Section D: [Defining what type of 4-gram becomes a Leprechaun-quadruple-phrase]:

- A quadruple-phrase has exactly 4 words;
- Only alpha ASCII chars form our words;
- A quadruple-phrase is lowercased i.e. contains only small letters 'a'..'z';
- A quadruple-phrase has length between 12 and 31 chars inclusive;
- Four words concatenated with '_' to form one quadruple-phrase;
- Symbols not allowed between 4 words forming a quadruple-phrase: '.', '!', '?', ':', ';', ',', '\t'.

GOALS:

- To offer 100% free open-source copyleft software(32bit windows console tools written in C);
- To enrich(beautify as kids would say) the ability to make phrase reports/analyses of user-chosen English texts in order to estimate the appropriateness of 4-gram phrases/collocations;
- Targeted users are mostly people(this includes kids, learners and native English users as well) wanting to explore the English collocations by immersing themselves into 100+ million of google-4-grams;
- To allow an in-depth phrase-search independently from third-parties(and eventually second-parties free too).

First drawback: the package must/will be as simple as possible in regards of usage. To be done. The whole process of making reports must be in two steps:

- Copying all needed text files(folders also) into our working directory;
- Running a single batch file.

Second drawback: still not downloadable.

Third drawback: 'Graphein' developer being an amateur.

Fourth drawback: currently 'Graphein' is awfully-very(analyzing 'The Little Match Girl' took 02:27:00 hours or 400x(23seconds per file)) slow.

Fifth drawback: something rotten there(with googlebooks-eng-us-all-4gram-20090715 files) is! I am disappointed with the unexpected high number of unknown(Unfamiliar!) 4-grams:

- 'The Little Match Girl' having analyzed with 'Graphein' r.1 gives Total/Found/Unfamiliar: 580/370/210 phrases.

- I cannot figure it out! Phrases like:

wonderful_roast_goose_and Unfamiliar!

wonderful_smell_of_roast Unfamiliar!

wonderfully_the_fire_burned Unfamiliar!

would_surely_beat_her Unfamiliar!

not to be part of US English Google books, does anybody know what causes this frustrating misery?

My wish here is to present(in a hurry-mode) some aspects of not-completed-yet free-software-package which is being designed for making user-phrases vs google-books-phrases reports.

I give below a short help/guide step-by-step how to use these 100% free 32bit console programs.

~ The whole process looks like:

[incoming text file(s)] -> phrase-checker-package -> [text file containing all phrases(described whether they have been encountered in google-books-phrases or not)]

~ Or as in the following example:

[...] -> phrase-checker-package -> [...]
[lille_pige_med_svovlstikkerne] -> phrase-checker-package -> [lille_pige_med_svovlstikkerne Unfamiliar!]
[med_svovlstikkerne_by_jean] -> phrase-checker-package -> [med_svovlstikkerne_by_jean Unfamiliar!]
[more_beautiful_than_the] -> phrase-checker-package -> [more_beautiful_than_the Found!]
[rattled_by_terribly_fast] -> phrase-checker-package -> [rattled_by_terribly_fast Found!]
[reached_both_her_hands] -> phrase-checker-package -> [reached_both_her_hands Found!]
[really_seemed_to_the] -> phrase-checker-package -> [really_seemed_to_the Found!]
[those_in_the_printshops] -> phrase-checker-package -> [those_in_the_printshops Unfamiliar!]
[...] -> phrase-checker-package -> [...]
```

~ I intend the final report(tabulated) to look like this:

```
lille_pige_med_svovlstikkerne \t Unfamiliar!
...
med_svovlstikkerne_by_jean \t Unfamiliar! 3rd-bigram-OK!
more_beautiful_than_the \t Found!
rattled_by_terribly_fast \t Found!
reached_both_her_hands \t Found!
really_seemed_to_the \t Found!
those_in_the_printshops \t Unfamiliar! 1st-bigram-OK! 2nd-bigram-OK!
...

~ Discussion note:

I would appreciate any suggestion(s) regarding simplifying the usage of the whole package.

After all I develop(amateurishly) this package especially for kids having PCs.

I want to write a PDF file with simple step-by-step instructions but I need some feedback(where difficulties are pointed out) in order to simplify the package enough thus making it usable even from computer dummies/beginners.

Somewhat a problem remains with making the package downloadable since the package revision 1 is about 756MB whereas my site's poor-bandwidth is already heavily loaded.
