Provide help and means of treatment to those who suffer from some ailment. Extend a helping hand to those who are weak and unable to walk. When we teach others the value of seva (selfless service) after putting it into practice in our own life, it will create awareness in them. Then people will think that these children are teaching us so many good things, so we should also extend help to them. We should talk to children nicely. When we call them, we should do so lovingly, saying, "Dear child! Please come." We should avoid calling like, "Hey, come here," with anger. Talk lovingly and sweetly without hurting them. Do not cast angry looks on them. We should express our love toward them while talking to them. Love is a supreme power. Therefore, call everybody with love, saying, "Come, brother, come." Ask him about their difficulties, "Do you have financial or health problem?" After understanding their problems thoroughly, provide necessary help to them. Some lead a lonely life because they are without father, mother, relatives, or friends. We should offer brotherly affection to them. We should encourage them by saying, "I am like your brother," and talk to them lovingly, saying, "Oh dear one! You have no elder or younger sister? I am your elder sister; I am your younger sister." Speaking to them in this intimate way, we should give them courage and succour.

You are all the children of one mother, verily. That mother is God.
Follow the maxim:
Brotherhood of Man and Fatherhood of God. Since all are the children of God, you should consider all your brothers and sisters; you need not, however, share your property with them. Whomsoever you come across, talk to him nicely and love him wholeheartedly.
God is the embodiment of love. He protects the entire mankind by His love. If only there is love in us, it is enough. Then we will all become united. We should not create distance between one another by our talk or conduct. Draw everybody close to you with love. Then you will all attain the proximity of God. When you look at other with love, God will also look at you with love.
In whatever situation you may be, never show anger, jealousy, hypocrisy, or pomp. Do not treat others with anger or hatred. By experiencing your love, love in others will also increase. When you treat others with love, they will also show love toward you. On the other hand, if you show anger toward them, they will also behave angrily with you.
When any beggar stands in front of your house and begs for food, saying: Bhavati, Bhiksham Dehi (Mother, please give me alms), you should lovingly ask them to stay for a while, bring food from inside the house, and offer it to them, thereby making them happy.
During the war for the liberation of Rangoon, a mother and her son somehow escaped from the area of war and managed to reach Kolkata. They had no shelter or food. The mother would go begging for alms from house to house, give most of it to her son, and partake of whatever little was left. When she did not get enough, she would give the entire quantity of food to her son and would herself go without food. Consequently, she became weak day by day.
One day the son, unable to see her suffering, told her, "Mother, from today, you rest and I will fetch food for both of us." From that day, he would go begging from house to house, give most of it to his mother and partake of whatever little was left. Sometimes, he would lie to his mother that he had already taken his food. Consequently, he too became very weak. The son had no strength to look after his mother, nor did the mother have any strength to protect her son.

One day, he stood in front of the house of an officer and begged for alms. The officer was relaxing in an easy chair in the verandah, reading a newspaper. He took pity on the boy, went inside, and brought some food on a plantain leaf. He told him to sit and eat it there itself. But the boy said that he would take it home for his mother. The officer said, "You say you are hungry, then why don't you sit here and eat? You can take it for your mother afterward."
Then the boy replied, "Sir, all these days my mother was bringing food for me taking great pains. Consequently, her health deteriorated. Hence, I have to feed her first." As he was uttering these words, he felt giddy. He fell down and breathed his last with the words, "first to my mother, first to my mother ..." on his lips.
The officer felt very sad. He was astonished at the love the boy had for his mother. He went in search of the mother and found her lying under a tree. He was in a dilemma as to how to break the tragic news of her son's demise. With the help of a servant, he brought the dead body of her son and placed it next to her. She got up at once and called, "My dear one! My dear one." But there was no response.
Then the officer said, "Oh mother! Your son breathed his last while bringing food for you."
She was immersed in grief and lamented, saying, "Alas! Where is the necessity for food when I have lost my son?"
Worldly Relations bereft of Love are useless
As far as the mother has strength, she nourishes her children. The children should also nourish their mother in the same way. God has given us human birth to nourish and nurture each other. What are relations like brothers and sisters for? Not merely for the sake of division of property and wealth. These relations are for developing love and sharing it with each other. Real relations are those who share love with each other.
Worldly relations bereft of love are useless. Those who are strong and powerful should protect the weak and helpless.
When you see someone in trouble, show kindness toward them and try to wipe their tears.
This is real compassion. This compassion is righteousness; it is love. When we expand our love, we can give happiness to the whole world. Therefore, develop love. If you come across a poor person, a sick person, or one who is in trouble, give them whatever help you can. When you extend help to such people, God will shower His love on you. In every human being, God is present in the form of love. We should not waste or misuse this love. Today, we express our love arbitrarily for anything and everything. By loving undesirable things, we tread the wrong path and come to a sorry state.

Some people show great love for outsiders but do not show the same love toward their mother and father in their house. First and foremost, we should love our parents; then, other people. But we should not limit our love to our friends and relatives alone; we should love all. Only then will God shower His love on us.
When seeing somebody in trouble or an injured person on the road,
do not show indifference toward them. Howsoever urgent work we may be having, try to remove their suffering. Then God will manifest before us and fill us with energy.
There is nobody in this world who can give us more love than God.

We do bhajans and perform service activities only to attain the love of God. God's love fills us with great energy. It is God only who gives us this energy.

Therefore, love
God, and love all people who are verily the children of God.
Some children become orphans. You should alleviate their suffering.
Then your birth as a human being will become worthwhile. You see a person in trouble and go away without showing any kindness to him. There is no sin greater than this. The next day, when you may be in trouble, your friends will also ignore and deride you.

Therefore, you should love others and receive their love. Charity and kindness are very important part of dharma (righteousness).

There is no charity greater than feeding the hungry,
There are no greater gods than parents,
There is no greater dharma than compassion,
There is no greater gain than the company of the good,
There is no enemy greater than anger.

(Telugu Poem)

In no situation should we allow anger to overpower us. We should obey our parents. We should love even those who hate us. One should sacrifice even one's life for the sake of love. One's life becomes worthwhile only when one has love.

Develop Love and Experience Unity with God

Members of Seva Dal!

First and foremost, imbibe love in your heart. Whomsoever you come across, talk to him with love. Draw all those who are in trouble close to you. Then God will shower His love on you. How can you receive the love of God if you do not love your fellowmen? If you want to become deserving of God's love, then, first and foremost, become deserving of the love of your fellowmen. God will help you if you help others. Help Ever, Hurt Never.

Never put anyone to trouble. Love everyone. Lead your life with goodness of heart. Your heart should melt with love and love should flow in it.

Therefore, embodiments of love!

You all embody love. Develop love in you more and more. This is an aspect of Divinity.

It is in reference to this that Lord Krishna declares that all beings are only an aspect of His Divinity. Dear ones! You are not different from Me; I am in you and you are in

Me. As I love you, you should also love one and all. Then your love and My love will unite. If you add love to love, it will increase immensely. You can achieve greatness

only when you develop love in you. This is the service you have to render. Only when you develop love will you become deserving of God's love and grace.

Mudita Manasa Kaho Rama

Be United in Divine Love

by

Bhagavan Sri Sathya Sai Baba

Embodiments of Love, Young Men and Women!

It is very much necessary to recognise the human values, today. Man today is unable to lead the life of a human being, since he lost the human values. The qualities of a human being are of two types, internal and external. Kama (desire), krodha (anger), lobha

(greed), moha (attachment), mada (pride), and matsarya (jealousy)
are external. Sathya

(truth), dharma (righteousness), santhi (peace), prema (love), and ahimsa (nonviolence)

are internal.

Develop Inner Vision
 Today, we are giving a go-bye to the inner, eternal, and truthful qualities and hanging on to the worldly and transient matters. This is not correct. We must develop the inner vision of atma bhava (thought of divine Self). If only there is Truth, it is enough; righteousness will follow. Where truth and righteousness go together like the positive and negative, there will be peace; where there is peace there will be love. There will be no scope at all for violence when a human being is surcharged with the current of love. Violence is rampant everywhere, today. People suffer from sorrow and difficulties. Hence, you must strive to cultivate the innate human values. Truth is eternal. It cannot be destroyed. It is said, "Sathyam bruyath, priyam bruyath, na bruyath sathyamapriyam (speak truth; speak pleasantly; avoid speaking truth that is unpalatable)." Truth is not born out of an individual, nor does it go away with one individual. Truth is universal: it applies equally to all human beings. You must cultivate such universal truth. What you think, you must speak; what you speak, you must put into action. That is real humanness. Establish in Truth ... Anger, desire, greed, attachment, pride, and jealousy are unbecoming of a human being. Today, man is limiting his love to his own wife and children. He is not developing broad-mindedness. As the saying goes "Ekam sath viprah bahuda vadanthi (Truth is only one; the wise men say it in different ways)." "Sarvam khalvidam Brahma" is the declaration, which means everything in the universe is Brahman only. Truth is the very embodiment of Brahman. And that Brahman is omnipresent. Hence, first and foremost, establish Truth in your heart. Thereafter, the other four human values of righteousness, peace, love, and nonviolence will reign in the world. Then, there will be no violence at all in the world and all human beings irrespective of religion and nationality will live in peace and harmony. Human being have enormous strength in them That has to be channelised properly. Anger, desire, greed, delusion, pride, and jealousy have to be controlled. You sing various bhajans (devotional songs). It is only when you sing the bhajans in proper sruthi, it will be melodious. Similarly, your desire must have a limit. If you wish to marry, you can do so! Later on you wish to have children; you can have that also. But you must bring them up in proper way, so that they become useful citizens in their later life. God has established certain rules and regulations for the proper conduct of the life of a human being. One should not behave like an animal or a bird or a beast. We must control our behaviour. This is the most important value to be cherished by a human being. Develop human values. The human values are not visible to the naked eye. What is the form of Truth? None has seen the form. Rather, it is beyond form. It emerges out of our bosom. What is dharma (righteousness)? Dharma is to follow the teachings of our own heart. Where is santhi (peace)? Is it outside? No. it is only asanthi (unrest) outside. Man today craves for peace and peace alone, in spite of possessing all sorts of wealth. You ask any millionaire. His reply is "I have money, houses, and all kinds of wealth; but, I have no peace." Peace therefore is not to be obtained from the world outside. It has to flow from within. Where there is peace, there will be love. The light of love shines on one and all. It is the love that illuminates the entire universe. Hence, if you strengthen love, there will be no scope for hatred at all! It is only when you develop a feeling of separation that there will be hatred between one another. On the other hand, if you develop a feeling of Oneness, how can there be a feeling of hatred between you and the other man? Love ... the greatest gift. Dear Golden Ones! (bangaru) No one should develop bad qualities like jealousy, hatred, desire, and anger. Develop Love. Love is God and God is Love. "Prema muditha manase kaho Rama Rama Ram ..." is the bhajan. Love is the greatest gift God has given to a human being. The value of any material object in this world can be assessed, but not the value of love. Hence, develop love! Not only that, share that love with others. Thus, when you exchange love and spend your lives happily, evil qualities like hatred, jealousy, and ego cannot come anywhere near.

You know a chemical stick called "Lakshmana Rekha". When a line is drawn with this stick in the house, no insect of any kind can enter the area. Similarly, where there is love, there the evil qualities cannot enter. Hence, only one quality, the quality of love is sufficient to drive away all evil qualities. Love can be shared with any number of people; it will not deplete in quantity. In fact, the more you share it with others the more it will grow. God is our father, we are all His children. All these children have a right to inherit His property. All have to share that "property", the property of Love. You may forget anything in this world; but you should not forget God. Everything in this world is transient. But love is not that which comes and goes. On the other hand, it grows. Develop such Divine Love!

Constantly do namasmarana (repetition of God's name), with absolute faith in God. We are uttering so many words every day. Can't we utter sacred words like Rama and Krishna?

Surely, we can. Once you chant these divine names, all your sorrows and difficulties will vanish.

Develop Love for God

Man has several types of worries:

To be born is a worry, to be on the earth is a worry;

World is a cause of worry and death too;

Entire childhood is a worry, and so is the old age;

Life is a worry, failure is a worry;

All actions and difficulties cause worry;

Even happiness too is a mysterious worry.

Devotion to Swami alone will put an end to all your worries.

Oh people! Develop such devotion and love.

(Telugu Poem)

Develop Love for God, so that you may get rid of those worries. That is the only effective medicine for all your worries. By chanting the divine Name of God, all your worries can be cured.

Where is God? He is everywhere (omnipresent). The panchabhuthas (the five elements of earth, water, air, space, and fire) are the embodiments of Divinity. The body is like a water bubble. The mind is like a mad monkey. Hence, you should not follow either the body or the mind. You should follow the advice of the intellect. You should develop a pure and steady consciousness (chittha). In fact, all our sadhanas (spiritual practices) are meant to develop only chittha suddhi

(purity of consciousness)! The evil qualities of desire, anger, greed, delusion, pride, and jealousy are only acquired qualities and not our innate qualities. Our innate qualities are sathya (truth), dharma (tighteousness), santhi (peace), prema (love), and ahimsa (nonviolence). We have to manifest them. Cherish the blissful moments in Prasanthi Nilayam

Today, wherever you look, only violence is present. People indulge in violence for the sake of money. Money comes and goes, but morality comes and grows. In the past, several kings and emperors have accumulated enormous wealth. But could any one of them take even a paisa with them? No! Alexander the Great during his last moments called his ministers and requested them to wrap his body after his death with a white cloth, keeping his empty hands projected upward be taken in a procession through every street of his capital city. His idea was to convey a message to the people that man has to leave this world with empty hands, in spite of acquiring great wealth or conquering vast kingdoms.

Whatever we acquire in this material world is only for our satisfaction. True and eternal bliss can be acquired only through Love. It is not enough if you spend your time with love when you are in Prasanthi Nilayam. Those blissful moments should be cherished forever. Wherever you are, continue to live with Love. Irrespective of the country where you are living USA, UK, Japan, or Germany Love has no difference. Your body may be in a particular place, but Love is universal. Love is all-pervading. Develop such Love.

Love even those who hate you.

We are all One

Whenever you encounter an enemy, offer your pranams to him and enquire, "Hello brother! How are you?" I am sure he will respond saying, "Brother! How are you?" All are brothers and sisters, verily. God is the only Father to one and all.

The Bhagavad Gita declares, "Mamivamso jeevaloke jeevabhuthah sanathanah (you are all part of My Being)." You are not different from Me; We are all One! You must develop faith in such Oneness. Where is God? He is present as the indweller in every human being. Develop the feeling, "Whatever I do is an offering to God, the Indweller of my heart."

Develop the faith that whatever happens, whether happiness or sorrow, is for your good only. You are aware that a person suffering from malarial fever will be administered the bitter mixture of quinine. It is only when that bitter mixture is taken in that the fever will subside. Similarly, realise the Truth that the sorrows and difficulties you undergo are for your own good.

God is omnipresent; you need not go far to realise Divinity. If you search your own heart and share your love with others, you can easily understand Divinity. All are bound by the bond of Love. All will be united only with Love. Hence, wherever you go, be united. Especially, the youth can achieve a lot if they are united. Prayer, chanting the divine name, and Love for God are the three sadhanas we have to undertake. When you conduct your life based on these three sadhanas, you can achieve anything.

God is beyond name and form

God is not separate from you. You are not separate from God. You and God are only one.

You must always think, "God is residing as the Indweller in my heart. I am verily God."

There may be differences in names and forms; but, God is One and One alone. The different names like Rama and Krishna are those visualized by poets and artists like

Ravi Varma. In fact, God has no particular form. They pray "Allahu Akbar." Allah has no form. There is no one higher than Allah. He is Supreme.

God has no name and form. But He will assume the form you constantly contemplate upon.

"Yad Bhavam Thad Bhavathi." We are visualizing Him in a particular form as per our own thoughts and feelings. Develop the feeling "God is in me, is with me, and is guiding me," and march on. May you all be happy!

16 February 2007, Mahasivarathri

Date: 16 Feb 2007 Occasion: Maha Sivarathri Place: Prasanthi Nilayam

Tread the path of Truth by constantly contemplating on God by

Bhagavan Sri Sathya Sai Baba

Creation emerges from truth and merges into truth,

Is there a place in the cosmos where truth does not exist?

Visualise this pure and unsullied truth.

(Telugu Poem)

Truth is all-pervading. Truth is omnipresent. We are witnessing Truth everywhere. In fact, all our darshan, sparshan, and sambhashan (sight, touch, speech) are associated with Truth only! Where is shuddha sattwam (pure consciousness)? It is everywhere.

Truth has no form. Whatever we see is Truth! (Swami created an object.) This is Truth.

From where did it come? It has come from Truth and it will merge in Truth. It is said, Sarvam khalvidam Brahma (verily all this is Brahman). Truth is the embodiment of Brahman. Truth is indivisible. It is not two; it is one and only one. Yet, people have to make a lot of effort to realise this Truth.

Truth is not merely a word. It assumes several forms. Similarly, Brahman assumes infinite number of forms. Yet, Brahman is one only. That is why it is said, Brahma sathyam jagan-mithya (Brahman alone is real; the world is a mistaken perception).

Everything else is the reflection of Brahman, nothing else. Truth is one, but the wise say it in different ways.

Everything in this universe is born out of Truth. Dharma (righteousness) emerged out of sathya (Truth). It is said, Sathyannasti paro dharma (There is no dharma greater than adherence to Truth). When Truth and Righteousness go together, Peace is the result. From Peace comes Love. This Love envelopes one and all.

There is no place in this world, where Love is not present. Similarly, there is no place in this world where Truth is not present. Thus, from Truth and Righteousness emerges

Peace and from Peace, Love; and finally from Love emerges Bliss.

Where there is love, there is no scope for hatred. It is exactly at such a place that nonviolence makes a beginning. Hence, if you wish to promote nonviolence, you must cultivate love. If only there is love, all will become one.

The Bhagavadgita says, Mamaivamsho jivaloke jivabhuta Sanathana (the eternal Atma in all beings is a part of My Being). The impact of this declaration is "All are My amsa (part). You are not different from Me. You are My own reflections!

You are Me and I am

you."

Names and forms may be different, but, the Atma present in everyone is the same. Each body assumes a different name. These names are given for the purpose of identification.

They do not, however, reflect your true self. It is the same Atma that is in all life.

Hence, love that Atma. That amounts to loving yourself.

Today, love has assumed different names and forms in the world. The love between a husband and wife is called anuraga. Similarly, the love a mother has toward her children is referred to as vatsalya. These are all mental feelings only!

However, the love that permeates all individuals is only one. With such a universal love, all can be united.

There will be no scope at all for differences. There will be no duality.

Where there is no duality, all are one! A man with dual mind is half blind. We are not blind. Are we?

We have two eyes; together, they see one object only. Hence, we are all one.

When the feeling of fatherhood of God and brotherhood of man is cultivated, the feeling of difference, fighting with one another, unrest, agitation, etc., will be wiped out from the world. All are children of one father: God! We have to foster such a noble feeling today. Only then will humanity become one.

How do you refer to yourself? You say, "I am a human being." Who is a human being? A person full of kama (desire) and krodha (anger)? No, no. The real meaning of the word manava (human being) is one who conducts their life with no feeling of difference. In fact, we should not entertain any feeling of differences. We are all embodiments of Divine Self! We are the children of one father, verily! Names and forms appear to be different. Basing on these names and forms, we should not develop a feeling of differences. Wherever we go, we must all be united. Is it not a fact that the hand is only one, though the five fingers are different from one another?

Jewels are many but gold is one.

Cows are many but milk is one.

Beings are many but breath is one.

Castes are many but humanity is one.

(Telugu Poem)

We have taken birth as human beings. We are all human beings.

Though we are all human beings, we may have differing capabilities, but the Atma in all the human beings is one

only.

Look! There are several electric bulbs glowing here. Though the bulbs appear to be different, the current flowing in them is only one. Human bodies are like those bulbs.

Each bulb may be of different wattage. I will always be happy to drive home this point of oneness.

I have received lakhs of letters recently urging Me to restrain Myself from drawing out lingam from My body. They prayed, "Swami! You are making the

Atma Linga emerge out of Your body. The doctors are also advising against it. You are, of course, required to produce the Linga to make the human beings realise the truth and experience its divine effulgence.

"The Hiranyagarbha Linga will be in liquid form in the body. For it to solidify, a lot of energy is required. To expel the Linga calls for a lot of strength of the body. Each Linga that emerges out of your body has much weight. It is not good for your physical body to spend so much energy to draw out those Lingas. Let those who believe your Divinity do so; have no concern for others who do not. Please do not strain Your physical body under any circumstances. Your body is very important for us. We have, in fact, sought refuge in You. If you thus weaken Your body, we are very anxious. Hence, kindly restrain Yourself and conserve Your physical energy.

"God, by His Divine Will can achieve anything. He can change the earth into sky and vice-versa. It is very easy for Him. But of what use it is? What will happen to the sadhakas (spiritual aspirants) thereafter? Hence, please do not make use Your precious divine energy to make the people happy or to satisfy them."

True. This body is already 81 years old. This will last for a few more years. I have to maintain this body to provide joy to all of you in several ways. Very soon, I will provide you infinite bliss. For those who will be happy to see My physical body in good condition, the body is important and necessary. Hence, it is also My duty to take good care of My physical body.

In Bharat (India), devotion is very important. You call this country as "Hindu" country.

The five letters in this word "Hindu" stand for several pentads of entities such as panchabhutas (five elements), pancha pranas (five life-breaths), and pancha kosas (five life sheaths). Then what is the inner meaning of this word "Hindu".

The letter "H"

stands for Humility, "I" for Individuality, "N" for Nationality, "D" for Divinity and

"U" for Unity. Only when you maintain unity can you achieve divinity.

Similarly, only

when you develop divinity can you achieve peace and happiness.

We have to safeguard the national feeling. We have to develop faith in the unity of the nation. If we lose the national feeling, we cease to exist. What is it that protects national feeling? The individuality will sustain humanity.

We have to set a limit to our aspirations in this world. Only then will we have peace.

God is omnipresent. The entire universe emerges from truth. The entire creation reflects collectivity. Wherever you see, it will only be equality. Do not imagine that God is somewhere far away in a niche of his own. You are all embodiments of Divinity! Develop that feeling.

In fact, this truth is being experienced by every human being directly. Just reflect on yourself for a moment, closing your eyes: "Who am I?" What did you see on closing your eyes? Nothing. But you hear one question constantly ringing in your ears: "Who am I? Who am I?" Then you will realise, "I am not this form." All these names and forms are transient. They are never permanent.

The body is given to you to toil hard. Do not feel bad about sorrows and difficulties.

If there are no difficulties at all, you will not know the value of happiness. Pleasure is an interval between two pains. In fact, we derive pleasure only out of pain. Even difficulties are only for a short period. If you wish to acquire more happiness, you must experience some difficulty and pain at least. Saint

Purandaradasa sang thus:

Oh! Rama! Who is the one that painted the peacock's feathers?
Who is the one that gave a red beak to a green parrot and made it beautiful?

Who is the one that watered the tree on a hill?

Who is the one that provides food to the frog in the rock?

You are the sustainer of the entire universe.

(Telugu Poem)

Divinity is the direct witness to humanness,

May you therefore protect all!

May you pervade all living beings!

You are omnipresent as the Divine Atma,

The Atma protects Atma, none else;

Oh! God! May you grant all the awareness to realise this truth.

(Telugu Poem)

We have to develop faith in the Atma Tattwa (Principle of the Atma).

Atma has no name and form whatsoever. Yet, if you develop faith in the Atma Tattwa, it will protect you always. In fact, Atma is the living divinity!

Sarvatah Panipadam Tat Sarvathokshi Siromukham,

Sarvatah Sruthimalloke Sarvamavrutya Tishthati.

With hands, feet, eyes, head, mouth and ears pervading everything, He permeates the entire universe.

The Atma Tattwa that pervades all living beings is true and eternal. The Atma is indivisible. The same Atma permeates all, just as the same current flows through all bulbs. If the electric wire that carries current to all the bulbs is cut at one place, all the bulbs cease to glow.

Dear students!

Scientific advancements are creating lot of havoc in the world. Several difficulties are arising on account of these scientific experiments. Cows are being fed with tripe in America, with an expectation that they will yield more milk. But those cows are suffering from several other diseases. In fact, those who drink their milk are also exposed to diseases. Each country is experimenting with some new changes. It is only the Bharatiyas (Indians) who are leading a natural life till now.

One should not lead a life of artificiality. If you lead such a life, everything in your life will be artificial. For example, you might have observed a lot of changes in the vegetables we consume of late. We, the Indians, consume a lot of green leafy vegetables.

The leafy vegetables provide good strength to our body. Now they are grown with the polluted water flowing through the drainage system. Today, all the vegetables and green leafy vegetables are polluted. Several people in India, especially those living in the southern states like brinjal curry (called vankaya in Telugu). There is a poem that extols the taste of this curry thus:

Matchless is the taste the curry of vanka(ya)

Matchless the face of virtuous Sita like a blossomed panka(ja) (lotus)

Unmatched is the compassion of the Lord Sanka(ra)

Unequaled indeed is the valour of the victor of the Lord of Lanka.

(Telugu Poem)

But this poem does not apply to the present-day brinjals. They are totally polluted.

Because of this increasing pollution day by day, our minds are also polluted.

Dear Students!

You are well educated. You should not read all sorts of trash and pollute your mind.

Follow our glorious Indian culture. Indian culture is very sacred. Our ancestors experienced the glory of our great culture and led their lives happily. I am sure that in the very near future even the people from overseas will fully realise the greatness of our Indian culture and adopt it. We, however, need not wait till such time. Let us take to the noble path right now. God protects all in every way. He knows everything.

When God Himself is in us and with us, we need not fear anything.

Prior to independence in our country, I used to conduct meetings in villages. I used to tour the villages with a view to help the poor people. When I was moving about in the villages wearing a knicker and half sleeves shirt, people used to restrain Me treating

Me as an immature boy. They used to bring a dhoti and make Me wear it over My shorts so that I may look like an adult to match the kind of activities I was doing. I used to go to the houses of the harijans and teach them some folk songs. Here is one such song that is meant to bring about a transformation in the rich, in their attitude towards the poor:

We toil in the fields day and night

ploughing and sowing and harvesting;

You sit in the cozy comfort of your mansions

eating, drinking and making merry;

You don't even get down and enquire our welfare,

Toil is ours and all comforts, yours;

Is it proper?

(Telugu Song)

The harijans used to sing songs composed by Me in the public.

Whenever anyone questioned

their intransigence, they used to sing another song composed by Me, as a reply:

The earth is God's gift, not the property of the rich,

If you attack us with your might, God is there for us;

Great souls there are, charged with the feeling of brotherhood,

Awake! Awake! Rise up from the slumber of maya (illusion).

(Telugu Song)

While I was thus charging the poor and downtrodden with My songs, the rich used to feel embarrassed and attacked Me. Even the elder brother of this body used to reprimand Me, saying, "Why do you engage yourself in such activities in the public? You don't go out.

Sit quietly in the house and study Your lessons. You should not stir out of the house, hereafter."

So saying, he used to lock Me up in a room at home. All My regular companions would come to our house and call Me, "Raju! Raju! Raju!"

Poor souls! They were so much attached to Me. I used to counsel them saying, "My dear ones! Bear with Me for sometime. I shall surely come out and fulfil your aspirations. I belong to you." Thus, I have been helping the poor since then, till date.

To protect the poor, provide succour to them by giving food, shelter, and water and thereby make them happy is My duty. Even now I am sending My students to every nook and corner of the villages to distribute food to the villagers. Whenever a hungry person stands in front of our house, I used to provide food to him even foregoing My share of food. For those who had no clothes to wear, I used to give away My clothes. Thus, I have been helping every needy person since My childhood.

My motto then as now is Help Ever, Hurt Never. I had a lot of experience in helping others since childhood.

Several people pay "lip service" to the poor, but they do not really help them.

Manasyekam vachasyekam, larmanyekam mahatmanam;
manasyanyath vachasyanyath,

karmanyanyath duratmanam (Those whose thoughts, words, and deeds are in perfect harmony are noble ones; those who lack harmony of these are wicked).

I have been protecting, fostering, counseling, and making the people tread the right path since My early days till today. I never did any harm to anyone. I have never shown anger or hatred on anyone. However, some people out of egoistic envy are fabricating some stories about Me and publishing them in the newspapers. They are resorting to false propaganda about Me in the print and electronic media. All this does not perturb Me. I am not afraid of anybody.

My very name is Sathyam Sathyam Sathyam (Truth). I am bound by truth. The name of this body is Sathyam (Truth). I will never stray away from the path of truth. Persons indulging in vituperative publicity impelled by envy, greed, or hatred will reap the appropriate consequence. The time has come when proper action has to be taken to dissuade these people from resorting to such false propaganda.

Of course, they are also not to be blamed. They are resorting to such false propaganda for the sake of money. They must try to realise their mistake. There is not even an iota of dosha (impurity) in Me at any time. Hence, you all follow Sai. You can achieve anything in this world by following the path of truth. Tread the path of truth by constantly contemplating on God. (At this point, Swami asked the children whether He is causing any inconvenience to them by giving a long discourse. The children replied in one voice, "No, Swami!")

It had never been My intention to cause suffering to anyone. Such thoughts do not come anywhere near Me. Whatever I do is for your own good, not for Me. In fact, even the food

I partake is for you only! The water I drink is for you! Thus, all the activities I undertake are for your good only! Those who realise this truth will be benefited. Their lives will be sanctified.

I was deeply pained to know that people in some upland areas of the East and West

Godavari districts are drinking polluted water. Immediately I arranged for the supply of pure drinking water at a cost of rupees two hundred crores. Nearby in the lowlands the Godavari flows, but they had not even a drop of water to drink. Hence, I arranged for lifting of the Godavari water to the upland areas through pipes. They are all very happy

now. I intend to visit those people shortly.

That is great news for them. They are very happy and give expression to their joy thus,

"Swami! We never imagined that You would shower such abundant grace on us. Your love and compassion are unparalleled. We are extremely happy and grateful to know that You are visiting us." They are cleaning all the roads en route and making all arrangements for My visit. Ramakrishna and Kondal Rao, who executed the project, are accompanying Me.

Thus, we must help others and do good to all, to the extent possible. If you thus lead your life, you will also be happy. Everything will be turning out good for you as well.

Dear students!

Whenever you come across an enemy, offer pranams (salutations) to him lovingly and say,

"Oh! Brother!" They will also wish you in the same way, with love. All are brothers only! It is only when you conduct yourself in such a manner that you would have earned good name to our Sathya Sai Institute of Higher Learning.

We are not taking even a paisa from the students. Not even examination fees. Students from different parts of the country and even abroad come here, pursue their education, and go with high academic degrees. We are even providing for research degrees like

Ph.D., at great cost. If all the students develop such exemplary character as in Sathya

Sai Institute, our country will earn great name.

We have good news about our past students pursuing their vocations in America. Recently, a plane load of our past students from U.S.A. visited Prasanthi Nilayam. The plane was specially chartered from America for their visit in appreciation of the services rendered by them in that country. They said, "Swami! There are several students from your Institute in our country. They are great people. They are giving us a lot of joy."

There are two hundred past students from our Institute. They, along with their families, numbering 250, in all came here. They experienced great bliss during their stay in Prasanthi Nilayam. While leaving, they expressed their gratitude saying, "Swami! We never imagined even in our dreams that You would provide so much grace to us."

I intend to undertake a world tour, shortly. Several devotees are coming here from Africa and Russia. The devotion of the Russians is indescribable. There are several Russian devotees sitting in this hall. They enjoy a lot, My discourse. (Pointing toward the Russian devotees) "Look! Those devotees with raised hands are all Russians." They are all very devoted. (Pointing toward the Russian devotees again.) "You are not Russians. You belong to our country only! I love you all."

Dear students!

There are several countries in the world like, Russia, America, Germany, Japan, Italy,

France, etc. Though the countries are different, the people living in all those countries belong to us only! They helped a lot for the construction of the indoor stadium in Prasanthi Nilayam. They worked hard day and night. They love Swami intensely.

Wherever I go, they follow Me. They run after My car. They even came to Chennai (Madras) recently when I was there. They are coming here, unmindful of the great difficulties and expense. You have to learn a lot from their devotion to Swami.

Give up Ego and Attachment and Become Great

by

Bhagavan Sri Sathya Sai Baba

Dear students!

Can all the birds of green colour talk like a parrot?

Can insects that crawl on the flowers become bumble bees?

Can an oversized pig become an elephant?

Can one who does not know about themselves acquire knowledge of the Self?

(Telugu Poem)

Man today considers himself as great. On the other hand, one who is devoid of humanness is not a human being at all! A real human being is one who manifests humanness. A real human being is one who practises the five human values of sathya (truth), dharma

(righteousness), santhi (peace), prema (love), and ahimsa (nonviolence) and preaches them to others. Even if one out of these five values is deficient, it is unbecoming of a human being. Man, in fact, is very intelligent. His intelligence is unlimited and unparalleled. But it is not being reflected in his behaviour.

Parvati's firm dedication...

Once Lord Easwara was absorbed in intense tapas (penance).

Parvati wished to marry Him, but her parents tried to dissuade her. They started to reason with her, describing Siva's form thus:

Oh! Gowri! You are very young and Sambasiva is old;

He has matted locks and wears a tiger skin;

He rides a bull and is constantly on the move;

He is adorned with snakes; How did you court Him?

Don't you know all this?

He has no house of His own and sleeps in the cremation ground.

(Telugu Poem)

Parvati paid no heed to all this reasoning and ignored it. Lord

Easwara knew her nature and Parvati knew Siva's nature. They are in fact, not different from one another. Lord Siva is Siva-Sakthi-atmaka-swarupa (Embodiment of Siva and Sakthi). So too is Parvati.

How can ordinary mortals understand such mystic nature of Lord Easwara and Parvati!

Where there is a feeling of duality, doubt arises. A man with dual mind is half blind.

In fact, there is no difference between Lord Siva and Parvati.

Meanwhile, Saraswati arrived on the scene to counsel Parvati about unsuitability as her bridegroom. She explained, "Dear Parvati!

Lord Siva's

Society will not accept such an odd combination. There is no compatibility between you and

Lord Siva. You

yourself know everything. I need not elaborate on the point further. I am sorry that knowingly you have fallen into that illusion."

Parvati replied firmly, "Oh Saraswati! I am interested only in Lord Siva and none else.

I have no other interest in life except becoming the consort of Lord

Siva. No one can change my decision."

Divinity pervades everything ...

Isavasyam Idam Sarvam (the entire universe is permeated by God).

The power of Lord Siva

permeates the entire universe. The foremost duty of a human being is to love Easwaratwa

(the divinity of Lord Easwara).

Actually, the same divine power is immanent in every human body also. Just as the human body is covered with a cloth, Divinity is enveloped in maya (illusion).

Hence, though

Easwaratwa is omnipresent, it is not visible. In accordance with the maxim Easwara Sarva

Bhutanam (God is the indweller of all beings), Easwaratwa permeates every living being.

Parvati explained that this Easwaratwa transcends age, and it is in no way related to external appearance.

Parvati's woes

Mother Lakshmi also tried to dissuade Parvati from marrying Lord Siva. She explained "My dear! You are quite young and beautiful. You have great power in you. It is unbecoming that you seek to wed someone who goes begging from house to house for alms."

Parvati was very upset and she sternly replied, "My bridegroom is no beggar. In fact, He is the one who gives alms to the entire world. It is not proper for you all to indulge in this campaign of slander against Him."

Several others also were averse to the choice of Parvati. They enquired, "He is adorning Himself with snakes. How did you court such a person? Don't you know about it?"

Parvati retorted, "Snakes have poison only in their fangs. But a human being has poison in the entire body. The human's vision, hearing and actions are all full of poison. You consider such a poisonous human being as a good person. If the fangs are removed, the snake cannot harm anybody. But the human being with his two fangs of ahamkara (ego) and mamakara (attachment) is roaming about nonchalantly and causing great harm to fellow human beings and to the world around. Humans consider themselves great. They are full of poison. How can such humans be corrected?"

One with pride will not be successful in any endeavour.
 He will commit sins and will be ridiculed by one and all.
 His own people will abandon him.
 He will lose all wealth and respect.
 His pride will ruin him completely.
 (Telugu Poem)

Recognise your innate nature
 God is loved by one and all. Every human being lives by love alone. In fact, one who has no love in them is not a human being at all! The love that exists between God and the human being is comparable to that between a father and a son. What a great sin it is to attribute ill will to such pure and unsullied love! In fact, it is the result of evil qualities that has permeated society.

When the innate divine nature of every human being is recognised, there will be no scope for any kind of differences. All are one, be alike to everyone. We have to achieve such transformation in our lives. You study several texts. Mere reading is not enough. It will not help you in any way. The truth contained in those texts has to be realised and experienced.

Laila and Mainu were great lovers. Theirs was selfless love, which became immortal.

Unable to understand the true nature of their sacred love, people attributed all sorts of motives to their love and created a lot of confusion.

The mind must be filled with pure love. One should not develop attachment to sense objects and poison one's own mind. Only then can real happiness be experienced. Every human being in this world must analyse for themselves what is to be changed and corrected and what is to be accomplished. Accordingly, one should conduct oneself. Only then will one have realised real humanness.

The Divinity called "I" is immanent in every human being. This Divinity "I" is not to be construed as Brahma, Vishnu, or Siva. These are all names ascribed by man to Divinity for the purpose of recognition. The names are not that important. The real Divinity is

"I". "I am I." We consider Brahma as the creator, Vishnu the sustainer, and Siva the destroyer. God grants darshan (sight of a holy person) to each one in the same form on which each one contemplates.

Matru Devo Bhava

Once, Lord Siva and Mother Parvati were strolling in the ethereal world. They saw, on the earth, one person cutting the branch of a tree on which he was resting. The branch was almost cut and was about to fall any moment. Parvati was very anxious. She prayed to Lord Siva, "Oh! Lord! Please save him immediately from falling on the earth below."

Easwara replied, "It is you who saw him first. Only you realised that he might fall down by cutting the branch on which he was sitting. Hence, it is your responsibility to save him."

Parvati then laid down a condition, "Swami! Normally, any person falling from a height will express his agony by uttering the words 'Amma!' or 'Appa!' If this man cries 'Amma!', I will rescue him. On the other hand, if he cries 'Appa!' You have to rescue him." Easwara agreed.

Meanwhile, the branch that was being cut finally broke. The person sitting on it fell down. Mother Parvati was ready to save him. Lord Siva was also ready. But, the person prayed to neither "Amma! (Mother)" nor "Appa! (father)" He just wailed "Ayyo!" Though Lord Siva and Mother Parvati were both waiting to rescue him, the man did not call them!

This story is a reminder to one and all that we must always remember our parents wherever we are and in whichever situation we are placed in. They are the living divinities constantly guarding and guiding us. The Upanishads exhort, Matru Devo bhava, pitru Devo bhava, acharya Devo bhava, atithi Devo bhava (revere your mother, father, preceptor and guest as God). You may be highly educated. You may be an adept in all branches of knowledge in this world. Yet, to your mother you are only a child. Your mother's blessing will be always with you. The life of a son who neglects such a mother is worthless.

It is only Mother Parvati who has a compassionate heart to protect a man in distress.

Hence, we must constantly contemplate upon that Sakthiswarupini

(embodiment of divine energy). Lord Easwara is The Father and Mother Parvati is Sakthiswarupini. Easwara cannot take that much liberty and move forward to save a devotee. Only after the Sakthi takes a step forward does Lord Easwara follow her. Hence, one has to worship the Sakthiswarupini in the first instance. She is the mother, verily. That is why it has been said: Matru Devo bhava! It is the mother who has been given the first place. Even one's own country is compared to the mother. We say, "India is my motherland." Everyone refers to his country as "motherland" and not as "fatherland". It is a common practice in the country of Bharat (India) that a girl after her marriage goes to her in-laws' house to live there with her husband and in-laws. The lady of the in-laws' house is referred to as "mother-in-law" in the English language. But Mother Parvati is "Mother-in-love" for the whole world. The word "law" relates to the world, whereas "love" refers to one's heart. Hence, first and foremost develop love. Consider love as your everything. Only then will you would have led a fruitful life. Your mother may be very simple and not worldly-wise. She may be very weak physically and intellectually. Yet, a mother is a mother. You should not neglect your mother simply because she is weak or has fallen sick. A mother is always full of love for her children. That is why Bhakta Ramadas prayed to Mother Sita, "Oh! Mother Sita! Please represent my case to Rama and help me. When you are engaged in happy conversation with Rama in solitude, kindly make a mention about my pitiable condition." Bhakta Ramadas worked as a Tahsildar under Nawab Tanisha. He spent all the revenue collected from the people in building a temple of Lord Rama, Lakshmana, and Mother Sita and decorating the idols with gold jewelry. He was imprisoned on charges of misappropriation for not depositing the money in the treasury. Unable to bear the agony in jail, he lamented, "Swami! I dedicated all the money collected by me in your service only." In a beautiful kirtan (song), he sang thus: Oh Ramachandra! I spent ten thousand gold coins to adorn

Mother Sita with a gold necklace and Another ten thousand sovereigns to decorate your brother Lakshmana with a gold belt. That crest jewel that adorns You cost me another ten thousand gold coins. Unmindful of my travails, You are flaunting the jewellery as if You have got it with Your own money! (Telugu Poem)

One cannot achieve anything in life unless one gets rid of ego and attachment. Anything can be achieved with humility and obedience. In all spheres of life moral, spiritual, physical, and even political one should conduct oneself with devotion. Only then will the task achieved shine in glory. Women should be respected ... When a mother leaves her physical body, her soul will still be concerned with her children and their welfare. One day, a mother approached Me and pleaded with Me, "Swami! My daughter listens to everyone, but she gives importance to only Swami's words. My daughter is obstinate from the very beginning. She does not listen to what I say. But, if You once talk to her, she will follow Your advice. She has lot of faith in You. She will not disobey Your words." Thus, several mothers come and pray for several things on behalf of their children. Mothers have an important role to play. There is no God higher than mother. Hence, never disregard your mother. Those who ignore their mother will encounter several difficulties. Women shall be respected, loved, and shown gratitude. Only then will you reach an exalted position. You may be great or highly educated, or you may be illiterate even, but you must respect your mother and give weight to her words as your foremost duty. A mother and her son, Ishwarchandra Vidyasagar, used to live in a small village near Kolkata. The mother struggled to bring up her son. Since there were no lights in their house, Vidyasagar used to sit under the streetlights and study his lessons. Thus, he worked hard day and night and studied well. Finally, he attained a good position in his life. He became very famous as an orator. People used to gather in thousands to hear his lectures. Once, Vidyasagar was traveling in a train to go to some town to give a lecture there. An

I.C.S. officer was also traveling in the same compartment to go to the same town to hear his lecture. As soon as the officer alighted from the train at the station, he called for a coolie to carry his briefcase. Vidyasagar approached that officer and told him,

"Sir, give me that briefcase. I will carry it for you. By the way, where have you to go?"

The I.C.S. officer replied, "I am going to the place where Ishwarchandra Vidyasagar will deliver a lecture."

On hearing those words, Vidyasagar smiled to himself and started for the place of meeting. As soon as they reached that place, Vidyasagar handed over the briefcase to that officer and said, "Sir! I take leave of you."

The officer offered some money to Vidyasagar for carrying his briefcase. "Look! Take this money."

Vidyasagar replied, "Sir! I carried your briefcase as an act of service, not for money," and politely declined the offer of money.

The meeting commenced. Vidyasagar was profusely garlanded and brought on the stage with honour. The officer, on seeing Vidyasagar, recognised him as the person who carried his briefcase a few minutes ago. He felt very embarrassed. As soon as the meeting was over, he fell at Vidyasagar's feet and begged his pardon.

Humility brings greatness ...

Only humility and obedience brought great honour to Vidyasagar. Even today, you will find his life story in textbooks. Greatness is not in the education we pursue or the high academic degrees we obtain. It is humility and obedience that bring greatness to us.

There are several educated people in this world. But of what use is it? What benefit does the world derive from their education? It is only because of ego and attachment that a person is spoiled. One can become really great when he sheds these two.

During his debating tour of north India, Adi Sankara met a great scholar named Mandana Mishra. He had a wife by name Ubhayabharati. She was selected to be the arbitrator and judge to decide the winner in the debate between Adi Sankara and Mandana Mishra. She considered truth as God and was therefore eminently suited for the assignment. Sankara defeated Mandana Mishra in the debate, and he was declared the winner by Ubhayabharati.

As per the conditions of the debate, Mandana Mishra had to take to sanyas (renunciation), and he did accordingly. As a dutiful wife,

Ubhayabharati followed suit

and also became a renunciant.

Ubhayabharati serves eye-opener ...

One day, Ubhayabharati was going along with her disciples to the river Ganga to take bath in the river. On the way, she observed a sanyasi (renunciant) who was relaxing, keeping a dried bottle gourd under his head. He was using this for storing drinking water, so he was preserving it carefully. Ubhayabharati saw this sanyasi's attachment to the bottle gourd and said to her disciples, "Look! This man calls himself a sanyasi, but he is attached to a bottle gourd that he is keeping under his head as a pillow."

The sanyasi heard this comment, but did not utter anything then.

While Ubhayabharati and her disciples were returning from the river, he threw away the bottle gourd in front of them in order to demonstrate that he was not attached to it.

Observing his action,

Ubhayabharati aptly remarked, "I thought there was only one defect in him, abhimana (attachment). Now I realise that he has another defect also, ahamkara (ego). How can one with abhimana and ahamkara become a jnani (spiritually wise person) and sanyasi?"

Her comment was an eye-opener for the sanyasi. He expressed gratitude to her for imparting true knowledge of renunciation to him.

Emulate Karna

Diverse population must be following differing paths in the world. Lord Krishna is the one who taught the path of wisdom and established the truth that the quality of love is common to all. He forgave even people with demonic qualities, like

Duryodhana and Dussasana.

Though Karna joined the evil forces, he was a man of noble qualities. Hence, Lord

Krishna praised his qualities. Karna did not have even a trace of ego and attachment. He was a great warrior and a person of highest charity. One should therefore emulate his noble qualities. Every student should hear good things and put them into practice.

Experience bliss and share that bliss with all. This is your foremost duty.

The Happiness of Everyone is My Happiness

by

Bhagavan Sri Sathya Sai Baba

Embodiments of Love!

There are sixty years in the Telugu almanac, by name, Prabhava,

Vibhava, Shukla,

Pramodhutha, Prajotpatthi, Angirasa, Srimukha, Bhava, Yuva,

Dhathu, Easwara, Bahudanya,

Pramadhi, Vikrama, etc. This cycle culminates in the 60th year

Akshaya. This body has seen two Akshaya years so far. This year, Sarvajit is very significant to realise the divinity latent in a human being.

A human being has several desires and aspirations. The year Sarvajit fulfils such desires that are truthful. The year will see significant progress being made in the moral, physical, righteous, spiritual, and scientific fields. A truthful desire will always result in fulfillment. However, one has to hold on to the Truth with steadfast faith.

Sarvajit year will bring victory in all possible ways. It is the most important year in all these sixty years. Jit signifies victory. Sarvajit means victory in all fields of human endeavour. To progress in life, one has to cultivate truthful desires in this Sarvajit year. I have not seen a single person who cultivated such truthful desires and failed in his life. Hence, I exhort you all to cultivate truthful desires and aspirations and lead a life full of happiness and bliss in this Sarvajit year.

Goddess Parvati is responsible for this year being named as Sarvajit. She did severe penance for a number of years with an ambition to marry Lord Siva, giving up food and sleep. Lord Siva was pleased with her penance and appeared before her. He enquired, "For whose sake are you doing this penance?"

She replied, "Oh! Lord! I am doing this penance to win your grace."

Lord Siva then informed her, "Your wish is fulfilled today. You can join Me now." Before

Parvati could join Lord Easwara, several divine ladies tried to dissuade her from marrying the Lord, criticising thus:

Oh! Gowri! You are very young and Sambasiva is old;

He has matted locks and wears a tiger skin;

He rides a bull and is constantly on the move;

He is adorned with snakes; How did you court Him?

Don't you know all this?

He has no house of His own and sleeps in the cremation ground.

(Telugu poem)

They enquired, "Why do you wish to marry such an old man who goes about begging in the streets?"

Parvati replied, "You do not know, you are seeing only his external form. You are not making any effort to realise the Atma Tattwa (Atma Principle) in him. I am, in fact, aspiring for the Divinity in him. Divinity is changeless and eternal."

Lord Easwara accepted Parvati as His consort. She was happy in every aspect. The day on which Goddess Parvati could fulfil her desire surmounting all difficulties is celebrated as the New Year day of Sarvajit. In fact, this name to the New Year was given by goddess Parvati herself!

The names of the years that follow this Sarvajit are Sarvadhari, Virodhi, Vikruthi,

Nala, Pingala, Kaalayukthi, Siddharthi, Roudri, Durmathi,

Dundubhi, Rudhirodgari,

Raktakshi, Krodhana, and Akshaya. Only when you pass through all these years can you reach Akshaya. Goddess Parvati rejoined Divinity, that is, Akshaya (imperishable), only by great penance and after undergoing several hardship and pain.

Divinity always incarnates in the year Akshaya only. This body was born in the year

Akshaya during Brahmamuhurtha (the auspicious period at dawn) at 6.00 a.m. Only when we get into the inner meaning will we be able to know the good and bad of any aspect.

Parvati is the goddess that supplies water to the entire world. Lord Easwara granted this boon to her. Ganga (The Ganges river) is another form of goddess Parvati. That is why the river Ganga is worshipped as Gangadevi. Some years ago, I visited the East Godavari district in Andhra Pradesh. I had to travel by car to reach Chennai (Madras).

In a place called Red Hills near Chennai, a huge reservoir was built to store water. I was told that drinking water is supplied from that reservoir to the entire city of Chennai.

But there was no water in the reservoir itself at that time. How can water be supplied to the city? There were of course, a few places in the reservoir where rain water collected as small cesspools. I saw some children drinking polluted water from those cesspools. I was also informed that the same water is being used for drinking and cooking. A few devotees traveling along with Me in the car, enquired, "Swami! When would this reservoir get filled?"

For everything, there is a time, action, reason, and duty, which shall go together. I kept these aspects in view and told them, "I will not step into this city of Chennai for the next ten years. Only after supplying water for drinking and irrigation purposes and the people of Chennai drink pure water will I visit Chennai again." Ten years passed by.

I fulfilled My promise of supplying drinking water to the entire city of Chennai.

Besides, it is also being used for irrigation purposes. Accordingly I visited Chennai

during January this year.

The Britishers who ruled this country prior to independence, lived for 200 years in Chennai. There were no proper roads or cars in those days. They used to go to far off places and hill tops on horse back and search for water sources. Nevertheless, they could not solve the drinking water problem before they left this country. At the time of acute water shortage, the rich could buy water in tankers from private owners of borewells. But what about the poor people? They have no money to purchase water.

One day, I was in Teynampet in Chennai city. Several people gathered there. They represented, "Swami! We have no drinking water." A number of small children were in that gathering. It was a holiday for the primary school children. They surrounded Me and prayed, "Swami! We need drinking water."

I told them, "My dear boys! Surely you will get drinking water. I will arrange for the supply of pure drinking water from the river Krishna." I fulfilled My promise.

The Britishers promised to link the three rivers Ganga, Godavari, and Krishna. But they did nothing in this regard. The Godavari water is going to waste by draining into the sea. Of course, the Krishna river is not going that way. Even now, there is copious supply of water in the river Krishna. Several dams and reservoirs are being built across the river Krishna. We had to spend a huge sum of two hundred crores of rupees to supply drinking water to the city of Chennai, and also for irrigation purposes. The people of Chennai are very happy that they are able to drink pure water now.

During My recent visit to the city, I went to Teynampet once again. The people there expressed their feelings thus, "Swami! We are able to drink pure, sweet and refreshing water now. How can we express our gratitude to You? Words fail to express our sense of gratitude to Swami."

God can do anything, achieve any insurmountable task. But foolish human beings fail to realise this truth. You teach a proper lesson to such fools. They have accumulated enormous wealth. But, they don't shell out a coin in charity to the beggars. I told those people, "You need not depend on the charity of others. God Himself who is the creator, can grant everything unto you. Hence, pray to Him, for whatever you need."

They gathered there to greet Me on My way and express their gratitude to Swami for this boon of sweet drinking water. I told them, "Drink this pure, sweet water and be happy.

That would be enough, I don't need anything else."

Now, the same water is supplied to every house and even small huts by laying pipes. All people are drinking sweet and pure water. I must tell you that My entire heart is filled with sweet water! The happiness of everyone is My happiness. This is the inner meaning of the prayer, Lokah samasthah sukhino bhavanthu (May all the people of the world be happy). You also pray this way.

Our next project was the supply of drinking water to the people living in the upland areas of East and West Godavari districts of Andhra Pradesh. The District President of the West Godavari district, Dr. Bhaskara Rao, is now here. They all worked very hard to complete of this project. It is very difficult to lift the water from the low-lying areas to the upland areas. It is a tedious and expensive work. I assured them, "You do your job; I will look after everything else."

I sent Ramakrishna, former Vice President of M/s Larsen & Toubro Company and Kondal Rao, former chief Engineer, Government of Andhra Pradesh, to inspect the progress of work.

They were surprised to find that the work was going on at a brisk pace. They exclaimed,

"Oh! To what great heights the water reached! It is a miracle." It cannot be expressed in words. It is only to be seen to be believed. The people living on those hills and hillocks are not living like other human beings. They do not go down the hills and interact with fellow human beings living in plains, because they are afraid of them!

They expressed their awe at this huge water supply project thus:
"Swami! We are living in the hills right above the river Godavari flowing in the plains. But until today, we did not taste even a drop of Godavari water."
Such people are now happily drinking sweet and pure water right in their homes, supplied by laying pipes up to their doorstep. Several of those people, especially ladies, came all the way to Prasanthi Nilayam by foot to see this place and have My darshan. They spoke to the devotees here and expressed their sentiments thus:
"How fortunate you are!
Of course, we are also fortunate! We will also settle at the Lotus feet of Swami one day."
Thus, we have supplied pure drinking water to several villages to the complete satisfaction of one and all. They composed songs in their local dialect and expressed their gratitude to Swami, singing those songs. The theme of their songs was, "The water we drink is supplied by Sri Sathya Sai. We should not waste even a drop of that water.
Come! Let us drink that water and sustain our lives." They set the song to a fine tune
and sang it in a group, dancing all the time.
Those villagers are very happy that their drinking water problem has been solved permanently by Swami. They fill that sweet water in big vessels and carry them to their homes by means of a kavadi (yoke). It is a beautiful scene to be seen.
In fact, there is a lot to be learnt by the people of the towns and cities from those innocent and jubilant villagers. They are experiencing indescribable bliss and contentment in their lives.
Yesterday, Ramakrishna and Kondal Rao came to Me and represented, "Swami! You must surely visit those villagers. They are all praying and eagerly waiting for Swami's
visit."
I told them I will surely visit them. Very soon, I will visit Rajahmundry. But there is no way I can go to those villages by car from Rajahmundry. Their places can be reached only by foot. The villagers pleaded with Me earlier, "We will not cause any strain to the body of Swami. We will try to take you to our places, without making you walk. We will carry Swami on our shoulders, if necessary." Those villagers are very happy and eager to receive Swami in their villages.

On this holy occasion of Ugadi, we are launching a new scheme for rural development, under the name, "Village works". Every house in every village shall be kept clean. The houses are to be kept neat and clean both inside and outside. The children in these homes are also to be groomed into clean and healthy children. We propose to cover every village under this scheme. Of course, the project involves huge expenditure. But, we don't hesitate to incur the necessary expenditure. Money comes and goes. But, the help and good work we render remain. Hence, we must undertake this rural development project immediately.
We are launching this scheme from today itself on the holy occasion of Ugadi. The elders as well as children, the poor and rich, should all work united for the success of this project. It is seva (selfless service) that unites people. Both the villages and towns should join and work together in a spirit of unity. We are sure that very soon it will be a reality. We are launching this scheme today. It is our wish that by the next Ugadi,
all the villages are shaped and moulded into model villages. All of you, including children, shall take part in this village service. You must consider it as Daiva seva
(service to God). Service to man is service to God.
At present, we are at the individual level. We are working with an individual interest.
This attitude must change. We must change. We must develop unity and national interest.
The entire country must stand united. In a recent meeting held at Chennai, several Chief Ministers, Governors of States, and I.A.S. officers participated. Many people attended that meeting. These people shared a common cause. Thus, you must all come united and participate in this village service programme. If all people work together, the entire world can be changed into a better place to live in.

I am with you always, guarding and guiding you at every moment.
Whatever you need, ask

Me; I will provide. Like the rivers that flow merge into the sea ultimately, whatever seva you do to anyone reaches Me only. Hence, don't fear for anything. Why fear when I am here? Do not hesitate to ask Me for whatever you may need.

Surely, I will provide everything to you. Hence, make yourself ready to participate in this service, both men and women.

Yesterday, a group of devotees from Mumbai came to Prasanthi Nilayam. They are very rich. They told Me, "Swami! We propose to erect a Dwaja Sthamba in the name of Swami in the sea near Mumbai, several hundred feet high. We propose to arrange a beacon light on top of it, so that it is visible to all from long distances. It will have the divine

name 'Sai Ram' and will involve an expenditure of several crores of rupees. We will come again to Prasanthi Nilayam after the project is completed and have Swami's darshan."

No doubt, the devotees of Mumbai are doing a lot of seva. Everything is good; but the city of Mumbai is very dirty. First and foremost, make the city free from pollution.

Some efforts were made earlier in this regard, but they were not successful. The reason being, at high tide the sea is at a higher level than the city drainage system. As you all know, water flows down only. Unless the drainage water in the city is pumped out, the city cannot be kept clean and beautiful. I am sure that a way can be found to tackle

this problem. I am also sure that the people of Mumbai can certainly undertake this task. I told them in no uncertain terms, "You finish that work; I will surely come."

I wish that the entire country of Bharat should be made beautiful and the people lead a happy and peaceful life. Lokah samasthah sukhino bhavanthu (May all the people of the world be happy!) Swami's happiness lies in the happiness of all. He does not need anything special. Your happiness is My happiness. So whatever you undertake, let it be

for the peace, welfare, and happiness of all people.

More than anything else, the foremost requirement today is water for all. Water is life sustaining. You may live without food for a few days, but you cannot live without water.

In the future, there will be copious rains. No one need fear drought. In fact, I have come into this world to correct all these maladies.

I will surely provide you happiness, by correcting and forgiving your faults. You must all live in unity and love. We consider the panchapranas (the five vital airs) as prana, apana, vyana, udana, and samana. No; what I mean by panchapranas is Sathya (Truth),

Dharma (Righteousness), Santhi (Peace), Prema (Love), and Ahimsa (Nonviolence). Where there is truth, there will be righteousness. Where there is righteousness, there will be peace. Where there is peace, there will be love. Where truth and love go together,

everything else will be added unto such a person.

Very soon, the entire world will be united into a single unit. Students should strive to achieve that ideal. The senses are very strong in children. The physical, mental, and spiritual strength in them is of a high order. You have to make proper use of that strength. I expect you not to misuse your senses. Only then can you do great service to the world. It is not enough if you simply go to one temple and do some whitewashing to its walls. It is no service at all. Every house must be kept clean. You can visit any

house that is kept clean.

In the earlier days, the Harijans used to live in houses built separately, at a distance in Puttaparthi. I used to visit their houses. There used to be one person by name

Nagappa in those days. His son-in-law Ramulu was educated up to 3rd form (8th standard).

He knew about Swami and His Divinity to some extent.

One day, he invited Me to have lunch in his house. I informed Subbamma. She was taken aback and tried to dissuade Me from going to his house saying, "Alas!

Swami! Will You go to the houses of Harijans? Please do not go."

I insisted on going. I also told her to come along with Me. Subbamma belonged to the orthodox Brahmin community. Nevertheless, she decided to follow Me saying, "I will do anything for the sake of Swami." I was leading and she was following Me. Ramulu was walking in front of Me.

By the time we reached that house, the entire area was filled with divine fragrance. I asked the inmates of the house, "From where did you bring this fragrance."

Ramulu replied, "Swami! We did not bring it from anywhere. It is emanating from You."

I stepped into the house. Subbamma willingly followed. She was then 62 years old. I was served with some rice in an aluminium plate. In fact, that is what they had. There were no stainless steel plates then. Subbamma was served food in another aluminium plate.

Subbamma used to have a feeling of belonging to the high caste Brahmins, in the beginning. Later on, she changed her attitude on the advice of Swami. She decided, "Fie on me! I should not entertain such feelings of superiority." She happily dined in their house, along with Swami.

By the time we returned to the village after finishing our lunch in Ramulu's house, the entire village joined together and started heckling us saying, "Subbamma has become a mala (harijan)." They issued a decree that none in the village should touch Subbamma.

Subbamma responded, "That is exactly what I desire. Let no one touch me. It is enough if Swami alone touches me. I have no children. I need not maintain any relationship with any family. Neither I need give my children in marriage to other families nor do I need bring their children into my house. It is enough if Swami is with me."

In those days, Subbamma used to cook food for every devotee visiting Swami, in Puttaparthi. In keeping with her hospitality, fortune would favour her and she used to reap rich harvest from her fields. Her fields were yielding rich crops two to three times a year. Those paddy bags could not be taken into her house. Hence, the bags used to be emptied into a specially built granary from above. Thus, Subbamma sanctified her life in the service of Swami.

One day, I asked Subbamma what she needed from Me. She replied, "Swami! I have no desire for anything. Before I leave my mortal coil, if You can graciously pour a few drops of sanctified water into my mouth from Your divine hands, it would be enough."

I assured her that her wish would be fulfilled.

Once I was returning from Chennai to Bukkapatnam, by car.

Subbamma died the previous night. Her relatives were making arrangements to bring her dead body from her house to the cremation ground in Bukkapatnam. As soon as they saw Me, they ran toward Me and informed Me, "Subbamma died yesterday."

I told them, "It is only your illusion. Subbamma did not die. She won't leave her mortal coil till she had My darshan." So saying, I reversed My car toward her house.

Subbamma's mother was still alive then. With an agonising heart she told Me, "Swami! She was remembering You all the while and was chanting 'Sairam, Sairam,' till last night."

She was asking everyone, "Did Swami come?"

The body of Subbamma was covered with a cloth. I removed that cloth and called her,

"Subbamma! Subbamma!" To everyone's surprise, she opened her eyes.

When God gives a word, He will not forget it under any circumstances. I told her, "You wanted me to pour a few drops of water into your mouth during your last moments. Is it not? Here it is; have it."

I dipped a basil (tulasi) leaf in a tumbler filled with water and put a few drops of that sanctified water in her mouth. Subbamma drank the water, held My hands tightly, and put them reverentially on her eyelids. She took leave of Me saying, "Swami! I have been waiting to take leave of You finally before I shed my mortal coil. You have fulfilled my last wish, as promised. Now permit me to leave. Here I am going."

I gave her permission and she merged in Me.

I built a housing colony in memory of late Subbamma and named it after her. Subbamma was a great soul. She used to go up on the terrace of her house and converse with Mother Easwaramma, every now and then. She used to tell her,

"Easwaramma! You gave birth to Swami and I fostered Him. Hence you are Devakidevi and I am Yashoda."

Easwaramma used to reply, "Subbamma! You served hundreds of Swami's devotees by giving food and shelter to them in your house. Don't you deserve the fruit of that seva? Surely you will."

Before Subbamma left her mortal coil, she came to Easwaramma one day and pleaded with her, "I am leaving. You look after Sathyan well." Both of them shed tears. The next day

Subbamma died.

Subbamma's husband was Narayana Rao. He always used to sit near the Tulasi Brindavan in front of his house. When he took to bad ways, I composed some songs and trained a few children to sing them in front of his house in order to correct him.

The children used to move in a group in front of his house, singing those songs, one of which runs as follows:

Don't seek the company of women of bad character;
 Surely you will fall down.
 Your caste people will not allow you into their houses;
 Your relatives will discard you if they see you;
 Your friends will beat you with chappals
 if they see you in the company of such women.
 (Telugu poem)

While the children were moving about in a group singing this song, he felt very much embarrassed. He called them inside and asked, "Who taught you this song?"

The children replied, "Raju taught us, Sir!"

He thought, "Yes, it is true. Who else can know about my behaviour?"

From then on, he shed his bad thoughts and bad habits. In those days, cartloads of mango fruit used to be brought into his house. He used to distribute those fruits to all the children, lovingly.

Wrist watches just arrived in those days. Anyone in the village with a wrist watch was considered a great person. Not only that. The gents in those days used to wear a small insect-like moustache under their nose, as a fashion. Keeping in view these vainglorious fashion trends, I composed a song and taught it to the school children so that they may go about in the streets singing that song:

People wear some glittering white badge on the left hand
 with leather belt tied to it.
 What fashion is this, Oh! Dear! What fashion is this?
 Disgusting appearances are they; What fashion is this?
 Long moustache is trimmed and shaved;
 Few hairs are kept under the nose instead;
 What fashion is this, Oh! Dear! What fashion is this?
 (Telugu song)

Thus, I used to compose songs and make the children sing those songs in the village to help people shed the craze for fads and cultivate noble thoughts. I used to bring about a transformation in one and all right from the children to the elders, by such methods.

From today onward, you must all embark on a mission to bring about a transformation in the villages. It does not mean that the villages are to be transformed into towns and cities. In fact, I don't like such transformation. First and foremost, the villages are to be kept clean.

Already, the towns and cities are stinking with filth. The people living there wear neat pants, shirt, and a necktie. But their inner feelings are all bad. Cultivate good thoughts and feelings, in keeping with the neat dress you wear. First of all, try to bring about a transformation in your own self and then work for a change in the outside world.

Yesterday, three boys sang a nice burra katha about Easwaramma. They rendered it well.

There was a wonderful description about Subbamma in that burra katha. I am very happy about it. In fact, it was such a unique story. No one has written such a story so far.

(Bhagawan called Sri Krishna Bhaskar, who wrote the script, and the three boys who rendered the burra katha, and presented them new clothes. Bhagawan blessed them with a photo session.)

Develop Love and Lead the Life of a True Manava by Bhagawan Sri Sathya Sai Baba

Students! Citizens of Anantapur!

The words you uttered and the programmes you presented got imprinted in My heart. You have set an example to others and proved beyond doubt that the people of Anantapur are endowed with immense potentiality and talent. It is My wish that all other districts emulate your example. I do not have any other desire. I want to purify your heart and confer peace and bliss on you. That is the only desire I have. I do not have even a trace of hatred in Me, nor do I have any enemies. All are Mine. It is My love that is present in all of you. I speak only about love and nothing else. I have immense love for children. In fact, they are My only property. If they come up in life, the entire world will prosper.

Always be united. You call yourself a Hindu. What does the term HINDU signify? H:

Humility, I: Individuality, N: Nationality, D: Divinity, U: Unity. These are verily our five life-breaths (pranas). Just as five elements, five senses, and five life-sheaths constitute our physical body; these five principles constitute the very essence of spirituality. Hence you have to safeguard these five principles and stand united.

Never give scope for differences of opinion, even in trivial matters. If any differences were to arise, each should be prepared to forgive the other. All are the children of God. All are brothers and sisters. Understand this truth and conduct yourself accordingly.

There is love in everyone. Only when people develop love in themselves can all be united. When we develop love and give up hatred, our innate power will manifest. Elders are bogged down by a number of worries, which weaken their mental power. But the youth are endowed with immense power of mind and senses. They should develop it by putting the senses to sacred use.

Develop the spirit of unity. Never think that you belong to a particular state and thereby give rise to differences. Always think that you belong to India. This is what I said in Madras (Chennai) recently. Do not identify yourself with vyashti tattwa (individual principle). Instead, identify with samashti tattwa (societal principle) and cultivate unity. Never forget the feeling of nationality.

Consider truth, righteousness, peace, love and nonviolence as your pancha pranas (five life-breaths) and uphold the sanctity of the name manava (human being). Where there is love, there is peace. Where there is peace, there is nonviolence. One bereft of love cannot attain peace. Peace cannot be purchased in a shop. In the external world, you find only pieces, but not peace! Even if you were to ask a millionaire, he will say, "I have everything except peace of mind."

One can attain peace only through love. Divine love is the basis for every thing. When we develop love for God, everything will be taken care of. If we do not have love for God, we will be giving scope to evil qualities such as anger, hatred, jealousy, etc.

People today have given up human qualities such as love, peace, and compassion and are leading the life of an animal.

Face all difficulties with forbearance

Forbearance is the real beauty in this sacred land of Bharat (India).

Of all the rituals, adherence to truth is the greatest penance.

The nectarous feeling in this country is the feeling of love toward one's mother.

Character is valued far higher than the very life itself.

People have forgotten the basic principles of this great culture and are imitating Western culture.

Alas!

The Bharatiyas are not aware of the greatness of their cultural heritage just as a mighty elephant is not aware of its own strength. (Telugu Poem)

Man is endowed with great power. The power that is present in us cannot be traced anywhere else. But we forget our innate power because we are drowned in evil qualities such as hatred and jealousy. Never have hatred or anger toward anyone. Do not be perturbed if someone vents out his anger on you. Offer your salutation to him and remain calm and composed. Greet even your enemy with love saying, "Hello brother! How are you?"

When you address him as brother, he will reciprocate the same brotherly affection. On the other hand, if you tell him, "You are my enemy," he will continue to develop hatred toward you.

All your feelings will come back to you in the form of reaction, reflection, and resound. As the action, so is the result. Can you get the belch of pineapple when you eat a mango? No. The smell of your belch depends on the fruit you have consumed.

Likewise, you will experience only love when you fill your heart with love.

Dear children!

Develop love right from this tender age. Here, love implies not worldly love but divine love. When you have divine love, you will not be affected by the "deep wine" of worldly desires. Hence, develop divine love. My life bears testimony to the principle of divine love. Love is the hallmark of true humanness. One bereft of love cannot be called a human being at all. Hence, develop love and lead the life of manava (human being) in the true sense of the term. Earn a good name.

The programme you presented today and the feelings you have expressed should be propagated to the entire nation. Unfortunately, these days, none of the newspapers carry reports of such sacred events. They give wide publicity to all the trash of the tinsel world.

Fill your heart with sacred, selfless, and unwavering love. God is described as nirgunam, niranjanam, sanathana niketanam, nitya, shuddha, buddha, mukta, nirmala swarupinam (attributeless, pure, final abode, eternal, unsullied, enlightened, free and embodiment of sacredness).

Make efforts to sanctify your human birth. How can it be sanctified? Is it by indulging in conflicts and developing hatred? No, no. These are bestial qualities. Love is the true human quality. Hence, dear children! Develop love. Whenever there is difference of opinion among you, brush it aside. When you consider love as your life-breath, there will be no scope for bestial tendencies such as hatred and jealousy. Animals are living in forests without any hatred toward each other. Such an evil tendency is seen often among men who are supposed to lead a civilised life. It is contrary to human nature. Human life is meant to develop love, not to accumulate money. Money comes and goes but morality comes and grows. Dear children! You are endowed with a pure heart and a steady mind. When you have purity of heart, it is easy to develop love. In fact, your love can become as expansive as the sky. Never give up love under any circumstances. Swami is always in you, with you, around you, above you and below you. Hence, develop love. Very soon I will come to Anantapur. It is more than ten years since I last paid a visit to Anantapur. But now, drawn by the power of your love and sankalpa (will), I will certainly come. Be prepared for My visit singing bhajans more and more and sharing your love with one and all. "Hari Bhajan Bina Sukha Santhi Nahin" One cannot attain peace without singing the glory of God. Many women are endowed with bhakti and prapatthi (devotion and a sense of surrender). They should all come together and organise activities. They should keep their homes clean and mould their children along the sacred path. But today educated women are undertaking jobs. Such women will have little understanding of their responsibilities on the home front. If women go out for jobs, who will take care of the home? If women go out to teach others' children in schools, who will look after their own children? Firstly, teach your own children and put them on the right path. Only then can you be called a true mother. If you go to the office and neglect your own children, they may take to wrong ways.

Consequently, you will lose your peace of mind. Hence, take proper care of your family in the first instance. Respect your parents and in-laws. There lies the true meaning of ideal womanhood. Children, youth, elders, men, and women all should tread the path of truth. Only then can you spread joy and bliss to our nation and to the world at large. It is not merely our home or our physical body that we have to safeguard. We have to protect our nation. After all what is this physical body? It exists today but may not live to see another day. Body is like a water bubble. Mind is like a mad monkey. Do not follow the body, do not follow the mind. Follow your conscience. Only then can you attain happiness in all respects. Embodiments of Love! Today, your love has deeply touched My heart. My heart is filled with immense bliss watching you distribute various items to the poor and the needy. Aswattha Narayana and his family have extended all their support to this noble cause. Many people of the town, professors, and lecturers worked together with great enthusiasm. They have done much more than what they had planned. (Addressing the beneficiaries, Bhagawan said) Ask Me whatever you require, I will certainly give you. Do not give up your studies for want of money. If you cannot afford to pay your monthly fees, ask Me. I will give you the required money. Your parents may be struggling to make both ends meet. Hence, do not trouble them for money. Matru Devo bhava, pitru Devo bhava (Revere your mother as God, father as God). Do not think that God is present in a distant land, far away from you. God can never be away from you. He will never forsake you. He is always in you, with you, and around you. Have firm faith in this truth and be happy always. When you are alone, think that God is with you. Tell yourself, "I am not alone. God is with me." Right from this moment, develop such firm conviction. You will be free from all worries and anxieties. Develop sacred feelings in your heart. 27 March 2007, Ramanavami Date: 27 March 2007 Occasion: Ramanavami Place: Prasanthi

Remember the Name of Rama Forever
by
Bhagavan Sri Sathya Sai Baba
Thousands of years have passed since the advent of the Treta Yuga.
Yet, even now,
everyone, right from children to elderly people, remember the name of Rama. The glory of Rama's name is such that it has not diminished even a bit with the passage of time. This truth should be recognised by all. Rama is the name given to a form, but the name Rama is not limited to a form. Atma is Rama, and its true name is Atmarama. Therefore, wherever and whenever you remember the name Rama, Rama is there with you, in you, around
you.
Embodiments of Love!
Rama is one, whether you identify it with the Atma or with the form installed in your heart. Every year comes the festival of Sri Rama Navami. But we have not so far understood its true significance. You identify Rama with a form. But Rama is not limited to any particular form. It is the name that is latent in your heart. Many changes and variations keep occurring in the world, but the name of Rama is immutable, is eternal,
unsullied, and everlasting.
Rama was not an ordinary individual. He was verily God, who incarnated on earth for the welfare of mankind. People call God by many names like Rama, Krishna, Easwara, and Mahadeva. They are all the names of one God. You should recognise the glory of this name. Sage Vasishta said, "Ramo Vighrahan dharma (Rama is the personification of dharma (righteousness))." Dharma itself incarnated in the form of Rama.
You should follow dharma. Which dharma should you follow? Do not follow the dharma associated with your mind. Follow the principle of dharma that comes from your heart.
Sita became the consort of Rama, who was the personification of dharma. Wherefrom did Sita take birth? Sita was born out of the womb of the earth. When King Janaka was ploughing a field in the process of the performance of a yajna, he found a box in it.
When the box was opened, a small baby was found in it. Considering this as the boon of God, he took the baby home and brought it up with great care and affection. This baby was given the name Sita. Since she was the daughter of the King of Videha, she was also called Vaidehi. This name had great significance, since it means one who transcended the illusion caused by body attachment.

Once, Sita was playing a game of ball with her companions in her house. There was a big box in Janaka's house, which contained a huge bow. As her playmates were playing with the ball, the ball went under the box. It was not possible for anyone to move this box.
Sita went there and put it aside with her left hand. Seeing that act of Sita, King
Janaka decided that very day that Sita's power should be made known to the world.
Thereafter he organised a yajna and made a declaration: "Whoever strings the bow of Lord
Siva, I will give my daughter Sita in marriage to him."
Kings of many countries came there. All of them thought it was a great good fortune to marry Sita and to become the son-in-law of King Janaka. They came one after the other and tried to lift the bow, but all of them failed in their attempt.
In that assembly, Rama and Lakshmana were also present, accompanied by Sage Viswamitra.
As per the direction of the sage, Rama went forward. Rama walked with great humility to the delight of one and all. His speech, His actions, and His demeanour was full of sweetness. He went near the bow, lifted it with His left hand and bent it. It broke with a thundering sound. Everybody expressed their happiness with a loud applause.
People thought it would be very difficult to lift the bow; but what is difficult for
Rama? His mere sankalpa (will) could do any stupendous task.
Viswamitra went to Rama and said, "Rama! Today You have demonstrated Your divine power.
Certainly it is not a human power. It is indeed divine." Everyone praised Rama and started garlanding Him. Then King Janaka brought his daughter Sita. As she came, Rama did not even look in the direction from where she was coming.
Why? He did not want to look at her without the command of His parents.
King Janaka conveyed the good news to King Dasaratha at Ayodhya.
He requested all of them to come after deciding the muhurtham (auspicious time) of the marriage. He said,
"Your son has achieved success in the competition organised by me."

Therefore, all of you are requested to come prepared to celebrate the marriage of Sita with Rama."

Welcome to all for Rama's wedding;

Together we shall witness the joyous scene.

Many have gathered already, decked up in all their finery.

With necklaces the ladies are adorned

of jewels pure and gleaming.

Rama shall tie the knot today to beautiful Sita.

Oh what a fine match they make.

(Telugu Song)

The women of the kingdom came to participate in the wedding and joyfully sang the song:

Come let us go and see the marriage of Rama and Sita,

The sight shall confer great merit.

Blessed are those who see this scene.

Oh come one and all, watch with joy

the sacred marriage.

(Telugu Song)

In this manner when the women came from one direction, men came from another direction singing joyfully, "Come, let us go and see the marriage." Dasaratha, along with his queens, his sons Bharata and Satrughna, and his ministers arrived in Mithila with great enthusiasm. It appeared as though the entire Ayodhya had come to Mithila. King Janaka extended a royal welcome to them with great honour.

The name of the second daughter of King Janaka was Urmila. His younger brother had two daughters, namely Mandavi and Srutakeerthi. It was decided to give Urmila to Lakshmana, Mandavi to Bharata, and Srutakeerthi to Satrughna in marriage.

Everyone was happy that all four pairs were going to be married at the same time.

When everyone was seated in their respective places, the marriage ceremony started.

Sita, Urmila, Mandavi, and Srutakeerthi stood in front of Rama, Lakshmana, Bharata, and Satrughna respectively. First Sita put the garland around Rama's neck. Then, the other three brides garlanded their respective bridegrooms. All the people joyfully hailed the occasion.

It is not possible to describe the leelas (sports, plays) and glories of Rama.

After the marriage function, all left for Ayodhya. On the way they heard a deafening sound. When they looked around to find where the sound had come from, they were confronted with Parasurama in his fierce form. All of them were perturbed to think,

"What is this great hurdle after the glorious celebration of the marriages?" Good and bad always follow each other. After experiencing great joy in Mithila, they were confronted with a great difficulty on their way to Ayodhya.

Dasaratha and others became fear-stricken. Parasurama came forward and asked, "Who broke the bow?"

"I did it," said Rama.

"If that is so, let us see if you can break my bow." Saying so, he gave his bow into the hands of Rama. Rama broke even that bow with his left hand. Seeing that, Parasurama offered his salutations to Lord Rama and went away. Experiencing the joy of victory, all of them returned to Ayodhya and participated in the festivities held in Ayodhya with great joy and enthusiasm. The people celebrated functions with great joy to propagate

the power of Rama and the devotion of Sita to the world.

Manthara became jealous to see all those festivities. You can find people like Manthara everywhere. Manthara became very angry when King Dasaratha decided to crown Rama instead of the son of Kaikeyi; she started poisoning the mind of Kaikeyi by fabricating many false stories against Rama.

Hearing this evil talk of Manthara, the mind of Kaikeyi changed.

Though a queen, she was influenced by the words of her servant and became responsible for the exile of Rama.

Afterward, she repented, realising it was the conspiracy of Manthara. In reality, Kaikeyi loved Rama very much. It was Kaikeyi who taught many things to Rama. Rama also loved Kaikeyi more than his mother Kausalya.

Manthara pleaded with Kaikeyi, "Mother! I am your servant. From your very birth, I nursed you and brought you up. Kindly fulfil a desire of mine. King Dasaratha has decided to crown Rama. But as per the promise given to you earlier, he should crown Bharata.

Rama should be sent to exile for fourteen years."

Both Sita and Rama were ready for the coronation wearing yellow coloured silk clothes.

All were waiting in the royal court to extend welcome to them.

Meanwhile, Rama went to mother Kausalya and said, "Oh mother! I am going to forest. Kindly permit Me."

Kausalya asked, "Why my dear one! Why do you want to go the forest now, since this is the time of Your coronation?"

Rama said, "Mother! It is the command of My father that I should stay in exile in the forest for fourteen years; I have to uphold the promise made by My father." He saluted His mother and went to meet Sumitra.

Sumitra was the second wife of Dasaratha. Prior to his marriage with Sumitra, Dasaratha sought the consent of Kausalya. Kausalya replied, "Our Kingdom needs an heir, doesn't it? Hence, you may marry a woman of your choice. I will also participate in the marriage." Dasaratha was very happy and pleasantly surprised. Such women are also there in the world who go by the wishes of their husbands!

Sumitra was one of great virtues. True to her name, Su-mitra (good friend), she was the friend of all. She went to Kausalya and spoke words of great encouragement. "Dear elder sister! Why should you worry? What do you think of Rama? He is Lord Narayana Himself. What does it matter to Him whether He is in Ayodhya, or in a forest? Wherever He is, He is always with us. For Rama, Ayodhya and Aranya (forest) are one and the same."

Kausalya was somewhat comforted to hear the words of Sumitra. Her mind also became peaceful.

Sumitra added, "Dear elder sister, two sons were born to me, while both you and Kaikeyi gave birth to one son each. Do you know why? The reason is that both my sons will have the opportunity to serve their elders brothers; Lakshmana will serve Rama; and Satrughna, Bharata. Therefore, pay attention to my resolve. Lakshmana will go to forest with Rama and will protect Rama as the eyelids protect the eyes. Therefore, do not have any fear."

Before proceeding to the forest, Lakshmana went to meet his wife Urmila. So far she had not come to know that Rama, Lakshmana, and Sita were going to the forest. Sitting in her room, she was absorbed in painting the scene of the coronation of Rama and Sita.

Lakshmana went there and called, "Urmila," to draw her attention. "Yes, Swami," she said, getting up suddenly from her seat. As she got up, by mistake the paint got spilled on the painted picture. Distressed at this happening, she exclaimed, "Oh! A beautifully painted picture is spoiled."

Lakshmana said, "Urmila! Here, you are worrying that the picture is spoiled. There, Kaikeyi has spoiled the coronation of Sri Rama, which could bring about immense good to others." Lakshmana informed her that he was going to forest with Rama.

Frightened at the news of Rama going to the forest, she asked Lakshmana, "What do you mean by saying that Rama is going to the forest? A few moments from now He is going to be crowned. Is it not so?"

Lakshmana apprised her of all that had happened. Since she was endowed with a great spirit of sacrifice, she was not at all perturbed by the thought of separation from her husband. Overjoyed at the thought of her husband getting the opportunity to serve Rama and Sita, she said to Lakshmana, "Sanctify your time by serving Rama and Sita. Very few have such a great fortune. Go happily." Saying this, she bade farewell to Lakshmana.

Cautioning her daughter about the dangers of the forest, Janaka asked Sita, "Sita! You are going to the forest with Rama. Many fierce animals roam about in the forest and frightening sounds are also heard there. Can you bear all this without getting frightened?"

Sita replied, "Where is the scope for any fear of animals when Rama, a lion in the human form, is there with me? Rama is Lord Narayana Himself. Therefore, I have nothing to fear."

In this manner, Sita, Rama, and Lakshmana put at rest the fears of everyone and proceeded to the forest. In the forest, Lakshmana protected Rama and Sita with great care and engaged himself in their service.

After killing Ravana, when Rama returned to Ayodhya along with Sita, the people of Ayodhya welcomed them enthusiastically hailing their return with great festivity, "Rama has come. Mother Sita has come. Ayodhya is shining in the effulgence of their glory. This is a great day for Ayodhya." There were many great celebrations on their return to Ayodhya, and the people were overjoyed to see Rama and Sita, whom they revered as Lord Narayana and Lakshmi.

Sita counseled Rama, "Transform this kingdom into a kingdom of joy where everybody can lead their life happily."

Even today, people in every village, every house, and every hut of Bharat (India) worship Rama. It is a common practice among the people of Bharat to name their children

Rama and Sita. There is no change in the name of Rama and Sita, even after the passage of thousands of years. The glory of these names is eternal and immutable. There have been wars in many countries, but not in Bharat. People may fight with each other due to their personal differences, but no war was fought in this country. Not only that, there will never be any war in Bharat. It is Rama Rajya. It is the land of peace. It is the land of love.

This land of Bharat has given birth to many noble women, like Savitri, who brought her dead husband back to life;

Chandramati, who extinguished wild fire with the power of truth;

Sita, who proved her chastity by coming out of blazing fire unscathed; and

Damayanti, who reduced an evil-minded hunter to ashes with the power of her chastity.

This land of piety and nobility attained plenty and prosperity and became the teacher of all nations of the world because of such women of chastity.

(Telugu Poem)

Such great women took birth in the land of Bharat. Therefore, every day in Bharat is a festival and an occasion for celebration. You know that when a man's wife dies, he immediately makes efforts to marry again. But the women of Bharat are not like that.

Bharat is befittingly called the teacher of the world. In this sacred land, Lord

Narayana incarnated and redeemed the life of the people by showing them His divine play and divine glory.

Every individual is the image of the Atma. The same truth was propounded by Krishna:

Mamaivamsho Jivaloke Jivabhuta Sanathana (the eternal Atma in all beings is a part of My Being). All of you are the embodiments of the Atma. You may be having different names, but the Atmarama in all of you is the same.

Therefore, do not think Rama is somewhere else. Your heart itself is the temple of Rama.

Therefore, constantly contemplate on Rama who is immanent in your heart. Rama is there with you, in you, around you not only in your waking state, but also in the dream and deep sleep state. He is eternally with you.

Rama is not limited to a particular form. He assumes innumerable forms. Though the forms are many, Divinity in them is one. Therefore, whomsoever you see, offer your salutations

to them, considering them as the form of Rama.

Now, Swami is being extolled as Sai Rama and Sai Krishna because He embodies the same principles of dharma (righteousness), prema (love), and santhi (peace) that Lord Rama and Lord Krishna personified.

Rama is immanent in everyone; Easwara is present in all; Rama is within you. In fact, you yourself are Rama. Establish this truth in your heart firmly and spend your time profitably. Then your life will be filled with everlasting bliss.

Constantly recite the name of Rama.

Aeons have passed, yet the name of Rama has not been forgotten.

Rama is not separate from you. You are not separate from Rama. You may call a person by their name, but it is

Rama who is present in them. You may call them Sai Rama, Sita

Rama, or Ayodhya Rama or any other name, but do remember Rama forever.

Water is the Gift of God to Man

by

Bhagavan Sri Sathya Sai Baba

Embodiments of Love!

As mentioned by the speakers who spoke just now, I provided water to Chennai both for drinking as well as for cultivation purposes. But the repair work of the canal was done only up to the border of Andhra Pradesh. Not only was this work executed without any problem, it was also done in such a nice way that not even a drop of water was allowed to be wasted. Thus, the water of the river Krishna reached up to the border of Tamil

Nadu very smoothly without any wastage.

But there was wastage of water after it entered the Tamil Nadu border because the part of the canal on the Tamil Nadu side was not repaired. It was envisaged that this work would be done by the Tamil Nadu Government, but it has not been done so far. Naturally, the people are worried because the work has not been completed.

Therefore, I have decided to undertake this task (loud applause). The length of the canal to be repaired toward Chennai is about 25 km. The cost of repairing it is estimated at 30 to 40 crore rupees.

Depend only on God

There is no need for you to depend upon anybody else. It is enough if you pray to God.

God can perform any task.

Very soon, I will complete this work so that the water reaches the people of Chennai in full measure. Shortly, I will send the engineers there. Because of breaches in the canal on the Tamil Nadu side, a lot of water is being wasted. After the repair work is done, adequate water will reach Sathyamurthy Sagar. Thus, Sathyamurthy Sagar will be filled with Sathya Sai water (loud prolonged applause). I will do this work. This will ensure permanent supply of water to Chennai.

Sai can do any work that nobody else is able to do. The remaining part of the canal will be nicely repaired with cement lining.

Everybody has Equal Right on Water

You have seen for yourself how much water is being wasted now. Water is not anybody's property; it is God's property. People are fighting with each other for water, which, in reality, is the property of God. So they have no right to fight. Water is God's gift to man. Everybody has equal right over it.

The name of this year is Sarvajit. What is the meaning of Sarvajit? It means victory in all fields, viz. business, agriculture, education, etc. Hence, we will also be victorious in performing this task. I will complete this work so that you have no inconvenience henceforth. I am prepared to spend any amount of money. The five elements are the gift of God; water is one of them. It is in the hands of God. You need not approach anyone else.

You may inform Karunanidhi that I will surely do this work. Convey this good news to the people of Chennai also in this auspicious Sarvajit year. May you all lead a happy life!

Constantly contemplate on God. This is your total protection. How can people have any problem when they have this sacred protection? Why fear when I am here? (loud applause)

In this Sarvajit year, I will give water for Sathyamurthy Sagar. Therefore, you should have no worry. Have faith that God will not only provide food and water to you, He will look after you in all respects.

Today is the sacred New Year day. It is an important day for the people of both Kerala and Tamil Nadu. The people of Kerala and Tamil Nadu are recipients of My grace in full measure (loud prolonged applause). Hereafter, you will have no problems. Earlier, small children were suffering from many ailments by drinking polluted water. Now drink this sweet water, enjoy good health, and lead a blissful and happy life without any problems.

All of you who have come here should go back happily. You will have no dearth of anything in life. I have great love for Chennai.

Where is Chennai, and where is Puttaparthi? Did anyone come here and pray to Me? No. Sai

Himself has come to you and provided water. My love for Chennai cannot be described in words. May you all enjoy good health by eating good food and drinking pure water!

April 2007 on the occasion of Tamil New Year and Vishu.)

Make Your Mind the Master of Desires

by

Bhagavan Sri Sathya Sai Baba

Embodiments of Love!

Easwaramma Day is held to commemorate the day when Easwaramma left her physical body.

The body is made up of five elements and

is bound to perish sooner or later,

But the indweller has neither birth nor death.

The indweller has no attachment whatsoever and is the eternal witness.

(Telugu Poem)

Understand the importance of the mind

People are deluded by body attachment. The body is ephemeral, evanescent, and impermanent. Whatever is born is transient only. Whatever is there in this world is bound to perish. Only one thing remains forever, and that is the mind.

But many people call it monkey mind. No. You belong to mankind and have nothing to do with monkey mind. The mind, in fact, is of the nature of the Self. You should make befitting efforts to understand its true nature. Only those who have control over their mind can be called human beings.

Many in this world are highly educated. Also, many have mastered various forms of knowledge and are engaged in mighty tasks. But they cannot be called human beings in the true sense of the term if they have no control over their mind. All kinds of good and bad thoughts occur in the mind. Keeping the mind away from all that is bad, you should accept only that which is good. Never allow your mind to associate with anything that is bad.

Goddess Lakshmi always chants only "Narayana! Narayana!" The principle of Atma originates from Lord Narayana. You may say Atma or mind or hridaya (heart); they are all one. The Atma means Narayana only! The mind is also Narayana! And so is the heart.

Narayana is called Hridayavasi (indweller of the heart). We should give utmost importance to the mind. But many people do not give due importance to it. One who consider their mind as the basis of his life is a true human being. One who leaves their mind to its whims and fancies is, in reality, a monkey and not a human being. You should make your mind the centre of your awareness. Leaving the mind to its arbitrary ways is like leaving your life principle itself. Hence, make your mind the basis of every aspect of your life.

(At this point, Bhagawan materialised a gold medallion.) This medallion has the image of Lakshmi at its centre, with precious stones all around it. The precious stones represent the desires, over which presides Lakshmi who is true, eternal, and permanent. You should make your mind the master of desires, like Lakshmi. Everyone should try to know this truth.

As the feeling, so is the result
At the time of my departure for East Africa, Easwaramma tried to dissuade me from going, saying, "Swami! I hear there are many fierce animals in those forests, and the place is full of all kinds of dangers. So you should not go there. Whatever You will, all that will come here. Then why do you want to go there?"

I told her, "I am not going to see the wild animals there. I am going in response to the loving prayers of My devotees."

When I went there, the devotees of East Africa arranged small aeroplanes. I went round the forest in one such plane. There were thousands of wild elephants in the Kampala forest. It looked as though the entire forest was full of elephants. I had taken bananas with Me and gave one each to some of them. All of them enjoyed eating it.

Bisons were also seen in thousands. We saw lions lying on the road here and there. Even when we drove our jeep over their tails, they did not react. Even fierce animals will not harm us if our mind is good. They will attack us only when we try to harm them. When we look at them with love, they also will look at us with love.

Yad bhavam tad bhavathi (as the feeling, so is the result). Our thoughts are the cause of their enmity or trust.

As we went forward looking at the animals, we saw fifteen lions lying near the road.

Some were suckling their young ones, some others were eating the meat of an animal brought by them. I said to Dr. Patel and others who accompanied Me, "When we do not harm them, they also do not harm us."

Taking a camera from one of those who accompanied Me, I went near the lions and took their photographs. All of them were happy to see Me. You can see, none of the lions did any harm to us. When you approach them with the evil intention of harming or killing them, they will also try to kill you. Never go to them with such wicked thoughts. In fact, do not look at any being with evil intentions.

Do not develop body attachment

Meanwhile, Easwaramma kept thinking about Me with great concern and did not even eat her food properly, with the result that she became quite weak. I kept her informed everyday morning and evening by phone from Kampala saying, "I am quite all right." Hearing this,

she used to be somewhat comforted.

When I came from Kampala, she was very happy. She came near My car and garlanded Me, saying, "Swami! You look very happy and healthy." She took Me inside and rotated a coconut in front of Me to ward off the effect of evil looks of others.

Beside herself with joy, she said, "Swami, I never imagined that Your trip would be such a grand success." She shared her joy with one and all in Puttaparthi. Whenever we visited other places, on our return to Puttaparthi, Easwaramma used to describe to the people all that happened during these visits and exhorted them to follow the ideals set by Swami.

Once, the Summer Course in Indian Culture and Spirituality was being conducted at Bangalore. At that time, Easwaramma had also come with Me. As long as she was alive, she always desired, "Swami, wherever you go, I should go with you." She asked Me to give her a promise that I would not leave Puttaparthi.

I gave her the promise. "Wherever a tree is planted, it should be allowed to grow there only. If it is pulled out and planted at different places, it cannot attain proper growth."
She used to plead with Me, "Swami! You should always reside at the place of your birth."
One day, after her breakfast, she had a cup of coffee. Suddenly, she shouted, "Swami, Swami, Swami."
I called back saying, "I am coming, I am coming, I am coming."
She asked Me to come quickly, and I came to her immediately. She caught hold of My hands
and placed them on her head and breathed her last.
Where was the need to keep the body that had no life in it? Therefore, immediately, I sent her body to Puttaparthi. I sent Ramabrahmam with the body after giving him
necessary instructions.
Those who were present there said, "Swami! You should also go with the body." But I refused to go. Summer classes were in progress, and students had come from many countries. The students thought that there would be no classes on that day since Swami would be going with the body of Mother Easwaramma. But the classes were held as usual,
and I went to the second class.
The students wondered, "How has Swami come! He was supposed to go with the body of Mother Easwaramma!"
Why should I go with the body? The body goes as it comes. I did not come with her body;
I came separately. Therefore, I sent her body to Puttaparthi in a car with the instructions to make a samadhi for her.
Many people in Puttaparthi also wondered, "Why Swami has not come with the body?" The body comes alone and goes alone. Everyone comes alone and goes alone. Ekameva adviteeyam
Brahma (God is one without a second).
After the completion of the summer classes, I went to Puttaparthi. I told everybody there, "It is natural for the body to have birth, growth, and death. All bodies are like that. Therefore, nobody should have body attachment." (Here, Swami told the life story of Ishwarchandra Vidyasagar, who fulfilled the noble desires of his mother and set an example of service to society. He also taught the lesson of humility and selfless service to an I.C.S. officer by carrying his suitcase

from the railway station to the place where Ishwarchandra Vidyasagar himself was to deliver his speech.)
Easwaramma was happy that I ate only simple food. She would say,
"Swami, You should let the world know about Your food habits."
I said that I would certainly do so. Right from those days, I have been emphasising the need to have simple and sathwic (pure) food. When I am in Puttaparthi, I always eat ragi sankati with groundnut chutney. Sometimes, I take sankati with totakura dhal instead of chutney. I do not relish any other item. I do not touch spicy items like kurmas, burmas!
I do not even like the smell of kurma. My only dietary requirement is sankati with chutney.
But when I visit other places, people in those towns do not know what sankati is. So, I eat whatever the devotees prepare for Me. I conduct Myself in accordance with the time, situation, and circumstances. However, I never deviate from My practices; I strictly adhere to them. Let people think what they want. I never imitate the practices of others. In this manner, this body is completing 81 years. But none can say that I look like an 82-year-old person.
May you sanctify your time in the service of Swami! May you put into practice the principles of service that I have taught you! With this, I bring My Discourse to a close.

Only Love for God is True Love
by
Bhagavan Sri Sathya Sai Baba
We see a large number of living beings in this world. But none of them has the greatness, wisdom, and discrimination of man. That is why it is said, Jantunam nara
janma durlabham (of all living beings, human birth is the rarest).
Everything in this world is consists of the five elements. These five elements are present not only in people but also in animals, birds, insects, and trees. But what is the use if one does not make proper use of these five elements?
Today, man is engaged in the pursuit of knowledge. How vast is this knowledge? It is as vast as an ocean. Similarly, man makes efforts to develop common sense. His common sense touches the height of the Himalayan mountains. In spite of all his knowledge and common sense, the power of discrimination is zero. What is good and what is bad? What should be done and what should not be done? This power of thinking is zero in people today. That is why humanness has suffered a great decline. The value of humanness depends only on discriminatory power. One may possess anything and everything, but what is the use if one has no discrimination? People keep on comparing themselves with others in many ways. But nobody is making efforts to know if their discrimination power is more or less. Today people are engaged in amassing wealth. But they do not use their knowledge of discrimination to know whether they need that much money or not. Wherever we see today, we find people hankering after money. The mind is very powerful. But today, one's today is deluded. (Bhagawan showing His handkerchief.) What is this? This is cloth. How does it take the form of cloth? It becomes cloth by weaving thread. But where does this thread come from? It comes from cotton. So, first cotton, second thread, and third cloth. In the same way, you are not one person but three: the one you think you are, the one others think you are, and the one you really are (loud applause). The thread and cloth come only from cotton. Similarly, man is constituted of five elements. Krishna declared in the Bhagavad Gita: Mamaivamsho jivaloke jivabhuta sanathana (the eternal Atma in all beings is a part of My Being). It means that we all are parts of the Divine. All of you are in search of God. But there is no need to search for God, because you yourself are God. When you have light in your own house, where is the need to go to the houses of others in search of light? You develop the feelings of "I" and "mine" due to the delusion caused by body attachment. In fact, the body is the cause of all attachments. But how long does this body last? It is desired only as long as there is life in it. When the life principle goes out of it, the body is mercilessly put on fire. Then, to whom does this body belong? Therefore, you are not the body. You say, "This is my body, this is my hand, this is my leg, this is my mind, this is my buddhi (intellect)." Everything is my, my, my. Then, who is that "my"? When you say, "my leg", you are separate from your leg. Then who are you? You are you only. In this way, people today are deluded by their attachment to their body and senses. But you are not the body, you are not the senses, you are not the intellect, you are you. You should realise, "I am I." That universal "I" principle is only one. Ekam sath viprah bahudha vadanti (truth is one, but the wise refer to it by many names). But the individual "I" represents ego. When you cut this "I", it becomes the cross that is worshiped by the Christians. It means: when you give up your ego, you become your true self. You are not an ordinary person; you are God yourself. There is no need to search for God. Wherever you look, God is there. This cloth is God, this flower is God, this table is God, everything is God. It is only due to your ignorance that you give scope to differences like "I" and "you". You are not a separate entity. I am I. I am not Sathya Sai Baba. Sathya Sai Baba is the name given to this body. I don't have any particular name. Your body is the gift of your parents. This body is endowed with pancha bhutas (five elements), panchendriyas (five senses), and pancha pranas (five life principles). These pancha pranas are prana, apana, vyana, udana, and samana (life breath, downward air, air that is diffused throughout the body, breath that moves upward through the throat, and digestive air). They are the same in everyone. Therefore, you are not different from others. Those who are unaware of this spiritual principle become victims of ignorance and are subjected to delusion. Everything in this world is reaction, reflection, and resound. Where does the resound come from? Here I am speaking. Where do My words come from? They come from My heart. You think that you hear with your ears. But it is not so. All your senses are, in fact, like decorations to your body; they cannot function on their own without the life principle within you.

 There is no need to search for God. Have faith that God is within you.
 When you have faith in God, you develop love. From love emerges peace, and peace gives rise to truth.
 This truth is God. Truth does not exist separately. There is no need to search for truth. Truth has no form. Truth is truth. Who has created peace?
 Peace is peace. It also has no form. Love is love. It is not anybody's creation. Love is God, Live in Love.
 What are the human values? They are sathya, dharma, santhi, prema, and ahimsa (truth, righteousness, peace, love, and nonviolence). They have no form.
 These formless
 principles are imprinted on your heart.
 All that we read and write corresponds to physical and worldly education. It cannot be called education in the true sense of the term. What is true is educare. Educare means to bring out our latent values. They are immanent in our heart, but we cannot see them.
 They have to be manifested through self-enquiry. True sadhana (spiritual exercise) lies in recognising and manifesting peace, truth, and sacrifice, which are present in our
 heart.
 You undertake various spiritual practices like meditation and japa (recitation of God's name). What do you understand by japa? You think japa means counting the beads of a rosary. But it is not so. All these spiritual practices are merely our imagination. They are all artificial, not real.
 Science teaches many things. It gives only that knowledge which we acquire through our senses. There can be no science without senses. We are leading artificial and mechanical life by acquiring this knowledge. It is not true life.
 First and foremost, you must have faith. You can recognise your true form only when you have faith. From faith comes peace. Truth emerges from peace. This truth is God. God does not have any separate form. God manifests from the truth within you. You undertake many spiritual practices. In spite of all practices, you are unable to experience truth.
 Do not waste your time in unnecessary pursuits. Time waste is life waste. First of all, you should understand that truth is your goal. You will have no obstacles when truth is on your side. Your senses and mind are very strong when you are young. Your intellect is also very sharp. Being endowed with such great power, why should you feel weak and helpless?

 Love is not your individual property. It is universal and belongs to all.
 Love is in everyone. Love is there in you, Me, and everyone. We attribute various names to this love and try to experience it. You should not think otherwise. Today, even school children develop a tendency for artificial love. But this is not correct.
 This
 artificial love makes man weak. This weakness can cause many diseases. Do not develop such love, which gives rise to diseases.
 The principle of love is the principle of Divinity, nothing else. Accept the love that comes from God. Do not accept the love that comes from others. Your love for God is true love. Whomsoever you love other than that, it cannot be called true love.
 People develop attachment to many people, but they are unable to experience true love.
 True love originates only from God. God is the embodiment of love.
 Love is God. Live in Love. You should experience only divine love, not worldly love. I will explain to you this principle of love in detail later. We have already exceeded the time limit.
 Therefore, I don't want to cause inconvenience to you.
 It is very easy to attain God. If you ask which is the easiest thing to attain in this world, it is only God. You can attain God in no time without undergoing any strain. It is very easy to experience love. Love is very powerful. Nothing in this world can surpass it. When you look at it, love appears to be very small. But it is as deep as an ocean and as high as a mountain. It is inexhaustible and infinite. You should realise
 this principle of love. Nobody can describe the principle of love because of the limitations of the circumstances and experiences.

 Always Be Happy and Peaceful
 by

Bhagavan Sri Sathya Sai Baba

The Creation emerges from Truth and merges into Truth,
Is there a place in the cosmos where Truth does not exist?

Visualise this pure and unsullied truth.

(Telugu poem)

Every living being in this world, right from an ant to an insect, a bird,
to a beast,

has emerged from Truth only! Those who realise this truth are real yogis. Devoid of Truth, nothing will move in this universe. And that supreme Truth is embodied only in one person. He is Sathyam.

(Here Bhagavan Sri Sathya Sai Baba materialised a lingam and showed it to all). Who else can manifest such pure consciousness? Truth is omnipresent. When you think of it and contemplate on it, it can manifest in you also. Hence, constantly contemplate on Truth.

Why was this body named Sathya Sai? Truth alone manifests from this Sai. Sathyam is present in the heart of whoever contemplates on Truth. Hence, one should never forget

Truth.

Dharma (righteousness) is the reaction, reflection, and resound of Sathyam (Truth). In fact, Sathyanasti paro dharma (There is no dharma greater than adherence to truth).

Today, we teach several branches of knowledge in secular education.
But this is not true education. True education relates to the Truth that emerges out of one's heart. It has no name and form. What could be the form of Truth? What is the form of dharma? What is the form of santhi (peace)? Sathya, dharma, santhi, prema, and ahimsa (truth, righteousness, peace, love, and nonviolence) are all formless.

One has to manifest these human values from out of one's heart. The kind of divine

energy that is not present in a human being is not to be found in any other living being either. Hence, a human being is verily God. He is God in human form.

You all consider a human being as a mere human being. That is why you are committing so many mistakes. You are not merely a human being. You are God, verily. Think that you are

God and you will become God. Yad bhavam tad bhavathi (as the feelings, so is the result). When you think of bad, you will get only bad thoughts.

All people in this world love someone or the other. However, there are differences in such love. Students love their fellow students. Ladies love other ladies. God is present in this lady as well as the other lady. Both are embodiments of Divinity. The one God is present in all bodies. We must love every human being. Love all serve all, since God is present in all human beings. There is no place in this universe where God is not present. God is present in the sky, in the water, in the sound, and in the light. Thus,

everything in this universe is the embodiment of Divinity.

We forsake such omnipresent Divinity and worship God in the form of some idol in a temple. No doubt, you can worship those idols. Nothing wrong in that.

But you must realise the truth that the same God in that idol is present in every human being, nay,

in every living being.

I don't say it is wrong to worship those idols. But you yourself are God. Consider

yourself as God first, and then begin to see the same God in every living being. Your body is a temple. There is divine energy in that temple. However, a little discrimination is to be exercised in this context. You have to enquire whether this energy is God.

In fact, the body is also God. God is immanent in every atom and every cell of the human body. There is no place in this universe where God is not present.

Hence, do not entertain any doubt about the existence of God. Do not forget God. In fact, if you forget yourself, it amounts to forgetting God. Hence, do not forget yourself.

It is for this reason that one is advised, "Always be careful." You must constantly

enquire into yourself, "Am I forgetting God?" You must always be aware of your true nature and remind yourself, "I am I." If you are firmly established in that truth, there will be no scope at all to entertain any evil thoughts about others.

Not realising their own true nature, fools and ignoramuses think otherwise. God is present in all human beings. All the heads of all human beings in this world are God's own heads, verily. That is why God is described as Virataswarupa (embodiment of cosmic

Divinity). His is the cosmic form.

Each one in that cosmic form has a different form. However, God is immanent in every form. Krishna declared in the Bhagavad Gita. Mamaivamsho

jivaloke jivabhuta sanathana

(the eternal Atma in all beings is a part of My Being). I alone am present in each one of you. You are not different from Me. Do not entertain any doubts or differences of opinion in this regard.

Strengthen your love, that is the proper sadhana (spiritual exercise).

If only the fruit

of love in your heart is ripened, the juice of that fruit can be shared with one and all. Hence, let that fruit of love ripen in your heart first. If only you fill your heart with pure love, that love can be shared with all. All people then will become embodiments of love. Then, there will be no scope at all for hatred and violence in the world.

Today, wherever you look you will find hatred and differences of opinion among people.

In fact, they are not differences in the real sense. They may appear to be differences in the secular life. But all are one from the spiritual angle. Strictly speaking, all are zeroes and only God is the hero. He alone is one. All others are zeroes standing next to Him. That is why they acquire value. Remove that one, and all will be reduced to mere zeroes! Hence, God is the only important entity in our life.

The mind alone is responsible for all the sorrows and difficulties as well as happiness of human beings. Several people consider mind as very bad and call it "monkey mind". In My opinion, it is not monkey mind; it is mankind. It is always kind. It is the mind that gives you joy and happiness. It is again the mind that causes you worry and sorrow. If only you can keep the mind in proper state, nothing can be bad. Consider the mind also as divine. Then you will always be happy.

Nityanandam, parama sukhadam, kevalam jnanamurtim, dwand-wateetam, gagana sadrisham,

tattwamasyadi lakshyam, ekam, nityam, vimalam, achalam,
sarvadhee sakshibhutam, bhava-teetam, trigunarahitam (The Atma is the embodiment of eternal bliss, wisdom absolute, beyond the pair of opposites, expansive and pervasive like the sky, the goal indicated by the aphorism Tattwamasi, one without a second, eternal, pure, unchanging, witness of all functions of the intellect, beyond all mental conditions and the three attributes of sathwa (purity), rajas (passion), and thamas (ignorance, inertia)).

Call it Atma or mind or consciousness all are one. We ascribe different names to the same principle, according to our convenience and reference. For example, this body has been given the name Sathya. This name is given to the body and not to Me. I am not the body. I am not the mind. I am not the intellect. I am not the (subconscious mind). I am not imagination. Bhagawan is Bhagawan. You must develop such firm faith.

It is possible that the minds of some people are susceptible to some disturbances due to changes in food habits and recreation. It is also possible that they may be influenced by some friends in this regard. Frequently, I repeat the saying, "Tell me your company,

I shall tell you what you are." Hence, I advise you to join the company of noble souls.

Satsangatwe nissangatwam,

Nissangatwe nirmohatwam,

Nirmohatwe nischalatattwam,

Nischalatattwe jivanmukti.

(Sanskrit sloka)

Good company leads to detachment;

Detachment makes one free from delusion;

Freedom from delusion leads to steadiness of mind;

Steadiness of mind confers liberation.

Everyone can attain mukthi (liberation). But when? The moment you establish yourself in the truth "I am Atma" you will attain liberation.

Always think, "Swami is in me." "I am in Swami." However, it will be no use if you simply repeat, "I am Swami, I am Swami," with a fickle mind. Develop firm faith, "I am Swami; I am God; I am God." Only when you develop that firm conviction will you attain Divinity, which is nirgunam, niranjanam, sanathana niketanam, nitya, shuddha, buddha, muktha, nirmala swarupinam (God is attributeless, unsullied, final abode, eternal, pure, enlightened, free, and the embodiment of sacredness).

On the other hand, if your mind is polluted with bad thoughts, everything will turn out to be bad for you.

Nowadays, even water is polluted. The human body will be afflicted with several diseases on account of this water pollution. It is therefore necessary that the physical body be protected to a certain extent.

What do you think of the purpose for which this body is gifted to you by God? It is only to make you realise your own Self. But you forget this purpose and concentrate your mind on the physical body. After all, what is there in the physical body? The body is like a water bubble. The mind is like a mad monkey. Don't follow the body. Don't follow the mind. Follow the conscience. If only you learn this simple principle, your life will be sanctified.

You need not pay heed to whatever people may say. Purity of consciousness is the fruition of knowledge. Only when your consciousness is pure will you attain wisdom.

Purity of the mind is of utmost importance. Keep your mind pure, free from all kinds of pollution. Whenever evil thoughts enter your mind, remind yourself, "This is not good; this is not mine; not mine," and drive away those evil thoughts. Tell yourself, "These are all not my property; my property is only good thoughts and good ideas."

Constantly remember the truth that love is God. Live in love. If you can cultivate such positive and noble thoughts, everything will turn out to be good for you.

Several people here are deluded by ephemeral things. No doubt, you are pure at heart.

You have only pure thoughts. But certain amount of pollution sets in now and then. You must ensure that it does not happen. That is sadhana (spiritual exercise) for you. What is sadhana? Is it sitting in meditation and doing japa (recitation of God's name)? No.

This is not sadhana. What do you think is the meaning of meditation? You think it is sitting in a lonely place and contemplating on the Lord's name. Not at all! Contemplate upon the pure thoughts in your mind. Contemplate on the Truth in you.

If you really wish to know the secret of sadhana, it can be explained through very simple methods. For example, make your mind steady and still for as short a period as eleven seconds. You can attain realisation even in such a short period. Realisation cannot be achieved by becoming restless like a clock. Just eleven seconds of stillness of mind would be enough. But you don't do even that. You can achieve a lot during this period.

Hence, do not trouble yourself unnecessarily. You are, at present, putting your body to a lot of trouble. You are wasting a lot of money too. Time waste is life waste. Money waste is an evil. Hence, do not waste money and time. Time is God and God is time.

Hence, whenever you find time, think of Swami. I will certainly appear before you. Not only that, I will even talk to you. I am receiving several letters saying that Swami has appeared before them and talked to them.

You can also do such sadhana. Develop such unflinching faith in Swami. You will surely succeed in your sadhana. Several people have come here as devotees. They have, no doubt, deep devotion towards Swami. But what is devotion? What is the hallmark of a devotee?

This has to be analysed first. First and foremost, you have to develop faith.

Where there is faith, there is love; Where there is love, there is truth; Where there is truth; there God is.

Truth is God. You need not have to make any special efforts to know Truth. In fact, eleven seconds are enough to realise truth. Just contemplate in your mind for a period of eleven seconds on Truth and you will be able to have God's darshan.

You are unnecessarily taxing your body by sitting for hours together in meditation. At the end, you are suffering from pain in legs and hands and back ache. Do not give scope for such painful joints. You ultimately land in a doctor's clinic, who will diagnose your trouble as rheumatic pains. They are not rheumatic pains at all. They are the result of misguided sadhana. Stick to the time schedule of eleven seconds, and you will have no pain.

In addition, also have timely food. With regard to food, you have to know certain subtle things and observe some restrictions. Do not consume non-vegetarian food like meat and fish. In fact, foreigners are used to non-vegetarian food only. This type of food causes diseases, like cancer. Hence, give up such food, totally.

Not only that. They also like cheese very much. The more you consume cheese, the weaker you become. Also, do not take milk in excess quantity. Too much milk is very bad. It should be in limit. The milk should be diluted with water in equal proportion. The same is the case with curd. It should not be thick. It should be semi-solid.

Thus, you have to control the food you eat daily. Proper food at the proper time is very much necessary for contemplating on God. If you take proper food and observe discipline in your habits, you are sure to have God's darshan at that very moment. You need not have to undertake rigorous sadhana for months and years. You can always be blissful.

Bliss is the form of God.
You desire bliss. But from where do you get bliss? From a shop in the market? Or by having a sumptuous meal with a variety of dishes in a hotel? No, not at all! Bliss has to come from within. You are, in fact, the embodiment of bliss. You were blissful at the time of your birth. But once you started developing attachment with the world, you began crying.
Hence, you have to reduce your worldly attachments. At present, you have a lot of attachment to the world. Thereby, you are weakening your body. Ultimately you will end up in sorrow.
Worry is a very bad quality. Hurry, worry and curry these three together make the heart very weak. Hence, keep them at a distance.
Whenever you are in difficulty, just assure yourself that these are passing clouds, which will move away, and therefore you will not be worried.
Whatever comes has to go.
They are momentary.
The same is the case with the human body. Hence, give importance to the body only to the extent required. The body has to be maintained within proper limits. Otherwise, it will decay. You have to be very careful. Those who are engaged in sadhana and wish to have the darshan, sparshan, and sambhashan (vision, touch, and conversation) with God must follow My advice in this regard. You are sure to have His darshan, and can even talk to Him.
Devotion is not merely performing certain forms of worship or undertaking religious vows or doing japa. Real devotion presupposes unshakeable love toward God, devoid of delusion. You have to cultivate such steadfast love toward God. Then you will certainly attain Divinity.
Since people are at present attached to the world, demonic qualities are growing in them. Both kama (desire) and krodha (anger) are the worst enemies of a human being.
Always be happy, smiling, and loving. When you are smiling, love will automatically develop in you. There are, of course, some people who will put up a "castor oil" face.

You must always be smiling and cheerful. God is always blissful. He does not at all worry for anything. Sorrow and worry are nowhere near God.
Observe Me. I am always cheerful and smiling. I have no pain or suffering. I am revealing the truth.
Some time ago, I sustained an injury to My leg due to a mistake committed by the students. My hip bone suffered four cracks. The doctors examined Me and decided to put My leg in bandage. I refused. I came to the balcony by walk and gave darshan, to the devotees. Even now, one of My legs is shorter by two inches.
Several doctors, including Dr. Pillay and his son from Singapore, came and wanted to examine Me. They are specialists in the branch of orthopaedics. Also several experts from America and other places came. They prayed, "Swami! Please spare just five minutes to us to examine Your leg." I told them, "I will give you five hours for a spiritual purpose, if you wish. But I don't give this body even for five minutes for a clinical examination."
Even now, the students hold My body as I walk. I shout at them saying, "I will not go if you follow Me." Thus, I give strict instructions to the students accompanying Me. I am able to manage Myself. I have no pain or suffering in the least. I can walk in the normal way. I do not fumble while walking and can keep My normal pace.
I maintain the same body weight for many years. My body weight then was 110 pounds.
There was neither an increase nor a decrease in the body weight even to the extent of half pound. I am always hale and healthy. No one need worry about My health. I will always be happy.
When you look at Swami from an external angle, you will think that Swami is perhaps suffering from severe pain. Not at all! I have no pain whatsoever. Even if there is some pain, your love for Swami will remove that pain. It is enough if I look at you; all My pain is gone! I will be happy and cheerful. My pain, if at all there is some, has to be removed by your love for Swami and not by the doctors. What could be the reason for people in such large numbers gathering here today? What does it connote? I am extremely happy that I am able to win the love of so many people. You also be happy, wherever you are. I am always happy. I am extremely happy to see you all here. This is your good fortune. This time, the people have all come here with intense love and devotion. That makes Me very happy and cheerful. I am very eager to come to the Sai Kulwant Hall by walk from tomorrow to give you darshan.

There is no medicine more efficacious than love. Your love is My medicine. That is the most powerful medicine. Equally, My love is a powerful medicine to all of you.

Always be happy and peaceful. Live like members of the same family with love and affection. Do not be weighed down by petty difficulties and suffering. Do not give scope to any worry. Even if your wife or children suffer from a disease, do not get perturbed.

Go back to your places with firm faith that everything will turn out to be good. Lead a happy and peaceful life.

(Swami, at this point of time showed to the audience the linga He had created earlier to and enquired), Did you see this linga? It is heavy. A much bigger linga will emerge from Swami's mouth. The Sivarathri festival is approaching.

Discrimination is the Means to Self-realisation

by

Bhagavan Sri Sathya Sai Baba

Embodiments of Love!

Today's function is being held to celebrate the anniversary of the School of Business Management, Accounting, and Finance. What is meant by business?

Does business mean

exchange of goods? No, it is not so.

Truly speaking, the entire world is engaged in business. Right from the Prime Minister of the country to an ordinary worker, everybody is involved in some kind of business or other and is following the working system appropriate to their occupation. Knowing fully well this reality, our students are making a mark for themselves in all fields of life.

Never forsake your culture

Man is endowed with five senses of perception. The functioning of the five senses is also a type of business in which all the limbs are engaged. All the senses perform their business in the most appropriate manner with regard to the limbs with which they are associated. Those who give proper direction to their senses so as to lead them on the right path are truly first rankers.

Business that is done mainly by reading books, and business journals and comparing

Indian business with overseas business cannot be called business in the true sense of the term. Indian business should be concerned with Indian traditions and values. It should keep in view the interest and situation of the country. Other countries are making changes in their business ventures just to increase their power. We should not imitate them in any such manner. We should adopt those practices that are appropriate to our culture and traditions.

Taking only money into consideration in business is flawed; culture has to be given utmost importance. Along with culture, the interest of the country should also be given high priority. True business is that which keeps culture and country in view. Some people today ignore the culture due to the influence of modern times. Never forsake culture, at any cost.

What is meant by culture? We should understand and follow our ancient traditions and values. We should never ignore our culture in our business matters. We should enquire into the relationship between culture and country. Culture has its existence due to the country. True humanness lies in the integration of culture and country. Culture is not related to your worldly relations and practices. Culture is concerned with the feelings of your heart and your power to discriminate between what is good and what is bad.

Hence, you should develop strong power of discrimination. This discrimination brings about many changes in the life of man. It is due to lack of discrimination that our culture has suffered a decline. And because of the decline of culture our country has become weak. Wrong cultural practices followed by the people are, in fact, the main cause for the weakness of a country. Today, people do not follow the true culture of our country. Consequently, the government also takes to wrong path. As you all know, different political parties today follow different cultural values and ideologies. But if they all work together for a common cause, the results are sure to be good.

Give up craze for fashions
Once, when I was a student, some political leaders approached Me and requested, "Raju!
We understand that You write good poetry. We have arranged a meeting in Bukkapatnam where a large number of people are expected to come. Please write a good song that can inspire the people."
Those were the days of the Second World War. Adolf Hitler was marching forward to conquer various countries in Europe. He was trying to invade Russia. India was then under rule of the Britishers. Taking the situation into account, I wrote a small playlet. In that playlet, I kept a rubber doll in a cradle and sang the following song, rocking the cradle gently:
Do not cry, my child, do not cry.
If you cry, you will not be called a valiant son of Bharat.
Go to sleep, my child, go to sleep.
Did you get scared because the terrible Hitler
has invaded the invincible Russia?
Go to sleep, my child, go to sleep.
Do not cry, my child, do not cry.
For the Red Army is marching under Stalin.
They will put an end to Hitler.
Then what else is the reason for your crying?
Is it because the countrymen lack unity?
All the countrymen will unite and fight to win freedom;
Go to sleep, my child, go to sleep.
(Telugu song)
I used to compose songs and make the children sing those songs in the village so that people might give up their craze for fashions and cultivate noble thoughts. The wrist watch had just arrived in those days. If anyone in the village wore a wrist watch, he was considered to be a great person. Not only that, gents used to keep a small moustache under their nose as a fashion. I composed a song on these fashions.
Oh folks! What are these times that have descended on us!
People hang silver medallions from a leather strap on their left wrists and call it fashion!
Grotesque appearances are made that cannot be seen by the eyes and they call it fashion!
Long moustaches are cut to tiny patches under the nose and they call it fashion!

(Telugu song)
Seeing all these fashions, I asked them, "My dear! Why have you done this? Your moustache appears like two flies sitting on your upper lip. This is not good."
New fashions do not become prevalent all at once. These are the result of imitation:
people see others and start imitating them. Gradually, this imitation changes into fashion for a particular period of time. See the influence of fashion on women! They have given up the use of auspicious turmeric and kumkum (vermillion) mark on forehead and have started putting a miniscule dot, which is hardly visible.
All these fashions keep changing. How long does a fashion last? It lasts only for a few months. Similarly, fashions of youngsters and adults undergo change within a short period. As you all know, earlier bell bottom pants became a fashion for youngsters; these were tight from above and loose below like the shape of a bell. This fashion lasted only for a short time. After some time, pants of the shape of a pipe tightly sticking to the body came into fashion. Recognising that it was not good, people thereafter reverted to ordinary dress.
In this manner, many unnecessary fashions appear from time to time like clouds in the sky, which come and go. I corrected the people when they took to such fashions. Man should live like a human being.
Unnecessary changes are harmful Today, many changes are being made in the field of education also. Many meaningless changes are being made in the syllabus. Authorities may thrust such changes from above.
But do they prepare the teachers who are responsible for putting these changes into practice? No, not at all. What can the students learn from such teachers? First of all, qualified teachers are required. Our university is making great efforts to prepare such qualified teachers. If the teachers are good, the students will also become good.
Not only in the field of education, but changes have now crept in the area of health.
Earlier, people used pitchers, plates, and pots made of clay by local artisans. After some time, stainless steel utensils replaced the clay utensils. But now plastic pitchers, plates, and pots have come into vogue. These plastic articles have exposed man to great dangers. The plastic bags and other articles have created enormous waste material which is not biodegradable. Even if you bury it underground, it does not decompose and remains as it is even after many years. Much land is being spoiled by this plastic waste. Vegetables grown in such land are harmful to man. In this way, many harmful changes have crept in the life of man today. Therefore, we should not resort to unnecessary imitation and changes, particularly in the field of education. Living in the present is most important. We should follow our indigenous system and experience the happiness of living in the present. Then, our future will also become happy. Many people are worried about their future. Do not brood over past; don't worry about future. Past is past; forget the past; do not think about it. Present is important. It is not ordinary present; it is omnipresent. Many people worry about their past and future and spoil their present. Make proper use of our present. Sathya Sai colleges are the only institutions that teach students to make proper use of their present, though the environment in these institutions may appear to be like that of a rural institution. The future does not always bring happiness. And so far as the past is concerned, how much happiness have you experienced in it? Therefore, live happily in the present. Nothing is lost when you lose money. Acquisition of good qualities makes your mind steady. A steady mind is a good mind. It is the mind that brings about a change in the life of man. Even the parents do not know the mind of their children. The parents also should live in present. What is the use of thinking about the past? Presently, our students have achieved great progress in many fields and set ideals for all. What should we do in the present? Follow the maxim in the present: Less luggage more comfort makes travel a pleasure. We should not worry about the past at all. Thinking about the past will not do any good to us. Therefore, we should lead our life in the present and achieve all-round progress. You should realise the significance of the word "present". What does it mean? When you are in the class, you are present; otherwise you are absent. Absence will reduce your value. In every aspect of your life, present is important. You achieve good results in all subjects when you are present. Therefore, all of you should think about only present. Today many elders have fond memories of past times, thinking, "Our past time was so good, but everything has turned bad in the present time. In those days, children respected their elders; they conducted themselves with great humility. They revered their elders and learnt good things from them. In fact, there was no need to go to teachers; the grandmother in the house taught many good things to children. In ancient times, all led a happy life." "Old is gold" is a proverb. True to this proverb, people in olden times were like pure gold. By their teachings, they helped the people to take to noble path. But today we have damaged this path. Therefore, we should repair this damage and restore the path again. Love and serve your Motherland. Today, wherever you go, you see people fighting with one another. There is neither unity nor purity anywhere; it is enmity everywhere. Anybody you come across, you will see him in anger. You talk to someone, he will talk against you. We should therefore drive away the evil qualities like anger, jealousy, hypocrisy, etc. We should never harm anybody; we should not cause pain to anyone. Help Ever, Hurt Never. You can achieve anything through unity. Therefore, always stick to the noble path of unity. Why did Subhash Chandra Bose had to leave the country? It was nothing but enmity. When does enmity arise? It arises when selfishness overtakes you. Though he had to leave the country, he fearlessly kept serving the people wherever he went. Our country is in dire need of such noble people. Our professors also said, "Swami, our students are very good. They can bring about many good changes in society. Many parents today are sending their children to overseas countries. But, why should they send them out? Instead they can remain in our country and bring about changes in the community." Instead of earning 10,000 rupees a month abroad, it is better to be satisfied with 1,000

rupees in Bharat. In overseas countries, even pure water is scarce. Life is full of difficulties. Half of your earning will go as house rent. All other things are equally expensive. A small banana costs ten rupees! Wherefrom can you get so much money? How can you bring up your children? Impossible! In Bharat, your children would be happy and satisfied if you give them a simple food of rice and chutney. Forgetting this simple life in our own country, people want to go to foreign countries undergoing all sorts of difficulties. I have never visited any foreign country except East Africa. Even in East Africa, I spent most of My time seeing wild life in the forests and observing the good qualities of wild animals. There I saw large hordes of elephants; that looked very beautiful and majestic. I offered bananas to some elephants, which they accepted very gladly and wanted more of them. Their ears were as big as a winnowing pan. When they swished their ears, mosquitoes sitting even at a long distance would fly away. There were many zebras and giraffes also. They were happily moving in the forest. None of these wild animals causes any harm to man. They will be inimical toward us only when we approach them with the intention of harming them. Otherwise, they will be friendly with us and follow us like pets. I saw a group of lions sitting at one place with their young ones. Even when we were very close to them, they did not show any feeling of enmity. In this way, all the wild animals behaved in a very gentle manner. Your evil qualities are reflected in the animals. If your feelings are good, the snakes will also not harm you even if you were to lie down by their side. Otherwise, your own pet cow may gore you with its horns. If a person is angry with you, what is the reason? It is only reaction, reflection, and resound of your own feelings. It is only the evil qualities of man that bring about a change in the gentle nature of animals, birds and beasts. Today, there is hatred and conflict even between two sons of the same mother! What is the reason for this mutual hatred? Their evil qualities are responsible for this. We should never give room to such qualities.

Cultivate unshakeable faith in God

You are studying in a good college. You should uphold the good name of this college with your good conduct. If you want to earn a good name, you should join good company. Tell me your company, and I will tell you what you are. As your company, so you become. Hence, join good company. It is a great good fortune to be associated with good company. Therefore, join such good company and try to develop all-round goodness. Yesterday, the talks delivered by two of our MBA students were very good. Listening to them was a great pleasure to Me. We are very happy to have such good boys in our college. These two boys stood first in their class and were awarded gold medals. But you should not be satisfied with these awards and rewards. You should become good boys. Even the value of gold may diminish but not the value of goodness. Hence, cultivate goodness and earn a good name which will remain forever. First of all, develop self-confidence. If you have self-confidence everything will turn out to be good for you. Devotees like Dhruva, Prahlada, and Radha led their lives with sacred feelings. Everything became good for them because they had good thoughts. Wicked Hiranyakasipu subjected Prahlada to all types of sufferings. He attempted to get Prahlada trampled by elephants. Prahlada continued to chant the divine name of Narayana. He was never afraid of elephants. He saw Narayana in elephants also. Hiranyakasipu threw him before snakes but he escaped unharmed. When he was pushed down from a mountain top and thrown into a deep sea, Lord Narayana held him in His arms and saved him. In this manner, one with faith in God will never be put to harm. Hence, develop unflinching faith. Your firm faith in God confers on you all types of knowledge. Where there is faith, there is love. Where there is love there is Atma. Atma has no specific name or form. Similarly, faith has no form, and divinity is also formless. Love is God. Live in Love. Truth is God, God is Truth. The entire creation has emerged from truth. The creation emerges from truth and merges into truth, Is there a place in the cosmos where truth does not exist? Visualise this pure and unsullied truth.

(Telugu poem)

Realisation of truth is sakshatkara (God-realisation). Therefore, develop faith in this truth. No doubt, people do have faith, but their faith is wavering. As the faith, so is the result. If you have total faith, the results are bound to be good in all respects.

When you are confronted with difficulties, you tend to lose your faith. You may lose anything but not faith. Consider faith as your life. That is the path you should follow.

You have a strong belief that your parents are your parents. Even if a thousand people tell you that they are not your parents, you will not agree with it. You must have such total faith in God also. God will go to any extent to help those who have such unshakeable faith in Him. Your faith in God should be total. We may have to undergo any number of difficulties and hardships, yet, our faith should remain firm. Ramadas worked as Tehsildar (revenue officer). He prayed to Rama, "Swami, whatever revenue I have collected I have spent it in your service." He sang thus:

Oh Ramachandra!

I have spent ten thousand gold coins to adorn Mother Sita with a gold necklace and another ten thousand sovereigns to decorate Your brother Lakshmana with a gold belt. That crest jewel which adorns You cost me another ten thousand gold coins.

Unmindful of my travails, You are flaunting the jewellery as if You got it with Your own money!

(Telugu poem)

The compassionate Lord Himself appeared before the king and paid the money due from Ramadas. Later on, Ramadas repented and prayed for forgiveness, saying, "Unable to bear the hardships of Your test I have spoken such harsh words. Oh Lord! Please forgive me."

One can achieve anything in life with the help of God's grace. When you face all the tests of God with total faith and do your duty, you are sure to succeed. Do you know the depth of faith of overseas devotees? Many of them come to Puttaparthi and live in small hutments. Even then, they are very happy. It is not possible for anyone to describe their happiness, which is the result of their unflinching faith. If you have such strong faith in God, He will take care of you wherever you are. God is your sole refuge wherever you may be, In a forest, in the sky, in a city or a village,

On the top of a mountain or in the middle of deep sea.

(Telugu poem)

Study to be steady

First and foremost, develop confidence. Mere acquisition of knowledge is not enough.

Your knowledge may be as vast as an ocean, your common sense may be as great as the mighty Himalayas, but if you do not have discrimination, then everything is useless. It is enough if you have discrimination.

Before you undertake any task, always enquire, "Is this good or bad, is this right or wrong?" You will come up in life if you develop this one quality in you. This itself is self-realisation. So, it is important to have discrimination first.

Unfortunately, people use their discrimination to suit their self-interest. This individual discrimination varies from person to person. The same thing is viewed by ten people in ten different ways. You must adopt fundamental discrimination, which is beneficial to society at large. Only fundamental discrimination will give you self-satisfaction, which in turn will lead you to self-realisation. So, proper discrimination is of prime importance for self-realisation.

Students!

You are like pure gold. You are all very good. But sometimes you encounter waves of disturbance and doubts in your lives. Many a time, your faith is shaken by some aberrations. Do not pay attention to these. They will go as they come.

Come what may,

you must remain fearless and steady.

Your studies are meant to develop steadiness in you. Study to be steady. Keep this always in your mind.

Look at these two boys. How happy they are! In fact, all the MBA students are good. It is not possible to say that one is good and the other is bad. Their singing also was so good. They are intelligent, virtuous, and full of vigour. They will be an asset wherever they go. Such boys should stay back to serve the institution so that they can impart their goodness to others.

There is nothing great in going abroad and earning a lot of money with your academic qualifications. Money comes and goes, morality comes and grows. Develop such morality.

It is enough if you have morality. What can money do? Can you eat money? Unless you spend it to buy something, you cannot satisfy your hunger. Hence, money is not important, morality is important. Faith comes first, job next.

Do not give up your sacred culture and love for your motherland.

Subhash Chandra Bose

never forgot his motherland, even when he was staying in other countries. You should proudly proclaim, "This is my motherland." Do not tarnish the image of the sacred culture of your land. Be happy.

Bhagawan Blesses the Book Trust Office

by

Bhagawan Sri Sathya Sai Baba

[It was a very memorable day, a momentous occasion for the staff members of Sri Sathya

Sai Books and Publications Trust, young and old alike, since

Bhagawan stepped again in the portals of the Book Trust office after a gap of six years on the morning of 24

August 2007 at 8.50 a.m. The building was inaugurated by Bhagawan on 24 August 2001.

Bhagawan gave a Discourse, watched a video presentation on the Book Trust, graciously went around various departments of the office, and blessed the staff members.

Bhagawan was received traditionally with Poornakumbham, Veda chanting, and bhajans as He arrived at the central hall of the office. After a few bhajans, the Convener of the Trust, Sri K.S. Rajan, addressed the staff members. In his opening remarks, Sri Rajan observed that they were all fortunate to be here on this day.

Bhagawan has set foot in this building on this day, and it will become very prosperous in all respects.

Bhagawan's message is being spread to every nook and corner of the world through the medium of "Sanathana Sarathi", books, and audiovisuals. He declared that this was all possible only due to Bhagawan's grace. This visit of Bhagawan would be written in golden letters in the annals of the Book Trust. Sri Rajan concluded His speech with a prayer to Bhagawan to address the staff members so that they could cherish His words in their hearts and act accordingly. Bhagawan in all His compassion gave a Discourse, full text of which follows:]

All those students who are working here are discharging their duties with steadfastness and devotion. It is because of them that this Book Stall has developed.

It is not enough

if you merely bring out books; you should put into practice what is there in the books.

You should understand and assimilate all the teachings that are contained in the books and practise them. Pustaka (book) and mastaka (head) should be in harmony.

What the world needs today is service. We should love everybody. Love All Serve All.

This is what we are supposed to do. Whatever work we may do, we should do it with the feeling that we are doing the work of God. There is no place in this world where God is not present. He is all-pervasive. Never doubt that God is here and is not there. He is everywhere. God is in you, with you, above you, below you and around you.

Whatever work you do, whatever happens is only due to the Will of God, and not by your own effort. (Showing His handkerchief) Here you see a cloth. This cloth is woven with a bundle of threads. The threads are made out of cotton. So, the process is first cotton, then thread, and thirdly cloth. Similarly, you are not one person but three. The one you think you are, the one others think you are, and the one you really are.

There are three processes involved in writing a book: the person who writes, the people who read it, and the person who prints it. Do not lay importance on just bringing out books. The books we bring out should broaden the vision of the people. We should not give room to narrow-mindedness. The books should help people develop broad feelings. We should publish books that are essential for everybody.

But money is not important, morality is important. Money comes and goes, morality comes and grows. We should develop morality. What is the use of writing and reading books without putting them into practice? We should be able to practice at least one principle. There may be many items in the plate, but by merely repeating the names of those items, will our hunger be satiated? Take at least one item and eat.

In the same manner there are many books. People are writing about the divinity of Swami in many books. But are you putting into practice at least one principle contained in them? No. What is the use of reading books if you do not practice?

You may listen to ten teachings, but at least one of them you should be able to practice.

Only then will we derive the necessary strength to carry on our lives.

Our Rajan is putting in lot of efforts to develop the Book Trust. He is doing much more than what is expected of a person of his age. Students are also cooperating and working in the right direction to make it conducive for the smooth functioning of the organisation. You may take into consideration any workplace.

Progress is possible only when there is cooperation. Cooperation should be such that there should be relationship between heart to heart. Whatever work we are doing, we should first understand it thoroughly.

All are one, be alike to everyone. All should work with unity. One may write the book, another may print it, and yet another may bind the book. But there should be cooperation and unity between all the departments. Only when all work in unity can we get the desired result.

When can you develop unity? You can develop unity when there is purity. How can you develop purity? If there are any negative feelings in the mind, purity is not possible.

First of all, there should be unity. Where there is unity, there is purity. Where there is purity, divinity will manifest. So, first of all develop unity and purity. Then you will attain the grace of divinity. If you want to attain divinity, first of all you should develop unity and purity. Therefore, I exhort you to develop unity and work together persons who are writing and those who are printing them.

What I see is not the pustaka (book) that you print, I see your mastaka (head). Our

Rajan brings so many things to Me that are printed by the Trust. But I am not satisfied with any of them. I see the purity of heart of the person who has written the book.

Hence, purify your heart in the first instance. A cooked dish will be tasty only when the vessel in which it is prepared is clean. Cleanliness of the vessel is very important. In the same manner, purify your heart.

Any number of changes may take place in the world, but the heart should not change. Here when I refer to the heart, it does not mean physical heart. I am referring to the spiritual heart. Spiritual heart means divinity. Divinity is referred to as Atma.

God has no specific form, but He is all-pervasive. He is in you, with you, below you, above you, and around you. The Atma is present wherever you see.

But when there are passing clouds, you will not be able to visualise the Atma. Moon is always present in the sky, but you will not be able to see the moon when it is covered by clouds. You cannot deny the presence of the moon because it is covered by clouds. If you want to see the moon, you have to wait for some time. You can see the moon, once the clouds move away.

The Veda declares, Chandrama Manaso Jataha Chaksho Suryo Ajayata (the moon was born out of the mind and the sun out of the eyes of the Supreme Being). The Atma is shining like moon in the sky of our heart. But sometimes, it is covered by the clouds of thoughts and desires. In some seasons, you find thick clouds. When there are thick clouds, you will not be able to see the moon. But do not deny the existence of moon just because you are unable to see.

In the same manner, God is present in the heart of everyone. You are unable to see the Atma because of your thoughts and desires. So, you should exercise control over your desires. Less luggage more comfort makes travel a pleasure. You can experience immense happiness if you reduce the luggage of your desires. It is because of desires, you are unable to see the Atma. Therefore, reduce your desires.

This is referred to as vairagya in Vedanta. What is meant by vairagya? It is reducing your desires. You should not have more and more desires. Our body grows with every day.

But our life-span decreases day by day. As the body grows, our life-span also decreases.

Hence, it will be very beneficial to us if we reduce our desires. You can always be happy and cheerful when you reduce your desires. You may read any number of books and listen to many sacred histories, but first and foremost you must reduce your desires.

Only then can you find benefit out of them. Everyone has desires, but some are necessary and some are not. When we wake up in the morning what is that we do? We get up from the bed with a lot of desires.

Oh man!

You struggle hard in life merely for the sake of filling your belly.

You acquire myriad types of knowledge from various fields.

Examine and enquire for yourself what great happiness

you have achieved by spending all the time from dawn

to dusk in acquiring worldly knowledge and earning wealth

while forgetting God.

(Telugu Poem)

Forgetting God, whatever you may do is a mere waste of time. You should always keep God as your goal. God is not present in a far off land. He is present everywhere in you, with you, below you, above you, and around you. Hence, never forget God.

People may say anything, you may face any number of difficulties, but you should never forget God. Only when you have such pure, unsullied, and steady devotion can you be called a true devotee. You cannot call yourself a devotee if you do not have steadiness of mind. Your devotion should be steady, like an ocean, which never reduces in quantity.

On the one hand, the water gets evaporated from the ocean; on the other hand, rivers merge in it, but still the ocean maintains all its characteristics. Our heart should be filled with devotion like an ocean. Do not entertain the waves of desires and malign it.

Any number of waves may arise, but the ocean maintains its pristine state. Hence, keep your heart always pure, steady, and selfless.

Our Rajan is putting in a lot of effort. He is bringing about many changes in the publication of books. For the 80th Birthday, many good books were brought out.

Never entertain any desires. Whatever you do, do it as an offering to God. Sarva Karma Bhagavad Preetyartham (do all actions to please God). That is the sign of true devotion.

Do not give rise to differences like this is my work, that is Swami's work, and yet another work pertains to public. Think all work is God's work. One who writes the book, one who prints and one who reads the book, all are one. All are one. Never entertain any differences.

Only when you do not have differences, can you develop steady devotion. Your devotion should always be steady; it should not waver moment to moment.

When you have a wavering mind, everything will keep changing. Do not give scope to a wavering mind.

Desires and thoughts may arise, but we should utilise our power of discrimination. Is it good or bad? Is it right or wrong? When your conscience tells something is right, follow it. Always follow your conscience. It is like a traffic signal. Follow it conscientiously. When your conscience tells something is right, follow it scrupulously, irrespective of what others say. Let people talk whatever they want, but we should remain steady in our mind.

Greatness does not lie in bringing out books, but we should understand the essence contained in the books. We should bear in mind the essence in the books. Without matter, it cannot be called a book. Without any subject, you cannot get matter. What type of subjects you should choose? You should choose those subjects which are related to the heart. If you do not go by the dictates of the heart, you will not be successful.

An author should write good books, books that are beneficial to one and all. We should not print unnecessary things. Many books brought out in the outside world gives rise to worldly desires. What is happening to all those books? Nobody is reading them. Whatever subject is pleasing to the heart should be the subject matter of books. They are true and eternal.

We should perform actions without deviating from the path of sathya (truth) and dharma

(righteousness). Sathya and dharma are not different from each other. Sathyannasti paro

dharma (There is no dharma greater than adherence to truth).

Sathya and dharma are one and the same. Without dharma there cannot be sathya, and without sathya, there cannot be dharma. They are interdependent and are like mirror images. We can achieve anything when we have sathya and dharma on our side. We should always keep sathya and dharma as our goal. Then we will certainly achieve our goal.

Now, I cannot explain in detail any further due to time constraint. I wanted to tell you something related to publication of books and nothing else. We should publish only good books. Good books that are beneficial to one and all. You have heard Bhagawan's

Discourses and read many books. At least from now onward, put them into practice.

After blessing the distribution of Prasadam to all assembled and accepting the Arati, Bhagawan left for Sai Kulwant Hall at 10.15 a.m.

21 October 2007, Vijayadasami

Date: 21 Oct 2007 Occasion: Vijayadasami Place: Prasanthi Nilayam

Make Sathya and Dharma Your Steadfast Companions by

Bhagavan Sri Sathya Sai Baba

Today is the festival of Vijayadasami. All people celebrate this festival with great joy and enthusiasm. However, for some people this day brought sorrow, for it was on this day that Sai cast off His "old body".

Human bodies are, of course, merely material. Once, a long-time devotee, Lakshmibai, approached Baba. Baba gave her two gold coins and told her, "Lakshmi, keep these two coins with you. Preserve them carefully." The date of Baba's departure from this mortal world was imprinted on the two coins.

(Swami at this point created two gold coins with His divine hands.

Showing them to the devotees sitting in Sai Kulwant Hall, Swami said),

Look, here are those two coins. The two gold coins gifted by Shirdi Baba to Lakshmibai represent sathya (truth) and dharma (righteousness) that help the spiritual progress of human beings. Swami frequently exhorts devotees, "Lead your life's journey with the help of human values. Let your daily life be suffused with sathya, dharma (righteousness), santhi (peace), and prema (love)".

Truth is Atma. Dharma is the duty that we have to perform. Hence, discharge your dharma with sathya. These two are in fact the sadhanas spiritual exercises) you have to undertake. These two only will protect you in every way. They alleviate all sorrows and difficulties.

No human being, during the course of their sojourn in this physical world, should give up sathya, and dharma. Truth has to be experienced in one's heart, while righteousness has to be reflected in one's deeds. These two are enough. No other sadhanas are required.

The names Rama, Krishna, Govinda, and Narayana are only names

ascribed to God, but Divinity has no particular name or form. Truth comes first, and righteousness next. If righteousness follows truth, all sorrows and difficulties will be removed.

There are millions of people living in this world, but Divinity present in all is only one. This has been described in the Gita as Mamaivamsho jivaloke jivabhuta sanathana

(the eternal Atma in all beings is a part of My Being). There may be any number of people, but they represent only the number. Only one Divinity is present in all of them.

And that Divinity is the only Truth. You may call Divinity by any name e.g. Rama, Krishna, Govinda, Allah, or Jesus but God is one and only one. Hence, realise the oneness of Divinity; contemplate on that Truth; consider that Truth as God and spread that Truth to one and all.

What we are expected to do is not giving alms or charity. Whatever activity we undertake must be suffused with truth. When people follow such a path, all will be happy. The entire universe represents only one truth, but people express it in different ways. Ekam sath viprah bahudha vadanti (truth is one, but the wise refer to it by various names).

Truth alone is permanent in this world; all other things are ephemeral, like the passing clouds. Names and forms are not permanent. Truth alone is permanent. It is the changeless principle. Keeping such an eternal Truth in your heart, whatever you do becomes dharma.

I must tell you one thing in this context. There are many youths in this assembly. They should not take it amiss. In the name of modernism, many youths are taking to perverted ways of living these days. This permissiveness is not limited to a particular country or society. It has become a global phenomenon, irrespective of caste, community, religion, or country. Right from primary school children to boys studying in graduate and post-graduate courses, they are afflicted with this mental aberration.

Love is God. Whatever activity you undertake with love, it becomes success.

Unfortunately, today, the term "love" is highly misused and misplaced and often misunderstood as relating to the body. No; this is not true love. It is fleeting and ceases with the bodily relationship. True love is heart to heart. It is changeless.

The body is made up of five elements and is bound to perish sooner or later, but the indweller has neither birth nor death.

The indweller has no attachment whatsoever and is the eternal witness.

(Telugu poem)

The body is not permanent. Hence, do not give importance to the deha (physical body).

The dehi (Indweller) is important. The dehi alone is the embodiment of Truth. It is a serious mistake to ignore such an indweller. When you repose confidence in and rely upon the Indweller, the Indweller by themselves will look after everything. We should never forget the dehi (Indweller), who is niramaya (free from all ailments).

When Shirdi Baba left His physical body, it was Vijayadasami day. During His last moments Baba told the people around Him, "Do not rely upon this physical body. It will fade away and whither out in a few minutes. Why do you treat such an ephemeral body as Truth? None should shed tears on this occasion. This is but natural in the case of physical body. Enjoy this physical body as long as it is alive.

Thereafter, treat the passing away of this body as a dream."

The physical body will retain its shape for a short period after death. Hence, people around the body of Baba kept it as it is for sometime, with the hope that Baba might come back to life as it happened on an earlier occasion. Meanwhile, one of the devotees, Abdullah, came and reminded them, "We are forgetting all that Baba had told us. Baba's word is Truth. We have to follow it. Accordingly, we have to perform His obsequies, which is our duty."

All the devotees discussed among them what needed to be done and came to a conclusion.

They shifted the body to the wada (a stone structure built by a devotee called Booty) and buried (samadhi) it there. Thus, the bodies are impermanent however long a person might live. The physical body is subject to certain limits. This body as well as all other bodies are bound by certain limits. Each body has its own limit. None can cross that limit. As the days progress, the limit approaches fast.

Embodiments of Love!

Please, therefore, treat love as your foremost concern. Establish truth

in your heart

firmly. Whatever activity you undertake, do it with dharma (righteousness). It is truth that sustains dharma and dharma in turn will protect truth. It is for this reason that Lakshmibai kept with her the two gold coins given to her by Baba. She felt, "These coins are given to me by Baba. These are gold coins. These coins are very valuable; more valuable than diamonds. There can be nothing greater than these coins. I do not need anything else." These two coins represent sathya and dharma.

Truth and righteousness alone protect the world. We are undertaking several types of sadhanas (spiritual exercises) in order that the world is protected. But they are all pompous sadhanas only! You must install these two values in the heart and follow them at all times, day in and day out.

Presently, you are just chanting these words by mouth. This is not enough. When you practice these values with all the sincerity at your command, you will achieve the desired results. There is no use repeating these words like a parrot. Even a record player does such an exercise. One has to develop conviction in these values with all sincerity. Only then will they be imprinted in your heart forever. They always remain in you, with you. You have to put forth efforts to achieve such type of sadhana.

One day, the daughter of Lakshmibai approached her and requested, "Mother, please give me those two coins that Baba had given you sometime back."

But Lakshmibai refused, saying, "No, I cannot pass on these coins to you. They have to reach the same Person who gave them to me and none else. I have no authority to deliver them to you. They shall reach Baba, the Embodiment of truth and dharma."

You may chant any number of names, any number of mantras; you may perform any number of vainas and yagas (rituals and sacrifices). But what ultimately remain are sathya and dharma. Follow these two.

You are not separate from Me. You are all My amsas (parts), as declared in the Bhagavad

Gita. Sathya and dharma are following you since several births. Today, you are undertaking several sadhanas. In the end, they are all going waste.

You chant the Ramanama, saying, "Ram, Ram, Ram". The japamala (prayer beads) in your hand is rotating, but your mind is not turning toward Rama. Only when your mind is fixed on the name you chant will your japa become fruitful. Whatever activity you undertake, let it be truthful. Adhere to truth always and under all circumstances. In fact, truth is your very life principle. It is your swasa (life breath). Devoid of truth and righteousness, any number of discourses, Upanishads, Gita chanting, reading of spiritual texts, etc., will become a futile exercise. They may be useful for passing your time, but such exercises cannot sanctify your life. Truth and righteousness are the two most important sadhanas for liberating you from this mundane world. Always remember that you are an amsa (part) of God. Realise your relationship with God. This is the only relationship that will last forever. You may belong to any country or religion, but do not entertain any differences on that basis. All religions teach the same truth and will lead to the same God. Not a single religion (matham) is bad, provided your mathi (intellect) is good. Hence, you have to keep your intellect in good condition. You have to understand religion in its proper perspective. Your mind may be changing constantly, but the (matham) (religion) does not change. Hence, do not give scope for doubt in every aspect. Do not entertain doubts. Keep onlythis in mind: truth and love. Truth is Atma. What is the meaning of the word "Myself"? It means Atma. Follow your Atma. That is your dharma. If you do this, you will not encounter any calamity. Everything will merge into this divine Atma. Realise the truth. Then your life will be sanctified. Embodiments of Love! May you all hold on to the two principles of sathya (truth) and dharma (righteousness). Dharma does not mean charity. You have to follow the dictates of your conscience, which is based upon truth and righteousness. You are all embodiments of Truth! You are all embodiments of Sathya Sai! Remember this truth and march forward in your life's journey. Often times you worry, "Swami did not talk even once during these Dasara days." Today is Vijayadasami day. It was the day when Sai shed the old body. Today, Sai, who has donned a new body, is narrating to you incidents that happened while He was in the old body.

Do not join the bad company of friends. If you do so, you will also become bad. You must always move in good company. What is meant by good company? Sathya and dharma. Hence, always move in the company of truth and righteousness. If you hold on to these two values steadfastly, your life will go on happily and smoothly. Very soon, the entire country will become one, shedding, once and for all, all divisive tendencies. In fact, the whole world will become one, shedding the differences of nation, religion, caste, etc., and all people will experience Divinity. All people will move like brothers and sisters. You address each other as "brother" and "sister". You say "hello" to one another. But of what use is it if there is hollowness inside? Always greet each other with a pleasant smile on your face. Never exhibit your feelings with a wild laugh saying, "Ahaha!" Put on a sweet and soft smile on your face. That is the real laughter. If you make a loud noise while smiling, it amounts to insulting others. You are very fortunate to be here. I have explained the real meaning of the two gold coins gifted by Shirdi Sai Baba to Lakshmibai. Several people tried their best to snatch those coins from her, but she did not oblige anyone. She returned them to Baba saying, "These coins belong to You. I am giving them back to You. Neither my children nor anyone else has anything to do with them." Children are born. The relationship between a husband and wife comes only after marriage. If there is no bond of marriage, neither is there a wife nor a husband. If the husband and wife are not there, there is no scope at all for the child to be born. Thus, no one is related to the other. Each one for themselves only! That is the message conveyed in the famous "Bhaja Govindam" song composed by Adi Sankara. Bhagawan concluded His Discourse with the song, "Bhaja Govindam, Bhaja Govindam". From Bhagawan's Vijayadasami Discourse in Sai Kulwant Hall, Prasanthi Nilayam, on 21 October 2007. 13 Nov 2007, Akhanda Bhajan Date: 13 Nov 2007 Occasion: Akhanda Bhajan Place: Prasanthi Nilayam Akhanda Bhajan Unbroken Namasmarana is the Goal by

One has to understand what is meant by "akhanda bhajan". There are two kinds of bhajans.

One is khanda bhajan and the other is akhanda bhajan. Khanda bhajan is for a specific time, for example, the bhajans held for a limited period either in the morning or evening. On the other hand, akhanda bhajan involves constant contemplation on God in the morning, evening, and even during the night. It is constant contemplation on God during all three states: the waking, dream, and deep-sleep states. It is "sarvada sarvakaleshu sarvathra harichintanam".

Suppose you are watching a clock. There are three hands in the clock: the second hand, the minute hand, and the hour hand. The second hand is the longest, the minute hand is slightly shorter, and the hour hand is the shortest of the three. When the second hand crosses sixty spaces, the minute hand moves forward one space. When the minute hand crosses sixty spaces, the hour hand moves forward one space. Which one of these three hands is important? Undoubtedly, the hour hand is important. On the same analogy, doing namasmarana and bhajan only in the morning and evening is like the second hand. The divine Name is highly potent. Each one of the several names of God has one type of power specific to it. If you wish to make good use of this power and derive lasting benefit out of it, you have to participate in akhanda bhajan.

Once, sage Narada approached Lord Vishnu and prayed, "Oh Lord! People speak very highly about the efficacy of Ramanama. Will you kindly explain?" Lord Vishnu wished to demonstrate the efficacy of Ramanama by an illustration. He therefore advised Narada, "Oh Narada, go to a crow and utter the word 'Rama'. Let the crow repeat the name." Narada went to a crow and said, "Oh crow, Your entire body is black, without a trace of whiteness. Hence, chant the Ramanama just once." The crow uttered "Rama", and immediately it fell down dead. Narada was sad that the crow died just by its chanting the Ramanama once. He went to Lord Vishnu and informed Him of the crow's death. Lord Vishnu told him, "Don't worry. This time, go to the beautiful peacock that was just born and ask it to chant Ramanama once."

As per the instructions of Lord Vishnu, Narada went to the newly born peacock and said,

"Oh peacock, your beauty and grace are enchanting to the entire world. You are very lovable and attractive. Please utter the word 'Rama' just once." The moment the peacock uttered "Rama", it also fell down dead. Narada again went to Lord Vishnu and reported the death of the peacock after chanting Ramanama just one time. Lord Vishnu again advised Narada, "Narada, a cow in the shed nearby just gave birth to a calf. Please go to that new-born calf and ask her to chant Ramanama once."

Narada did accordingly. As soon as the new-born calf heard the word "Rama", it also dropped down dead.

When Narada informed Lord Vishnu, Lord Vishnu again instructed him, "Narada, this time, go to the King's palace, where a baby boy was just born. Ask him to chant the Ramanama once."

Narada was very much afraid to approach the newly born prince, since the crow, peacock, and calf had died just by listening to the word "Rama" once. He pleaded with Lord

Vishnu to spare his life, since the King would put him to death if something happened to the new-born baby by chanting Ramanama. But Lord Vishnu insisted that Narada obey His command.

Narada went to the palace and asked the newly born prince to chant Ramanama once. The prince saluted sage Narada and informed him that by the mere chanting of Ramanama just once, he was transformed from a crow to peacock, from a peacock to a calf, and from a calf to a human being as a Prince. He expressed his gratitude to sage Narada for initiating him in Ramanama.

Thus, Nama confers a human birth, which is considered to be a rare gift.

The human being is an embodiment of Divinity. Look at any picture of God. All forms of God are portrayed with a human face. That is why it is said "Daivam manusha rupena (God assumes human form)."

It is only the divine name that confers human birth on a being. It is evident from the illustration narrated above that the birds and animals were able to get a human birth by listening to the holy name just once. Unfortunately, no transformation is taking place in humans, in spite of repeating the divine name several times.

 You should chant the divine name wholeheartedly, with full faith.
 Faith develops love toward God, and that love toward God confers human birth. No doubt, people today are repeating the holy name, but not with love and steady faith. They are more concerned with how others are singing and whether their sruthi and raga are in order, etc. They are doing namasankirtana with a wavering mind. There can be no transformation by such fickle minded namasankirtana, inspite of doing it for hours together.
Namasankirtan has to be done with absolute concentration and steady faith like a yogi.
 It is said "Sathatham yoginah." One can achieve great transformation if the mind is steadily fixed on the divine name.
 When a lead singer is singing a particular bhajan, other singers think of the next song that they are going to sing. Thus, their attention is distracted, with the result that they remain only as ordinary human beings. The devotional singing of bhajans will have no effect on them; it cannot transport them to a higher realm of Divinity.
 No doubt, contemplation on God will sanctify a person to a certain extent. But in order to attain purity, it is not enough if chanting of the divine name is confined to a limited period. It has to be a continuous spiritual exercise throughout one's life. Only then will the divine name get imprinted on one's heart.
 You may attend to your daily routine. But, while attending to your duties in your own house or in the outside world, constantly remind yourself that "whatever I do, think, or speak, everything belongs to God." The proper attitude should be, sarva karma Bhagavath
preethyartham.
 Take, for example, the process of cooking. You add different ingredients to the items
 being cooked, in definite proportions, and you try to make them tasty.
 But the real taste comes only when the job of cooking is done as an offering to God. The food becomes divine when it is offered to God. On the other hand, if the various items are cooked with the attitude, "I am doing this job as a routine; I am cooking these items for my family members to partake," it does not reach God.
 Hence, whatever you undertake, do it as an offering to God chanting the name "Ram, Ram, Ra." Even while you are walking, think that it is God who is making you walk, since Divinity is present in a subtle form in every atom and cell in this universe.

 Unable to recognize this truth, people think, "I came by foot, I walked so many miles,"
etc. Such work comes under the physical realm, not the spiritual realm. Hence, whatever you think, speak, or do, consider it as God's command, God's work.
 With such an attitude
 it is enough if you chant the divine name "Rama" just two times morning and evening.
 Not only the name "Rama"; take any name for chanting. Chant any divine name wholeheartedly, at least once. That would be alright.
 There is no use counting seconds and minutes while doing namasankirtan, thinking, "I have done namasankirtan, for so many seconds, so many minutes."
 It is enough if you chant the divine name just once, wholeheartedly. That is like the hour hand in a clock,
 which carries certain value.
 Such heartfelt singing has become rare today. Some people participating in bhajan, say,
 "Today I am not well. I have a sore throat due to cough and cold. I am not able to sing."
 True, you may be suffering from cold and cough. But you can sing within yourself, surely. Do it. That will give you sufficient strength. The divine name is very sacred.
 If you repeat it just once, even the dead will come back to life.
Savithri lost her husband. But, by her soulful prayers, she could bring back her husband to life.
 Those who could bring back the dead to life are to be found only in the country of Bharath and nowhere else. Though divine power is spread everywhere and is omnipresent,
 it manifests in a high degree only in Bharath.
 Those who are pure in their heart will always succeed. Whatever work you undertake, do it conscientiously. Develop purity of mind. If you undertake the work with that purity
 of mind and then pray to God, surely you will achieve the result.
Meera did the same thing. She prayed to the Lord, "Swami, I delved deep into the ocean and could get the pearl of your divine name. Let not this valuable pearl slip from my hand and drop back into the ocean. Having been born in this world, let me sing the glory
 of the divine name constantly and make my life sanctified."

The Gita says, "Mamaivamso jeevaloke jeevabhutassanatanah (You are all part of My Divinity)." Hence, you all should follow Me. My love is divine and sacred. So shall be your love. If you follow this principle, you will automatically achieve purity. Where there is purity, there Divinity is. Everything is reflection, reaction, and resound. Since ancient times, you all are My own amsa (part). Do not ever forget this truth. If only you develop faith in this Truth, it amounts to reading the entire Bhagavad Gita. Every human being follows dharma. From where did this dharma come? It has come from bhava (feeling), which in turn emanated from viswasa (faith). It is only when viswasa is there, dharma is born. That faith is truth. Dharma is verily the embodiment of divinity. "Truth is God; Faith is God; Love is God; Live in Love." If only you cultivate these three, you can achieve anything. You may encounter any number of losses and difficulties in life. You may undergo a lot of suffering. But never give up truth, faith and love. Loss, suffering, and difficulties are like the waves in the ocean of life. They just come and go. But the water in the ocean remains permanently. Hence, develop the faith of "water", i.e. Divinity. Your thoughts are like the passing clouds. Hence, keep your faith firmly fixed on God. If you develop love and faith toward God, there is nothing in the world that you cannot achieve. By faith and love, you can even change the earth into sky and the sky into earth. The power of the divine name is unparalleled. People often take it lightly. That is a mistake. One should not mistake a shining glass piece to be a diamond. The real diamond is altogether different. What is that diamond? "The mind." God's name is the real diamond. Keep it safe and secure. Do not ever be bothered by pain and suffering, losses and difficulties. They just come and go. That is not your real nature. Your innate Self is strong, eternal, and real (sat). Do not follow the fleeting and unreal waves, forsaking your own true and eternal nature. Unfortunately, today, people are following only the unreal and passing waves. If you hold on to such fleeting and unreal things, you will always be deceived. Once you seek refuge in the lotus feet of God, you should never give up. Wherever you go, the divine feet will protect you. If you install the divine name firmly in your heart, your life will become sanctified. That is bhakti (devotion). That is your sakthi (power). That is mukthi (liberation). It is only for making people realise this truth that the sadhana (spiritual exercises) of akhanda bhajan (continuous devotional singing) has been prescribed for devotees at least once in a year. The word "akhanda" implies chanting the divine name non-stop for 24 hours. But people will be just coming and going while the akhanda bhajan is going on. Such a bhajan can be termed only as khanda bhajan. It is a piecemeal bhajan. It is difficult to maintain continuity of the divine vibrations in such a bhajan. You should ensure that there is no gap in between. During akhanda bhajan you may go home for any purpose, for example, to take food. But, you continue to do namasmarana while attending to any work in your house. God does not wish that you should not attend to your personal and domestic chores. You may attend to all your needs, but constantly remember God while doing so. That is the essence of Lord Krishna's message in the Gita, "Maamanusmara Yuddhyacha (keep Me ever in your mind and fight till the end)." In other words, He advised Arjuna that he must engage himself in the war, constantly remembering Him. War in this context does not imply merely killing one another by shooting arrows or with missiles. That is not a sign of greatness. There you discharge your duty in the battlefield. If you do so, those who are destined to die will die. Always attend to your duties with a pleasant and smiling face. What is required is a smiling face. There is no use putting on a "castor oil face". "Happiness is union with God." That is real Divinity. When you are confronted with some difficult situations, do not get upset, constantly worrying, "Oh! How do I cross this situation?" For example, young people are often confronted with a "marriage worry". Such worry will only worsen the situation. Repose your faith in God. Think that it is not marriage, but "my raise", i.e. an opportunity for your betterment. If you develop such an attitude, your life will be sanctified.

Whoever does namasmarana, whatever be the name they take and wherever they are, their life will be sanctified. They will be free from sin. Do not be too much concerned with raga and thala (tune and rhythm). There is only one raga, that is hridayaraga (the raga arising out of one's own heart). That is "So ham", "So ham". Let your life be tuned to this raga of "Soham". Then, whatever activity you undertake, it will become a success.

You are most fortunate to participate in this akhanda bhajan. During normal days, bhajans are held in this hall both in the morning and in the evening. This is a great opportunity. Do not lose the opportunity of participating in the bhajan. If you make good use of it, your life will be sanctified. The global akhanda bhajan is held only for this purpose every year.

Oneness With God Is True Education

by

Bhagavan Sri Sathya Sai Baba

From the time one gets up from bed till one goes to bed again, why should one waste all one's time earning money?

Embodiments of Love!

It is not good to waste time and energy in vain pursuits without attending to one's ordained duties. Time is sacred and valuable. Time waste is life waste.

You are all

students who have to lead others in future.

Every individual has some desires. But students especially have to control their desires. This is their duty. No doubt, desires crop up in your mind endlessly one after the other. But it is the foremost duty of a student to control them. The word vidya

(education) has its root in the word vid, meaning light. It means that education shows us light. Education illumines our path to progress.

Dear students!

You must stand as an ideal to everyone. It is only with this hope that we are bringing you up with great love. You all know that educational institutions in the outside world charge money for everything. But we do not collect any money from our students toward fees. Education in the Sathya Sai Institutions is totally free from K.G. to P.G.

In fact, education, medicine, and water supply projects undertaken by the Sathya Sai Organisation are not revenue earning departments. On the other hand, we ourselves are incurring huge expenditure on students' education. Also, we are helping a number of destitute children in so many ways by providing them material support, free education, financial help, etc. You must realise this truth. Education is your property.

Education is not merely to help make a living in the world. It is not merely for making a decent living in the material world. Even the uneducated are able to live well in the material world. Then, of what use are your degrees like M.Sc., M.A., M.B.A., etc.? This is not the purpose of education. Education may help one to earn a decent living in the outside world to a certain extent. But that is not the be-all and end-all of life.

There is a higher purpose to education: providing an inner life based upon the five human values, viz. truth, righteousness, peace, love and nonviolence. These human values provide a secure, real, and meaningful life to us. Sathya (truth) is the basis for everything in the Universe.

The creation emerges from truth and merges into truth.

Is there a place in the cosmos where truth does not exist?

Visualise this pure and unsullied truth.

(Telugu poem)

God is the creator of all living beings right from a tiny ant to a mighty elephant.

Nothing in this universe will move without His Divine Will. Even tiny ants are born out of God's will. The same truth has been explained in Saint

Thyagaraja's famous kirtan,

Cheemalo Brahmalo Siva Kesavaadulalo Prema Meera Velasi

Unde Birudhu Vahinchina Rama

Nannu Brovara (Oh Rama)! In Your pure and unsullied form of love, You dwell in all beings, from an ant to Brahma as well as in Siva and Kesava. Please be my protector too).

No doubt we are aware of it, but once an ant bites us, we immediately kill it. On the other hand, when Lord Brahma appears before us, we offer our pranams (salutations) to Him with folded hands. Though the names and forms are different, the same Atma permeates all living beings. One who develops faith in this Truth will not hasten to cause any harm to any living being.

Every individual develops desires to satisfy themselves. One always chants "self, self, self". Every individual repeats, "this is my body; this is my mind; this is my head," etc. Who is "my"? When you say, "This is my body," perhaps it may be true for today or tomorrow. But where is your body the day after tomorrow? What happens to it then?

You are nourishing this body with great love and care. But this body is not yours. It is a gift of God. In fact, everything in this universe is God's gift. For instance, this is a handkerchief. From where did it come? Has it fallen from the sky? No! It has come from cotton. From cotton came the thread, and the thread is woven into a cloth. Hence, there can be no thread without cotton and no cloth without thread. Thus, everything in this universe has a basis and a source.

Unfortunately, today, we are forgetting this fundamental principle. That is why we are experiencing several difficulties.

When you hear the word "God" repeatedly, you are tempted to enquire, "where is God?" God is with you, in you, around you, behind you. In fact, you are God! Develop that firm faith. The same God as Atma Thatwa (Atmic Principle) permeates all the millions of human beings in this world; nay, every living being in the world.

We are witnessing millions of living beings with different names and different forms in this Universe. Though the names and forms are different, the Atma Thatwa in them is only one. Ekam Sath Viprah Bahudha Vadanthi (truth is one; the wise say it in different ways).

Gold is one, jewels are many. When the different ornaments are melted, what remains ultimately is gold only! Hence, Oh, Embodiments of Love!, try to realise the source and sustenance for all objects in this universe.

You consider that you are different from your father and mother. Again, you treat your mother as different from your father. No; this is not correct. Both father and mother are one. You are part of them. Hence, the question of difference does not arise. A man with dual mind is half blind. Do not have a dual mind.

All the education you pursue is not for you only. It is for helping your fellow human being as well as fellow living beings like birds, animals, and insects. Then only does the education you have acquired become meaningful.

Whenever you encounter a person whom you consider as your enemy, say "hello". Love everyone. Never hate anybody. You might have noticed that no one hates Swami and all people love Him.

You may ask Me whether there are people who really do not deserve Swami's love. I wish to emphasise that all people deserve Swami's love. I love everyone. I do not hate anybody. I do not cause trouble to anyone. I do not offend anyone. Since the feeling of Ekatma bhava (one Atma permeating all living beings) is so strong in Me, many people love Me. The whole world loves Me, and I love all. My word, My song, and My divine leelas (plays, sports) are all dedicated to your welfare. You must therefore try to understand My real nature.

Develop faith in the Atma Thatwa. From faith comes love. When faith and love go together thus, your desires will be fulfilled. Both faith and love are most important for a human being. All others are like passing clouds, which just come and go in between. Do not attach much importance to them.

In fact, faith is the reflection of love, and love is the very form of God. Hence, Love is God, Live in Love. Truth is truth for all times past, present, and future. It will never change. That is why it is said, "Truth is God."

Do not think that God is present somewhere in a distant place. God is not separate from us. The entire universe is an embodiment of Divinity. Therefore, constantly contemplate on that Divinity, who is none other than Unity.

Dear Students!

You read several books. However, all those books have been written with the help of only 26 letters. There are a number of lawyers. They carry books, which are very bulky in size. But all those books contain only letters, ultimately. Health, wealth, happiness and bliss the source and sustenance for all these things is only God. Good or bad, everything is God. You cannot find bad anywhere separately. Wherever you see, it is only good. But you are not able to realise that good. You are confused. The bad, if any, is only a manifestation due to the difference of time. Today, we partake a variety of tasty dishes. But, the next day they are transformed into excreta.

Today's phala (fruit) is transformed into mala (excreta) tomorrow.

Divinity is present in all things both good and bad. There is no place or object in this world where God is not present. No one can say with any authority that God is

"nowhere or only here".

Several names and forms are ascribed to Divinity, and a lot of confusion is created thereby. The reason for this confusion is based on how one relates oneself to God at the individual level. Therefore, try to set aside this individual relationship at least to a certain extent. It is only for this purpose that we are pursuing many types of education. The moment the individual relationship merges into a feeling of oneness with God, what remains is only Divinity everywhere.

Religions are many but goal is one.

Clothes are many but yarn is one.

Beings are many but breath is one.

(Telugu poem)

Several jeevas (individuals) are sitting here. They have different bodies, but there is only one God immanent in all the bodies. Hence, whomever you see consider, them as God.

Whomever you love, consider them as Embodiments of Divinity.

You are all encountering several difficulties due to deha bhranthi (identification of the self with the body) and differences in feelings. You alone are the root cause for these difficulties. Both good and bad are the products of your mind. You may learn many subjects and acquire several degrees, but consider the Atma Thathwa (Atmic Principle) as one and only one.

The same Truth has been explained in the aphorisms Ekameva Adwitheeyam Brahma (God is one without a second) and Ekam Sath Viprah Bahudha Vadanthi (truth is one; the wise say it in different ways). You must preserve this truth in your heart safely and securely.

You consider someone as your enemy. No, no; this is not true. It is only a change in your attitude and love toward them that made them your enemy. There is no change in them at all. Everything in this world is reaction, reflection, and resound. However, reality is only one. If you develop such an attitude, you can experience any amount of happiness.

You think, "Swami is always cheerful and smiling. How is it possible?"

Yes; I am always smiling! The reason being I treat all people as one. The happiness of all of you is My food. Hence, you should also develop that attitude.

The other day, the children put up a playlet. I felt very happy on witnessing it. The children put up the show unitedly.

We use the words "I" and "we". From where did the word "we" come? It has come from "I".

Without "I", there can be no "we". Thus, "I" is the one and only one entity. It is like a vertical wooden pillar.

When another piece of wood is nailed across in the middle horizontally, it becomes a cross. It means that when "I" (ego) is broken, it becomes a cross. We must always endeavour to keep "I" as only one.

You consider all people as your brothers and sisters. These brothers and sisters are not separate entities. All are one. If you thus make an enquiry, everything in this universe represents only the principle of oneness. If you establish this truth firmly in your heart, the same feeling will reflect everywhere.

Suppose you love a girl. Who is that girl, anyway? Yourself only. It means you loved yourself! The girl is not separate from you. When you treat her as separate, you refer to her as "wife". On the other hand, when you treat her as one with you, you become one.

Realise this unity.

What could be the reason for such great diversity in the living beings in the world?

They are a manifestation of the divine principle Ekoham Bahusyam (the one Divinity manifested as many).

Embodiments of Love! Dear students!

You must all become ideal men and women. Only when you lead an ideal life will the whole society become ideal. Do not entertain any differences of those people and these people.

"All are one; be alike to everyone." Remember this always. Only then can you become ideal students. Otherwise, you remain merely as educated people.

Who is an educated person in the real sense? One who has realised that all are one.

Education implies only learning. On the other hand, vidya is one that symbolises oneness. Vidya spreads the light of oneness with God. If you lose this enlightenment, you have to live in darkness.

Embodiments of Love!

Let your love be diverted toward God, and it will confer bliss upon you. If you direct it toward worldly objects and persons, it is likely to change every now and then.

Whoever you come across, develop the feeling that they are all your brothers and sisters.

Once, a gentleman was addressing a meeting. He started his speech with the address, "Dear brothers and sisters". But he made an exception in the case of only one lady.

Someone enquired why? He replied that the lady was his wife. Strictly speaking, no exception need be made, since he addressed all people as brothers and sisters. But once he married her, she became his wife. If there is no marital relationship between them, all are one. I exhort you once again to lead your lives with a feeling of oneness and a sense of sharing.

Arjuna, among the Pandava brothers, won Droupadi in the Swayamvara. When the Pandavas returned home along with Droupadi and told their mother that they brought home a fruit, instantaneously mother Kunthi advised them to share it equally among the five of them, without being aware that they were referring to Droupadi. Accordingly, she became the chaste wife of the five Pandavas.

Even Lord Krishna testified to her chastity thus: Draupadi dutifully obeyed the command of her husbands. She would never say to any one of them that she had no time to serve him.

She was satisfied with whatever she got in life. She was the supreme example of chastity and None could match her in this respect.

(Telugu poem)

The Pandavas shared and cared for each other and led a life of discipline and control.

I am quite well. No one need worry about My health. Not only My body, everything is alright. My mind does not waver. I have a steady and ever alert mind. The body may undergo some changes; but I am always My own Divine Self.

People enquire, "Swami! You are always smiling! Did you never encounter sorrow?" No. Not at all! Sorrow is nowhere near Me. Whatever has to happen will happen. If you go on worrying about it, will it be warded off? That will lead to much more worry. Hence, one should not give scope for worry at all. Once your mind starts worrying, it will never end.

You worry, "Examinations are nearing; Oh! God! How do I prepare myself!" What is all this worry about? Why do you fear to write answers for those questions, which you already know? Surely you will fare well in the examinations. Do not develop any fear of examinations.

No one can measure the distance of the sky from the earth. That is why it is said that the sky is blue. Similarly, none can describe the form of Divinity. In order to portray God, artists started using the colour of blue. In fact, God has no colour at all! If God were to be born with a blue colour, He would have been put in an exhibition as an object of wonder.

Divinity cannot be changed. You may change; but your Atma will never undergo any change.

It is nirgunam, niranjanam, sanathanam, nikethanam, nithya, suddha, buddha, mukta, nirmala swarupinam (God is attributeless, unsullied, the final abode, eternal, pure, enlightened, free and embodiment of sacredness). That is why it is said, Buddhi grahya matheendriyam (the Atma is beyond the ken of the senses and can be understood only by the intellect).

Earn a name for yourselves as good boys. Bring honour to your parents. Also, let society be proud of you. If society is to be transferred into a good society, it can happen only through the students. Today, wherever our students are, people say they are very good. I am getting the news. Try to live up to that name. I don't aspire for anything else.

I will give you whatever you want. In fact, I gave Myself to you. May you all be happy!

Do not quarrel with anybody. Do not abuse anyone. May you all live like brothers and sisters! That is the fruit of education. That is real education. In spite of their education and intelligence, a mean-minded person will not give up their evil qualities.

Always conduct yourself as good boys. First and foremost, make your parents happy. If you cannot make your parents, who brought you up, happy, how can you make Me happy?

Hence, you should all go to your homes and live happily with your parents. Then, I will also be happy. When people praise you, saying that you are a student of Sri Sathya Sai University, it is a matter of pride to you as well as to the Institution.

The University Grants Commission in New Delhi did not recognise several educational institutions in the country for a long time, whereas the Sri Sathya Sai Institute of Higher Learning was conferred the status of a Deemed University within the second year of its inception.

Dr. Madhuri Shah was the Chairman of the University Grants Commission then. She visited Puttaparthi and put forward a proposal to make our Institute into a Deemed University.

Several objections were raised to her proposal on the ground that it was still a nascent

Institute in its second year and that it would not be proper to confer the status of a University on it in such a short time.

Dr. Bhagavantham was with us at that time, translating My speech. He confidently said,

"this is impossible; impossible." I told him very emphatically that it is possible. The U.G.C. committee visited our Institution thereafter in the second year itself and unanimously recommended to confer the status of a Deemed University on Sri Sathya Sai Institute of Higher Learning. As per the committee's own admission, "This is the first college" to be conferred a Deemed University status within the second year of its starting.

Later, Dr. Madhuri Shah came here to formally open the Deemed University. She openly said in a meeting, "Dr. Bhagavantham! You said it is impossible to make it into a University in such a short time. How had it been possible now?" The Sri Sathya Sai

Institute of Higher Learning a Deemed University has since been made into a full-fledged

University with the combined efforts of all people.

All our students are men of noble character. They are well behaved and well educated.

You may not perhaps know how famous our Sri Sathya Sai University is all over the world, especially in the United States of America.

About 180 past students now work in America in different fields. Recently, they all came here in a group. They prayed to Swami, "Swami! We do not wish to go to our homes here.

We will go back direct to America from here, after this visit." Such was their love and dedication to Swami and Sri Sathya Sai University.

(Bhagawan then called Dr. Michael Goldstein, Chairman and Director, Sri Sathya Sai World

Foundation and asked him to speak for a few minutes about the former students now working in America.)

Love is God; Live in Love

by

Bhagavan Sri Sathya Sai Baba

Embodiments of Love!

People think there are many troubles, difficulties, and sorrows in this world, and thereby they are filled with anxiety and worries. But in fact there is nothing like this; it is bliss everywhere.

Brahmanandam, Parama Sukhadam, Kevalam Inanamurtim, Dwandwateetam, Gagana Sadrisham,

Tattwamasyadi Lakshyam, Ekam, Nityam, Vimalam, Achalam, Sarvadhee Sakshibhutam, Bhavateetam, Trigunarahitam (Man is the embodiment of divine bliss, wisdom absolute, beyond the pair of opposites, expansive and pervasive like the sky, the goal indicated by the aphorism (mahavakya) "You are That (thath twam asi)", one without a second, eternal, pure, unchanging, witness of all functions of the intellect, beyond all mental conditions and the three attributes of purity(sathwa), restlessness (rajas) and dullness (thamas).

The world is the creation of God. Right from man, all living beings including animals, birds, and even insects are the creation of God. Since they are the creation of God, all of them have their origin in bliss. All these difficulties and troubles are only the imagination of man.

Pleasure is an interval between two pains. There cannot be happiness without difficulties. These difficulties are meant to give you happiness, and not to make you miserable with more sorrows. Hence, whatever comes to us, we should consider it as God's gift and be happy. We should not consider that it has been given to us to make us suffer.

Suppose you have pain in the stomach. What will the doctor do? If he performs an operation, it is not to cause you pain. The pain that the doctor causes is to remove your suffering. Hence, one should bear difficulties and overcome one's sorrows.

There are millions of living beings in this world. All of them have originated from God.

Therefore, the same God is present in all of them. People give many names to God as Rama, Allah, Jesus, etc., but God is only one. Atma is another name of God; it is the same in everyone. The real name of Atma is love. Love is only one, but it is present everywhere and can alleviate all sufferings. One who is endowed with love is free from all sufferings.

All of you have come from such a distant place like America. What for? You have come because you have love for Me (loud applause). You can attain anything if you have love.

God has no specific name. He is present in man in the form of Atma.

What does Atma mean? It means love only. It is love that unites all. If you imbibe this principle of unity, then all will become one. When you attain this unity, you will have purity. When you have purity, then Atma Tattwa (principle of the Self) will manifest in you. Therefore, you must have unity to attain divinity.

I and you are one. God and you are one. God is not anywhere separate from you. You should develop the feeling that you yourself are God. When you say, "I", it represents unity. You cannot estimate the bliss that is derived from unity. All are one. It is the fickle mind that is unsteady and wanders arbitrarily.

Only one thing is steady. That is love, love, love. Love is God. Live in love. This is what we have to learn today. The same love is present in everyone. Mother loves her children due to this feeling of love. All are the children of God. Therefore, God loves all. God has no hatred. God is not the cause for your pain and suffering. God is not separate from you. Wherever you may be, God is present there. God does not forsake you.

There is no place where there is no God. Wherever you see, God is present there. (Swami pointed to different things and said) This is God. This is God.

You are all embodiments of God. You have two eyes but you can see a large number of people with them. Similarly, God is one, but He can see all. Where is God? He is in you, with you, above you and below you. There is no need to search for Him.

Because our vision is limited to physical level, we see differences. Do not rely on the physical body. The body is like a water bubble; the mind is like a mad monkey. In one moment the mind is here and in the next moment it flies away to another place. Manas, buddhi, chitta, ahamkara (mind, intellect, mind-stuff, ego) all these are temporary, like passing clouds. Only one thing is permanent. That is you.

Where is God? You should develop the feeling that you are God. This is the correct answer to the question, where is God. You may perform any number of spiritual practices like bhajans (devotional songs), japa (soft prayer), and tapa (penance, austerities), but love should form the undercurrent of all these practices. In fact, if you have love, there is no need to perform any spiritual practices. There is no use performing all spiritual practices if you do not have love.

Fill your mind with love. "Prema Mudita Manase Kaho Ram Ram Ram" (recite the Name of Rama with your heart full of love). Hence, give highest importance to love. Love is important. Love is God. Live in love. This is the spiritual practice that we have to undertake.

Worldly relations are temporary. They are impermanent like passing clouds, which come and go. They are your mental reaction, reflection, and resound. (Swami shows His handkerchief) What is this? This is a cloth. It is not merely a cloth, it is a combination of threads, it is not thread even, it is cotton, which is the creation of God. Everything has emerged from God like threads. You weave the threads as per your liking. But it is not your liking that is important; what is important is what God likes.

There can be changes in the body and the mind. But love is changeless. It is permanent.

Everything has birth and death, but there is no birth or death for love. The birthless and deathless love is only one. It comes from truth. Truth is one. Truth is God. This God, in the form of love, is present everywhere, wherever you see.

God is present in man in his breath. When you breathe, where does the breath come from? It comes from within. The breath itself is your God. What is its form? It is present in man in the form of Soham, which reveals your divine identity. "So" means "that", "Ham" means "I". Therefore "Soham", means "that I am". "That" refers to God, who is present in man in the form of love. Therefore, man should treasure love in his heart safely.

Other thoughts come and go like passing clouds. Only love is permanent and eternal. You should perform every task with love. Even if you come across your enemy, you should love and greet him saying, "Hello, Hello." Then he will also respond, saying "Hello, Hello" to you. This is the reaction, reflection, resound of your feelings. Whatever good or bad you experience is the result of your own actions. Everything comes from within you. Hence, always remain immersed in love. If you have love, you can achieve anything and perform any task. It is love that is responsible for the entire creation and its functioning in this world. There is no greater God than love. Love is God. Whatever you do without love is a futile exercise. Hence treasure love in your heart. Every body will be attracted towards this love. It bestows everything on you. It is love that creates, sustains, and destroys. When you look at the world with your physical eyes, you see diversity in creation. But, in fact, everything is love. It does not change. You should be filled with such love. If you follow this principle of love, it will give you the fruit of all the spiritual practices. People call God by many names such Rama, Krishna, Jesus, Allah etc. But all names refer to the same God. If you call Him Allah, He responds. Similarly, if you call Him Jesus, or Zoroastra, or Rama, He will respond. All these names were given by man. God is not born with these names. Original name of God is only love. You may refer to any dictionary; love is only one and not two. Man may have many physical relationships. You may consider some one as your husband, some one as your son and some one as your daughter. They are all physical and worldly relations. Who has established these relationships? It is you only. Since these are relationships acquired by you, they are subject to change. But love remains the same. With such love you may chant any name such as Rama, Krishna, Govinda, Narayana, Jesus, and Allah. All these names refer to the same divinity. You may grind rice and prepare various dishes such as dosa, idli, etc. You may mix rice with sugar and prepare payasam (sweet pudding). But rice is the same in all these dishes. In the same way, only one God is present in the entire creation, and that is love. Perform each and every task with love. We call others as "brothers and sisters". At the physical level, they are separate. These relationships are of your own making. But never observe diversity. Brothers, sisters, and all other relationships are one. You see an old man or a child, both are essentially divine. God is beyond all ages and all forms. Only love is His true form. The same love is present in all forms that you see. Hence, every one of you should develop love. You may call God as Rama, Krishna, or Sai. But it is only a difference in names. God is only one (loud applause). Love everyone wholeheartedly. Then only can you experience bliss. So long as you have love, you will not be devoid of bliss. People today observe individual differences. There are three aspects of an individual. (1) The one you think you are. (2) The one others think you are. (3) The one you really are. At the physical level you may be identified with your name, form, and village. But in reality, you are only one. This is what you should realise. Recognise the unity of entire creation. Your worldly relations will also have some value when you recognise this unity. You may append any number of 0's to 1, the value will go on increasing. If you remove one, there is no value. In the same manner, you may chant any name realising the oneness of God. Ekam sath viprah bahudha vadanthi (truth is one, but the wise refer to it by various names). The Vedas authenticate the same truth. With love in your heart, you may go to any country, chant any name, perform any spiritual practice. Do not hate anybody. Help Ever, Hurt Never. This is what the devotees are supposed to do (loud applause). When you call yourself a devotee, do not observe any differences "You are not mine, he is mine". This is not good. It amounts to hating God. You should think "God is in me, with me, around me, above me and below me." Wherever you see, the same God is present there. Develop this feeling of oneness. Then you will attain highest bliss. You have come from different countries, and you have different names and forms. But having come here, you are all one (loud applause). From today onward, may you always remain in bliss for ever and ever.

 People say, "Today is my birthday." What is the meaning of birthday?
 It is the day of the birth of the body. Today it is born, tomorrow it may die. But you are eternal. You have no birth, no death.
 Be always happy. This is what I desire. Do not allow the differences of mine and thine come near you. All of you have sung the glories of the Lord in one voice. This unity is divinity. Where there is lack of unity, there is diversity. Hence develop unity. Where there is unity, there is purity. It is purity that attracts God. The white dress that you have put on symbolises purity. Differences are seen when you put on dresses of different colours. You should not give room to differences. Not only in dress, observe unity and purity in your mind, feelings, and thoughts. All are one. On returning to your respective places, lead your lives with unity, love and bliss. Your bhajan has made Me
 happy.
 (Bhagavan sang the bhajan "Hari Bhajan Bina Sukh Santhi Nahin" and continued His Discourse.)
 Consider bhajan as your bhojan (food) that satiates your spiritual hunger. Partake the food of bhajan every moment, day in and day out. Right from the morning till night, constantly do bhajan in your entire waking time. This is Swami's teaching to you.
 Perform all your tasks, while contemplating on the name of God within you. God is within you, without you, beyond you, below you and behind you. Very happy.

 Anything is Life can be Achieved with Faith in God
 by
Bhagavan Sri Sathya Sai Baba
 A man with anger cannot achieve anything.
 He commits mistakes and indulges in sinful deeds.
 He is despised by everyone.
 Love is God and God is love.
 Devoid of love, humans cannot exist.
 (Telugu poem)
 It is lack of love that is responsible for all the differences, arguments, and conflict in the world, especially in the present times. Several people say that the world is afflicted today with sorrow, losses, and difficulties. I do not subscribe to this view.

 I tell you, they are all our illusion only. In fact, there is no unrest or sorrow in this world. I just see peace, peace, and peace only, everywhere. When there is peace in our heart, we will be able to witness peace all round. Unrest, sorrow, anger, etc., are the reaction, reflection, and resound of the state of our inner being.
 Sorrows and
difficulties, anger and unrest are of our own making and creation.
 They are not natural phenomena in the world.
 When someone enquires after your name, you give some name.
 (Swami at this point asked the name of one student sitting in front of Him. The boy replied, Vikas). In fact, that is not his real name. Similarly, you enquire from each one and they give different names. However, if God were to mention His name, He will say Aham Brahmasmi (I am Brahman). In fact, all of us should repeat the same name since we are all Embodiments of Divine Self. All our names are given to us by our parents. We are not born with any particular name. Those who cannot realise this truth cannot lead a happy life.
 Embodiments of Love!
 Actually love is another name of Brahman. In fact, love, Atma, Prema, Aham, or Brahman
 all these names carry the same meaning. There is nothing in this world except love. But, unfortunately, we are not able to understand what love is. We consider Love as relating to the world. We consider it to be physical. In fact, it does not at all relate to the physical realm. It is truth, verily. You are not one person, but three:
 the one you think you are, the one others think you are, and the one you really are. What others think is all imagination. The Self within you is the only truth.
 Who is this Self? That is I. This I is the same in all. The Christians worship the cross (). The cross is a symbol exhorting people to get rid of ego. No one is different from you. Hence, you must always bear the truth that all are one (I).
 Those that are born out of karma and grow and perish ultimately (namely the physical bodies) are unreal. Hence, you are always Brahman, in accordance with the Vedic declaration Aham

Brahmasmi (I am Brahma). It is only when you consider yourself to be Brahman that you can realise this Truth. Till then, you will be confined to the different names like Ramanna, Krishnananna, etc., that have been given to you by your parents for the purpose of identification. Surely, you did not come into this world with any name.

When someone enquires of the parents about the name of their newly born child, they may reply that no name has been given to the child yet. It is thus clear that all names given to us are by someone only and not innate. They are for the purpose of identification of the concerned individuals. There are millions and millions of people inhabiting this world, but none seems to have realised the truth that they are God.

Unfortunately, today we are leading our lives with names given to us by someone.

What is Brahman? I. The Brahman neither is born nor has death. That is the only Truth; other events come and go. For example, I have willed to create this chain (Swami created a gold chain with His divine hand). This has been created by My Divine Will. It was not there earlier. Thus, all things and beings in this world are born out of sankalpa (will). Hence divine Sankalpa is the cause for all creation. In addition, maya (illusion) also plays its role. When maya and Truth come together, creation takes place. Without maya, there can be no creation. The maya is like a shadow to a human being. But this shadow deludes us. At sunrise, our shadow is long. As the sun gradually rises, the shadow falls under our feet at midday. Thus, the shadow grows and shrinks. We should not therefore mistake the shadow as our basis. Embodiments of Love!

Love is the foremost quality of a human being. And faith is the basis for that love. The spelling of the world love is LOVE. Here L stands for Lord. Thus, Love is born out of the Lord (God). The entire creation is a manifestation of God's love, be it a tiny ant or a mighty elephant. Everything is the creation of God.

Not even a blade of grass will move without divine Will,

People who do not realise this truth get carried away by their pride of intelligence and discrimination.

But no one, however great they may be, knows what lies ahead for them in future.

(Telugu poem)

How did this blade of grass come into existence? It is nothing but God's Will!

Similarly, every human being is born out of divine Will only. There can be no creation without God. When you look at the earth during summer it looks parched. But, with the onset of rainy season, the earth looks green with various plants. From where did they come? From the rain. The rain came from the clouds. The clouds are caused by the sun.

And, the sun itself originated from God. Thus, the entire creation has its origin in

God. There can be no air, sun, rain or plants without God.

Knowing this truth, we still tend to forget God. On the other hand, we remember everything else. This is not correct. Never forget God. If you forget God, it amounts to forgetting everything. For God is the source and cause for everything. Unfortunately, today, we are forgetting the fundamentals or root cause for the entire Universe.

If there is no foundation, there can be no walls. If there are no walls, there can be no roof. You cannot live in a house that has no roof. Hence, first and foremost the foundation is very important. Based on the foundation, the pillars are raised and finally the roof is laid. Based on this analogy, self-confidence is the foundation, self-satisfaction is the wall, self-sacrifice is the roof and finally self-realisation is life.

Thus, there should be a foundation for everything. That is fundamental truth. We are forgetting this fundamental truth.

Jesus was the son of Joseph and Mary. When Mary was carrying him in her womb, Joseph and

Mary were required to travel to Bethlehem to take part in a census ordered by the Roman Emperor. They had to travel all the way riding on a donkey. It was an arduous journey.

When they finally reached Bethlehem, it was night. There was no place for them to rest and they were tired. Joseph searched and searched for a resting place, but he could not find any. Finally, he went to a cattle shed and knocked at the door. He explained to the inn keeper that Mary was about to give birth to a child. The inn keeper reluctantly gave them a place in a corner to spend the night. The same night, Mary gave birth to a baby boy. A makeshift bed was arranged for the newly born child, with some old clothes and dry leaves.

The boy was named Jesus. He was happily growing under the loving care of mother Mary.

When he grew up as a boy, Joseph and Mary had to travel to Jerusalem to participate in a festival. Jesus got mixed up in the crowd and could not be traced in spite of an intensive search. The parents were very worried. At last, Jesus returned to his parents.

When asked where he had gone, he replied that he went to hear the discourse of a priest in a nearby temple. The priest had taught him, You alone are the truth; remember this.

Constantly contemplating on this teaching, Jesus thereafter wandered and wandered alone for a long time and later came near a river, where some boatmen were sitting. The first among them seen by Jesus was Peter. Jesus asked him, What is your name?

He replied, My name is Peter. He is my father (pointing to an old man sitting nearby).

The old man was making fishing nets. Jesus made friendship with Peter.

Peter complained to Jesus, We went in search of fish for the whole of yesterday but could not find even one.

Jesus replied, Go to such and such place. You will find fish in plenty. Jesus also accompanied the boatmen in this exercise.

As foretold by Jesus, they could catch plenty of fish. The boatmen wondered, How great

Jesus is! He knows everything.

From then on, they treated Jesus as their preceptor. Though he was young in age and form, he was old enough in wisdom. Hence, all of them were meticulously following his words. The entire community of fishermen there treated Jesus as their Master, with great reverence. Even great Masters appear to be ordinary human beings in the first instance.

As they gradually reveal themselves, people will realise their true nature and flock round them in large numbers. The same is the case with Jesus.

The fishermen could become rich with a bounty of fish, with the help and guidance of Jesus. As they became rich, jealousy grew among the others. They vied with each other in seeking his help and guidance. Some people, however, became jealous of Jesus popularity and considered him their enemy. They reported to the chief priest that Jesus had no

miraculous powers and that he was deceiving people.

Jesus was summoned and questioned, How did you acquire these powers?

Jesus replied, All this is divine Will. Jesus was moving about with his disciples preaching his doctrine of love and moral principles. Jesus was questioned, Who are you? He replied, I am Jesus.

Vexed with the attitude and teachings of Jesus, a death sentence was passed against him.

He was to be crucified. The governor, a kindhearted person, however, did not want Jesus to be awarded a death sentence. He lamented that Jesus was a great and noble man and he was being crucified for no fault of his. He told Jesus, You are a great man. These stone-hearted people are trying to kill you without any reason.

Jesus replied I am happy that at least you have realised that I am a good person.

Finally, at the time of his crucifixion, his mother Mary came near and started shedding tears. Jesus consoled her saying, Why do you cry, mother? The body is like a water bubble. Let them do whatever they wish with this body. You think these people are trying to kill me. I have no death. None can kill me.

Mary replied, Are you not the son of this body?

Jesus replied Of course! I am related to you at the physical level, as a son. But, I am I only. You are all like children to me. You are all Embodiments of Divinity.

Thus, Jesus attained the highest level of spirituality, having gone through all tests.

Jesus was not merely a human form. He is the Embodiment of Divine Self, verily. But, some people could not realise his Divinity, as at present. Even now some people have faith in Divinity whereas others do not. Some extol Divinity, whereas some others criticise Divinity. It all depends upon their faith. If you consider a stone as God, it becomes God automatically.

Jesus underwent several trials and tribulations during his time. He became the Saviour and Messiah of the poor and forlorn. He helped them in many ways. Once, while he was crossing the desert, a poor woman approached him, begging for food. He gave her bread saying, take this. When someone asked where bread came from. He replied that it was divine Will.

There is nothing greater than divine Will. Everything is God's Will. The foremost duty of a human being is to realise the Will of God and submit himself to that divine Will.

Those who developed faith in the Will of God were protected, while others were not.

Hence, faith is the basis for everything.

People today are blind, having lost their both eyes of faith. Faith is the basis for all creation. Where there is faith and love, everything else will be added unto such a person. Hence, first and foremost, one has to develop faith. Several people have faith, but they lack love. Faith devoid of love has no use. Love and faith must be together like mutually attractive magnetic poles.

Embodiments of Love!

First and foremost, develop faith. There can be no life without faith. Sometimes, faith is also termed Self. Without Self, you cannot help others. Only when there is faith can you achieve anything in life. Even now, there are several people who have progressed in life with firm faith in Jesus.

Some people develop faith when their desires are fulfilled. If their desires are not fulfilled, they lose faith. This type of attitude is not good. Keep your faith firm, irrespective of whether your desires are fulfilled or not. Preserve your faith carefully. Faith can work wonders. It can make a blind person see; a dumb speak. Do not at all doubt the power of faith.

Some incidents happening in this world may shake your faith in God. But, if you hold on to your faith firmly, you can boldly face any situation.

Even now, some people consider this body (referring to Himself) as an ordinary man. If that were to be so, how could all these superhuman tasks be achieved? No, no; it is a mistake to think so. This body may appear to be a mere physical entity to you. It is the fault of your own vision; not Mine. There is something wrong in your perception. It is a mistake of your vision, not Mine. Hence, correct your vision, develop right perception.

If you are alright, I will be alright (loud applause). You are all in Me. This is the fundamental truth. I am getting some things done, making you as My instruments. For I require some instruments to carry on My mission. Hence, I am moulding you as those instruments (loud applause). By imparting education, knowledge, and wisdom, I am developing you all as My instruments. Hence, may you all lead purposeful lives with firm faith in God!

You think that education and academic degrees have helped you to come up in life. This view is not at all correct. How many educated people are not there in this world? Of what use are they to the world? In fact, the world is not benefited by the educated class. More harm is done to the world by such people than good. More than education, the spiritual life will protect a person in every way. Devoid of spiritual outlook, all your education and academic degrees are a mere waste. Their value is zero. Hence, fill your lives with devotion to God and develop the outlook I am not this body. This is a vesture taken upon by Me. There is God inside who is conducting my life.

God is in you, with you, around you, above you, below you (loud applause). Develop full faith in Divinity. Then you can achieve anything in life.

Dear students!

You are like fully ripened fruits. But the fruits must contain sweet juice. Without that sweet juice, it cannot be a fruit. You must all have the sweet juice of love. If there is no sweet juice, people will just bite the fruit and throw it away. Hence, fill your hearts with the sweet juice of love.

Whatever be the name and form, develop faith in God. God has several names; but God is only one. The ornaments may be many, but gold is one. You shall not lose sight of the gold. Without gold, you cannot make ornaments.

Develop faith as your foremost quality, irrespective of whether it brings you the desired results or not. Add love to that faith. I am you and you are Me; you and I are one (loud applause).

Ekoham Bahusyam (the One willed to become many). Whoever realises that oneness, achieves total bliss. Every student shall develop faith in God. I am sure that students have joined this Institution not merely for acquiring education and academic degrees. They have come here for learning Swami's teachings. If you follow the teachings with firm faith in Swami, you will achieve success in all your endeavours. You should have faith

in Swami's teachings, love them, adore them, and follow them.

(Bhagawan sang the bhajan

Hari Bhajan Bina Sukha Santhi Nahi and continued His discourse.)

When you do bhajan, you will experience peace and happiness.

Hence, constantly do namasmarana (repeating God's name) in your heart. You may not be able to do japa (soft repetition of the name), dhyana (meditation), or yoga; but do namasmarana. There is no easier path than namasmarana to be in communion with God.

Children, adults, and elderly people all can do namasmarana. Hence, continue to do namasmarana throughout your life.

You may study and acquire degrees; but do bhajan also.

Do not consider Jesus as an ordinary mortal. See God in Him. You often refer to someone and say He is a man or she is a lady. No, no. This is not the correct way of identification. Gents or ladies all are one; be alike to everyone.

Lord Krishna, in the Bhagawad Gita, declared, Mamaivamso

jeevaloke jeevabhutha

Sanathanah (the eternal Atma in all beings is a part of My Being).

You are all parts of

Me. You and I are one. You are not different from Me. I am in you, with you, above you, below you, and around you. Develop that spirit of oneness and lead your life. I hope I have made Myself clear. The moment you go to your places, do not think that Swami is there, while I am here. Always develop the feeling He is with me, in me, around me, above me, and below me. All are one (loud applause).

All are One; Be alike to Everyone

by

Bhagavan Sri Sathya Sai Baba

The sun appears serene and peaceful.

The days have become shorter, and the cool wind is blowing.

The fields are ripe with golden crops.

Marigold flowers are blossoming like garlands of pearls on the banks of rivers.

The farmers are rejoicing and singing.

The sweet festival of Sankranti comes in the month of Pushya (a month in Indian calendar), filling our homes with the newly harvested grain.

(Telugu Poem)

Man needs several objects in this world; yet, none of them is permanent. All are like passing clouds. What you think permanent in this world is, in fact, impermanent. Hence,

one has to strive to achieve that which is permanent, real, and eternal.

The Bhagavad Gita declares, "Mamaivamso jivaloke jivabhuta Sanathana" (the eternal Atma in all beings is a part of My Being). I am in you, with you, around you, above you, below you. There is no place in this Universe where God is not present. Similarly, there is no name or object that does not belong to Him. The Upanishads proclaim the same truth in the declarations, "Easwara Sarva Bhutanam" (God is the Indweller of all beings) and

"Isavasyam Idam Sarvam" (the entire universe is permeated by God). Unable to realise this truth, a human being laments, "wherever I see, I find only human beings; I am not able to find God". "Yad Bhavam Tad Bhavathi" (as the feelings, so are the results).

Suppose you wear a particular dress and stand before a mirror. You will find the same reflection in the mirror. Similarly, your own thoughts and feelings reflect in the outside world. Everything is reaction, reflection, and resound. Your own life style is reflected in the outside world. Whatever you speak comes back to you as a reply. But people think that it is someone else who is speaking these words. This is the truth.

However, different people explain this truth in different ways in keeping with the aphorism, "Ekam Sath Viprah Bahudha Vadanti" (truth is one, but the wise refer to it by various names). Every form you see in the outside world is in fact your own reflection.

Several thousand people are gathered in this hall. But there is only one heart in all of them that is, the spiritual heart. I am not referring to the physical heart.

Unfortunately, people are unable to repose their faith in this spiritual heart, in spite of their best education. You are all educated, well educated.

In spite of education and intelligence,

a foolish person will not know their true Self and a mean-minded person will not give up their evil qualities.

(Telugu Poem)

This is not the type of education you have to pursue. This is the category of worldly education. This type of education we learn from an Institution under the guidance of a teacher. Today, all our education, words, and speech are only artificial. There is something deeper which forms the basis for everything. That is fundamental truth. It does not come under the realm of education. It is educare. Education is worldly, whereas educare is other-worldly. Educare is not something that can be seen with the naked eye. It lies in the depth of our heart. It has to be brought out by conscious effort.

Where is peace? Is it outside? No; only pieces and pieces are outside. Peace is in your heart. Similarly, love. Love is in your heart. It cannot be seen. Love is God; live in love. This also forms part of educare. So also nonviolence. It is not in the outside world.

The world today is torn apart with conflicts. We don't find peace anywhere in the world.

Truth, righteousness, peace, love, and nonviolence constitute the five vital airs of a human being (panchapranas). Love is the undercurrent that flows in all these human values.

Follow truth, keeping love as the basis in your heart. Truth is eternal. Truth is God.

It is not subject to changes in time. Let love be reflected on the mirror of truth.

Whenever you come across a person not to your liking, you consider him as your enemy, keeping in mind your worldly relationship with him. You begin to hate him. This is not correct. He is, in fact, not different from you. You and he are one only. Hence, it amounts to hating yourself.

There is nothing like another person or object in this world. There is only one. First and foremost, we have to realise and follow this truth.

Unfortunately, today, we are not able to find truth at all in this world. Whether it is in the field of education, politics, or worldly life, we don't find truth at all! Even in the court, the seat of justice, people swear upon God and speak untruth. Thus, wherever you go, untruth or falsehood is rampant.

People spend a lot of money for the sake of establishing Truth. It is not necessary. If only people cultivate love for one another, it is enough. Whenever you come across someone you consider as your enemy, say, "My pranams to you." They will, in turn offer their pranams to you. As are our feelings, so are theirs. Our own thoughts and feelings find a reflection in the other person.

You don't find peace at all in the world today. Wherever you look, you will find only galata (confusion and conflict) in the market place, bazaar, or a shop. Even if you go to a hotel, you will find someone quarrelling with the waiter, saying, "this idly is not good, vada is not tasty, or that dosa is not fried properly," etc. You don't find order anywhere in this world. Everywhere it is confusion and conflict. In fact, the word "peace" is not to be found anywhere in the world.

On the other hand, the atmosphere here in Prasanthi Nilayam is totally different. There is absolute peace in this hall. You don't find this peace anywhere else in the world. So also, the feeling of love. You don't find this love anywhere else. That is why lakhs and lakhs of people from all over the world congregate here.

Why do people go to holy places and pray? For what purpose? For acquiring peace, happiness, bliss, and love. These boys studied in Brindavan and Puttaparthi. They travelled all over the country and even abroad. But they could not get peace of mind anywhere even for two minutes.

In fact, peace is in one's own mind. There is no use searching for peace in the outside world. Similarly, truth and love are also to be found in one's own bosom only. When you cultivate love, you can achieve anything in the world.

Swami is an Embodiment of Love. Love is His biggest property! My duty is to share that love with you all. If you are able understand Swami's love in true spirit and make use of it in proper way, you will prosper. Except Swami's love, nothing can protect you. You will have to understand this prema thathwa (love principle).

All are brothers and sisters! But differences arise even amongst the brothers and sisters. Hence, cultivate love for one another. Always maintain a cheerful disposition, with a sweet smile on your face. You should never put up a "castor-oil face". Then only will your life become noble and ideal. You must always be happy and cheerful. What do you lack? you have everything, with Swami's love and grace.

Some people will not be able to put up with difficulties. However, if only they are able to keep a little patience, even that pain and suffering will turn out to be an occasion for rejoicing. "Pleasure is an interval between two pains." "You are not one person, but three the one you think you are; the one others think you are, and the one you really are." "The one you really are" is the real truth.

You will be reading several books. But if you are not able to keep your head in proper condition, all that reading will become useless. Hence, the "head" is very important.

That is educare.

You must have seen volumes and volumes of books, written by great people. Each one of the authors must have highlighted a particular aspect of Divinity. But the sum total of all these descriptions represents Divinity, that is one.

Sometimes, your own mind turns against you. It is the result of your own thoughts.

Everything is reaction, reflection, and resound. Both good and bad are in you only, not in the outside world. When your vision is bad, you will see bad. On the other hand, when your vision is good you will see God everywhere. If you forsake truth and love and begin to see the world from that standpoint, then you will find differences everywhere.

Embodiments of Love! Dear Students!

You are all working in far-off countries; yet, you remember Swami and try to be in His Divine Presence at least for a few days every year. This is your good fortune (loud applause). There could be only one reason for it: your love for Swami. If there is no bond of love between you and Swami, you would not have come here along with your families, incurring huge expenditure, undergoing a lot of physical strain. You must realise this truth. You might have studied in Brindavan or Prasanthi Nilayam and are now working in different countries. Wherever you are, remember always that Swami is with you and in you. When someone asks you from where you came come, reply that you are from Brindavan or Prasanthi Nilayam. You say so for your own satisfaction. But the truth is that Swami is in you, Brindavan is in you, and Prasanthi Nilayam is in you only. If one wishes to attain self-satisfaction, one has to realise that all are one.

Religions are many but goal is one.

Clothes are many but yarn is one.

Jewels are many but gold is one.

Cows are many but milk is one.

Beings are many but breath is one.

Castes are many but humanity is one.

(Telugu Poem)

Human beings may be of different hues, but the bliss they experience in their hearts is only one. We must aspire for that bliss, disregarding individual differences. The differences are only temporary.

Divinity is only one; it assumes different forms in different ages. Lord Vishnu donned different Avatars in the Kritha Yuga (Age). The same Lord came as Lord Rama in the Tretha Age and Lord Krishna in the Dwapara Age. The same divine principle (GOD) is referred to as Brahma (The Generator), Vishnu (The Organiser), and Maheswara (The Destroyer). The different names are ascribed for the purpose of identification.

When someone asks your name, you mention some name. In fact, that name was given to you by your parents. You were not born with that name. At the time of your birth, you were just a baby. The names were given subsequently. Unfortunately, today, we are indulging in controversies even in the case of God, on the basis of names and forms. Whomever you come across, they are an embodiment of Divinity, verily. For example, you come across a beggar. That beggar is also God. God is in that form. Hence, offer your salutations to them. There is nothing wrong in doing so. All are one; be alike to everyone. Love all and serve all, be they a beggar or a millionaire.

Several changes may occur in this year, at the physical level. But there will be no change at all in the spiritual realm. It is possible that there may be some conflicts here and there in the secular world. There may be a few permutations and combinations in the political field. Some new parties and alliances may be formed.

"Parties, parties,

and parties" What are "parties, anyway? For tea only, not parties.

We must treat all human beings alike. By doing so, all people will be happy. Good and bad; pleasure and pain everything must be faced with a sense of equanimity. That is the foremost duty of a human being. The human mind is susceptible to several changes, on account of the food one partakes and the company one moves in. The mind is like a mad monkey. It is not an ordinary monkey, but "mad monkey".

Strictly speaking, the mind is a component of mankind. Hence, it should be kind.

Unfortunately today, we are converting it into a monkey. A person should always be a person! Let others do whatever they wish to us, unknowingly. But do not consciously think in terms of doing harm to others. This is My advice.

This body is passing through the 83rd year. In all these years, I have never done any harm to anyone or caused any pain to anyone. I have never spoken untruth. I always speak truth and truth only. It causes Me great pain when I see untruthfulness. Let us, therefore speak only truth and nothing but truth. Surely, victory will be ours. Always tread the path of truth.

Love all! It is easy to love someone, but quite difficult to hate. If you love others, there will be unity among you. All will become one. Where there is unity, there will be purity. Where there is purity, there Divinity will be. Hence, if you wish to attain Divinity, you must develop unity. And, for achieving unity, people should shed their narrow-mindedness.

This is a handkerchief. It is made up of several threads. If you remove one thread after the other, finally there will be no handkerchief at all! The cloth is made up of threads, and they in turn are made out of cotton. Similarly, there can be no humanness without human beings. The humanness must be gradually transformed into Divinity.

A divine person will have divine power. In fact, you all possess divine power. There is not a single human being without divine power. But no one is aware of their innate divine power.

People ask Me very often a question, "Swami! How can we achieve unity?" In fact, unity is the very nature of humanity. Forgetting this truth, people go on arguing that he is different from me, I am different from her, etc. Divinity can never be attained by such arguments.

Always think that you and others are only one. You say, "so and so is my father; so and so is my mother; so and so is my sister.

These are not real relationships. Father, mother, sister, etc. are only relationships at the body level. It is only out of marriage that the husband-wife relationship has arisen. Otherwise, who is a husband and who is a wife? These are all man-made relationships.

However, as long as the relationship exists, one should respect that relationship and follow it. The husband and wife should never hurt each other. If either of them commits a mistake, it should be gently brought to the individual's notice for rectification.

Harassing, abusing, and physical violence are bad practices. They should never be resorted to. If all of you live in unity and constantly contemplate on God, you will achieve purity. Then, Swami will surely give you darshan right where you are (applause).

I belong to you all (applause). You all belong to Me. I do not differentiate between individuals. All are mine and I belong to all. There may be differences in certain aspects among people, from the worldly angle. But there should not be any difference at the spiritual level.

Dear boys! You have come here with great love for Swami. May your hearts be filled with love up to the brim.

Always speak truth. You may encounter certain difficulties in speaking truth. It does not matter; adhere to truth. Then, you will surely achieve success. Never be afraid of speaking the truth. Be prepared to fight for truth. Truth alone triumphs (Sathyameva Jayathe). Hence, always speak truth. Untruth will fetch you bad reputation. Adhere to truth under all circumstances.

Cultivate love. Truth is love and love is truth. If you are guided by these two like the two eyes, you will always succeed in life.

There is no use worshipping God, repeating the word bhakti (devotion) as an empty rhetoric.

You may be very intelligent. You might have also acquired vast knowledge. However, if you do not develop a sense of discrimination, all your intelligence and knowledge will be reduced to zero. Hence, discrimination is of utmost importance. Analyse whether your point of view is right or wrong. If you are convinced that your point is right, stick to it till the end.

The world today is in a state of utter confusion and chaos. Wherever you see, there is endless strife. The world today is filled with selfishness and self-interest. As long as these two take predominance, it will only lead to defeat.

You are all students of Sri Sathya Sai College. Therefore, live up to the ideals of the Sathya Sai Educational Institutions. If people praise that so and so is a good boy; he is a student of Sri Sathya Sai College, I will be very happy. You all earn that good name. It gives Me great happiness (applause). There is nothing greater that I can wish for. I am not asking this for My sake. You earn a good name for your own sake. Bangaru (Dear golden ones)! Conduct yourself accordingly. Wherever you are, do not forget to contemplate on the divine name of God. You may contemplate upon any name like Rama, Krishna, Govinda, Narayana, Madhusudana, Trivikrama, etc. Though the names are different, God is only one. He is Sahasra Seersha Purusha Sahasraksha Sahasra Pad (The Cosmic Being has thousands of heads, eyes and feet). Adhere to truth and love always. (Bhagawan continued his discourse after singing the bhajan "Hari Bhajana Bina"). The joy we derive by singing bhajans cannot be attained by any other means. There is so much joy in singing bhajans and extolling the glory of God. I can also sing bhajans melodiously. But, at the moment, I have a very bad throat. Bhajans give great joy. Even if others do not share this joy, sing bhajans for your own joy. I am very happy. (Addressing the old students) when do you propose to leave for your places? Wherever you go, Swami's grace is with you in abundance. I will distribute bhajans to you all tomorrow. May you all return to your places with joyous memories of this divine congregation. Makara Sankranti, 15 January 2008

Emperor Nala, who reigned over a vast kingdom, could not take with him anything when he passed away.
Did King Mandhata, who adorned the Krita Yuga, carry any wealth with him when he left the earth?
Even Lord Rama, who built the bridge across the ocean, is not to be seen on the earth today.
Many kings have ruled over the earth, but none of them could carry even a fistful of dust with them.

Oh noble one!
Do you think you can carry the kingdom and its riches on your head when you leave the world?
(Telugu poem)
People have not brought anything into this world at the time of their birth. Property, wealth, bank balance, etc., are all acquired in the middle during the course of one's life's journey from birth to death. One cannot take these along with one while departing from this world. Then why should one worry over losing them in between?
You are not born for shedding tears. Hence you should also leave this world happily. Why should you have to worry about the ephemeral things like wealth and property, which are physical, fleeting, and impermanent? Such an attitude is unbecoming of a human being.
These are all gifts from God. There are four concepts that you must always keep in mind: the vyakthi (the individual), samashti (society), srishti (creation) and Parameshti (God). The srishti emerged out of Parameshti. From srishti came vyakthi, and vyakthi itself consists of vyakthi. Without vyakthi there can be no vyakthi. Hence, ultimately these are all God's gift. Are we making any efforts to shed tears for the sake of God?
No. we are worried about passing clouds, which are ephemeral. This is not the true nature of a human being.
You might have noticed that when thick clouds gather in the sky, the sun or the moon is obscured by them. It should bother you. Just wait for a few minutes. The dark clouds move away and the sun and the moon are back shining brightly. What is required is a little patience.
Forbearance is the real beauty in this sacred land of Bharat (India). Of all the rituals, adherence to truth is the greatest penance.
The nectarous feeling in this country is the feeling of love towards one's mother.
Character is valued far higher than the very life itself.
People have forgotten the basic principles of this great culture and are imitating Western culture.
Alas!
The Bharatiyas (Indians) are not aware of the greatness of their cultural heritage just as a mighty elephant is not aware of its own strength.
(Telugu poem)

The power that a human being possesses is unparalleled. The human being is most powerful. That is why even God incarnates in the form of a human being (applause). It is said Daivam manusha mupena (God is in the form of a human being). A human being is the crown of God's creation. And, God is supreme. It is a sacrilege to forget such an omnipresent, omniscient, and omnipotent God. We must constantly contemplate on God. You may be engaged in a variety of tasks, but never forget God, who is changeless and eternal. That should be your true nature. Your true nature should always remain the same.

The root cause for all the troubles we face is that we forget God and hanker after illusory worldly things. Happiness or sorrow is all our own making. God is always blissful. He always gives us happiness, joy, and bliss. We, out of our illusion, misinterpret God's gifts as difficulties and feel sorry for the same. Your own feelings are responsible for your suffering. Hence, change your feelings and develop a positive attitude, and you will never experience pain and suffering.

Today, you all have come here wearing white shirts and black colour blazers. Our Anil Kumar thought that when our boys are wearing black coloured blazers, why not I? He also wore a black coat and attended this function. This is imitation. In fact, the whole world is full of imitation. Such imitation is not a good sign. It may give you a momentary pleasure only.

Many kings and emperors ruled the world in the past, but all of them left this world empty-handed. They could not take even a blade of grass along with them. No doubt we can enjoy good things as long as we live in this world. Thereafter, we cease to have any relationship with them. All the worldly relationships are of our own making only. We should not maintain such artificial relationships.

As long as you live, be happy and enjoy your life. But your joy should not be like that you derive when you eat an ice cream, which melts away in a short time. Real joy springs forth from your heart. That is bliss. You should experience that bliss continuously.

The body is made up of five elements. It is bound to fall. We, as human beings, feel happy when a child is born and feel sad when someone dear to us dies. Never give scope for sorrow. You may encounter any number of sorrows and difficulties, but face them with courage and faith in God, thinking, "I am a part of Divinity; I will not therefore feel sorry or shed tears." Lord Krishna in the Bhagavad Gita declared: "Sreyohi jnanamabhyasath jnanaddhyanam visishayathe Dhyanaath karmaphala thyagah Thyagah santhiranantharam"

Better indeed is knowledge than mechanical practice.
Better still is meditation.
But better than meditation is renunciation of the desire for the fruit of karma (action).
For, there follows immediate peace.
As long as one develops a desire for the fruit of one's actions, one will not have peace of mind. Take the case of an individual. Before marriage, there is one and only one; after marriage, two. The couple begets a child after one year. In the beginning, one has only two legs; after marriage, they have four; after the child is born they increase to six legs. Thus, as the family grows, the number of legs also grows, and they will end up in sorrow. It is not of God's making. It is the result of one's mental weakness.

You participated in the annual sports meet and performed various feats. You derived joy out of it. Pleasure or pain, everything is the result of your own actions. Nothing is permanent in this world. All are fleeting. One need not be elated or depressed for anything. Whatever is born today is bound to die at sometime or the other. No one knows for sure what happens to us the next moment.

You are an embodiment of Divinity. The Divine Principle in you is eternal. That lives today, tomorrow, and the day after tomorrow. Hence, treat the past, present, and future as one even though our experiences in the three phases of time are different. Do not give much credence to these experiences. Past is past; it will not come back. We are not sure of future. Present is the only reality with which we should be concerned. This is not ordinary present, but omnipresent, because the past as well as future are present in it.

Dear students!
All your experiences in this changing world are only momentary and unreal. They are like passing clouds. You need not be too much worried about them. You are marching forward.

Continue your life's journey with steadfast faith in God. Why should you have to look back and brood over the past?

Some people worry for everything, not only about their education but in life too. They are worried about some individuals who are no longer living.

Whoever is born has to depart from this world at some time or the other. God is the only one present at all times past, present, and future, since He is omnipresent. He may assume different forms and names at different times in keeping with the aspirations and imagination of the devotees. Keep aside your imaginations and God can be perceived as one and only one Divine principle at all times.

A few days back, people celebrated the New Year all over the world.

From where did this

New Year come? It did not suddenly descend from heavens. There can be no "new" without

"old". The old transforms itself into new and the new becomes old after sometime. Thus, old and new are like the object and its reflection. Hence, do not attach much importance to these variations in time.

Constantly contemplate on the timeless principle that is Divinity. If at all you are worried about some sorrows and difficulties troubling you, keep them aside. Some boys are worried about their examinations, which is totally unnecessary.

Face the examinations boldly and write the answers confidently to the extent of your preparation.

God will take care of the rest. It is the courage and confidence that will fetch the desired result. This courage is also termed as "pushti" (strength).

Six evil qualities form part of the human psyche: kama (desire), krodha (anger), lobha (greed), moha (delusion), mada (pride), and matsarya (jealousy).

The same qualities reflect in the outside world. Hence, keep your inner consciousness clean. Then, you can win over the outside world in all areas.

Embodiments of Love! Dear students!

You are acquiring degrees in several branches of knowledge. But, of what use are they?

Modern education leads only to argumentation, not to total wisdom.

What is the use of acquiring education that cannot lead you to immortality?

Acquire the knowledge that will make you immortal.

(Telugu poem)

What is the use of acquiring so many degrees without realising one's own nature? The education that we pursue must ultimately bring some benefit to the society. You should pursue such type of education. Share your knowledge with others. Then only will your outlook be broadened. The very purpose of your humanness will be fulfilled. Vyashanti (individual) is only one. When another individual joins them, it becomes samashti

(society).

Develop the power of senses by developing control over your senses. Only by sense control can a human being be called a vyakthi (individual).

Unfortunately, today we do not at all find sense control anywhere. The senses are allowed to run amuck in the outside world.

The senses are created by God for making proper use of them by a human being by exercising proper control over them. It is not for indiscriminate "enjoyment" of God's creation. The birds, insects, and animals are, however, doing the same. Even ants are raising families and sustaining them. You need not have to follow their example. You are a human being.

Whoever has created you will also provide for your sustenance. You need not worry about your food and other needs. You may earn five thousand dollars a month abroad. No doubt it is big money when converted into Indian rupees. But compare the cost of living in India and abroad. The five thousand dollars you earn in foreign countries is equivalent to five hundred rupees in India. This much amount is sufficient here.

Several people go abroad with great hopes. But what is there abroad? That broadness lies in your heart. You need not go abroad. Develop broad-mindedness.

Remain here. Take good care of your parents, wife, and children. Make your children acquainted with Indian culture and spirituality. That is true education.

Does education mean reading and writing? Can you call all those who have learnt to read and write educated people? No, not at all! Knowledge without discrimination and not beneficial to the society can it be called education? Education that does not develop discrimination is totally void! Real education is that which comes from within, that is educare. What all the teachers teach is only that which is contained in the books. Real education is not available in the books.

Hence, dear students! Don't waste your time reading books and acquiring merely bookish knowledge. You read throughout the night, without sleeping. Thereby your health is spoiled. Hence, you have to read only those books that are necessary for your purpose, not all the trash you find in the bazaar.

People read several books, cinema magazines, and newspapers that are in no way useful to them. When you open a newspaper, it is full of advertisements and cinema pictures. There is nothing you can learn from them.

Follow your conscience, which guides you. If you follow your conscience, you are worthy of being called a human being. You don't become a human being simply because you have certain limbs like hands, legs, eyes, ears, nose, etc. Even small insects have them. Can you equate yourself to them? Certainly not! Lead the life of a real human being and set an example to others. You must be an example in true culture.

There is subtle difference between caste and culture. You belong to the caste of humanity; for there is only one caste: the caste of humanity. It is an inborn gift from your parents. On the other hand, culture is something that is adopted in your life.

Culture teaches you what is to be done and how. It is based upon certain traditions.

None can change your caste which is humanity. Based upon your inborn caste of humanity, you can follow a culture.

Another important point to be noted in this context is that caste and culture devoid of discrimination are not only useless but harmful too.

Your knowledge and sharp intellect are not that important. Discrimination is of utmost importance. You must be able to choose that which is useful and necessary for you. You have to switch on a light when you are in darkness. It is not proper to switch on a light when there is already light in the room.

Dear students!

It is not knowledge or energy that you have to develop but the power of discrimination.

Whatever object you come across, first enquire in yourself: "Is it good or bad; is it useful to me or not." Before you take up a particular work, think carefully whether it is worth or not.

Being a human being, develop the quality of humanness. Do not at all cause pain to your parents, who are responsible for your birth. The Vedas emphasised the need to show utmost reverence to the parents by declaring, Matru Devo bhava, pitru Devo bhava (revere your mother and father as God).

Children today do not care for their parents. A man considers wife, the "artificial doll", as the central point of their life. They follow the dictates of the wife, ignoring their parents, who gave birth to them and nourished and nurtured them all through undergoing several difficulties. You may love your wife; nothing wrong in that.

But you should obey your parents too.

Parents deserve your utmost concern. All others come after the parents. First and foremost, love your mother and follow her commands. It is only when you make her happy that your life too will be happy. If she sheds tears for any reason, you will have to suffer for your entire lifetime.

Very few people today have recognised the value of a mother's love. If the mother were to say something, they try to snub her saying, "Keep quiet; I know everything." Yet others bluntly tell her, "Shut up. You need not advise me. I am highly educated. I have taken a number of degrees. Do I not know?" You may have taken degrees in the academic field. But did you acquire a degree in general knowledge useful for leading a balanced life? Only parents can teach that knowledge.

One has to serve his father and mother and make them happy, apart from acquiring high degrees. Then only can one lead a happy and peaceful life. These are the things one has to learn and carefully follow in life.

Dear students!

Do not underestimate the importance of singing the glory of the divine Name. Hari Bhajana Bina Sukha Santhi Nahi. Participate in bhajans, which bring a lot of peace and confer bliss on you. Bhajans are a group activity where a number of people come together (samashiti) and sing the glory of God. One important point: in bhajans is everyone should join in singing. There would be a lead singer and all others follow him. If you are not confident of your voice, at least repeat the divine Name in your heart.

Unfortunately

today, people have no time even for that.

You may forget any item in your daily life. But never forget namasmarana (repetition of God's Name) and nama sanskirtana (singing God's Name). The divine Name is eternal.

Hence, constantly contemplate on the divine Name.

A True and Real Life is One that is Suffused with Love

by

Bhagavan Sri Sathya Sai Baba

Right from the time from getting up till going to bed, people struggle to acquire wealth.

They spend all their mental and physical energy on amassing wealth.

They undergo many difficulties in the process.

Their mind is confused, and Divinity is forgotten.

It is an endless struggle.

What kind of peace, pleasure, and comfort can one enjoy in this struggle for wealth?

(Telugu poem)

Embodiments of Love!

Today, the entire world revolves around money. Right from a student to a vegetable vendor, everyone runs after money. Notwithstanding their education and social strata, people consider pursuit of money as their be-all and end-all in life.

Strangely, even a small proportion of struggle that people willingly undergo in acquiring wealth is not to be found in the pursuit of Divinity.

God is the protector and saviour of all in this world. One may be a millionaire or a billionaire, yet one cannot live without God. There are very few individuals who recognize God as the source and sustenance for all beings. Also, there are very few who contemplate on God. That is why the sadhana (spiritual practice) of community singing

(bhajan) has been initiated. There may be a few among the group whose mind is distracted during the bhajan and who do not chant the divine name with proper bhava (feeling), raga (tune), and thala (rhythm). Still, by and large, people concentrate and contemplate on the divine name during the bhajan session.

Waves are many but water is the same. Similarly, Divinity permeates all human beings irrespective of their thoughts and feelings. Beings may be many, yet the same Divinity permeates all living beings. Ekatma sarvabhuthantharathma (one

Atma dwells in all beings). Ekam sath viprah bahudha vadanti (truth is one, but the wise refer to it by various names).

Those who struggle to uphold Truth are the real devotees. The essence of all Vedas lies in establishing this truth. Unfortunately, today, people who recognise such an eternal truth are not to be found anywhere. One should not forsake Truth.

When sathya (truth)

and dharma (righteousness) come together, there will be santhi (peace) and prema (love).

In fact, sathya is the basis for all other human values, namely, dharma, santhi, prema, and ahimsa (nonviolence).

Embodiments of Love!

Prema (love) does not descend from somewhere. It emerges from the hearts of people. A human being cannot live without love. Love assumes different forms in keeping with the relationship between two individuals husband and wife, mother and child, between two friends, etc. But, basically, prema remains as the same undercurrent in all human beings. If a question is raised as to where God is, it can be said that God permeates all beings in the form of love. A true and real life is one that is suffused with love.

Life devoid of love is not worth living. Love is the source of all virtues and all virtues merge in love.

Brahman is only one and is all-pervasive. Whenever someone enquires about your name, you have to reply, "Aham Brahmasi (I am Brahman). I have no other name." All worldly names are given to you for the purpose of identification. It is said, "Brahma Sathyam, jaganmithya" (Brahman alone is Truth, and the entire world is illusory). To realise the nature of Brahman, one must become Brahman. All names like Rama, Krishna, Govinda, Narayana, etc., merge in Brahman. If only you contemplate on Brahman, you will be able to realise the omnipresence of Brahman. You may call anyone by any name, for Brahman is present in all of them. Every human being has to contemplate on Brahman.

The nature of Divinity is described thus:

Nityanandam, Parama Sukhadam, Kevalam Jnanamurtim,

Dwandwateetam, Gagana Sadrisham,

Tattwamasyadi Lakshyam, Ekam, Nityam, Vimalam, Achalam,

Sarvadhee Sakshibhutam (God is the embodiment of eternal bliss, He is wisdom absolute, beyond the pair of opposites, expansive and pervasive like the sky, the goal indicated by the aphorism Tattwamasi (I am That), One without a second, eternal, pure, unchanging, witness of all functions of the intellect).

While coming into this hall, I saw Eswaramma and Pedda Venkama Raju (Swami's parents).

Even at this moment, they are very much here. Pedda Venkama Raju wore a yellow coloured dhoti, while Eswaramma wore a yellow coloured sari. The reason for this colour is that they now reside in Vaikunta, the Abode of Lord Vishnu. Everyone in Vaikunta wears a yellow colour dress. Not only Myself, even Satyajit, who sleeps in My room, has seen

Eswaramma wearing a yellow coloured sari. Women who wear yellow saris are forever sumangalis (ever auspicious).

The principle of Brahman is represented by the colour yellow. That is why Lord Vishnu is described as Pithambara dhari, or the Lord who wears a yellow robe. Today, I wanted to bring out a yellow lingam from My body. But all the students, staff, and devotees prayed

, "Swami, You need not bring out a lingam from Your body. We cannot bear to witness the physical suffering You undergo while You bring out the lingam. Please accept our prayer and make us happy."

Whatever I will, it will happen. Whereas human nature constantly undergoes change, My divine nature is changeless and eternal. No one can decipher such divine nature.

The cosmic dance performed by Lord Shiva in Kailas is described thus:

Lord Shiva is lost in ecstasy

Parameswara, Sambashiva is lost in ecstasy,

Dancing and dancing the thandava dance

With the divine sage Narada accompanying on thampura and

The Lord's matted locks shining brilliantly.

Wielding the Trident, Shiva is dancing

Thadhim, Thadhim, Thadhim Thadhimthaka ||Lord Shiva||

With Goddess Saraswathi playing veena and Indra the flute,

Lord Vishnu on Mridanga,

Dhimi Dhimi Dhimi Dhimithaka ||Lord Shiva||

With Ganges in the matted locks, the third eye in the forehead

And crystal beads round the neck shining brilliantly

Lord Shiva is lost in ecstasy

Dancing and dancing the cosmic dance. ||Lord Shiva||

Once, when Shiva and Parvati were moving about in the sky, they saw a person cutting the branch of a tree on which he was sitting. As he was on the verge of falling, Parvati prayed to Shiva to save him, "Oh Lord, Please save him when he falls on the ground."

But Shiva said to Parvati, "It is you who saw him first. It is you again who realised that he would die when he falls down. So it is your responsibility to save him."

Parvati replied, "Dear Lord, when someone falls on the ground, he will utter either amma

(mother) or appa (father). If this man utters amma, then I will save him, but if he utters amma, you should save him." Easwara agreed to this proposal.

As the branch broke, both Shiva and Parvati came forward to save him. But while falling, this man did not utter either amma or amma; he said, ayyo! (alas!).

Though both Shiva

and Parvati were waiting to save him, he did not call them.

The moral of the story is that we should always remember our parents. One who does not remember the parents even in times of difficulty is really a fool. Lord Easwara and Mother Parvati are the universal parents. If one constantly remembers them, one will not encounter any difficulty or suffering. Unfortunately, today, people do not remember their parents. That is why they are denied protection.

Rama's Divinity blossomed under Kausalya's loving care;

Because of the tender feelings and austerity of Sita,

Lava and Kusha achieved name and fame;

Fostered with the love of his mother, Putlibai, Gandhi became a Mahatma;

The loving care of Iijabai made Shivaji a great warrior.

(Telugu poem)

First and foremost, one has to remember one's mother always.

Easwaramma represents the divine motherhood. She is the mother of Easwara. Similarly,

Venkama means the Lord of the seven hills. Thus, Pedda Venkamaraju and Easwaramma

together represent the Ddivine

parents. Today, both of them reside in Vaikunta.

There are three Sai Avatars. The first was Shirdi Sai, the second is Sathya Sai, and the third to come is Prema Sai. Prema Sai will be the most important Avatar, because He will unite the entire humanity. You all know that it is prema (principle of love) that unites all!

Unfortunately, today you do not find ekathwa (unity) anywhere.

Wherever you see, there is only bhinnathwa (differences and diversity). Where there is love, there will be unity. Then all people will be united, regardless of caste, culture, and country.

Suppose someone asks where you come from; you will reply that you come from such and such state. But the truth is that all people belong to one country and one world. You should feel proud to proclaim that you belong to the country of Bharath. Bharath is the home of all people in the world. In fact, Prasanthi Nilayam has become the home of all people in the world.

In the Ramayana story, King Dasaratha performed the Puthrakameshti Yajna with a desire to have sons. The God of fire, rising from the homakunda (sacrificial pit), handed over to King Dasaratha a vessel filled with sacred pudding, and Dasaratha distributed it equally amongst his three wives. Kausalya and Kaikeyi took their share of pudding to their respective puja rooms. Each of them was happy, thinking that her son would be the future king of Ayodhya.

But Sumitra had no such expectations. She carried her bowl of pudding to the terrace and placed it on the parapet wall, while drying her hair in the sun. Suddenly, an eagle swooped down and carried away the bowl of sacred pudding. She immediately ran down and informed Kausalya and Kaikeyi about what had happened.

Kausalya and Kaikeyi came to Sumitra's rescue and shared their portion of pudding with her. Kaikeyi gave half of her share to Sumithra, and Kausalya did the same. In due course, Kausalya gave birth to Rama, Kaikeyi to Bharatha and Sumitra to Lakshmana and Satrughna.

Sumitra was a paragon of virtues. Her name itself signifies that she was a good friend to one and all! One day, Sumitra was thinking to herself, "Rama deserves to be crowned

King of Ayodhya, since He is the eldest among the sons. Or else, Bharatha should be crowned King as per the promise made by King Dasaratha to Kaikeyi. My two sons,

Lakshmana and Satrughna, should serve their elder brothers Lakshmana to serve Rama and Satrughna to serve Bharatha." Thus, all three wives of King Dasaratha, namely,

Kausalya, Sumitra, and Kaikeyi, and also their sons lived in unity and love.

In keeping with the noble traditions and ideals set out in the Ramayana, we should always maintain unity and brotherhood. If only we are able to cultivate these two, we can be good friends to one and all. In the Ramayana and Mahabharatha, unity and spirituality were projected as the ideal qualities to be emulated by all.

A few years ago when I visited East Africa, I told them that I came from India. The then President of Uganda, Idi Amin, further queried as to which state I came from. I reiterated that I came from India. I emphatically told him that entire India represents only one country. If all people cultivate such noble principles, the country as well as the people living in it will prosper.

Very soon, the entire country of Bharath will be united and all differences will subside. It is of utmost importance that all the people be united and live like brothers and sisters. This principle of unity shall be propagated in every nook and corner of the country. The languages people speak, the individual vocation, and the education they pursue may be different. But all should practise the principle of one country, one caste, and one culture. It is only because these aspects are treated as different now that differences arise among people. The important message of this festival is that the country of Bharath shall be united. It should be the endeavour of people to treat it so.

Embodiments of Love!

Wherever you go, proudly proclaim that you belong to the country of Bharath, you speak the language of Bharath, and you follow the culture of Bharath.

Believe in the principle of unity. Develop faith in the principle of unity, and live accordingly.

The country,

caste, and culture all the three must merge into one. Then only will the country progress. Bharath, the name of our country, signifies the message of Bha (meaning God) and rathi (meaning love). Therefore, Bharath is the country where people develop love for God. This Truth has always to be borne in mind.

(Bhagawan sang the bhajan "Hari Bhajana Bina Sukha Santhi Nahi".)

Whoever wishes to have santhi (peace), must participate in bhajan. Bhajan is the only sadhana (spiritual exercise) that confers peace on an individual.

Cultivate Good Thoughts and Noble Feelings in your Heart
by
Bhagavan Sri Sathya Sai Baba
Karma is responsible for birth, existence, and death.
It holds sway over all stages of life as the very deity of human existence.

It is responsible for joy and sorrow.
(Telugu Poem)

Karma (action) is the very life breath of a human. Every human being has to undertake karma keeping in mind the possible result of the karmas. This is the most important duty of a human being. As the karma, so will be the result.

One has to keep good health, not merely physical health but mental health too. Thoughts and resolutions should also be healthy. Good thoughts result in good karmas. When one undertakes karmas with evil thoughts, the result will also be bad.

Who made the bats to hang from the branches of a tree with their heads downward? Has anyone tied them upside down out of hatred? No, it is their fate.

Likewise, nobody can escape from the consequences of karma. A human being does bad karmas, entertains bad thoughts, and ultimately encounters bad results. On the other hand, one who entertains good thoughts and undertakes good karmas enjoys good results. It is not possible to get good results by doing bad deeds.

A small example: when you write correct answers for the questions in an examination, you will get good marks, and vice versa. Undertaking bad deeds denotes animalistic tendency.

One has to analyze at every stage whether one is behaving like a human being or an animal. When you indulge in bad deeds, even your neighbours will restrain you, saying,

"Being born as a human, why do you behave like an animal?" Thus, one is ridiculed and punished even by a fellow human being. When you resort to evil deeds, you need not have to wait for long till God decides to punish you. The result of your evil deeds accrues to you from yourself.

By doing a bad deed, a good result cannot be achieved;
By doing a good deed, bad results will not accrue;
Having planted a lime sapling, can you obtain a mango fruit?
By planting a mango sapling, can you get a lime fruit?
(Telugu poem)

Human beings have to realise that they are born to undertake good deeds only. The word manava (human being) has profound meaning. It consists of three letters: ma (means ignorance), na (means without), va (means to conduct). Thus, one who conducts oneself without ignorance is a manava (human being). Having been born as a human being, one has to conduct oneself accordingly.

When the crows caw, we chase them away by throwing a stone at them. On the other hand, when a parrot speaks small words sweetly, we hear them with joy.

We are never tired of hearing a cuckoo bird singing. What does all this signify? By our sweet words and good behaviour, we make ourselves endearing to all.

Human beings have to help their fellow human beings. "Help ever; hurt never." Even though we are aware of this maxim, we do harm to others knowingly. That is the greatest mistake. Humans have been endowed with a reasoning faculty. The mind can be employed in both good and bad ways. That is why it is said, Manah eva manushyanam karanam bandhamokshayo (mind is the cause for bondage and liberation of man). The mind is a gift of God to a human being. It is not the real nature of a human being to abuse, make fun of, or hurt others. Even animals are helping human beings in ever so many ways. Thus, what greatness lies in a human being helping a fellow human being?

Having been born as human beings, we must conduct ourselves accordingly and love all as our brothers and sisters.

We must undertake such activities to please God. Then only will our human birth be sanctified. God resides in all. Daivam manusha rupena (God incarnates in the form of a human being). When God incarnates in human form, we should obey His divine command. It is said, Jantunam nara janma durlabham (out of all living beings, human birth is the rarest). We should not waste such a precious human birth. We will be losing our humanness by speaking untruth, causing injustice to others and undertaking bad deeds. A human being has to behave as a human being by following the principle, "see good, do good, and be good."

Some people appear to be good but cast evil looks on others. That is not good.

Manasyekamvachasyekam, karmanyekam mahatmanam,
Manasyanyath vachasyanyath,

karmanyanyath duratmanam.

Those whose thoughts, words and deeds

are in perfect harmony are noble ones;

Those who lack harmony of these are wicked.

There must be harmony between one's thoughts, words, and deeds.

When there is unity between these three, there will be purity. Where there is purity, there is Divinity.

Whatever others do to you, consider it as good for you. See that you do not lose your humanness under any circumstances. In fact, humanness is your most valuable property.

"Love all and serve all." Then only you can lead a healthy and happy life. Do not eat junk food or food that is prohibited. You have to partake good,

sathwic (pure) food that is offered first to God. You don't offer all sorts of food to God, do you?

Sathwic food

that is prepared in a clean vessel with pure feelings is offered to God.

The food so offered to God has to be partaken as prasadam (sanctified food).

Good food brings good health, and from good health arises good thoughts. Unfortunately, today there is dichotomy between our thoughts, words, and deeds. We say something and do something else.

Once, a person pretending to be an ascetic came to a house and begged for food. The housewife told him, "Please go to the river, finish your bath, and come back. In the meantime, I will prepare food for you."

The "ascetic" was by nature a lazy fellow. He told her, "Mother! For wandering mendicants like us, Govindethi sada snanam (chanting of the divine name of Govinda is equivalent to having a bath)."

The housewife was clever enough to teach him a lesson. She told him, "Dear son!

Govindethi sada bhojanam (The divine name of Govinda is verily food for you). You can go."

Evil feelings may sometimes arise in our heart. They have to be corrected by participating in sathsanga (good company). It is said, "Tell me your company, I shall tell you what you are." If you are in good company, you will be a good person. On the other hand, if you move about in bad company, you will also become bad. Hence, always move in good company. If you partake of meat, indulge in smoking and drinking, and say that you are a good person, no one will agree with that statement. If you wish to be a good person, undertake good and noble activities.

As are your karmas, so shall be the results. Human birth is very sacred. It is the result of sathkarmas (good actions) performed over several past lives.

A few thousand devotees are gathered in this hall. For what purpose? To sanctify their time in the divine presence of God, to hear the divine message, and contemplate on the same. The entire hall is permeated by divine vibrations. That is why saints and sages proclaim the importance of sathsanga.

Satsangatwe nissangatwam.

Nissangatwe nirmohatwam.

Nirmohatwe nischalatattwam.

Nischalatattwe jivanmukti

(Sanskrit Verse)

Good company leads to detachment,

Detachment makes one free from delusion;

Freedom from delusion leads to steadiness of mind;

Steadiness of mind confers liberation.

We should move about in good company and cultivate good thoughts and feelings. Jealousy, anger, ego, and such other ill feelings must be shed. Gratitude is another good quality to be cultivated. A person with gratitude, wherever they are, will prosper. Some people return evil for good. They are verily demons. We must show gratitude to all those who help us, irrespective of whether the help is small or great.

We must serve all. We must greet with love even those who hate us.

Then they will also respond with a loving greeting. If you address others with respect, saying, "Sir!", they will also treat you with respect. On the other hand, if you insult them, you will get the same in return. Our entire life is filled with reaction, resound, and reflection.

See good, do good, and be good. Then your birth as a human being will be sanctified.

Your own good nature will protect you. That is your real support.

Lawyers, while arguing their cases in the courts, always rely upon witnesses. But we don't require someone else to testify to our good conduct. Our own mind is the witness to our good nature. If you want to earn money, do it but by fair means and good conduct. First and foremost, your actions should be in accordance with your conscience.

Self satisfaction should be the most important goal in whatever activity you undertake.

Only when you achieve self satisfaction will you be able to go to the next step of self-sacrifice.

Dear students! You must cultivate good and noble feelings right from this early age.

That is true education. There is no use studying voluminous texts. I find several students always reading and reading books We are not sure what kind of books they are reading. Read good books that will help develop your character. Do not read books that go against the basic tenets of humanness.

You are all now students. Pursuit of education is your goal. What kind of education?

Education that would confer Atma Jnana (knowledge of the Self).

Some boys read big books, and their parents feel happy thinking that their children are reading the Ramayana or the Mahabharatha. But nobody knows for sure what exactly they are reading.

Some may be reading trash novels, keeping them in between the pages of those voluminous books. Do not resort to such dubious actions, for if you do such things, your entire life will be spoiled. Society will not respect you.

First and foremost, students must control their anger, cultivate patience, and lead a peaceful life. Only by developing a calm and serene mind can you understand your lessons well. This is the age when your hearts are pure. It may not be possible for you to make everyone happy. But conduct yourself in such a manner that your actions please to God.

Every one in this world wishes to be happy. But where does the real happiness lie? Hari bhajana bina sukha santhi nahi." True peace and happiness lie in singing bhajans. That is why Guru Nanak had initiated the sadhana (spiritual exercises) of community bhajan singing. If a group of people come together and sing the glory of God, at least one person's heart will be tuned to Divinity.

We find people dozing during Sivarathri akhanda bhajan. Some others mechanically participate in the bhajan, while their mind is roaming elsewhere. In spite of these undesirable things, community singing is still a better sadhana. At least one in this group will have their mind fixed in God while singing the bhajan.

Community singing is pleasing to God.

Sivarathri means an auspicious night. Every day, there is a rathri (night). But all nights cannot equal Sivarathri. Real Sivarathri is only that where the divine name is contemplated upon and sung with devotion. That is the only auspicious night. Hence, cultivate noble feelings in your heart at least on this auspicious night.

Have Self-confidence and Achieve Everything

by

Bhagavan Sri Sathya Sai Baba

The land, whose sons are known for name and fame across the continents,

The land, whose heroes fought invaders and conquerors to achieve freedom,

That famed land whose sons of wisdom and scholarship are the praise of the globe,

That land of saints, poets, singers, and divine songsters,

Oh sons of Bharat, go forth and uphold your heritage and be worthy of your glorious past.

(Telugu Poem)

It is not possible to describe the greatness of glory of the land of Bharat. There are many men of affluence and great leaders even today. But what is the use when they are not prepared to get rid of their greed and devote their life for the welfare of the needy. Born in this sacred land, the Bharatiyas (Indians) should try to sanctify their life by serving the poor and needy.

Embodiments of Love!

The doctor and the judge who spoke earlier, talked about Swami and His mission. But their talk was limited to more worldly matters than to spirituality.

One may acquire all types of education, but without spiritual knowledge, all this is just a waste. People today have everything, except self confidence. In the word "self-confidence", "self" refers to I. What is the meaning of "I"? That which cannot be seen by the physical eyes, heard by physical ears, or comprehended at the physical level is "I". It is divine, auspicious and all-pervasive in the form of consciousness (Chaitanya Shakti).

All the beings in the universe are the creation of God. There is nothing in this world that is not divine. People observe differences between one another.

This is a great mistake. All are one. Ekam sath viprah bahudha vadanti (truth is one, but the wise refer to it by various names). There is no second entity in this world.

Sarvatah panipadam Tat

Sarvathokshi siromukham, Sarvatah sruthimalloke

Sarvamavruthya tishthati (with hands, feet, eyes, heads, mouth and ears pervading everything, He permeates the entire universe).

There is none in this world in whom God is not present. Everything is permeated by Divinity. Nobody has a right to say that this is divine and that is not. God is present even in difficulties, sorrow, and misery. Though we have the capacity to understand this divine power, we are unfortunately not able to use that. When we observe the natural scenario around us, we see vast land areas and a number of rivers, such as Yamuna, Ganga, Pinakini, Cauveri, Tungabhadra, Godavari, and Saraswati.

In spite of having such a vast land with numerous rivers, there is scarcity of food for man.

What is the reason?

The reason is that humans are not making proper use of their innate power and potentiality. Instead, they are misusing their powers and wasting their intelligence. If one makes efforts in the right direction, one can achieve everything.

Have faith that everything that you see in this world is an aspect of Divinity. There is nothing else other than this. Only One exists in this world; there is no second.

We are unable to understand this truth and we suffer from many misconceptions. We are prepared to believe what others write in their books, but no one is prepared to have faith in their own self. People have all types of confidence except self-confidence.

What is the use of having everything except self-confidence? If only we have self-confidence, we can achieve everything; there is nothing in this world that we cannot accomplish.

We should make efforts to recognise this principle of Atma, which is divine, auspicious, and ever new. But one today does not make efforts to know oneself.

When we ask anyone who they are, they will tell the name given to them by their parents. If we put the same question to God, and God will say Aham Brahmasmi (I am Brahman).

Since we are unable to recognise the truth, we take to wrong path and get confused. We do not make efforts to know what we are supposed to know. On the other hand, we try to know that which is not possible for us to know by our senses. Is it possible to know

Divinity, which is all-pervasive? It is impossible. Hence, whatever happens, recognise it as the Will of God.

All differences are born out of our own feelings of mine and thine. In fact, there is no difference between you and me. You and I are one (loud applause).

Do not think that God exists separately in a particular place. Think that you are God. You are not the body.

Body is like a water bubble. Mind is like a mad monkey. Intellect is wavering. Hence, you are neither the body nor the mind nor the intellect. You are you.

You should make proper efforts to know this truth.

Tomorrow is Rama Navami. This is the day on which Sri Rama was born. There is a story about it. In the Treta Yuga, King Dasaratha ruled over Ayodhya. He married Kausalya, who was the daughter of the king of Kosala. After some time, she gave birth to a daughter.

She was named Santha. But Dasaratha was not satisfied with the birth of a female child and wanted a male child. Therefore, he gave her to a friend, who adopted her.

Thereafter, he did not have any other issue. So he wanted to have another wife. As per the prevalent customs in those times, he had to seek the permission of the first wife before marrying another woman. Dasaratha went to Kausalya and said, "I am thinking of marrying again."

She replied, "Certainly you may do as per your wish."

After securing Kausalya's permission, he married Sumitra in the hope of getting a son.

But she also did not bear him a child, and King Dasaratha became very worried.

At that time he received the information that the king of Kekaya had a beautiful daughter by name Kaikeyi. He approached the king of Kekaya and proposed that he wanted to marry his daughter, telling him he already had two wives. He always spoke the truth.

Sathyannasti paro dharma (There is no righteousness greater than adherence to truth). He never said anything that was untrue. He explained to the king of Kekaya everything in detail.

The king of Kekaya said, "You already have two wives and they have not borne you any children. Now you want a third wife. I can give my daughter in marriage to you on the condition that the son born to her will be the heir to your kingdom."

Dasaratha agreed to their condition. Manthara, who was the main associate of Kaikeyi, was hearing all their conversation.

Accordingly, the marriage was performed with great rejoicings. However, she also did not bear any child, even after a passage of long time. Therefore,

Dasaratha decided to perform the Putrakameshti Yajna, as desired by his well-wishers. Sage Rishyasringa, along with his wife Santha, came to Ayodhya to perform the Putrakameshti Yajna.

On the eleventh day of the performance of the yajna, an effulgent being appeared from the fire in the sacrificial altar with a vessel containing a payasam (sweet pudding).

Dasaratha gave the payasam to sage Vasishtha and asked him to distribute it equally among the three queens. Accordingly, Vasishtha distributed the payasam to Kausalya, Sumitra, and Kaikeyi.

Kausalya and Kaikeyi took their share of the pudding to their respective puja (worship) rooms. Each of them was happy thinking that her son would be the future king of Ayodhya.

Kaikeyi thought Dasaratha would crown her son as per the promise made by him at the time of marriage. Kausalya thought, she being the first wife, her son had every right to become the king.

But Sumitra had no such claims. She was a paragon of virtues. Her name, "Su-mitra" itself, signifies that she was a good friend to one and all. She carried her bowl of pudding to the terrace and placed it on the parapet wall while drying her hair in the sun. Suddenly, an eagle swooped down and carried away the bowl and left it on the Matanga Mountain. Anjana Devi found the bowl and partook of the sacred pudding.

Consequently she became pregnant and gave birth to Hanuman.

Sumitra ran down and told Kausalya and Kaikeyi about what had happened. Kausalya and Kaikeyi came to her rescue and shared their pudding with her. Kaikeyi gave half of her share to Sumitra. Kausalya did the same.

In due course, Kausalya gave birth to Rama, Kaikeyi to Bharata, and Sumitra to Lakshmana and Satrughna. Kausalya and Kaikeyi had one son each, whereas Sumitra had two sons. When we enquire into the reason, we can understand the mystery behind it.

The sons of Kausalya and Kaikeyi were happily playing in their cradles whereas Sumitra's sons were crying all the time and not taking milk. Sumitra was at a loss to know the reason for their crying and tried in vain various types of yantras, mantras, and tantras to make them comfortable. Ultimately, she went to Sage Vasishtha and told him about her predicament. Sage Vasishtha closed his eyes. His yogic vision enabled him to know the truth. He said to Sumitra, "As you partook of the sacred pudding given by Kausalya, you gave birth to Lakshmana who is an amsa (part) of Rama. Similarly, Satrughna is born out of the share of pudding given to you by Kaikeyi. So, he is a part of Bharata. Put Lakshmana by Rama's side and Satrughna by Bharata's side. Then they will rest peacefully."

Sumitra did as instructed by Vasishtha. Both Lakshmana and Satrughna stopped crying and started playing blissfully in their cradles. This was the basis of the intimate relationship between Rama and Lakshmana, Bharata and Satrughna.

Since both sons of Sumitra namely, Lakshmana and Satrughna, were always in the company of Rama and Bharata, she had nothing much to do. Time and again she would go to Kausalya and Kaikeyi to see how her sons were playing with their elder brothers. After seeing them, she would shower her love and affection on them. In this manner, all the four sons of Dasaratha grew up in an environment of love and happiness. Sumitra was very happy

because she thought her son Lakshmana would serve Rama and Satrughna would serve Bharata

when they grew up.

Rama, Lakshmana, Bharata, and Satrughna grew up as young men of great valour and learning under the loving care of their parents and Guru Vasishtha. When Rama and Lakshmana went to protect the yajna of sage Viswamitra, he took them to the court of King Janaka to participate in the swayamvar of his daughter Sita. There, Rama broke the Siva bow and won Sita's hand. The marriage of Rama and Sita became the occasion of great rejoicing in Mithila. The people of Mithila sang joyous songs, welcoming one and all to witness the marriage of Sita and Rama.

Welcome to all for Rama's wedding;
together we shall witness the joyous scene.
Many have gathered already,
decked up in all their finery.
With necklaces the ladies are adorned
with jewels pure and gleaming.
Rama shall tie the knot today to beautiful Sita.
Oh, what a fine match they make!
(Telugu Song)
The women of the kingdom came to participate in the wedding and joyfully sang blithesome songs:
Come let us go and see the marriage of Rama and Sita,
The sight shall confer great merit.
Blessed are those who see this scene.
Oh, come one and all, watch with joy the sacred marriage.
(Telugu Song)
After marriage, as they were returning to Ayodhya, they heard a deafening sound. As they wondered where the sound had come from, Sage Parasurama appeared and roared, "Who is the one who broke the bow of Siva?"
"I did it," said Rama.
"If that is so, let us see if You can break my bow." So saying, Parasurama gave his bow
in the hands of Rama. Rama broke even that bow with His left hand.
Seeing that,
Parasurama offered his salutations to Rama and submitted his two kalas (splendours) to Rama, who was endowed with twelve kalas. Rama shone with his own twelve kalas, two kalas from his brothers and another two given by Parasurama. That is how Rama shone brilliantly with all the sixteen kalas of the Virat Purusha. With the surrender of Parasurama, Rama's power became full and complete.
In due course of time, Dasaratha realised that he was growing old and it was time to crown one of his sons as heir to his kingdom. Since Rama was the eldest of the four sons, and he had all the qualities of becoming a worthy king to the kingdom, he thought of crowning him as heir. This news was received by the subjects of the kingdom with great joy and happiness because all of them thought that Rama was most suited to assume the reigns of the kingdom.
When Manthara heard this news, she went to Kaikeyi and reminded her of the two boons granted to her by Dasaratha. She suggested to her that she should demand from Dasaratha that Bharata should be crowned as the heir to the kingdom and

Rama should be sent to the forest for fourteen years. Though Kaikeyi loved Rama more than Bharata, she was influenced by the evil advice of Manthara. She removed all her ornaments and lay down in great anger in her chamber.
Dasaratha went to her chamber and asked the reason for her anger.
When Kaikeyi demanded the two boons granted to her by Dasaratha earlier, he was very much distressed. But as Kaikeyi persisted with her demands, he relented and agreed to make her son Bharata the crown prince of Ayodhya. But when she put forth the second demand, asking him to send Rama to the forest for 14 years, Dasaratha was crestfallen. However Rama immediately agreed to make Bharata the heir to the kingdom and go to the forest for fourteen years to uphold the promise given by his father to Kaikeyi. But when Lakshmana heard this, he became very angry. In a fit of rage, he even thought of putting Kaikeyi and Manthara to death. Rama pacified him, saying that it was their foremost duty to follow the command of their father and not do anything that would bring disrepute to their father.
Kaikeyi wanted Rama to go to the forest immediately. Lakshmana and Sita also decided to follow Rama. Lakshmana went to his mother, Sumitra, and sought her permission and blessings to serve Rama in the forest. Sumitra was very happy to hear that Lakshmana was following Rama to serve him. Lakshmana then went to his wife, Urmila. As he entered her room, she was making a painting. She was a good painter.
Lakshmana asked what she was painting. She replied that she was making a painting of Rama's coronation.
On hearing this, Lakshmana told her that Rama was not going to be crowned and was going to the forest for 14 years. He also informed her that he had decided to go with Rama to the forest for 14 years. Urmila did not have an objection to it and said, "Protect Rama
and Sita just as eyelids protect the eyes. They are everything for you.
Consider them as your father and mother. Never be slack in serving them. Never think of me even for a moment in the forest for these fourteen years. Only Sita and Rama should be uppermost in your mind." Saying this, she offered her salutations to him.
Sita, Rama, and Lakshmana got into the chariot and proceeded to the forest. Dasaratha ran after the chariot saying, "Oh Rama! Stay for a while. Let me see your beautiful form at least for some time. Any way I cannot stop you from going."

The shock of separation for Rama was too severe for Dasaratha to bear. He did not eat anything, and he refused to drink even a drop of water. All the time he was saying,

"Rama, Rama." In this way, remembering Rama every moment, he left his mortal coil. All this happened because there was a reason behind this and it was like this.

Once, a long time ago, Dasaratha went to the forest for hunting. As he reached near the bank of a stream, he heard a noise and thought that some wild animal was drinking water.

On hearing this sound, he shot an arrow at the source of the sound. That arrow hit

Sravana Kumar, which proved fatal. Sravana Kumar had come to the stream to take water and quench the thirst of his old mother and father who were blind and helpless. He was the only support of his parents and carried them with him in a kavadi (a bamboo stick with two baskets at each end) to all places of pilgrimage. When Dasaratha realised what he had done, he was grief-stricken that he had caused the death of the only son of his old parents.

Before his death, Sravana Kumar told him to carry the water to his old parents. When Dasaratha informed his old parents about the tragic death of their son, they were drowned in inconsolable grief and cursed him that he would also die a tragic death due to the separation from his son. That is what happened to Dasaratha. Ultimately, the curse given by noble souls cannot be reversed.

After the marriage of Sita and Rama, Viswamitra left for the forest.

It is not enough if we worship Rama only on His birthday. When

Rama returned to Ayodhya

all the people of Ayodhya joyously welcomed Him, singing His glory and chanting His name. In Bharat, we do not find any village that does not have a temple of Rama or a person who does not know the name of Rama. Wherever we see, the name of Rama is heard everywhere. Though thousands of years have passed, Rama's name is as fresh and new today as it was in the past.

Rama is ever new. The name of Rama gives joy to everyone. Even when you ask an old woman, she will reply, "I may not be able to say any other word, but I constantly chant

the name of Rama." Not even one person would be found in a village who does not know the name of Rama.

There is no village where you do not find temples of Rama. Even if the people are not able to make a temple, they will erect a small shelter covered with a couple of sheets and install the idol of Rama in it. Even after the passage of thousands of year, the name of Rama is known everywhere and is held in high esteem by the people.

Nowadays, even in Russia people are chanting the name of Rama. In fact, the name of Rama has spread to every nook and corner of the world. The name of Rama is the crest jewel of all names. Everybody can easily chant this. Therefore, whatever task you are engaged in, you should constantly chant the name of Rama while performing the task. When you step out from your home, when you are on your way to college, you should keep chanting the name of Rama all the while. The name of Rama should become your life-breath.

Man without morality is verily a demon

by

Bhagavan Sri Sathya Sai Baba

Bharat is the motherland of many noble souls who earned great reputation in all the continents of the world.

This is the land of many valorous people who could vanquish the enemies in the battlefield.

This is the land of many learned people who taught the Vedas and other sacred scriptures to the people of other countries.

But, unfortunately, the Bharatiyas (Indians) today have forgotten the principles of spirituality and are taking to wrong path.

(Telugu Poem)

Matru Devo bhava, pitru Devo bhava, acharya Devo bhava, atithi Devo bhava (revere your mother, father, preceptor and guest as God) is one of the main teachings of the Vedas.

Sathyam vada, dharmam chara (speak truth, practise righteousness) is also the principal teaching of the Vedas. But these teachings of the Vedas are not seen or heard anywhere

today.

Base your life on truth and love

Wherever we look in the world these days, greed and desire are on the rise. Even the people of other countries feel the need to control the senses. People today are accumulating sin due to the misuse of their senses. It is alright to have desires, but they should be within certain limits. People today have limitless desires.

Moreover, everything is full of pollution these days. The water we drink, the food we eat, and the air we breathe are all polluted. In fact, all five elements have become polluted. One's very life depends upon these five elements. How can one's life remain unaffected when all five elements are polluted?

People appear to speak sweetly, but their minds are full of bitterness. This is very bad. What is the purpose of human birth? Who is a human being? Human being is the embodiment of Divinity. But if one takes to a wrong path, how can one be called a human being? That is why it is hard to find a true human being today anywhere.

Even those with high education and big degrees, occupying high positions of authority, cannot be called human beings if they lack truth and love. In fact, they waste their money and time in acquiring this so-called high education, which is without any essence.

Acquiring high education, reading sacred books, and undertaking spiritual practices like japa, dhyana, yoga, yajna all these are a mere waste without developing truth and love, which people have completely forgotten today. Whoever says something, there is an element of untruth in it. As regards love, outwardly people appear to be smiling, but inside there is only poison in them. How can one attain peace without truth and love?

Dharma (righteousness) comes from Sathya (truth). Therefore, it is said, Sathyannasti paro dharma (There is no dharma greater than adherence to truth). Where there are truth and righteousness, peace will come there automatically. Love can develop only in peace.

Where there is love, violence cannot exist. Then only can one perform all one's actions at physical, mental, and spiritual levels peacefully. Therefore, if you want to have peace, primarily develop love. If you want to have love, adhere to truth.

But, today, man resorts to untruth even in small matters. On top of it, he is full of anger. Anger completely eclipses truth in man. Man has taken birth not to raise a family or fill his belly but to redeem his life. If he acts contrary to this, he loses his humanness. Human beings become divine when they free themselves from desires.

A mother aspires to see the happiness of her children, whom she has brought up, bearing all hardships and difficulties. But, unfortunately, today people do not love their father and mother. In fact, they do not love anybody.

Embodiments of Love!

Wherever we look in this world, we do not find even a trace of peace anywhere. We do not find peace even in flower sellers, vegetable vendors, and firewood sellers. Where is peace? Peace is only within us. It is there in our speech and in our heart. It cannot be found outside. Whatever spiritual practices like japa, yoga, and yajna that we may undertake, they cannot provide us peace.

First and foremost, we should make our heart steady and peaceful. We find only conflicts wherever we look in this world. Even intimate friends who have love for each other quarrel on trivial issues. In fact, one cannot find a true friend in this world. Evil qualities of our heart are responsible for these conflicts. Therefore, make your heart pure not the physical heart but the spiritual heart. There should not be even a trace of impurity in it.

Only God can give you true happiness

People today are accumulating a lot of money. But what for? What will they take with them when they go? They have to go empty-handed. They have to leave even their body here when they go. Five elements merge with five elements. Then the empty body is cremated.

Therefore, do not be proud of the body or wealth. Money comes and goes, morality comes and grows. Develop morality. In spite of their high education, people today have lost their morality. One bereft of morality is not a human being at all. In fact, one is a demon in human form. Where there is no morality, there can be no humanness.

Respect your elders; show gratitude to your parents. People today lack such feelings of gratitude and respect, thinking, "Why should we respect our elders? Why should we love them?" Wherever they go, they crave money and more money! What is our true wealth? Love is our true wealth. When we acquire this wealth of love, we can have everything. We can catch even clouds in our hands.

Everything is there in the hands of a human, and all gods are present in that human In fact, one is nothing but divine from foot to head. All worldly things are like passing clouds, which come and go. To feel proud of these passing clouds is a great mistake. At the time of speaking, we say anything. But when it comes to putting into practice, our actions do not match with our words. This is a great sin.

Oh people! There is nobody in this world who can give you happiness except God. God alone protects you in every way. Always contemplate on Him. You will be free from all sorrows when you constantly contemplate on God.

Some people make fun of you and ask, "You are always saying, God, God, God ... but what has He given to you?" It is God who gives you everything. It is only God who rewards you, punishes you, and protects you. Everything is God. Ekam Sath Viprah Bahudha Vadanti

(truth is one, but the wise refer to it by various names). We give this or that name to God only for our satisfaction. In fact, all names are His. We should install Him in our heart permanently.

Whatever difficulties come to you, accept them as the Will of God. Nobody knows why God gives difficulties. Think that difficulties are for your happiness. Na sukhath labhate sukham (one cannot derive happiness out of happiness). Pleasure is an interval between two pains. The mind is responsible for all one's difficulties. When one's mind is troubled, one finds troubles everywhere. Even that person gets disgusted with their life. That person starts feeling that their life itself is a waste. One's mind and desires are the cause of all this.

Do not hurt or harm anybody. Love everyone. Serve everyone. You will derive immense benefit from it. If you help anybody, this help itself will help you. This type of help is not to be seen in this world today.

Wherever you go, there is self, self, self and mine, mine, mine! Man has become so self-centred that he forgets everyone except himself and his near and dear ones. Viswam

Vishnu Swarupam (the entire universe is the embodiment of Lord Vishnu). Man is not a mere mortal; he is divine. Therefore, consider everyone as divine. Do not harm or hurt anyone physically or mentally.

Some people derive some sort of satisfaction by hurting others. But they have to suffer the consequences of their actions in future. They are unable to realise what difficulties they will have to face. Whatever you eat, you get the belch of that only.

If you eat cucumber, you cannot have the belch of mango. So, whatever you do, you are bound to experience the consequences of it. Therefore, see good, do good, say good, be good, and experience good results. Whatever God says, it is all for your good only.

Krishna said, "Arjuna! You are worried because of your delusion. This war has come for your victory only. This victory is for what? This victory is to show Divinity of man."

Love everyone and receive God's Love

Embodiments of Love!

All your difficulties are like a mirror. They reveal your true form. You harbour all types of desires and consequently undergo many sufferings.

Therefore, give no room to desires. Your unlimited desires are the cause of all your difficulties.

There can be no effect without a cause. No sapling can grow without a seed. Therefore, seed has to be there, which grows into a huge tree. Whoever you come across, consider them as your own. Identify yourself with them. Develop this feeling more and more.

Who are you? You say, "I am such and such." What is your name? You say, "My name is Nagappa." In this manner, everybody has a different name. Even if the entire world asks

God, "Who are You?" He will say, "I am I", Aham Brahmasmi (I am Brahman). In fact, the entire world is permeated by Brahman. You cannot find anyone in this world in whom Brahman is not present.

So, whoever you criticise or praise, it reaches God. When you criticise God, you cannot escape its consequences. Hence, never criticise God. Whatever anybody says about you, let them say it. Think that they are criticising not you but themselves.

Whatever they may speak, it will go into thin air. What is the use of reacting to speech that goes into thin air?

Only love reaches the heart. What sort of thoughts should you have?

Your thoughts should be permeated with truth. You can experience love only when your thoughts are truthful.

Hence, lead your life with love and end your life with love. Whatever you do to others, in fact, you do to yourself. Be it good or bad, help or harm, everything is the result of your own sankalpas (thoughts). Therefore, love everyone. If you cannot love others, just keep quiet. But do not abuse them. In fact, nobody has any right to criticise others. It is the same love that is present in everyone.

Can love criticise love? No, no. Love never criticises. It always gives the experience of love to everyone. Even birds and animals have love. Should one not love one's fellow human beings? When one is endowed with so many good qualities, one should love one's fellowmen. Only then can one become the recipient of God's love. Therefore, love everyone and attain the love of God. Combine your love with truth.

Never resort to untruth. You can have love only through truth. Where there are truth and love, there is peace. Where there is peace, there is nonviolence.

Therefore, man should primarily develop truth and love. Then he will not resort to violence.

Whatever

spiritual practices like penance, yajna, yoga you may undertake, suffuse all of them with love.

God is your true relation. He comes to you in the form of your son, your daughter, your friend, and all other relations. God is your true relation in all your difficulties.

That is why He is called Apadbandhava (a relation in times of difficulty). But how should we deal with this relation? Do not deal with this relation at physical level.

Here is a small example. Immediately after marriage, the husband and wife develop intimate relationship. They say to each other, "You are me and I am you." But after a week, there is a change in the relationship; then wife is wife and husband is husband.

Soon after the marriage, when the husband and wife go out together and the husband sees a thorn on the way, he gets very much concerned that it may hurt his wife. On seeing it, he shouts, "thorn, thorn, thorn," and pulls his wife away to save her. There is so much love and concern! They go to bazaar after a week. There the husband sees another thorn and says to his wife, "There is a thorn; can't you see with your eyes?"

After some more days, when he sees another thorn, he shouts in anger, "Are you blind?" There is a change in this love just in a few days.

If we repose our faith in this love and lead our lives in this type of love, then how long can we live? This love changes in just a few days. Physical love is no love at all.

The two bodies are like two water bubbles. Both are filled with air. This will burst and that will also burst. When the bubble bursts, air will merge with air.

Therefore, this type of love is not what we should aspire for. Heart to heart love is important. It is this heart to heart love that reaches God.

Community bhajans benefit all participants

So many people have come to participate in bhajans. Do all of them have sraddha and bhakthi (steadfast faith and devotion)? Can all of them get mukthi (liberation)? No, not at all. Out of all these people, the prayers of merely ten people may reach God.

Community bhajans are organised with the hope that out of the large number of people participating in them, the love of a few of them may reach God.

Bhajans are also meant to develop love for God in the community at large. Guru Nanak started the practice of community singing. When somebody asked him, "So many people are singing together. Will

God listen to all of them?", he replied, "It is possible that the love of at least one or two persons will reach God. That is enough to protect all of them."

Therefore, we should conduct samashti bhajans (community singing).

Samashti (community) is formed by vyashti (individuals). When many individuals come together and form a community, then their pushti (strength) increases.

Parameshti (God) did not create srishti (creation) just for fun. He did this to manifest the unity of all creation. Unity is the underlying principle of creation. It is meant to promote the principle of love in all. But, unfortunately, political parties today are dividing people on party lines. Four people belonging to the same family are taking to four different ways and partition the house into four sections. This is very bad. Even if there are four hundred people in a family, there should be unity among them. Everyone should help his neighbour. All should help each other. Then only can there be harmony in creation. Otherwise, creation loses its purpose.

Take part in bhajans wholeheartedly and sing the glory of God. Even if you are not able to do any other spiritual practice, chant the name of God. That is enough. (Here Swami sang the bhajan, "Hari Bhajana Bina Sukha Santhi Nahin" and continued His Discourse.)

You cannot attain peace and happiness without bhajan. Peace can be attained only through bhajan and not by any other means. "Hari Nam Bina Ananda Nahin (You cannot attain bliss without chanting the name of Hari (God))." "Japa Dhyana Bina Samyoga Nahin (You cannot have union with God without performing japa and dhyana)."

What does yoga mean? It is not merely to sit still with closed eyes. What does meditation mean? It is not remembering God with closed eyes. You should install God in your heart. Do not think that you are different from God. You should become one with God.

Ardhanareeswara (Androgynous) form of God symbolises this truth. This form represents both man and woman. One is jiva (individual soul) and the other is Daiva (Brahman). True liberation signifies the unity of jiva and Daiva. Where there is jiva there is Daiva.

Therefore, there is no need to run after God. God is present in all jivas (individuals).

Do not consider yourself merely a jiva; think that you are Daiva. You consider yourself a jiva because of your body attachment. Do not do that.

The same Atma is present in all. When you take the Atmic principle into consideration, all are one. So many individuals are present in this Hall. The Atma in all of them is one and the same. There is one sun in the sky. It gives light to the entire world.

Similarly, God is like the sun who illumines the life of everyone. We engulf ourselves in darkness when we criticise others. Therefore, love all and serve all. If someone abuses us, let him do so. Abuses will merge in thin air.

Therefore, always think that nobody can criticise you. Have faith that God will always protect you.

Develop unflinching faith in God. Many people deny the existence of God. If there is no

God, where have you come from? What is the place of your origin? If you don't have faith in God, all your life becomes a waste.

Always remember God

Therefore, embodiments of love, develop truth and love. When you have both truth and love, then you will have peace. When you have peace, you can lead your entire life happily. You will not have hatred for anyone. You have hatred only when you lack love and truth. You should unite love and truth in your life. When you have love, you will love everybody; you will make everybody happy. Therefore, treasure love and truth in your heart and never forget them; not even in your dream.

Dreams are only the reaction, reflection, and resound of the waking state. Whatever you do in daytime, it comes into your dreams at night. Dreams are like passing clouds. Do not run after them. Hold on to God, who is true, eternal and changeless. When you hold on to God, you can accomplish anything. Then you will have no fear and no worries.

Let people say whatever they like. Do not bother about it. Think that they are criticising your body and not you. Do not give undue importance to your body. You are not the body. When you say, "this is my body," then you should question yourself, "who am I?" This "I" is not the individual "I". It is the fundamental "I". It is not merely related to a particular individual. It is related to all. The symbol of Christianity, the cross, signifies the cutting of the individual "I". Only when you cut the individual

I can you attain Divinity. Hence, give up the narrow feeling of I and mine.

You say, "Naa koduku, Naa bidda (my son, my daughter)". Here Naa means no; it signifies nothing. Only God is with us always. Everything is God. Always remember Him. Do not waste even a single moment. Waste of even one moment is a very big wastage. If you think of God even for a moment, you will experience so much bliss. When you are in the grip of sorrow, close your eyes and remember God. This will give you peace. Do not feel sad or miserable for anything. Face all situations with courage and fortitude. Courage and fortitude are your true strength. In this way, being devotees of the Lord, contemplate on Him every moment of your life. (Bhagawan sang the bhajan, "Rama

Rama Rama Sita" and continued His Discourse.)

Students sing the bhajan, "Kausalyatmaja Rama Charan, Vaidehi Priya Rama Charan, Bharatarchita Sri Rama Charan, Ahalyodharaka Rama Charan,

Hanumatsevita Rama Charan

(Always worship the Lotus Feet of Rama, son of Kausalya, which are dear to Sita, are worshipped by Bharata, and served by Hanuman, and which redeemed Ahalya". All five people mentioned in this song are very dear to Rama. In this way, every Avatar selects some fortunate persons for His special grace. The persons so selected are those who have effected total surrender.

Rama was the very Atma of Mother Kausalya. Rama said, "Kausalya gave Me birth. Without Kausalya how could I incarnate? So, My mother is My God." The second line of the song is

"Vaidehi Priya Rama Charan". Vaidehi means one who has transcended body attachment. The next line is "Hanumatsevita Rama Charan". Hanuman always thought only of Rama and constantly recited "Rama, Rama, Rama". The sound of "Rama, Rama, Rama," emanated from every pore of his body.

Once, Rama asked him what he was contemplating upon. Hanuman replied, "Swami! Every hair of my body recites Your name!" Saying so, he plucked a hair from his body and brought it close to the ear of Rama, Rama Himself heard, "Rama, Rama, Rama," emanating from it.

While contemplating on the name of God, our entire being should be permeated by divine consciousness. Our every thought, every word, and every action should be suffused with the name of God. Only then can we truly become divine. Daivam manusha rupena (God is in the form of a human being). God incarnates in human form. One who recites the name Rama or any other name of God constantly is a true human being. Even an atheist would say,

"Ayyo Rama!" when he is in pain. One says, "Abba Rama!" when one is hurt or wounded.

Therefore, everybody has to utter the name of God at some time or the other.

Always remain immersed in the name of God. Recite any name of God Rama, Krishna, Allah, Jesus. God is called by many names, but He is one. There are many sweets, like mysorepak, gulab jamoon, burfi, palakova, jilebi. But only sugar imparts sweetness to all of them. Similarly, in all the names, the divine principle is the same.

I am one, but I am present in everyone in all forms. There is unity in My creation, but you see diversity because of your defective vision. You should see unity in creation. Do not go by your vision. Your eyes see both good and bad. When there is a defect in the eyes, one sees two things instead of one. The defect lies in your vision. Truly speaking, God is one. Chant any name, but chant it with love. When you chant the divine name with love, you will experience love everywhere.

From Bhagawan's divine Discourse in Sai Ramesh Krishan Hall, Brindavan, Whitefield

(Bangalore) on 1 May 2008.

6 May 2008, Easwaramma Day

Date: 6 May 2008 Occasion: Easwaramma Day Place: Prasanthi Nilayam

Respect, Honour, and Make Your Mother Happy by

Bhagavan Sri Sathya Sai Baba

Students Boys and Girls!

Venkataraman has spoken to you regarding today's function in a befitting manner. He is a very learned man who worked in the Bhabha Atomic Research Centre, Mumbai. He has worked in some scientific areas earlier pursued by Sir C.V. Raman. He is the winner of many awards.

Now, what can I say about the mother of this body? Man has actually three bodies:

physical, mental, and spiritual. Therefore, you are not one person but three: (1) The one you think you are, i.e. body. (2) The one others think you are, i.e. mind. (3) The one you really are, i.e. Atma (spirit). Your true form is the Atma, not the body or the mind.

In the circumstances that prevail today, very few honour their mother. Your mother carried you in her womb for nine months and gave you birth after undergoing many difficulties and hardships. Forgetting such a mother is like forgetting God. This amounts to forgetting yourself. Mother is your first teacher. It is the mother who feeds and nourishes you. It is on the lap of your mother that you grow up and experience all types of happiness. None should forget the love that they receive from their mother.

First and foremost, your mother deserves your highest respect.

After the death of his mother, many people told Sankaracharya to take the body out. But Sankaracharya told them, "Neither my mother is going to leave me nor I am going to leave my mother. My mother and I are one forever. Bodies are different but the principle of the Atma is the same in both of us. You may go away from me, but no one has any right to separate my mother from me. Her body will be cremated in the compound of the house."

Accordingly, Sankaracharya cremated his mother's body in the compound of his house.

None can estimate the feelings of the mother. Even today, people of Palakkad either cremate or bury the body of their mother in the compound because they feel that such a great person like Sankaracharya did it and they should also follow the same. In the beginning, many people had criticised Sankaracharya, saying that, being such a learned scholar, he had committed such a type of impropriety. Knowledge of scriptures is not that important, it is cultural refinement that has great value. Culture is that which brings about refinement.

Physically, your mother may not be with you, but your love for her should remain the same.

The mother of this body sent a letter to me when I was in Kodaikanal. After that, I came to Brindavan (Bangalore). The Summer Course was going on at Brindavan. Once, she prayed that My name should be on her lips at the time of her death. When she passed away in May 1972, Summer Course was in progress at Brindavan. She was hale and hearty. All of a sudden she called out, "Swami, Swami, Swami".

I replied, "I am coming, I am coming." When I came down the stairs, she breathed her last.

As long as there is life in the body, we should take care of it. When the life goes away, the body has no value. Truly speaking, who is the mother? It is the life principle that is the mother, not the body. Body is like a water bubble, mind is like a mad monkey. Why should we keep the body?

Immediately, I asked for the car to be brought and sent her body in the car to Puttaparthi. I remained in Brindavan. For the summer course, students had come not just from one college but from various colleges from all over India. They all thought that Swami would not come to the class that day. Then what? Exactly at 9:00, I entered the classroom smilingly. Students were surprised to see Me there. They were all thinking,

"What is this? Swami's mother has passed away and He has come to the classroom."

Mother does not go anywhere. The body that was being addressed as "mother" has left. But the mother is with Me only. Hence, there was no need to be sad. As long as I am there, mother is always with Me. Therefore, I told the students to be happy and not to feel sorry that the mother of this body left her mortal coil.

At that time V.K. Gokak was the Vice Chancellor. He was also surprised thinking, "What, Swami is talking like this!"

I have not taken birth from physical body. After all what is this body! It exists when five elements are there in it. Body is like a bag containing five elements. When the five elements leave the body, it becomes an empty bag. Hence, one should not have undue attachment with the body. All mothers and children should develop these feelings of detachment. As long as the mother is alive, we should respect her, honour her, and make her happy in every possible way. There is no need to be sad when she leaves the body.

Even here in Puttaparthi, people said, "What is this? Swami has sent the body of Easwaramma, but He Himself has not come?" Why should I go with the body? Body is only a vesture. It is like a leather bag. When the five elements leave the body, the five senses also go with it. Then why should we grieve over the lifeless body? I arranged for whatever was supposed to be done at the worldly level. I remained in Brindavan and conducted the summer classes happily.

In this world, all the physical relationships are of our own making. Otherwise, who is related to whom? This relationship of mother and son is only at the physical level. The mother came, performed the actions that she was destined to perform, and then left. I have to perform My duty. Therefore, I engaged Myself in the performance of the task for which I have come when we see from the worldly point of view, the body is physical and ephemeral.

The body is made up of five elements and

is bound to perish sooner or later,

but the indweller has neither birth nor death.

The indweller has no attachment whatsoever and is the eternal witness.

(Telugu poem)

We should keep Dehi (indweller) in our view and not the physical body (deha). Everyone forgets the body when they go to sleep. When you can forget it in your sleep, why can't you forget it forever? However, as far as your parents are there, you should make them happy. Do not ignore their well being. We should look after our parents and treat them with love and respect. However, we should not have undue attachment to the body.

The relationship between husband and wife is there only after the marriage. Wife comes in the middle of your life, but mother is there with you right from the birth. It is sheer foolishness to forget your mother, who is with you since your birth, and get entirely immersed in the love of your wife, who comes in the middle of your life. Other relations like sons, daughters, grandsons, sons-in-law, etc., are also formed in the middle of one's life.

In fact, all worldly relations are temporary; they come and go like passing clouds. You have connections with these relations as long as you exist. Where is the connection when you yourself are not there? Hence, do not form any relationships on the basis of the body. However, perform with earnestness all duties that you are required to perform at the physical and worldly level. Your conduct should be good, and your actions should also be good.

Never forget your mother; treasure her form in your heart. We come from the heart of our mother, and mother should always be in our heart. Therefore, your mother ever leaves you, and you not should leave her. Mother and children are united with each other for ever.

Twameva Mathacha Pitha Twameva, Twameva Bandhuscha Sakha Twameva,
Twameva Vidya Dravinam Twameva

You alone are the father and mother, friend and relation,
 wisdom and wealth.
 (Sanskrit verse)

Wherever you may be, keep your heart suffused with the feelings of love for your mother.

Once, Narasimha Murthy came to Me and said, "My mother has passed away."

I asked him, "Who has passed away, your mother or her body?" Then I told him, "Your mother is here. I am your mother (loud applause). It is the body that dies. Body is like a water bubble. Bodies come and go. Therefore, you should have no worry about the death of the body of your mother. I am here with you. Ask Me whatever you wanted from your mother; I will give (loud applause). Hence, you should not feel sad at all."

From then onward, Narasimha Murthy is with Me. I give him whatever he wants. Mother, father, and other relations are temporary coming and going, coming and going. But God is not coming and going. He is always present. Therefore, it is only God who is present at all times (loud applause). The entire world is ephemeral and transitory. How many people have taken birth in this world? Are they all here now? Death can occur in any manner; it has no sign or symptom. Death is death. Even if some symptoms of death are visible, we should not worry at all.

Never ever show disrespect to your mother. Never make her shed tears by your conduct.

Keep her always happy. Her happiness will bring you all good things in life. But we should not worry at the death of our parents. Recently, also I said in My Discourse in Bangalore that both My mother and father appeared before Me. They smiled on seeing Me; I also smiled on seeing them. We should be happy when our parents smile. Small children smile at everyone. We also start smiling when they smile. Parents are also like small children. Mother always loves her children.

Therefore, whatever high position we may attain in our life, we should never disrespect or look down upon our parents. Always consider them as God. Mother is God, father is

God. That is why it is said, Matru Devo Bhava, Pitru Devo Bhava, Acharya Devo Bhava, Atithi Devo Bhava (revere your mother, father, preceptor, and guest as God).

Mother gives you your body. Father provides the means of nourishment and growth of the body. Acharya (teacher) gives you education, and God gives you everything. Therefore, never forget these four and treasure them in your heart.

Mother and father have their place in the heart of every person. One should not forget mother and father even if one is in great difficulty or upset over something. One who forgets their parents cannot be a human being. How can you exist without your parents?

They are the seeds of your life; the very source of your life on earth.

Therefore,

parents should have prime importance in life. Even if you are old or in great difficulty, make efforts to make your parents happy as far as it is possible for you.

Feed them even if you have to resort to begging. Bear all hardships to look after them.

Fulfil all their desires. This will result in the fulfilment of your own desires.

Everything in this world is reaction, reflection, and resound. None can escape from these. If you cause difficulties for your parents today, your children will cause difficulties for you tomorrow. You will get back the result of your actions without much delay. You may love anyone you like, but do not forget your parents. When your parents have not forgotten you, you should not forget your parents.

Matha Nasthi, Pitha Nasthi, Nasthi Bandhu Sahodara, Artham Nasthi, Griham Nasthi, Thasmath Jagrata Jagrataha.

The relationships like mother, father, brothers, sisters and friends are not real.

House and wealth are also illusory.

Beware of this truth.

(Sanskrit Verse)

Remember your parents at all times. Never forget them. It is for this reason that I have come here straight from Brindavan. Earlier, people thought that Easwaramma Day may be celebrated in Kodaikanal. But I decided that I should be here at Puttaparthi on 6 May and that a grand function should be held here and poor people should be made happy by distributing clothes and serving them sumptuous food. Wherever I am, I perform this function in the same grand manner. Never ignore poor people.

Always remember them and help them.

But some people out of their distress and anger abuse and ridicule the poor. This is a great mistake. If you ridicule them now, it will come back to you in future. You may be thinking you are ridiculing them, but truly speaking you are ridiculing yourself. Never ridicule or insult them. Always love them. If you insult them before others, others will also insult you. You cannot escape from the reaction, reflection, and resound.

Difficulties come and go. Even the mighty Rama had to cry like an ordinary man on account of his separation from His wife Sita. Even the valorous

Pandavas had to live in forest, eating leaves and tubers. How much power and valour they had! Yet they had to live in forest and bear all difficulties. What for? They were defeated in gambling.

Similar will be the fate of all those who take to this bad path.

Gambling is not good at all. Similarly, drinking of liquor is also not good. Addiction to drinking leads to loss of control over oneself. Under the influence of liquor, a drunkard may speak anything.

Later on, he will repent after coming back to his normal senses.

Lust and anger are the two demonic qualities. Never allow them to come near you. In a fit of anger, we may say anything without considering its consequences. But after a few minutes, when we come to our normal mood, we will say sorry, "Alas! Why did I abuse like this?" Therefore, first and foremost, kill the anger.

Rama killed many demons and demonesses in the forest because of their evil qualities of lust and anger. Whoever one may be, whether male or female, if they has the evil qualities of lust and anger, they should be punished. Anger and lust are very bad for man.

Love God. Adore Him, and worship Him. He is your father, mother, and everything. Have relationship only with God. God will never leave you. He is omnipresent. All the worldly people whom you love are like passing clouds. They come and go. But God comes and grows.

Therefore, love God and have faith in Him. One who has love for God only is a true human being.

(Here, Swami called a boy from Iran, who is a student of Sri Sathya Sai Primary School, and asked him to chant Vedic mantras.) See how beautifully this boy from Iran has chanted the Vedic mantras! He is a Mohammedan boy. In their country, people are not even allowed to utter the name of Rama in public. When you ask him his name, he will tell "My name is Sathya."

(Here Swami asked this boy, "What is your name? What are your parents' names? Chant the Vedic mantras nicely and learn all Vedic mantras. Do you know Rig Veda?" The boy then recited Rudram and Sri Suktam with perfect intonation and pronunciation to the applause of the entire gathering.)

Everything is there in the Vedas. The essence of all the religions like Hindu, Islam and Christianity is there in the Vedas. Even Christians also sing the glory of God in the same manner. Even the Mohammedans extol the five elements and worship the goddess of wealth. Hence, God is one, for all religions. God is one. There is difference only in names. Mohammedans offer prayers to God five times a day. Hindus also pray to God in the morning and evening. We should never say that the Veda is only for Hindus. Veda is for all. That which is one and universal is the Veda. Veda can alleviate all types of suffering of man. Hence, it is good for everyone to learn the Veda. Many people from America also come here and learn the Vedas. Many people in Russia and Germany also recite the Vedic mantras both in the morning and evening. Since Hindus do not recite the Vedic mantras, they are forgetting them. Therefore, nobody should forget the Vedas. Veda and Vedanta are like your parents. Always remember them and never forget them. Therefore, students! Whatever you may study, never forget God. Only then can you attain peace. People say, "I want peace." There can be no peace without bhajan. (Here Bhagavan sang the bhajan, "Hari Bhajan Bina" and continued His Discourse.) Many people perform yajnas and yagas (sacrifices and rituals) for the sake of peace. Where can you get peace from? It is within you only. It does not come from outside. What come from outside are only pieces, pieces, pieces! Peace comes from our heart only. You should do bhajans to attain peace. Only bhajan can give you peace.

28 June 2008
Date: 28 June 2008 Occasion: Ramayan Saptaha Place: Prasanthi Nilayam
Undertake Rama Chintana by Bhagavan Sri Sathya Sai Baba
Embodiments of Love!
The Ramayana Saptaha (the seven day chanting of the divine name Rama) has been held with great joy and devotion for the last seven days. You all participated in this great event. The purohits (priests) who conducted the Saptaha, with great devotion and sincerity, and the speakers from different parts who participated in it made the event a grand success. Setty Garu, who arranged this function, made several conveniences for the priests and devotees and made every one happy. Constant contemplation on Ramayana and singing of the glory of the divine name "Rama" confers bliss, peace, and prosperity on one and all. There are two ways of contemplating on the divine name and singing its glory: individual sadhana (spiritual exercise) and collective sadhana. Of the two, collective sadhana is better. It was Guru Nanak who initiated the practice of group singing of the glory of the divine name. In fact, the individual chanting of the divine name is not enough. If thousands of people join together and sing the glory of the divine name in one voice, the prayers of at least one or two individuals will certainly move Divinity. Hence, it is better to follow the collective method. Wherever you are, sing the glory of the divine name of Rama in a group. Contemplation on Ramanama (repetition of the name Rama) confers peace and happiness. It is a Universal sadhana. The name Rama is not limited to a particular form. It dwells in every individual as Atma. Rama. The Atma, which dwells in every individual, is given the name Rama. Hence, right from a child to a grown up individual, everyone has to undertake the individual exercise of constant contemplation of Ramanama. We often see even blind people contemplating on Ramanama, saying "Rama Rama". Only the divine name can confer peace and happiness. Nothing else, even wealth and property, can bring happiness and peace. Constant contemplation on the divine name can remove all worries. To be born is a worry. To live on this earth is a worry. The world is a source of worry. Death too is a worry. All actions and difficulties cause worry. Devotion to Srirama is the panacea for all worries. (Telugu poem)

Hence, undertake Ramachintana (contemplation on the divine name of Rama) whenever you find yourself surrounded by worries. The Ramanama has been in the hearts of people since aeons. In the Tretha Yuga, King Dasaratha of Ayodhya longed for sons to continue the Ikshwaku dynasty. He performed a yaga by name "Puthra Kameshtiyaga", praying that he be blessed with a son. King Dasaratha had three wives: Kausalya, Sumithra, and Kaikeyi. He had one daughter named Santha through Kausalya earlier, whom he gave in adoption to his friend. She married Sage Rishyasringa. The Puthra Kameshti yagawas conducted under the guidance of that couple. At the conclusion of the yaga, Agni Deva, the fire god, emerged from the sacred homakunda with a vessel containing payasam (sacred pudding). He gave it to Dasaratha to be distributed equally among his three wives. Kausalya and Kaikeyi received their share of the sacred pudding happily and took it to their puja (worship) rooms. Both were very happy that their son to be born would be the heir apparent to the throne of Ayodhya. Their claims appeared to be genuine since Kausalya was the eldest queen and Kaikeyi's father, at the time of her marriage to King Dasaratha, had extracted a promise that the son to be born to her would be made the King of Ayodhya. Dasaratha cannot go back on his word, as per the tradition of Ikshwaku family. However, Sumithra had no such desire. She carried her bowl of pudding to the terrace and placed it on the parapet wall, while drying her hair in the Sun. She was in a pensive mood, thinking that it of no use it was to eat the pudding because her son to be born would have no claim to the throne, like Kausalya's and Kaikeyi's. While she was thus contemplating on the future, an eagle swooped down and carried away the bowl containing the sacred pudding. She was shocked and disturbed, fearing the reprimand she would have to face from her husband for being careless. She at once rushed downstairs and informed Kausalya and Kaikeyi about what had happened. They hugged Sumithra and consoled her, saying, "Sister why are you so much disturbed? We three are one, and we will share our portion of the pudding with you." So saying, they brought their bowls and poured some quantity of pudding from each of their bowls into another bowl and offered it to Sumithra. Unlike present times, there used to be perfect rapport between women in those days. Thus, all three queens got their bowls containing the sacred pudding ready and took them to Sage Vasishta and obtained his blessings. Thereafter, they offered their pranams to King Dasaratha and happily partook the sacred pudding. All three queens became pregnant. In due course, Kausalya, the eldest queen, delivered a beautiful baby boy, who was named Rama. The Universal Atma embodied itself in the womb of Kausalya. He was named Rama, meaning he who makes one and all happy. Kaikeyi also gave birth to a son, who was named Bharatha. Sumithra, however, gave birth to two sons, named Lakshmana and Satrughna. Lakshmana was born out of the share of pudding given by Kausalya and Satrughna from that given by Kaikeyi. Hence, Lakshmana always followed Rama, while Satrughna followed Bharatha. Sumithra's two sons, Lakshmana and Satrughna, were crying all the time, day and night without even taking food. Sumithra could not bear the suffering of the infants. She went to sage Vasishta and explained her predicament to him. Sage Vasishta closed his eyes and meditated for some time. His yogic vision enabled him to realise the truth. He explained to Sumithra, "Since you partook of the sacred pudding given by Kausalya, you gave birth to Lakshmana, who is an amsa (part) of Rama. Similarly, Satrughna is born out of the share of pudding given to you by Kaikeyi. So, he is a part of Bharatha. Put Lakshmana by Rama's side and Satrughna by Bharatha's side. Then, they will rest peacefully." As soon as Sumithra acted accordingly, the babies became peaceful. As years passed, the four brothers grew up happily together. Back to the story of the eagle lifting up the bowl containing the sacred payasam kept by Sumithra on the parapet wall while drying her hair in the Sun. The eagle carried away the bowl and dropped it on the ground at a place where Anjanadevi was meditating in a mountainous region. She picked up the bowl and happily partook of the sacred pudding contained therein. As a result, she gave birth to the great hero of the Ramayana, namely, Hanuman. While Rama and Lakshmana were moving in the Rishyamuka mountain range during their search for Sita, Hanuman approached them on the orders of Sugriva, the Vanara king. After asking the purpose of their search, Hanuman took them to Sugriva and introduced them to him. He persuaded Rama to seek Sugriva's friendship and help in their search for Sita. The vow of everlasting friendship was solemnised in the presence of a ritual fire.

Sugriva then brought one bundle of jewels wrapped in a cloth, which was thrown by Sita from Ravana's Pushpaka Vimana, which carried her to Lanka. Sugriva placed the bundle before Rama in order that the jewels might be identified as belonging to Sita. Rama called Lakshmana to his side and directed him to identify the jewels. Lakshmana, on seeing the jewels, expressed his inability saying, "Oh Rama, I seek your pardon; I do not know of any jewels that were worn by mother Sita. However, I can identify her anklets, since I was prostrating to her feet daily to pay my obeisance to her."

During Rama and Sita's stay in a hermitage built by Lakshmana in the Panchavati region, one day, at the behest of Ravana, the demon Maricha assumed the form of a golden deer and began moving about in the vicinity of the ashram. Sita was fascinated by the charming golden deer and persuaded Rama to catch it and bring it to the ashram so that she could play with it. Rama decided to oblige her request as per the divine plan.

However, he instructed Lakshmana to stay behind and guard the ashram and Sita from the wily demons during his absence.

As Rama pursued the golden deer, it went deep into the forest. Finally, Rama lifted his bow and released a fatal arrow on the deer. Maricha, in the guise of the golden deer, at last fell dead in his real form. However, before he breathed his last, he cried in agony, in a feigned voice of Rama, "Ha! Sita! Ha! Lakshmana!"

The cry fell on the ears of Sita and Lakshmana. Sita, on hearing the cry, implored Lakshmana to go look for Rama immediately. Lakshmana counseled Sita that no danger could ever befall Rama and that this was all the plan of the wily demons. Sita was not convinced. She even used harsh words that hurt Lakshmana, while compelling him to go to Rama's rescue. Of course, this too was as per the divine plan that would unfold itself in the future.

Left with no other option, Lakshmana agreed to go look for Rama. However, before he left the ashram, he drew a line around the hermitage and asked Sita not to step out of that line under any circumstances until Rama and himself returned to the ashram.

As soon as Lakshmana left the hermitage in search of Rama, Ravana approached the ashram in the guise of a rishi (sage). He stood before the ashram and asked for food, saying, "Bhavathi bhiksham dehi (Oh Mother, give me food)!"

Sita heard this and decided to provide him food. She brought the food from inside the ashram and tried to give the same to Ravana standing behind the line drawn by Lakshmana.

But Ravana insisted that Sita come closer, cross the line drawn by Lakshmana, and offer the food to him. He pretended as though he could not bear the pangs of hunger anymore.

Finally Sita obliged and came out of the line drawn by Lakshmana to give alms to Ravana.

Just at that moment, Ravana assumed his real form and abducted her in his chariot.

Ravana took Sita to Lanka and kept her in confinement under a tree in the Asokavana (a grove of asoka trees).

Sita lamented her indiscreet act of becoming crazy about a golden deer and the consequences that followed. She lamented, "Oh! Why did that sinful animal (golden deer) come to the vicinity of our hermitage? Why did I develop a fascination for that golden deer? Why did I request Rama to catch that deer and bring it to me? Of what use is all this repentance at this stage?"

She found herself in captivity in Lanka. Ravana kept three ladies to guard Sita during her incarceration in the Asokavana. One was Sarama, the wife of Vibhishana, younger brother of Ravana. The other two ladies were Ajata and Trijata, who were none other than daughters of Sarama. They were very considerate toward Sita, keeping up her sagging morale all the while by their comforting words. Sita wondered whether such good people also existed in Lanka. In fact, it was due to their consoling words and protection that Sita could bear her ordeal courageously.

Though Sita was imprisoned in Lanka, Ravana did not dare to touch her. He knew that he would be reduced to ashes if he touched her without her consent. He was all the while pleading with her to accept him. When Ravana stooped to the level of denigrating Rama and threatened her, she, without even looking at his face, plucked a blade of grass and threw it before him saying, "You are a mean fellow. You are not worth even this blade of grass. How dare you denigrate Rama in front of me, you vile and vicious wretch!"

Sita had another name, Vaidehi, meaning one who has no body attachment. King Janaka was her foster father. He lovingly brought her up and gave her in marriage to Rama. There are several inner and subtle meanings in the story of Ramayana. In fact, Sita was not the sister of Rama, as has been portrayed in some texts. If she were to be the sister of Rama, how could King Janaka offer her as bride to Rama? Unfortunately, people do not realise these inner meanings. Hanuman was a great hero in the story of Ramayana. He led an army of vanaras (monkeys) in his holy mission of searching for the whereabouts of Sita, who was kept in captivity in Lanka by Ravana. He was a very intelligent and faithful servant of Rama. He was a person of noble qualities and great physical strength. In his noble qualities and might,

he was unparalleled. In fact, a whole chapter, namely Sundara Kanda, was devoted to describe his qualities of head and heart, in the Ramayana. While he was embarking on his holy mission of finding out Sita in city of Lanka, Hanuman was given certain identification clues about Sita. He was told that Sita was a woman of noble qualities and divine beauty and that she would not mix with the Rakshasa (Demon) ladies. He searched for Sita in every nook and corner of Lanka, including the inner chambers of the palace where Ravana's queens and the ladies attending them stayed.

During his search, he came across ladies scantily dressed and fallen on their beds, intoxicated by drink and dance. But he was totally unmoved by these obscene forms, keeping always in his mind the characteristics and excellence of Sita that Rama had described to him earlier. His supreme stability of mind in such an environment befitted his true brahmachari (celibate) status. One cannot find parallels to Lord Rama and His noble servant Hanuman in this world. They are both unique.

The boys just now sang a beautiful bhajan, "Rama Lakshmana Janaki, Jai bolo Hanuman ki".

During their singing of this bhajan, Hanuman's name was mentioned after a little pause, indicating the importance of Hanuman. Only when people like

Hanuman are worshipped and their qualities emulated can one cultivate good thoughts, good habits, good qualities, and good behaviour.

It is said, "The end of education is character." Only in Rama and Hanuman is such noble character to be found. Hence, constantly contemplate on Rama and Hanuman and their noble qualities.

The different names like Rama, Krishna, Hanuman, Shiva, Vishnu, etc. represent the one Divinity that is all-pervading. God is one; the names and forms differ.

Gold is one; ornaments differ.

Religions are many; Divinity is one,

The cows are many in colours; but milk is the same.

(Telugu poem)

Similarly, God is one, although He is referred to by different names and forms.

Different people, when asked to give their names, reply, "I am Ramaiah," "I am Lakshmaiah," "I am Govindappa," etc. But, the real answer should be, "Aham Brahmasami (I am Brahma)." There can be no other names. All are embodiments of the divine Self. The atma has no gunas (qualities). It is formless and attributeless.

Nityanandam, Parama Sukhadam, Kevalam Inanamurtim, Dwandwateetam, Gagana Sadrisham,

Tattwamasyadi Lakshyam, Ekam, Nityam, Vimalam, Achalam, Sarvadhee Sakshibhutam, Bhavateetam, Trigunarahitam ...

The Atma is the embodiment of eternal bliss, wisdom absolute, beyond the pair of opposites, expansive and pervasive like the sky, the goal indicated by the aphorism

Tattwamasi, one without a second, eternal, pure, unchanging, witness of all functions of the intellect, beyond all mental conditions and the three attributes of sathwa, rajas, and tamas.

Sanskrit verse

Strictly speaking, God has no name or form, in spite of the fact it is said, "Daivam

Manusharupena (God is in human form)." He has no birth and no qualities. He is formless and attributeless.

When someone enquires, "Who are you?", you should reply, "I am God."

Names like Ramaiah, Lakshmaiah, etc., are only those given by your parents after your birth. In fact, you have no specific name. All are embodiments of the divine Self.

Whether you act the role of Ramaiah or Krishnaiah, you are essentially the same divine

Self. Only the roles differ.

God is immanent in every human being; nay, every living being is the

Atmaswarupa

(embodiment of Atma). "Ekatma sarvabhuthantharatma." The one God is immanent in all human beings and all living beings. The names and forms may appear to be different. You must develop firm faith in the oneness of Divinity.

Whomever you come across, offer your pranams to that person. Pay your obeisance even to a beggar. He may be a "beggar" as a physical entity, but he is "bigger" as the embodiment of the divine Self.

Do not develop hatred toward any individual. Do not consider anyone as your enemy. In fact, they are all reflections of your own divine self. Everyone repeats "I", "I".

Everyone claims, "this is my body, my mind, my intellect, and my chittha." Then, "Who am

I?" That "I" is Divinity, in essence. The same "I" is referred to by several names. The symbol of Christianity, the cross, signifies cutting off of the individual ego (ahamkara).

We say, "I came here; I am going; I am coming," etc. What is this "I"? It represents the one divine Self. You have to develop that "Ekatmabhava" (the feeling of one divine Atma permeating the entire Universe). That is real devotion. Do not differentiate between "I" and "you". Those who desire to attain self realisation must shed this difference. They must get rid of the feeling of "I" and "mine". We are all one. "All are one, be alike to every one." This is the essence of all philosophy. Be happy.

Develop Faith and Self-Confidence

to Gain Self-realisation

by

Bhagavan Sri Sathya Sai Baba

By what power of love does the earth rotate without an axle?

By what power of love do the stars remain in the sky without falling to the ground?

By what power of love do the oceans stay in their limits without submerging the earth?

By what power of love does the wind god blow cool breezes in all the worlds?

That mighty power of love is verily the Atmic power.

That power of love is most wonderful, infinite, unique, and all pervasive.

The entire creation is saturated with love.

(Telugu Poem)

Call it Prema (Love) or Sathyam (Truth) or Aham (I) -- all are God's different names only! The Vedas declare "Aham Brahmasmi" (I am Brahman). If God were to reveal His name, He would say "Aham Brahmasmi!" That is His true name.

The entire creation is from Truth,

Into Truth the entire creation merges.

Is there a place in the Universe

Where truth is not present?

The whole Universe is a manifestation of pure consciousness.

Know this reality.

(Telugu poem)

God is the source and sustenance of all activities in this world. The entire Universe moves according to His divine will and command. Shivraj Patil made an in-depth study of the Bhagavad Gita for some months and grasped the essence of the Gita. Finally, he wrote a commentary on the Bhagavad Gita in English. Several people write several books, but the Gita commentary written by Shivraj Patil is a unique work. Whenever he had an occasion to meet Swami, he used to show Him his work, to check whether the interpretations given in the book were correct. In fact, the essence of the Bhagavad

Gita is contained in this small book. The Gita made a deep imprint on his mind, and he beautifully recorded those impressions in his book.

Today is Guru Purnima. What does it signify? People think that it is a day on which they offer some money to a guru, a mendicant, a yogi, or a great person and obtain a mantra from him. It is not correct.

Gurur-Brahma Gurur-Vishnu Gurur Devo Maheswara,

Guru Sakshat Param Brahma Thasmai Sri Gurave Namaha.

Guru is Brahma, Guru is Vishnu, Guru is Maheswara.

Guru is verily the supreme Brahman. So, salutations to the Guru.

Who is a guru? The sloka (verse) mentioned above states that a guru is verily Brahma

(the creator), Vishnu (the sustainer), and Maheswara (the destroyer). These are the different facets of God, so guru means God, verily.

Purnima is the day on which the spotlessly clean and unblemished moon sheds his cool and steady light on the world. Whatever is said or taught with a pure heart is God's own word. People celebrate Guru Purnima as a guru puja (guru worship) day, the day on which they worship their guru and offer some money or presents in return for some mantra or other sacred words taught to them by him. In fact, one's own heart is one's guru.

Whatever comes from the depth of one's own heart is the real teaching of guru (guru vakya).

You all know the story of Ekalavya. He approached Dronacharya and prayed to teach archery. Dronacharya turned down his request, saying that the sacred skills of archery must be taught to a valiant hero and not to a wandering tribal youth engaged in hunting animals. Ekalavya, however, considered Dronacharya as his guru and installed him in his heart. Even though Dronacharya did not give any instructions to him, he went and made a clay image of his guru and started worshipping it daily. He learnt all the skills of archery, constantly contemplating on Dronacharya as his guru. He became an expert archer in no time.

One day, the Kaurava and Pandava boys were playing, near a well. Dronacharya happened to pass that way along with his wife and son, Aswatthama. Observing that the young boys were going round and round the well making a big noise, Dronacharya went near them and enquired, "My dear boys, what are you searching for?" The boys said that they were playing with a ball and it had fallen into the well. Dronacharya took an arrow from his quiver and shot it into the well. It went straight and stuck to the ball. Next, he released some more arrows one after the other and, with the help of the chain of arrows, pulled the ball out.

The boys were wonderstruck at Dronacharya's skill and reported the matter to their parents. Then Dronacharya was called to the royal court by Bhishmacharya and was made the guru of Pandava and the Kaurava boys to teach them archery.

One day, the Pandavas, along with their Guru Dronacharya, were going on a hunting expedition in a forest. They had taken some hunting dogs also along with them. One of the dogs started barking. Immediately, an arrow released by someone from somewhere came like a bullet and stuck to the mouth of the dog. When they started searching for the person who shot that arrow, they came across Ekalavya, who confessed to shooting that arrow.

Arjuna then realised that Ekalavya employed the technique of sabdabhedhi (shooting an arrow at a target, sensing the direction from which the sound was coming). Arjuna became jealous at Ekalavya's extraordinary skill in archery, particularly his ability to use the technique of sabdabhedhi. Ekalavya prostrated before Dronacharya, whom he had considered as his guru. Arjuna, seething with anger and jealousy, looked at Dronacharya and said, "You had promised me that you would not teach this technique of sabdabhedhi to anyone except me. I implicitly believed your words."

Dronacharya replied, "I am not Ekalavya's guru, nor did I teach this technique to him. You can ascertain the fact if you wish, from him."

Ekalavya was questioned. He replied, "It is true that Dronacharya refused to teach me archery. But, constantly contemplating on him, as my guru, I learnt archery including the sabdabhedhi technique."

Ekalavya's reply fanned the flames of jealousy in Arjuna. He wished that there should be none in the world who could excel him in the skills of archery. He wanted to subdue Ekalavya somehow and make him powerless. He therefore prompted Guru Dronacharya to ask for Guru Dakshina (an offering to the guru made by a disciple as a token of his gratitude for teaching skills) from Ekalavya.

Bowing to the wishes of Arjuna, Dronacharya asked Ekalavya, "What Guru Dakshina would you offer to me?"

Arjuna then made a subtle suggestion to Dronacharya saying, "Ekalavya informed just now that he had learnt the skills from you, treating you as his guru. Hence, it must be you again who should frustrate his efforts to excel in archery."

Dronacharya then asked for an unusual "Guru Dakshina" from his "disciple" Ekalavya, that is, the right thumb of Ekalavya should be offered to him.

Immediately, Ekalavya cut off his right thumb and offered it to Dronacharya as his Guru Dakshina.

As he has offered his right thumb to his guru, he could no longer wield a bow in his hand. Thus, Ekalavya's skill of archery was contained and Arjuna's ego satisfied. (Telugu poem)

Arjuna felt very happy, for he knew now that none could excel him in archery, particularly in the technique of sabdabhedhi. Right from that moment,

Ekalavya never touched his bow and arrow. He did not at all feel sad for losing his skills in archery.

On the other hand, he felt extremely happy that he could fulfill the wishes of his guru.

Thus, a great archer was permanently incapacitated due to the jealousy of another great archer. Arjuna moved about freely with puffed-up ego that he was invincible.

It is possible that sometimes the subtle meanings of some sloka (verses) of great texts like the Bhagavad Gita may be revealed to one by one's own inner voice coming from the heart. In fact, that is the real teaching. Shivraj Patil, by his deep devotion, could tap that inner source and translate the Gita into other languages. That is why his Bhagavad Gita translation has turned out to be a great work.

The Atmatathwa (Atma Principle) can be realised if only one could shed the feeling of

"I" and "Mine". Today, many people make efforts to realise Atmatathwa. But their efforts do not succeed since they are unable to get rid of the feeling of "I" and "Mine". In fact, they are the obstacles to self-realisation. First and foremost, one has to remove the feeling of "I" (ego). Then realisation will dawn on you. The religious symbol of Christianity, the cross, also denotes this cutting off of ego. The egocentric assertion of "I" is the root cause for all sorrows, unrest, and difficulties. One has to realise this truth.

The feeling of "mine" has also to be shed. When a teacher develops a feeling "these are all my disciples", ego will raise its head there also. Hence, the feeling of "I" and

"mine" has to be removed. Then only can the Atmatathwa be realised.

Shivraj Patil has been coming to Swami since the last thirty years. He first had the darshan of Swami in the house of S.B. Chavan. Thereafter, they both used to visit Swami, together. Thereby, he developed intense devotion to Swami. In the meanwhile, Shivraj

Patil became a Minister in the Government of Maharashtra.

Thereafter, he moved to Delhi and became a Minister in the Central Government. He also held the position of Speaker of the Lok Sabha in Delhi. Thus, he came up in life with the grace of Swami and his own hard work and sincerity. He never aspired for any positions in life.

Even when Swami

enquired from him what he wanted, he used to evade a reply. He earned a very good name as a Minister in Government. They used to repose lot of confidence in him.

One has to develop faith and self-confidence. Self-confidence leads to self-satisfaction and self-sacrifice and ultimately to self-realisation. The Bhagavad Gita is a very sacred text. It is verily the breath of God. One has to develop faith first. Even a demon worships God, but their actions are demonic. One can have peace only when one develops faith in God and dedicates all his actions to God.

You may study any number of books and sacred texts. You may even lecture on them. But, that is of no use. Whatever you put into practice, only that will become part of you.

There are three steps to self-realisation, namely self-confidence, self-satisfaction and self-sacrifice. When these three go together, there will be purnathwa (fullness). That is Purnima (full-moon day) when the moon will be spotless, shedding cool light on the world.

Only when there is perfect accord between thought, word, and deed does it become truth.

Simply giving expression to one's thoughts and lecturing on principles without putting them into practice will amount to empty rhetoric. It will amount to falsehood. Such a person will not become a full individual. Shivraj Patil is not such a person. He experienced truth and gave expression to his thoughts in the form of a book. That is why his book earned reputation, giving him great satisfaction.

I expect all students to relate to their teachers what they have learnt from them. Mere book reading is of no use. There must be close interaction between the teachers and the students. Such an interaction would be like the positive and negative coming together.

Students have to develop intimate relationship with their parents. They must love their parents and obey their command. Then only will they succeed in life.

The last sloka (verse) in the Bhagavad Gita reads

Yathra Yogeshwara Krishno Yathra Partho Dhanurdharah

Tathra Srirvijayo Bhutir Dhruva Neetirmathir Mama.

(Where there is Krishna, the Lord of Yoga, and where there is Arjuna, armed with mighty bow come together, there lie wealth, victory, glory and everlasting morality.)

The essence of the Bhagavad Gita is contained in this one sloka.

Today, Shivraj Patil has brought out this beautiful and nectarous message for the benefit of one and all through his Bhagavad Gita translation. It is our good fortune to come across such noble works. People write several books on several subjects, but books like this are rare.

We see students going to the library and reading books stacked there. Some of them develop interest for spiritual books, while some others read novels. Some boys keep novels in between their text books or spiritual books and read them with absorbing interest. This is nothing but cheating others as well as themselves. It is not good.

That is why we thoughtfully avoided stacking such books in our library.

I am sure our boys are not interested in such trash. Their hearts are pure and sacred.

Our boys are generally good and well behaved. But, due to the age, there will be some distractions now and then. They are like passing clouds. Students should develop enough mental strength to keep themselves away from such distractions.

I wish that our students would also write some good books on academic topics and spiritual subjects.

(Swami called an ex-student by name Gowri Shankar, who is presently working as a faculty member in the Dept. of Physics in the Sri Sathya Sai University, and introduced him to the audience). This boy has been invited to Hungary to present a paper in an international conference being held there by the Institute of Nuclear Science. All his expenses for travel and stay in Hungary will be borne by the Institute.

This boy is well behaved and highly educated. I wish that all our students get such opportunities of being invited by other institutions/universities in India and abroad. I will be very happy to see you participating in such activities. I am sure your parents will also be happy.

Whatever you have read and learnt must be shared with all. Today you have witnessed the release of a book written by Shivraj Patil containing his impressions and commentary on the Bhagavad Gita. No doubt, his book will be of interest to one and all.

Two of our students from the Anantapur campus secured very good marks in English and Physics respectively. They have been invited to America, all expenses paid. Such academic excellence brings credit to our Institute. I am happy.

SSS World Education Conference, 20 July 2008
Date: 20 July 2008 Occasion: Sri Sathya Sai World Education Conference Place: Prasanthi Nilayam
Develop Educare and Be United by Bhagavan Sri Sathya Sai Baba
Embodiments of Love!

I have nothing more to add to what has been told to you by Michael Goldstein and All India President of Sri Sathya Seva Organisations, Srinivasan.

Education is not a subject on which anybody and everybody should talk. Today, education has become more outward and worldly. Today, millions and millions of people have pursued such worldly education in India. In what way is society benefited by such people? Everyone is concerned with their own selfish interest. No one cares for public interest and welfare. No one is bothered about how society is and in what condition it is, or what difficulties people are undergoing. When they speak in public, they give long rhetoric about helping the poor, but when it comes to action, they are nowhere near. You all know in what state the world is today. Wherever you turn, you see sorrow and suffering. Peace and happiness are not to be found anywhere.

Every country claims progress and achievement in different areas. These claims are hollow in nature as peace and happiness cannot be found anywhere. If we enquire into the truth, every country is steeped in difficulties and is in some crisis or the other. No government makes a sincere effort to understand the difficulties faced by poor people.

It is very difficult to determine who is poor and who is rich. All are "poor" in one sense. Then who are the rich people? Those who put into practice what they say. It is said, Manasyekam vachasyekam karmanyekam mahathmanam -- those whose thoughts, words, and deeds are in perfect accord are mahathamas (great souls). Such people are very rare.

In fact, countries like Russia and America, which are considered to be superpowers, are causing great harm to the poorer countries. They do not even regret their mistakes. They are unable to realise how the people of the under-developed and developing countries are suffering. For example, the people in Iraq underwent untold suffering. But none cared to bother about their suffering. No doubt, in every country, there are rich and poor people. Strangely, it is the rich people who are taken care of and provided with help. No one comes to the rescue of the poor people or provides succour to them. Hence, first and foremost, the poor and the downtrodden should be protected. Every devotee must cultivate love and compassion. It is said, Thyagenaika amruthathwa-manasuh (only by sacrifice can one can attain immortality). Only a person with the quality of sacrifice can experience bliss. Those with the egocentric feeling of "I" and "mine" can never be happy in life. Where there is the feeling of "I" there comes ego. Those who cultivate the feeling of "mine" and "my people" develop attachment. One should never develop the feeling that only my country should prosper. Develop a broader outlook and pray, Lokah samasthah sukhino bhavanthu (May the whole world be happy!). Those who develop the narrow-minded feeling of "I" and "mine" undergo a lot of suffering. This is due to the secular education that they have acquired. Worldly education does not go beyond one's own selfish interest. We should love all and serve all. Today the rich have lost the qualities of papa bheeti and daiva preeti (fear of sin and love for God). If you cultivate only these two qualities, you can achieve anything in life. We must bring down our selfish interest to a certain extent. One has to gradually give up selfishness. We have to make full use of our education and energies for the benefit of society. If there are no poor people, you cannot even be sure of your food; for it is they who toil in the fields and factories to produce the grains and goods for the consumption of people in society. While the rich enjoy the comforts of life, the poor sweat to keep their body and soul together. Every individual in a society has their own rights, the right to live, etc. Hence, we must take care of the poor people also and provide them with certain basic necessities. For utilising their services, we must also serve them in return. Today those who are highly edu-cated and those who are holding positions of power are steeped in utter selfishness. It is only they who exhibit mean mentality. Today, everyone wishes to fulfill their own selfish interests at the cost of others. No one acts with a pure heart and good intention to help others. A human being is expected to have the qualities of sathya (truth), dharma (righteousness), santhi (peace), prema (love), and ahimsa (nonviolence). Devoid of these qualities, one is not a human being at all. How can a person with demonic qualities be called a human being? Hence, first and foremost one has to cultivate human qualities. No one has a right to enjoy when their fellow human being is suffering. All are God's children only. To whomsoever you cause suffering, it will affect you. Hence, you have to conduct your life with devotion to God and love for all human beings. All should remain united. Where there is unity, there shall be purity. Where there is purity, there is Divinity. You all have to lead your lives keeping in view these three aspects of unity, purity, and Divinity. Do not remain unconcerned with others' difficulties and suffering. Treat their suffering as your own. The one God dwells in the hearts of all people. Easwarah sarvabhuthanam. God is immanent even in ants and mosquitoes. There should be compassion in your heart. But, this has become a rare quality these days. Instead, we find "come-fashion" everywhere. How can then equality prevail in society? Show at least an iota of humanity. He who has such a human quality will become a person with compassionate heart in the real sense. Lust, anger, hatred, jealousy, pride, etc., are animal qualities. The real wealth of a human being is noble qualities like love, compassion, righteousness, sacrifice, and truth. Only when people have these human qualities that they can be considered human beings. Unfortunately, today people are human only in form, but qualities are those of animals. What is important is not the form but qualities. You cannot be sure when difficulties will confront you. Every action (karma) has its reaction, resound, and reflection. If you hurt others, surely it will have its reaction.

Only when you recognise this truth and conduct yourself accordingly can you be called a true human being. You talk to any student of our institutions, even primary school children will explain to you the human qualities very clearly. The human values have therefore to be cultivated right from childhood. Boys and girls should grow in human values. Even elders can learn from such students.

Now, about Truth. From where did Truth come? It has not sprouted from the earth; nor has it descended from the sky. Its origin is not north, south, east, or west.

Truth is firmly installed in one's own heart. If you develop your inner vision, you can surely recognise truth there.

Where there is truth, there righteousness is. When truth and righteousness go together, love emerges from the heart. From love comes peace. When peace and love go hand in hand, nonviolence reigns. We have to understand the interrelationship between the five human values, namely, truth, righteousness, peace, love, and nonviolence. All these human values are embedded in our own inner being.

A human being is God, verily. That is why God is portrayed in human form. If God were to reveal His true identity, He would declare, "I am Brahman." He would not say, "I am so and so." All the names of individuals are only those given to the human body by their parents. They are not God-given. God has given only one gift, that is Atma. That is,

Mamatma sarvabhuthantharatma (the one Divine Self permeates all beings).

Observe the ants. They move in a line up and down. While doing so, they greet each other happily. If a cow has given birth to a calf, it does not join the flock leaving the young calf alone. The cow recognises the cry of the calf, even from a distance. The calf cries "Amba! Amba!" And the mother cow responds. Such is the relationship among animals and even in birds.

In the Ramayana story, a hunter saw two birds happily spending their time in each other's company, perched on a tree. The hunter shot an arrow and killed the male bird.

Unable to bear the separation from her beloved, the female bird also died soon thereafter. Sage Valmiki who witnessed this pathetic scene uttered a sloka (verse), even without knowing it. It came spontaneously from his mouth. That soka (grief) became the inspiration for the great epic Ramayana. Thus, birds and animals also love each other.

How then can a human being lose such a noble quality of love? Today there are many things that a human being can learn from birds, animals and even beasts. But the human being is least bothered to learn these lessons. I have been teaching many good things since decades; but you don't listen. Even if you listen, you don't put them into practice.

If somebody abuses you, you feel sad. Don't you know that they also feel the same way when you abuse them? Praise or criticism, treat them all as part of the divine leela.

When you develop such a sense of equanimity, you will come up in life.

Today, even rich people are crazy for money. But they do not show the same enthusiasm for God. People have lost self-confidence, totally. "Where is Atma? What is Atma?"

People ask hundred and one questions. They do not at all understand that the Atma they were questioning about is very much immanent in them.

People say, "this is my handkerchief." It means "I" is separate and "handkerchief" is separate. Similarly when you say, "my body", you are different from your body. What is this "my"? You say, "this is mine." But who are you? You do not know the truth about yourself. When you know yourself, it amounts to knowing everything. If you do not know yourself, you cannot know others. Hence, sit calmly and peacefully in some corner and try to enquire into the nature of your own self. That is real dhyaana (meditation).

Meditation does not imply contemplating on God. Know about yourself, in the first instance.

God is in you, with you, around you, above you, and below you. YOU ARE GOD. Whenever someone enquires, "Who are you?" say, "I am God." Don't say, "I am so and so." How happy you will feel when you consider yourself as God! Even those who listen to your reply will feel happy.

Education does not mean simply imparting knowledge. We learn many things from text books, but we may not be able to understand their real meaning. First and foremost, enquire into yourself "Who am I? Who am I? Who am I?" Then you will get the real answer.

Are you the mind? Or intellect? Or chittha? Or ego? Or body? You are none of these. No doubt the body, mind, intellect, etc. are all gifts of God. You have, of course, to respect them and value them. It is not enough if you read various texts and feel happy and contented that you have gained vast knowledge.

Yesterday, one boy came to me and informed, "Swami, I have completed parayana (reading of sacred texts) of Sri Shirdi Sai Satcharithra." When I enquired whether he had read the book fully, he replied that he had completely read the book without leaving a single letter. Then I enquired, "how many teachings of Baba contained in that book are you practising?" He replied, "None, Swami," Then, what is this reading for? For turning pages? Not at all. There should be a transformation in your heart. Then only will your parayana be sanctified.

Devotees undertake several kinds of sadhana, but they are not sadhana in the real sense.

If you wish to see "reality", you have to develop an inner vision. If you open your eyes and see the outside world, you will see a number of heads. On the other hand, close your eyes and look into yourself. Then you will see none but yourself. Hence, develop an inner vision.

You enquire into yourself, "Who am I?" Immediately reply comes from within, "I am I."

That is the correct answer. People say, "I am so and so; I am an American," etc. These are not the real answers to the question, "Who am I?" These are all outward names for identification in the external world. They are not important. What is important is self-enquiry. Then you will realise the Truth.

Goldstein and Srinivasan, who spoke earlier, eulogised education. What they said related to worldly education. I do not agree. It should relate to you. Then only can the concept of "I am I" be realised.

Tomorrow, I will provide answers to some of your questions that bother you in your daily life. I am sure very soon you will realise Divinity.

I do not wish to speak about modern education. That everybody will do. Reading books and gaining worldly knowledge is not great. This is only bookish knowledge. You must gain knowledge of your own self (inner being). That is real knowledge. That is changeless and eternal. Truth is only one, not two. Truth is God. Righteousness is God. Peace is God.

Love is God. Know this. "Love is God; live in love." If you cultivate such selfless and divine love, you can achieve everything in life. "God is one; goal is one." If you develop firm faith in this maxim, you can understand everything. Your experiences and enjoyment in this material world are not important. They are not true. Behind these momentary experiences, there are some eternal values to be cultivated; some human qualities to be developed. These values and qualities have to manifest from within, not in the outside world. That is Educare. Educare means bringing out the latent qualities and values from the core of our inner being. The books you read in the outside world relate to education. But, this is "Educare". What is needed today is "Educare". If people develop "Educare", all will be united.

Take it from Me: in about 25 to 30 years' time the entire world will become one. There will be only one caste, one religion, and one God. What is needed is such unity. Today, there are several differences between individuals on the basis of caste, creed, religion, language, nation, etc. Such differences should disappear and unity should prevail. The Veda has emphasised this unity in the declaration, Ekam Sath Viprah Bahudha Vadanthi (Truth is one, the wise say it in different ways). That is the real world we are visualising.

Today, I spoke at length, taking a lot of time. Tomorrow I will clarify all your doubts leisurely.

SSS World Education Conference, 21 July 2008
 Date: 21 July 2008 Occasion: Sri Sathya Sai World Education Conference Place: Prasanthi Nilayam
Nilayam
 Lead an Ideal Life and Set an Example for Others by
Bhagavan Sri Sathya Sai Baba
 One may become a wise man by acquiring all types of knowledge But may not, however, realise one's own self, the dull-witted one! Despite acquiring all knowledge, A mean-minded person cannot give up bad qualities. (Telugu poem)

The more a person is educated,
The more they indulge in argumentation.
Never can they acquire true wisdom
Why pursue all types of education and get doomed?
One must pursue education that leads to immortality.
(Telugu poem)
Devoid of practice, any amount of education will serve no purpose.
One may acquire high academic degrees and titles, but one cannot be called an educated person. Education is different from practical knowledge. Hence one has to put into practice what one has learnt from an educational institution. Today, it is only the highly educated who come under the category of "ajnanis" (those who lack wisdom). Children today imitate them and walk in their footsteps.
(Swami then answered some questions put by the delegates)
Q 1: How should students relate themselves to God?
A: God is not separate from you. He is in you, with you, around you, behind you and before you. One has to develop love toward God and have an inseparable bond of love with God. The relationship with God is not physical. One has to develop the feeling that God
and oneself are one and the same and that God is in one.
Q 2: What are the external signs of spiritual transformation that takes place in a devotee?
A: First and foremost, one has to enquire into oneself whether one has developed unflinching faith in God or having a casual and worldly relationship with God. Having decided over the matter, one has to develop firm faith and ensure that one is living with a sense of total equanimity in both pleasure and pain. In fact, there are no
special signs of the spiritual transformation that takes place in an individual. It is possible that sometimes some signs may appear outwardly and in dreams, or one may be relating oneself to the voice of God. In any case, it is the individual that has to observe for themselves whether their devotion is increasing or decreasing. Everything is dependent upon one's faith in God.
Q 3: What are the qualities that are expected of a teacher in the Sai system of education?
A: Teachers should not let students go free. Teachers should exercise proper control over students with kind and good words, keeping in view the aims and aspirations of the students. Simply because they are your students, do not let them go scot-free. Even if you were to allow them some freedom, apply brakes now and then and also punish them, if necessary. Such punishment is intended to be a warning to the students to behave themselves properly.

Q 4: What is the role of a teacher in the Sai educational system? How should one enforce discipline?
A: Let the teacher remain as a teacher and the student as student.
Both have their roles and responsibilities. Especially the teacher has got a responsibility to ensure proper atmosphere in the classroom, while keeping the students happy.
Q 5: What efforts are to be made by a teacher to become a role model in human values?
A: This is a very important question. Only when a teacher behaves properly with the students will the students emulate their qualities. What you forbid the students do not yourself undertake to do. Not only this, even with food, both the teacher and student should partake the same food. You forbid meat eating for the students and you yourself partake meat and fish. Such a practice is very bad for developing a harmonious relationship between teacher and student. What you teach students, you follow first. The teacher should not behave irresponsibly, thinking that the students have no right to question him. The teacher should conduct themselves with humility and alertness while dealing with students. They should nourish and nurture the students with love. Another question relates to his dealings with students in a coeducation school.
The male teacher should take extra care in his relations with the girl students. They should be treated as his sisters, with love and respect. Only then will their character will be moulded.
By their behaviour, teachers are expected to set examples to others.
Q 6: In what way should parents be involved in children's education?
A: Parents should not discuss their family problems in front of the children. They should sort out those problems between themselves and keep the children happy and education-oriented. Instead of being pointed out by the children, parents should set an example to their children in conduct and behaviour.
Children should not cause any inconvenience to their parents. They should develop a sense of gratitude toward their parents for bringing them up, undergoing several difficulties, and sacrificing their own comforts. Even after they are married, they should not neglect their parents, thinking, "I and my family are doing well. What do I care if my parents are suffering?" Only uneducated fools will behave like that. Educated people should not develop such attitude. You must serve your parents and keep them happy. Fulfill their needs. It is the duty of children to keep their parents happy.

These days, students make friendship with bad characters. "Tell me your company and I shall tell you what you are." By joining bad company, you will also get spoiled. Today, there is a lot of agitation between parents and children. The desires and aspirations of parents and children are opposed to one another. If you look after your own tastes, what about those of your parents? You can therefore fulfill your aspirations, keeping in view the expectations of your parents. It is sheer selfishness to work for your own satisfaction, making your parents unhappy. It is unbecoming of a child.

Parents should also exercise proper control over such children. The parents should explain to their children, "Today, you are married and set up a family, but we are with you right from the beginning. Make us happy. It is your duty." Bidding goodbye to the parents and setting up a separate family is selfishness. Only because this selfishness is increasing in recent times is the relationship between parents and children strained.

Another aspect I wish to emphasise: do not interfere in matters not concerning you. Due to the impact of modern times, children tend to become separate from their parents. Tempers run high and tensions build up in such situations. Hence, you have to control your anger to a certain extent. You have to pause and enquire into yourself, "Do I have to show my temper to my parents? Is it correct?" Do not let your elderly parents shed tears on account of your rude behaviour. On the other hand, if you make them happy, you will also be happy.

Bal vikas classes are very important for the children. Dhyana (meditation) should be taught to bal vikas children and to those undergoing training in Education in Human Values. First and foremost, parents should develop an awareness about human values. They should follow the human values in letter and spirit. How do you expect the children to follow human values, when you yourself don't? Set an example by your practice of human values.

Parents today are busy and have no time to spare for their family and children. If both parents go to their offices, what will happen to the children? Who will look after them?

Some years back, I wrote a poem about the pathetic condition of the children and family in such situations:

If women go out for jobs, who will take care of the home?
When husband and wife go out to office, who will do the household work?
If women go out to teach others' children in schools, who will teach their own children?
If women also go to work just like men, who will cook food in the kitchen?
Earning money may solve some financial problems, but how will it resolve domestic problem?
Women can work and earn money but they cannot lead a happy life if they neglect their home.

(Telugu poem)

Such parents depend upon cooks and ayahs to run their homes. This will bring down the reputation of the family. Hence, you have to take up employment only after ensuring smooth running of the household. You can certainly take up a job, provided the children are taken care of in a proper manner. Even the males do not understand this situation.

Some people spend their time in reading newspapers and watching TV after returning from their offices. Some others go to the club and play cards. They do not bother about their family and children.

How can they ensure proper atmosphere in the house and children's education? If the children are not studying well, it is not their mistake. The parents are to be blamed for such a situation. You remain in the house and look after the children properly. That is the real income for the family.

On the other hand, if you go out to earn a few thousands, neglecting your children, you become selfish parents. If your children are spoiled, you have to repent later. Hence, it is the foremost duty of the parents to bring up the children in a proper atmosphere.

The human values are to be followed by every individual voluntarily. No one can enforce them from above. If people in their respective occupations, like the police, doctors, nurses, etc., were to do their jobs with honesty and integrity, problems would not have arisen in society. Unfortunately, this is not the situation today. The children are suffering for the faults of their parents. Hence, we have to ensure that the children are happy and grow up in a healthy environment. Do not allow them to sleep till 8.00 a.m. Wake them up at 5 o'clock itself.

Unfortunately today even the parents do not get up at 5 o'clock. They sleep till 8 o'clock in the morning and their children up to 9 o'clock. The parents should set an example to their children. Those who have no children and no responsibilities can sleep for any length of time.

Sri Sathya Sai Organisations, while establishing schools, can raise a corpus fund for the maintenance of schools. They can also take the help of parents for running the school. Especially, the three principles of discipline, duty, and devotion must be given toppriority in Sathya Sai Schools. Children have to be taught the human values right from an early age. Students should be taught to establish proper relationship with God.

Parents should not provide all sorts of fashionable dresses to the children. Provide them simple and neat dress that will suit their needs. It is the primary duty of the parents to exercise proper control over their children. Parents should also be given proper orientation about Sai system of education. It is possible that some parents may not be aware of it.

Some children speak lies, out of fear of their parents. Hence, parents have to visit their school once in a week to enquire about their wards' behaviour and progress in studies. Sometimes children manipulate their marks and inform them to their parents, who implicitly believe their children. They do not care to go to the school and check with the teachers. Parents have to go to the school every now and then and check with the teachers, without the knowledge of their children.

In a way, the parents in villages are better in this aspect. They at least monitor the progress and behaviour of their children in the school and take timely corrective measures. But people living in towns and cities, especially high officials, do not bother about their children. Students should not loiter here and there. Some students roam about in bazaars and waste their time. Such students are stupid! It does not behoove the stature of a student to roam about in the streets aimlessly.

Parents should also prevent children from misuse of money. They have to educate children as to what is right and what is wrong. They should correct the children's behaviour.

Father, mother, and children should thus lead a harmonious life in the house.

Parents should also watch what books the children are reading. Youngsters are prone to read all sorts of books. They keep some useless novels in the midst of textbooks and read them. Parents think that the boy is reading a textbook. But it is not a textbook; it is his "taste". Parents should immediately remove such books from the children. When you thus observe and keep a close watch on the activities of the children, they behave well and come up in life.

Educate bal vikas children about ceiling on desires, which forbids waste of money, food, energy, and time. Only when you enforce this rule will children come under your control.

Today, even the elders do not follow this ceiling on desires. During festivals and family occasions, a lot of money is spent in organising dinners where food is wasted.

Food is God; do not waste food. Give food to those who are in need of it. Unfortunately today, the poor and hungry are not fed. A lot of food is thrown in the dustbin as waste.

Regarding talk, do not talk too much, whereby precious energy is wasted. Similarly, do not waste time. "Time waste is life waste." We are wasting money. What purpose is served by wasting money? "Misuse of money is evil." Certainly you can spend money when necessary. But should you waste money for unnecessary things simply because you have enough money in your pocket?

Several people spend their entire salary for luxuries. They think that they are leading a pompous life. When you are thus spending money recklessly, even the milkman and servants in the house who observe your lifestyle put forward demands for increasing their wages. Therefore, do not set a bad example for others. With each rupee you spend, ask yourself whether it is for a good purpose or not. These are the answers for the questions you have raised. Conduct yourself carefully and lead a purposeful life in society. Even if you commit a small mistake, society will view it seriously. Do not commit even a small mistake. Society is carefully watching the lives of members of the Sri Sathya Sai Organisation. Hence, lead an ideal life and set an example to others.

Love is Truth; Truth is Love; Live in Love

by

Bhagavan Sri Sathya Sai Baba

Embodiments of Love!

During the last two days, you attended the conference and listened to the speakers sitting here in this Hall, undergoing all inconveniences. It is really your good fortune that you could come here from far off countries and participate in this conference. You have come here spending a lot of money and undergoing great strain. This in itself is a testimony to the purity of your heart. There are millions of people in this world. There are lakhs (a lakh is 100,000) of schools and colleges. But only a few of you are blessed with the opportunity of coming here. You can imagine how fortunate you are!

Having come here and participated in this conference, what are supposed to learn? First of all, you must understand the nature of your own heart and manifest human values, namely, truth, righteousness, peace, love and nonviolence. Only then can you be called educated in the true sense of the term. There are many lawyers in this world, who study voluminous books. In spite of their learning, we find many "liars" among them. There are many doctors. But what is the use? They are getting bogged down with professional rivalry. We cannot find unity anywhere. First and foremost, we have to develop unity.

All of us are the children of God. We are all brothers and sisters. We should preserve this truth in our heart. At times, there may be some differences among brothers and sisters. Therefore, we must learn to adjust with each other. Not only that, we must understand each other in the first instance. Adjustment becomes easy when we have proper understanding. There cannot be any adjustment without proper understanding. Firstly, you must understand that whatever Swami teaches is only out of His love for you.

There is great progress in the field of science today. All the inventions of the scientists are within the purview of senses. In fact, many scientists are acting in a senseless manner and committing mistakes. Scientists themselves are not sure of what they are saying and doing. They say they are helping society, but in fact they are doing just the opposite. Help never, hurt ever --this seems to be their motto. As a result, today, people lead their lives with fear and anxiety. When you board a plane, you are not sure whether you will reach the destination safely. People are in the grip of fear.

They are afraid of even rats!

Never be afraid of anything. Don't fear. Fear is the root cause of anxiety and delusion.

People today are afraid to eat even fruits and vegetables because they are grown with the help of chemicals that are harmful to health. The food we eat, the water we drink, the air we breathe are all polluted. How can we lead a healthy life in such a polluted environment? We should therefore make our lives pollution free. We have to do it ourselves. Merely for the sake of satisfying our taste buds, we should not eat junk food and spoil our health. When you take proper care of your health, the children born to you will also be healthy.

Always speak the truth. Apart from speaking truth, remain calm and composed in the face of criticism. Only then can there be peace. Our ancient rishis (sages) used to observe silence as part of their spiritual sadhana (spiritual disciplines).

Observance of silence helps you to progress on the spiritual path. When you practise silence, you can easily experience peace of mind. Love manifests from peace. When you are filled with love, you will have no enemies. Therefore, lead your life with love. Only through love can we establish peace in the world.

Today people talk of peace, but we find only pieces everywhere. Even the country is being divided into pieces! What I mean to say is that people are keeping the interests of their regions above the national interest. We should stand united as a country. When someone asks you, "Where do you come from?", you should proudly say that you belong to India. Do not say you belong to Puttaparthi, Anantapur district, etc. Only those with a narrow mind will give such an answer. "I come from India," --this should be your answer.

Similarly, one should not say that one comes from California, which is only a small part of America. One should say that one comes from America. Always be broadminded in your thinking. It is your good fortune to be endowed with such a broad mind. When you develop broadmindedness, your children also will be broadminded.

Parents should enroll their children in bal vikas classes and impart sacred teachings to them. As the parents, so are the children. Therefore, parents should tread the right path and set an ideal so that their children can emulate them. The fault lies in the parents if the children do not behave properly. Hence, parents should take utmost care in bringing up their children. After a certain age, children do not obey their parents, because parents themselves do not follow the right path. Parents should lead an exemplary life if they want their children to be good and come up in life.

There should be no difference of opinion between the father and the mother. They should be united in whatever they tell their children. In some families, mother says one thing and father says something else. Such lack of unity and understanding between the parents is not a good sign. Both of them must stand on one word and teach their children the right path.

First of all, they should teach their children to adhere to truth. It is enough if we follow the path of truth, because truth is the basis of everything.

Sathyannasti paro dharma (There is no dharma greater than adherence to truth). Peace originates from righteousness, and love manifests from peace. Where there is love, there is nonviolence and everyone can lead a peaceful life. If the nation has to attain peace and prosperity, we should follow the path of truth. What is truth? "Manasyekam vachasyekam karmanyekam mahatmanaam" (He is a noble soul whose thoughts, words, and deeds are in harmony). If your thought, word, and deed are at variance, it amounts to falsehood. Before we teach our children to adhere to truth, we should practise truth in our daily life. Only then can the children emulate us and become ideal.

We should lead a "heartful life" but not an artificial life. Today, right from the system of education, everything has become artificial. People read a number of sacred texts, chant mantras, and undertake meditation. But all this is done in an artificial manner. Whatever may be the spiritual practice we undertake, do it wholeheartedly.

In the name of meditation, people close their eyes and sit cross-legged, but they have no control over their mind. Their mind goes everywhere as per its whims and fancies.

Therefore, we should control our mind in the first instance. Manah eva manushyanam karanam bandhamokshayo (mind is the cause of bondage and liberation of man). As the thought, so is the action. Hence, we should entertain only good thoughts, which lead to good actions and ultimately yield good results.

Do not follow the vagaries of the mind. Do not be under the control of the mind. The mind should be under your control. Mind is like a mad monkey. It goes everywhere without any restraint. But it becomes quiet and subdued when it is turned toward God.

When the Sun rises, our shadow is very long. If we start walking toward the Sun, our shadow will fall behind us. On the other hand, if we walk in the opposite direction with our back toward the Sun, we have to follow our shadow, which falls ahead of us. When the Sun is right on our head, the shadow will fall under our feet. Maya (delusion) is like our shadow. In order to conquer maya, you have to turn your mind toward God. When your mind is directly focused on God, maya will be totally subdued like the shadow under your feet.

There are three hands in the clock indicating seconds, minutes, and hours. The second hand is the longest and moves quicker than the other two. When the second hand completes sixty digits, the minute hand moves forward by one digit. Similarly, when the minute hand crosses sixty digits, the hour hand crosses one digit. However, the hour hand is most important. Thinking of God once in a while and spending the rest of the time in worldly pursuits is like the second hand, which has little significance. But constant contemplation of God at all times is like the hour hand, which is most important.

Do not act as per the vagaries of your mind. As I have mentioned earlier, mind can cause liberation or bondage. Therefore, you have to exercise control over your mind and turn it in the right direction, i.e. toward truth and love. Then it becomes steady and attains the power of concentration. Love is truth and truth is love. Live in love.

This is not physical and worldly love. We should preserve spiritual love in our heart.

Only then can we develop steadiness of mind. Worldly love will only make our mind fickle and unsteady. Therefore, keep your mind always focused on God. Only then can you experience peace. People think it is very difficult, but let Me tell you that there is no sadhana (spiritual discipline) easier than this.

When we develop love for God, the mind can be controlled very easily. On the other hand, if the mind is not turned toward God, it can never be controlled. Whatever you do, consider it as God's work.

Everything happens as per the Will of God. Do not be under the delusion that you will alone can make things move. If that be the case, why are you not able to exercise any control over certain events that take place in your life? Understand that everything moves as per the Divine Will. If something good happens to you, consider it as the Will of God. If something bad happens, accept that also as the Will of God.

There is certainly some purpose behind whatever He does, which you cannot comprehend.

Whatever He does is for your own good. Hence, leave everything to His Will. Sukhadukhe samekruthwa labhalabhau jayajayau (one should remain equalminded in happiness and sorrow, gain and loss, victory and defeat). Whatever may happen, consider it as an act of divine love and welcome it wholeheartedly.

When you get immersed in divine love, you will be successful in all your endeavours. But today people are getting immersed in worldly love only. One who develops worldly love is a liar! Only divine love can be termed as true love. Divine love will never betray you.

Let people think what they like, let them criticise you in any manner, but always remain firmly established in divine love. Under any circumstances, do not deviate from the path of divine love. When you preserve divine love in your heart, your future as well as the future of your children will be safe and secure.

When someone asks you, "Who are you?" you are unable to give a correct reply. You identify yourself with the physical body. But in fact, the physical body is like a leather bag which contains various entities such as the mind, intellect, chitta, etc.

Once the life principle ebbs away from the body, it becomes an "empty bag", which is of no use to us. Hence, we put it in fire and reduce it to ashes. Before the body becomes an "empty bag" and is burnt to ashes, you should offer to God all that is contained in it and redeem your life.

First of all, give up bad qualities such as kama, krodha, lobha, moha, mada, matsarya

(lust, anger, greed, infatuation, pride, jealousy). They can cause you only misery but not happiness. You can see for yourself how blissful you become when you get rid of these evil qualities.

In order to experience such eternal bliss, offer to God all that is in you. You have a number of desires. But is it possible to get all your desires fulfilled?

No. Never cause

harm to others in the process of fulfilment of your desires. If you desire something, pray to God and ask Him directly. Establish direct contact with Him. If you follow

"indirect" methods, you will be put to untold misery.

But today people are trying to harm others in order to satisfy their own greed. Such people are bound to reap the consequences of their evil deeds. Long ago during the independence movement, I composed a song visualizing a scene where an infant was crying and his mother was consoling him with an assurance that everything will be alright and there is nothing to worry about the fate of the country. I sang it on the stage, placing

a rubber doll in a cradle and rocking it gently.
Do not cry, my child, do not cry.
If you cry, you will not be called a valiant son of Bharat.
Go to sleep, my child, go to sleep.
Did you get scared because the terrible Hitler has invaded the invincible Russia?
Go to sleep, my child, go to sleep.
Do not cry, my child, do not cry.
For the Red Army is marching under Stalin.
They will put an end to Hitler.
Then what else is the reason for your crying?
Is it because the countrymen lack unity?
All the countrymen will unite and fight to win freedom;
Go to sleep, my child, go to sleep.
(Telugu Song)
Today you have gathered here in such large numbers. Have we sent any invitation letter to any of you? No, no. It is only love that has brought you here (applause). It is only love that can unite everybody, but not hatred. When your love and My love come together,
any task can be achieved. Hence, develop love.
With the power of love, you can win over anybody, even a mighty rakshasa (demon) can be subdued. When Ravana abducted Sita, Hanuman went to Lanka in search of her. He found her in Asoka grove, sitting under a tree and chanting Rama's name. She had firm faith that only Rama could protect her from the clutches of the rakshasas.
In spite of all his learning, valour and wealth, Ravana was as insignificant as a blade
of grass when compared to Rama, because he lacked character.
Rama was one of noble character. If one is endowed with noble character, one can achieve any mighty task. That is why I often tell our students that the end of education is character.
What is the use
of all your education if you lack character?
Some lawyers keep reading a number of books day and night. But, when they go to the court, they speak only untruth. Greatness does not lie in reading books. The truth that the books teach should be preserved in our heart. We must develop good character. Then we will certainly achieve success in all that we do.
Once you go back home, remember all that Swami has taught you and develop good character among your children. Develop a spirit of sacrifice and sanctify your life with noble
deeds.
What is the use of merely amassing wealth? Alexander, the great

emperor, conquered different parts of the world and came to India with a desire to conquer this country too. On his return journey, he suffered a grave illness. Sensing that his end had approached, he called all his ministers and generals and told them that he was not going to live any more. He instructed them to take his body to his country after his death. He further told them to expose his hands out of the bier with his palms turned upward and carry the funeral procession in all the streets of the city. This was to tell the people of the world that in spite of his great conquests in the world and a great name and fame, Alexander left the world empty handed.
This is true to all of us. Whatever we may accumulate, we have to go empty handed only.
In the ultimate analysis, all worldly possessions are useless. Our bank balance will not follow us when we leave this world. Therefore, utilise your wealth for the benefit of the poor and the needy, with a spirit of sacrifice. When you spend your life in such a sacred manner, you will certainly be redeemed.

Educare Leads to Unity of Thought, Word, and Deed
by
Bhagavan Sri Sathya Sai Baba
Embodiments of Love!
This land of Bharath is the motherland for great people who acquired name and fame in different continents;
This land of Bharath is the battle field where the warriors of foreign countries
were driven out and freedom from foreign rule obtained;
The sweetest feeling of this land of Bharath is the feeling of motherhood.
Consigning to flames the moral fabric of our country,
which ordains self-respect as more valuable than one's own life,
The dagger of unrestrained freedom has been given to the people
today,
imitating the western countries.
Just as an elephant that is unable to realize its own strength,
So are the Bharathiyas today. (Telugu Poem)
The elephant, not knowing its own inherent strength, meekly submits itself to the mahout and obeys his commands. Similarly, man, unable to realize his own divine nature, submits himself to the world and its attractions and in the process encounters several difficulties. He is unable to bear even a little inconvenience. When someone is transferred to a new place, he feels diffident to take up the new assignment. If his child falls sick, he is filled with anxiety. He is living in the grip of fear. He is unable to realize his own strength.

The reason for this fear complex is modern education. It does not develop self-confidence and self-reliance. Modern education teaches you how to make a living in the outside world. With the help of modern education, you may earn money and make a comfortable living by providing all sorts of conveniences to the ephemeral physical body. But you cannot have peace of mind. You may enjoy worldly pleasures with money, but spiritual bliss cannot be attained with wealth.

Hence, never forget spirituality under any circumstances. Only spiritual life can confer peace and happiness. It is said, "Bhajana bina sukha santhi nahi..." Peace and happiness can be attained only by singing the glory of the Divine Name and not by wealth or worldly possessions. Worldly education aims at providing physical comforts only.

In spite of his education and intelligence, a foolish man will not know his true Self and a mean-minded person will not give up his evil qualities.

(Telugu Poem)

Modern education leads only to argumentation, not to total wisdom. What is the use of acquiring education that cannot lead you to immortality?

Acquire that knowledge which will make you immortal.

(Telugu Poem)

What is the use of pursuing such type of education? A human being needs to cultivate five human values, namely sathya (truth), dharma (righteousness), santhi (peace), prema (love), and ahimsa (nonviolence). Kama (lust), krodha (anger), lobha (greed), moha (delusion), etc. are qualities of animals. Unfortunately today man is developing animal qualities. He does not make an effort to cultivate human qualities. That is why he has no peace of mind or happiness in spite of accumulating a lot of wealth.

It is in this context that much emphasis is laid on "educare" instead of education. What is "educare"? Educare is manifesting one's own innate divine nature. One can experience bliss by doing so.

There are several colleges and universities in different parts of the world today. There are innumerable number of professors and PhDs, too. But could their high academic degrees confer peace and happiness on them? Why did not the world experience peace and happiness in spite of producing so many educated people? The reason is that all their education is meant to make a comfortable living. Education is for life, not for a mere living.

One has to pursue educare along with education. Education is related to the outside world, whereas educare concerns itself with one's inner being. It relates to the Atma (Soul). Where is Atma? It is everywhere. It is omnipresent. The Vedas declare Aham Brahmasmi (I am Brahman). This dictum establishes the universal existence of God. A human being is the Embodiment of Divine Self, verily. One is not merely a human being.

Since one identifies oneself with the physical body, one considers oneself a mere mortal.

There are five human values. The first one is sathya (truth). What is its form? It has no form. It is beyond description. Similarly, santhi (peace) cannot be perceived by the naked eye. So also the other human values like dharma (righteousness), prema (love), and ahimsa (nonviolence) have no form.

Prema is one quality that is present in all human beings, but it is invisible. It can be recognized only when it is showered on another human being. Where there is love, there cannot be hatred. Where there is no hatred, there cannot be violence. That is ahimsa.

Strangely, the term human value has acquired new meaning these days. It is mistaken to be accumulating wealth and maintaining a bank balance. People think this is the purpose of education. This is not true.

The real human values are sathya, dharma, santhi, prema, and ahimsa. Anything contrary to these values is animalistic in nature. Hence, whenever you are confronted with such animal thoughts, remind yourself, "I am not an animal, I am not an animal; I am a human being, I am a human being." You are a human being, not an animal. However, you can be considered a human being only when you manifest human qualities; not otherwise. You may be highly educated and well-read; if you do not have human qualities,

you cannot be called a human being. Only the person who manifests the five human values can be called a real human being.

You may be an Emperor with lot of wealth and manpower to support you, but you may not be happy. Real peace and happiness come from inner feeling of peace and tranquility.

Worldly positions and power cannot confer peace and happiness.

You all know the story of Alexander. He went round the world on a conquest mission. He crossed the river Sindhu and came to India. Meanwhile he had a heart attack. There were a good number of doctors around him, who examined him and declared that he might not live long and die very soon. Alexander called his ministers and generals and told them,

"After I leave this body, wrap my dead body with a white cloth keeping my both hands in a raised position so that all people can see my empty hands. Then, take my body in procession through all the streets of our village. Whoever sees my body thus will ask why my hands are kept in such raised position. Tell them that the Emperor Alexander conquered all the countries and accumulated a lot of wealth.

However, at the time of his death, none, even the mighty army or the doctors present, could save him. He left the world empty-handed, leaving behind his empire and great wealth."

Similarly, one may be a billionaire or a millionaire; yet one has to leave this world with empty hands. You may store your wealth in bank lockers; but you cannot take even a handful of earth along with you at the time of leaving this world. Not even a dust particle.

All the education that we pursue today is secular. No doubt this is also necessary. But the real education is that which helps you to manifest your innate divinity. You may read a number of texts, you can teach them to others, too. They cannot make your life exemplary.

Hence, what sort of education should a man pursue? "Educare". What is educare? Educare is manifesting one's innate human qualities in the outside world. No text books need be read for this purpose.

However, since you came into this world with a physical body, you have to acquire education and earn money to sustain that body. Secular education is for sustaining the physical body. The chanting of the Gayathri Mantra starts with AUM. Then the mantra proper reads "Bhur Bhava Suvah Thath Savithur Varenyam Bhargo Devasya Dheemahi Dhiyo Yo

Nah Prachodayath". The chanting of AUM itself will confer all the benefits that accrue by chanting of the mantra.

There is a great necessity today to explain the significance and inner meanings of such mantras to students. That is why we have recruited teachers who can explain these spiritual aspects along with secular education to the students in our educational institutions.

The first Vice Chancellor of our University, V. K. Gokak, was one such great teacher who could impart secular education with spiritual background. I knew him even before we started our colleges. He learnt several aspects from Me. He always used to chant the divine name of Swami. He and his wife had single-minded devotion. Whenever I visited their house, first of all, they would take Me to their puja room.

Gokak's heart was very pure.

Such a noble person became the first Vice Chancellor of our university. The students today are enjoying the fruits of all the hard work done by him. He used to obey My command in letter and spirit. He used to approach Me to clarify even a small doubt.

Today, his eldest son, Anil Gokak is laying down the office of the Vice Chancellor of our university after completing his tenure of three years. Anil is a worthy son of a worthy father. Having completed his tenure, he is leaving the university, but I know that his mind is always with Swami.

Anil Gokak and his wife both are ardent devotees of Swami. Do not think that they are going away from us, nor are we sending them away. Sri Sathya Sai University is imprinted in their hearts. Their thoughts are always focused on Swami. Their hearts are always tuned to Swami. Swami is always with them. Do not think that we are giving them a send-off today. No, no. We do not give send-off to anyone; we always welcome, welcome, welcome. I also told them that wherever they are, they should come here and have Swami's darshan.

The Gokak family has always remained a homogeneous unit. Wherever they are, Swami is firmly installed in their heart. Anil Gokak is Mine and I am his. I told him, "I and you are one." Not only Anil, all of you are part of Me, though outwardly you appear to be different from Me. Easwara sarva bhutanam (God is immanent in every living being). Easavasyamidam jagat (The entire universe is permeated by God). Even ants and insects are different forms of God. There is nothing in the universe which is not divine. That is the truth. Creation emerges from truth and merges into truth. Is there a place in the cosmos where truth does not exist? Visualise this pure and unsullied truth. (Telugu Poem) Everything is God. It is God that protects or punishes. Do not be under the impression that someone is punishing you. It is God's Will that works through him. Whoever hurts you or causes suffering to you, always think that that person belongs to you. Never entertain an ill feeling against that person. All are one, be alike to every one. The bodies may be different and the thoughts may be different. But, the Atma Thathwa (Atmic principle) in all is only one. No one can separate the Atma as belonging to this person or that person. Wherever you go, whether it is America or Japan or Germany or Pakistan or India, only one Sun illuminates the entire world. It is daytime for us now, whereas it is night in America. Does it mean that there is no Sun in America? No. The Sun is here, there, and everywhere, illumining the entire world. Since the Earth rotates round the Sun, it is night in America at this point of time. Similarly God is everywhere. He is omnipresent. We need not search for Him in some corner. He is immanent in us. We should develop a feeling that God is always with us, in us, above us, and below us. One should develop such firm faith. Then one can see Him at any place of one's choice. You may contemplate upon Rama or Krishna. While doing so, keep the form of your chosen deity before your mind's eye and contemplate on Him. Surely you will visualise that form. You should therefore not entertain the feeling that God has forsaken you. If God were to forsake you, how can you exist in the world? God and you are one. Lord Eswara is also referred to as Arthanareeswara, signifying the unity between the male and female aspects of Divinity. In fact, all our troubles are due to our attachment to prakriti (material world). Do not entertain the feeling that you are separate from God; that you are only a devotee etc. Do not think that He is God and you are only a dasa (servant of God). You are not merely a devotee. You are God verily. Constantly remind yourself, "I am God, I am God, I am God." All the names that are given to individuals are for the purpose of identification. They are not eternal. In fact, all names and forms are meant to be shed at one time or the other. But the Atma is eternal and changeless. If "I" and "Mine" are removed, what remains is God only. You say this is my body, my mind, my intellect, etc. You are not the body, you are not the mind, you are not the intellect. You are separate from all these things. You are God, verily. Fill water in a thousand vessels and keep them in the Sun. The Sun reflects in all these thousand vessels, but there is only one Sun. Just as the one Sun reflects in thousand vessels, so also the one God illumines the entire universe. God is one and the goal is one. You have to develop the feeling that everything good or bad, profit or loss, is God. Of course, secular education and ideas are necessary to a certain extent. Today Viswanath Pandit is taking charge as the new Vice Chancellor. He has also toured several countries of the world as an academician. He is "Viswanatha". He is a very good person. In the past also, several Vice Chancellors worked in this university and left after completing their tenure. They may not be present here in their physical bodies. But their Atmas are always with Me. In fact, I am their Atma. Hence, no one should feel that someone has left and some other person has come in his place. Perform your duty. This duty strengthens your relationship with God. Duty is God. Anil Gokak performed his duties very well. Even a small matter, he used to bring to the notice of Swami for clarification. I need such people. Right from the first Vice Chancellor, the senior Gokak to the junior Gokak, all Vice only. Even the future Vice Chancellors belong to Me only. I am utilizing the services of all these persons for the development of students.

Chancellors are My people

The students are also good. College students in the outside world these days are problematic, but our students cannot be compared to those boys. Our students are unique.

They do not join unsuitable company in the outside world. They maintain their good behaviour at all times. Everywhere they are distinct and distinguishable, but that does not mean that they are separate or misfits in any society. Wherever they are, they act in harmony with their local community and always conduct themselves with dignity, obeying Swami's command.

Spirituality is like the head of a physical body. Only when the head functions well can all other limbs in the body function smoothly. All our students should therefore treat spirituality as their head.

Each lecturer teaches a particular subject in the classroom. Students should imprint their teachings in their hearts. They should not differentiate between the lecturers saying so and so is a great lecturer and others are not. If you conduct yourself as good boys with sterling character and leadership qualities, you can even rule this country in the years to come. Hence, develop a sense of equal-mindedness, treat all lecturers as good, and take their lessons to your heart. This is what I wish to emphasise today as My advice to all the students of our Institute.

Let there be unity between your thoughts, words, and deeds. That is "Trikarana suddhi"

(three instruments of purity). What you think, you should speak; what you speak, you must put into practice. That is real humanness. Unity does not mean gathering of all people at one place. What is needed is perfect harmony between thoughts, words and deeds. That is real Educare. The Educare is very much immanent in you.

You need not refer to any textbooks to find Educare. Our heart itself is a text book.

Follow its teachings. Then you will become good students and good people. The good people are God's own people. Don't consider yourself as just students. You are not merely students. Only your body is a student. In your heart, you are verily divine.

Anil Gokak is leaving today. He will come back. Wherever he and his family reside, they belong to Me. I belong to them too. This is our relationship. I wish that all of you should conduct yourself as good students and welcome the incoming Vice Chancellor

Viswanath Pandit with love and respect. Be happy.

Develop Self-Confidence to Achieve God-Realisation by

Bhagavan Sri Sathya Sai Baba

This land of Bharath gave birth to great people who earned name and fame in different continents;

This land of Bharath is the battlefield from where the foreign rulers were driven out and freedom won;

This land of Bharath had earned great reputation for erudite scholarship;

This land of Bharath is a divine land, which produced great intellectuals in the fields of art, music, literature, and sciences;

Having been born in such a great land, oh boys and girls, the responsibility to uphold the glory of this country is yours.

(Telugu Poem)

This Bharath is no ordinary country. It is so pleasing to God that He incarnated several times in this great land. The people of this country developed great love and devotion to God (Bhagavadrathi). This land gave birth to great warriors, scholars, and intellectuals. But such a great country is in a sad plight. However, we need not be disheartened.

No doubt, the world science has progressed by leaps and bounds in the modern age, but it has failed to realise Divinity. Devoid of self-confidence, any amount of education, scientific knowledge, and experiments are absolutely of no use. They are not only useless but a waste of time too. This is not the way to God-realisation. God-realisation is possible only through control of senses and mind and by developing faith in God.

Self-confidence is the key to God-realisation. Hence, dear students! Develop self-confidence. Then you can achieve anything in life.

People now are crazy about science, but it is only illusory. Science teaches about transitory, impermanent, and unreal things only. It fails to teach true

Atma Tathwa

(Atmic Principle). Scientists are still engaged in unraveling the mysteries of the universe without concentrating on the realisation of the Atma Tathwa. These experiments are an exercise in futility. Science may explore a few mysteries in the physical world and contribute to a better living in the secular world. It may make some inventions that would help amass great wealth, but it would miserably fail in developing noble qualities.

What is the use of acquiring wealth, ignoring morality? Money comes and goes, but morality comes and grows. Morality is possible only through spirituality.
There was a galaxy of scientists who made great inventions, but they failed to control their body and mind. Why should people pursue such scientific knowledge that would spoil their brains? Instead, one should develop one's brain, cultivate a positive outlook, and engage oneself in service to the country and society. The education you pursue must contribute to the welfare of the society. Then only can you earn name and fame and
develop morality and integrity.
Develop morality. It is only then that you can realise Truth. Strive to uphold truth.
Truth is the father and mother to the world. When truth and righteousness join together, peace is born. From peace, comes love. Where there is love, there is no scope for hatred. There will be no place at all for evil qualities like anger and jealousy.
It is only because people lost the noble quality of love that even brothers and sisters hate one another these days. Hence, first and foremost, develop love.
There is nothing in this world that you cannot achieve by love. Love is God, live in love.
Love is your life. Even an ant cannot live without love. It makes friendship with other ants while moving about. The insects too love one another.
Only the human being has lost this noble quality of love today. No doubt, a person has love inherently but is showering it on wealth and on certain individuals only. There is no use in developing such individualised love. One has to develop love for society as a whole. It is only when there is society that an individual can exist.
One can live as a member of society. By living in society, one can contribute to its welfare. No other method would work.
Emperor Bali was a great renunciant. He earned great name and fame for his noble quality of charity. He used to readily give away whatever was asked by others. The people of Kerala are most fortunate to have had Bali as their emperor.

Once, Bali was performing a yajna. Several scholars attended that yajna. The Vamanavatar too came to see that yajna. While He was approaching the yajna vedika, people started wondering, "This boy is too young! What has He got to do with the yajna? This is an occasion in which great Vedic scholars are expected to participate.
How dare this young lad venture into this yajna!"
But the daughter of Emperor Bali did not take Him so lightly. She was attracted and charmed by His captivating beauty and scholarly look. Emperor Bali received the great Vamana and enquired, "Swami! What brought you here? What can I do for you?"
Vamana replied that he did not need anything like money or grains and that he would be content to have just three footstep length of land.
Bali was surprised at Vamana's request, since even to bury a dead body six feet length of land is required. He therefore requested Vamana to ask for something more.
But Vamana replied, "If you give Me three step lengths of land, that would be enough."
Emperor Bali immediately promised to give Him three feet land as requested. In fact, Vamana's request has to be understood from the spiritual angle. It may appear to be a trivial request from the worldly point of view. Vamana then occupied the entire Earth with one foot. Similarly, He occupied the entire sky with the second foot. Now, there is no space available to set the third footstep. He asked Emperor Bali where He could set
His third step, so that He may leave the place immediately.
Emperor Bali was nonplussed at the developments and offered his head saying, "Swami! I have now only my head. Kindly set your foot on my head." So saying, he removed the crown
and offered his head.
Lord Vamana then set His foot on Emperor Bali's head and pushed him down to the nether world. Vamana did so only with a view to crush the ego of Emperor Bali. In fact, Emperor Bali was a man of righteousness and great charitable disposition. He was proud of these qualities and developed ego. Vamana therefore decided to crush his ego.

Emperor Bali's subjects were greatly distressed that they had lost a great emperor.

However, Emperor Bali promised to visit their land once in a year.

This festival of Onam

is held every year to commemorate that great day.

On this day, the people of Kerala take a good head bath, cook a variety of tasty dishes, and feast on them. Notable among the dishes is the banana pudding.

Before partaking of this pudding, they light a sacred lamp in their shrines and offer it to God with prayers. The people of Kerala firmly believe that Emperor Bali would visit them on Onam day and give his darshan. Therefore, they offer their prayers with a pure and sacred heart. This tradition is being continued in Kerala till this day. In fact, they eagerly wait for this great festival.

When the king loves his subjects so intensely, so too his subjects. It is said, Yatha

Raja Thatha Praja (as is the king, so are the subjects). The people of Kerala loved Emperor Bali, and he too loved them intensely. The festival of Onam reflects the bond of intimate love between Emperor Bali and his subjects.

What does the name Bali signify? It signifies the great quality of total sacrifice. When

Vamana asked for three feet land, Bali kept his promise and offered himself in the end, in total surrender to the Lord. That is why he has become immortal.

It is said, Na Karmana Na Prajaya Dhanena Thyagenaike

Amrutatthwamanasu (immortality is not attained through action, progeny, or wealth; it is attained only by sacrifice).

What do the three feet indicate? Surrender at the Lotus Feet of the Lord physically, mentally, and spiritually. Emperor Bali, in total surrender to the Lord, offered his head to Vamana so that He may set His foot on it. Once Vamana set His foot over Bali's head, he was sanctified and liberated. In order that people may remember this great sacrifice and surrender, Emperor Bali would visit their land once in a year on this day.

The people too have not forgotten their emperor till this day.

Kerala is a land of plenty. There is no dearth of food grains. There is no dearth of water. In fact, the monsoon rains begin in Kerala. Kerala is a sacred land. It is a land of righteousness and sacrifice. The noble quality of charity had its origin in Kerala.

People outside are also full of praise for Kerala. Prayers to God began in Kerala.

Kerala gave birth to several great scholars. It is only because the land is so sacred that Lord Vamana incarnated in that place.

Vamana was three feet tall, and He asked for three feet land from Emperor Bali. He covered the entire Earth and sky with His two feet. Such was the magnificence of His power.

God is described as Anoraneeyan Mahato Maheeyan (Brahman is subtler than the subtlest and vaster than the vastest). The Vamanavatar had come only for granting liberation to Emperor Bali. Among the Avatars of Vishnu, the Vamanavatar is the first in human form.

While the Vamanavatar dressed in the traditional attire of a dhoti was entering the Yajnasala (ritual place), the gaze of all the people there was fixed on Him. Everyone was captivated by the beauty and grace of the resplendent young boy.

He took Emperor Bali along with Him to His divine Abode. This is the great merit earned by Emperor Bali. The Onam festival is the day on which the Vamanavatar granted liberation to Emperor Bali.

The people of Kerala celebrate Onam on a grand scale, with single-minded devotion. All of them unite to celebrate this festival irrespective of caste, creed, and religion. It is their good fortune to come over here in large numbers and celebrate Onam festival in the divine presence of Swami.

The devotees of Kerala whenever they come here pray, "Swami! Please visit Kerala."

I tell them, "I will come; I will come." I never said no to them. Not only to them, I say yes to all those who invite Me. Surely, I will visit them one day and show them the glory and power of Divinity.

There are great scholars in Kerala. Kerala is no ordinary State. It is a land where God had incarnated as Vamanavatar.

The people of Kerala are most fortunate, for their hearts are filled with love and devotion to God. There is none among them who do not contemplate on God. They may not express their devotion outwardly, but in their heart of hearts they are greatly devoted.

People from outside refer to Kerala as a communist state. No, no; it is not communist

... but "come you next". There are very young children participating in the bal vikas programmes. How beautiful are their faces radiating bliss and devotion! Their love toward Swami is overflowing. They are full of love! Their hearts are pure and will become mature in due course.

Today, the bal vikas children of Kerala are going to stage a playlet on Savitri. Who is Savitri? People generally remember her as the wife of Sathyavantha. She was a chaste woman who took a firm resolve to bring her dead husband back to life. She relentlessly pursued her resolve with Lord Yama. Lord Yama offered to grant any request put forward by her, but she refused. Her firm reply was, "I do not want anything. Give me my husband back with life." Unable to withstand her pressure, Lord Yama acceded to her request and brought her husband back to life. For six days, Sathyavantha's dead body was lying. At last, he came back to life as a result of the boon granted by Lord Yama to Savitri. Thus, Savitri proved herself to be a great woman of chastity who brought her dead husband back to life with her noble qualities.

Thus, women possess great power of persuasion. Their power can work wonders, even bring the dead back to life. Can you find parallels to Savitri in any other country? It is only in Bharath that such wonders take place, since it is a land of chaste women.

This land of Bharat has given birth to many noble women like Savitri, who brought her dead husband back to life; Chandramati, who extinguished wild fire with the power of truth; Sita, who proved her chastity by coming out of blazing fire unscathed; and Damayanti, who reduced an evil-minded hunter to ashes with the power of her chastity.

(Telugu Poem)

In the Ramayana also, when Sri Rama put Sita to the test of fire after vanquishing Ravana, the God of Fire returned Sita to Rama testifying to her character thus: "Sita is a noble woman of chastity. You should not trouble her like this."

Thus, the land of Bharath is the birthplace of several women of chastity. People of other countries referred to this country by several names. Even now, when Indians go abroad, they introduce themselves saying, "I am from Delhi; I am from Kolkata; I am from Bengaluru," etc., instead of replying, "I am from Bharath." These are actually cities and regions that form part of India. Hence, it would be appropriate to say that you are from India. Wherever you go, you must be proud to refer to yourself as Bharatheeyas.

The name "Bharatha" has great significance. "Bha" refers to Divinity and "ratha" refers to one who loves God. Thus, Bharatheeyas are people who love God. The country of Bharath has acquired its name on account of such people inhabiting it.

The present generation do not realise the significance of Bharath. They very casually mention that they belong to Puttaparthi in the Anantapur District of Andhra Pradesh State in India. Where is Puttaparthi? Where is Anantapur? All these are parts in the country of Bharath only. The Bharatheeyas are most fortunate people. It is the people of Kerala who imbibed the true spirit of Bharath. They are blessed. Today, they are putting up the play of Savitri. We have to learn a lot from this play.

You have seen how the devotees of Kerala staged beautiful dramas during the last two days. Yesterday, they enacted the "Sita Rama Kalyana" (the celestial wedding of Sri Rama and Sita) in all its glory and splendour. The day before they put up a beautiful show of Krishna leelas. The music, action, and dialogues are wonderful. Their dresses are also good. The lady devotees of Sri Sathya Sai Organisation in Kerala did great service in putting up this show. It is only because of their hard work and enthusiasm that these playlets appeared so natural and captivating.

Whatever they do, the men and women of Sri Sathya Sai Organisation of Kerala conduct on a grand scale. I wish and bless that the devotees of Kerala must keep up this spirit in all their service activities in future also. I am happy that you all realised the importance and significance of the festival of Onam. Now you go ahead with your programme of staging the playlet of Savitri.

Dasara, 9 October 2008
Date: 9 Oct 2008 Occasion: Dasara Place: Prasanthi Nilayam
All Are One -- Be Alike to Everyone
by Bhagavan Sri Sathya Sai Baba
This karma is responsible for the birth, existence, and death of people.
It holds sway over all stages of their lives as the very deity of human existence.

It is responsible for joy and sorrow.
(Telugu Poem)
People experience pleasure and pain, sorrow and difficulties in this world. But when they experience pleasure, they say it is due to their prapti (deservedness). On the other hand, when they undergo difficulties, they attribute it to their destiny. Really speaking, both pleasure and pain are the result of one's own actions (karma). Yad bhavam tad bhavathi (as are the feelings, so is the result). As are the karmas (actions), so will be the result. As is the food, so will be the belch. Similarly, the entire world is based on karma. Hence, the karmas performed by people shall be sacred.

It is now Dasara festival time. What is Dasara? The celebration of Dasara is meant to purify the actions performed by the dasendriyas (5 senses of action plus 5 senses of perception). Every human being in this world has to perform some kind of karma.

The presiding deity or the driving force behind these actions is Devi, who is the personification of energy. She is the bestower of all kinds of energy for humans to perform various kinds of karma. As a result, Lakshmi bestows various kinds of wealth like money, food grains, gold, different kinds of objects, and vehicles for movement on humans so that they lead a happy life in this world. The third aspect of the female divine principle is Saraswathi, the goddess of education and intellect. Thus, the Trinity of Durga (goddess of energy), Lakshmi (goddess of all kinds of wealth), and Saraswathi (goddess of education and intellect) are worshipped during this festival of Dasara. This is the underlying meaning of worshipping this Trinity of Durga, Lakshmi, and Saraswathi during this Navarathri (9 day) festival. It is essential that man worship all these three facets of the Divine Principle.

Tridalam Trigunakaram
Trinetram Cha Triyayudham;
Trijanma Papa Samharam
Eka Bilvam Sivarpanam.
One Bilva leaf with three petals is offered to three-eyed Lord Siva. Who is the embodiment of the three gunas (attributes), Who holds the trident in his hand, and Who destroys the sins accumulated over three births.

Everyone performs Devi puja (worshipping goddess Devi) during the Navarathri festival, which confers energy on the individual. The worship of Lakshmi brings all kinds of wealth and that of Saraswathi, education and good intellect. Hence, the worship of all three aspects of goddess is very important during the Navarathri festival.

In all this worship, dharma (righteousness) is of utmost importance. One should enquire into oneself what result would accrue on account of a particular action and then get into action. This reasoning faculty is in the domain of the intellect (buddhi), which is all-pervading in the human body. Just as the electric current passes through the wire, intellect enters and influences all senses of a human being. Hence, every human being should make proper use of their intellect and undertake only righteous actions at all times.

No doubt, one is bound by the result of one's own actions -- good or bad. And, no result is possible without performing an action. The Pandavas experienced the result of their karmas. So did Sita in the Ramayana. Hence, we should undertake good and sacred karmas beneficial to society, thereby sanctifying our lives.

The left side of the chest of Lord Mahavishnu is the abode of Goddess Lakshmi. Seated in that sacred abode, she showers her grace on one and all. Lord Vishnu is also known as Narayana. Lord Narayana in this context does not refer to Lakshminarayana, but to Sathyanarayana. This Sathyanarayana moves among people, cuts jokes, talks to them, and makes them happy.

Lakshminarayana reclined on Adisesha, the serpent. This Sathyanarayana was also rocked under the bed by a serpent when he was a just-born baby. Sathyanarayana looks like any other ordinary human being, but He possesses extraordinary and superhuman powers. They are indescribable. He looks very innocent. Yet, Sathya (Truth) is the most important quality He looks for in the people. Wherever He goes, He teaches only Truth (Sathya); for, from Truth emerges righteousness (dharma). Sathyannasti paro dharma (There is no dharma greater than adherence to Truth). In fact, Sathyanarayana is the Embodiment of Truth and Righteousness ((Sathya); and Dharma)! It is for propagating these two human values that Lord Sathyanarayana incarnated in human form as Sathyanarayana Raju.

Sathyanarayana is a unique Avatar, though He appears to be an ordinary human being.

People often commit the mistake of thinking Him to be an ordinary human, since He very closely interacts with them at the human level. Whatever He speaks, it is Truth, Truth and nothing but the Truth! Truth is often times construed as giving expression to one's own thoughts. It is not as simple as that; it is much more: putting them into action.

Truth is perfect accord between one's thoughts, words, and deeds.

People do not observe My words properly. They take My words lightly, thinking it to be just a joke or fun. Whatever I speak, even if it is a joke or for fun, it is Truth,

Truth, and Truth only! Unfortunately, people do not recognise this truth; even those who move very closely with Swami. They, therefore, take it lightly. They just listen and forget about it.

But, surely the result of their apathy would be apparent sooner than later. Only those who are unable to visualise the future will be taking my words lightly. Though Swami is moving in front of them, giving them darshan, talking to them now and then and performing several gigantic tasks right in front of their eyes, people are unable to recognise His true nature and get convinced in His words. How strange it is!

It is 83 years since this body was born. I have not forgotten a single incident in this earthly sojourn. But people say Swami forgets things. No; there is no truth at all in this statement. Forgetfulness is not in My dictionary.

The principle of Sathya Sai is the principle of Soham Mantra,

Which never comes under the veil of forgetfulness

In the waking, dream, and deep sleep states.

(Telugu Song)

It is human nature to misunderstand Truth, which is beyond the three periods of time (past, present, and future) and three states of human life (jagriti, swapna, and sushupti). I am now revealing that truth. I have never tried to reveal this so far.

Since the time has come to reveal it, I am doing so.

People have to realise this: Truth does not make any kind of distinction. It has neither friends nor foes. It has no hatred or dislike against anyone. All are the children of Sathyam (Truth)!

Hence, all are equal to Me. I do not make any distinction between people. You may think that I am showing more attention on some people or favouring some.

You may also think that I am ignoring some people. No! This is not true! You all know and you must have also seen Me. I do not at all get angry against anybody, even though some talk ill of

Me. I will always be smiling. Even the apparent anger that I display sometimes is just to correct an individual.

The students vouchsafe for this attitude of Mine. They wonder how Swami is able to put up such a smiling countenance in the midst of great criticism and how Swami could put up such great patience! For Me, all are one! Even though individuals appear to be different in form and qualities, there is only one divine force working through them. That is Atma

Sakthi (The Power of Atma). There is only one Atmanarayana immanent in all human beings, may, all living beings. Every human being must try to realise this

Atma Thathwa (Atmic

Principle).

Many bulbs illuminate this hall. However, the electric current flowing in all the bulbs is only one. The bulbs may appear to be different, but the current is the same.

Similarly, even though the names and forms of the living beings in God's creation appear to be different, the Atmic consciousness permeating them is only one.

All these lights go off and darkness envelops if the main is switched off. Thus, God illumines the entire universe as the Atma Thathwa immanent in all the living beings and objects.

Even though God may appear to be involved in so many actions in this world, it is only for the pleasure of His devotees. He has no desires of His own! He has only one desire:

Samasta lokah sukhino bhavantu (May all the people of all the worlds be happy)!

Human beings, however, will be experiencing the results of their own actions. It is not possible for all to be happy always in this ephemeral world. One may experience happiness, while another may be suffering at the same time. This is the nature of the world. Even though the sorrows and difficulties, pleasure and pain bring different experiences to different people, the Atma Thathwa present in all the human beings is only one.

 Electric bulbs may be of different colours and sizes, but the electric current passing through them is the same. Only the wattage of the bulbs is different. Depending upon the wattage, some bulbs may be bright while others are dim. The brightness or dimness is due only to the wattage of the bulbs and has nothing to do with the current. Similarly, the sorrows and difficulties, pleasure and pain experienced by different individuals are only of their own making, and God has nothing to do with it.
 Lord Sathyanarayana is also called Vishnu. He is Lord Vishnu, verily! Lord Vishnu has incarnated as Sathyanarayana in this world. Hence, Sathyanarayana is verily Lord Vishnu.
 This was explained in the Vishnu Purana. You must understand His Thathwa (true nature) well.
 I have not given any discourse during the last ten days. Why? People attributed different reasons for this, according to their imagination. But one thing is true. I am sitting before the microphone today to reveal the truth. My love is supreme and pure. I love those who love Me. I love even those who develop hatred toward Me. I also extend My love to those who are demonic and who try to put Me to great inconvenience. There is no one in this world whom I do not love.
 Unfortunately, people do not realise this truth. People think, "Swami is not talking to us; perhaps Swami is angry with us." Let Me assure you that I have no anger at all! I have only one thing: "hunger", "hunger" for devotees! It is only due to this hunger that I am drawing devotees in large numbers to Me.
 Be assured that God is the Embodiment of Love. He has no hatred toward anybody. It is to teach this principle of love that the Navarathri celebrations have been started.
 Different people worship God and sing His glory in different ways. I have no interest in them. I have no differences at all! I wish that all should live as Embodiments of Love and like brothers and sisters. "People are more valuable than all the wealth of the world."
 All are God's children. God is their only father. Hence, we must love all. Others may not love us, but we must love all and serve all! People keep distance from us as long as they do not understand the power of love. Once they understand and experience love, they become one with us. I will be waiting for such a transformation in the hearts of people.

 Thousands of people have heard My discourses over a period of time. Thousands and laks of people witnessed My divine powers on various occasions. In spite of all that, people are unable to understand the true nature of My Divinity.
 People talk of so many things according to their perceptions and understanding. It is not their fault. Very few people can realise Truth and conduct themselves accordingly.
 Only those who realise the path of Truth will be able to follow it. When people develop anger or hatred against Truth, they keep themselves away from it. Regardless of their love or hatred, we should always love them.
 People keep distance among one another due to differences of opinion. In fact, you are not different from others. Today they may appear to be different, but tomorrow they may come close to you. All are brothers and sisters! Hence, all should live like brothers and sisters with love and unity. "All are one; be alike to everyone."
 This is My special Message on this holy occasion of Navarathri.
 You will be able to realise Truth sooner or later. When a tree bears fruit, not all the fruits in a bunch will be ripened at the same time. Similarly, when a plant bears flowers, not all the flowers blossom at the same time. Some are in the process of blossoming, some are fully blossomed, yet others will be in the bud stage only.
 Only the fully blossomed flower spreads its fragrance. Similarly, people will also be in different stages of evolution --- some are like the bud; some are at a blossoming stage; and some others are like the fully blossomed flower, spreading their fragrance. We have to wait patiently till the fragrance stage comes. This is My important message.
 Today is the Poornahuthi day of the Veda Purusha Sapthaha Jnana Yajnam. What is meant by Poornahuthi? It means total sacrifice. My life has always been one of sacrifice!
Poornamada Poornamidam,
Poornat Poornamudachyate,
Poornasya Poornamadaya, Poornamevavashishyate.
 That is full, this is full.
 When the full is taken out of the full,

What remains again is the full.

(Sanskrit verse)

Those who understand the Truth will be able to know. Students are still in the budding stage. It will take some time for them to understand the true spirit of Swami's words.

Hence, you keep patience till then.

One more thing I wish to mention in this context. I see several boys keeping cell phones in their pockets. They think that they are keeping cell phones for their convenience and easy communication. They do not realise the ill effects of these instruments. Cell phones are often misused for undesirable purposes, like establishing contacts between boys and girls. They develop bad thoughts and bad connections between them. In order that bad thoughts do not enter our mind, avoid such connections altogether.

It is said, Manah eva manushyanam karanam bandhamokshayo (mind is the cause of bondage and liberation of man).

It is common practice to give your telephone numbers to all and sundry. What happens thereafter? Bad contacts develop. All unnecessary calls are made to verify whether we respond to them or not. Thus, boys and girls develop unnecessary contacts and establish undesirable relationships between them. Hence, I would strongly advise you not to make use of cell phones. It may be convenient in the beginning, but gradually it will lead to bad ways.

I will be approaching 83 years of age shortly. I have not made use of a telephone till now. Several people want to make calls to Me expressing their sorrow and seeking solace.

Come what may; I do not use the phone.

Hence, I have a right to guide you and warn you. You must be very careful. You are still in the budding stage. You must conduct yourself carefully, keeping your age in mind. If you do not take proper care of yourself, even the world will look down upon you. You will be branded as a careless youngster. Respect and disrespect in the world will depend upon the way you conduct yourself.

You may be thinking that your conduct is alright, but it is for others to judge. Always conduct yourself in such a way that you do not give scope for any misunderstanding by others.

The elders may exercise discretion and try to understand you in proper spirit, but children of your age cannot do so. Once misunderstanding sets in, you will miss the finer things in life and become doomed. Hence, I wish that you all be very careful in your contacts and relations with others.

If possible, dump your cell phones in a well. You will be happy and peaceful. Better you don't acquire them at all! Even if you acquire one, establish contact and connection with only those with whom it is desirable. Do not develop unnecessary and undesirable contacts with others. By developing such contacts, you gather news from all and sundry and pass it on to others. Ultimately, you will end up as Narada, poking your nose in all sorts of things. You will not only spoil your mind with unwanted things but spoil the minds of others too!

Why all this unpleasantness? Is it not because of your unwanted and undesirable telephonic contacts? Hence, be careful and earn a good name for yourself, your parents, and the institution in which you are studying.

Bhagavan concluded His discourse with the bhajan, "Hari Bhajan Bina Sukha Santhi Nahi".

Love is God, Live in Love

by

Bhagavan Sri Sathya Sai Baba

This land of Bharat is the motherland for great people, who acquired name and fame in different continents.

The land of Bharat is the battlefield wherefrom the warriors of foreign countries were driven out and freedom from foreign rule was acquired.

This land of Bharat has acquired great name and fame for erudite scholarship.

This land of Bharat is a divine land, which has produced great intellectuals in the fields of music, art,

literature, and various sciences

Having been born in such a great land, oh Boys and Girls, the responsibility to protect and uphold

the righteousness of this country is yours.

(Telugu Poem)

The fame and fortune of Bharat is truly great. While several countries of the world have faced calamities of various kinds, Bharat has remained stable. It is a country richly endowed with a variety of wealth. Forbearance is the real beauty in this sacred land of Bharat. Of all the rituals, adherence to truth is the greatest penance. The nectarine feeling in this country is the feeling of love toward one's mother. Character is valued far higher than very life itself. People have forgotten the basic principles of this great culture and are imitating Western culture. Alas! Bharatiyas are not aware of the greatness of their cultural heritage, just as a mighty elephant is not aware of its own strength. (Telugu poem) Throughout history Bharat has been preeminent in material and intellectual plenty. It was ruled by great kings and righteous rulers. Several women famed for their chastity were born in this country. Savitri could bring back her dead husband, Sathyavantha, to life by the power of her chastity. Can you find parallels to such noble and chaste women elsewhere in the world? This land of Bharat has given birth to many noble women like Savitri, who brought her dead husband back to life; Chandramati, who extinguished wild fire with the power of truth; Sita, who proved her chastity by coming out of the blazing fire unscathed; and Damayanti, who reduced an evil-minded hunter to ashes with the power of her chastity. This land of piety and nobility attained plenty and prosperity and became the teacher of all the nations of the world because of such women of chastity. (Telugu poem) Sadly, however, today, many persons born in this great land of Bharat are succumbing to and are tempted by trivial things. Their perception is bad, they listen to bad things, and even their behaviour is bad. What a great fall! The Bharatiyas today are like the elephant, who is unaware of its own strength. With a swish of its tail, an elephant can knock a man off his feet and throw him yards away. Such a powerful elephant will humbly obey the commands of the mahout. It just acts according to the wishes of the mahout. Similarly, the Bharatiyas today are surrendering to the dictates of outsiders and becoming their slaves. The way of life of Bharatiyas is conditioned by truth and righteousness, in accordance with the Vedic injunctions Sathyam vada (speak truth) and Dharmam chara (follow righteousness). In fact, truth and righteousness are the very treasure of Bharatiyas. Unfortunately, today the Bharatiyas have forgotten these great values and therefore become slaves in their own country. Their lifestyle itself has undergone a change where truth and righteousness have no place. Truly speaking, there is none in this world who can conquer Bharat. The Bharatiyas are born with the great human values, namely, sathya (truth), dharma (righteousness), santhi (peace) and prema (love). Every individual has to enquire into their true nature, "who am I?" The reply that comes from within is, "I am a human being." Along with this reply, one has to assure oneself, "I am not an animal." That is your true nature. When you consider yourself to be a human being, you must display human qualities. What are they? First and foremost, sathyam (truth). From truth comes righteousness (dharma). It is said, Sathyaannasthi paro dharmah (There is no greater dharma than adhering to truth). Sathya and (dharma). together bring santhi (peace) and prema (love). Where there is love, there cannot be hatred and jealousy. Unfortunately, today people have lost the great quality of love. Even a dog loves its puppy. Even the birds love their offspring. But a human being does not love a fellow human being. Lack of unity among the people is the root cause for the present state of affairs in Bharat. There is no unity in the family, in society, and in the country. Where there is unity, there will be purity, where there is purity, there divinity shall be. What is required today is unity, purity, and divinity. Scientists today are inventing several things. A double-decker plane is being flown in the sky. However, along with the great advances made in science and technology, loss of the quality of human life is also on a large scale. This was not the case in earlier times. Several people used to live together under one roof, with peace and happiness. There was no fear complex at all! But, today, the fear complex is all pervading. Wherefrom did this fear come? It is due to lack of self-confidence.

People have no faith in their inner Self. It is said, Naayamatma balaheenena labhyah (Atmic consciousness is not for the weak minded). People have developed faith in everything in this world, but not in their own Self. Where there is self-confidence, there will be self-satisfaction;
where there is self-satisfaction, there will be self-sacrifice; where there is
self-sacrifice, there will be self-realisation.
It is common knowledge that where the foundation is strong, the walls will be safe;
where the walls are safe, the roof will be secure. It is only in such a house can one live safely. Today, the foundation itself is not strong. How then can the walls remain safe? Self-confidence is the foundation for a human being, self-satisfaction represents the walls, self-sacrifice is the roof and self-realisation is life. Hence, there should be perfection among these four.
Due to an indiscriminate use of technology, the air, water, food, and everything is polluted and poisoned all over the world. Fortunately, the country of Bharat is spared from this widespread pollution. We should not run after science and technology. Science without humanness is fraught with great danger to the very existence of humanity. There is no greater power than human power.
Some people question, "Where is God?" The answer is very simple.
Everyone themselves is God, you are God, verily. The Vedas declare, Chandrama manaso jaathah; chaksho surya ajaayatha (the moon was born out of the mind and the sun out of the eyes of the Supreme Being). The real strength comes from our own inner self. This strength is unparalleled.
In spite of his education and intelligence, a foolish man will not know his true Self and a mean-minded person will not give up their evil qualities.
(Telugu poem)
Modern education leads only to argumentation, not to total wisdom.
What is the use of acquiring education that cannot lead you to immortality?
Acquire the knowledge that will make you immortal.
(Telugu poem)
Today's education does not provide real knowledge that matures to wisdom. It just helps one to earn a livelihood. It promotes acquisition and misuse of wealth. With the money people acquire through various means, people send young boys to foreign countries for higher education. They spend lakhs of rupees for that purpose. By the time they return to their homeland, the children are spoiled totally.

Here is a small incident that had happened sometime ago. The Indian parents took their son to a temple before his departure to a foreign country for his studies and advised him, "Dear son, this deity is the mother to one and all. She is the Mother of the Universe. Never forget the Mother. Constantly contemplate on Her, wherever you are."
They, in fact, extracted a promise from him to that effect. The boy then left for U.S.A.
Once he set his foot in America, he totally forgot about the Mother, fully immersed in that new environment. After a lapse of three years, he returned to his native country, Bharat, fully accustomed to the American way of life. The parents took that boy to the same temple straight from the Airport, for a darshan of the Divine Mother. As soon as he entered the temple, the boy, instead of offering his namaskar to the deity, greeted Her
in English, "How are you Madam?"
The parents scolded the boy for his impertinence and not paying his obeisance to the Divine Mother. They regretted very much that their son, brought up in a traditional family, did not even care to offer his pranams to the Divine Mother, and all the lakhs of rupees spent on his foreign education had gone waste. They finally decided to advise all those parents who wished to send their children abroad for higher education, against
it.
It is indisputably true that higher studies abroad are resulting in people acquiring bad thoughts, habits, and behaviour. One need not be crazy about foreign education. The wealth of education and culture available in this country is not to be found in other countries. We must be proud of our birth in this great land of Bharat.
It is a great privilege to be referred to as Bharatiyas. We must, therefore, develop self-confidence.
We must develop interest in leading a moral, virtuous, and spiritual life.
Unfortunately, today there is no morality in people. How then can you lead a happy and peaceful life? The great spiritual wealth available in this country of Bharat is not to be found in any other country.

 People from several countries invite Me to visit their places, offering Me even special aircraft. But I am consistently turning down their requests. I am always happy here in India. I don't need these planes and such other comforts. I want only devotion.
 I did not come across anyone who hates Me. Till now, I have no enemies at all. All people love Me, since I love one and all. However, people do not understand My love properly. Because of My universal love, even people from far-off lands come to Me.
 Why then should I go abroad? Some people misunderstand and misinterpret My love. Some even develop aversion toward Me on the ground that I did not oblige them by granting their requests on some occasions. In fact, will they progress in the spiritual path if I grant all their requests? No, not at all. On the other hand, they get spoiled.
 That is why I wish to keep the boys and girls in proper limits right from their childhood. You can observe that no one in our educational institutions ever hates Me in the least. All students gather round Me lovingly calling, "Swami! Swami!" When I come out after paying a visit to their campuses, they take leave of Me with tears in their eyes.
 Do you find the same situation prevalent in educational institutions elsewhere? Do the colleges and universities outside function as temples of learning? Even parents visiting their wards in those educational institutions are not treated with due respect.
 Parents are sacred. The Bharatiya culture exhorts people, Mathrudevobhava; Pithrudevobhava (Father is God; mother is God)! Every human being is an embodiment of God. In fact, the entire creation is God.
 Unable to realise this great Truth, we say, "this person is my enemy, he ill-treated me," and develop hatred against that person. As you think, so it will be, (yad bhavam thad bhavathi) love begets love and hatred begets hatred. It is common to help those who help you. But it is only Sai who is gracious enough to help those that try to cause harm to Him, ignoring their own faults.
 You must love even those who harm you. That is real humanness. You must develop such a human quality. Whomever you come across, treat him as an embodiment of Divinity. It is said, Daivam manusha rupena (God is in human form). You may observe the picture of any form of God, there God is portrayed in the human form. Rama, Krishna, or any other deity -- all are in human forms only. You may relate to God in different forms and names; but all are embodiments of Divine Self.

 The Atma Tathwa is the same in all human beings, irrespective of names and forms. It is said, Ekatma sarva bhuthantharatma (One Atma resides as the Indweller in all living beings). One has to cultivate such noble feelings right from the childhood. You may think it is a difficult task. No; there is nothing easier than this feeling of equality.
 Suppose a person whom you consider as an enemy is approaching you; you offer your pranams to him and enquire, "Hello, how are you, brother?" Immediately the other man will respond saying, "How are you brother?" He will not get angry. Why? Since you called him brother, he will also treat you in the same way. It is in your language that either love and faith or enmity and distrust in the other person is displayed. You must rise to a level where you will be able to visualise the same Atma Tathwa in all. Then you will truly become Divyatma Swarupa (embodiment of the Divine Self). You must consider, "I am a Divyatma Swarupa. All these different forms of human beings are only my reflections. I am able to see myself in these bodies, which are like mirrors."
 Only when you are able to reach that stage will you enjoy real peace. You will not experience peace by merely doing japa (constant repetition of the Lord's name), thapa (penance), yoga, or sacrificial rites like yajna and yaga.
 People crave for peace and undertake several spiritual practices for the purpose. But they don't find peace anywhere. Wherever you look, there are only pieces in the outside world. But, once they direct their vision inward, they will be able to find peace there.
 The peace within is manifesting outside. Only such a person with inner vision can be called a human being in the real sense.
 Animals, however, have no such inner vision and discriminatory intellect. They therefore display cruelty.
 You are not an animal. You are a human being. Hence, lead a life befitting that of a human being. You say that you are a human being, but you live the life of a cruel animal. How then can you be called a human being?

Live like a real human being. Get rid of animal qualities like kama (desire), krodha

(anger), lobha (greed), moha (delusion), mada (pride), and matsarya (hatred and envy).

Do not hate anybody.

I have no anger against anyone till date. That is why all people love Me. I have only one quality: love toward all. Hence, even if I go to a forest, people will follow Me to that place. It is only My love that draws all people to Me. Yet, some people develop antipathy toward Me. It is not My fault, but their own imagination.

People wonder how Swami is so divinely peaceful and is able to interact with so many people day in and day out. In fact, peace is natural to Me. I always smile and put up a serene countenance. I can never put up a castor oil face. I am always happy and smiling.

I exhort you also to be so. When you all are happy, I am happy. Your happiness is My happiness.

What could be the reason for millions of people loving Me? What brought you here in such large numbers? Did I send any invitation to you all? It is only your love that brought you here. Can invitations draw crowds? Even when there is no invitation, people rush toward Me if they come to know that I am passing through a particular place. What could be the reason for this? Only love. Love is God; live in love. That is what you have to learn and cultivate. Love is the foremost quality that you should cultivate. Take a pledge accordingly on this sacred day.

Very soon, the entire world will be united. In fact, after 28 years, the world itself will become "Bharat". Everyone will call themselves a Bharatiya (one imbued with godliness -- Bhagavat rathas). No one will refer to themselves as belonging to this state or that state, this region or that region. You may go to any country, but you refer to yourself as belonging to the country of Bharat. For example, there may be Karnataka State or Tamil Nadu State, etc., but, they are all parts of a larger country called Bharat.

Without the country, the States cannot exist. You are all Bharatiyas first and last.

Hence, you say that you came from Bharat.

The different states might have been developed certain linguistic or geographical considerations. But they are all parts of one country that is Bharat.

We all belong to only one party: the party of love. Love, love, and only love. Keeping love as your guiding force, go to any country, and people will respect you, consider you as their own brothers and sisters, and extend all necessary help to you.

Love is selflessness. A human being should never have selfishness.

However, people of their own accord develop evil qualities like selfishness, hatred, and anger. These traits are cultivated by human beings themselves; they are not God-given. God has bestowed only one noble quality on all human beings: love. Love is eternal.

Physical strength, courage or valour can never be a match to the power of love. When

Sita was kept in confinement in Lanka under the guard of rakshasas, it was her love for

Rama that gave her courage and confidence to boldly face all difficult situations. She constantly contemplated on the divine name of Rama during the period. Finally, Rama's love saved her. During that ten month period, none could touch her. If only you cultivate such divine love, it will confer everything on you. You all should become the

embodiments of love.

Pray Samastalokah Sukhino bhavantu constantly, that is the only prayer you all have to do. Then, all people in all countries will be happy and peaceful.

I love you all. I have no enemies. No one hates Me. Sometimes I do speak harshly in a raised voice, but that is only outwardly. I do not bear ill will toward anyone. Hence, if you follow the ideal set by Swami and love all, your life will be sanctified. Your parents, brothers, sisters, relatives, and friends will feel happy.

Lead a Happy Life with a

Feeling of Camaraderie and Fraternity

by

Bhagavan Sri Sathya Sai Baba

All names and forms are but manifestations of the Supreme Being, Who is Existence-Knowledge-Bliss Absolute and nondual.

He is the embodiment of Sathyam, Sivam, Sundaram (Truth, Goodness, Beauty).

(Sanskrit verse)

Embodiments of Love!

The country of Bharat is most sacred. In this sacred land of Bharat, tolerance is the noble quality that we should cultivate. Just as an elephant is unable to realise its innate strength, so are Bharatiyas today. The elephant meekly submits itself to the commands of a mahout who is ignorant and illiterate. In spite of its great strength, it cannot demonstrate its strength. Similarly, Bharatiyas today are unable to demonstrate their strength in spite of possessing rich culture, righteousness, and justice on their side.

The Vedas declare, Na karmana na prajaya dhanena thyagenaike amrutatthwamanasuh (immortality is not attained through action, progeny, or wealth but only by sacrifice).

The greatest drawback in this country is lack of unity among people. We have everything in this country. We have noble qualities. We are righteous. But there is no unity among people, with the result that all other positive factors become ineffectual. Hence, we have to cultivate unity among people.

We all belong to one species: human beings. Being humans, we are, unfortunately, exhibiting inhuman and animal qualities. Hence, first and foremost we have to recognise our innate human nature today.

We have to treat others' suffering as our own. We have to treat others' difficulties as our own. We have to be amicable with one and all. We must develop faith in the maxim Ekatmaswarupas (embodiments of one, divine self). We must develop a sense of discrimination between good and bad and take good only, leaving the bad in all human beings. The same principle has to be followed in society also. We have to do good even to those who harm us:

There is nothing great in helping those who have helped you.

He is a noble one who helps even those who have harmed him.

(Telugu poem)

We must always entertain good thoughts about people. "See good, do good and be good -- that is the way to God." Yad bhavam tad bhavathi (as the feeling, so is the result). If our thoughts are good, we will always engage ourselves in satkarmas (good deeds). If you eat a mango, can you get the belch of a cucumber? No. Similarly, if you entertain good thoughts always, you will see only good everywhere. When you indulge in bad thoughts, you will see only bad everywhere.

There is a Sathya Sai college in Muddenahalli, near Bangalore. Several boys coming from poor families in the villages around it are studying in this college. A number of philanthropists extended help to the college in different ways. Some built classrooms, others a bhajan hall, etc. However, this institution is not affiliated with any University. Once the boys finish their education here, they have to go to places like

Bangalore to pursue a degree course.

When I thought of their plight, I got a good idea. Here in Puttaparthi, our college and University are housed in spacious and beautiful buildings. Suppose we establish a campus in Muddenahalli, the boys there will also be happy. Is it not? Hence, I have decided to establish a college campus of Sri Sathya Sai University in Muddenahalli too.

My Divine Will is irrevocable and immutable. Now that I have decided, I will initiate the process from tomorrow. Since the boys studying in Muddenahalli college come from rural background and are very poor, they are unable to go for higher education in cities and towns. They therefore discontinue their studies and take to farming activity. Of course, that is also necessary. Secular education helps to make a comfortable living.

Hence, education is of top priority. Once they finish their education, they can get into any occupation including agriculture.

I have therefore decided to provide University education to the boys in Muddenahalli. I am of the view that, side by side with the academic subjects, there must be provision for teaching epics and sacred texts like the Ramayana, the Bhagavata, and the Bhagavad

Gita. The boys must be given good training and allowed to spread the message of these epics in the villages around. All secular education is useless without a spiritual base.

There are millions of educated people in the world, but what is their contribution to society? Nothing. They don't even care for society. They are crazy about the luxurious life in towns and cities. They indulge in bad practices like gambling and club life. The children too are taking to bad ways, observing their parents.

Hence, it is My view that the children should be taught to tread the right path. The elders will follow them later on observing them. Keeping this in My mind, I have decided to establish a University campus in Muddenahalli. Perhaps it will cost about two to three crores of rupees. I do not mind this expenditure. It is My resolve that this is needed.
The boys in Prasanthi Nilayam are excellent. They are pure gold. It is possible that one or two may stray from the right path, but, very soon, they adjust themselves to the academic environment and follow the mainstream. Yesterday, the boys staged a play. It conveys a great message. The theme of the play was two brothers quarrelling for their share of property in a small village. They are counseled saying, "Dear brothers, if you quarrel with each other like this, how can our village prosper? You must be united and must lead an amicable life," and, finally, they are corrected. The boys should therefore be encouraged to take up such village development programmes.
Students, no doubt, are good today, but elders spoil them by their bad behaviour. It is the elders who divert them to bad ways. However, the students quickly realise their mistakes and retrace their steps. I know of boys who advise their parents addicted to alcohol to desist from such bad ways saying, "Dear father, do not indulge in these bad habits. By doing so, you will only be encouraging us also to take to drinking. This is not good."
If elders take to drinking, smoking and gambling, the children follow suit. They get spoiled. Hence, if the children must lead a virtuous life, the elders must lead an ideal life first.
I have therefore decided to establish a University campus in Muddenahalli to teach boys to lead an ideal life with clean habits. The boys there cannot afford to go to a city for University education. Nor can their parents afford the expenditure. Hence, I have decided to establish a University campus with all the equipment and facilities like classrooms for all the courses and a good hostel. It will be ready for opening within a year. It is My divine will.

A number of people like Anil Kumar, Ajit Popat, etc., have spoken a lot, extolling Me. I am not happy about such praise. I have no desire for people to extol Me. I am neither elated nor depressed by such acts. I am beyond praise or ridicule, respect or disrespect, anger or happiness. I have only one attribute throughout: My love. I love even those who hate Me. I love even those who indulge in bad propaganda against Me. I do not consider anyone as enemy.
All are Mine. I am looking after you all, like a mother. Mine is not one mother's love.
It is the love of a thousand mothers. Sai's love is a thousand mothers' love. It is only due to that love that I ignore all your faults and move forward. Whenever someone commits a mistake, I call him and correct him in a raised voice, but I don't show anger against him. I have no anger against anybody. In fact, I have no anger at all.
People who are unable to understand My true nature think otherwise. Whatever people may think and say, I have only one attribute, that is love. Mine is a right royal road, not shortcuts. People do not understand Me properly. Once they recognise My true nature, they themselves will repent. That repentance is expiation for their misunderstanding.
However, there is no change in my attitude toward them.
What I wish is Samastalokah Sukhino Bhavantu (May all the beings of all the worlds be happy!). All should be hale and healthy and lead happy and prosperous lives with mutual love and understanding. You must acquire wealth, but do not misuse it. Only then will I be happy. I will extend any help to such people.
I have not stretched My hand before anyone till date for any kind of help. If there is anyone in this vast concourse of devotees in this hall whom I had approached for money, they may rise and point out to Me. There is none, surely. Whatever I need in My Avataric Mission comes from within only.
"Money comes and goes, morality comes and grows." It is My endeavour that morality should be developed. All villages must be developed. For this purpose, education in rural areas is an important tool. Simultaneously, faith in God must also be developed.
People with self-confidence can achieve anything. Bhakta Ramadas wanted to build a magnificent temple for Rama in Bhadrachalam. Therefore, he utilised all the tax money collected from people for the purpose. As a result, he was imprisoned by Emperor Tanisha on charges of misuse of state money and was put to great torture. Unable to bear the physical torture, he prayed to his dear Lord Rama and even used harsh words thus:

That crest jewel which adorns You cost me ten thousand gold coins. Unmindful of my travails, You are flaunting the jewelry as if it is your ancestral property (Telugu song)

The very next moment, he realised his folly and repented and begged Rama for pardon.

Similarly, several people may think and talk in several ways about Swami. But, very soon, they will realise and repent for their indiscreet acts. Loko bhinna ruchihi (Different people have different opinions).

People indulge in loose talk out of their delusion, but I have no illusions. Whatever people may say, I talk to them and greet them with love. I don't punish them for their indiscreet talk or behaviour. They themselves must realise their fault and repent for it. If they denigrate Me now, they will themselves face trouble later. Hence, people must think twice before indulging in any loose talk. Unfortunately, none has been able to realise My true nature. They pretend to have understood My mind, but none could comprehend it in the least. They look to the outward manifestations only. They talk of My programmes and activities in the outside world only. They are unable to realise My divine love at all, which flows from the depths of My heart.

However, I am confident that people will realise it one day. I always wish and work for the welfare of the entire world.

All should live in peace. Even if we don't have any other property, we can lead a happy life only if the property of love is with us. And that love should be supported by self-confidence.

God is the only source and sustenance for the entire universe. Everything else is an illusion. Sorrows and difficulties, loss and gain, diseases and sickness treat them all as divine will. Then, everything will turn out to be good for you.

You say, "This is my body." But, who are you? You say "my body," but you are not "I am the body."

Similarly, you say "my mind," but you are not "I am the mind." Thus, "you" are different from your body, mind, etc.

When someone asks your name, do not say "I am Rama" or "I am Krishna." Say "I am I."

Whatever name you say, it is only the name given to you by your parents. It is not your real name. In fact, nothing belongs to you in this world. "I is your only property. That is the reason why we say "I", "I", "I" for everything.

You are God verily, if only you get rid of "I", the ego, and "Mine", the attachment.

Then, you are really yourself (your real SELF)! When you say "my house, my people," etc., attachment grows. This body attachment breeds ego. Hence, once you rise above "I" and "mine" and lead a contented life, you will derive great happiness.

May you all lead a happy, loving and long life! May you all be united! Let us all move together, let us all grow together, Let us all stay united and grow in intelligence together, Let us live together with friendship and harmony. (Telugu poem)

We cannot do any work with one finger. When all five fingers of the hand join together, we can do any work. Similarly, if people are divided, no work can be executed.

A small story. Once the five fingers of a hand argued among themselves as to which finger was great. The middle finger argued with ego, "I am taller than all of you. There are two 'body guards' on either side of me. Hence, I am great."

The index finger said, "You can do any work if only I show you to do that work. Otherwise, you cannot. Hence, only I am great."

The small finger intervened and said, "Though I am small in size, I stand in the front as the commander-in-chief to punish any individual or teach him a lesson. Therefore, I am great."

Thereupon, the ring finger laughed and said, "People wear diamond and gem-studded rings only on the ring finger. Hence, I am the monarch of all."

Finally, after hearing all these arguments, the thumb laughed aloud and wound up the discussion with that suggestion, "None of you can undertake any work without me. Therefore, let us all get together to work."

Let all the astikas, nastikas, astika-nastikas, and nastika-astikas come together. That is what we need today. What Bharat needs today is unity. We have everything -- love, truth, righteousness, and justice -- but not unity. It is only due to lack of unity that we are leading a life of diversity and divergent ideas. All should be united and should lead a happy life with a feeling of camaraderie and fraternity.

Unfortunately, today there is a feeling of difference even between a father and a son in the house. The wife and husband, the brothers and sisters, all quarrel among themselves.
How can there be peace and happiness in the family? There may be differences of opinion, but they should not last for long. They just come and go like the passing clouds. Why should people fight among themselves? Do not mind these differences.
I have not approached anyone for anything, though I am undertaking huge social service projects. I had undertaken a project for supplying drinking water to a crore of people living in Chennai. Every house has been provided with drinking water. Not only that, water has been arranged for irrigation purposes also. The people living in the upland areas of East and West Godavari districts in Andhra Pradesh were suffering for want of safe drinking water. I therefore arranged for execution of a drinking water supply project for the benefit of all those people. Along with the supply of drinking water, arrangements were also made to provide water purifying systems en route.
Thus, I always wish to do some good to every individual. Now, I propose to establish a University campus in Muddenahalli for the benefit of students studying in Sri Sathya Sai College there. I had watched with My own eyes the difficulties the students were undergoing there due to lack of facilities for higher education, and I was moved. I therefore assured them that I would provide the necessary facilities. Is there anyone here from Muddenahalli? (Swami invited Sri Narayana Rao to the stage and introduced him to the audience.) This man is the Principal of the Sri Sathya Sai Higher Secondary School, Muddenahalli. He is highly educated and is running the school well.
Whenever I visit Muddenahalli, he prays, "Swami when will You shower Your grace on us?"
(With the kind permission of Swami, Sri Narayana Rao spoke for a few minutes, offering his grateful thanks to Swami.)

Thereafter, Swami concluded His divine discourse saying, The joy that I gave you today, share it with all! Be happy!.

Bhagawan concluded His discourse with the song, "Rama Rama Rama Sita ...".

Contemplate on God, the Real Hero, for Victory

by

Bhagavan Sri Sathya Sai Baba

Bharat is the motherland of many noble souls who earned great name and fame in all the continents of the world.

This is the land of valorous people who vanquished the foreign rulers in the battlefield and attained independence.

This is the land that excelled in music, literature, and other fine arts. Having been born in this great land of Bharat, oh boys and girls, it is your sacred duty to protect its rich cultural heritage).

(Telugu poem)

Embodiments of Love!

What can one say about Jesus Christ that has not been said already!

Today is Christmas,

the holy day on which Jesus Christ was born some two thousand years ago. You all know about it.

All that we see, hear, and do are like dream scenes, which will disappear soon. They are, of course, true as long as you sleep. The moment you wake up or slide into deep sleep, they just disappear. Similarly, all that you see, hear, and do in the objective world are also like dream scenes. They are unreal and subject to constant change. The

Atma Tathwa (Atmic Principle) is the only entity that is permanent in all three periods of time, namely, past, present, and future as also the waking, dream, and deep sleep states. This Atma Tathwa is love. In fact, love is born out of Atma only. If only you cultivate love, the entire world will come under your control.

Do not hurt anyone. "Hurt never, love ever." You have to constantly remember love, which is the eternal truth. You are not one person, you are three: (1) the one you think you are, (2) the one others think you are, and (3) the one you really are.

That is your real nature. You say "this is my body, this is my mind, this is my intellect, this is my chitta (mind, memory)," etc. But who is this "my"? Unfortunately, no one today puts this question to themselves. When you say "my body," you are separate from your body. You say

"this is my house." But who are you? You have to find the answer to this question.

How long is this house, which you say is yours, going to last? It is sure to dilapidate sooner than later. All these worldly objects are subject to change and destruction.

There is only one entity that is changeless, that is Brahma Tathwa (Brahma Principle).

This is love. If only you get hold of it, everything else will come under your control.

Wherever you look today, there are only desires, desires, and more desires. You have to put a ceiling on these desires. Only then will your mind become steady. You say "I want this, I want that," etc. Thus, you develop many wants. But they are all like passing clouds. Why should you multiply your wants for these passing clouds? Ultimately, nothing accompanies you at the time of your leaving this mortal body.

Great kings and emperors ruled over this world. They conquered several countries and accumulated boundless wealth. Even Alexander the Great, who conquered several parts of the world, could not take with him even a miniscule part of the wealth he had accumulated. He had to leave this world with empty hands. In order to demonstrate this truth, he instructed his ministers to take his dead body in a procession through the streets of his capital, keeping both his hands in a raised position pointing toward the sky. When the ministers were curious to know the reason for this strange request, he replied, "I have conquered several countries and accumulated so much wealth. There is a vast army under my control. Yet, none is accompanying me at the time of my leaving this body. I am going with empty hands. This has to be demonstrated to all people."

Embodiments of Love!

People should, of course, have some comforts for this physical body and fulfil some desires that are necessary for their daily life. But, unfortunately, these desires are reaching to a point of insatiability. You may live for a few years or a full hundred years in this physical world. One day or other, the body has to be cast off. Hence, do not cultivate unlimited desires.

Some people have intense desire to have the vision of God. Where is God? You are all embodiments of Divinity. God is not separate. Men are more valuable than all the wealth in the world. In human form is God.

We see three kinds of beings in the world: tame animals, wild beasts, and human beings.

One has to analyse for oneself whether one belongs to the category of animals or beasts or human beings. If you think you are a human being, then you should cultivate human values, lead a human life, and develop human thoughts.

First and foremost, truth is a human value. Truth does not undergo any change in all the three periods of time --- past, present, and future. Truth is always Truth. You have to develop faith in that Truth. All others undergo change. You say, "I am peaceful today."

What about tomorrow? No peace! All pieces, pieces! Hence, this state of peace also undergoes change!

"Love is God; live in love." In fact, your entire life is nourished and nurtured by love. When truth and love go together, nonviolence is the result.

Where there is love, people will not quarrel among themselves, they don't get angry against someone. When you develop love, you consider all people as your brothers. Suppose you meet someone and say, "hello, brother," even your enemy will respond by saying, "hello brother."

Yad bhavam tad bhavati (as the feeling, so is the result). Hence, you have to develop noble feelings. Good and bad arise only from your thoughts. If something bad happens, it is not something that others have done to you. Nor has God a role to play in this. You are bad to yourself! Your thoughts have done harm to you!

Suppose you are happy --- even that is not caused by God. That too is on account of your own thoughts. Hence, you have to purify your own thoughts, first and foremost. When you develop pure thoughts, your life will be happy and peaceful. Where there is purity, there Divinity is. Unfortunately, today, Divinity is being divided and differentiated in the name of religion. Where unity, purity, and divinity go together, life will be happy.

God is not responsible for either your good thoughts or your bad thoughts. Only you are responsible for both. If you have bad thoughts, that is your own making. All are one's own making. The same is the case with good thoughts.

Look! How beautiful are these lights in this hall! Who made them?

Only human beings.

Hence, there can be no Divinity without humanness. Humanness must be sanctified. Human beings must cultivate human values. Only then can they attain Divinity.

The senses create a lot of unsteadiness in us. They lead us to bad ways in many ways.

However, when our mind is pure, they lead us on the noble path. Hence, keep your mind fresh and pure always. It should not be allowed to waver, which leads us to ups and downs.

It is said, Manomoolam idam jagath (the entire world is permeated by the mind). Do not think that God is separate from you. You are confused because you think you are separate from God. Not only are you confused, but your "use" is also blown, meaning you are engulfed in darkness. Your faith in God must always be steady and unwavering.

Today, the world is facing a lot of unrest. People are indulging in criminal activities.

What then is your role in the present situation? You need not do anything else. Just do namasmarana (contemplating and chanting the name of God) incessantly. Contemplate upon your inner Self. You need not use any kind of bombs and weapons. Remain calm and unperturbed at all times. Maintain the attitude that whatever happens is only for your own good. On the other hand, if you constantly brood that so and so did this and so and so did that, you will only develop hatred against others. Instead, constantly contemplate on God with a calm and steady mind. Never lose your courage and fortitude.

If you maintain courage and fortitude, the worldly worries cannot trouble you in the least and cause fear and anxiety in you.

The physical body is susceptible to birth and death. It is its nature.

The Atma is eternal, without birth or death.

It has no beginning, middle, or end.

It is omnipresent and the eternal witness.

(Telugu poem)

Today, we indulge in negative thoughts relating to the body. Never entertain negative thoughts. The physical body is like a water bubble. The mind is like a mad monkey. The body is bound to perish sooner or later. Hence, do not trust the physical body. Do not believe your mind.

Of course, you should take proper care of your body as long as you live, for the body enables you to lead your life. Later, it drops down of its own accord.

No one lives in this world permanently. There is only one entity in this world that is permanent: the

Atma.

People say, "my self, my self" and "I, I". This single letter "I" is the real Atma (Self). A person with two minds is said to be confused and ignorant.

"A man with dual mind is half blind." Hence, develop single-minded faith and devotion.

Once you develop

faith in anything, it should last till your death.

Unfortunately, people change their faith every now and then. If they are in difficulties, they respond in one way. If they are passing through better times, their behaviour will be altogether different. This should not happen. Love, love, love --- that is the only changeless quality. One should cultivate such changeless love.

Whatever happens, it is as per God's will. You think you are the doer, out of your ego.

You are not the doer. Where are you? You are not there, really. It is your inner Self, your inner voice that really responds to situations. Hence, "you" means your Atma (Self).

Faith in the inner Self is the basis for everything in this world. Jesus was crucified on the cross. Mother Mary could not bear that scene and wept inconsolably. Jesus then remarked, "Why do you cry? This is natural. Whatever has to happen will happen. Hence, do not shed tears."

Jesus helped the fishermen in many ways. He gave them bread. Once, the fishermen could not catch even one fish. Jesus then called Peter and said, "Peter, bring the fishing net and follow me." He directed the fishermen to cast the net at a particular place. There was such a huge catch that even all the fishermen could not pull the net to the shore.

Thus, God can do anything at His Divine will.

Everything is God's gift only. One has to realise this fact and develop faith accordingly. If you are enjoying good times, it is God's gift. On the other hand, if you are passing through difficult times, it is also God's gift. You should develop such steady faith. If you are suffering from malarial fever, you will be given bitter pills.

That is also for your good.

Good and bad coexist, none can separate them.

You cannot find good or bad to the exclusion of the other.

(Telugu poem)

Bad is not there separately, in a distant corner. Good and bad exist together. It is only a difference of time. Hence, accept everything as God's gift. If we encounter bad, we express disgust and say, "I don't want this!" Do not do that. There is good even in bad. There is good in bad and bad in good. Good and bad are like the obverse and reverse of the same coin. Only the time at which they occur differs. Suppose you ate nice, tasty food consisting of sweets, bread, etc, tonight. Tomorrow morning it turns into excreta. The good food has turned into bad matter. Thus, good and bad occur at different times, not at the same time. What we have to do in the present-day world is constant prayer to God. If only you develop faith in your own self, everything will accrue unto you. If you do not have that faith, all your wealth and property is a mere waste. We hanker after worldly possessions with ego and arrogance, but they lead us to nowhere. They are sure to land us in peril one day or other. Hence, always conduct yourself with humility and faith in God thinking, "everything is God's gift; God is the doer of everything." Where is God? This is the question sceptics often raise. God is in you, with you, above you, below you, and around you. He is your Hridayavasi (indweller of your heart). Your Atma is none other than God, verily. Hence, you need not search for God elsewhere. You repeat the names of Rama and Krishna, thus identifying Divinity with a particular name and form. That which is beyond the body, that which is beyond the name is real Divinity. Divinity has nothing to do with the physical body. The physical body may subsist only for a limited period. It constantly undergoes change. At the time of birth, you call it a "child". As it grows, you call it a "boy". After some time, you call it a "man". Thereafter, when it becomes old, you call it a "grandfather". The child, boy, man, and grandfather are all one only. Though God has come in human form and is acting as a human being now, never forget to realise Him as God. Since we are in human frames, let us know God in human form. Devoid of your physical body, you can never realise God. Hence, you have to experience God only in human form. People develop ego on the basis of their physical and intellectual capabilities, wealth,

and property. It is also common to see ego showing its head in positions of power. All these will vanish in no time. Even your body will perish. Unfortunately, these days, people consider the ephemeral worldly possessions as permanent while ignoring the really permanent things. Hence, realise the true nature of Atma Tathwa. People flock to this place in thousands and lakhs to have the darshan of this physical body. The more important thing to realise is that the physical body points to the eternal Divinity. Divinity is beyond the body. Hence, do not treat the physical body as permanent. However, keep up the health of the physical body as long as you live. Do not neglect it, thinking that it is bound to perish one day or the other. You have to look after the welfare of the body till your last breath. It is not your concern what happens to it later. Embodiments of Love! You need not go in search of the Atma. It is omnipresent --- behind you, with you, around you, and above you. People do not repose their faith in such an omnipresent Atmic consciousness; they hanker after ephemeral things. Hence, first and foremost, you have to enquire which is permanent and which is not. Ask yourself, "Who am I?" The answer comes, "I am a human being." If you consider yourself a human being, you must have human qualities. An animal like an ox or a he-buffalo ploughs the land, eats grass, and does some hard work in the fields. Similarly, the nature of a beast is to pounce upon all creatures and cause them harm, including killing. We are not animals or beasts. We are human beings. Hence, we have to cultivate human qualities. What are they? Truth, peace, love and nonviolence. To develop the quality of nonviolence, you have to cultivate love first. Where there is love, there nonviolence will be. Similarly, love, peace, and truth are all interdependent. When love and truth go together, peace is the result. Truth is an innate divine quality. This is not bookish knowledge; this is the manifestation of the inner Self. There is no human in this world in whom truth is not present. However, one conceals that truth and makes it appear as untruth. Sadly we are more interested in falsehood than truth, today.

You might have witnessed a number of dramas and playlets on the theme of love. Rama,

Krishna, Sita, and Radha are all mythological characters. Rama and Sita, Krishna and Radha are shining examples of Prema Tathwa (Love Principle).

Hence, they are referred to as Sitaramulu and Radhakrishnulu.

The demon king Ravana confined Sita in Lanka for ten months. He used to coax her frequently to become his queen. However, she flatly refused to submit herself to his overtures, saying, "you are in no way comparable to Rama, the embodiment of Truth and Righteousness." She never even looked at his face. She pulled out a blade of grass and threw it on the ground saying, "You are like this blade of grass. Your might and power cannot be compared to that of Rama." Such was her intense faith in Rama.

One has to develop such strong faith in Divinity. There are a number of terrorists operating in various parts of the world. But none of them can cause any damage to you if you develop faith and love in God. God is everywhere. You should repose firm faith in that omnipresent God. Any number of bombs cannot cause the least damage to your body.

God is in you, with you, around you, above you, and below you.

Unfortunately, people repose more confidence in temporary and palliative measures, which are like "peppermints", than developing firm faith in the omnipotent and omnipresent

Divinity. Do not take Divinity lightly. Divinity is the only Chief for the entire universe. Develop faith in that Chief. Call Him by any name --- Rama, Krishna, Jesus, or Allah; God is only one. Ekam sath viprah bahudha vadanti (truth is one, but the wise refer to it by various names).

Put the single digit 1 and any number of zeroes thereafter, and the value of that number increases by leaps and bounds. But remove the 1 and the value of the number comes to zero even if you put one hundred zeroes one after the other. God is the only Hero, while all others are zeroes. Hence, keep God in the front always. If you contemplate on God, the real Hero, you can achieve victory in all fields.

The so-called bombs and other powers cannot do any damage to you. The human power is not comparable to any other power. After all, who made the bomb? Only the human being. Then, who is great? Is it the one who made the bomb or the object itself? Undoubtedly, the human being is great. A human being should realise their innate strength and greatness.

Vedanta (philosophy) exhorts the human being to realise their true nature by a process of enquiry into themselves. If you enquire into yourself by putting the question, "Who am

I?", back comes the reply, Aham Brahmasmi (I am Brahman). You have to constantly remind yourself, "I am not a human being, I am God verily."

As far as the physical body is concerned, you are a human being. When God is with you, in you, around you, why should you have to fear man-made bombs? Develop self-confidence.

Develop faith in the Atma Tathwa. The Self in you is the Supreme Self. When that Supreme

Self is present in your body, why should you have to fear anyone? Even if the body becomes weak, the power of that Supreme Self drives you to march forward. It will help

you.

Hence, may all people contemplate on God incessantly!

Do not get confused with names. You can contemplate on any name. Many varieties of sweets are prepared with sugar, which is the basic ingredient. You may eat any sweet of your choice. But, all sweets taste sweet only.

Everything is God. Do not entertain any doubts in this regard. Doubts create confusion in you. If a human being is to live the life of a real human being, all doubts have to be removed. The sooner the better, for as long as doubts persist, they work like slow poison. Develop faith in yourself. That is called self-faith. If only you possess self-faith, none can cause any harm to you. Even bombs cannot do any damage. Many people develop a fear complex these days that that area is attacked with bombs, this area is attacked with bombs, etc. We need not entertain any such fear.

Embodiments of Love!

You have all gathered here with great devotion, love, and faith. Keep up that feeling of love. Constantly remind yourself, "I am God! I am God!" with a feeling of love for God.

If anyone asks your name, do not reply, "I am so and so." Instead, reply, "I am God."

Not only I, you are also God! Everybody is God. Develop such confidence.

(Bhagawan sang two bhajans, "Prema mudita manase kaho ..." and "Hari bhajan bina", and then continued His Discourse.)

You all say, "I want peace, I want peace, I want happiness." Where is this peace and happiness? They are available in Hari bhajana only (singing the glory of God). You will get peace and happiness only by singing the glory of the Divine Name. They cannot be obtained from any shop. "Hari bhajana bina sukha santhi nahin ..." Peace and happiness have to well up from the inner spring of your own heart. If you wish to have peace, happiness and bliss, contemplate on the Divine Name in your heart. Be happy.

New Year Day, 1 January 2009
Date: 1 Jan 2009 Occasion: New Year Day Place: Prasanthi Nilayam Know Thyself! Then You Will Know Everything
by
Bhagavan Sri Sathya Sai Baba

The sun appears serene and peaceful
The days have become shorter and the cool wind is blowing
The fields are ripe with golden crops
Marigold flowers are blossoming like garlands of pearls on the banks of rivers

The farmers are rejoicing and singing
The sweet festival of Sankranti has come in the Pushya month,
Filling the granaries in our homes with the freshly harvested grain.
(Telugu song)
Embodiments of Love!

This is the Sankranti festival time. Sankranti is a great festival. It is a day on which the farm-ers bring home the harvested crops consisting of all varieties of food grains and pulses needed for the household. The farmers, having finished a hectic schedule of harvesting the crops and be-coming free from agricultural operations, enjoy good food and rest in their homes. They spend a leisure time, happily with their family and friends indulging in fun and frolic. They invite the newly married sons-in-law to their houses and present them with new clothes. The entire house abounds with joy. In this context, there is a folk song in Telugu depicting the festival atmosphere in the villages:

As Sankranti is the festival of festivals,
Oh! Newly married bridegroom, visit your in-laws house;
Come, spend your time in fun and frolic with your brothers-in-law and sisters-in-law.
The entire household and the neighbourhood will honour you with love and affection.

In the earlier days, the means of transportation were not much developed. The sons-in-law used to visit their in-laws' houses by walk or on bullock carts. Hence, the entire village used to shower a lot of affection on them and respect them by attending to their needs. They used to be fed with a variety of tasty dishes. The Sankranti festival is also an occasion when the bullocks are decorated elaborately and taken to various houses in the village. The bullocks are worshipped and fed sumptuously as an expression of gratitude for all the hard work they have done in the fields. Even the bovine members of the household are feted. A symbolic marriage is performed between a pair of bull and cow, naming them Rama and Sita. They are taken along the streets and made to dance to the delight of every one. The cow named Sita is asked, "Rama is black. Do you like him?" Sita would swing her head in disagree-ment. Then, she is counseled, "please do not say no; Rama is great. He is handsome and respect-able!" Then Sita would nod her head in agreement. An elder brother watching this beautiful show invites his younger brother to witness this sym-bolic marriage and offer gifts to the "couple", thus: Oh my dear brother, here comes the Gangireddudasu. Come, let us go and see him. He wears a silver medallion and a waist belt. He carries a decorated staff and wears special marks on his forehead. He brings with him the richly caparisoned sacred cow and bull and performs their marriage. Let us see the marriage ceremony and offer our gifts. (Telugu folk song)

Thus, the Sankranti festival is celebrated in the villages with a lot of religious fervour and fun. Festivals like Sankranti and Sivaratri are meant to contemplate upon and realise one's innate Divinity. People say "Idi naa dehamu" (this is my body), very casually. But people well-versed in Sanskrit language would interpret the expression "naa dehamu" (my body) in a different way. They explain that "na" means "not" based upon the literal meaning and conclude that "naa dehamu" means "I am not the body." Similarly the Telugu expression "naa manasu" (my mind) can be interpreted as "I am not the mind." The same is the case with buddhi (intellect).

 The sum and substance of all these expressions is, "I am not the body, I am not the mind, I am not the buddhi (intellect). etc." In the same logic, one has to maintain a state of perfect equanimity unaffected by pain and pleasure at all time affirming, "these sorrows and difficulties as well as happiness and pleasure are not mine. I am beyond these dualities."
 "It is my body" means. "I am different from the body." When you consider yourself as separate from your body, why should you feel the pain out of it? The situation, however, is that you are unable to bear the pain caused to the body. Hence, you remain at the level of a human being only. You are unable to come out of the delusion of body attachment. As long as you are attached to the body, these sorrows and difficulties as well as pain will haunt you. These are all your own making.
 Suppose you get angry. From where did this anger come? It has come from you only.
 Similarly, jealousy is a quality that manifested from your mind. Thus, each one of these bad qualities are the result of your own thoughts. Hence, if only you are able to control your thoughts properly, you will be able to achieve anything in life.
 The mind, intellect, and chittha (subconscious mind) are the reflections of Atma. The mind has no stability. It is the repository of thoughts and desires. It is said, "Manayeva manushyanam Karanam bandha mokshyah" (the mind is the root cause of either bondage or liberation). Hence, one has to keep the mind under proper control by putting some ceiling on desires.
 Both the body and mind undergo change constantly. However, there is one entity inside that is changeless, that is Atma. It has no form but it has a name: Atma. Self and Atma both mean the same.
Atma is also called Aham. One should not confuse oneself in this context that this Aham is ahamkara (ego), which is identified with the body. God has no name and form, and He is always referred to as Brahman. If God were to reveal His true nature, He would say
"Aham Brahmasmi" (I am Brahman). The same Brahman Tathwa (Brahman principle) permeates all beings as Atma Tathwa (Atma principle).

We say so and so is my wife, so and so is my son. so and so is my daughter-in-law, etc.
 These are all illusory and bodily relationships. They are acquired by us and are not God given. Similarly God does not grant you either pleasure or pain. All are your own making only. They are due to your body attachment. As long as you are attached to the physical body, you will experience pain only. Once this physical body is consigned to flames, nothing comes along with you.
Atma, Self, I --- these are the different names given to the same Atmic principle.
 The identification with the body is done by the individual, thereby resulting in ahamkara (ego). That is why Jesus advised to cross the little I (ego), so that one may become God oneself.
 Your own Self (Atma) directs all your activities from within. This Self has no birth and death, just as Brahman has no birth and death. It is eternal, true, and changeless. We have to attach ourselves to such an everlasting principle, not to the constantly changing and ephemeral objects.
 Suppose you married a girl. You call her your wife. Prior to the marriage, who was she? Who were you? There was absolutely no relationship between you. Only by your marriage did you become husband and wife and acquire marital relationship. The relationship is acquired by you. God has nothing to do with these worldly relationships. Yet, He is the eternal witness to all that goes on in this world.
Dhyana (meditation), japa (constant repetition of God's name), or yoga are of no help in realising the Atma Tathwa. Neither are the nine forms of devotion like sravanam (listening), kirtanam (singing), Vishnusmaranam (contemplating on Vishnu), Padasevanam (serving His Lotus Feet), vandanam (salutation), archanam (worship), dasyam (servitude), sneham (friendship), and Atmanivedanam (self-surrender) of any help. They are different forms of sadhana, which we ourselves have taken up. They are not God-given.
 How many ascetics in this world do severe penance? How many people constantly do japa?
 Even when they are sleeping, the japamala (rosary beads) rotates in their hand. Do all these spiritual exercises confer moksha (liberation) on oneself? Never! One has therefore to constantly contemplate on the Atma Tathwa.

 If someone asks who you are, you should be able to reply "I am God!"
 with all the faith and confidence at you command. The Atmaswarupa in all the human beings is one and the same. It is eternal and changeless.
 I have told you several times about the story of Alexander the Great.
 Though he conquered large parts of the world, he could not take with him even an iota of property that he accumulated. He had to leave this world with empty hands. In order to demonstrate this truth to the world, he instructed his ministers to take his dead body
 in a procession through the streets of his capital keeping both his hands in a raised position pointing the sky.
 When the ministers were curious to know the reason for this strange request from the Em-peror, Alexander replied, "I have conquered several countries and accumulated great wealth. There is a vast army under my control. Yet, none is accompanying me at the time of my leaving this mortal body. I am going with empty hands. This truth has to be demonstrated to all people."
 We may acquire a lot of wealth and deposit in the banks or lend it to others for interest. Yet, we cannot take even a handful of earth along with us at the time of leaving our body. Nothing of this world comes along with us. We are unnecessarily struggling and planning several schemes constantly thinking about them day and night. In spite of all our struggles, what has to go out of our hands will go.
 "The body is like a water bubble. The mind is like a mad monkey." If you follow this mad monkey, you will get into trouble. On the other hand, if you believe in the body, you do not know when this body, which is like a water bubble, will burst.
 Nothing is permanent.
 Only the Atma (SELF) is eternal and immortal. That is God.
 "I", "Self", "God" are all different names by which Divinity is referred to. The Atma
 that is referred to as "I" is donning different names and forms.
 God had incarnated as Rama, Krishna, etc. Rama underwent several difficulties and demonstrated great ideals. Krishna demonstrated several leelas (sports, plays) and attracted several people. Finally, He left His mortal coil. The physical bodies of the Avatars undergo changes, but the Divine Atma in their bodies remains the same. The Atma is omnipresent.

 However, in order to attain Atma Jnana (Atmic wisdom), your resolves have to be pure.
 You have to constantly contemplate upon the Divine Atma.
 Your thoughts and actions may change; the methods of your japa, tapa, and yoga may change, but Divinity will not undergo any change. That is why Divinity has been described as nirgunam, niranjanam, sanathana niketanam, nitya, shuddha buddha, mukta, nirmala swarupinam (attributeless, pure, final abode, eternal,
 unsullied, enlightened,
 free, and embodiment of sacredness).
 People pray, "Oh! God! Grant me your Divine darshan." Even if He grants you His divine vision, it is only momentary. It comes and goes like a flash. In fact, God is very much immanent in your own heart. He is hearing all your prayers. He is answering your prayers.
 Even when your physical body ceases to exist, the Atma remains.
 That Atma (Self) is eternal. It assumes different forms. We witness several objects in this Universe, like the stars, the sun, the moon, etc. Though they appear to be static, even they undergo changes. Only Divinity, which is the basis of all these, remains changeless and eternal.
 One should always maintain purity. In fact, this land of Bharath has earned great name
 and fame, for purity and character:
 This land of Bharath has given birth to many noble women, like Savitri, who brought her dead husband back to life,
Chandramati, who extinguished wild fire with the power of truth;
Sita, who proved her chastity by coming out of blazing fire unscathed,
 and Damayanti, who reduced an evil-minded hunter to ashes with the power of her chastity.
 This land of piety and nobility attained plenty and prosperity and Became the teacher of all the nations for the world because of such women of chastity.
 (Telugu Poem)
 Good character is very essential not only for ladies but for gents too!
 If only one has character, you can call them a man or a chaste woman. Today, we find boys and girls
 moving very close and behaving as though they are husband and wife.
 But for how long?
 Only for a short period. Thereafter, the situation changes. Once they are married, the boy will be somewhere and the girl will go somewhere else. However, there will be no

change at all in the divine nature.

It is customary to exchange diamond rings between a boy and girl when they marry. The diamond ring, which is an impermanent object, is symbolic of Divinity, which is changeless and is available to people at all times. We should safeguard our character like a diamond. It is the custom of even overseas people to exchange diamond rings at the time of marriage. Thus, there is a meaning in every custom and tradition not only in India but also in all countries.

As I have already mentioned above, you say that this is "my body" (naa dehamu). Here

"naa" refers to self in Telugu language. But, in Sanskrit, "naa" refers to "no". Hence, it means, "I am not the body." Thus, there is a lot of meaning in every expression.

God is described as "Sahasra seersha Purushah sahasraksha sahasra paad." (The Cosmic Being has thousands of heads, eyes and feet). You have only one head, whereas God has thousands of heads. What does it mean? All heads in the entire creation are His!

Likewise, it is not correct to say that Swami has seen a thousand full moons (Sahasra chandra darshan). I have seen not just one thousand full moons but crores and crores of full moons. As the Veda declares, "Chandrama manaso jathah," (moon is the presiding deity of our mind.) You each have a mind. I have been seeing all your minds. I have been seeing the minds of crores of people all over the world. Thus, it amounts to seeing not merely one thousand moons but crores and crores of moons.

The boys sang a song, "Neeku maaku unnadi oke bandhamu, ade prema bandhamu" (It is the bond of love that unites us with you), a few minutes ago. You should ensure that this bond of love lasts forever.

Outwardly, we may display several qualities, but the inner thoughts or values are only five: sathya (truth), dharma (righteousness), santhi (peace), prema (love), and ahimsa (nonviolence). These are innate qualities, not superimposed from outside. Neither they can be purchased from any shop. They are very much ingrained in the core of our personality. Our duty is to manifest those qualities and reflect them in our daily life.

That is "Educare". On the other hand, education refers to acquiring knowledge relating to the physical and secular world.

Truth is eternal. It has to manifest from within. Same is the case with dharma. It is said, "Dharmamoolam idam jagath." In fact, it is, "Sathyamoolam idam jagath." Truth is righteousness. All other values are contained in and originate from Truth.

Love is another quality that is innate in human beings. It should be manifested and shared with one and all. Where there is love, there cannot be hatred.

Love transforms itself into nonviolence. A person is suffused with love cannot indulge in any kind of violence. Where there is no love, people cause harm to one another.

From truth emerges righteousness. When these two qualities go together, peace is the result. Peace manifests as calm and serene behaviour. A person in that state says, "I am peaceful." Several people, when asked about the purpose of their sadhana, reply, "for attaining peace of mind". But, where is peace? There are only pieces in the outside world.

A mother loves her child. She will not forsake her child under any circumstances, even when provoked to get angry. Love drives it away. If nonviolence is to reign supreme in the world, the quality of love must be cultivated by all.

It is not enough if you love yourself. You should love your neighbours too. You must develop the feeling that everyone belongs to you and the same Atma resides as the indweller in all people.

For example, there is only one moon in the sky. The same moon is reflected in a thousand pots. You will see the moon reflected in each of the thousand pots separately. Can you therefore say there are thousand moons. No! Similarly, there are no suns separately in different countries like India, USA, and Japan. Only one sun illuminates the entire world.

However, the time at which the sun rises in different parts of the world differs. Now it is 6 o'clock in the evening for us, whereas it is 6 o'clock in the morning in America.

In Japan, it is 12 noon. On the basis of this difference in time, you cannot say that there is more than one sun in the sky. Only one sun illuminates the entire world.

Similarly, only one God resides as the indweller in different people. Each one worships

Him in their own way, ascribing a particular name and form to Divinity.

Several people are trying to ascertain from Me the birth place of Lord Rama. During the past several years, a number of people approached Me and pleaded with Me, "Swami! Please tell us where exactly Rama was born." I told them, "Rama was born in the womb of mother

Kausalya."

In fact, do you search for yourself in the outside world? No! Your true nature is to be found in yourself only. You are you only. Similarly, it is futile to search for God, asking, "Where can I find God?" God is omnipresent. Sarvatah

Panipadam tat sarvathokshi

siromukham, sarvatah sruthimalloke sarvamavruthya tishthati.

With hands, feet, eyes,

head, mouth and ears pervading everything, He permeates the entire universe. Hence, there is no use asking, "Where is God?"

Try to know about yourself, in the first instance. Then you will know everything.

Unfortunately today people are trying to know about everything in the outside world, without first knowing about themselves. No purpose will be served by such an exercise.

"Know thyself! Then you will know everything."

Remind yourself, "I am the Embodiment of Divine Atma; the Atma is immanent in me."

People often say "this is my ...; this is my ..." But who is that "my"? To whom does it refer? The feeling of "my" is maya (illusion). However, people do not make any effort to understand this.

Since you are an individual, you say, "my...." But God is not confined to a particular name and form. He is the principle of "I", which is all pervading.

Several names and forms are ascribed to Him, but He is one and only one! "Ekam sath viprah bahudha vadhanthi" (truth is one the wise say it in different ways). The different expressions like "I", "I am God", "I am Brahma", "I am Vishnu", etc. refer to only one God.

Unfortunately today people are "dividing" the "Divine". You should treat Divinity as only one. Do not differentiate between people, saying this man is my brother, this person is my son-in-law, etc. All are brothers and sisters only. When you consider all people as your brothers and sisters, where is the feeling of difference between individuals? Spirituality teaches exactly this feeling of oneness among human beings.

People say that they could realise God by doing japa, dhyaana, and such other sadhanas

(spiritual exercises). But when and where? How? They will not be able to see even the person standing right in front of them when they close their eyes. How then can they see

God in meditation? All these sadhanas are meant to control the mind.

The mind is very unsteady. It is always affected by bumps and jumps. How then can you control such an unsteady mind? It is not possible. The mind can be controlled in only one way: by constant contemplation on God.

We often see people changing the names and forms of God for contemplation, frequently.

One day they contemplate on Rama, the next day on Krishna, and yet another day on Venkateswara, etc. Mind control is not possible by such contemplation. If you consider

Rama as the God of your liking, then stick on to that name and form till your last breath. Then, surely you will have the sakshatkara (vision) of Rama.

Great painters like Ravi Varma portrayed Rama in a particular form, but Rama and Krishna are not confined to such forms only. In fact, God has no particular form. He assumes a particular form at a particular time, for the sake of devotees.

Thereafter, even that form vanishes.

Several pictures and paintings of God in a particular form are sold in the market. They are done by painters like Ravi Varma. Did Ravi Varma actually see Rama or Krishna? No.

He only heard stories about Rama and Krishna and painted their forms based upon his imagination. These pictures and paintings only remind you about Divinity. Neither Ravivarma or any other person did actually see God.

You are God, verily! Do not think that God is somewhere in a distant place. You yourself are God. Develop that confidence. However, when you consider yourself as God, you must develop divine qualities. Then only are you entitled to consider yourself as God.

Since no one had ever explained the nature of Divinity in this manner, people have fallen into dogmatic theories. God is immanent in every human being, nay, all living beings. There is no place where God is not present. Wherever you see, God is present there. In fact, you need not come over here to see God. He is very much present in the place where you reside. Without realising this truth, people are spending a lot of money and going on pilgrimages. That is not what you are expected to do. Develop the quality of love in you and share it with all. Then all people can become one. All are one, be alike to everyone. No living being can ever live without love.

Living is possible only with love. Hence, develop a loving nature. When you go home, close your eyes and contemplate upon God. You're sure to find Him in your own heart.

When you open your eyes to the outside world, you see all and sundry.

What do you think is the purpose for which you are endowed with eyes? It is only to see God.

If you go to a doctor complaining about some problem in your body, they will take an X-ray of your heart, liver, kidney, etc., and decide about the particular malady from which you are suffering. Spirituality is like an X-ray photo that will reveal your true nature.

Install the form of God in your Heart and contemplate on Him incessantly. Never change that form for any reason. You are sure to realise God. You need not search for Him elsewhere. If you wish to see Swami, install the form of Swami in the altar of your heart. You can surely visualise Swami there. If you develop a feeling of oneness with Him, everything will turn out to be good for you. This is what you have to realise today.

Festivals come and go. Sunday, Monday, Tuesday --- days roll on like that. Saturday lapses into Sunday. But God will never change. He is eternal. Realise this truth.

Money Comes and Goes, But Morality Comes and Grows by
Bhagavan Sri Sathya Sai Baba
Bharat is the motherland of many noble souls who earned great name and fame in all the continents of the world. This is the land of valorous people who vanquished the foreign rulers in the battlefield and attained independence.

This is the land that excelled in music, literature, and other fine arts. Having been born in this great land of Bharat, oh boys and girls!

It is your sacred duty to protect its rich cultural heritage.
(Telugu poem)
Dear students!
Be prepared to uphold the honour and glory of this country of Bharat! You are sure to come out victorious in this effort.

Today, people are able to achieve great progress in secular and scientific fields, but they are unable to march forward in the field of spirituality. One has to progress in spirituality more than in other fields. People used to give great importance to progress in the spiritual arena in the ancient times. In fact, it used to be the goal of their life. However, there is a decline in the spiritual outlook of people in recent times.

In these days a lot of effort is made to achieve progress in secular, physical, and worldly matters. Whatever achievements made in these areas are only temporary and transitory; they are not permanent. While people are able to make giant strides in secular areas all over the world, there is decline in the importance given to spiritual and moral progress. This tendency is in sharp contrast to the culture of Bharat in ancient times.

This land of Bharat has given birth to many noble women like Savitri, who brought her dead husband back to life; Chandramati, who extinguished wild fire with the power of truth; Sita, who proved her chastity by coming out of blazing fire unscathed; and Damayanti, who reduced an evil-minded hunter to ashes with the power of her chastity.

This land of piety and nobility attained plenty and prosperity and became the teacher of all the nations of the world because of such women of chastity.
(Telugu poem)
Savitri, a great woman of chastity, brought her deceased husband back to life by the power of her chastity. Such women brought great name and fame to the country of Bharat.

Can you find parallels to her anywhere in this world? No doubt, whoever is born must die, but is there a woman in any country in the world who could bring her dead husband back to life, except in Bharat? The whole world is falling to abysmal depth due to transgression of the righteous path, lack of character, and bad behaviour.

Once Arjuna was narrating to King Dharmaraja a few strange incidents he observed while going on a tour of the Kingdom. A farmer reported to Arjuna, "Swami! Yesterday I left the implements in the field itself after ploughing, since it was getting dark. Today when I went to the field to pick up those implements, they were not to be found there."

On another occasion, he noticed some ladies locking their houses and going out. On enquiry they informed him, "Swami! We wanted to go out on some work. and unless we lock our houses, our belongings won't be safe."

This was stunning news to Arjuna, since no house in the kingdom used to be locked in those days, unlike in present times, and people were able to move very freely without any worry. Later, when King Dharmaraja himself went on a stroll, he observed a lady talking to a man in public standing in the middle of the road. Such type of behaviour went against the custom prevailing in the country.

Dharmaraja was taken aback at these developments and felt that the age of Kali had begun. He therefore decided that it was time that the Pandavas leave for their heavenly abode. Ladies and gents engaging themselves in conversation in full view of the public was a taboo in those days.

Bharat is a land where noble thoughts and feelings are cultivated right from childhood.

In fact, Bharat is the spiritual teacher for the entire world. Even now, you will find that Bharatiyas do not go astray in their behaviour, as it is happening in some other countries in the world. They are decent and courteous in their behaviour, at least in public. Even an aged son dare not talk to his mother standing in front of her.

In the earlier days of Swami's Avatarhood, the Raja of Venkatagiri used to visit

Puttaparthi. He used to bring the heir apparent and his other son along with him. Before their departure, the sons used to take the blessings of their mother, who used to sit behind a screen and stretch her legs for her sons to offer their obeisance to her. Such were their noble feelings and exemplary character.

Today, you will find boys and girls moving together even in public places. If someone makes enquiries, they reply that so and so was their classmate. Such acts in the old days were considered as highly improper. In fact, the term "classmate" itself is a wrong expression. Do not use the word "classmate". Say, "a fellow student in the class".

The rules of conduct in the earlier times were very strict. The situation has changed

now. Boys and girls visit each other's houses without any inhibition and even dine together. This is highly improper. Before doing such things, one has to ask oneself, "Am

I a human being or an animal or a beast?" Animals have animal qualities, but you are a human being. Hence, you should possess human qualities. You say you are a human being.

Therefore you have to ask yourself, "Do I possess human qualities?"

What are those human qualities? Never hurt anyone. Do not speak harsh words against any individual. Have compassion and a charitable disposition. Only such a person can be said to be a human being.

Sathya (truth), dharma (righteousness), santhi (peace), prema (love), and ahimsa (nonviolence) are the five qualities a human being should possess.

Giving a go-bye to sathya and dharma, people pray for santhi. Is it possible? Can anyone get peace outside?

Peace is a state of mind that is very much inside one's own self. It emanates from one's heart. People are now searching for peace in the outside world.

There is reaction, resound, and reflection for everything in the world. Only when you develop the quality of hatred in yourself will you see hatred in others. Even when no one causes any harm to you, you try to hurt others. Whatever you do to others, surely you will experience the result of that action. Whatever you hear or experience is all due to the reaction, reflection, and resound of your own actions and feelings. Others are not responsible for it.

You forget this simple truth and lament, "so and so is accusing me; so and so is causing pain to me; so and so is hurting me," etc. No one is responsible for either your good or your bad actions. Neither is it God's creation, for God is nirgunam, niranjanam, sanathana niketanam, nitya, shuddha, buddha, mukta, nirmala swarupinam (God is attributeless, unsullied, final abode, eternal, pure, enlightened, free, and embodiment of sacredness).

You go on fighting with others and try to hurt them. Then you are not a human being at all! Always help others, never hurt anyone. "Help Ever, Hurt Never." It is said,

Paropakara punyaya, papaya parapeedanam (one attains merit by serving others and commits sin by hurting them), Sarva jiva namaskaram Kesavam pratigachchhati (whomever you salute, it reaches God), and Sarva jiva tiraskaram Kesavam pratigachchhati (whomever you criticise, it reaches God).
 You think you are accusing someone or making fun of someone. It is all your illusion. In fact, you are accusing yourself and making fun of yourself in the process. Everything has reaction, reflection, and resound. You yourself are responsible for either good or bad. If you wish to enjoy good things in life, do good to others in the first instance.
 Today's education is information-oriented. It is bookish knowledge. It is not real education. It is not this type of education that you should pursue. You have to pursue "Educare".
Educare manifests in one's own heart. Education relates to gathering information by reading several books and storing them in your brain. Whatever you remember out of that knowledge, you will reproduce in your examinations and acquire degrees. That you call education. That is not real education.
 You have to follow your inner voice. That is real education. In the recent sports day, you played many games, displayed beautiful gymnastic skills, and sang several songs. All these activities relate to the body, which is the result of your past karmas (actions).
 However, do not repose absolute confidence in the physical body. The body is given to you for discharging your duty as a human being. Do not misuse your body.
 It is the responsibility of teachers, headmistress, principals, vice chancellors, and chancellors to teach the students the value and purpose of human birth.
 Your duty is to follow your conscience. Your conscience helps you manifest noble qualities. But you do not pay heed to the voice of your conscience and go against the human values. Hence, never ignore your conscience. Your conscience is your most valuable property.
 You do not have to do japa (soft repetition of the name of God), tapa (penance, severe austerities), dhyana (meditation), or yoga. You will achieve a lot of progress in your sadhana (spiritual practices) if only you listen to your inner voice. Whatever comes from the depth of your heart will do good for you. Whatever goes against the dictates of your conscience is worldly, whereas inner voice or conscience is spiritual. "Help Ever; Hurt Never," is the cardinal principle of spirituality. Whoever follows the inner voice will always be safe. Never go against that inner voice. That is true spirituality.

 Spirituality does not mean just conforming to worship and meditation. These practices have degenerated into several undesirable activities these days. The underlying principle and the purpose of these sadhanas are totally forgotten. It is said, Manasyekam vachasyekam, karmanyekam mahatmanam (Those whose thoughts, words, and deeds are in perfect harmony are noble ones). Unless there is perfect accord between your thoughts, words, and deeds, you are not a human being at all! You get very angry against someone and slap them. But think for a moment; it is a great sin to hurt others. In the process, you are hurting not your enemy but God, verily! All are divine. Hence, never hurt anyone. It is natural to help those who help you, but you should be able to help even those who harm you. There is nothing great in helping those who have helped you. The noble ones are those who help even those who have harmed them.
 (Telugu poem)
 It is only Sai in this world who helps even those who try to harm Him, ignoring their faults. I never mind the harm done to Me by others. We must always be calm, serene, and peaceful under all circumstances. If only you maintain the quality of peace, you can achieve anything in life. Wherever you see in the outside world, it is only pieces and pieces! Do not hurt the feelings of others, come what may. Always treat your parents with love and respect. In fact, your parents are your first teachers. Respect them. Any amount of your good work that inconveniences your parents is of no avail. That cannot be considered good work at all. Though it may appear to be yielding some benefits temporarily, the end result of all this work will turn out to be very bad. Hence, ensure that you do not cause any inconvenience or suffering to your parents. The more you inconvenience them, the more you will suffer.

With regard to charity, the more you give in charity to others, the more benefit you will receive later. Therefore, try to help others, always. Do any kind of seva (selfless service) that you are capable of. When you thus go on helping others, you will be progressing in the path of truth. As you travel in the path of truth, dharma will automatically follow.

Where sathya (truth) and dharma (righteousness) go together, santhi (peace) will reign there. Then prema (love) will follow. Where there is love, there hatred cannot be. You will not have enemies then. It is only when the spring of love gets dried up in your heart that you will try to cause suffering to others. Hence, develop love for all.

Sathya, dharma, santhi, prema and ahimsa are human qualities. Today, there is rampant violence everywhere in the world. People are afraid to stay alone even in their houses. Several changes are taking place all over the world.

Earlier, the United States of America was considered to be a super power and a wealthy country, but now, all that glory is gone. As a result, people who were going to their workplaces in cars earlier are now walking.

We think money and wealth can do anything. But money is not important; your mind is important. If only you can control your mind, everything will turn out to be good for you.

Dear students! Whatever work you undertake, do it with a sense of dedication to God. Sarva karma

Bhagavad preetyartham (do all actions to please God). Always remind yourself that God is the doer and you are just an instrument in the hands of God. You can achieve anything in life only when there is the Will of God. Perform your duty and remain a witness to all that goes in the world.

It is said, "Paropakarah punyaya papaya parapeedanam." Always follow the principles of

"be good, do good, and see good." Let your tongue speak only the truth. Let all your deeds be helpful to others. Whoever undertakes service in society with such a motto will always be happy.

Pride, jealousy, etc, are all bad qualities. They drive away good qualities. They do harm to you as well as to society. Hence, be good and do good to others. If someone is in a difficult situation, go all out to help them even at the cost of your own work.

This is the foremost duty of a human being. "Help Ever, Hurt Never" should be your motto. It is enough if you remember these two commands always. Do not cause harm even to your enemy. Hurt never. Do not cause even the slightest inconvenience to others. This is true education.

You make your parents suffer in the house, come to the office and show your egoistic power on your subordinates, and draw a huge salary for your so-called work and responsibility. This is a great mistake. As you go up in your career and life, your ego and jealousy must come down. Then only will you earn respect from one and all.

Always remember society and its welfare. You are a member of the society and therefore you have a social responsibility. You owe your very existence to society. Similarly, society is not separate from you. Individuals make a society. You and society are inseparable and mutually dependent. Only when fellow members of the society prosper will you also prosper.

Dear students! You all have done well in your studies, getting good marks and securing ranks. You brought good name to the Institution in the fields of education, sports, and cultural activities. Yesterday, you witnessed a play on Bhakta Potana. He did not feel bad, in spite of criticism and belittling from his brother-in-law Srinatha, also a great poet.

Since Potana was a great devotee of Rama and surrendered himself totally to the Lord,

Rama Himself composed the great epic Bhagavatam on his behalf. Potana always believed that his poetry, his life, and even his very existence were all the gift of Lord Rama.

He was a true devotee. When Potana was suffering from acute poverty and finding it very difficult to make both ends meet, his brother-in-law advised him to dedicate his works to the King and make a comfortable living with the money and jewelry gifted by the King. Potana refused to do, so saying that he would take refuge only in Lord Rama. Instead, he decided to live by cultivating his small piece of land.

One day, while Srinatha was going by the side of the fields in a palanquin, he saw his brother-in-law Potana working in his field. He derisively passed a comment on Potana, addressing him as "haalika", meaning, "Oh farmer! Are you Ok?" Potana gave an apt reply saying, "how does it matter if I am a farmer? I feel it is better and nobler to make a living by farming than dedicating my poetry to earthly kings and living upon their charity. That gives me great satisfaction!" The earth is the basis for all objects and activities in the world. Whoever reposes his faith in the land will never undergo any difficulties. Hence, I advise students to develop faith in their motherland and pursue their vocations in this great land of Bharat itself, instead of dreaming to go to other countries like America and earn lakhs and lakhs of rupees. Earn name and fame in your motherland itself. Earning money is not something great. Even a beggar can earn a lot of money. "Money comes and goes, but morality comes and grows." Cultivate that morality. Whoever has morality will never undergo any difficulty.

Develop Self-Confidence to Gain Success in Life
by
Bhagavan Sri Sathya Sai Baba
Forbearance is the real beauty in this sacred land of Bharat.
Of all the rituals, adherence to truth is the greatest penance.
The nectarine feeling in this country is the feeling of love toward one's mother.
Character is valued far higher than the very life itself.
People have forgotten the basic principles of this great culture and are imitating Western culture
Alas!
The Bharathiyas are not aware of the greatness of their cultural heritage just as a mighty elephant is not aware of its own strength.
(Telugu poem)
The elephant, unable to realise its innate strength, meekly submits itself to the commands of the mahout, who works for a paltry sum of a few rupees. It gets up and sits down as per the commands of the mahout on account of the training it received from him.
Similarly Bharathiyas today are blindly following western culture, forgetting their own rich and sacred culture. The culture of Bharath is very sacred, strong, and ancient. It is eternal and a beacon light that guides all the countries of the world.

How then can the Bharathiyas forget their own great culture?
The culture of Bharath enjoins all people to revere and respect their mother and father as God. It exhorts Mathrudevo bhava and Pithrudevo bhava (mother is God; father is God).
Not only this; it also exhorts Acharyadevo bhava and Athithidevo bhava (teacher is God and guest is God). If you tend to ignore the words of your own mother, whom else will you revere and respect?
Embodiments of Love!
As we go on talking for hours together, we tend to forget what we really intend to communicate. So many deviations and distortions creep into our speech. Today, the entire world is filled with negative feelings. Whoever you come across, whatever you see, negativity is widespread. All are reflections of your inner thoughts and feelings.
But beyond all these, there is one entity, called Atma, that is the Embodiment of the divine Self. There is only one Atma, which dwells in every individual, nay every living being. The Bhagavad Gita declared, Mamaivamso jeevaloke jeevabhuthah Sanathanah (the eternal Atma in all beings is a part of My Being). There is no scope at all for any doubt or duality in this aspect. It is Ekameva adwitheeyam Brahma (The Atma or Brahma is one without a second). That is why it is said a man with dual mind is half blind.
Divinity is described in the Vedas as Sahasra seersha purushaha sahasrakshah sahasra paad (The Cosmic Being has thousands of heads, eyes and feet.). The import of this statement is that the one Divinity expresses itself through millions of individuals and that all are divine. We tend to forget this great truth and consider each individual as separate from the other. The strife and conflicts between human beings started the moment humanity forgot its fundamental unity. It is time that this trend is reversed and the fundamental unity among humans is re-established.
Along with unity, there should be purity. Where unity and purity go together, there Divinity is. The combination of unity, purity and Divinity will result in realisation of Atma Tathwa (Atmic Principle). The Upanishads, especially the Taithreeyopanishad, dealt at length with this Atma Tathwa. One who develops faith only in this

Atma Tathwa will succeed in all their endeavours.

The Atma Tathwa or divine Consciousness permeates the entire Universe. Not a blade of grass can move without this divine Consciousness. Everything in this Universe is the reflection of that divine Consciousness. The same Atma Tathwa dwells in all human beings irrespective of religion, caste, creed, and nationality.

This is true even in the case of Avatars. The Avatars of Rama, Krishna, etc. may be different in names and forms; but the Atma Tathwa in them is only one. They all lived in their human vestures till the completion of their Avataric mission, and once their task was completed, they disappeared. Hence, physical bodies are not permanent. In fact, nothing in this ephemeral world is permanent, not even the great Avatars.

Atma is the only entity that is eternal. It is beyond birth and death. It is changeless.

There is a beginning and end for everything else in this universe, except the Atma.

Hence, one has to develop firm faith in this Atma Tathwa.

Unfortunately, today we tend to forget this true and eternal Atma Tathwa and develop faith in the ephemeral world. We weave a web of imagination around the pleasures that this transient world would offer. Ultimately, we land ourselves in sorrow and difficulties. The Atma Tathwa is the only entity that is true, eternal, and changeless.

Everything else undergoes change from time to time. Even the human body passes through different stages like childhood, adolescence, youth and old age, but the individual remains the same through all these changes.

Today, people adapt themselves to continuous changes in time, situations, and environment. People who change themselves thus are not a human beings in the real sense.

Who is a real human being? One who does not undergo a change; one whose faith in the Atma Tathwa (Self) is firm and steady. That is self-confidence. One who develops that self confidence can find a place for themselves permanently in the history of the world.

You all know about Abraham Lincoln, the past President of the United States of America.

He was a perfect example of such self-confidence. He came from a very poor family and could not afford to have a decent dress and books. He was so poor

that he had to study under streetlights. His mother used to support him with the meagre amount of money she earned by mending old and worn-out clothes.

One day his classmates, who were rich and wearing fine suits, boots, and hats, made fun of him and heckled him, saying that he did not deserve to walk along with them in that poor attire and that he should walk on the footpath. He came home crying and poured out his agony to his mother, explaining how he was insulted and humiliated.

His mother consoled him saying, My dear son! Do not get affected by praise or blame.

Understand the situation at home. Your father cannot afford to spend money on your education. Develop self-confidence. That is your property.

These words made a lasting impression on the tender heart of Lincoln. He acquired self-confidence and self-respect, with the constant support and encouragement of his mother. He even did some odd jobs and earned some money to support himself. The good name he earned for himself in society commanded the respect and love of his fellowmen for him.

In due course, his friends and well-wishers advised him to run for election. They assured him of their support and votes. On their advice, he ran for election and won. He became the President of America. Thus, Abraham Lincoln, the son of a poor artisan with little spare money even to pursue primary education, became the President of America by sheer hard work and self-confidence infused by his mother.

People cannot reach great heights without self-confidence. Not even the nine forms of devotion sravanam (listening), kirtanam (singing),

Vishnusmaranam (contemplating on Vishnu), Padasevanam (serving His Lotus Feet), vandanam (salutation), archanam

(worship), dasyam (servitude), sneham (friendship), and

Atmanivedanam (self-surrender) can help.

Any amount of sadhana (spiritual practices) without self-confidence will be of little use. Hence, I wish that all of you should develop self-confidence. Face your examinations with self-confidence. Without self-confidence, not even your friends can help.

Do not forget to follow your mother's advice, for, she is Mathrudevo

bhava (mother is God). She will always protect you, wherever you are. One who respects the commands of their mother and follows them sincerely will come up in life, as in the case of Abraham Lincoln.

Unfortunately, people today do not give due respect and recognition to their mothers.

They do not hesitate even to denigrate her before others, when they are holding high positions. Whenever some guests or colleague officers visit their houses and ask about the mother, they reply that she is a servant. This type of behaviour is totally against the Vedic injunctions, which exhort people to treat the mother as God, verily. In fact, the mother is the living divinity. She is the first guru to a human being. She is the only person who selflessly works and wishes for the welfare of her children.

Those who disregard the advice of their mother will never be successful in life. Even in foreign countries, people like Abraham Lincoln attained high positions by obeying the commands of their mothers and by developing self-confidence.

We consider foreigners as great. But not all the foreigners can be considered great.

Only those who respect their mothers and follow their advice are great. If you ignore the advice of your mother, you are sure to face difficulties in life. Follow her advice wholeheartedly. Develop the quality of implicit obedience to the wishes of your mother, without a second thought. Then only will your life be peaceful.

The women of Bharath earned great name and fame for their sterling quality of chastity.

They are not to be treated lightly. A few examples of such noble women are always worth remembering and emulated. Savithri could bring her deceased husband back to life, by the power of her chastity. The great woman Sita entered the fire to prove her chastity and came out unscathed. There were several such examples in this country of Bharath, who shone as beacon lights to the entire world.

Bharath is a holy and sacred land. How fortunate you are to be born in this great land of Bharath! You must therefore sanctify your lives by following the rich and sacred culture of this country. Bharath is a holy land where the qualities of magnanimity and sacrifice flourished. The spiritual outlook of Bharath is unparalleled.

In fact, it is this spiritual outlook that sustained this country since times immemorial and took it to great heights.

The people of this country are enjoying peace and bliss even today, while the whole world is passing through difficult times. It is for this reason that people from all other countries visit this country and find solace here. We have to sustain this rich legacy of spirituality.

Whenever someone asks a student what he is doing, he replies that he is concentrating on his studies. But the real meaning of concentration is fixing one's mind on a particular object. Contemplation is the next step. The final step is meditation. Thus, concentration, contemplation, and meditation are the three steps in sadhana. Meditation is not simply silent sitting, closing one's eyes. Maintaining an unwavering and steady mind is meditation.

People think that concentration is a great exercise, but it is only the first step in sadhana, the others being contemplation and meditation. Concentration is like primary school education. Contemplation is high school education and meditation is college level education. Only after reaching the college level is one eligible to acquire a degree.

All our ancient rishis reached up to this stage and meditated upon Divinity.

When one reaches the stage of meditation, there is no scope for any wavering, and one's faith in Divinity becomes steady. You have to attain that stage. You may study a number of books and pass your examination in the school or college. But it is only one who reached the meditation stage that passes the test prescribed by God.

Dear students!

Do not be proud of your achievement in getting a first class or a rank. It is not the marks that count. See that you do not get remarks, which is the result of your losing self-confidence. Hence, develop self-confidence to become a real success in life.

(Bhagawan sang the bhajan, Bhajana bina and continued His discourse.)

Embodiments of Love!

Constantly meditate upon a name and form of God that is to your liking. It does not matter which name and form you select for your namasmarana. All names and form belong to the one God. He is Atmaswarupa (Embodiment of divine Atma). God takes up different forms and is worshipped by various names. Only God can fulfil the desires of devotees. It is

He who grants you powers and positions. Without Him, you cannot achieve any position.

All are zeros only! With God's grace, one can become a hero!

Install God on the Altar of Your Heart and Meditate On Him

by

Bhagavan Sri Sathya Sai Baba

Bharat is the motherland of many noble souls who earned great name and fame in all the continents of the world.

This is the land of valorous people who vanquished the foreign rulers in the battlefield and attained independence.

This is the land that excelled in music, literature, and other fine arts.

Having been born in this great land of Bharat, oh boys and girls,

it is your sacred duty to protect its rich cultural heritage!

(Telugu poem)

Embodiments of Love!

We are spending nights daily ever since we are born, but not all those nights can be termed as Sivarathri. People meditate upon, sing about, and listen to the glory of the divine name and experience the divinity of Lord Siva. Since the whole night is spent in meditation and singing the glory of the divine name of Lord Siva, this night is called Sivarathri. Not only this night, whenever you spend the entire night meditating upon the divine name, that night is also Sivarathri.

Lord Siva is not a separate Avatar. In fact, Hari and Hara (Lord Vishnu and Lord Siva)

are beyond one's contemplation. They are beyond the physical body. Many people contemplate upon them as Avatars with a physical body and worship them in a particular form. They develop a deep urge to visualise them in a particular form. But who is it that ascribed those forms to Divinity? Surely, they did not incarnate in those forms.

Some painters, like Ravi Varma, painted them in a particular form as per their imagination based upon certain descriptions in the Sastras and Puranas. That is all!

In fact, Vishnu and Siva are not limited to a physical frame. They are beyond description. They are formless and attributeless. Nirgunam, niranjanam, sanathana

niketanam, nitya, suddha, buddha, mukta, nirmala, swarupinam (God is attributeless, unsullied, final abode, eternal, pure, enlightened, free, and embodiment of sacredness).

Devotees are accustomed to contemplate upon and worship these forms also since millennia. They wish to visualise God in those forms.

God is beyond description and is not limited to a particular form. No painter, however great they may be, can ever paint the picture of God. How can a painter paint the form of God, who is formless?

However, God assumes different forms as per the wishes of devotees. Whoever wishes to visualise God in whatever form of their liking, God manifests in that form. It is for that particular moment only. It is not permanent. All forms attributed to God are only temporary. Divinity is beyond name and form.

Once Goddess Lakshmi came to Parvathi and wondered

Oh! Gowri! You are very young and Sambasiva is old;

He has matted locks and wears a tiger skin;

He rides a bull and is constantly on the move;

He is adorned with snakes;

How did you court Him?

Don't you know all this?

He has no house of His own and sleeps in the burial ground.

(Telugu song)

Parvathi was deeply disturbed by these remarks and approached Lord Siva and asked, "You don't have a house of your own. You don't belong to a particular caste or lineage.

Further, you are "arthanariswara" (androgynous). How then can you call yourself God?"

Lord Siva replied that God is beyond names, caste, and lineage. He then turned to Lakshmi and asked, "Oh! Mother Lakshmi! Are you aware of your own husband's antecedents?

He is constantly on the move to protect His devotees and has no time for food and sleep.

If at all He settles down to take food, some devotee like Draupadi prays meanwhile, 'Oh!

Lord Krishna! I am in great trouble. Please save me.' Immediately, He rushes to rescue her, leaving His food. Thus, He is constantly on the move to protect His devotees like Narada or Prahlada. How then did you court such a Lord who has no time even for food and rest?"

Siva then clarified that God has no name and form; He is changeless; He has neither birth nor death; neither beginning nor end; He is eternal and Atmaswarupa (embodiment of Atma). He also emphasised that it is man's illusion to ascribe a name and form to God.

The formless God manifests with a particular form and name as per the wishes of the devotees, to fulfil their aspirations.

God is formless and attributeless. It is the devotees who attribute some names, forms, and attributes to God and feel satisfied. All names and forms are anithya and asathya (evanescent and false). The only eternal and true form of God is Atma. Everything in the world may change; but the Atma will never undergo a change. The entire universe is contained in the Atma. This is also called divine consciousness or Aham or Brahman.

People misunderstand this eternal truth, ascribing several names and forms to it.

When the formless God assumes a form, it is natural for human beings to meditate and worship that form. People derive great satisfaction and experience bliss by doing so. It is alright as long as that form remains. Once that divine form ceases to exist, what will you do? The happiness and bliss derived from the worship of a particular form of God are born out of your illusion only. The physical vestures last for a particular period and then cease to exist. Divinity takes different forms later.

For example, you are now attached to this physical body. You worship this body and derive great satisfaction and bliss thereby. But, after sometime, this body may disappear like the earlier Avatar. Then you should not feel sad. When the divine Atma embodied in this physical body reaches its eternal Abode, it is a matter of joy, not sorrow.

In Tretha Yuga the Rama Avatar came. He went into exile in the forest and destroyed several demons, including the great rakshasa (demon) king, Ravana. Finally, having fulfilled His Avataric mission, He went into the Sarayu river and disappeared. The same is the case with Lord Krishna in the Dwapara Yuga, who left His mortal coil after having been hit by the arrow of a hunter in the forest. Thus, the physical vestures are always temporary and untrue.

The body is made up of five elements and is bound to perish sooner or later,

but the indweller has neither birth nor death.

The indweller has no attachment whatsoever and is the eternal witness.

Truly speaking, the indweller who is in the form of Atma, is verily God Himself.

(Telugu poem)

Hence, never consider the physical body as permanent. Bodies appear according to the time and circumstances. Once the prescribed time is over, they just disappear. Even the experiences gained by the physical body vanish.

Considering the physical bodies as true, if you wish to have the darshan of Lord Krishna of Dwapara Yuga now, how is it possible? As long as He walked in that body, He appeared in Mathura, Brindavan, Gokul, Dwaraka, etc., and made people happy with His darshan, sparshan, and sambhasan (sight, contact, speech).

Take the example of an electric bulb. Each bulb has separate wattage, which remains for a limited period of time. Avatars are like these electric bulbs. Over a period, God has incarnated as several Avatars. Be attached not to the physical form of a particular Avatar but to Divinity as the formless, attributeless, Parabrahma, which manifested as different Avatar in different ages.

You were born as a baby and grew up as a child, youth, and elderly person. All these different stages in life are only for a limited period, but you the individual are there in all the different stages. Avatars come, fulfil their mission, and disappear. You must therefore meditate upon Divinity, which is true and eternal.

There are three aspects in sadhana (spiritual practice): concentration, contemplation, and meditation. At the moment, you are fixing your gaze on this form; that is concentration. When this form moves away after sometime, you still look at this form with your mental eye; that is contemplation. As a result of this exercise, this form gets imprinted in your heart permanently. That is meditation. As you go on meditating thus, the form remains in your heart permanently.

At present, you are confining your sadhana only to concentration and contemplation.

These two stages are only transitory. It is true that the first step in your sadhana is concentration. Concentration has to be transformed into contemplation and later into meditation. In this final stage of meditation, you will continue to visualise the form of God even if you close your eyes. The ancient rishis adopted this form of meditation.

That is why God manifested before them whenever they wished, talked to them, and fulfilled their desires.

The nirakara, nirguna Parabrahma (formless, attributeless Supreme Self) is changeless and eternal. It represents the ultimate reality. It is known by different names like Rama, Krishna, and Sai. Do not make any distinction between the names, for Parabrahma is beyond names and forms. Install that ultimate reality on the altar of your sacred heart and constantly meditate upon it.

Some people tend to misinterpret the sastras and puranas (scriptures and ancient texts) to suit their convenience and selfish ends. A small story: Once an impostor posing as a renunciant stood before a house and begged for food saying, "Bhavathi bhiksham dehi!" (I am hungry, kindly give me food!).

The housewife heard his plea and came out. She told him, "Sir! Please go to the river and have a bath and come back. Meanwhile, I will keep the food ready for you."

Then the sanyasi (renunciant) quoted a line from the puranas, "Govindethi sadasnanam"

(the constant chanting of the name of Govinda is as good as taking a bath).

The housewife immediately realised that the person standing in front of their door begging for food was not a true renunciant and replied, "Dear Son! Govindethi sada bhojanam" (the constant chanting of the name of Govinda is as good as a meal). You may go.

It is said that the face is the index of mind. It reflects our inner thoughts and feelings. If the so-called renunciant in this story really believed in the glory of the divine name, he should have taken a bath before asking for food. He was a lazy person.

He wanted food to satisfy his hunger but was reluctant to have a bath before the meal.

Never believe in such impostors.

Some people sit silently, closing their eyes. They say they are doing meditation. That is not meditation. They may be sitting silently, but their mind may be wandering, thinking about all and sundry. Only a mind that is unwavering and firmly fixed on the higher reality can be called meditation. Meditation is the next stage to contemplation.

A small example: you may have scored first class marks in the half yearly examination, but you will not be eligible to get a degree. Only after passing the final examination will you be eligible to receive a degree. Contemplation and meditation are comparable to the half yearly and final examinations. Thus, spirituality represents a higher stage in life.

Today, people are engrossed in the pursuit of physical and worldly objects, forgetting moral and spiritual goals. How then can they attain spiritual progress? If one wishes to have a spiritual experience, one has to acquire the necessary strength to face the final examination.

To say that this is my body, my house, my property, etc. represents the physical aspect.

When you say, "this is my body," it means "my" is separate. That is, you are separate from your body. Similarly, when you say "my mind", "my buddhi (intellect)", "my chitta (subconscious mind)", etc. it means they are all separate from you. Hence, your true nature is "I", which is separate from all that you call as "my body, my mind, my buddhi", etc.

You have to sacrifice all your karmas (i.e. the fruits of your actions). That means, you have to perform your karmas (actions) with an attitude of Sarva karma Bhagavad preethyartham (all actions to be performed in a spirit of surrender to God). Then only will you become immortal.

If you wish to attain the true and eternal state, you must realise the

Atma Tathwa

(Atmic Principle). Only the Upanishads delineate on the Atma Tathwa extensively, not the epics like Bhagavatha and Ramayana. The same Atma Tathwa, that is, the supreme reality, incarnates from age to age to restored dharma whenever it is on the decline, as stated in the Bhagavad Gita:

Yada yada hi dharmasya glanir bhavati bharata,

abhyutthanamadharmasya tadatmanam srujamyaham.

(Sanskrit verse)

(Oh Arjuna! Whenever there is a decline in dharma and rise in adharma,

I incarnate from age to age for the establishment of dharma.

Install God on the altar of your sacred heart and meditate on Him constantly. In spite of sorrow, difficulties, and calamities that you may encounter, hold on to Him firmly.

They trouble your body, not you; for, you are separate from your body. The body is like a box in which the mind, intellect, chitta (subconscious mind), indriyas (senses), and anthakarana (inner psycho-somatic fourfold instruments of mind, intellect, memory, and ego) are packed.

We cultivate qualities like anger, jealousy, envy, and pride due to our contact with the outside world. Only when we get rid of these qualities do we enjoy peace. Therefore, we have to start our sadhana with sathya (truth) and dharma (righteousness).

When truth and righteousness go together, santhi (peace) will reign. Peace brings love.

Where there is peace, there hatred cannot be. When we develop hatred against someone, it means the spring of love is dried up in our heart. When there is love in our heart, we do not get angry, even if someone accuses us.

Normally, we do not care for anyone when we are angry. Many people speak ill of Me, accuse Me, and even heckle Me, but I am not disturbed. I am always happy and blissful.

That is real love.

Where there is anger, hatred, and jealousy, it means that there is no love. Hence, always follow the motto of "Love All, Serve All!" The basis for following this principle is sathya and dharma (truth and righteousness). Always speak truth and follow righteousness.

As against this principle, people are now lecturing so much about dharma without themselves treading the path of dharma. Dharma cannot survive in such circumstances. It is said, "Sathyannasti paro dharmah" (there cannot be a greater dharma than speaking truth). Sathya and dharma are like the two hands, two legs, and two lips in a human body. It is only when the two lips work together that a human being can speak.

Similarly, it is only when sathya and dharma go together that peace reigns. Where there is no dharma, there love cannot be. Thus, sathya and dharma are the basis for all other values like santhi (peace), prema (love), and ahimsa (nonviolence). (Bhagawan sang the bhajan, "Prema mudita manase kaho ..." and continued His discourse.)

Embodiments of Love!

Always meditate on the divine name ---not just contemplation, but meditation. That meditation should be with love for God. Without love, your meditation will not achieve the desired result. Your love for God should be continuous through day and night. It is possible that when you pray to God to fulfil some desire and things go contrary, you may get angry and develop hatred against Him. But that has nothing to do with spirituality.

Your innate nature and love for God should never undergo a change. Continue to attach yourself to the divine name. That is real meditation. When you are in deep meditation, nothing in the external world should be visible to you even if you open your eyes.

Another aspect about which you need to be careful is your speech. Too much talk is very bad. Do not indulge in excessive talk. Try to mend your nature. Observe silence as far as possible and be quiet. Talk as much as is needed. Just answer to the point. If you talk more, you will be branded as a chatterbox. Too much talk is not good, even from the health point of view. This is very important, especially in the case of children.

You have to keep your mind steady right from the young age. What is important is not studying textbooks but steadying your mind. Textbooks you can always study ---in the classroom, in the hostel, etc.

Are you all happy? (All the students in one voice replied that they are happy.)

(Bhagawan concluded His discourse with the words, "Be always happy, happy, happy!")

Develop Love And Consider All As Your Brothers And Sisters by Bhagavan Sri Sathya Sai Baba

Sweeter than sugar, tastier than curd, sweeter indeed than honey is the Name of Rama.

Constant repetition of this sweet name gives one the taste of divine nectar itself.

Therefore, contemplate on the name of Rama incessantly! (Telugu poem)

Bharat is the motherland of many noble souls who earned great name and fame in all the continents of the world.

This is the land of valorous people who vanquished foreign rulers and attained independence.

This is the land that excelled in music, literature, and other fine arts.
Having been born in this great land of Bharat, oh boys and girls,
it is your sacred duty to protect its rich cultural heritage.
(Telugu poem)
The Bharatiyas (Indians) today do not know their greatness, just as the elephant does not know its own strength. It obeys the command of the mahout and sits when he asks it to sit and stands when it is asked to do so. In the same manner, the Bharatiyas are imitating the western culture under the influence of western education.
The Bharatiyas are endowed with great potentialities, and their hearts are full of devotion. There is none among them who does not chant the divine name from their very birth. They name their children after the various names of God, thereby remembering God all the time. There is no village in Bharat where there is no temple of Rama. Villagers of all small hamlets, even, set up a shrine for Rama, Lakshmana, and Sita in a little
hutment or some rustic abode for regular worship.
Right from the beginning, the Bharatiyas gave more importance to spirituality than to worldly and material pursuits. The main factor that is responsible for the peace and progress of Bharat is the devotion of the Bharatiyas for God. At present, many countries of the world are in the grip of great problems and difficulties. But Bharat is by far free from such difficulties. The people of Bharat may have some financial problems, but they are happily leading their lives totally surrendering to the will of God.
The Bharatiyas place their trust in the Self as the basis of their life rather than material possessions, property, and wealth. In fact, their entire life is based on this trust, and they have achieved progress in spite of many difficulties and deprivations.
Having based their life on the trust in the Self, how can the Bharatiyas give any importance to worldly and materialistic pursuits? Even in their day-to-day conversation, they refer to their Self, saying, "Only my Atmarama knows this."
Do not limit Rama or Krishna to a particular name or form. These names were given to them after their birth. They were not born with these names.
The Bharatiyas have realised the truth that God is the resident of man's heart. That is why they are able to withstand all difficulties and sufferings and lead their lives happily. Sukhadukhe samekruthwa labhalabhau jayajayau (one should remain equal-minded in happiness and sorrow, gain and loss, victory and defeat), says the Gita. Pleasure and pain are part of human life. Whenever Bharatiyas have to encounter sorrows and difficulties, they consider them as the harbingers of happiness. They have attained

exalted positions due to such noble feelings.
Their faith in God is unshakeable even in the face of mishaps such as bomb blasts, floods, and plane crashes. Those who base their life with faith in God will never encounter sorrows, suffering, and difficulties. Their difficulties will come and go like passing clouds.
One who is born in this world is sure to die one day or the other.
Nothing is permanent in this world. Only one thing is permanent and that is the Atma or the Self. People aspire for liberation, heaven, and Vaikuntha, but even they are not permanent. The only thing that is permanent is the Atma, and that is the only truth. You may see so many forms in this world, but none of them is permanent except the Atma.
Let us now dwell upon the Ramayana. Dasaratha had three wives:
Kausalya, Sumitra, and Kaikeyi. Kausalya first gave birth to a female child, who was named Santha. Dasaratha gave her to one of his friends, who adopted her as his daughter. She was married to Sage Rishyasringa, who conducted the Putrakameshti Yajna of Dasaratha. When oblations were offered in the sacrificial fire with the chanting of related mantras for the Yajna, an effulgent being came out of the fire and handed over a vessel containing payasam (sweet pudding) to Dasaratha with the instruction to distribute it equally among his queens.
Accordingly, Dasaratha distributed the payasam to Kausalya, Sumitra, and Kaikeyi.
Kausalya and Kaikeyi took their share of the pudding to their respective puja rooms.
Each of them was happy, thinking that her son would be the future
king of Ayodhya.
But Sumitra had no such claims. She was a paragon of virtues. Her name, "Sumitra", itself signifies that she was a good friend to one and all. She carried her bowl of pudding to the terrace and placed it on the parapet wall while drying her hair in the sun. Suddenly, an eagle swooped down and carried away the bowl. Sumitra rushed down and informed Kausalya and Kaikeyi about what had happened. Kausalya and Kaikeyi came to her rescue and shared their pudding with her. Kausalya gave half of her share to Sumitra. Kaikeyi also did the same. In due course, Kausalya gave birth to Rama, Kaikeyi to Bharata, and Sumitra to Lakshmana and Satrugghna. Kausalya and Kaikeyi had one son each, whereas Sumitra had two sons. The sons of Kausalya and Kaikeyi were happily playing in their cradles while Sumitra's sons were crying all the time and were not taking milk. Sumitra was at a loss to know the reason for their crying. Ultimately, she went to Sage Vasishtha and told him about her predicament. Sage Vasishtha closed his eyes in meditation. His yogic vision enabled him to know the truth. He said to Sumitra, "As you partook of the sacred pudding given by Kausalya, you gave birth to Lakshmana who is an amsa (part) of Rama. Similarly, Satrugghna is born out of the share of pudding given to you by Kaikeyi. So, he is a part of Bharata. Put Lakshmana by the side of Rama and Satrugghna by the side of Bharata. Then they will rest peacefully." Sumitra did as instructed by Vasishtha. Both Lakshmana and Satrugghna stopped crying and started playing blissfully in their cradles. This was the basis of the intimate relationship between Rama and Lakshmana, Bharata and Satrugghna. Both sons of Sumitra, namely, Lakshmana and Satrugghna, were always in the company of Rama and Bharata. In this manner, Dasaratha's four sons grew up in an environment of love and happiness. Sumitra was very happy because she thought her son Lakshmana would serve Rama and Satrugghna would serve Bharata when they grew up. Where was Rama born? Many people have many doubts about the place of His birth. He was born in Ayodhya. Was the city of Ayodhya built by some ordinary mortal? No, no. It was built by Viswakarma (divine architect) himself. He built it in such a way that no enemy could enter it. When Rama won the hand of Sita by stringing the bow of Siva in the court of Janaka. His marriage with Sita was performed in Mithila amidst great rejoicings. The people of Mithila were beside themselves with joy and sang merry songs. Welcome to all for Rama's wedding; together we shall witness the joyous scene. Many have gathered already, decked up in all their finery. With necklaces the ladies are adorned of jewels pure and gleaming. Rama shall tie the knot today to beautiful Sita, oh what a fine match they make. Father Dasaratha has made ready bounteous feasts. All learned sages are assembled with Vasishtha presiding. Oh, what a multitude has assembled to rejoice, hearts with joy overflowing. Wedding of the holy pair Rama and Sita, such a sight is indeed rare. The sight shall confer great merit. Rama looks the cool full moon, and Sita is a matching double. The compassionate Rama, who loves all, will confer his grace on us all. Come quickly to see the holy wedding of Rama and Sita. (Telugu song) It seemed as if the entire population of Ayodhya had come to Mithila to witness the marriage of Sita and Rama. Dasaratha, all his ministers, and all family members prominently participated in the marriage. After the marriage function, all left for Ayodhya. On the way, they heard a deafening sound. When they looked around to find where the sound had come from, they were confronted with Parasurama, who looked very fierce. All of them were perturbed and began to think, "What is this great impediment after the glorious celebration of the marriages?" Good and bad always follow each other. After experiencing great joy in Mithila, they were confronted with a difficult situation on their way to Ayodhya. Dasaratha and others became fear-stricken. Parasurama came forward and asked, "Who broke the Siva bow?" "It is I who has done it," said Rama. "If that is so, let us see if you can bend my bow." Saying so, Parasurama gave his bow in the hands of Rama. Rama strung and armed that bow with an arrow with His left hand. Seeing that, Parasurama offered his salutations to Rama and went his way. Experiencing the joy of victory, all of them reached Ayodhya and participated with great joy and enthusiasm in the festivities held there. The people of Ayodhya held joyous celebrations.

Like his mother, Sumitra, Lakshmana's wife Urmila was also a woman of great virtues.

When Lakshmana went to inform her that he was accompanying Rama to the forest for fourteen years, she said, "It is your greatest good fortune. Consider Sita and Rama as your mother and father and serve them. In Ayodhya you have Kausalya, Sumitra, and Kaiki, but in the forest you have only one mother, and that is Sita. Forget me and serve Sita and Rama with total dedication."

Lakshmana was happy to hear these words of Urmila and said to himself, "What a virtuous wife I have!"

After the departure of Rama, Lakshmana, and Sita to the forest and the death of Dasaratha, Bharata came back to Ayodhya. When he was offered the crown of Ayodhya, he refused to accept it, saying that it was the right of only the eldest son and hence he would go to the forest and pray to Rama to come back and rule Ayodhya.

When he went to the forest to appeal to Rama, Rama told him, "We have to follow the command of our father. Without that, our life itself is a zero." Rama promised Bharata that he would surely return to Ayodhya after the period of 14 years of his exile. Bharat requested Rama to give His sandals, which he would place on the throne and worship them.

On his return to Ayodhya, Bharata did not enter the palace. He lived in a small hut and led the life of a renunciant, just as Rama was living in the forest.

During the sojourn of Rama, Lakshmana, and Sita at Panchavati, Ravana came in the guise of a mendicant and abducted Sita. Rama was put to great difficulties, but He faced all difficulties smilingly.

Hanuman went in search of Sita to Lanka. He could cross the ocean with the power of the divine name of Rama. In fact, any stupendous task can be achieved by contemplating on the name of Rama. It was with the power of Rama's name that the monkeys made the bridge over the ocean so that Rama and His army could reach Lanka.

Rama had to fight with Ravana, the king of demons. In the course of battle, Lakshmana was hit by a missile and became unconscious. Rama was very much distressed, and he lamented, "I may get a wife like Sita, but I cannot get a brother like Lakshmana." Then Hanuman brought Sushena, the medical expert of Lanka, who said,

"There is a herb called Sanjivini on a mountain in the Himalayan region. If you bring that herb, Lakshmana can be revived."

Hanuman was sent to bring the Sanjivini herb to revive Lakshmana. Hanuman did not know how to recognise that particular herb. Therefore, he lifted the whole mountain on which the herb existed and placed it before Rama. With the help of the herb, Lakshmana was revived.

Rama hugged him and said, "Lakshmana, My life is meaningless without you. You have always been with Me and protected Me in many ways. There is nothing more dear to Me than you in this world. In fact, you are verily My life."

Rama ultimately killed Ravana and rescued Sita from his prison.

Meanwhile the period of fourteen years of exile of Rama was over. As the end of fourteen years drew near and Bharata could not see any signs of Rama's return to Ayodhya, he got ready to give up his life by immolating himself on a pyre. As Rama had anticipated the situation, he sent Hanuman in advance to inform Bharata that He was on His way back to Ayodhya. Bharata was overjoyed on hearing this good news. All the people of Ayodhya as also Bharata and the entire family were eagerly awaiting the arrival of Rama in Ayodhya.

When Rama, Lakshmana, and Sita alighted from the Pushpaka Vimana, Bharata and all the people of Ayodhya offered them a hearty welcome. Soon after the arrival of Rama in Ayodhya, arrangements for His coronation were made. The people of Ayodhya were full of enthusiasm at the prospect of Rama becoming their king.

The students just now sang this song,

Kausalyatmaja Rama Charan, Vaidehi Priya Rama Charan,

Hanumatsevita Rama Charan, Bharatarchita Sri Rama Charan, Ahalyoddharaka Rama Charan, Lakshmana Sevita Rama Charan,

Prasanthi Niketana Rama Charan

Always worship the Lotus Feet of Rama, son of Kausalya, which are dear to Sita, worshipped by Bharata, and,

in the abode of Prasanthi, served by Lakshmana and Hanuman and that redeemed Ahalya. (loud applause)

Lakshmana was overjoyed on hearing Rama's kind words. Rama had great love for Lakshmana, more than anybody else. Similarly, Lakshmana loved Rama most dearly. He never disobeyed Rama's command. In fact, all the brothers -- Rama, Lakshmana, Bharata, and Satrugna -- had great love for each other. They ruled over Ayodhya with great unity. It was not Rama alone who administered the entire kingdom; all his brothers helped Him in conducting the affairs of the kingdom.

The Ramayana teaches us many lessons in morality and ethics. In fact, all the characters of this great epic set great ideals for humanity to follow. Sweeter than sugar, tastier than curd, sweeter indeed than honey is the Name of Rama. Is there anything greater than Ramanama? We should understand this truth and contemplate on His name day in and day out.

Great epics like the Ramayana and the Mahabharata teach us many moral and ethical values. Truth is the highest among these values. Sathyannasti paro dharma (There is no dharma greater than adherence to truth). Dharma is born out of sathya, from dharma emerges peace, and from peace emerges love. Where there is love, there can be no hatred.

One who has love will adhere to nonviolence.

Sathya, dharma, santhi, prema, and ahimsa are the five cardinal human values. One who practises these human values is a human being in the true sense of the term. One who lacks even one of these cannot be called a perfect human being. Therefore, develop all these five values.

Unfortunately, when we look at the present scenario, we do not see truth anywhere, and we don't even hear the word dharma. Therefore, man today is beset with unrest. People want peace but get only pieces! Due to the lack of peace, love has become non-existent in man.

Therefore, we should develop peace. Then only will love develop in us. When love takes root in us, we will have no enemies. Then all will become our friends. Hence, man should develop love and consider all as his brothers and sisters. This is the main essence of the Ramayana.

It is only to demonstrate this principle of love that I have done this housing project in Orissa. We should love and help each other. The calamity that has befallen them can happen to anyone. When you make them happy, you will also be happy. Therefore, we should all be united.

Let us all move together, let us all grow together,
Let us all stay united and grow in intelligence together,

Let us live together with friendship and harmony.
(Telugu song)

Only when we grow in intelligence together can there be unity. We should move and work with unity. No one should hate anybody. If any thought of hatred comes to you for a moment, brush it aside and develop the feeling of unity from the very next moment. It is only love that unites all.

Realise the Principle of Unity
by
Bhagavan Sri Sathya Sai Baba
Creation emerges from truth and merges into truth.
Is there a place in the cosmos where truth does not exist?
Visualise this pure and unsullied truth.
(Telugu Poem)
When you lose faith, you lose God
Everyone desires peace and happiness. Nobody wants sorrows and difficulties. In his speech, Popat has said that all are the embodiments of God. God is one. There is no second entity. When you think there is a second entity, then it is untruth. Therefore, there is nothing like a second entity.
All are One
Right from small ants, mosquitoes, and birds to mighty elephants, every being is the manifestation of God. Even the trees, hills, and mountains are manifestations of God.
Such being the case, how can there be a second entity? A second entity is just your imagination and illusion. It is of your own making. Just think where your body has come from. You say that it has come from your parents. No, no. You have not come from your parents. You have come from yourself. There is only one entity. Where is the existence of the second?
But people today put their faith in diversity and not in unity. What does unity mean? It is not the combination of many; it is the realisation of oneness. When you have mirrors all around you, you see your many forms. These are all your different forms. But this is not the truth. The one who asks the question and the one who gives the reply, both are one and the same. All are one. Daivam manusha rupena (God is in the form of a human being). The same person appears in many forms. To consider these forms as different from each other is a mistake.

When I am speaking in the microphone, you are listening to My voice. The speaker is only one but the same voice is heard by many ears. Ekoham sarva bhutanam (I am the only Reality in all beings), Ekam sath viprah bahudha vadanti (truth is one, but the wise refer to it by various names). There is only one sun in the sky. But we see its reflection in many rivers, tanks, and vessels. Sun is only one. But wherever there is water, you see its reflection. Pour water in a plate, and you can see the reflection of the sun even in that water. Does it mean that the sun is there in this water? No, no. It is only the reflection of the sun. In the same way, Atma is only one. The mind, the intellect, the subconscious mind, and the ego sense are like different vessels.

Therefore, divinity is one. God can be seen in pure heart. Everything is God. If you think otherwise, it is only your delusion, i.e. maya. When the sun is shining above, you can see its reflections in all tanks. Even where the water is dirty, you can see its reflection. But when the water is totally dirty, then, of course, you cannot see its reflection. In the same way, when your heart is pure and clear, you can see the direct manifestation of God in it. But your heart is impure. When you thoroughly clean your heart, you can very well see God. God is immanent in everyone. Right from a newborn baby to a grownup and old person, He is present in everyone. A small baby grows up and ultimately becomes old. The baby, the woman, and the old lady are the same person. Because of their thinking, people see many different forms.

But God does not have different forms. In fact, He has no form. However, he has many names. Even though He has many names, they all correspond to the many reflections of the same divinity. You can see the reflection of the sun in flowing water and also in stagnant water. In the flowing water, the reflection appears to be wavering, but in steady water, the reflection is also steady. Your mind develops attachment to the world because of your delusion. Everything in this world is just a projection of maya.

Hiranyakasipu asked his son Prahlada, "Where is God? You are always chanting Narayana, Narayana". Who is Narayana?"

Prahlada replied, "Man himself is Narayana. Wherever you see, you see only Narayana. He is in me, He is in you, He is in all others."

Hiranyakasipu asked, "Is He there in this pillar?"

"Surely, He is there in it," replied Prahlada.

Hiranyakasipu took a mace and hit the pillar with it. At once he saw the manifestation of Lord Vishnu. Therefore, wherever you see, God is there. But people like Hiranyakasipu have no faith in God.

Develop the vision to see unity. Though there is total unity in creation, we look at it from the angle of diversity. We say, "He is my father, she is my mother, she is my elder sister, she is my younger sister." We develop relationships on the basis of forms. Where have these relationships come from? Nothing can exist without the principle of unity.

Here is an example. A dog entered a room fitted with mirrors and saw many dogs in the mirrors. It was afraid to see so many dogs in the room, considering them as danger to its life. In order to escape from the situation, it jumped upon one of the mirrors, considering its own reflection in it to be another dog. As it did that, it saw that the dog in the mirror also jumped upon it. In the process, the mirror broke. Then, it felt that there was no other dog at the place and escaped from the room. It felt greatly relieved that it could save itself from so many other dogs. But where were so many dogs?

It saw its own reflection in so many mirrors.

The same is the case with people today. If one sees all other forms as his own reflection in the mirror of the world, one will realise the principle of unity. So, there are no such separate entities like father, mother, brothers, and sisters. But one develops worldly relationships due to one's delusion and says, "She is my sister, he is my brother, he is my father, she is my mother." These are all only physical relationships and not the relationships based on your divine reality. Try to understand that the same Atma is present in all. But you develop worldly relationships, forgetting the principle of the Atma.

 You say, "She is my wife," but prior to the marriage, she is separate and you are separate. Only after the marriage do you say, "My wife, my wife." How you have developed this relationship of husband and wife? It is due only to your delusion. It is because of delusion that one makes many mistakes and indulges in many undesirable activities.
 Wherever you see, there is God and God is one. People say, "He is Rama, He is Krishna, He is Shiva, He is Vishnu." What does it mean? Does it mean that Vishnu, Shiva, Rama, and Krishna are separate entities? These are different names of the same God. God appears before you in a particular form based on your own imagination. When you contemplate on the form of Krishna as portrayed by artists like Ravi Varma, God will manifest before you in the form of Krishna. In the same way, God will appear before you in the form of Rama. But God is neither Rama nor Krishna. Both Rama and Krishna are you only. The forms of Rama and Krishna are nothing but your own reflections. When you say, "I want Rama," God manifests before you in the form of Rama. Similarly, when you say, "I want Krishna," He appears before you in the form of Krishna. All these forms are nothing but your own reflections.
 Reduce the burden of your desires
 Both sorrow and happiness are in the world. When you are in difficulty, you say, "Alas!
 Why has God given me this difficulty? What sin have I committed?"
 On the other hand,
 when you earn wealth and are happy, you say, "It is my good fortune."
 Neither this is your good fortune nor that is bad. When you have good thoughts, you will have good results. On the other hand, if you have bad thoughts, you will have bad results. Good and bad do not come from outside.
 Everything is God. When people see a scorpion, they are afraid that it might bite them.
 But, in fact, there is God even in that scorpion. There is no being in whom God is not immanent. However, you have to get rid of your delusion.
 People have too many desires. These too many desires are the cause of delusion.
 Therefore, people should reduce their desires. How should one do so?
 All desires are the creation of the mind, which behaves in an arbitrary way. Manah eva manushyanam karanam bandhamokshayo (mind is the cause of bondage and liberation of man).

 You should make efforts to follow the path of liberation. Then, there will be no scope for delusion.
 But people are full of desires, and the cause of all desires is the mind. Therefore, first and foremost, control the mind. If you do so, you will not have even a single desire. Therefore, it is said, Less luggage more comfort makes travel a pleasure. God will be pleased with you only when you reduce the luggage of your desires. More desires become great burden for life. With less luggage, you will be more happy.
 When one is unmarried, one thinks, "Whatever I have, I can manage with it. I am not bothered even if I have to starve sometimes." But when one is married and has children, one is burdened with so many worries. Where have the wife and children come from? They have come from the same source as you have come. You think someone is your wife because you develop attachment to her. Can you call every woman your wife? No, no. When you say so, you will be beaten. You cannot talk like this. The relationship of wife and husband is only a "body to body" relationship. This physical relationship is the cause of many troubles.
 A person with money is called a rich man. But the same person will be called a beggar when they lose his money. When you are wealthy, you are considered bigger; when you are poor, you are treated like a beggar. Therefore, the same person is bigger as well as beggar.
 Develop equal-mindedness, and everything will become good for you. Even if somebody beats you, you should think, "The person who is beating me is none other than God. God has beaten me because there is some defect in me. This body has committed a mistake. Therefore, it has to receive punishment."
 Whatever we do will come back to us as reaction, reflection, and resound. All that we experience is the result of our own actions. It is not given by God. God does not give anything to people except ananda (bliss). Having experienced ananda, do not criticise the One who has provided it to you. Both happiness and sorrow are the reflection of your own actions. When God loves you, it means that God loves Himself. God has no attributes. God has no such evil qualities like anger, hatred, jealousy, and hypocrisy, nor are these evil qualities given to you by God. These are all of your own making. Therefore, get rid of your delusion. If you develop unnecessary worries, thinking, "I don't have this, I don't have that," you will deceive yourself. Reduce your desires. Then you will have not to carry too much luggage. Only then can you be happy.

Know the Atmic Principle

If you have real love for God, always contemplate on Him. If you have liking for Rama, contemplate on Rama. Similarly, if Krishna is your chosen deity, contemplate on Him. But always remember that Rama and Krishna are not outside; Rama is in your heart, Krishna is in your heart. Whatever form you consider as Rama, contemplate on that form with your eyes closed. You will certainly visualise that form. Ultimately, you will realise, "It is out of my delusion that I considered Rama and Krishna separate from Me. In fact, I am Rama. I am Krishna."

When you contemplate on Rama, you see that form as a reflection of your thoughts.

Similarly, when you think of Krishna, you see Krishna's form. You think Rama and Krishna are different from you because of your delusion. Who has seen Rama? Who has seen Krishna? Artists like Ravi Varma painted the pictures of Rama and Krishna on the basis of the descriptions given in the sacred texts. These are mere pictures; they do not reveal the truth.

Everyone can call God by any name of their choice, like Rama, Krishna, Govinda, etc., and contemplate on a particular name and form. There is no mistake in that. I don't ask you to give up this practice. But you should have firm conviction, "I am God. My Atma is God." The Atma has no form. It has only a name. The Atma shines in everyone like the sun. It can be seen only in a heart that is pure. In the heart that is impure, you cannot see it.

Many Avatars came to propagate this truth. Divine incarnations come not for their own sake but to impart the knowledge of truth to everyone. Follow their teachings and understand the principle of the Atma.

The Vedanta proclaims that the Atma is the only reality. Waves are formed out of water.

There can be no waves when there is no water. In the same way, there can be no form without the Atma. You should contemplate on the Atma and chant the mantra "Om Namo Narayanaya, Om Namo Narayanaya, Om Namo Narayanaya." If you are unable to chant the entire mantra, it is enough to recite "Om", because everything is immanent in Om. The word Om denotes pranava (primordial sound). The Upanishads describe it as the Atma.

The Taittiriyaopaniṣad deals extensively with the principle of the Atma. The Ramayana, the Bhagavata, and the Mahabharata reveal the same truth through the stories of the Avatars. Everything is within you. Nothing is outside. The entire creation is one. Get rid of your delusion and try to understand the truth behind names and forms.

Name and form are inseparable. You chant, "Sai Ram, Sai Ram, Sai Ram ..." The name "Sai Ram" has been given to Me. I am not born with this name. Similarly, the names Rama and Krishna were given to them by their parents. They were not born with these names. Did

Rama come and say, "I am Rama"? No, no. He was the son of Dasaratha and was given the name Rama.

What does the word Dasaratha mean? It means the chariot of human body with its ten senses. Have control over your senses. When you have total control over your senses, there is no need for anything else. You even forget yourself. You forget even your physical body.

It is the mind that controls the body and the senses. The body and the senses are temporary. Even the mind is also subject to annihilation. We say, "mind, mind, mind."

Where is the mind? What is the form of the mind? It has no form. Mind itself is an illusion. Enquire on these lines and realise that God is one. This is the only truth.

Everything else is delusion. In a cinema, you see many scenes on the screen. You see

Sita getting married to Rama, Ravana abducting Sita, Rama waging a war against Ravana, and many friends of Rama taking part in the war. But all these are mere pictures. They are not happening in reality.

There are not many people. All are one. Ekam sath ... When you follow sathya (truth), dharma (right action) will emerge from it. When sathya and dharma come together, santhi (peace) will manifest. Where there is peace, there is bliss. Light is produced when negative and positive charges come together.

 Love emerges from peace. One who lacks peace cannot have love.
 When love manifests in us, we consider everyone as our own. All are our own forms. All are
 one. Be alike to everyone. Make efforts to realise this truth.
 When the wind blows, the dry leaves are blown away, but not the green leaves. They remain with the branches. Your humanness should not be like a dry leaf, which is blown away by the wind. Everything is a divine mystery.
 The stories of Lord Rama are amazing,
 It purifies the lives of the people in all the three worlds,
 It is like the sickle that cuts the creepers of worldly bondage,
 It is like a good friend who helps you in times of need,
 It is like a shelter for the sages and seers doing penance in the forest.
 (Telugu Poem)
 Develop steady devotion
 Do not allow your mind to become like a dog, which is deluded by its own reflection. The dog is deluded thinking its reflections in many mirrors as many dogs.
 There are not many dogs. You may consider a dog a dog, but God is in it also. Without vibration, even a dog cannot live. What is that vibration? It is the vibration of life. Due to this life
 principle, the dog eats and moves around.
 Do not observe any differences such as "He is an outsider, he is a rich person, he is a beggar." All are one. See unity in all. Only then will you have steady and true devotion. Otherwise, you will have bumps and jumps. Your devotion will waver from moment
 to moment.
 Many people consider themselves as devotees. As long as they have faith in God, their devotion remains steady. When their devotion wavers, their mind also wavers. Real faith does not waver under any circumstances. Come what may, your devotion should not waver, even if you are cut to pieces. That is steady, unwavering, and unsullied devotion.
 Develop such steady and selfless devotion.
 The same is the teaching of Jesus also. God is one. You have to cut your individual ego
 to attain Him. This is what the cross symbolises.
 Never give up your faith. Hold on to it firmly. Then you will certainly realise your true identity. Man is born to establish humanness and not to destroy it. Develop human qualities of sathya, dharma, santhi, prema (love), and ahimsa (nonviolence). When sathya combines with dharma, santhi and prema are born there. It is love that unites all. Will you kill your son in a fit of anger? No, no. You will scold him, but you will not harm

 him. Likewise, when you have love, you will treat everyone as your own. Treat all woman
 as your mothers and sisters.
 Forbearance is the real beauty in this sacred land of Bharat.
 Of all the rituals, adherence to truth is the greatest penance.
 The nectarine feeling in this country is the feeling of love toward one's mother.
 (Telugu Poem)
 Develop such sacred feelings toward all women. When you marry a woman, only then do you call her your wife. Otherwise, all women are like your mothers and sisters. Similarly,
 all men are like your brothers. God is one. He is the only purusha (male). There is no other male except Him.
 Once the gopikas (cowherd maidens) came to Krishna's house to meet Him. When they tried to enter the house, the watchman prevented them, saying women cannot enter the house.
 The gopikas questioned him, "How come you are there?" He replied,
 "I am a male." The gopikas said, "You cannot call yourself a male merely because you are wearing a male dress. The five elements and the five life principles are the same in you and us. Merely because you are wearing a male dress and we are wearing a female dress, we can be different from each other. The same divinity is present in you and us.
 In fact, Krishna
 alone is the Purusha, all others are females."
 To Love God is the Main Goal of Life
 Today this equality and unity have become extinct in this world. Due to lack of unity,
 we are unable to see divinity. Consequently, hatred is on the rise.
 Today the world is in the grip of differences and fighting due to lack of love. Man today has forgotten
 even his humanness.
 First of all, understand that you are essentially divine. When you say,
 "I am person and He is God," you observe duality. When there are two entities, the third will also find place there, and that is the mind. That will bring about your total ruination.

Husband should be treated as husband and wife should be treated as wife. Each one should discharge their duty. In English, duty refers to a particular work. The duty of a human being is not merely doing some work. Duty connotes nishkama karma (selfless work).

A selfish person is worse than a fish. Fish is better than selfish.

Therefore, never give room to selfishness. You can realise the Self only when you give up selfishness.

When you become a slave to your senses, you will always remain selfish. Therefore, give up selfishness. Help everyone.

As I said on the day of Rama Navami, God is one. There is apparent diversity in the world. In fact, man is God Himself. Develop faith in this truth. Let your faith not waver even a bit. When you lose faith, you lose God. Whatever may happen to you, never become selfish. When you conduct yourself in this manner, you will realise your divinity. Then you will have no delusion that Rama, Krishna, Easwara, and Vishnu are different from each other.

The names like Rama and Krishna are given by us. In fact, all names are given by us.

Everybody is born from God. God is one, not two. Right from today, make efforts to do away with all differences. When you love God, worship and follow Him. This is the main goal and true purpose of your life.

Love of God, Fear of Sin, and Morality in Society

by

Bhagavan Sri Sathya Sai Baba

Gurur-Brahma Gurur-Vishnu Gurur Devo Maheswara;

Guru Sakshat Param Brahma Thasmai Sri Gurave Namaha.

Guru is Brahma, Guru is Vishnu, Guru is Maheswara.

Guru is verily the supreme Brahman. So, salutations to the Guru

Brahma, Vishnu, and Siva are the three different names and forms of the same divinity.

"All are one, be alike to everyone." Though the names and forms of the physical body are different, Divinity in all beings is one only. Brahma is the Creator, Vishnu is the Protector, and Shiva is the Destroyer. Yet, all three aspects represent the one Divinity. The one God when engaged in the creative aspect is referred to as Brahma,

while protecting and sustaining the living beings as Vishnu, and, finally, in the act of Laya (dissolution) as Shiva.

In order to avoid the confusion created by ascribing different names and forms to Divinity, God is referred to as Atma or the Absolute Brahman (the nameless, formless, attributeless Divinity). The one Atma permeates all living beings.

Religions are different, path is the same;

Clothes are different, cotton is one;

Beings are different, Atma is one;

Nationality and lifestyle are different, human birth is the same.

Every human being has to develop three qualities: love for God, fear of sin, and morality in society. It is only lack of fear of sin that is responsible for the present state of lack of morality in society. Love is the cementing factor that unites people.

Where there is love, there society will be united. Devoid of morality, one does not deserve to be called a human being. Hence, morality is important for everything.

Though God showers His love on one and all, it is the human being who has lost the precious quality of fear of sin. Man today is committing several sins with the belief that God is kind and will ultimately forgive his sins. With this belief, he is indulging in more and more sinful acts. He has developed a sort of complacency in this regard and thinks that he can escape punishment.

But the fact is otherwise. Though God is compassionate and may forgive all sinful acts, a human being has to necessarily pay for their sins. Hence, every human has to develop these three qualities of love for God, fear of sin, and morality in society. Where there is no fear of sin, there will be no morality in society.

People are behaving most irresponsibly and are undertaking several undesirable activities with unbridled ego. They have no fear of sin. They don't even think for a moment of the consequences of their acts. One has therefore to restrain oneself from seeing evil, speaking evil, and doing evil. If not, the consequences of these evil deeds will boomerang on that person later, if not today. It is also possible that the results of all these sinful acts will come back to that person all at one time with a bang.

If one is really interested in the welfare of the society, one must work for the development of morality in society. One who lacks morality is not a human being at all but is an animal, verily. Speaking untruth, doing injustice to others, and indulging in unrighteous acts and bad practices is very bad. One has to lead one's life by following the three principles of love for God, fear of sin, and morality in society.

It is said that one who has no morality in themselves is worse than a monkey. In fact, a monkey is better than such an individual.

No one will respect an individual who indulges in immoral acts in this world. Only a person who follows moral principles will command respect from one and all. Even those who try to harm such a person will be restrained by others with a warning. "That person is a good person. Do not try to meddle with that person." Those who lack morality are looked down upon in society as worse than dogs. Hence, one has to develop morality and lead a life of moral principles at all times.

There are three sadhanas (spiritual practices) by which love for God, fear of sin, and morality in society can be developed. They are bhakti (devotion to God), jnana (the path of wisdom), and vairagya (detachment). Karma (activity) is a natural attribute of the physical body. It is only when the body undertakes good karmas that the mind will function well. When the mind is sound, love for God can be developed. Thus bhakti, jnana, and vairagya are interlinked with love for God, fear of sin, and morality in society. They are like the three blades of a fan. It is only when the three blades rotate that we can have refreshing air; otherwise we feel uncomfortable.

People today question why we have to develop love for God. Love for God enables one to develop fear of sin, which in turn will develop morality in society. Everyone has to discriminate between good and bad, sin and virtue. Having analysed, one must try to do good only. Be good, do good, see good, this is the way to God. Devoid of these three, any number of rituals, worship, japa (chanting the divine name) and tapa (penance) will be of no use.

The nine forms of devotion are: sravanam (listening), kirtanam (singing), Vishnusmaranam

(contemplating on Vishnu), Padasevanam (serving His Lotus Feet), vandanam (salutation), archanam (worship), dasyam (servitude), sneham (friendship), and Atmanivedanam (self-surrender).

The first step is sravanam (listening). Then one has to analyse whether what has been listened to is good or bad. If you think that it is a bad suggestion and therefore not to your liking, how can you implement it?

It is possible today that one can get one's work done by speaking untruth and scoring victory over others by false and unjust means. Hence, one has to enquire into the sanctity or otherwise of every act that one undertakes. One should not be complacent about the consequences that would follow; sooner or later, the result of a sinful act would accrue. It may happen now or a little later, at any moment. Hence, be prepared to undertake only good and noble acts with a pure mind.

More than anything else, purity of conscience is of utmost importance. That is Atma Thatthwa (Atmic Principle). Nobody can understand what Atma is. Since the bodies and forms are many, some names have to be given in order to distinguish between them.

However, Atma or Brahma has neither birth nor death, unlike the physical bodies. Hence, no one can identify it as such and such.

Atma, though beyond one's comprehension, has been described as nitya, shuddha, buddha, mukta, nirmala swarupinam (eternal, pure, enlightened, free and embodiment of sacredness). It is niranjanam, sanathana niketanam (unsullied, final abode). There is only one Atma, and it is immanent in all beings. That is the essential nature of the Atma.

A small example; when you place one hundred pots filled with water under the sky on a moonlit night, you will find one moon reflecting in each of those pots. The body is like a pot. It is bound to perish at any time. Then where does the moon (Atma) go? It does not go anywhere. It is there. However, since there is no water (body), it is not reflecting in the water. In the same manner, the Atma is present in every human being.

A person that does not have good character has no morality. A person with no morality does not deserve to be called a human being. We have to earn honour and respect for ourselves in the society. However, we don't find anyone concerned about good name in the society these days.

But people are very particular about who is rich and who is poor. Money comes and goes, but morality comes and grows is the adage. It is, therefore, not correct to aspire for wealth, power, and such other worldly things. All these possessions are transitory. You may try to hold on tightly to them, but they just slip away even without your noticing them.

The Atma, however, is eternal. There is no coming and going for Atma. It always remains an eternal witness to everything that goes on in the world. We have to develop faith in such eternal Atma. Those who develop faith in the Atma Thatthwa will not be disturbed by injustice, wrong, and bad practices.

People say, "My body, my senses, my mind, my intellect," etc., but "you" are none of these. For example, you say, "This is my book." This book is in your hands at this moment. The next moment somebody wishes to have a look at it. It goes into his hands.

Similarly, you hold some currency in your hands. After some time it will go into someone else's hands. It just comes and goes. But, morality comes and grows. Morality has no form.

If someone wishes to improve society and the world, morality has to be developed in the individual first. Several political parties come forward these days saying that they will improve society. They propose to transform society. But they invariably fail because what they try to do is to garner the votes of people for their selfish ends.

They do not at all bother about society.

If you want to transform society, there must be purity in your heart. First, the individual and then society. In order that the individual is transformed, there must be love for God and fear of sin. Then comes morality in society. Individuals make a society. Hence, if unity among people is developed there will be purity and Divinity.

Unity, purity, and divinity cannot be attained by mere education.

Suppose you sit for meditation, closing your eyes. However, the mind goes on wandering everywhere. You try to bring it back to the starting point. It is all a practice. Only when the wavering mind is stilled is meditation possible. This process of making the mind steady is called concentration. Meditation is possible only after concentration.

The proper order is concentration, contemplation, and meditation.

Do not believe someone who claims to be meditating the moment they sit. That is an artificial exercise, not meditation. Real meditation is forgetting oneself totally. It is forgetting dehatma bhava (the feeling of identification with the body) completely.

One has to totally give up attachment to the senses. Then only will the mind be steady.

Once, there was a father who had four sons. Each one wanted to follow a different vocation to earn money. One son wanted to take up business. Another wanted to open a small grocery shop. The third son wanted to take up employment, and the fourth another vocation. Though money earning was the common objective, each one wanted to go in a different path. Finally, it is the means that are adopted for earning money that result in accumulation of virtue or sin. People commit a sin even without their knowing that they are doing so. The sins committed by people will continue to haunt them.

Some time ago, there were heavy floods in the State of Orissa. They ravaged several villages in four districts. The houses, trees, standing crops, even animals, and some people were swept away by the surging flood water. Hundreds of villages were inundated, and people were marooned. They were fear-struck at the fury of nature.

Then I sent a telegram: "Don't worry. Be happy. I will build your houses." The people of Orissa came to see Me, by arranging a special train. The government was there, MPs and MLAs were there, who were expected to come to their rescue in that hour of need and provide succour to them. But none came forward. Immediately I sent ten crores and arranged for distribution of relief material and building of pucca houses for the affected people.

I am not interested in accumulation of money. I want only your love. Be happy. Develop your morality and love for God. If you develop love, that love itself will drive away the demonic qualities in you.

Before the Rama-Ravana war commenced, Hanuman entered Lanka, as part of his mission to search the whereabouts of Sita. After he found Sita, he was on his way back to pass on the information to Sri Rama. He was caught by the demons and brought to the court of Ravana. Ravana was infuriated on seeing Hanuman, who destroyed the beautiful Asokavana while he was returning. Ravana questioned Hanuman, "Who are you? How dare you enter this impregnable city of Lanka?" He underestimated the power of Hanuman and derided him addressing him as an ordinary monkey. Hanuman replied in the same tone as an equal and told Ravana, "The Lord who cut off the ears and nose of your sister has sent me." Ravana was very angry, since no one dared to talk to him in such an undignified manner. In fact, Hanuman used the same language as Ravana did. Ravana felt insulted. Hanuman was not bothered in the least, for he was always chanting Ramanama, which gave him the courage and strength to face any situation. Ravana could not tolerate the impertinence and arrogance of Hanuman and therefore ordered that Hanuman's tail be wrapped with clothes dipped in oil and set on fire. Immediately, clothes soaked in oil were wrapped round the tail of Hanuman and set on fire. Hanuman did not keep quiet. With that burning tail, he jumped from one building to the other and thus set the entire city on fire. Beautiful and palatial buildings studded with precious stones went up in flames within no time. Even Mandodari's palace was engulfed by flames. She came out. People ran helter-skelter here and there. Not a single building was spared from the raging flames. Hanuman then advised Mandodari, "Mother, it is the sin committed by your husband that is responsible for this devastating fire and consequent loss of so many lives and property. Please tell your husband not to commit such heinous sins hereafter. If you can thus save your husband, it amounts to saving yourself and the Rakshasa clan." People have to suffer the consequences of their actions. God is only a witness. Good or bad, one gets the fruit of one's actions. Hence, first and foremost, one has to develop morality, which is based on developing human qualities first. If human qualities are to be developed in a person, one should have love for God. Thus, love for God, fear of sin, and morality in society are interdependent. When there is morality in society, all people will be safe. One important point has to be remembered in this context. You may hide your actions from society, but the omnipresent God knows everything. You will have to suffer the consequences of your actions. It is an immutable law. Hence, if you can do help to others, it is alright. Otherwise just keep silent. Do not harm others. Do not commit a mistake by thought, word and deed. Sometimes, you may not get the result of your actions immediately. It will take some time. But surely the result will follow. People study spiritual texts like the Bhagavad Gita but fail to realise their own innate nature. The Upanishads exhort one, "Dear son, try to realise your own nature first. Know thyself! If you can do that, it amounts to knowing everything." The knowledge of the Self (Atma Bodha) entails realisation, "I am not the body, I am not the mind, I am not the intellect," etc. The mind is like a cloth consisting of threads woven together. How long will this cloth last? As long as the threads are intact. Once you remove the threads, the cloth loses its shape. Or, if you put the cloth in fire, it will be reduced to ashes. People say, "So and so is my wife, so and so my child, so and so is my son-in-law, so and so is my son," etc. These relationships are only illusion. Who are all these people? All are God's property. Everything in this world is God's property; nobody has any right, whatsoever. People fight between themselves claiming rights, thus wasting their time. "Time waste is life waste." In fact, it is not time we are wasting; we are wasting our precious life. In conclusion, I would like to stress once again that you should cultivate love for God, fear of sin, and morality in society. These are valuable assets, which you must always safeguard. If you safeguard these values, they will in turn protect you. You think you have to realise Brahma Thatthwa (the Brahma Principle) today. In fact, Brahman has no name and form. It is nirgunam, niranjanam, sanathana niketanam, nitya, shuddha, buddha, mukta, nirmala swarupinam (God is attributeless, unsullied, final abode, eternal, pure, enlightened, free, and embodiment of sacredness).

The bal vikas children from Tamil Nadu are waiting to present a cultural programme.

Witness that programme. I will continue My Discourse tomorrow.

GURUPURNIMA DIVINE DISCOURSE:

7th July 2009 at Sai Kulwant Hall

BE EXEMPLARS OF SELFLESS SERVICE

(Editors note. On the auspicious Guru Purnima morning, four senior functionaries, namely, Sarvasree A.V. Appa Rao, Financial Controller of the Sri

Sathya Sai Institute of Higher Medical Sciences, A.V. Sathyanarayanamurthy, Senior

Engineer in the Sri Sathya

Sai Institute of Higher Medical Sciences, Prof. Nanjundaiah,

Controller of Examinations,

Sri Sathya Sai University and Prof. A.V. Lakshminarasimham,

Registrar, Sri Sathya Sai

University were felicitated by Bhagawan. In the evening Bhagawan again called Smt. &

Sri. Appa Rao, Smt. & Sri. (Prof.) Nanjundaiah to the dais, to bless them profusely before commencing His Divine Discourse)

Embodiments of Divine Atma!

In the morning there was no time to talk about these people. Ever since our hospital started functioning, Appa Rao has been working there as an auditor. For fourteen years, he worked hard, day and night. I am pleased with his work. He came here with the sole intention of rendering selfless service, not with any other motive.

Those were the initial stages of the Super Speciality Hospital, so there was plenty of work, day and night. He alone had to attend to everything receiving parcels of medicines, checking them and noting them down. In spite of being a non medical person, he worked untiringly taking care of patients also. He is meticulous in checking all details. He has worked with full satisfaction. All these fourteen years, he never aspired for anything.

He did not accept even a naya paisa. Everybody in the hospital earns these days twenty to thirty thousand rupees. But he has not taken any money. He had to climb up and down the stairs many times everyday, while looking after the stores, patients, nurses and doctors as well. He looked after so many things, all alone. He never complained to Me also.

He has been adjusting himself. He has never been deficient in his work. I Myself used to see him now and then to enquire about the work. We should express our gratitude to such a dedicated worker.

With much compassion towards him, I told him, Appa Rao, Now the number of patients coming to our hospital has increased by thousands. Mentally, of course, you are quite alert, but physically you are weak. Therefore, take rest at home. You have come to serve Swami. There was no shortcoming whatsoever in your service.

His wife also supported him and has been taking good care of him at home, looking after his food and other needs meticulously. He has no habit of taking food outside. So, when necessary, she used to send his food to the hospital.

Appa Rao has also been taking care of poor people in many respects. He rendered help in many heart operations to the poor people. He used to send free medicines to the homes of those heart patients even after they were discharged. He worked very hard. My heart melted at his service. How can we leave such a person who worked so hard? Everybody, including students, sought his help. I tell our students often, Help ever, Hurt never.

We do not take even a paisa from anyone for rendering medical services. Our hospital always gives and never takes. He rendered seva (selfless service) with the feeling,

This is my hospital, my Swami's hospital. He considered the hospital as his own and served it selflessly. Even when I was away physically, I helped him in all that he did.

As this is our first Super Speciality Hospital, he had to work very hard for its development. Subsequently, another Super Speciality Hospital has been established in Bangalore. There is an Orthopaedic division also in our hospital here. Appa Rao has been looking after all this. I liked his work.

Before this, he worked for the government. There also, he rendered good service. As he utilised all his experience for the benefit of our hospital, today we have gathered here to honour him.

His younger brother Murthy is an electrical engineer. He is also working with us.

Whenever there is any electrical problem he is called by telephone, and he attends to it immediately. Even at night, he is ever ready to do service.

The youngest brother Lakshminarasimham worked in our university as Registrar. He is also growing older, and needs a little rest. He has not married, so there is no bondage. He has been totally dedicated to our university. He first joined in Seva Dal. He did Ph.D. with the intention of joining our college. These three brothers have been rendering good service. They have been very helpful to us, in spite of many troubles they had to face.

Nanjundaiah has been the controller of examinations. He has been very kind to all students. He has been working day and night in order to declare the results well in time. He never used to take rest even for a while. He would engage himself in correcting papers even while suffering from fever. Everybody was depending upon him. He had to take much trouble in sending results to Anantapur and Bangalore colleges. We were very much concerned at the troubles he had to face. His wife also has been taking good care of him at home, providing timely food and looking after other needs meticulously.

The University has now grown very large. We are receiving more applications as compared to other institutes. Right from big officers to small clerks in India, all have great regard for our institutions. Be it the hospital or the university, there is no habit of taking money for the services rendered in our institutions. We know only to give. In Sai Organisations, there is only giving and no taking.

Recently, we appointed a committee to oversee the working of the Hospital and provide necessary help and guidance. We have procured some new machinery also. We have even imported necessary equipments from abroad. We have in our stock a variety of books. The University has produced many Ph.D.s. This year also, fourteen researchers got Ph.D. degrees.

The students have great faith in these two people. These two have been very helpful to us with regard to hospital services and educational activities. All the responsibility was shouldered by them. They used to send me letters while I was not present here. I used to discuss every detail with them. I used to ask Nanjundaiah about the examination results. The results were always good.

We have now decided not to burden them with these responsibilities any longer. Today, I am thanking and blessing them. These two are foremost among those who have strived hard for our Institutes. Therefore, wherever they are, Swami is always with them, guiding and guarding them. They came here only for the sake of Swami.

Therefore, I wish to provide them with houses and keep them here only. Just as they looked after patients and students, I wish that hereafter also they both extend necessary guidance and help to the newcomers in the respective areas. There is much to learn from these two people. What is this Organisation doing for the society? How is it doing? What is their responsibility in this regard? Such details should be accorded to the newcomers, and necessary zeal and motivation should be inculcated.

The university was started first with undergraduate courses only. Now studies up to Ph.D. level are available.

Our university and hospitals are now being regarded as the best in India. I am very happy that you have contributed much for this name and fame. You always belong to Me.

You have never thought that you are working for the hospital or the college. You have been working with the feeling, This is ours, this is our Swami's. That is why we got all first prizes for the colleges and high reputation for hospitals. Even this information is known only through newspapers; we never proclaimed it in any manner. Our hospitals and university have become very famous indeed.

The students have learnt many things from such people, and have grown up to great heights. Many of them, who are Ph.D.s, have been appointed here so as to lead these institutions. Now many novel subjects have been introduced along with the conventional faculties like B.Com., B.Sc., M.Com., M.Sc., Ph.D., etc. Many deserving students are unable to get admission in other schools and colleges and with great hope are looking at us for help. I told our authorities to take such students also into our fold. We do not have any selfish motive. It is only in consideration of their parents anguish. They have given us the responsibility of looking after the welfare and progress of their children.

Appa Rao and Nanjundaiah must both be given the job of keeping watch with vigilant eyes on the affairs of these institutions. In other institutions, new entrants have to pay money and take receipts. But our hospitals and university have never given a scope for such things. Here everything is free, free, free. People wonder how we are managing these institutions with so many entrants, like this, without taking even a paisa? They just come in their clothing, as we admit them here. We are admitting all, including those who obtained average marks, and we are developing them into First class students.

In other hospitals, patients have to spend thousands of rupees toward heart operations. But we do not charge them even a paisa. For us, love and devotion are important and not other things. Love to love, Heart to heart. We seek only this. They are all deriving great joy. Many patients are coming from Nepal and Bhutan for free treatment. In this endeavour, the students also must extend necessary help to the doctors and other officials. Our hospital and Institutes have been fostered in this manner for the past twenty years.

This trend has to continue in the future also. Without begging anybody, we have made fixed deposits to the tune of twenty or thirty crores for each institute, and they are running on the interest accrued from these deposits. I have made necessary arrangements in this regard. We are paying at par with the Government salaries. Students of our institutes or patients in our hospitals need not worry about anything. We take care of everything.

You must strive to keep everybody happy. Make parents happy. Help your parents. Some parents are being admitted into old age homes when they are short of money. This is not correct. You must provide necessary support to your aged parents. It is your own responsibility to look after your parents. Even though Swami is taking care of your education and other necessities, the aspect of parent s care is your own responsibility.

Parents should not be sent to old age homes. You must keep them with you and serve them.

You must work hard and take good care of them. You need not prepare special items for their sake. It is enough if you can give them whatever you are eating. As soon as students pass the exam and acquire a degree, they go in search of jobs.

When all women go out on jobs, who will look after chores of their homes?

When they go out for teaching other children, who will teach their own children?

When husband and wife go to offices, who will take care of their children?

(Telugu Poem)

Some people are deprived of homely food because there is no one at home to cook food. So they eat whatever they get. Thus, they are spoiling their own health. There is no happiness for a woman who is employed in an office. They spend their valuable time in some clubs. They do not have any consideration for their children in the house and for their timely food. One should give priority to the fostering of the children.

An officer gives a phone call to his house and tells the cook, We have arranged a tea party at home today. Make all arrangements for the party. But there is no tea powder, no sugar, no material for making chapathis or pakodas in the house. This is the kind of situation they have at home. Also, the children s health gets spoiled because of inconsistent food habits and lack of parental care. They drink contaminated water and spoil their health, because there is no one at home to guide them.

Why should the wife go out and work? When she goes to school to teach other children, who will teach her own children? So it is your own duty to take care of your children.

It is equivalent to earning a good salary if you can teach your own children and bring them up well. One feels sorry at the state of a woman who fails to take care of her husband and children. It is enough if you are able to provide proper timely food to your children and take care of their health. If you take up jobs, leaving your children at home, your entire earnings will go toward cooks, baby sitters, and cleaners. The house gets mismanaged. What you spend toward the cook, caretaker, and others will work out to be more than what you earn. You can save so much money if only you attend to your own work. This is the way of life all women must adopt.

The children should also learn to render necessary help at home. As soon as you come home, find out what is available and what is not available? What is needed immediately?

When there is shortage of water, the boy should not keep quiet. He should immediately rush out with a container and fetch water from the available source. He should not feel,

I am educated. Why should I carry water? Family life involves such domestic chores.

Students must learn how to make parents happy. Parents duty is to take care of their children. This is the education that is essential for one and all. After having obtained a Ph.D., one need not go far away for the sake of an extra thousand rupees. If you take care of your children and do service to parents, that itself is a great wealth.

Today, parents are being treated like servants. It is enough if you take care of your parents, your children and the family. That is real education. Getting a first class and struggling for a job is not a wise thing. Whatever job you take up, you must help your parents. This is what you must learn.

Students must emulate people like Appa Rao. Help ever, hurt never. These are the good qualities that you should learn in the Sri Sathya Sai College.

Whenever any poor person comes to you, you must feed them first, even foregoing your meal if necessary. Instead of going to a club and spending money there, it is better to use that money for the sake of the poor. It is necessary that you learn good qualities and habits so that you may improve society.

First of all you must develop love for God, fear of sin, and morality in society. Bad qualities have to be curbed and ethics must be fostered in the society.

When morality is lost, what is the use of any amount of social service you do? These are the lessons that you must learn. When you follow the path of elders such as these, you can reap immense joy and goodness in life. It applies to girls also. You must learn from parents the aspects of service and put them into practice. If you make your parents happy, your children will make you happy.

What is meant by morality? It is not just earning money and depositing in the bank. You must refrain from troubling your parents. When you have love for God, you will have fear of sin. After acquiring morality you may proceed to serve the society at large. When you are unable to attain God's love, how do you expect to win people's love? You must earn name in the society in a way that people talk of you as a good and helpful person. You must learn from parents how to help.

First thing is to develop love for God, fear of sin and morality in society. How can morality be acquired while one is engaged in acts of sin? When you come across elders, always respect and serve them.

Today I am honouring such good people so that you will try to emulate them. This is what gives Me happiness. First take care of your children at home and extend happiness to your parents. How can you be happy while your parents are not happy? If today you love your parents, tomorrow you will receive love from your children. You can be called educated only when you learn these two things. You may acquire big degrees, but who will love you if you do not love your parents? Society will love you when you take good care of your parents. First set your house in order and then think about the progress of society. It is with this purpose that I am honouring today these experienced elders. You should take a lesson from this and follow in the footsteps of the elders.

Realise Atma Thathwa By Constant Practice
by Bhagavan Sri Sathya Sai Baba
Embodiments of Love!

Everyone enquires, "Swami, where is Atma?" They do not understand what Atma is. The Upanishads have dealt at length with the principle of Atma. Unfortunately, today people have not been able to interpret the teachings of the Upanishads properly. The teachings of the Bhagavad Gita, Ramayana, and the Bhagavata have their origin in the Upanishads. Our sages in the ancient times did intense tapas (penance) to understand the nature of Atma and finally declared that Atma was the fundamental basis of everything in the universe. When it assumes a physical body, even while the body undergoes constant change from birth to death, Atma remains as the eternal and changeless principle. The Atma is the source and sustenance for everything. It has no birth and death.

People celebrate different festivals with great enthusiasm. For example, they celebrate the festival of Mahashivarathri. Does it mean Lord Shiva was born on that day? No; the name "Shiva" signifies auspiciousness. The Shiva principle is omnipresent.

It is

Sarvatah Panipadam Tat SarvathokshiSiromukham,

SarvatahSruthimalloke SarvamavrutyaTishthati (Sanskrit verse)

With hands, feet, eyes, head, mouth and ears pervading everything,

He permeates the entire universe.

Whatever is seen by the eyes, heard by the ears, even the words that are spoken - everything is Brahman. There is nothing in the universe that is not Brahman. That is why it is described as

Sabda Brahmayi, Characharamayi, Iyotirmayi, Vangmayi,

Nityanandamayi, Paratparamayi, Mayamayi and Sreemayi

(Sanskrit verse)

Embodiment of sound, mobility and immobility, light, speech, eternal bliss, perfection, delusion and wealth.

No one can say "this is Brahman and this is not." For example this handkerchief is also Brahman. From where did this handkerchief originate? It is made out of threads. The threads in turn originated from cotton. Since the threads are woven together, it has assumed the form of a cloth. The cloth thus woven out of cotton threads can be made into a dhoti or a sari or a shirt.

Some people say that the mind is the origin for the entire universe. This is not true.

Even the mind has a source on which it depends. No doubt the mind is very strong and powerful, but even such a mind has originated from Atma only. The mind directs all activities in the physical world. It is very unsteady and is changing continuously. That is why it is called "monkey mind".

Atma is the source and sustenance for the body, mind, intellect, chitta (consciousness).

Viveka (discrimination), vijnana (higher wisdom), and suinana (the science of consciousness). All have originated from Atma only. All these assume a particular form at a particular time, like an infant, a child, a boy, a young man and an old person in the life of a human being. These different forms at different stages have no independent existence. It is a transition from one stage to the other. However, the Atma is the source and sustenance for all these entities. It is the fundamental principle.

In order to understand this fundamental principle, people ascribed different names to it. Some called it Aum, the primordial sound. Others called it

Thathtwamasi (That Thou

Art). Yet others called it Brahman. Some others gave it some names like Rama, Krishna, Allah, Easwara, and Jesus. These different names and forms are given for the purpose of identification only. Divinity, however, has no name and form. The names and forms ascribed to God are based upon one's liking for a particular name or form.

Some people desire to worship God as Venkateswara and realise Him in that form. Who created that form? It is the human mind that picturised God in that form; for example, painters like the famous Ravi Varma. He painted God in different forms - Rama, Krishna, etc. These are all man-made, but not original. You may worship God as Rama, Krishna, or Shiva and realise Him in that form. But, fundamentally, God is one and only one. He is formless, nameless, and attributeless Brahman. This fundamental truth has been explained in the aphorism, Ekameva Adviteeyam Brahma (God is one without a second).

Yet, different people at different times are deluded by names and forms. One can say it is all their imagination. In fact, that imagination itself is the root cause for all the troubles in the world. Though names and forms are different, God is only one.

You think so and so is bad and he looks bad. On the other hand, if you think that he is a good person, he will really appear good. It is your feeling toward him that makes all the difference between good and bad. These are all born out of your thoughts, for which the mind is the source. Hence, you have to take things as they are.

You think you are meditating on a particular form or object. Really speaking, it is not meditation. The form or object on which you are supposed to be meditating may change after sometime. Hence, it is not meditation in the real sense. It is not concentration either. It is just contemplation, for a particular time frame. When the object

stabilises after regular practice, you can meditate.

It is not possible for anyone to meditate the moment one sits for meditation. No one ever succeeded in such an attempt. People say they are meditating, but it is artificial.

Artificial meditation is really bad. There are three steps in the process:

concentration, contemplation, and meditation. It is a gradual process achieved by systematic and regular abhyasa (practice). This abhyasa yoga and theconsequent peace attained by a person has been beautifully explained in the Bhagavad Gita thus:

Sreyohi Inanamabhyasat

Inanaddhyanam Vishishyate

Dhyanat Karmaphala Thyaga

Thyagat Santhiranantaram. (Sanskrit verse)

Better indeed is knowledge than practice.

Better than knowledge is meditation on God.

But better than meditation is renunciation of the desire for the fruits of actions.

For peace follows peace immediately.

A newborn child does not become an adult immediately but gradually grows into an adult.

It is a mistake to think that whatever you wish becomes fruitful. If that is so, there would be no human effort at all! There would be no meaning for human existence.

Hence, first and foremost, concentrate upon the "I" principle.

Constantly

contemplate on the aphorism, "I am Atma." You and Atma are one only, not two different entities.

Today, every action of a human being is leading to confusion, which in turn leads to depression. What is the reason for this sequence of events? Your own unsteady nature. In fact, the entire environment in the world is undergoing change. There is change in water, air, clouds, and even food. When everything around you is changing, naturally it will have its effect on you. Your mind is also undergoing change in tune with the changes around. There is only one changeless principle: constant integrated awareness (Prajanam).

The Upanishads declare Prajanam Brahma (Brahman is Supreme Consciousness). If you wish to attain that state, you must develop Ekatmabhava (feeling of oneness). Though the bodies are different, only one Atma dwells in all living beings. The human bodies are like the pots and the mind therein is water. The one moon is reflected in all the pots.

It is only reaction, reflection, and resound, everywhere.

Dear children! You will not be able to understand the Atma Thathwa (Atma Principle).

Atma is not merely a word comprising two letters. It connotes developing Ekatmabhava.

All are one, be alike to everyone. How can you develop faith in this maxim? A small example. You are doing a particular work. Your neighbour has undertaken a different job.

Though you both undertook different jobs, the environment in which you are performing the jobs is the same. Atma is the consciousness that pervades everywhere. That all-pervading principle is Truth.

The creation emerges from truth and merges into truth,

Is there a place in the cosmos where truth does not exist?

Visualise this pure and unsullied truth. (Telugu poem)

The entire universe is permeated by Truth. It is above, below, and on all sides. That sathya (truth) is Atma. It is eternal and changeless. The epic Bhagavata enjoins on us to speak truth and speak sweetly and softly. Sathyam bruyath, priyam bruyath, na bruyath

sathyamapriyam (speak truth, speak pleasantly, and do not speak unpalatable truth).

Truth is the source and sustenance for everything in the universe. Where there is sathya, there will be dharma. Where sathya and dharma go together, peace is the result.

Where there is peace, there cannot be krodha (anger), taapa (agitation), eershya (envy), asuva (jealousy), and damba (conceit). Such peace devoid of these bad qualities transforms itself into pure love.

Once Hanuman entered the city of Lanka in search of Sita, who was abducted by Ravana and kept in confinement there. He searched for Sita in every street and every building, but could not find her. However, he could find the rakshasa ladies in awkward postures. He decided for himself that Sita was a noble lady and would not stoop down to such a level.

Unable to find Sita anywhere, Hanuman lamented, "I have searched for her in every house and even in flower gardens. I am yearning to see her."

Then he went into the Asokavana and found Sita sitting under a tree. He felt extremely happy to find her and in that joyous mood started pulling down fruit-bearing trees and

deforming the beautiful garden. This act of impertinence of Hanuman infuriated the demons, and he was taken to Ravana's court duly bound by ropes. In the royal court of the demon king Ravana, he picked up an argument with him over the propriety of his heinous act of abducting Sita. He addressed Ravana in a most humiliating manner. Ravana could not tolerate the impertinent and arrogant behaviour of Hanuman. He became very angry and warned Hanuman, "You monkey! No one, not even kings, dared to address me in such humiliating language. I will see that your mouth is shut right now." Hanuman retorted, "You are a demon, whereas I am servant of an Emperor who rules the fourteen lokas (worlds). You cannot do anything to me." Ravana could not contain his anger any more and ordered that Hanuman's tail be wrapped with clothes soaked in oil and set fire to. Immediately, the demons brought some old clothes, wrapped them round his tail, poured oil on them, and set fire to the tail. Hanuman then jumped from one building to the other with the burning tail and set fire to all the buildings in Lanka. Very soon, the flames spread everywhere, and it looked as though the entire city was going up in flames. All the residents in the city came out into the streets in great panic. They were wondering and discussing among themselves, "Who is this monkey? Wherefrom has it come? Who sent it? Our entire city is burning. Where can we go now?" Even Mandodari's palace was not spared. The entire city including the buildings and personal belongings of the residents were reduced to ashes. Only one house in Lanka, that of Vibhishana, was safe. Thus, the residents of Lanka had to pay for their sins. The Law of Karma is immutable and inescapable. People have to suffer the consequences of their evil deeds. Whatever one does, whether good or bad, will come back to him. When man emerges from the womb of his mother, he does not find any garland around his neck. There are no jewels made of pearls, nor are there glittering gold ornaments. There are no necklaces studded with precious stones like emeralds and diamonds. But there is one garland around his neck.

Brahma strings together the consequences of his past deeds into a heavy garland and puts it around his neck at the time of his birth. (Telugu poem) Thus, the results of our past karmas (actions) haunt us. Suppose you have eaten pakoda in your house, after some time, you will get a belch of pakoda only. Similarly, you get the results of your past karmas only. Hence, your actions must always be good. In order that one always undertakes good karmas (actions), one must cultivate Daiva preeti, papa bheeti and sangha neeti (love for God, fear of sin, and morality in society). If one can cultivate these three, one will be able to keep oneself away from indulging in bad deeds. Love for God, fear of sin, and morality in society are all interdependent. One follows the other. Namasmarana (repetition of the Name) would help cultivate these noble qualities. That is why I repeatedly exhort you to do namasmarana incessantly. Namasmarana is the means by which one can cross the ocean of samsara (the objective world). If one has to realise Atma Thathwa, one must seek refuge in Atma only. Once you realise the Atma Thathwa, you will yourself become Atma. You have to constantly contemplate upon the Upanishadic declaration, Aham Brahmasmi (I am Brahman). You have to remind yourself, "I am not a human, I am not a rakshasa (demon), I am Atma." I wish that students should gradually give up loose talk and unnecessary activities. Your speech should be good; your vision should be good; your thoughts should also be good. Only when your thoughts, words, and deeds are good and in perfect harmony will you become a good person. The sacred texts like Ramayana, Mahabharata, and the Bhagavad Gita teach the same. First and foremost, develop love for God. If only you have love for God, it amounts to having everything. If you wish to attain Atma Thathwa, you have to constantly contemplate upon Atma. Once you experience Atma Thathwa, you will yourself become Brahman. In order to get that experience, there should be regular practice. One does a lot of practice even for attaining simple things in daily life. Without practice, nothing can be achieved in life; you will commit mistakes.

First and foremost, learn to live like real human beings, constantly reminding yourself,
"I am a human being, I am not an animal, I am not a cruel beast." From humanness, you have to rise to the level of Divinity. Do not degenerate to the level of an animal or beast. In fact, all Avatars come only to raise the level of consciousness of human beings to that of Divinity, only to transform humans into divine beings.

When you follow God's instructions meticulously and undertake activities that would please Him, you will surely become God, verily. It is not a difficult task.

Constant practice will enable you to reach your goal. On the other hand, if you follow bad people, you will also become bad. "Tell me your company, I shall tell you what you are," is the saying. As is your company, so you shall become.

The Formless Assumes Forms To Sustain Morality
by

Bhagavan Sri Sathya Sai Baba

Bharat is the motherland of many noble souls who earned great name and fame in all the continents of the world.

This is the land of valorous people who vanquished foreign rulers and attained Independence.

This is the land that excelled in music, literature, and other fine arts.

Having been born in this great land of Bharat, oh boys and girls, it is your sacred duty to protect its rich cultural heritage.

(Telugu poem)

The children of Bharath have celebrated the festival of Vinayaka

Chathurthi in a grand manner. It was a happy occasion for all.

Embodiments of love, Dear students,

Who is Vinayaka? One has to realise this aspect in the first instance.

Vinayaka is the Lord of the universe. He has no leader above Him. He himself is the leader for all. He is the Master of the universe. It is one's misfortune to forget such a Master.

The food that Lord Vinayaka takes is very sacred and refined. It has no oil content at all. Nine varieties of cereals are soaked in water and ground.

Thereafter, the paste so prepared is made into "kudumulu" (modakas) and cooked by steaming. This is the food that is offered to Lord Vinayaka. It is also called "undrallu". Since it is cooked in steam with practically no oil content, it is most healthy.

Lord Vinayaka is omnipresent. He communicates by His silence.

Even His commands are by silent communication. His movements are subtle. Wherever you see, you can find Him blessing and guiding His devotees on the right path.

The omnipresent Lord Vinayaka can be worshipped by one and all irrespective of religion, nation, and region to which one may belong. He is the Lord of learning and good behaviour; hence, every human being interested in good education and conduct can worship

Him and seek His blessings.

It is a mistaken notion to confine Lord Vinayaka to the Hindu pantheon of gods in Bharath (India). It is not true. He is the Lord of the universe, verily, and its leader.

That is why He is called "Vinayaka" (one who has no leader above Him). By contemplating on such a Lord, all our sins will be destroyed. In fact, Lord Vinayaka is our very life-breath. It is sheer ignorance to worship such a great Lord of the universe as a mere idol made of some earthen material or some metal.

Vinayaka is your leader who leads you on the right path. You must therefore develop the feeling and awareness that Lord Vinayaka is within you and with you, constantly guiding you on the Godward path.

The idols of Lord Vinayaka seated on beautifully decorated chariots were brought into this hall in a procession yesterday by the students. Later, they were taken for immersion. What is the inner meaning of this ritual? Why are the idols of Vinayaka immersed in water? The immersion ceremony reminds us of the omnipresent nature of Lord

Vinayaka. For, once the idols are immersed in the flowing river, they merge in water and spread everywhere. For example, when you mix sugar in water it merges into it and spreads everywhere. Similarly, Lord Vinayaka worshipped in the form of an idol would reveal His real nature of omnipresence after merging in water.

Lord Vinayaka constantly protects His children. He will always be with them. In fact, children are the property of Lord Vinayaka. Every human being should emulate His example. Children should never forget their parents, since all their life and education are the gift of their parents. Lord Vinayaka bestows siddhi and buddhi (wisdom and intellect) on His children who worship Him. Everything will accrue to the person whose buddhi is straight.

Lord Vinayaka has a trunk, which He uses for breathing, drinking, and taking food.

If one enquires into the nature of Lord Vinayaka properly, it would be obvious that He is omnipresent. He is primordial. That is why Lord Vinayaka is worshipped before commencing any work. Even the food one takes will be offered to Him first.

There is a tradition among the Bharathiyas (Indians) to worship Lord Vinayaka before commencing even a small work. You might have observed that the musicians start their concert by singing a prayer to Lord Vinayaka. Even our students commence their bhajans with a prayer to Lord Vinayaka. In fact, Lord Vinayaka is the leader of your life, who leads and guides you through.

It is not enough to simply worship Him on one festival day like Vinayaka Chavithi. There is nothing like a particular day for the worship of the Lord like Chavithi (4th day before the full moon fortnight), Ashtami (8th day), Navami (9th day), etc. Sarvada sarva kaleshu sarvatra Hari chintanam (always, at all times, under all circumstances contemplate on God) is the command. Since it may not be possible for people to perform elaborate worship to Lord Vinayaka on all days, three days, five days or ten days are prescribed for one's convenience.

The food offered to Lord Vinayaka is healthy, simple, and easy to cook. Lord Vinayaka is portrayed as having a large belly. Though a variety of dishes are offered to Him, He does not take any of those items. The devotion of people is His food. The nature of Divinity is that He always gives but does not take anything in return from His devotees.

Lord Vinayaka is the source and sustenance of all forms of life. He controls the lives and destiny of all beings. In fact, the entire universe is supported by Lord Vinayaka.

If control is not in the hands of Vinayaka, there will be only vinashana (destruction).

It is a fact that people cannot live without air. It is the very life principle not only of humans but of all living beings. Lord Vinayaka permeates this life principle. He is the very embodiment of our breath. He is the Soham Tattwa (Soham Principle), verily.

The breathing process consists of three actions: puraka (inhaling), kumbhaka (holding the breath), and rechaka (exhaling). The regulation of these three actions is called pranayama. The processes of inhaling, retention, and exhaling of the air must be regulated in such a way that equal time is taken for each process and that the entire exercise is done in a natural manner without any strain. Then only is dhyana (meditation) possible.

Lord Vinayaka is the presiding deity of pranayama. He confers vidya (education) and siddhi (success in aim) on people. That is why He is extolled as Siddhi Vinayaka. These two are of utmost importance to a human being. Since there is none to explain this secret, people celebrate the festival of Vinayaka Chaturthi in a casual manner without realising its underlying significance.

It is customary in Bharath for the elephants to lead the ceremonial processions in any temple. We should realise the significance of an elephant leading the procession. Of all the beasts, the elephant is the largest in size. Once an elephant walks along a particular path, the footprints of all other beasts including that of a lion or a tiger will be erased by those of the elephant. The path made by an elephant even in a thick forest could be used by vehicles like a chariot in the earlier days or a car or a bus in modern times. That is why the marriage procession of Sri Rama in the Treta Yuga was led by an elephant brigade. The scene of that ceremonial procession was beautifully described thus:

Chariots, elephants, and horses,

The entire army of Dasaratha followed

The elderly Sage Viswamitra,

Emperor Dasaratha and his ministers too accompanying

The marriage procession of Sri Rama moved on.

What a beautiful sight to behold!

(Telugu poem)

The elephant is such a majestic animal that its very trumpeting can silence the noise of all other animals, including the dog. The call of an elephant is so majestic and powerful. Lord Vinayaka has the face of such a majestic and sacred animal.

Unfortunately, one does not realise the greatness and significance of His form and worships His idol in a casual and routine manner.

Not only Vinayaka but all physical forms attributed to divinity convey some deep spiritual meaning. However, God is not confined to mere physical form. Divinity has neither birth nor death, for it transcends physical form. For example, who is Brahman? It is not the four-headed divine form that is usually associated with the creation. It is the Transcendental Principle that goes beyond name, form, and attributes. The primordial sound Aum is nameless and formless, as is the inhaling and exhaling process referred to as soham (I am that). Brahman has neither birth and death nor beginning and end. It is the Eternal Transcendental Principle that permeates the entire universe. Neither birth nor death for Him, the Eternal One, Neither beginning nor middle nor end for Him, the Ancient One, Neither He takes birth nor dies nor is killed, The all-pervading Atma is everywhere As a witness to everything. (Telugu poem) Never forget such a Divinity. The one divine Principle is present in every human being, nay in every living being. In fact, Divinity has to be understood as the principle of unity in diversity. Unity is Brahman. Dear Students! It is mere illusion to confine Divinity to one form like Rama, Krishna, Vinayaka, etc. If you make proper enquiry, it would be clear that the physical forms of Divinity are of human creation. They are born out of one's own imagination. No one has ever been able to visualise the nameless, formless, and attributeless Divinity. For example, the artist Ravi Varma portrayed Divinity in different forms like Rama, Krishna, etc. based on his imagination and the descriptions contained in the epics and spiritual texts. But no one has ever been able to visualise God in a physical form. Yet, the physical form has an underlying meaning. For the physical form cannot exist without a meaning. Never forget the physical form. It is only from the physical form that morality spreads. The physical form sustains and propagates morality in the world by its own personal example. Thereby, morality gains strength in the world. I was very happy to witness the enthusiasm of the students in celebrating the Vinayaka Nimajjanam ceremony. I am happy that the students have been able to understand the Vinayaka Tattwa (Principle) at least to a certain extent. No one can understand the true nature of Divinity without understanding the spirit behind the different spiritual activities. One has to understand who Lord Vinayaka is, in the real sense. When you realise that He is the omnipresent leader, you can understand His divine nature well. You have to celebrate different festivals with proper understanding of their spiritual significance. 29 August 2009, Conference on Ethics and the World of Finance Date: 29 Aug 2009 Occasion: Conference on Ethics and World of Finance Place: Prasanthi Nilayam Uphold Ethics and Morality Always by Bhagavan Sri Sathya Sai Baba The body is made up of five elements and is bound to perish sooner or later, but the indweller has neither birth nor death. The indweller has no attachment whatsoever and is the eternal witness. Truly speaking, the indweller, who is in the form of the Atma, is verily God Himself. (Telugu poem) The Dehi (Indweller) has no bondages. Dehi is also referred to as Atma or Brahman. Embodiments of Love! People worship God in several ways and develop faith in Him. However, God has no name or form. He is one and only one. Yet, people call Him by different names like Rama, Krishna, Allah, Jesus, etc. These are all their individual fancies, but God has no particular name. God is one. Ekam Sath viprah bahudha vadanti (truth is one, but the wise refer to it by various names). The one God is referred to and worshipped by various names and forms. These forms ascribed to God are the result of one's imagination and as portrayed in some paintings. In fact, no one has ever visualised God. In whichever form one contemplates on God, He will manifest in that form. God is one, not two! Every individual refers to themselves as "I", "I", "I". This "I" refers to the individual ego, born out of attachment to the body. When this deha bhava is removed (crossed), one becomes the Dehi (Indweller). You become God, verily. Divinity transcends name and form. Since time immemorial, people contemplated, worshipped, served, and longed for such a transcendental Divinity.

People have many desires in this material world. Emperor

Dharmaraja had only one desire:

playing the game of dice. He was very fond of this game. The Kauravas noticed this weakness of Dharmaraja. They contrived to trap him by making use of this weakness. Their maternal uncle Sakuni instigated and advised them, "Go and invite Dharmaraja for a game of dice."

Sakuni was an adept in this game, and he could easily defeat his opponents by foul means. Duryodhana and his brothers were on one side and Dharmaraja was on the other. The dice used in this game were manipulated to enable them to score a victory each time the game was played. As a result, Dharmaraja lost the game every time.

He lost his empire, his brothers, himself, and even Droupadi. The Kauravas annexed his empire and took control over Dharmaraja's brothers and wife Droupadi. They dragged her to the royal court.

Droupadi then posed a question to the honourable members and elders in the assembly whether Dharmaraja pawned himself first and then lost her or vice-versa. If Dharmaraja

pawned himself first and lost the game, he had no right to pawn

Droupadi. Moreover,

Droupadi was the wife of not only Dharmaraja but all the five brothers. Did they give their consent to pawn Panchali (the wife of five brothers) by Dharmaraja in this game of dice? No one in that august assembly dared to answer the subtle points raised by Droupadi. They did not open their mouths.

Dronacharya, in his youth one day, went to King Drupada to ask for the gift of a cow.

Because the king refused to make the gift, Dronacharya in his anger left Panchala with his belongings and wife and child. As he was walking toward Hastinapura, he encountered the Pandava and Kaurava children playing in a field near a well. Coming near the children, who had surrounded the well, Dronacharya enquired, "My

dear children, what is the matter? Why are you all standing around the well in this manner? What has happened?"

The children replied in one voice, "Swami, our ball fell into this well."

Dronacharya then pacified them saying, "Do not worry, I will take the ball out." So saying, He pulled an arrow and shot at the ball. The arrow stuck to the ball. Then he shot another arrow which stuck to the first arrow. In this manner, he released a number of arrows one after the other and finally with the help of the arrows made into a pole, he pulled out the ball and handed it over to the children. Seeing this wonderful feat of Dronacharya, they fell at his feet. They realised that they had at last found someone who was an expert in archery. They conveyed this news to Bhishma, who appointed Dronacharya as the teacher of both Kauravas and Pandavas.

Among the children, Arjuna particularly learnt the skills of archery fast and became an expert in a short time, winning the affection and admiration of Guru

Dronacharya. In fact, he made his Guru proud and famous by his skills. This had made Aswatthama, the son of Dronacharya, jealous. From then onward, he bore a grudge against Pandavas, particularly Arjuna. During the Mahabharata war, he joined the Kauravas and fought against the Pandavas. One night, during the war, he stealthily entered the camp of the

Pandavas and massacred the Upapandavas (young children of Pandavas) mercilessly under the cover of darkness. As he was about to escape, he was tracked down by Arjuna, who dragged him into the presence of Droupadi. Instead of becoming angry and cursing the evil doer and pronouncing punishment on him, she fell at the feet of Aswatthama, the son of her husband's most revered Guru and said:

It is at the feet of your father Dronacharya

that my husbands learnt all that they know.

Being the son of Dronacharya, is it proper to kill my innocent children?

How could you have the heart to kill them, who were unarmed, young, quietly asleep, were not having any enmity against you and were not contemplating any harm to you?

(Telugu poem)

When Droupadi was thus pleading with Aswatthama, Bhima could not bear to see this.

Exploding with anger, he roared:

This Droupadi is a stupid woman,

for she pleads for the freedom of this wretch. She feels no anger against this murderer of her sons. This assassin is not a Brahmin; do not release him, kill him.

If you do not do that, I will myself kill him

with my powerful fist.

(Telugu poem)

Aswatthama was trembling with fear and felt helpless. Consumed with rage, Arjuna was about to attack Aswatthama. Droupadi then raised both her hands and pleaded with Arjuna thus:

Oh, Phalguna! It is not righteous to kill a person who is afraid or has lost courage, who is asleep or intoxicated, who seeks refuge or is a female.

You should not kill Aswatthama for, he is the son of your preceptor. (Telugu poem)

Droupadi then fell at his feet and reasoned with him: "Arjuna, will my sons be revived by killing Aswatthama? His mother would experience the same kind of sorrow that I am now undergoing. Having studied the Vedas and Sastras, how is it that you are not able to maintain your tranquillity?" Thus, Droupadi pleaded with Arjuna to forgive Aswatthama for his heinous act.

Arjuna retorted, "You are preventing me from keeping up my vow."

Droupadi replied, "Tonsuring his head and removing the crown jewel from his head is equivalent to killing him." Arjuna then agreed to her pleadings, and as a token of punishment shaved Aswatthama's head, took his crown jewel, and set him free. "There is no use brooding over the past. Past is past; forget the past," is the advice given by Droupadi to Arjuna. On the advice of Droupadi, Arjuna suppressed his emotion.

Just now, an economist who participated in the conference mentioned the theme "Ethics and Finance". Arjuna followed the ethics and saved the life of Aswatthama, forgetting the loss of the Upapandavas.

To save the life of a fellow human being is far superior to accumulating wealth. Several such incidents of nobility are to be found in the Mahabharata and the Bhagavata. There are many such noble women like Droupadi. She was broad-minded and of noble character. It is only because of such women that the country of Bharat has achieved great progress from age to age and attained the pre-eminent position of today.

Unfortunately, the Bharatiyas (Indians) have forgotten their glorious past. They are now like a mighty elephant who is unaware of its innate strength. In the supremely holy land of Bharat, tolerance is the towering quality of our character. What is the real beauty

in a human being? It is not the beauty of the physical body. It is the quality of tolerance that confers real beauty on an individual. Our culture of Bharat has given utmost importance to the quality of tolerance. This has been our tradition since ages.

One has to therefore uphold one's rich tradition of purity and tolerance. A true

Bharatiya is one who protects these two qualities. He is not a human who lacks morality.

Money comes and goes, but morality comes and grows. Hence, one has to protect one's morality. That is the real quality of a Bharatiya. Only the one who is endowed with a noble character is eligible to be called a Bharatiya.

Just as an elephant is not aware of its innate strength and meekly submits itself to the commands of the mahout, the Bharatiyas of today forget their innate strength and purity and are imitating the western culture. Though they are endowed with great strength and have mastered the Vedas, the Upanishads, and the scriptures, they are aping the western culture forgetting their own greatness. It does not behoove of the people of such a great nation. You have to realise the greatness of your culture and follow your conscience.

Unfortunately, people today do not follow their conscience. It is not out of ignorance but innocence!

If you continue to imitate the western culture, your own strength will gradually diminish. Therefore, do not imitate others. Observe restraint. For example, the lion attacks an animal only when it is hungry. It does not go about killing every animal that it comes across. Thus, even a wild beast like the lion has the capacity to restrain itself. Hence, it is necessary for every human being to observe restraint and certain limits. Limitless ego, anger, and desire will only lead you astray.

You have to divert your mind from such a situation and follow the noble path so that you do not cause harm to others nor do you suffer in the process. Do not utilise your strength and power indiscriminately. You see the modern children enjoying unrestrained freedom. Freedom no doubt is good and permissible but should be within a limit. Then only does it acquire value. Trying to amass wealth and being over-smart will only lead

you to danger.

You must have seen in newspapers how America indulged in colossal wastage of its money and resources in waging wars against Iran, Iraq, and other nations.
What could America

gain from this? Today the American economy has slowed down and there is recession in the country. It is all due to their improper usage of resources.

Take for example, Lord Easwara. He is mighty and all-powerful. Yet,
He uses His all-pervading power only to the extent necessary. He does not use His power

indiscriminately. One must emulate His example and make proper use of one's strength and resources only to the extent necessary.

Do not waste your thoughts, for it makes your mind unsteady and wavering. (Showing His handkerchief) What is this? This is a cloth. No, this is not a cloth but a bundle of threads. Not even threads, it is just cotton. Without cotton, there can be no threads, and without threads there can be no cloth. Likewise, the mind is nothing but a bundle of thoughts. Therefore, put a check on your thoughts. Even the wealth you acquire and the food you eat must be within a certain limit. Food is God, do not waste

it.

Help others, never hurt them. "Help Ever, Hurt Never." These are some of the guidelines for a purposeful living that you must follow. He is a blessed one who conducts himself

in such a way that he does not hurt others nor does get hurt in the process. You have to learn these skills, which are not available in the textbooks. Watch your thoughts and see that they do not go astray. Each time a thought arises in your mind, analyse it. "Is it good or bad?" If you feel it is bad, do not allow it to persist. Just let it pass. If it is a good thought, put it into practice so that you and others also will be benefited.

In the conference held yesterday and today, certain guidelines for the efficient

functioning of the banks in the country have been deliberated upon.
Whatever actions you perform must be in a spirit of self-improvement. Do not be under the impression that you are serving the organisation; rather you are serving yourself by your sincere efforts.

Do not at all give room for ego and pride.

By depositing your savings in the bank, it is not the bank but you who will benefit, for it will come back to you only. In the same way, you will benefit by the good you do to others. You are doing it for your own good life.

If you want to earn a good name in society, cultivate three principles:

Daiva preeti,

papa bheeti, and sangha neeti (love for God, fear of sin, and morality in society). If you foster morality in society, people will gather around you treating you as a good person. First and foremost, develop love for God. The next is fear of sin. It is only when you cultivate this quality that you will become a person of character. When you have a noble character, the entire society will love you. None will hate you. Maintain good character and love all. Love is everywhere and God is everywhere. Hence, love all.

The more you love others, the more your reputation will go up in the society.

If you commit a mistake or indulge in an evil deed, others will try to imitate you.

Hence, be good, do good, and see good. This is the way to God. Only when you conduct

yourself in such a manner will you earn a good name in society.

You cannot learn these things from a textbook. It is not textual information. It relates to the purity of heart. You should develop such sacredness.

Unfortunately, there are only secrets but no sacredness anywhere. This is not good. If you smoke a cigarette,

your friend too will come to you and say, "Hello, you are a good boy.
Give me also one cigarette."

As is your company, so will be your behaviour. "Tell me your company, I shall tell you what you are." If your company is bad, you become a bad person. If you are good, others

will follow your example and become good.

Today, you find that several companies have closed their operations.
What could be the reason for this? If one company is following foul methods, other companies will also follow suit. It is a common thing that bad habits spread quickly and easily. You have therefore to be cautious and strive for good things to happen. Do not be hasty to imitate bad things. "Haste makes waste, waste makes worry, therefore, do not be in a hurry."

Dear children, you are all very young. Start doing good work right from this age. Set an example to others. Do service to society. It is society that protects you.

Even before you start doing social service, there are four persons whom you should revere and respect: mother, father, preceptor, and God in that order. First and foremost, the mother is very important. Make her happy. If your mother is happy, your entire life will be happy. If you make her unhappy, you will suffer. Hence, keep her happy and contented at all times. The happiness of the mother is your happiness. She will protect you always. It is the mother who gave birth to you and brought you up. She may reprimand you and even beat you when she is angry with you. But her anger is only momentary. You should not feel for it. The temporary anger will not last long. Realise the fact that anger, ego, jealousy, etc., are all temporary phases. Even lust is momentary. These are all temporary and hence they come and go. They are not permanent. But one principle, Atma Tattwa, is everlasting. Develop love for one and all. Love, Love, Love! "Love All and Serve All." Love is your only property that lasts for ever. There is nothing greater than love, and you don't need anything greater too. Plunge into service with a feeling, "Service is God; Service is my Life." Service should not be undertaken with an expectation of remuneration. "Money comes and goes, but morality comes and grows." Do not be elated when you get money or depressed when you lose money. The difference between money and morality is: money comes and goes whereas morality comes and grows. Dear children, today is a very happy day. Pray that occasions like this should reoccur wherever you may be. God is your sole refuge wherever you may be, In a forest, in the sky, in a city or a village, on the top of a mountain or in the middle of a deep sea. (Telugu poem) God is always with you, above you, behind you. He will always protect you. Develop this firm faith in your heart. God's grace is not transitory. He will always be with you. You are all good children, I know. Conduct yourself as good children always.

(Bhagawan concluded His discourse with two bhajans, "Hari bhajan bina sukha santhi

nahin" and "Subrahmanyam, Subrahmanyam".)

Develop Qualities of Humility and Obedience

Besides Morality in Society

by

Bhagavan Sri Sathya Sai Baba

Man is born out of, grows in, and finally departs from this world due to karma.

Karma is verily the embodiment of Divinity for man.

It is due only to karma that happiness and sorrow occur in this world.

(Telugu poem)

Embodiments of Love!

Dear devotees of Kerala! Emperor Bali used to rule the state of Kerala in ancient times.

He used to treat his subjects as his own family members and provide several conveniences for their happy and comfortable living. He used to develop sacred feelings among the people and create a proper environment to foster them.

In order that the people tread the right path and to set an example to them, he once started a yajna (ritual, sacrifice) by name "Viswajit". Several people gathered to witness that event. Emperor Bali performed the yajna on a grand scale by donating land and money to several people and gave away gifts to a number of people on the occasion. During the Yajna, his family members were also seated on the Yajna Vedita along with him.

While everyone was watching the grand spectacle, a handsome boy entered the sacrificial hall holding a small umbrella made of palmirah leaves. As He was approaching the altar, Emperor Bali's daughter Ratnamala saw Him. She was captivated by the beauty and effulgence of that charming young boy. Immediately, she was lost in deep contemplation, thinking, "How fortunate it would be if I had a child like Him!" The boy went straight to the altar. While everyone present in the sacrificial hall was watching happily,

Emperor Bali welcomed Him, washed His feet reverentially, offered a garland, and asked Him to sit on an ornate chair. He then asked the young boy, "Who are You? Where did You come from and why?"

The young boy replied, "I have heard that Emperor Bali is doing several acts of charity.

I too have a desire to be fulfilled."

The Emperor then asked, "What is it?"

The boy replied, "I don't need much. I will be happy if small piece of land

measuring three feet is given to Me in charity."

Emperor Bali wondered, "What! Such a small request! I thought You would ask for some big things. I am surprised at your small request. Is that enough? You may ask for something more."

The young boy replied that it would be enough if His request is fulfilled. He covered the entire earth with one step and the sky with the second and was waiting to take the third step. But there was no space left for the third step.

Emperor Bali then told the boy, "Dear one! You covered the entire Earth with one step and the sky with the second. Now there is no space to set the third step. Hence, put Your foot on my head, if You wish." So saying, he bent his head before the boy, who was none other than Lord Vishnu come in the form of Vamana Avatar.

The moment Lord Vamana set His foot on the head of Emperor Bali, Bali was pushed down under its weight to the nether world! That was how Lord Vishnu liberated Bali.

The people of Emperor Bali's Kingdom were very sad at the developments. They expressed their feelings of forlornness thus: "Oh God! Our Emperor is no more with us.

He used to rear us like his own children. He is our protector. How can you live without him?" Their helplessness and agony over the separation from their beloved King were very painful. The happy event of Yajna being celebrated on a grand scale came to an abrupt end. This is an example of the saying, "Pleasure is an interval between two pains."

As the people were thus grieving, Emperor Bali declared from the nether world, "Oh my dear children! You are all very dear to me. I will always look after your welfare, wherever I am. I will see that you do not undergo any trouble. I will protect you. You need not feel that I am away from you in a different world. Every year on this day, I shall come and see you. Commemorate this day of my coming as a festival. Take a head bath, wear new clothes, and enjoy a feast with a variety of dishes on this day."

Since then, the people of Kerala celebrate that day as 'Onam festival' in remembrance of their most beloved King and protector Bali.

Emperor Bali used to do a lot of good work for the benefit of people and make them happy. This is why the people could not bear separation from their beloved King. Even today, Kerala remains a land of plenty and prosperity. Nature showers its bounty on the people of Kerala. In fact, the rains start in Kerala and then spread to the entire country. There is no dearth of food grains and drinking water in Kerala, which is nature's gift to the people of Kerala. It is customary to see people in other states worrying about the arrival of the monsoon saying, "Oh! The rains have not yet started in Kerala"" It is a land where the omnipresent God incarnated as Lord

Vamana. He may incarnate in one place but is present everywhere.

God is omnipresent, though at times He incarnates in one form at one place. God is only one, not two, though people refer to Him by different names and forms. Ekam sath viprah bahudha vadanti (truth is one, but the wise refer to it by various names). It is only our illusion to ascribe different names to God like Rama, Krishna, Govinda, Allah,

Jesus, etc. The sun is only one, and it appears in different parts of the world at different times. It is now 9.00 a.m.; but it is night in the U.S.A. Similarly, the one

God dwells in different people in different forms.

Do not be under the impression that God has different forms. He is beyond names and forms. Ekoham bahusyam (God is one but manifests as several beings). Divinity is present everywhere and in every country and in every individual. It is omnipresent. Since your perceptions are different, you ascribe different names and forms to the one God.

The land of Kerala is the gift of God. The people of Kerala follow the commands of the noble Emperor Bali even today. That is why the state has developed in several ways.

There is no dearth of food and amenities for a happy living in Kerala. Emperor Bali provided all comforts to the people before he left for his abode. It is a small state, and densely populated. Whatever may be the size of population, people enjoy a lot of comforts, peace, and happiness in Kerala.

Of course, changes in people's aspirations and lifestyle are taking place in recent times due to the impact of Kali Yuga, but the core of their hearts and feelings remains the same. They still follow the Vedic injunctions Sathyam

vada, dharmam chara

(speak truth and follow righteousness). They respect the elders and serve them with love and affection.

What could be the reason for this? Love for God. It is a land where love for God exists even today. They have fear of sin. Those who have love for God naturally develop fear of sin. Consequently, such people will have a high degree of morality in society, which is very important for its orderly functioning. Thus, the people of Kerala scrupulously observe the three principles of Daiva preethi; papa bheethi, and sangha neethi (love for God, fear of sin, and morality in society). They respect elders and give due recognition to them.

One should have morality and integrity. The same principles have been enshrined in the Vedic injunction, Sathyam vada, dharmam chara (speak truth and follow righteousness).

The people of Kerala follow these two principles scrupulously in their daily lives.

It is not enough to celebrate the Onam festival with a lot of religious fervour and devotion. You have to live up to the expectations of the noble emperor Bali. It is said

Matru Devo bhava, pitru Devo bhava, acharya Devo bhava, atithi Devo bhava (revere your mother, father, preceptor, and guest as God). (Mother is God, father is God, teacher is God, and guest is God). First comes the mother in that order. She gives birth to you, brings you up, and teaches you good things in your formative years. Then begins the role of father. He is your second guru. Then the teacher (guru) teaches you education to enable you to make a living in the world. And finally God takes command. Thus, your life in this physical world begins with your mother and culminates in God.

Hence, do not under any circumstances forget your mother. Love your mother more than anyone else and show her due respect. You will find that the people of Kerala respect the elders very much, particularly their mothers. They lend a helping hand and take good care of them. They keep them happy always. How fortunate are the people of Kerala to have an Emperor like Bali, whom God Himself accompanied to Vaikuntha (heaven)!

What is Onam? It is a day in which people take a good bath, wear new clothes, and pray

to God with a pure heart. The people of Kerala prepare a variety of tasty dishes, particularly with banana. In fact, they prepare twelve varieties of dishes with the banana fruit. It is a unique celebration. They prepare these dishes with a pure and loving heart. Hence, they will be very tasty.

They offer these preparations first to God wholeheartedly and with a lot of devotion and then partake of it along with their family members and relations.

They serve these dishes one after the other. Both the cooking and serving of the dishes is done with a pure and loving heart in the true spirit of Onam celebrations. They keep their houses clean and maintain a sacred atmosphere for God to manifest. They consider them not merely as houses, but temples of God. It is only in Kerala that such a sacred atmosphere prevails.

Even if some people have some misgivings about the festival of Onam, they get them cleared and celebrate the festival in its true spirit as a day on which Emperor Bali conferred blessings on his people from Vaikuntha (the abode of Lord Vishnu), which he ultimately reached.

It is a tapas (penance) for the people of Kerala to remember the words of Emperor Bali on this day and lead their lives accordingly in a spirit of love and service.

"Love all and serve all"! There can be no greater penance for anyone.

Whomsoever you come across, offer your salutations. Even if you encounter your enemy, offer your salutations to him first. Surely, he will reciprocate your noble gesture.

Thus, people have to conduct themselves with mutual love and unity. It is only such people that deserve to be called human beings. They are, in fact, the people with morality.

You have to develop such morality today. Love for God enjoins one to develop morality in society. Hence, you have to develop Daiva preethi, papa bheethi, and sangha neethi (love for God, fear of sin, and morality in society). Do not ever forget these three principles.

Those who have no morality are not human beings at all! Can a nation or race exist without morality? No! You have also to develop the qualities of humility and obedience, besides morality. This was, in fact, the message of emperor Bali to his people. If you can cultivate and develop these qualities, your life will be sanctified.

Respect Mother -- First and Foremost

by

Bhagavan Sri Sathya Sai Baba

Aeons ago, there was darkness everywhere. There were no human beings or any other creatures. It was pitch darkness all over. Then there was torrential rain for years together and, as a result of this deluge, oceans were formed and mountains arose.

Gradually the stars appeared in the sky. The sun too shone and shed its rays on the earth. The oceans and the sky became blue. The colour blue is indicative of the vastness of oceans and the sky. God is also vast; hence He is portrayed as blue in appearance.

Gradually forests and hills, insects and creatures, birds and beasts grew on the earth.

Millions of creatures of different species as also humans started inhabit-ing the earth.

Once several years ago, I visited Anantapur. I was very young then. I stayed in the bungalow of the District collector. He came to Me and asked, "Swami! There are a number of deer here. Please take two of them along with You and keep them in Your Ashram." The Prasanthi Nilayam building was not built yet. I brought those two deer and kept them in Bangalore first. Gradually, they multiplied into hundreds. There was not enough space for their movement there. Hence, they were shifted later to Prasanthi Nilayam and kept in a separate deer park. Thus, God's creation multiplies day by day.

It is raining outside. I find some ladies getting drenched in the rain. You allow those ladies inside. The gents too! I am sorry that so many devotees on the ladies and gents side are standing in the rain to have the darshan of Swami and hear His discourse. No one can fathom the mystery of God's actions.

When I was studying in the middle school in Kamalapuram, a small town near Kadapa, a district headquarters in the present state of Andhra Pradesh, I was very young and short. A village fair used to be held on a grand scale every year in a place called Pushpagiri, which was located between Kamalapuram and Kadapa.

One day the drill teacher

in our school told us, "There will be a grand cattle fair in Pushpagiri next week.

Several people from all over the district and neighbouring villages will come to participate in that fair. We have to send volunteers from our school to regulate the crowds and also do some service to them."

The drill teacher was also our scoutmaster. He insisted that all the boys of our school participate in the scout camp and help the people visiting the fair. He particularly told Me, "Raju! You must be the leader of this scout camp."

I protested saying, "Sir! They are all older in age than Me. How can I control those boys? I cannot." Then all the boys and teachers unanimously supported the idea of My being the leader of the camp.

The next day our drill teacher called all the boys and instructed that all of us shall wear a khaki shirt and knickers, along with a leather belt and a whistle. He also insisted that each one of us should wear boots and carry a stick and a torchlight. How could I procure all these items? I did not have even a paisa in My pocket.

Two of My classmates, by name Ramesh and Suresh, and Myself used to sit on a three-seater bench in our classroom, the two boys on either side of Me. Ramesh was the son of a wealthy Sirasthadar (a revenue official). He was of the same height as I was.

He went to his father and asked him, "Father! I like the khaki dress very much. Please get two pair of khaki shirt and knicker stitched for me." He did not however reveal the fact that he proposed to give the second pair to someone else.

The next day he brought one pair in a cloth bag and put it under My desk along with a small chit. He wrote, "Raju! You are my brother. If You don't mind, please take this dress. Do not return it to me. If You do so, I will feel very bad and commit suicide."

My policy is that I do not accept anything from anyone. I strongly felt that friendship between two people will not last long on the basis of give-and-take-relationship. I therefore returned the clothes with a note, "If you and I are to continue as good friends, take these clothes back." Ramesh was literally in tears at My insistence. He took the clothes back, very reluctantly.

All the boys volunteering for the scout service were to start for Pushpagiri, the next day. It was a journey of eleven miles by walk, since no buses plied that route those days. The boys contributed five rupees each for meeting the expenses during the period, but I had no money, not even a paisa. I therefore thought of a plan. I used to keep My books always neat and tidy. In those days, very few boys were in a position to purchase new books when they were promoted to a higher class. Hence, they used to purchase secondhand textbooks at a reduced cost. A poor boy approached Me to buy My textbooks. There used to be a heavy syllabus even for lower classes in subjects like History, Geography, Civics, etc. The cost of My books totaled eighteen rupees, and My books looked like brand new ones. The boy was not in a position to pay that amount. Hence, I told him "Don't feel sorry. Just pay Me five rupees and take the books." The boy felt very happy and immediately paid the amount. In those days, currency notes were rare, and he paid the entire amount in small coins packed in a piece of cloth. It was tied in an old cloth, which gave way unable to bear the weight of the coins. The coins were strewn all over the room, making a big sound. On hearing the sound, the lady of the house came there and asked, "Where did You get all this money? Did You steal from my trunk?" She began admonishing Me. I explained to her, "No, mother! I sold My books to this boy. He gave Me the coins." The poor boy witnessing this incident told her, "Mother! I gave those coins to Raju towards the cost of His books, which I purchased from Him." The lady did not believe his words and punished him too. She took away all the coins and I was left with not even a paisa. The boys participating in the scout camp were all rich and well dressed. They came to My house to take Me along with them. In the circumstances in which I was placed at that time, I was not in a position to go along with them. If I tell them I am suffering from fever, they will bring a thermometer and read My temperature. If I tell them I am suffering from some ailment, they will take Me to a doctor and get Me examined by him. Hence, I told them, "I am suffering from stomachache. I cannot come with you today."

The boys felt sorry and reluctantly left for the scout camp without Me. Thereafter, I started alone the same night in the moonlight. I walked and walked and reached Pushpagiri at daybreak. I was very much tired, having walked for eleven miles at a stretch. I was hungry and thirsty. I wanted to wash My hands and mouth and looked around for water. There was no water anywhere near. There was a masonry tank nearby in which water was stored for bathing cows and buffaloes. The water was very dirty. Feeling helpless, I washed My face with that dirty water itself and drank some to quench My thirst. Then I noticed that someone had left behind a packet of beedies (country cigarettes) and a one anna coin on the tank there. The beedies were, of course, of no use to Me. Hence, I threw them away. I took the one anna coin and exchanged it for four smaller coins (bottu). As I was returning, I noticed a person sitting on the roadside playing cards spread over a cloth, inviting passersby to bet on the cards, shouting, "club, spade, diamond, etc." He invited Me, saying, "Raju! You are a lucky boy. Come, come! Bet some amount on any card of Your choice and I will give You double that amount, if You win." No doubt it was a sort of gambling, but I was helpless at that time. I started putting one coin each on a different card at each time. Every time I was winning the bet and getting double the amount I put. I played the game till I could make sixteen annas. Then I decided that that was enough and left the game and returned with the money I already earned. Since I was feeling hungry, I purchased three dosas with one bottu. In those days, dosas were available at the rate of one for a dammidi (1/3 of a bottu). Thus, I managed with two bottus a day eating dosas. Though I was attending the service activities normally just like any of the other boys, in My heart of hearts I was aware of the fact that betting (gambling) was a bad practice and I should not have resorted to it. I knew of the story of Dharmaraja losing his everything including his wife, brothers, and kingdom in the Mahabharata.

At the end of the scout camp, I was left with one bottu. I purchased some sweets, fruits, flowers, kumkum, and some bangles for My sister-in-law. Seshama Raju, the elder brother of this body went for a course of teacher-training and just returned. As soon as I stepped into the house, I noticed that he was drawing lines in a notebook with the help of a wooden ruler. He was very angry that his wife had to fetch water during My absence for 3 days and therefore she was very much tired. When I offered her the sweets and fruits brought by Me from Pushpagiri, she threw them on the floor. She refused to accept even kumkum, which is a sign of auspiciousness. Seshama Raju was furious after this incident. He took the ruler into his hands and beat Me on the forearm with the ruler, which broke into three pieces. My hand was swollen. I did not reveal this incident to anybody. I tied a bandage Myself with a wet cloth to the swollen hand. The next day, Seshama Raju's son died. He sent a telegram to father to come immediately. In those days, there was no post office or telegraph office in Puttaparthi. The telegrams were sent to Bukkapatnam and from there a messenger would take it to Puttaparthi. Pedda Venkama Raju, the father of this body, used to go to Bukkapatnam regularly to purchase necessary items in the village fair. He saw that telegram there and immediately rushed to Kamalapuram. He spoke to the members of the family first and then asked why My hand was swollen and bandaged. I tried to explain away the incident as insignificant and told him that I hit a door in the house accidentally and nothing serious had happened. The lady in the neighbouring house intervened then and informed Pedda Venkama Raju, "Sir! It is not an isolated incident. Your elder son beats the boy everyday. We are very much pained to witness His suffering." Seshama Raju used to be very angry with Me since his wife used to make complaints against Me daily saying I did not attend to this work, that work, etc. My daily chores in their house included making hot water for bath, preparing coffee early in the morning for Seshama Raju and his wife, doing odd jobs in the house and most important, fetching drinking water two times both in the morning and evening from a canal, which was at some distance from the house. In order that I finish all these jobs and attend to school as per schedule, I had to get up very early in the morning, that is, at about 3 o'clock. In spite of all this hectic schedule, I was very happy that the people in the village were of good nature and used to love Me very much. They used to make affectionate enquiries about My welfare daily. They were very fond of My singing. When I went to Pushpagiri to participate in the scout camp, all this busy schedule came to a standstill. Though the neighbours were very considerate toward Me for My hard work and good nature, people in the Seshama Raju family could not put up with My absence and disruption in the daily routine. They used to shout at Me if on any day I was a little late in bringing water from the canal. Of course, I used to ignore that shouting and carry on My work as usual, patiently. The Griham Abbayi (father) informed Me that night that he had to go out for answering his nature call. There was no light. There was darkness all around. I held a small kerosene lamp in one hand and a jug of water in the other and accompanied him to an isolated place. I put those things on the ground and tried to return, but he held My hand and with great agony told Me, "Sathya! Did I ever beat You on any day in all these years? You are undergoing so much of suffering at the hands of these people here. You come away from this house. Come! Let us leave for our village early in the morning." I tried to pacify him saying, "It is not proper for Me to leave the house now, especially when they are immersed in grief at the death of their son. Please go first. I will come later." Thereupon, Griham Abbayi left for Puttaparthi, very reluctantly. On reaching home, he informed Griham Ammayi (mother) about the situation prevailing here. She could not contain her agony and shed tears at My plight. She told Griham Abbayi, "Sathya is a very good boy. I never beat Him on any day. I now understand that Seshama Raju is beating Him regularly, listening to others' words. I cannot bear this any more. We can bring up Sathya somehow, even by selling salt if need be. He need not depend on others for His upbringing. Please go and bring back Sathya to our house."

Griham Abbayi tried to explain his inability, but she was insistent. He therefore gave a telegram, "Mother serious, come down to Puttaparthi." Then, I had no option but to return to Puttaparthi. There used to be a merchant by name Kotte Subbanna in Kamalapuram those days, who used to sell the famous children's tonic, "Bala Bhaskara". He gave us some amount for our journey to Puttaparthi, since neither I nor Griham Abbayi had any money with us. We reached Anantapuram with great difficulty. There used to be a lawyer's family in Anantapur, who were all good people. The entire family was devoted to Swami. They invited us to partake lunch in their house. We had our lunch in their house and finally returned to Puttaparthi. As soon as we entered our house, Griham Ammayi held My hand and asked, "There is swelling still. Does it hurt?" Thereafter, she applied several homemade medicines including a paste of rice bran on the affected part and also gave hot water fomentation. Poor lady! She tried her best to make Me cheerful. Every one around Me cried on seeing My swollen hand. I told them, "Nothing to worry; everything is healed up." Since then I decided to stay in Puttaparthi, permanently. Seshama Raju came on a visit during holidays. Griham Abbayi and Griham Ammayi both chided him profusely saying, "You took this boy along with you to get Him educated; but you put Him to great torture. What kind of an education is this? Go away! We don't give You food even!" Thereafter, Seshama Raju was transferred to Uravakonda. He took Me again with him in order to admit Me in the High school there. There were good teachers there, especially Sri Tammiraju and another by name H.S. Ramana who used to teach us English language. He was so fond of Me that he used to take Me to his house. Not only these two, all our teachers used to be very affectionate toward Me since I was a good singer with a melodious voice. One day they put Me on the stage during a function and asked Me to sing a song. I sang the following song:
Take any vegetable of your choice, only one anna a measure,
Take brinjals; they are very tasty,
The well was deep and it was difficult to draw water,

So too, the life in Uravakonda was difficult to forget.

(Telugu song)

All the teachers praised the song and congratulated Me for singing that song. Later, they asked Me to sing the daily prayer song in the school assembly. I sang thus:
Moment to moment, thy clarion call resounds
--hearing thy magnanimous words,
The Hindus, Buddhists, Jains, Parsis, Muslims, and Christians come to thy throne from east and west,
Making a garland of love
Hail to thee who unites all humanity!
Hail to thee who controls the destiny of Bharat!
Hail to thee! Hail to thee!
That was our prayer song, which I used to sing daily in the school assembly. The teachers of our school used to stand on either side of Me during the assembly and shed tears of joy at My melodious singing. I used to have a very good voice. One day, I announced to the people around Me that it was time for Me to leave the school as well as the house and embark on My mission to alleviate the suffering of humanity. I revealed My true nature earlier thus:
Know that I am Sai, verily
Cast off your worldly relationships
Give up your efforts to restrain Me
The worldly attachment can no longer bind Me
None, however great can hold Me.
(Telugu poem)
Everyone cried aloud, unable to bear separation from Me. The headmaster of our school, Lakshmi pathi, declared a holiday for the day. Everyone, including the teachers, students, and public, felt very sad at My decision to leave them. The next day, one Muslim boy was asked to go up the stage to sing the prayer song. He too was a good singer with a melodious voice. But the moment he went up the stage, he became highly emotional and wept uncontrollably, unable to bear separation from Me. He sat down expressing his inability to sing the prayer. The daily singing of the prayer was discontinued from then on. Instead, the headmaster of the school used to say a few words and conclude.
I gave up studies since then. At the time I discontinued studies, I was only in the third form (eighth class), but people around Me used to wonder at My scholarship thinking that I might have obtained a degree or so. I used to write poetry and kept

Myself aloof from people. I used to maintain silence. Even when I was in the house, I maintained the same profile. I just used to have food and come out and sit on the Chitravathi sands. There is a hill by the side of the river where I used to go up and sit silently. Several people including children from the neighbouring villages and also from Uravakonda used to visit this "Sai Baba". Subbamma used to cook and serve food for them. She used to feel very happy at her service, thinking that she was serving Swami's classmates. Since then, the number of people visiting Swami has increased by leaps and bounds. Once the Maharaja of Mysore, Jayachamaraja Wodayar came by his car. The motorable road was only up to Penukonda. He therefore travelled in a bullock cart from Penukonda to Karnatanagepalli and from there to Puttaparthi by walk. He pleaded with Me, "Swami! Why are You putting Yourself to trouble, residing in Puttaparthi? Please come to Mysore. I will arrange to build a big mansion for You." I told him, "A tree must grow in the same place where it was born. If it is plucked out and transplanted elsewhere, it will not grow. This tree must also grow in the same place where it was born." The Maharaja was a great devotee. He used to visit the Chamundeswari temple daily in the morning and evening and sing a song specially composed in praise of Goddess Chamundeswari. The Maharaja of Mysore visited Puttaparthi again on another occasion. By that time, a motorable road was laid from Penukonda to Bukkapatnam. He telephoned to the Governor of Andhra Pradesh saying, "Why don't you lay a good road to reach Puttaparthi? How much money is being wasted on all and sundry schemes! Please arrange to lay a good road to Puttaparthi immediately." The Governor instructed the Government accordingly and after a protracted correspondence, a chief engineer by name Tiruvannai Iyengar was finally sent to undertake a survey of the project. It was planned to lay a bypass road direct to the Mandir, without touching the Chitravathi Road. The Maharaja of Mysore offered to bear the entire expenditure for the project. Before starting the work, the Chief Engineer surveyed the area travelling in a bullock cart. He found that the river encircled the village on three sides and only the fourth side was available for laying a road. He stayed for three to four days here and reached Mandir in that route by a bullock cart. He confirmed that route and passed orders finally to lay a black top road in that route, drilling a big hole in a hill blocking the way. At last, a direct road to reach the Mandir in Puttaparthi was ready, without touching the Chitravathi River. Once the road was made ready, a number of people including Rajas and Maharajas with their families started visiting Puttaparthi. Notable among them were the Rajas of Bobbili and Venkatagiri. They used to bring tents along with them and stay in those tents. Gradually, the number of people visiting Puttaparthi increased by leaps and bounds. The people in the villages around Puttaparthi used to argue with them saying, "Should we not have an opportunity to have Swami's darshan, sparshan, and sambhashan? Is He meant only for the Rajas, Maharajas?" I used to pacify them saying that all are My devotees and I don't make any distinction between rich and poor. Later, the Rajas of Bobbili, Trivandrum and the younger brother of Trivandrum Raja, who was a film director, made a lot of conveniences here like building houses for the visiting devotees. The former Chief Minister of Andhra Pradesh, the late Dr Bezwada Gopala Reddy, built a hospital in Puttaparthi. In spite of his busy schedule as the Chief Minister, he used to make regular visits to Puttaparthi. He continued the same till his last breath. He used to attend every function held in Prasanthi Nilayam. In due course, millions of devotees from all over India and all parts of the world started coming to Prasanthi Nilayam. In fact, I have not come down to deliver discourses on any particular form of God. Divinity is only one by whatever name and form people refer to Him. The goal is one and love is one. The names and forms may be different. Some may refer to Divinity as "Atma"; others as "Aum". Yet, both are same. The names Rama, Krishna, Govinda, Narayana, etc. may be different, but God is only one. You may contemplate on any name, but God is only one. The Upanishads exhort, Matru Devo bhava, pitru Devo bhava, acharya Devo bhava, atithi Devo bhava (revere your mother, father, preceptor, and guest as God). First and foremost, respect your mother. She is very important! Forbearance is the real beauty in this sacred land of Bharat. The nectarine feeling in this country is the feeling of love toward one's mother.

(Telugu poem)

Even if the mother and son go to a court in a property dispute, the mother would tell the lawyer, "he is my son," and the son would say, "she is my mother." Hence the relationship between a person and their parents is lasting. Even after the physical body ceases to exist the motherly relationship exists. A mother is a mother. Hence, there can be no greater, respectable, and sweet feeling than motherhood. Many people write letters to Me addressing Me as "Mother Sai". They refer to Me as their revered mother. I also address all of you as "children".

Be Good, Do Good, and See Good
by
Bhagavan Sri Sathya Sai Baba

Bereft of truth, righteousness, peace, and love, the value of all your education is zero;
Bereft of truth, righteousness, peace, and love, the benefit of all your acts of charity and kindness is zero;
Bereft of truth, righteousness, peace, and love, the utility of all your positions of power is zero; and Bereft of truth, righteousness, peace, and love, the result of all your good deeds is zero.

Sathya, dharma, santhi, and prema (truth, righteousness, peace, and love) are verily the pillars of the mansion of Sanathana Dharma. What else is to be conveyed to this assembly of noble souls.

(Telugu poem)

In spite of his education and intelligence, a foolish man will not know his true Self and a mean-minded person will not give up his evil qualities. What is the use of acquiring education that cannot lead you to immortality? Acquire the knowledge that will make you immortal.

(Telugu poem)

People pursue education and obtain high degrees in different disciplines, but in their day-to-day life, their behaviour is totally at variance to the principles they learnt.

In spite of their high academic qualifications, they woefully lack knowledge about the essence of education. What they acquire is only worldly, evanescent, and unreal education.

There are millions of students and highly educated people in the world. They obtain all sorts of degrees starting from A to Z, but of what use are their degrees? What is their contribution to the welfare of the world? Do they help the poor and forlorn at least to a small extent? They earn crores of rupees; but they don't give even a penny in charity.

They are too selfish. They do not at all control their desires. One who controls his desires can work wonders in the world. People are not at all satisfied with their earnings. They accumulate huge amount of wealth and still crave to earn more.

The Vedas declare Na karmana na prajaya dhanena thyagenaike amrutatthwamanasu

(immortality is not attained through action, progeny, or wealth; it is attained only by sacrifice). People do not at all strive to attain immortality. Wherever you see and whomever you come across, you find selfishness, selfishness, and selfishness alone. Of what use is the education of such selfish people?

No doubt, education has to be pursued and some activities have to be undertaken in the world for leading a comfortable life. One has to take care of the worldly needs for oneself and one's family, like food, clothing, and shelter. But to what extent? These are all activities that one undertakes for the sake of oneself and one's family, not for others.

Modern education is breeding selfishness. It is for acquiring goods and services for one's own comfort. These are worldly pleasures. The qualities of kama, krodha, lobha, moha, mada, and matsarya (desire, anger, greed, delusion, pride, and envy) drive man's efforts in pursuit of worldly pleasures. No doubt worldly education helps to provide comfort and joy in the objective world, but it does not at all contribute to inner bliss.

Only the five human values of sathya (truth), dharma (righteousness), santhi (peace), prema (love), and ahimsa (nonviolence) confer inner bliss. A person who cultivates these five human values will always be happy. The five senses of action provide external pleasure; but the five human values confer inner bliss. Education helps to obtain various conveniences for external pleasure, whereas inner bliss can be experienced only by Educare. There is a lot of difference between Education and Educare. Education involves reading of books written by someone and listening to the lectures delivered by someone. Educare, however, has nothing to do with books. It has no form at all! It is Truth that has no form. The Upanishads ordain "Sathyam vada, dharmam chara" (speak truth, practise righteousness). Truth has to be spoken and righteousness has to be practised. But, nowadays, people lecture about these values but do not follow. This is not correct. Love is one quality that is common to all human beings, nay, animals, birds, beasts, and even insects. Every living being loves its progeny. And, love is divine. Whoever cultivates love, God manifests in them. It is only the divine quality of love that saves us from sorrows, difficulties, and calamities. Unfortunately, people do not cultivate love and instead go after transient things. "Love is God, live in love." Worldly possessions give momentary pleasure, but love confers eternal bliss. Real love manifests from the depth of one's own heart. One has to attain such divine love. Wherever you go, whatever activity you may undertake, let your heart be filled with love. Such a person, wherever he is, whether in the town or in the forest or in the sky or in a deep sea will surely be protected. Divine love neither grows nor diminishes. It always remains the same. Ekameva adviteeyam Brahma (God is one without a second). To attribute various names to God such as Rama, Krishna, Govinda, etc., is only your imagination. That which has neither birth nor death is one and only one. It has no beginning and no end. That is Brahma. Hence, whenever someone enquires, "Who are you? What is your name?" reply with Aham Brahmasmi (I am Brahman). There is nothing real and eternal except Brahman. Hence, do not waste his time in pursuit of transient things. What is the use of acquiring such objects? No doubt worldly education is necessary. However, always remind yourself that it is all temporary. Brahman is ONE without a second. Zero gains value only when it is placed after the digit one. Likewise, the zero of samsara (worldly life) will have value only if it is associated with the ONE that is Brahman. We are going after the impermanent and transitory things forgetting the ONE. We think that the qualities of anger, envy, jealousy, pride, etc., are God-given, but it is not true. God does not make any distinction between people by granting positive attributes to some and negative qualities to others. All these differences are man-made. God has nothing to do with them. When our wish is fulfilled, we praise God. On the other hand, if something goes wrong, we attribute our failure to God and blame Him. God is only a witness to everything that goes on in the world, good or bad. He neither gives nor receives anything. All our sorrows and difficulties are of our own making. The thoughts that flow from our mind are expressed through speech. Hence, mind is the source for our speech. This mind has its origin in our breath (inhaling and exhaling). Therefore, the inhaling and exhaling (soham) is Brahman verily, and the mind represents Vishnu. It is said, Manomoolam idam jagat (the world is a projection of the mind). Our vak (speech) represents Shiva. Hence, we need not go in search of the Trinity (Brahma, Vishnu, and Maheshwara) somewhere in a distant place. God is in us, with us, above, below, and around us. In fact, you are God. Your mind alone is responsible for your joy or sorrow. We think these are thrust on us by someone from outside. No, all these experiences flow from you only. You are responsible for everything. If you realize that these experiences emanate from your own mind and think that you are God, you will become God. On the other hand, if you identify yourself with the world and think "I am so and so," you will remain separate from God. Do not cultivate excessive desires. "Less luggage, more comfort makes travel a pleasure." Hence, reduce the luggage of your desires. It is natural for people to have some desires, but one has to enquire which one of those desires is good for one and which causes harm. Unfortunately, this sense of discrimination is lost in present times.

All these desires, which are the result of kama, krodha, lobha, moha, mada, and matsarya (desire, anger, greed, delusion, pride, and envy), have their origin in the mind.

When you marry a girl, you develop love for her in the beginning. After sometime, if for any reason she goes against your wishes, you develop hatred for her. Your anger and hatred will ultimately land you in difficulties. If you can reduce your desires and expectations, you will be able to lead a happy married life.

Students too behave in the same way. As one goes on acquiring degrees, one loses one's peace because of limitless desires. Whatever may be one's expectations in pursuing higher education, one has to put into practice what one has learnt in the college or University. Merely acquiring a number of degrees without putting into practice what one has learnt through education is a waste. It does not help him in any way. Education without practising the principles of education leads to loss and worry. Hence, practice (abhyasa) is of utmost importance.

For example, you are enacting a drama. Is it not true that you do a number of rehearsals before finally performing on the stage? It is the practice that makes you perfect.

Hence, practice is needed in all your endeavours --- reading, writing, medicine, surgery, etc. The Gita says: Sreyohi Inanamabhyasat, Inanaddhyanam vishishyate, Dhyanat karmaphala thyaga, Thyagat santhiranantaram. Better indeed is knowledge than practice. Better than knowledge is meditation on God. But better than meditation is renunciation of the desire for the fruits of actions.

For peace follows immediately.

Where is peace? Peace is very much in us only. It is futile to search for peace somewhere in the outer world. If you want to attain peace, search for it in oneself.

You have acquired all this knowledge from textbooks and your teachers. This is bookish knowledge. If you put it into practice, it becomes practical knowledge, which will remain with you permanently.

Rain water is pure. When you place a vessel while it is raining, you can collect pure water. It is like distilled water. By drinking that water, you will not be troubled by any ailment. When the same water is mixed up with other substances, it gets polluted. In the same manner, the mind which is always pure is polluted by desires.

Hence, do not pollute your mind by cultivating desires. Keep the mind always pure.

Whenever a desire arises in your mind, brush it aside to keep your mind free from pollution. Apart from reading your text books and acquiring knowledge, keep your mind always pure and free from pollution. This is what you have to learn today.

You may or may not worship God, but you must respect your mother and father, who are responsible for your birth. Respect your mother. Keep her always happy. No one can estimate or describe a mother's love. No one can pollute it. If only you are able to win the love of your mother, it amounts to acquiring all degrees. Our scriptures enjoin on us to respect mother, father, teacher, and God in that order. First and foremost is the mother, who gave you birth. The father brings you up and puts you on the road to development. The mother is the foundation for the mansion of your life; father represents the wall and the guru (teacher) is the roof. And, finally, God is your life itself. Hence, those who yearn for God must love their mother first. If only you keep her happy, all other things of happiness will be added unto you.

Nowadays, people keep their aged parents in the old age homes. This is not correct. The Upanishads exhort one: Mathrudevo bhava! Pithrudevo bhava! Acharyadevo bhava! One who forsakes his mother is not a human being at all! It is your mother who brought you up to this stage. Hence, love your mother and serve her when she falls sick. You must develop the feeling that whatever your mother says is for your good only. Do not get angry when she chides you. Even her anger is for your good only.

Once Kuchela, a poor Brahmin, went to meet his childhood friend Krishna. He was afraid that the guards standing at the gate of Krishna's palace might not let him in. But God is so compassionate that He will not forsake any individual. Lord

Krishna Himself came to him and enquired, "Dear friend Kuchela, what do you want?" Kuchela replied, "Swami, I do not want anything. I will be happy if I have Your love and grace. Oh Lord! That is enough." When Kuchela returned to his place after taking leave of Krishna, he could not recognise his house. In place of his hut stood a palatial building. His wife and children were moving about in gorgeous clothes, wearing glittering ornaments. This is the gift of love from God. Hence, if only we are able to win God's love, everything else will be added unto us. Therefore develop firm faith in God. You will not come up in life unless you get rid of your bad qualities. Even if you have accumulated wealth and attained positions of power, they will not last long. It is not wealth but noble qualities that are important for a human being. Hence, develop human qualities. You call yourself a human being. Unless there are values in you, how can you be called a human being? Only when you develop noble qualities are you entitled to be called a human. God will protect a person with human values by constantly guarding and guiding him. Hence, develop human values; do not crave for money. We often come across people changing jobs with a hope of getting high salaries. Do not develop this craze for money. Money comes and goes, morality comes and grows. Develop morality and love for God. When you develop love for God, the demonic qualities in you will be removed. When people get rid of demonic qualities, society itself will change into a better society. You will earn a good name. People will praise you, "so and so is a good man. We must have people like him." If you wish to earn such a good name, you must be fully involved in prayer to God. The prayer must constantly ring in your heart. Love for God, fear of sin, and morality in society, these are the qualities that you have to develop. Then only you will be entitled to be called a good person. Be good, do good, and see good. Never entertain bad thoughts. It is quite common to get bad thoughts in your age, but do not give them a place in your heart. Just brush them aside. You may be a boy now, but you will grow into an old man after some years. Child, boy, man, grandfather --- these are all the different stages in one's life. They all belong to the same person. Only the names and the body change, but the individual is one. Similarly, God is one in whichever name and form He is worshipped. The names and forms ascribed to God may differ but God is one, as per the saying "Ekam Sath viprah bahudha vadanthi." Develop total faith in this maxim. Wherever you are and whatever activity you are engaged in, constantly contemplate on God. Then only will your life be fruitful. May you all develop good qualities, good behaviour, good thoughts, and good feelings. Be happy. Our boys are always good boys. Today, wherever you see, you find people spending time watching cinemas and TV shows and hearing cinema music from tape recorders. In addition, almost everyone, regardless of sex and status in society, is using cell phones. People waste a lot of time talking to someone using cell phones. They even talk to strangers. Because of the proliferation of the entertainment media and the indiscriminate use of cell phones, human beings have lost their value. Very often, due to the misuse of cell phones, people, especially the younger generation, land themselves in serious trouble. Most often, cell phones are put to misuse than proper use. I would advise you, particularly the boys and girls, not to give your cell number to anyone. You will face great danger by doing so. Try to avoid using cell phones. Even if you buy one, do not give your number to others indiscriminately. There are some people who continuously talk over cell phone for hours together. This is totally wrong. By doing so, you will be committing sin. Once you give your cell number to others, they will call you back. You will feel happy in the beginning. Later, they will be talking to you frequently. Unnecessary contacts will develop by doing so. Finally, they mislead you and spoil your life. In the beginning, they introduce themselves to you saying, "I am your friend." The friendship gradually leads to establishing relationship. You will be deceived and you will land in deep trouble in the end. Hence, do not give scope for such unnecessary contacts. Always spend your time in the contemplation of the divine name or reading good books.

 Today is convocation day. Some of you might be entering the outside world, having acquired degrees. Let your contact with the outside world be good. It is possible that there may be significant changes in the lives of most of the students from today. I wish you all to earn good name for yourselves, your parents, and the institution in which you studied. Samuel Sandweiss also told you the same thing in his convocation address. He talks about his divine experiences. The advice of these elders must be imprinted in your hearts. They always speak good words. I am very happy. It is not possible for Me to talk to you all, individually. Hence, I gave a discourse that is applicable to all. Our students are all good when compared to those in the other institutions. Let that good name be upheld. I am very happy.

(Bhagawan wanted all the students to sing a song. The students sang in chorus the song "Hum ko tum se pyar kitna ...")
 Your song has given Me immense happiness.

 I am I, I am Atma
 by
Bhagavan Sri Sathya Sai Baba
 The sun appears serene and peaceful,
 The days have become shorter, and
 The cool wind is blowing.
 (Telugu poem)
 This festive season brings all prosperity to the people filling the granaries of the farmers with the newly-harvested grains in plenty. Not only the farmers, all people in general feel happy and enjoy this season. People attribute their happiness and prosperity to God.
 Where is God? God is everywhere. He is omnipresent --- in you, above you, below you, and around you. He has no particular name or form. Neither has He birth and death. Only when there is birth will there be death also! Hence, God has no birth, no death! He is present in every living being as Atma Swarupa (Embodiment of Divine Atma). Man today is unable to realise that Atma Tattwa (Atma Principle).
Bharat is a sacred land. It has given birth to many noble souls and chaste women.
 This land of Bharat has given birth to many noble women, like

Savitri, who brought her dead husband back to life;
Chandramati, who extinguished wild fire with the power of truth;
Sita, who proved her chastity by coming out of blazing fire unscathed, Damayanti, who reduced an evil-minded hunter to ashes with the power of her chastity.
 This land of piety and nobility attained plenty and prosperity and Became the teacher of all the nations of the world
 Because of such women of chastity. (Telugu poem)
Sri Rama released Sita from the captivity of the demon Ravana, who confined her in Lanka for ten months. Rama took her into His fold after putting her to the test of fire. The fire god presented her before Rama, saying, "Oh! Rama! Sita is a great woman of chastity. She is so much devoted to her husband that she did not look at the face of even one male in all these ten months." Sita came out of the fire unscathed, and the fire god himself attested to her chastity. One can imagine how great and noble she was!
 Can there be a parallel to such women in any country in the world?
 The country of Bharat (India) is situated in the middle of the seven seas. Every man and woman in this country has to conduct themselves as Purushottama (noble male) and Pativratha (chaste woman) respectively. No wonder several Avataras (incarnations) took birth in this sacred land. Great men and women and noble souls may be born in any country. But Avataras took birth only in the country of Bharat.
 Today, people aspire for everything in the world except God. People leave even their motherland in quest of wealth and money. This is not a positive development, especially for the Bharatiyas (Indians), for they are expected to rise above the desire for money.
 God is one who always gives; He never takes. God desires only love from us, nothing else. The country of Bharat is so noble and sacred, but the people of this country are leaving, seeking greener pastures elsewhere. However, those with a pure and unblemished heart are sticking to their native country.
 What God expects from His devotee is only a pure and sacred heart. People ascribe different names and forms to God. In fact, God is only one. He is beyond all names and forms. He takes on a name and form according to the wishes and aspirations of a particular devotee. When you contemplate on the form of Jesus and wish to see Him in that form, He manifests before you as Jesus.

Sruthimalloke Sarvamavrutya

Tishthati (with hands, feet, eyes, head, mouth and ears pervading everything, He permeates the entire universe). God is present in every human being, nay in every living being. Daivam Manusha Rupena (God is in the form of a human being). That is why human values are considered to be so sacred and important. It is not enough to simply have a human body. In keeping with the human form, one should also cultivate the human values of sathya (truth), dharma (righteousness), santhi (peace), prema (love), and ahimsa (nonviolence). You should not tell a lie under any circumstances. If you adhere to truth, righteousness will follow. Where truth and righteousness go together, there peace will be. Where there is peace, there will be love too. There can be no place for violence when there is love. Unfortunately, today there is violence everywhere due to the absence of love among people. Whomsoever you come across these days, there is unrest and unrest. People perform japa (chanting of God's Name) and tapa (penance) to obtain peace, but there is no peace anywhere. Wherever you see, only pieces, pieces, and pieces! One has to develop love in order to get peace. First and foremost, one has to develop love. "Love is God, God is Love." "Truth is God, God is Truth." Truth and Love are the embodiments of Divinity, verily. Though God is one, people ascribe different names like Rama, Krishna, Govinda, and Narayana to God. The different names and forms ascribed to God are the outcome of the imagination of poets and painters. For example, Ravi Varma portrayed God in different forms based upon his imagination. But God cannot be limited to a particular name and form. All names and forms are His, and He transcends them too! God is immanent in all living species including the human beings. The entire creation is the manifestation of Divinity. God has no desires and aspirations. He is selfless. Everything in the outside world is the reaction, reflection, and resound of your inner being. This is a cloth (showing a handkerchief). Strictly speaking, this is not a cloth; it is a bundle of threads. The threads woven together assumed the form of a cloth. Similarly, the thoughts and desires of a human being make the mind. They, in turn express themselves in the form of speech.

The words lead to actions through the sense organs. In the process, man entertains certain bad thoughts and feelings.

Why did God give eyes to a human being? Only to see good. Similarly, the ears are meant to hear good things and the tongue to speak good words. The words you speak must always be sweet and soft and never harsh. Thus, you have to consider every limb and organ in the body given to you by God as sacred and make proper use of it. Such a sacred body has to be dedicated to God and none else. God gives you all that is necessary for your life's journey. You should therefore install God in the altar of your pure and sacred heart.

God is omnipresent. The sky is God and the earth is God. All human beings are embodiments of Divinity. God is immanent in every human being in the form of breath (Soham). Man has to realise this truth. Only when you realise the true nature of God that can you be considered to have acquired jnana (wisdom).

Jnana is not mere bookish knowledge. Several educated people have acquired vast knowledge from textbooks, but who is a jnani (realised soul) in the real sense? Only the person who has realised, "I am not the body, I am not the mind; I am God verily," is a real jnani.

When you say, "this is my body," who are you? To whom are you referring? The expression

"my body" connotes that you are separate from the body. When you say, "This is my mind," the mind is separate from you. Similarly, when you say, "This is my buddhi (intellect)," it means the buddhi is separate from you. In all these expressions, what is that 'my'?

That 'my' is 'I'. This 'I' is what was referred to by Jesus Christ as the ego, and it has to be cut. That is the real significance of the cross. You cut the ego.

You are bound by two things: 'I' and 'mine'. That is the human bondage. If you can get released from these two bonds, what remains is 'you' only. Now you are with the body.

Suppose you have to leave the body tomorrow. At that time, who are you and where are you? You do not know! The body is like a dress, a robe. Once you get rid of attachment to this dress, your true nature will be apparent.

The same truth has been explained in the phrase, "the one you think you are, the one others think you are, and the one you really are". That is the true nature of a human being. When someone enquires who you are, you will answer, "I am so and so." You will give your name. In fact, that name is given to you by your parents and not by God at the time of your birth.
Suppose you ask God, "Who are you?" He will reply, Aham Brahmasmi (I am Brahman). Every individual should remind themselves, "I am Brahman, I have no other name." If someone asks, "What is your name?" you should reply, "My name is Brahman." If you are constantly aware of your true nature thus, that is Atma Tattwa. You do not have to contemplate on anything else.
Whenever you come across a friend or acquaintance, you greet him with a namaskar. This implies that you are in fact paying obeisance to the Divinity immanent in the individual. Hence, do not entertain the feeling of 'I', 'I', 'I'. All these physical bodies are like the roles played in a drama. They change. The world itself is a cosmic drama. You must constantly remind yourself that you are playing your role in the cosmic drama and your real nature is that you are an Embodiment of Divine Self (Atma Swarupa).
You have any doubts in this regard? (Swami enquired turning to the audience ...). If you are entertaining any doubts, you will be confused.
Unfortunately, today one does not know about one's own true nature. How then can one know about God? Hence, first and foremost know thyself! Enquire into yourself, "Who am I? Who am I?" you will realise, "I am I, I am Atma", "I am I, I am Atma", "I am I, I am Atma." If you forget this Divine Self, what remains is 'deep wine'! Hence, you should become divine.
Rama, Krishna, Govinda, etc. are only references to Divinity in the common parlance. An individual is referred to by several names based upon the relationships at the physical level. One person refers to him saying, "He is my son-in-law." Another says, "He is my son." A third person says, "He is my brother." Thus, one gets into bondage as the relationships increase. From where did this bondage emerge? It is all of your own making.

You marry a girl and say, "She is my wife." But before marriage, who was she? You do not know. After some years when she departs finally, you do not know anything about her.

Thus, you do not know who she was before marriage or where she went after her departure.

The wife-husband relationship is only in between.

Hence, do not worry about the past. Past is past and future is uncertain. You do not know, you have no knowledge of, either the past or the future; you are aware of only the present. Hence, live in the present. That is the only reality.
